Summary of Information

Site involves a large, closely spaced but extensively spread out group of buildings. Central to the grouping is one or more larger, innerly voluminous structures with a curving, domed component to the roof(s). (SKETCH, P. 3A) Significant height, spaciousness, geometric patterns, embrasures, thick walls, masonry construction are all elements of the structure(s). There is a sense that one main, large structure is the focus of the site, and that a religious/philosophical aspect is present. It seems not to be specifically an operational/intelligence type site. There is a group of people talking, planning, meeting, discussing; at issue is future guidance/planning for something under their control. Beards and headdresses are common among the group (A/S Middle East locale). There is a sense of relief and optimism--a "new leaf" sort of a feeling. The structure is intended primarily for gathering people together, perhaps in some sort of religious commonality. A/S "like" some sort of transition from one power base to another or one regime to another or one "commander" to another.
