SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

The target area has many aspects to it. The main attraction was a structure. There is a great deal of moisture, darkness and dampness. There are stairways leading downward which have metal stairs and railings. These stairways appear to have concrete walls.

There are metal pipes and electrical conduits running overhead and along many of the walls. These elongate the halls in appearance. There is a constant ~~buzzing noise~~ inside this structure. A large cavern or room is attached to the structure (or may even be an integral part of it). There are also large heavy metal doors closing off different areas of the structure.

I felt confined at the site, buried, had difficulty breathing and moving -- and was constantly bothered by the noise of machines and fumes.

There is a great deal of stainless steel used in the construction of walls doors and other structural components. Pumps continue to churn away at the process of moving something from the site -- pushing it upward and outward.
