

Subject: Idea worksheet for the Bibliography database.

1. The bibliographic database is being designed to meet our future needs. It will allow us to ask for a topic we select, and will pull up a list of titles where we can find information on that topic.

2. Problem: Computers are stupid machines, which can only count up to one, and are totally unable to do anything without exact instructions. That means that if we want to be able to find references on some certain topic, we have to tell it ahead of time to keep track of that topic.

3. Solution: We have to decide right now what topics we want to keep track of. The index shown below is proposed, and is in need of finalization. Please provide your input to additions/ changes/ etc., to this index.

Subject: Idea worksheet for the Bibliography database.

1. The bibliographic database is being designed to meet our future needs. It will allow us to ask for a topic we select, and will pull up a list of titles where we can find information on that topic.
2. Problem: Computers are stupid machines, which can only count up to one, and are totally unable to do anything without exact instructions. That means that if we want to be able to find references on some certain topic, we have to tell it ahead of time to keep track of that topic.
3. Solution: We have to decide right now what topics we want to keep track of. I have compiled a list of topics below which is far from complete. I need you to come up with other topics of interest. If we do not program them in, they will not be there. Therefore, I need you to tell me right now what areas of interest you have, you can think of, etc.
4. Note that I have broken this up into two categories; the general areas of interest (i.e. hypnosis), and the specific areas which apply to every general area (police cases involving hypnosis).
