ERV SESSION PROCEDURES REPORT

WARNING NOTICE: INTELLIGENCE SOURCES AND METHODS INVOLVED

|---------------------------|----------------------------|
| CONTROL NUMBER: 8712 | NICKNAME: None |
| DATE OF SESSION: 1 Sep 87 | TARGET COUNTRY: Iran |
| REFERENCES: None | SESSION NUMBER: 02 |
| DATE OF REPORT: 3 Sep 87 | MISSION STATUS: Continuing |
| TECHNIQUE UTILIZED: ERV | SOURCE IDENTIFIER: 003 |

1. (S/NF/SK) INTERVIEWER TASKING: Determine the possibility of Iranian attacks against US Naval vessels and/or vessels of US Naval interest. To accomplish this tasking the Source is to be directed to view three separate "windows" in the future. These windows are the week of 6 September, the week of 13 September and the week of 20 September 1987. Each window is to be examined separately and in its entirety to determine Iranian intentions and actions during that reporting period. If an attack is perceived the Source is to be tasked to provide all relevant information pertaining to the attack.

2. (S/NF/SK) SOURCE TASKING: Prior to the session, Source was told that this would be another effort at viewing specific future "time windows". He was further told that He was to describe specific "events of special interest" in each of the time windows. Additionally, Source was provided encrypted coordinates, 279400/555141, as per Extended Remote Viewing (ERV) protocols.

3. (S/NF/SK) INCLEMENCIES: There were no unusual incidents or anomalies which may affected the data provided by Source during this session. Source was not told until just prior to the session that He would be operating in the ERV mode as opposed to the Coordinate Remote Viewing (CRV) mode. This did not appear to have any detrimental affect on His ability to quickly adapt to the proper viewing mode and to report non-ambiguous and concise information throughout the session. In Source's previous session there may have been a technical violation of ERV protocols involving the fact that the Interviewer attempted to utilize this tasking in conjunction with another mission which was not quite as specific in the nature of the nationalities of the targets. To compensate for this "violation" this session was run as though it were a totally new mission, which it is, and with no reference made to Source that this tasking is located in the same geographic area, deals with much of the same tasking and may provide essentially the same data as the previous tasking (Project 8711). This fact, and technical violation, did not seem to "psychically" confuse the Source and the data was reported in a concise and informative manner.

4. (S/NF/SK) SUMMARY: Source furnished the attached summary which was prepared by Him and provided to the Interviewer within 24 hours after the session. The completeness of the typewritten summary has been compared to the Interviewer's notes and all changes, deletions and corrections have been verified as accurate and acceptable by the Interviewer. The information provided in the summary was found to be complete and did not require further modification, clarifications or additions by the Interviewer. The nature of the targeting did not merit attempts by the Source to provide accompanying sketches since the data provided dealt more with conceptual ideas and planned activities rather than actual physical items.

5. (S/NF/SK) COMMENTS: The data provided by Source would seem to indicate that US Naval vessels in the Persian Gulf will not be the target of Iranian military attacks during the cited time windows, (1-20 September 1987). The viewing of future time windows is fraught with pitfalls that can skew results beyond an acceptable threshold, however, in those cases the ambiguity of the data is normally readily apparent. In this particular case the data seemed to be concise and easily correlated to the proper geographic area. The validity of the incidents reported by Source will be borne out by simply waiting for the future to occur. If Source's data is accurate, within the parameters of Remote Viewing, the future should reflect a sudden military strike against land based targets, presumably conducted by US forces in the area. There appears to have been a noticeable buildup of Iranian forces and distinct impressions of planned Iranian activities inimicable to the best interest of the US which may have prompted the US strike. Following the strike, there is a period of anger and attempts at revenge mixed with a great deal of internal chaos as the loss of Iranian leadership roles. This activities is followed by a more quiet period in which the level of internal violence is diminished although internal mass demonstrations may still persist. It will be interesting to see if any or all of these impressions come to fruition.

First site involves an old, worn, cement structure in a flat, dirt area, very bright, hot sunny, dusty. Area around about is rocky, dry, with low bushes, a dirt road, small trucks, and people who are native to the area. It feels isolated, not near large populations, somewhere far down the road there is a green area with flowing water, like a river in the desert. People live here, as do groups of small animals and some larger ones; small homes are here and there in the green area. It doesn't feel like the US; it feels foreign. The dry area is higher in altitude than the green area. The structure is away from the green area some distance, and few people who don't belong there ever go there. It's "like" the people who live at the structure "homesteaded"--the structure was there, but unused, and they just took it over. Presently it's pretty much empty. The structure is in somewhat of valley, surrounded on each side by gullies and small eroded hills moving back and getting bigger until they become large, rocky hills or small mountains. On one side the hills are farther away. The dirt road comes down between two mountains, goes past the structure and on down towards the green area. The air is hot and shimmery.

Second site is flat with slight ups and downs to the terrain, and is near a large, non-flowing body of water which is green, flat, and wavy.

~~Time~~ window: 1 Sep-6 Sep 87J

People moving around, driving around, quite a few people, carrying boxes--like they are gathering them together; very busy. They're putting things together, arranging it: metal things in boxes, round things, long metal things--tubes. They're going somewhere to do something military, organized together. There are people telling them what they do and they do it. Things are being planned; they're told what to do, diagrams are shown; some are getting in trucks and going away. The others stay and keep things together at home, for the ones who will come back--they watch and make sure nothing happens. The ones who went somewhere went to a place where there are more buildings, an urban area, and are dropped off at various points to fulfill their varying assignments. What they do seems to involve forcing or coercing someone. But something happens at the location from where they came. The people left behind are surprised by it, caught off guard. They weren't expecting anything--they were relaxing, doing things that needed to be done, etc. It happened suddenly; AOL Signal of an attack or being captured, or something. They don't like what happens; it's big, well organized and directed. Impression that these new people come from above--impression of helicopter. They make the first people do something they don't want. Whatever is done takes away the usefulness of the area to the first people. When the others come back it's not friendly anymore.

The ones that went out--they were "like" infiltrating or something--like they are trying to cause trouble with as few resources as possible. Helicopter comes from and goes to a large, flat, black, metal expanse like a deck--flat, rough, squarish, bumpy, like corrugations--non-skid. It's on or near water, and the air is hazy.
