SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

The object is off-white with long cylindrical portions and is perpendicular in position. Land is at the site and this object is in an air silo sounding area. A related portion of this object recedes and a cylindrical portion comes outward in design. The bottom of the cylindrical part is complicated (see sketch on page 5 and photos). Dictated captions ^(foreign routine) and target areas are of interest (markings). This object has receptors and controlled communication devices (SIGINT). The object is a means to which controls are utilized to describe things. Although this object in its current state is stationary, it is activities dependent (future undesignated missions). The focus is long and short ^{dependent upon} outcomes, and resolutions depicting distance.
