Site involves vessel, apparently at anchor not far from a shore line of a small body of land that has dark green foliage on it, reminiscent of Hawaii or a South Sea island. There are structures and people on the land, but it is too small for the vessel to come up to a pier to dock. Climate is warm and pleasant with a clean-smelling breeze, and bright colors scattered here and there. Urban to some extent but not industrial. Impression that "some" suspect material is to go ashore here, with a small boat connected in some way. The cue of "significant event" produced the following scenario: A/S of a boarding party--a white boat next to the vessel. Another vessel forward and kitty-corner, waiting at some distance; impression of people in tan clothes looking into things--cynical--abrupt and business-like in manner; one comes out carrying something wrapped in plastic. Sense of excitement/elation/success and relief/release of tension/anticipation. People originally aboard are glowery--not pleased.
