Summary of Information

Site seems to involve a broad expanse of warm, gently sloping sand with a large body of water in the immediate vicinity, loud bird sounds, and tall dark, cylindrical shapes rising vertically from the surface. There was a sense of hazy atmosphere, and watery sunlight. There was further a very large, rounded but elongated metal structure, supported by numerous vertical upright braces; the metal structure was strongly constructed, rusty, put together with rivets or bolts, and towered over someone standing nearby. Present also was a large, rounded, perhaps spherical shape made also of metal, streaked with bits of rust, dented here and there, hollow, old, and painted with a large red and white checkered pattern.
