SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

I had the visual of a person's head. There is an object which has volume, and a little square part. The purpose of the object is to glide. Something is transparent. A small silver metallic item is present which has a little hole in the top of it. There is a curved portion towards the top of the object which has wave like grooves in it. The central to top area is the largest in width. I am under the impression that this is a personal item which could possibly be worn by people. See attached sketches.
