Summary of Information

Site is an open, rolling, green natural setting with certain structures and objects scattered here and there about. One structure/object is very light grey, curving or even slightly spiraling around, stepped, with a pebbly texture. It gives the impression of a free-form sculpture that is meant to be sat on--a sort of avant garde park bench. A further object/structure is more vertically oriented, but is very dark or black in color, glossy or polished in texture, smooth, with several aesthetic protrusions. It gives the impression of a large, dark marble sculpted base for a flag pole. Both structure/objects are on a flat, quadrilateral paved surface surrounded by wide expanses of lawn and bushes. There seem to be a few walkways connecting various points of interest. The vegetation seems to be very carefully tended; people seem to come here as a change from everyday life, but it is a "multi-functionary" sort of a place--there are things to do as well as to see, though there seems to be a sense of contemplation associated with it. The landscape is very well organized and kept up, suggesting either a golf course or a cemetery.
