SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

The boat is moving slowly. There is cargo aboard within the inner cabin area where beams are exposed on the ceiling (see sketches on pages 6 and 7). Inside wooden crates, there are thick, murky, clear plastic bags which are folded over at the top and fastened in the center (see sketches on pages 8A and 8b). The substance contained therein is a whitish color. A wooden object is present which has a lower middle panel and raised end portions (see sketch on page 10). Approximately six pertinent people are aboard the boat. The location of the drugs has been moved to a disassociated vessel before. Another vessel was involved in loading and unloading the cargo. There are drugs on the vessel which have been physically moved several times in the past because of opportunities or investment changes. Changed routes in course. There is South American involvement. The [redacted] is located around San Luis Obispo, California now and may have stopped in San Lucas. The final destination is the Gulf of Alaska.
