[redacted] remembered Glushkov as being 5'9" tall, having dark brown hair and was approximately 36 or 37 years of age at that time. [redacted] could furnish no additional information.

The letterhead memorandum is classified "~~Confidential~~" because it discloses Bureau interest in an East-West Exchange Program.

[redacted] is being developed under the DESECO program. [redacted]

[redacted]

b6
b7C
b7D

Details of the aforementioned contact are set forth as follows:

On 5/26/65, [redacted] was contacted by SA PETER P. PALKOWETZ, as an interim contact, to assess further his potential in the DESECO Program as well as to establish a rapport which would facilitate a DESECO operation. During a discussion of [redacted] background, [redacted] advised that he was interested in any program or new innovations which would facilitate the teaching of languages or general knowledge in universities.

b6
b7D

At this time, SA PALKOWETZ was coordinating a DESECO operation at the International Federation for Information Processing Congress, 1965, which was being held at the New York Hilton Hotel, NYC. This Congress was of major international significance, dealing with computers, and, heretofore, the New York Residency of the KGB has utilized similar conferences of this type for recruitment of intelligence personnel. Accordingly, a DESECO operation was instituted whereby SAS of the NYO, who are knowledgeable in Soviet identification as well as Soviet intelligence activity, would participate for the purpose of placing selected DESECO subject's in touch with Soviet nationals who would attend this conference.

[redacted]

Investigation had disclosed 13 Soviet nationals would attend this conference, one of whom is VIKTOR MIKHAILOVICH GLUSHKOV, the only Soviet with any Soviet intelligence affiliation. It was also noted that he was scheduled as a guest speaker at a General Session slated for 2:00 PM on 5/26/65. [redacted]

b7D
b7E

[redacted] at the conference by SA PALKOWETZ, disclosed that [redacted] was not targeting GLUSHKOV and GLUSHKOV's talk would concern language adaptation to computers.

Since this presented a rare opportunity to utilize [redacted] with a perfect overt cover, well-suited to his capabilities and background, as well as targeting a DESECO subject against a known Soviet intelligence agent, it was deemed advisable to approach [redacted] to solicit his cooperation. [redacted] advised that he would be exceptionally pleased to assist the Bureau in any manner, and, accordingly, he was afforded appropriate instructions. [redacted] was also furnished legitimate guest credentials to the conference and instructed to attend the 2:00 PM General Session, as set forth in the letterhead memorandum.

b7C
b7D

[redacted] activity on 5/26/65, as set forth in the letterhead memorandum, was observed by SA PALKOWETZ. His approach to GLUSHKOV [redacted]

b6
b7C
b7D

[redacted] As a diversionary tactic to solidify [redacted] contact, GLUSHKOV was targeted in a similar DESECO operation [redacted] on 5/26/65, during the same session, which operation also appeared successful.

On 5/27/65 [redacted] was contacted by SA PALKOWETZ in accordance with instructions given to him for security reasons. He stated that his contact with GLUSHKOV appeared successful. He advised GLUSHKOV of his position [redacted] expressed to GLUSHKOV a great interest in GLUSHKOV's work and desired to see him before the convention expired or whatever time he would have available so that they could discuss GLUSHKOV's work in relation to possible adaptation of the principles discussed in his speech for possible utilization in American universities. GLUSHKOV appeared impressed and expressed a desire to [redacted] again. GLUSHKOV stated, however, that he would not have time while he was here in NYC and that he was departing for Mexico immediately after the conference expired. GLUSHKOV did not anticipate returning to NYC but indicated that he may very well see [redacted] in Washington, D.C., inasmuch as, at this time, he anticipated visiting Washington, D.C., before he returned to Moscow, USSR. [redacted] gave GLUSHKOV his card, indicating his locations both at [redacted]

Observations and Analyses

During the aforementioned contact [redacted] handled himself extremely well. He appeared poised, confident and natural. It is pointed out that [redacted] extended himself considerably to make this contact in view of another commitment he had scheduled at that time. [redacted] expresses a very high regard for the Director and Assistant Director WILLIAM C. SULLIVAN and the Bureau and appears to have excellent potential in the DESECO Program.

b7D

Contact will be maintained with [redacted] to continue the rapport which has been established for the overall development of [redacted] UACB, designating [redacted] an approved PSI will be held in abeyance pending the verification of his birth [redacted]

HP Factory Visit by Academician V. M. Glushkov

Gentlemen:

First, allow me to state that attempting to coordinate the visit of Mr. Glushkov was an enlightening experience. As a result of his visit, I now have several new contacts at the U. S. State Department, IFIPS, AFIPS, IBM, AURABAC PAPERS, NEW YORK UNIV., UCLA, STANFORD, and even in our own HP Corporate structure.

First, we learned that Mr. Glushkov was in the U. S. on an educational visa instead of a business visa as assumed by our people. Next, we learned from the State Department that Russia had requested that Mr. Glushkov return earlier than scheduled. Glushkov did not want to return early and was attempting to convince his people that he should stay as planned. He was not granted permission to stay until his actual revised departure date. Russia granted him permission to remain in the U. S. until 21 May 70, however, his visa expired on 19 May 70. He attempted to get HP to encourage the U. S. State Department to extend his visa departure date. This attempt was made but was unsuccessful.

and myself met with Mr. Glushkov and [Redacted] of Russia and [Redacted] of Stanford on Saturday May 16. The meeting was held at AMD Division (PAD) and lasted approximately two hours.

[Redacted] gave a formal presentation on HP's Real Time System capabilities. Mr. Glushkov asked several questions, most of which concerned HP future plans in the area of Real Time systems and Systems Responsibility. There were also many questions as "when will we replace the disc memory with a more reliable memory type; and when are we going to change from core to other memory types". As you are aware, we have no plans in the immediate future to adopt these new techniques. Our approach to these questions was that there was much we hoped to accomplish in expanding the capabilities of our hardware. Possible future applications of existing systems were also discussed briefly. I attempted Interest them in the 7970A Mag Tape and the 2748A Photo Reader as was suggested, but they were not very receptive.

We toured the factory with the result that [redacted] exhibited considerable interest in the 2060A Auto Test System. They were provided with all manuals, etc., which seemed of interest to them. The two then departed to [redacted] PDP 10/5 installation.

b6

All things considered, I truly do not know how to evaluate the Russian visit. All interactive communications were brief and the Russians were extremely difficult to "READ" from a sales standpoint.

We learned much from this visit, which will hopefully pay off on future Eastern Block visits. Next time, may I suggest that responsibility in the coordination of a customer visit be given to the appropriate International Sales Manager of the pertinent product discipline. We have no problem involving the [redacted] etc., provided we are given pertinent information on the sales situation. Also, do your best to provide [redacted] with the data he requests. His backing and personal contacts are invaluable.

Should you have any questions on the visit, please feel free to contact me.

Dear [redacted]

After all of our phone conversations a month or so ago and V. M. Glushkov's "on again, off again" visit to the West Coast, it turned out that he actually did get to California!

Unfortunately, I was in Europe at the time Glushkov visited us. [redacted] of our Cupertino Division, however, was available and met with Glushkov on Saturday, May 16th. During their visit, Glushkov and [redacted] were exposed to only material which we would show a competitor.

The source said prior to the conference, an invitation was extended to the delegation to visit Honeywell facilities at Minneapolis, and at that time, they declined the invitation. About two weeks before the conference, the group indicated that they desired to visit Minneapolis and arrangements were made for their visit. The delegation, however, encountered visa problems with the U.S. Department of State and the visit was cancelled. The source said at the last minute, Honeywell was advised by the State Department that the visit was on again.

MP T-4 said that sometime this past summer, Honeywell participated in an "air show" in Paris, France, in which a digital flight control system, utilizing a computer system, was demonstrated and Soviet representatives at the "air show" expressed considerable interest in the system at that time. The source said he understood that the State Department has been advised of this incident. The source suggested that this fact might account for the group being interested in visiting Honeywell, Minneapolis. The source said the group will receive a general overview of automatic control products manufactured at Minneapolis, and they will receive a tour of a company facility in Bloomington, Minnesota. The source said great care is being exercised to insure that nothing of a classified nature is shown to the visitors and that presentations made to the delegation will not include classified research which is being done in this field.

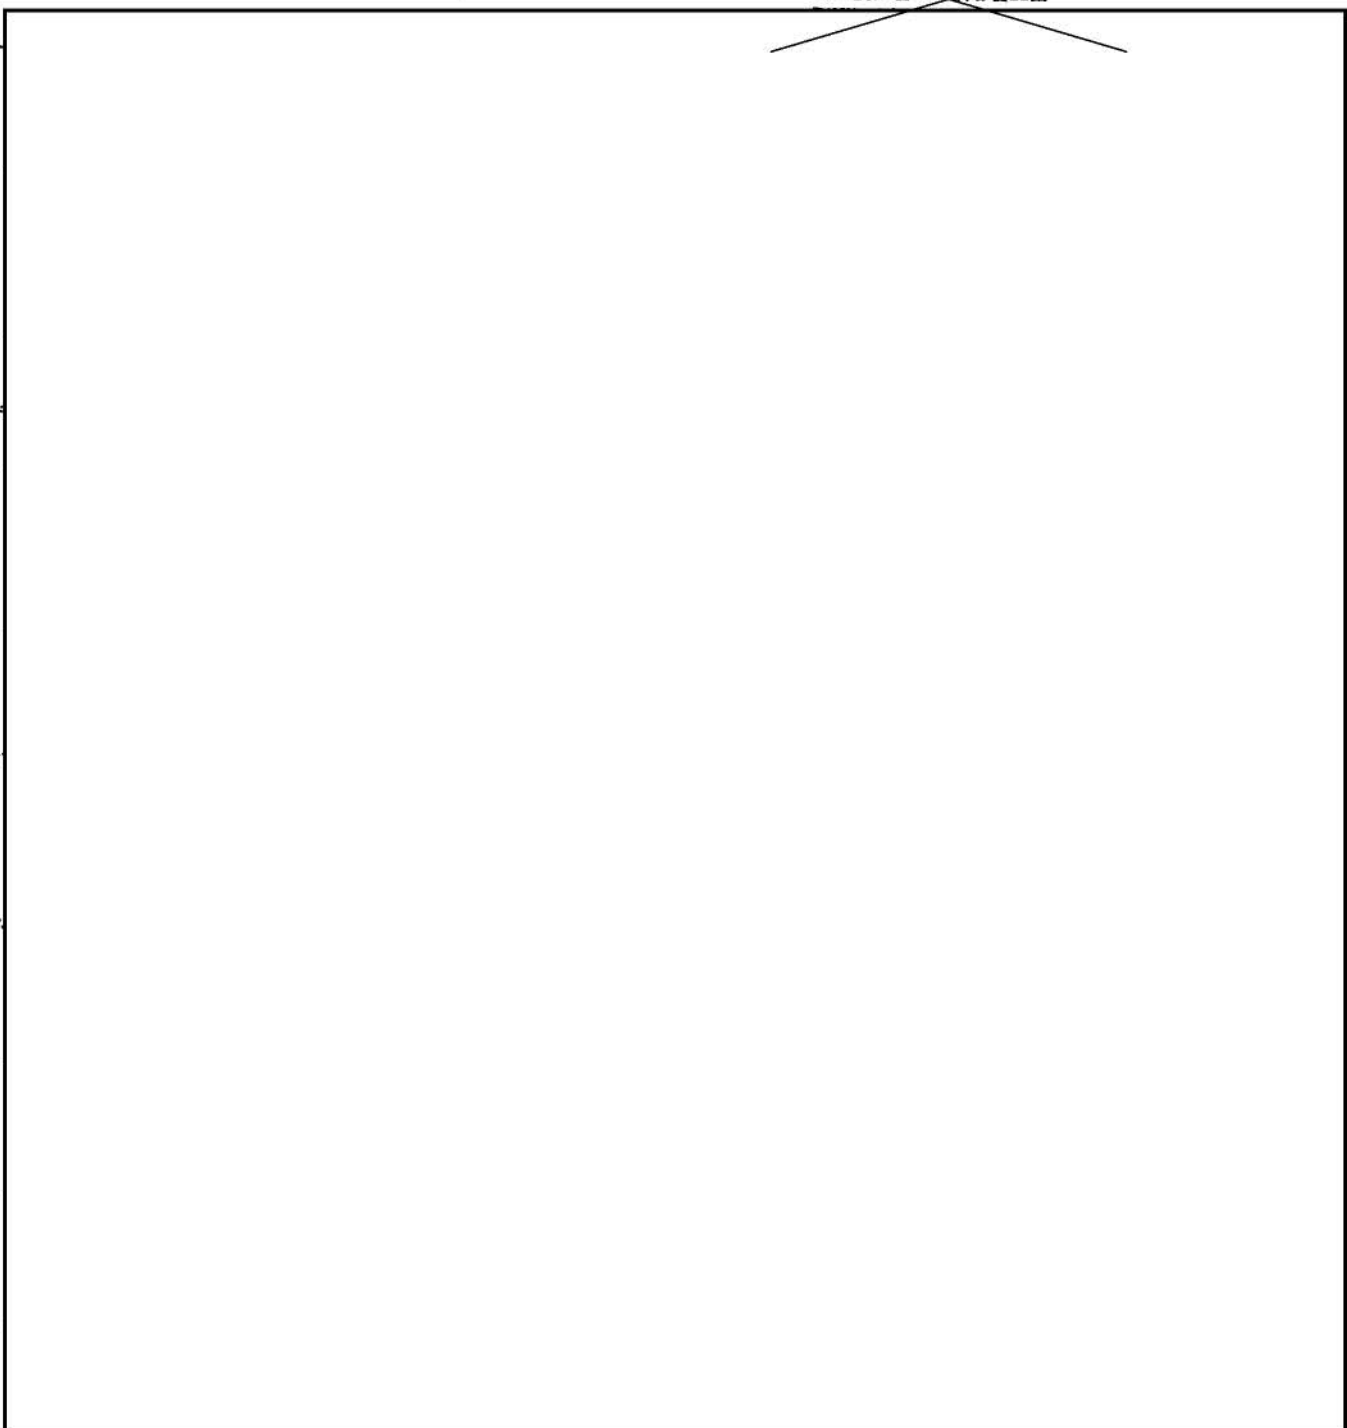

MP T-4 provided the following list of names which comprised the delegation:

MP T-4 advised that the following persons were scheduled to visit Minneapolis, but did not make the trip and no explanation was given explaining this fact:

[redacted]

MP T-4 said [redacted] were not originally scheduled to visit Minneapolis, and that they were added at the last minute.

MP T-4 said on August 31, 1975, on the evening that group arrived in Minneapolis, a cocktail party was held at the home of one of the Honeywell executives. Because the group was so large and most of the Americans present at the party did not know the visiting Soviets, most conversations that the source overheard or engaged in were very general in nature. The Soviets seemed most interested in discussing costs of various commercial goods and general social topics. The source said [redacted] seemed to be responsible for making sure that the Soviets did not drink too much and at the end of the party, making sure all the Soviets were aboard a bus which was provided for transportation.

b7C

MP T-4 said Glushkov is a famous Soviet engineer, a member of the Academy of Science, a member of the Supreme Soviet, is from Kiev, and is said to have won the Lenin prize. The source stated that at the party, Glushkov pretended not to speak English but later engaged in a conversation with the wife of one of the Honeywell executives, during which time he spoke excellent English. Glushkov remained aloof during most of the party and seemed to be bored. Other members of the delegation seemed aware of his presence. The source did not notice [redacted] during the party but recalled that he was present.

b6

MP T-4 said [redacted] is the head of a Soviet Space Center and worked on the Apollo-Soyuz mission.

On September 2, 1975, MP T-5, a source with whom contact has been insufficient to establish reliability and is [redacted]

[redacted] advised a group of visiting Soviet Scientists are scheduled to visit Electro-craft, 1600 South 2nd Street, Hopkins, Minnesota, on September 3, 1975.

b6
b7C

The visit was arranged by [redacted] of the University of Minnesota, and the purpose is to allow the visitors an opportunity to see a small company which manufactures components for automatic control systems. He said his company hopes to use the opportunity to promote some of the company's products for possible sale to the Soviet Union.

b6
b7C

On September 4, 1975, MP T-6, a source with whom contact has been insufficient to establish reliability and [redacted] advised that a group of 33 Soviet Scientists visited CDC Corporate Headquarters, Bloomington, Minnesota, and a peripheral manufacturing facility at Plymouth, Minnesota. The source said the purpose of the visit was to advise the visitors of computer programs and systems which CDC manufactures in the hope of promoting trade with the Soviet Union. The visit was arranged through [redacted] of the University of Minnesota.

MP T-6 said on September 1, 1975, the group visited a farm belonging to an executive of CDC. The visit was social in nature and after luncheon, the group was transported to the Minnesota State Fair. That evening, the visitors were provided an opportunity to attend a Minnesota Vikings exhibition football game if they so desired. The source said conversations he was a party to, involved general social topics.

VIKTOR MIKHAYLOVICH GLUSHKOV

b7C

MP T-6 said Glushkov seemed to be the leader of the delegation because of the manner in which the other members treated him. He said Glushkov was somewhat remote from the Americans and it may have been that he does not understand English. He described him as an imposing figure. He recalled that [redacted] was present at the party, but could not recall meeting him or noting activities on his part.

On September 4, 1975, MP T-7, a source who has provided reliable information in the past, advised he attended a tour of part of CDC corporate headquarters in which all members of visiting delegation of Soviet Scientists attended and also a tour of the Plato Project, which is a computerized educational system which was attended by about one half of the visitors. The source said the other one half of the group visited a peripheral manufacturing facility at Plymouth, Minnesota. The source said the visitors were shown nothing of a classified nature and he observed no activities on the part of the visitors outside of the intended purpose of their visit.

MP T-7 said that he recalled that Glushkov spoke English rather well. He seemed to watch the other members of the delegation and the other members seemed somewhat cautious in his presence. The source recalled that [redacted] seemed to be alone most of the time and had little contact with the Americans. The source said he could not tell if he spoke English. He said he seemed to be on the fringe of several conversations but did not participate in any. He said [redacted] was generally ignored by the Soviets as contrasted with Glushkov, whom the delegation seemed to be aware of.

On September 4, 1975, MP T-3 advised that 31 members of the Soviet delegation departed Minneapolis for Washington, D.C. at 9:50 a.m., aboard a non-stop Northwest Airlines Flight #304 on September 4, 1975. He said two members of the group, [redacted] Glushkov, departed Minneapolis for New York City, at 7:30 a.m., aboard non-stop Northwest Airlines Flight #200 on September 4, 1975. The source said the group's intended visit to the University of Minnesota was cancelled. The reason given was that the group was simply too exhausted. (S)

On September 4, 1975, MP T-5 advised that the scheduled visit to Electro-craft on September 3, 1975, was cancelled at the last minute. The source said CDC officials contacted Electro-craft to advise that the group was too tired to make the intended visit.

On September 5, 1975, MP T-1 provided the following list of names and room numbers of Soviets who stayed at the Leamington Hotel, Minneapolis, from August 31, 1975, through September 3, 1975:

MP T-1 also said that [ ] seemed to be in charge of making arrangements for the group and room assignments. He said on September 3, 1975, [ ] requested the bills for the group and oversaw the payment of the bills. He said the group members paid the bills themselves. The source said members of the Hotel staff reported no incidents in connection with the visitors. The source said [ ] made a long-distance telephone call to 212-247-3900, on September 2, 1975, at a cost of $2.11.

On September 5, 1975, MP T-4 advised that the Soviet Scientists visited the Honeywell Corporate Research Center, 10701 Lyndale Avenue South, Bloomington, Minnesota, on September 3, 1975. A presentation was given to the group which consisted of a general overview of Honeywell's position in the automatic controls industry. All topics presented and a series of photo slides shown, were carefully screened by Honeywell security personnel to avoid subjects of a classified nature. During the presentation, two areas which generated the most interest were the company's Digital Flight Control system (DFC) and the Application Technology Satellite (ATS). Concerning the DFC, questions were asked regarding its reliability, its application to commercial aircraft, and the size and power of the computer which it utilizes. Concerning the ATS, questions were asked regarding its automatic control system, the size and power of its computer system, and its reliability in maintaining attitude and stability in outer space. The source said the questions asked were of a nature that Scientists would ask about such systems. Referenced material was requested regarding the DFC; this material is commercially available according to the source. The source said the only unusual incident occurred when a photo slide was shown which was an artists conception of the ATS. The ATS was used as part of the U.S. communication system on the Apollo-Soyuz mission. The Soviets were aware of the ATS in connection with the mission and had seen photos or drawings of the satellite. The slide showed the ATS with the earth in the background. In the presentation, the ATS was referred to as the ATS-F. The Soviets said that it should be called the ATS-V if it was in fact the one used in the Apollo-Soyuz mission. The speaker explained that F is the 6th letter in the English alphabet, thus, the possible confusion.

More questions followed concerning the various configurations of the satellite. It was explained that the slide was a drawing and not a photo. The source said the Soviets seemed to believe that the slide was a photo, that the U.S. had another satellite which was behind the ATS at a greater distance from the earth and that this other satellite had taken a photo of the ATS-F. The source said he was not sure if the confusion on this point was fully resolved.

MP T-4 advised that [REDACTED] took no part in the questioning and did not appear to understand or was not interested in the presentation. He remained alone most of the time, occasionally huddling with certain members of the delegation. The source said Glushkov continued to act in an aloof manner giving the source the impression that he was above the whole thing. He said the other Soviets tried to impress Glushkov with their questions, that is, during the questioning session of the presentation, they frequently looked in his direction after asking a question as if seeking approval. The source noted that [REDACTED] seemed to be responsible for moving the Soviets from place to place and making sure that they all were together. He said he overheard someone say that [REDACTED] was to go to Washington D.C. with the rest of the Scientists and then would be traveling to New York City.

MP T-4 said that [REDACTED] is very interested in sports cars and owns a Soviet sports car, and requested to be given a ride in an American sports car. He said arrangements were made to have him ride in a Corvette from the Lyndale facility to the Honeywell Country Club on September 3, 1975. Norkin was to accompany him, however, he was too large to fit into the back seat of the car. After considerable deliberation, [REDACTED] was allowed to go alone with the driver, who is a Honeywell secretary. The source said it was clear that [REDACTED] was not happy with the situation. The source could not detect any reaction from any other members of the delegation.

b6

MP T-4 said during his contact with the Soviet Scientists, he noted no activities on the part of the delegation which would be outside of the scope of their intended visit.

On October 31, 1975, MP T-8, a source with whom contact has been insufficient to establish reliability and [redacted] advised that on September 1, 1975, the source accompanied a group of about 13 members of the Soviet delegation to the Minnesota State Fair. He said the group showed particular interest in displays of farming machinery, 4-H activities, and handicrafts made by 4-H members. He said on September 2, 1975, the Soviet delegation was given a tour of CDC headquarters and after which, the delegation was broken up into two groups. One group visited the company's Plymouth facility, which manufactures peripheral products and the other group was given a demonstration of the Plato Project, a computer programmed educational system. The source noted no unusual activities on the part of the group which he accompanied to either the State Fair or the Plymouth Plant. He said at the Plymouth Plant, the group was shown nothing of a classified nature. He said at no time did any members of the group act in any way outside the scope of their intended visit.

MP T-8 said Glushkov accompanied the group to the Plymouth Plant and the source had an opportunity to talk with him briefly. He said Glushkov is the head of the Soviet computer industry, he speaks reasonably good English, and their conversation was primarily of a general nature.
