SUMMARY OF INFORMATION

Was drawn to a large rectangular room. In this room there was an individual who was calm, but appeared rather tired. He was slouched down in a large, over-stuffed chair. In front of him was a long table with approximately 11-12 people sitting around it. These people seemed nervous and somewhat agitated. To one side of this room was a person who was very, very nervous and continued to pace back-and-forth the whole time. This person appeared to have an assault rifle slung upside-down over his shoulder (see sketch #1).

There appears to be a symbol associated with this room, perhaps located over a doorway, or mantle (see sketch #2).

There was the feeling of a "stalemate," or "Mexican stand-off" associated with this activity..... a very high level of frustration.
