FOIPA Request No.: 1410023-000
Subject: 121-HQ-23278

Dear Mr. Greenewald:

Records responsive to your request were previously processed under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). Below you will find informational paragraphs relevant to your request. Please read each item carefully.

Enclosed are 2,258 pages of previously processed documents and a copy of the Explanation of Exemptions.

Please be advised that additional records potentially responsive to your subject may exist. If this release of previously processed material does not satisfy your information needs for this request, you may request an additional search for records. Submit your request by mail or fax to – Work Process Unit, 170 Marcel Drive, Winchester, VA 22602, fax number (540) 868-4997. Please cite the FOIPA Request Number in your correspondence.

For your information, Congress excluded three discrete categories of law enforcement and national security records from the requirements of the FOIA. See 5 U.S. C. § 552(c) (2006 & Supp. IV (2010)). This response is limited to those records subject to the requirements of the FOIA. This is a standard notification that is given to all our requesters and should not be taken as an indication that excluded records do, or do not, exist.

For questions regarding our determinations, visit the www.fbi.gov/foia website under "Contact Us." The FOIPA Request Number listed above has been assigned to your request. Please use this number in all correspondence concerning your request.

You may file an appeal by writing to the Director, Office of Information Policy (OIP), United States Department of Justice, Suite 11050, 1425 New York Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20530-0001, or you may submit an appeal through OIP's FOIA online portal by creating an account on the following web site: <https://foiaonline.regulations.gov/foia/action/public/home>. Your appeal must be postmarked or electronically transmitted within ninety (90) days from the date of this letter in order to be considered timely. If you submit your appeal by mail, both the letter and the envelope should be clearly marked "Freedom of Information Act Appeal." Please cite the FOIPA Request Number assigned to your request so it may be easily identified.

You may seek dispute resolution services by contacting the Office of Government Information Services (OGIS) at 877-684-6448, or by emailing ogis@nara.gov. Alternatively, you may contact the FBI's FOIA Public Liaison by emailing foipaquestions@fbi.gov. If you submit your dispute resolution correspondence by email, the subject heading should clearly state "Dispute Resolution Services." Please also cite the FOIPA Request Number assigned to your request so it may be easily identified.

Sincerely,

EXPLANATION OF EXEMPTIONS

SUBSECTIONS OF TITLE 5, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTION 552

- (b)(1) (A) specifically authorized under criteria established by an Executive order to be kept secret in the interest of national defense or foreign policy and (B) are in fact properly classified to such Executive order;
- (b)(2) related solely to the internal personnel rules and practices of an agency;
- (b)(3) specifically exempted from disclosure by statute (other than section 552b of this title), provided that such statute (A) requires that the matters be withheld from the public in such a manner as to leave no discretion on issue, or (B) establishes particular criteria for withholding or refers to particular types of matters to be withheld;
- (b)(4) trade secrets and commercial or financial information obtained from a person and privileged or confidential;
- (b)(5) inter-agency or intra-agency memorandums or letters which would not be available by law to a party other than an agency in litigation with the agency;
- (b)(6) personnel and medical files and similar files the disclosure of which would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy;
- (b)(7) records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes, but only to the extent that the production of such law enforcement records or information ( A ) could reasonably be expected to interfere with enforcement proceedings, ( B ) would deprive a person of a right to a fair trial or an impartial adjudication, ( C ) could reasonably be expected to constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy, ( D ) could reasonably be expected to disclose the identity of confidential source, including a State, local, or foreign agency or authority or any private institution which furnished information on a confidential basis, and, in the case of record or information compiled by a criminal law enforcement authority in the course of a criminal investigation, or by an agency conducting a lawful national security intelligence investigation, information furnished by a confidential source, ( E ) would disclose techniques and procedures for law enforcement investigations or prosecutions, or would disclose guidelines for law enforcement investigations or prosecutions if such disclosure could reasonably be expected to risk circumvention of the law, or ( F ) could reasonably be expected to endanger the life or physical safety of any individual;
- (b)(8) contained in or related to examination, operating, or condition reports prepared by, on behalf of, or for the use of an agency responsible for the regulation or supervision of financial institutions; or
- (b)(9) geological and geophysical information and data, including maps, concerning wells.

SUBSECTIONS OF TITLE 5, UNITED STATES CODE, SECTION 552a

- (d)(5) information compiled in reasonable anticipation of a civil action proceeding;
- (j)(2) material reporting investigative efforts pertaining to the enforcement of criminal law including efforts to prevent, control, or reduce crime or apprehend criminals;
- (k)(1) information which is currently and properly classified pursuant to an Executive order in the interest of the national defense or foreign policy, for example, information involving intelligence sources or methods;
- (k)(2) investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, other than criminal, which did not result in loss of a right, benefit or privilege under Federal programs, or which would identify a source who furnished information pursuant to a promise that his/her identity would be held in confidence;
- (k)(3) material maintained in connection with providing protective services to the President of the United States or any other individual pursuant to the authority of Title 18, United States Code, Section 3056;
- (k)(4) required by statute to be maintained and used solely as statistical records;
- (k)(5) investigatory material compiled solely for the purpose of determining suitability, eligibility, or qualifications for Federal civilian employment or for access to classified information, the disclosure of which would reveal the identity of the person who furnished information pursuant to a promise that his/her identity would be held in confidence;
- (k)(6) testing or examination material used to determine individual qualifications for appointment or promotion in Federal Government service the release of which would compromise the testing or examination process;
- (k)(7) material used to determine potential for promotion in the armed services, the disclosure of which would reveal the identity of the person who furnished the material pursuant to a promise that his/her identity would be held in confidence.

Communist in State Department

Feb. 7th

Dear Mr. Hoover
Alger Hiss. In the light of the 11-1 past communist activities that are known to exist in the State Dept. as brought forth in the late perjury trial of Alger Hiss. In writing to demand a complete investigation of the State Dept. I also inquire into illegal entries into the U.S. as perpetrated by the D.P. Commission.

In the future security of our Nation I feel investigations of this kind such an investigation should be started at once.

In view of your statement carried by the press that there are "57 card-carrying Communists" in the State Department I respectfully request that you make these names public or submit them to the Department of State. It would seem to me that if you have this information, as a loyal American you owe it to your country to inform the officials responsible for any such characters existing in the government. As you know our employees have been checked and are being checked by the Federal Bureau of Investigation under the President's loyalty program and if you have proof that there are card-carrying members of the Communist Party in this Department I assure you that they will not remain in this agency. I assume that you have given your information to the FBI. Therefore we will communicate with that agency immediately. Needless to say, the thousands of loyal employees of this Department must not be placed under a cloud of suspicion and I should appreciate it if you will promptly publish the names of the departmental employees whom you say are members of the Communist Party.

At two minutes to four, Jack Neale called Mr. McGuire in my office and advised that Assistant Under-Secretary Jack Peurifoy had written a letter to Senator McCarthy and contemplated releasing his letter to the Senator at 4 o'clock. The letter to McCarthy pointed out McCarthy owed it to his country to expose any Communists; that, as McCarthy knew, employees in the State Department had been checked and were being checked by the FBI under the President's Loyalty Program; that he, Peurifoy, assumes the Senator has communicated the names of the 57 Communists in the State Department to the FBI; that he, Peurifoy, would appreciate it if McCarthy would publish the names because the State Department would fire any Communists immediately. u

I called Neale back and told him that of course it would take some time to check whether there was any incoming mail but that aside from this I had mentioned the matter to the Director and the Director thought it most undesirable to request the Senator to turn the names over to the FBI; that the State Department had already said they would fire anyone in the State Department who was a Communist; that, therefore, the Senator should give the names to the State Department direct. u

I further told Neale it seemed improper to bring the Bureau into this matter, knowing full well that we could not discuss the results of our investigations under the Loyalty Program and that, furthermore, if they had Communists and we had turned up the Party cards there was nothing we could do about it as it was a State Department matter. He stated that he had already in substance stated this but that Peurifoy still asked him to check to a certain whether we had received a list from McCarthy, as he might have some questions. I told Neale we could not say; that this would take some time to check, and that, anyway, it was doubtful the Senator would send them to us in the first instance. Neale stated Peurifoy should not have brought the Bureau into his communication but that there was nothing that could be done about that as the communication had been sent to McCarthy on the 11th. u

PURPOSE:

Communists in State Department

To inform you of an article appearing in "The Washington Post" dated February 13, 1950, regarding statements made by Senator Joseph McCarthy (R), Wisconsin, during a Lincoln Day talk at a dinner of Nevada Republicans, wherein he identified four individuals as "people with Communist connections."

BACKGROUND:

This article, carried by the Associated Press and date-lined Reno, was for the most part a continuation of his criticism of the State Department as regards his charge of Communist infiltration. He named, as "specific cases of people with Communist connections," John W. Service, Gustave Duran, Mrs. Mary Jane Keeney, and Dr. Harlow Shapley. From the facts given by Senator McCarthy, John W. Service is, no doubt, identical with John Stewart Service on whom we conducted an investigation under the provisions of Executive Order 9835. The others, Duran, Keeney, and Dr. Shapley, have not been identified with federal employment since the inception of the Loyalty Order and, therefore, have not been within the scope of the Order. There follows a brief sketch of these individuals:

John Stewart Service

A full field loyalty investigation under the provisions of Executive Order 9835 was conducted of Service and the reports reflecting the results of this investigation were furnished to the Civil Service Commission on December 23, 1948, and to the Department on March 24, 1949. The basis for investigation was his arrest, together with Phillip Jacob Jaffe and Kate Mitchell, co-editors of "Amerasia," a magazine published in New York City, and others, on the basis of a complaint charging him with conspiracy to remove government documents and furnish them to unauthorized individuals. Service was not indicted by the Grand Jury in this case.

The Loyalty Investigation developed generally that former neighbors and fellow employees considered Service to be loyal, however, one confidential informant stated that while serving on the staff of the political advisor to General MacArthur at Tokyo, Japan, in 1945, he appeared to have become enamored of Communist theory.

It was learned in January, 1949, that following the Grand Jury's refusal to indict him, Service had been sent to a minor post in New Zealand by the State Department and later recalled from New Zealand and promoted to a position on the Selection Board of the Foreign Service where he was to pass upon the employment and promotion of Junior Foreign Service employees. FIVE 1950

There is no information in Bureau files indicating that Service is not still employed by the Department of State. The Criminal Division of the Department, however, advised, on April 21, 1949, that an examination of the Bureau's reports failed to indicate a violation of any federal statute.

Gustave Duran

This individual, in all likelihood, is identical with Gustavo Duran, the subject of a rather extensive Internal Security - R investigation, which investigation is presently in a closed status. A loyalty investigation under the provisions of Executive Order 9835 has never been conducted inasmuch as Duran has not been in Federal employment since the inception of the Loyalty Order. As of June, 1949, he was employed as Chief of Section of Cultural Activities in the Department of Social Affairs, United Nations, Lake Success, Long Island, New York. (64-27446)

Mary Jane Keeney

Mary Jane Keeney is the subject of an Internal Security - R investigation, and since she has not been a Federal employee since the inception of the Loyalty Order, she has not been investigated under the Loyalty Program. She has been described as a contact of subjects in the Gregory Case. As of January, 1950, it is reflected in Bureau files that Mary Jane Keeney is employed at the United Nations, Lake Success, New York.

Dr. Harlow Shapley

According to Bureau files, Dr. Shapley is Director of Harvard Observatory. He has, from time to time, undertaken considerable criticism of the foreign and domestic policy of the Government of the United States insofar as matters pertaining Russia and its satellites are concerned and a co-existing praise of Soviet policy and activities at home and abroad. (100-341825)

Shapley has never been investigated under the provisions of Executive Order 9835 on the basis of his being a member of the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences. The Attorney General advised by memorandum dated May 24, 1948, that neither the National Academy of Sciences nor its National Research Council is a part of the Executive Branch of the Government and, consequently, does not fall within the purview of Executive Order 9835. Your attention is invited to the fact that each of the above four categories is divided into Applicants and Employees Sections. This is done because there is no information in the Bureau's files indicating that the applicants on whom we conducted investigations under these programs ever were hired. Additionally, no check has been made with the Civil Service Commission or the employing agency to determine whether the individuals mentioned in the Employees Section are presently working in the Executive Branch of the government, although according to our files, no information has been received indicating otherwise.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

As of possible interest, I am enclosing news items and editorials from Salt Lake City and Reno, Nevada papers relating to recent public statements made by Senator JOSEPH R. McCARTHY (R) of Wisconsin regarding alleged Communists in the State Department and in the United States.

Senator McCARTHY, accompanied by Senator GEORGE W. MALONE (R) of Nevada was out this way for the purpose of addressing an annual Lincoln Day banquet in Reno. ~~He~~

SA [redacted] a Resident Agent at Reno, has informed me that JACK HARMON, a retired reputable businessman of Reno who attended the banquet, later informed him that Senator McCARTHY had paid you one of the finest compliments he had ever heard of a Government official. HARMON stated that during his speech at the banquet Senator McCARTHY deviated from his script and said he would like to pay a compliment to a Government official. He then identified the person as, "Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation," and said, "Hoover is the outstanding man in Washington at this time."

Irresponsible Gossip Or Derelict Officials

Senator Joseph E. McCarthy of Wisconsin dropped a bombshell when he stopped in Salt Lake City the other day on his way to attend a Republican rally in Reno, Nevada. He said there were 57 card-carrying Communists in the state department, and that he could give Secretary of State Acheson their names.

Many of the 57, the senator said, are in the higher salary brackets and hold influential positions. He charged that one man, John Service, "was picked up by the FBI for turning over state department secrets to Communists" but was strangely not prosecuted. Joseph Grew, who insisted on prosecution, was forced to resign. Service was reinstated and promoted, and is now en route to India to represent the state department there. "I think," said Senator McCarthy, "he should be recalled before we establish the same kind of policy there that we had in China."

This accusation is simply staggering. If it is true, it establishes a degree of vicious laxity in the administration's effort to eliminate disloyal officials that amounts to a betrayal of trust.

Frankly, it is difficult to believe any loyal, responsible American officials could be so faithless. But the charge has been made by a United States senator. It cannot be shrugged off. Either Senator McCarthy is an irresponsible purveyor of unsubstantiated gossip and rumors, or trusted American officials, from the president on down through the ranks of state department heads, have been infamously derelict in their duty.

We ought to know which is correct. It is dangerous to permit the poison of suspicion and doubt to eat away the confidence Americans have in the integrity of their government and its ability to guarantee national security.

TOO MANY

Better than anybody else, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover should know how many Communists there are in this country. So when he says there are approximately 540,000 Communists and fellow-travelers, one-tenth of that total party members, his figure will be taken as authoritative. Just what it means, however, may be open to some dispute.

For example, the total is not large by comparison with the population of the United States, now reckoned at 150,000,000. But Communists have never depended on mere numbers to achieve their ends. They have worked out methods that have been very successful in putting influence and power in the grasp of a few.

The figure seems to indicate, too, that Communism has been gaining ground in this country. If it is taken for granted that not all of the 540,000 Communists and fellow-travelers are voters, the Hoover estimate is sobering.

It is deeply disturbing to realize that the party not only can exist on American soil but can grow, no matter how slowly, when it is known for what it is.

Visiting Solon Cites Reds' Infiltration

By O. N. MALMQUIST

A charge that at least 57 card-carrying Communists are in the State department was reiterated in Salt Lake City Friday night by Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) after a spokesman for the department had issued a denial.

Sen. McCarthy, en route to Reno, Nev., to address a Lincoln day dinner Saturday, stopped here to attend the local banquet in Newhouse hotel.

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy . . .
Reds are in State department."

"If Secy. of State Dean Acheson would call me I could read him the list of 57 names" Sen. McCarthy said when informed that Lincoln White, State department spokesman has said:

"We know of no Communist party members in the department ranks. If we find any they will be summarily dismissed."

Sen. McCarthy added that while he could supply the state department with the 57 names he was not certain he would do so unless officials "showed their good faith and sincerity" by agreeing to certain steps.

Terms Order 'Unusual'

"I may make them public when I have conferred with other members of the senate," he remarked.

One commitment Sen. McCarthy said he would like is withdrawal of what he termed a "very unusual" presidential order prohibiting government departments from turning over information on employes to congressional committees. This order, he recalled, was issued after Alger Hiss testified before the un-American activities committee.

The Wisconsin senator said he did not mean to infer by using the number 57 that that was all the card-carrying Communists in the State department.

"There may be many more," he declared. "We just have the names of 57."

In Espionage Ring

Asked as to the source of his information, he replied that some of it was from the un-American activities committee and some from sources which could not be disclosed. He indicated that some of the sources he could not disclose are inside the State department.

Sen. McCarthy asserted that many of the 57 are above "the $5300 salary bracket" and held influential positions. He emphasized that he was not intimating that the secretary of state is even "remotely connected with Communists." But he added that he regarded party members in the department as part of the "Soviet espionage ring in this country."

Raps India Envoy

"I consider this a very important issue," Sen. McCarthy said, "because of the influence these people can exert on foreign policy. One of the things I think is important is to get an individual recalled who is now en route to India to represent the State department there. I think he should be recalled before we establish the same kind of policy there that we had in China."

The senator explained he was referring to a member of the department named John Service who, he said, "was picked up by the FBI for turning over State department secrets to Communists" but, who was "strangely not prosecuted."

He said Joseph Graw, who insisted on prosecution, was forced to resign; that Service not only was reinstated but was advanced to a position which placed him in charge of placements and personnel.

The usual pattern, he continued, is for Communists to get into positions where they can wield influence on appointments and promotions.

Two GOP Dignitaries

Malone Urges Nation to Install Tariffs

Republicans cannot prevent an economic catastrophe in this nation by being "camp followers who promise to spend faster and better than the Fair Deal," Sen. George W. Malone (R., Nev.) warned 800 Utah Republicans at a Lincoln day banquet Friday night in Newhouse hotel.

Charging that the Democratic administration, through the reciprocal agreements and the huge subsidies has been selling out American working men and industries, the senator urged Republicans to oppose the state trend by re-assertive principles of the party.

Tariffs Or Fees

The Nevada senator said that the differential in production costs between the U. S. and foreign countries should be equalized by import tariffs or fees; that a floor should be placed under wages and investments and that American producers should have access to American markets equal to that extended to foreign producers.

He said the Republicans abandoned these principles in 1932 and have not won an election since.

"And we don't deserve to win if we are going to be camp followers who promise to spend faster and better than the Fair Deal."

57 Reds

Also addressing the Lincoln day banquet was Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) who restated his charges that Communists have infiltrated into the state department. The senator is en route to Nevada to address a Lincoln day dinner.

"If Secretary of State Dean Acheson would call me, I could read him the list of at least 50 card-carrying Communists who are in his department," Senator McCarthy said.

"There may be many more," he added. "We just have the ones of 57."

Salt Lake county chapter of the Republican Club of Utah sponsored the banquet. Other speakers were Gov. J. Bracken Lee, Vernon Romney, the party's vice chairman, and Donald S. Murray, president of the county group.

McCarthy Prepares to List Communists at GOP Session

Republicans Meet in Reno For Lincoln Day

Northern Nevada Republicans will close down the curtain on their annual Lincoln day observance tonight with a banquet in the Mapes hotel.

With Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin as the main attraction, the banquet is expected to pack around 400 persons into the Mapes mezzanine. It will start at seven o'clock.

The senator's attacks on Communists in the state department have attracted wide attention here and additional revelations he will make tonight will add to the already large list of reservations.

Introductory remarks will be made by Sen. George W. Malone, who has also attracted wide attention, perhaps not so sensationally as has his colleague, for his predictions that a Democratic-socialist administration in Washington is preparing America for the greatest economic debacle in history.

Although he will make a brief introductory talk, Sen. Malone is expected to tell his Reno audience that he told his listeners in a Lincoln day talk at Salt Lake last night, that the catastrophe can be avoided by a vigorous Republican party which fearlessly espouses the principles on which the nation was founded.

Presiding over the session will be A. E. (Burr) MacKenzie, state GOP chairman. Malone will be introduced by Noble H. Getchell, former state senator and Republican and Republican national committeeman.

MAIN SPEAKER for northern Nevada Republicans' Lincoln day dinner tonight is Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin, above left. He will be introduced by Sen. George W. Malone of Nevada, right. The two senators arrived in Reno this morning.

Chairman MacKenzie presided over a meeting of the GOP state executive committee in the Riverside hotel today.

All but four of the state's seventeen counties sent representatives and they discussed various aspects of Republican party activity in a day-long meeting.

Principal business this morning was the setting of the dates for the Republican state convention. The gathering, it was decided, will be held in Las Vegas May 8 and 9.

Drafting of a platform for the party in this state will await the state convention, it was decided. Meanwhile each county will be asked to think about planks and principles which should be incorporated. It was also decided today to endorse no candidates, but to encourage all candidates possible in an effort to fill out the slate in this year's elections.

Leslie B. Gray, Washoe county chairman, was scheduled to discuss the platform further this afternoon.

Attending the meeting along with Mrs. Clara Beatty, vice-chairman and Mr. Gray were the following county chairmen of their representatives — Carl Dodge, Churchill; George Stocker, Clark; Mrs. Dorothy Brimacombe, Clark; Emory Graunke, Douglas; Albert Supp, Elko; Pete Merlaldo, Eureka; Charles Ogee, Humboldt; LeRoy Cassady, Lander; Mr. MacKenzie, Lyon; James Caughman, Mineral; Clyde Terrell and Mark Bradshaw, Nye; Jack Ross and Kenneth Johnson, Ormsby; Glen Emmenger, Pershing.

With a Lincoln day dinner also scheduled tonight in Pioche, Frank Agan, White Pine GOP chairman, went there today. He accompanied Fred Horlacher, jr., state senator from White Pine county who will deliver the Lincoln day address in Pioche tonight.

Sen. McCarthy will be escorted to Las Vegas Sunday by Mr. MacKenzie, Mrs. Beatty and the southern Nevada members. He will address a Lincoln day gathering in Clark county Sunday night.

Senator from Wisconsin to Speak Tonight

Sen. Joseph McCarthy said today he would name at least four "known Communists" in the U. S. state department when he addresses Nevada Republicans at a Lincoln day dinner here tonight. He told a Gazette reporter the four are among 57 Reds whose names he is willing to turn over to Pres. Harry Truman "for appropriate action."

BLUNT TALKER

The blunt-talking Wisconsin Republican dispatched a telegram to the president from Reno this morning, offering to submit the list to the chief executive immediately.

And if the president wants to know the names of still more state department Communists, he "simply should pick up his own phone" and ask his secretary of state, Dean Acheson, for them, the senator said.

Frankly admitting he was seeking to bring public and political pressure to bear on the Truman administration, Mr. McCarthy said loyal American but a politically he viewed the president as "a expedient one."

"If I can make it politically inexpedient for him to allow the Communists to remain where they are, then he'll just have to clean out the state department," the senator said.

The Wisconsin Republican has charged in a series of speeches which began earlier this week at Wheeling, W. Va., that the state department employs many Communists or fellow travelers. His own list of "known Communists" numbers 57.

FBI ALREADY KNOWS

Asked why he did not turn the list over to the FBI, he said that agency already know who the 57 were and what they are doing.

"But the FBI can make no move until the justice department authorizes it, and the justice department, in turn, won't move until it has been approved by the state department," he charged.

"These 57 names are no secret to anyone willing to do a little digging in and around Washington.

"But the state department's policies being what they are, apparently no one can take any action. That's why I'm trying to bring public pressure to bear on Truman and force him to clean out the department."

He gave reporters the names of four state department workers he said were Communists and who he will name in his talk tonight.

"If you use them, however, you'll be doing so at your own risk," he warned.

He added that "I might wind up with 57 suits against me myself, if I publicly name all those on the list."

SENDS TELEGRAM

In his telegram sent to the president this morning, Sen. McCarthy said, in part:

"In a Lincoln Day speech at Wheeling...I stated the state department harbors a nest of Communists and Communist sympathizers who are helping shape our foreign policy.

"I further stated I have in my possession the names of 57 Communists in the department at present. A state department spokesman promptly denied this.

"You can convince yourself of the falsity of the state department claim very easily. You will recall that you personally appointed a board to screen state department employes for the purpose of weeding out fellow travelers. Your board...named hundreds which it listed as 'dangerous to the security of the nation.'

"While those records are not available to me, I know absolutely that one group of approximately 300 was certified to the secretary for discharge. He actually discharged only approximately 80. I understand this was done after lengthy consultation with Alger Hiss.

"I would suggest, therefore, Mr. President, that you simply pick up your phone and ask Mr. Acheson how many of those whom your board has labeled as dangerous, he failed to discharge.

"... Despite your order ... forbidding the state department to give congress any information in regard...to the Communistic connections of anyone in that department...we have been able to compile a list of 57 Communists.

"This list is available to you, but you can get a much longer list by ordering Secretary Acheson to give you a list of those whom your own board listed as being disloyal."

The telegram went on to demand that the president take two steps "as the minimum which can be expected of you in this case:

1. Demand that Secretary Acheson give the president and the proper congressional committee a complete report of all persons placed in the department by Alger Hiss, and all of those still working in the department listed by the Truman board as being bad security lists.

2. Revoke an order which provided that congressional committees could obtain no information from the executive department in "exposing Communists."

Failure on the president's part to take action "will label the Democratic party of being the bed fellow of international Communists," the senator charges.

"Certainly this label is not deserved by the hundreds of thousands of loyal American Democrats throughout the nation, and by the sizeable number of able, loyal Democrats in both the senate and house," the telegram concluded.

Deputy Undersecretary of State for Administration
Department of State
Washington, D. C.

DECLASSIFIED BY 2909
ON 4/10/78 DPG/DLC

My dear Mr. Peurifoy:

It has come to my attention that you have made a public statement which has been widely circulated, including distribution by newspapers, to the effect that the FBI has investigated the 16,000 employees of the Department of State.

For your information, this Bureau, pursuant to the provisions of Executive Order 9835, the Loyalty Order, has checked 17,850 names, representing applicants, appointees and employees of the State Department, against our files. The mere fact that such a name check has been made does not, of course, mean that an investigation has been conducted. On the contrary, loyalty investigations were instituted only in those instances where such a name check revealed derogatory, disloyal information. Additionally, the name check does not in any way constitute a clearance or disapproval nor does it mean that there is not any derogatory, disloyal information concerning the individual.

To date the FBI has conducted 297 loyalty investigations on individuals in the Department of State. There are pending as of this time investigations on five other persons in the State Department.

Under the Voice of America Program (Public Law 402, 80th Congress) there have been received as of this date 4,499 requests for investigations, of which 4,261 have been completed and transmitted to the Department of State. Moreover, under the Greek-Turkey Aid Program (Public Laws 75 and 84 of the 80th Congress) this Bureau has received 846 requests for investigation, of which 842 have been completed and transmitted to the State Department.

I thought you would be interested in having these statistics in order that there will be no misunderstanding as to the number of investigations we have conducted for your agency.

With kind regards,

Sincerely yours,

There is attached hereto the Congressional Record for February 20, 1950, containing Senator McCarthy's address to the Senate beginning on page 2043. Joseph R.

Loyalty Section has been working on this and have determined that Senator McCarthy is using the old list Bob Lee had for the Appropriations Committee. They are certain of this because some of McCarthy's information is verbatim with Lee's information of the 81 cases cited by McCarthy. The Loyalty Section identified all but 21. Nine they are certain they cannot identify since in one instance he lumped five and four he skipped.

The three outstanding Communists in the State Department which he talked about were Herbert First on whom we conducted an investigation, John Vincent and Ruby Parsons. Loyalty is preparing a detailed summary on each case showing first McCarthy's allegations and secondly what the Bureau's files show.

This, of course, is quite a job and they will get it done as soon as possible.

Bob Lee called. He stated he had learned that Jack Peurifoy has told Senator McCarran that Senator McCarthy's speech was pretty much based on the report of Lee's inquiry for the House Appropriations Committee in 1948 and that the State Department had pretty much identified the names as being those in the report of inquiry. Lee stated that if this is true he thought we might be interested in the event we were attempting to identify the individuals McCarthy has in mind. He stated, however, he is inclined to doubt this and if it is true McCarthy has certainly dressed up the information contained in the report in question or else he has received considerable other assistance rather than just the information contained in the report. It will be recalled that Lee furnished the Bureau with a copy of the report which was compiled and it received considerable attention in the congressional record at the time.

PURPOSE:

To furnish you with the possible identity of and summaries of information regarding the individuals referred to anonymously as employees of the State Department by Senator McCarthy, before the Senate, as set forth in the Congressional Record dated February 20, 1950, Volume 96, No. 35, pages 2043 through 2071 inclusive.

BACKGROUND:

Reference is made to Mr. Nichols' memorandum to you dated February 21, 1950, advising that the Loyalty Section was endeavoring to identify the cases referred to by Senator McCarthy before the Senate and was preparing a summary on each case. You noted, "Expedite as much as possible."

There is attached hereto a compilation of summary memoranda on the cases that have been identified. It should be noted that the identifications were arrived at solely on the basis of a comparison of Senator McCarthy's testimony on individual cases with the material furnished to the Bureau confidentially on January 29, 1948, by former Special Agent Robert E. Lee.

In some instances it was noted that Senator McCarthy's language on particular cases appeared to be direct quotes of portions of the individual case write-ups in the material provided by Lee. In other instances Senator McCarthy's remarks were so brief that it was necessary to arrive at the identification through a process of elimination, as well as comparison of the case write-ups in Lee's material.

It was also noted that Senator McCarthy uses the male gender in referring to most cases although in several instances the cases apparently refer to women. Senator McCarthy also makes reference in some cases to the person having signed an affidavit that he was a member of the Communist Party, whereas Lee's material shows only that the individual, or a person of similar name, signed a Communist Party petition.

Although Senator McCarthy refers to a total of 81 cases, a review of his remarks in the Congressional Record shows he omitted 4 cases, specifically case No. 15, No. 27, No. 35 and No. 39. He also makes a general reference to cases No. 21 to 26 as being typical examples of many of the employees in the

New York Office of the Office of Information and Educational Exchange but does not give any details on these six cases upon which an identification could be based. In cases No. 19 and No. 36 Senator McCarthy's remarks were so sketchy that insufficient facts were available to make an identification.

Thus, possible identifications were made in a total of 69 of the cases referred to by the Senator. Of this figure, however, cases No. 9 and 77 apparently refer to the same individual (David Demarest Lloyd) and have been so treated in the attached summary. Cases No. 48 and 49 are lumped together by the Senator as involving a man and wife (Robert Warren Barnett and Patricia Glover Barnett) and, therefore, these two cases have been treated together in one memorandum.

Taking the above into consideration, you will note that there are only a total of 68 individuals involved that we have been able to identify and, since the cases involving the man and wife have been treated in one memorandum, the attached summary contains a total of only 67 individual case memoranda.

Of the 68 individuals involved, 37 are possibly still employed in the State Department, since there is nothing in our files to indicate otherwise. We, of course, have made no effort to check with State to see if all these individuals are actually still employed.

With regard to the 68 individuals involved, we have conducted 38 full field loyalty investigations, 5 preliminary inquiry type loyalty investigations, and 5 investigations under the Voice of America program, or a total of 48 investigations conducted either under the President's Executive Order No. 9835 or Public Law 402, 80th Congress, (Voice of America program). In an additional 6 cases we have conducted some type of applicant or security investigation in the past. Of these six, according to our files, five apparently are no longer employed in the State Department. In the case of 14 individuals we cannot identify them as having been subjects of investigation by the Bureau, but, of this number, our files indicate 10 are apparently no longer employed by the State Department and four may or may not be employed. We have been unable to determine whether we have received loyalty forms on these four individuals because all loyalty forms have not been indexed and in view of the lack of identifying data. We are arranging through Liaison for a discreet check on these four individuals to determine if they are actually employed. If so, appropriate action will be taken.

It is noted that Senator McCarthy, in his remarks before the Senate, singled out for particular attention Case No. 1 (Herbert Abner Fierst -- see Page one); Case No. 2 (John Carter Vincent -- see Page three); and Case No. 81 (Ruby Almeda Parson -- see Page 132). Your attention is also invited to Cases No. 9 and 77 (David Demarest Lloyd -- see Page 23) who was referred to by Senator McCarthy as a "speech writer in the White House," and to Case No. 47 (Esther Caukin Brunauer -- see Page 74) who was referred to by Senator McCarthy as being in a highly paid job in the State Department. These particular cases were called to your attention individually by a memorandum earlier today, at which time, also, pursuant to your instructions, summary memoranda were addressed to the Attorney General.

ACTION

As previously indicated, we are making a discreet check with the State Department on the 4 individuals referred to above to determine if they are actually employed. These individuals are Lewis Ross (see page 51); Estelle Gordon (see page 61); Paul Alexander Lifantieff-Lee (see page 90); and T. Achilles Polyzoides (see page 129).

Apropos newspaper comment concerning Senator McCarthy's charges against the State Department that it is harboring Soviet spies and Communists, Mr. Roach has learned the following information from the State Department, which is of interest at this time.

According to Mr. Donald L. Nicholson, Chief, Security Division, State Department, the State Department has identified all of the 81 cases cited by McCarthy, and approximately 68 are no longer working for the Department. Nicholson stated that all of those still employed by the State Department were given clearance by the Richardson Loyalty Commission, and that the State Department is not too concerned about the persons presently employed as mentioned by McCarthy.

Mr. Nicholson also stated that it had been agreed among Mr. Peyton Ford, Department of Justice, Donald Dawson of the White House, and Mr. Peurifoy of the State Department that all loyalty files on the individuals mentioned by McCarthy, plus approximately 385 loyalty cases, were to be transferred to the White House. At this time, all the files, including Bureau reports on the 81 cases mentioned by McCarthy, have been transferred to the White House. The other loyalty cases are being worked on by the State Department at this time, and are being referred to the White House soon. Mr. Nicholson informed Mr. Roach that he assumed Peyton Ford had discussed the referral of these cases to the White House, particularly so in view of the fact that there are Bureau investigative reports in most of them. Nicholson further stated that it was his understanding that the White House would permit members of Congress to review the files at the White House, but that the White House would not permit the files to be removed to Capitol Hill for review. According to Mr. Nicholson, the transfer of these files to the White House was done for political reasons, and, further, for the reason that the State Department was fearful that the Secretary of State would be served with a subpoena to produce the files, which can now be answered by stating that the files are not in the possession of the State Department.

I took a call from Senator Joseph McCarthy (R. Wisc.) by reference from your office. He stated that as a result of the speeches he has made, stacks of mail, some of it anonymous, has been received from State Department employees and from Voice of America employees. He stated that he has former Special Agent B. Downey Rice working in his office on the material. Some of it is real good; that he doubts if he is getting any that the Bureau doesn't already have, but he doesn't know, that he would like to make this material available to the Bureau and that if the Bureau would have an Agent contact Downey Rice, he, Rice, would make this material available for review and use by the Bureau.

I advised Senator McCarthy that you were out of the building, that I would be in telephonic contact with you later and after talking to you, I would let him, McCarthy, know of your views in this matter.

Senator McCarthy stated he was leaving the office at the time he called me and would not be available further today.

In accordance with your instructions, I will contact McCarthy tomorrow or at the earliest possible moment and advise him that in view of the President's statement concerning making this material available to him, that it would be embarrassing to Senator McCarthy and to us to make such a contact without first clearing with the Department and if Senator McCarthy approves, the matter will be appropriately discussed with Mr. Peyton Ford.

McCarthy memo to State Department

With reference to my memorandum of March 3, 1950, concerning the telephone call of Senator Joseph McCarthy wherein he advised of the receipt of a large amount of mail concerning the State Department, I desire to advise that I talked to [redacted] on March 4th. I advised him of Senator McCarthy's request and told him that the Senator had been advised that the Bureau could not make any contact with him without the approval of the Department.

[redacted] stated he thought the Bureau should contact Senator McCarthy, requesting him to have Downey Rice, who is working for Senator McCarthy, bring the pertinent correspondence to the Bureau where it can be reviewed and photostatic copies of any of the pertinent portions thereof made. He stated that in the event any information was developed through this medium that would justify the opening of a loyalty investigation he, Ford, thought this should be done.

While talking to [redacted] on another matter he mentioned that he had told the White House to call all loyalty files from the State Department to the White House in order that the President might better resist any attempt by Congress to obtain these files. He stated that it is not the President's intention to let the committee review the files; that at the present time he, Ford, has the State Department preparing a summary of the charges and of the action taken in each case, without identifying the subject of the case, and this brief summary will be furnished by the State Department to the Senate Committee in the hope that the information thus furnished will satisfy them.

In the event it does not satisfy the Committee, the President has indicated that he might let the Chairman of the Committee come over and look at the files which the President is now holding merely for the purpose of verifying that the summaries prepared by the State Department are accurate.

But [redacted] stated that the President has indicated that if this is necessary he, the President, is going to take the necessary time to sit down and make the Senators look at the material in his presence, and that he will forbid the taking of any notes whatsoever.

SUBJECT: COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT
(Allegations by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy - Rep.-Wisconsin)

PURPOSE: To furnish you with additional information concerning Estelle Gordon, Paul Alexander Lifantieff-Lee, T. Achilles Polyzoides and Lewis Ross, who were mentioned by Senator McCarthy and on whom we were checking to ascertain if they were currently employed by the State Department.

BACKGROUND: You will recall my memorandum of February 24, 1950, included summaries of 68 individuals who were referred to by Senator McCarthy. You will further recall that there were four individuals, namely, Estella Gordon, Paul Alexander Lifantieff-Lee, T. Achilles Polyzoides and Lewis Ross, whom we could not identify as having been investigated by the Bureau and on whom we were checking State Department records to ascertain if they were currently employed. It has been ascertained by the Liaison Section of the Bureau that Estelle Gordon, not Estella, is currently employed by the State Department; that Paul Alexander Lifantieff-Lee and T. Achilles Polyzoides are presently employed by the State Department; further, that Louis Ross, not Lewis, is presently employed and apparently is identical with the individual mentioned by Senator McCarthy since there is no record of a Lewis Ross being employed by the State Department. For your information there is a brief summary of information available concerning each of these individuals.

Estelle Gordon

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy referred to this individual as "Case No. 40," who was another person employed in the State Department since 1947. He stated he did not have too much information on this, except the statement by the agency that there is nothing in the files to disprove Communistic connections. As previously furnished you in my memorandum dated February 24, 1950, former Special Agent Robert E. Lee provided the Bureau with information on January 29, 1948, indicating that "Case No. 45," whom he identified as Estella Gordon, had been employed as Correspondence Research Clerk in the Division of Public Liaison since March, 1947, having been formerly employed with the Office of Foreign Liquidation Committee and with the War Department. According to Lee, the State Department file did not indicate that any investigation had been conducted; however, information was received by the State Department on October 9, 1947, from a former supervisor (not named) to the effect that she was a Communist. The file further indicates, according to Lee, that it was reopened on the basis of this information but no report had been submitted as of October 31, 1947. Hamilton Robinson, Director, Office of Control, State Department, in his testimony before the House Appropriation Committee in connection with the State Department appropriation for 1949, advised that "Case No. 45" was employed by the State Department "pending further investigation."

we should order a preliminary investigation on Gordon at once

As you know, all Loyalty Forms have not been indexed; however, through a search of the forms presently being alphabetized by the Records Section a form on one Estelle Gordon, Correspondence and Research Clerk, Department of State, born October 8, 1918, at Freedom, Pennsylvania, who is probably identical with the individual referred to as Estella Gordon, was located. This form was processed and returned to the State Department marked "No Disloyal Data" on April 17, 1948. It is to be noted that the State Department in submitting this form did not specify possession of any reports containing loyalty information as required under Item 14 of the Loyalty Form.

A check of the Bureau files at this time fails to disclose any identifiable disloyal information concerning Estelle Gordon other than the material mentioned above which was obtained by former Special Agent Robert E. Lee from the State Department's own files and furnished to the Bureau on a highly confidential basis. There is no record of the State Department having ever requested an investigation, although as noted above Hamilton Robinson's testimony indicates she was employed as of January 28, 1948, "pending further investigation." Under the Loyalty Program should the State Department have developed disloyal information bringing her within the purview of the Loyalty Order, the State Department would be responsible for requesting a loyalty investigation.

Paul Alexander Lifantieff-Lee 121-23020

Senator McCarthy referred to this individual as "Case No. 46," who was born in Russia and naturalized in San Francisco in 1929. According to McCarthy, the Navy Department informed the State Department that this individual had secret State Department documents in the room shared by him and another Russian. Further, that an investigation was instituted, however, this individual was still in the State Department as late as December, 1949. Bureau files reflect information received from the State Department by memorandum dated January 10, 1947, that a routine investigation of Paul Alexander Lifantieff-Lee, an employee of the Division of Foreign Service of the State Department, was conducted in December, 1946. This investigation by the State Department was predicated upon information received from a source, later identified by the State Department as the Navy, to the effect that one Illarion G. Matveev, an employee of the War Department, was seen to have in his possession a confidential report of the State Department. The investigation by the State Department reflected that Matveev was a close associate of Lifantieff-Lee, who was in a position by reason of the nature of his work at the State Department to furnish the confidential report in question to Matveev. The State Department investigation concerning Lifantieff-Lee, according to a memorandum from the State Department, reflected nothing of a serious derogatory nature other than the fact that Lifantieff-Lee was a roommate of Matveev. The State Department requested information in the Bureau's files concerning Lifantieff-Lee and by memorandum dated May 8, 1947, the State Department was advised that the files of this Bureau contain no derogatory information concerning Paul Alexander Lifantieff-Lee.

Concerning Matveev, under date of March 3, 1949, a report was received from IDA through Liaison which indicated an investigation had been made concerning certain allegations regarding Matveev. This report indicates that the sole derogatory information available on Matveev was found to be contained in allegations made by three informants at the Army Map Service. During the investigation one informant was discredited and the other two failed to substantiate the original allegations. Both of these two stated that they had no reason to question Matveev's loyalty. The report further indicates that the allegations made in 1946 were probably motivated by professional jealousy, prejudices and an overly suspicious attitude. The Commanding Officer of the Army Map Service, according to the report, stated his intention in February, 1949, to re-employ Matveev with assignment to duties involving access to classified material.

In his testimony before the House Appropriations Committee on January 28, 1948, Hamilton Robinson indicated that Lifantieff-Lee had been "approved" for employment in the State Department.

A search of the Loyalty Forms presently being alphabetized by the Records Section disclosed a form on one Paul Alexander Lifantieff-Lee, born St. Petersburg, Russia, who is probably identical with the individual mentioned by McCarthy. This form was processed and returned to the State Department marked "No disloyal data FBI files, March 31, 1948." It is to be noted that the State Department in submitting this form did not specify possession of any reports containing loyalty information as required under Item 14 on the Loyalty Forms. There is no record of the State Department having ever requested an investigation although, as noted above, Hamilton Robinson in his testimony indicated that Lifantieff-Lee had been "approved." Under the Loyalty Program, should the State Department have developed disloyal information bringing him within the purview of the Loyalty Order, the State Department would have been responsible for requesting a loyalty investigation on Lifantieff-Lee.

T. Achilles Polyzoides

Senator McCarthy referred to this individual as "Case No. 79," who was employed on the Special Project Staff in the State Department and who has been reported as being pro-Communist, radical and of dubious background. Bureau files reflect information disseminated by the National Intelligence Authority, predecessor to the National Security Council, on May 15, 1946, concerning Adamantios Theophilus Polyzoides, the father of the employee, who was described as a professor at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles, a lecturer and writer who was further described by an outside source of unknown reliability as follows. "I can consider him not only a fellow traveler but an out and out Communist." From information available there is no indication that the father is affiliated with any questionable groups. Under date of March 18, 1947, the Department of State furnished the Bureau with a list of cleared personnel of the Special Project Staff, included in which was the name of T. Achilles Polyzoides. In the material furnished to the Bureau by former Special Agent Robert E. Lee, Polyzoides was identified as "Case No. 105." According to information available to Lee, State Department files indicate that numerous confidential informants reported he was pro-Communist, radical, left wing and of dubious background. The State Department file contained no tangible proof of any Communist activities on the part of Polyzoides and he was given security clearance on February 26, 1947, according to Lee. Mr. Hamilton Robinson, during his testimony before the House Appropriations Committee on January 28, 1948, stated that "Case No. 105" was employed by the State Department, having been approved.

A search of the Loyalty Forms presently being alphabetized by the Records Section located a form on one Theophylactos Achilles Polyzoides. This form was processed and returned to the State Department marked "No Disloyal Data, FBI Files, April 14, 1948." It is to be noted that the State Department in submitting this form did not specify possession of any reports containing loyalty information as required under Item 14 on the Loyalty Form. There is no record of the State Department having ever requested an investigation and it is noted above Hamilton Robinson's testimony indicates that Polyzoides had been "approved." Under the Loyalty Program should the State Department have developed disloyal information bringing him within the purview of the Loyalty Order the State Department would have been responsible for requesting a loyalty investigation concerning Polyzoides.

At the present time Polyzoides is the subject of a pending investigation being conducted by this Bureau under the provisions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946. The request for the investigation is predicated on the fact that he is Director of Special Projects in the State Department and requires access to restricted data in order to serve the Intelligence Division, both of the Department of State and of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Louis Ross

Senator McCarthy referred to this individual as Case No. 31 and described him as having been in Government service since July, 1942, being formerly stationed in the Office of Information and Education of the State Department. The Senator advised that the files of the Un-American Activities Committee showed that Ross had signed a petition in New York City in 1940 to the effect that he was a member of the Communist Party.

You will recall that former Special Agent Robert E. Lee, who identified Lewis Ross as being "Case No. 29" in his material, indicated that the Un-American Activities Committee records show that a person with the same name as Lewis Ross, residing in New York City, had signed a Communist Party election petition in New York in 1940. According to Lee, the State Department files indicate that this information was furnished to them on October 28, 1946, nevertheless no effort to check out this information had been made by the State Department as of the time Lee reviewed that Department's files. Hamilton Robinson in his testimony before the House Appropriations Committee on January 28, 1948, furnished information to the effect that the individual involved "in Case No. 29" was employed by the State Department, having been "approved."

A check at the State Department Personnel Division by the Liaison Section has disclosed that there is no record of any Lewis Ross being presently employed by the State Department. However, there is a Louis Ross presently employed as a broadcast technician, Division of International Broadcasting, Voice of America Program, New York City. Bureau files disclose that a Loyalty Form was received on this Louis Ross which was processed and returned to the State Department stamped "No disloyal data FBI Files, April 23, 1948." This form reflects that Louis Ross had been employed by the Office of Information and Education from July, 1942 to present. Note: This bit of information corresponds with similar information set forth in Senator McCarthy's allegation. The Loyalty Form on Louis Ross fails to reflect that the State Department specified possession of any loyalty information reports as required under Item No. 14. Our files reflect that an investigation subsequently was conducted on Louis Ross under the provisions of Public Law 402, 80th Congress (VOA) at the request of the State Department and reports were furnished to the State Department by letter dated July 26, 1948. A review of the reports reflecting the results of this investigation discloses that no disloyal information was developed. It might be noted that during the course of this investigation the Washington Field Office examined the files of the Security and Investigations Division, Department of State. The details reflected therein were not reported since the information already was available to the State Department. It should also be noted that during the course of the investigation the files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities were checked and contained no record for Louis Ross. As noted above, the allegation by McCarthy refers to a Communist Party petition in the files of the "Un-American Activities Committee."

STATUS: As you probably will recall, when the information concerning the individuals mentioned by McCarthy recently was previously brought out before the House Appropriations Committee in January, 1948, the State Department indicated to the House Appropriations Committee that 19 of the cases on whom the Department had disloyal information had been referred to the FBI for investigation. These 19 cases, as you will recall, were handled as a special project and thorough investigations were made of the 19. Since that time no request has been made by the State Department for investigation of any of the four above-mentioned individuals under the Loyalty Program.

ACTION: With respect to Estelle Gordon and Paul Alexander Lifantieff-Lee, it does not appear that there is sufficient information to warrant initiating full field loyalty investigations at this time, particularly in view of the fact that all pertinent information concerning them has been in the possession of the State Department for some time and was in its possession at the time the House Appropriations Committee conducted hearings in connection with the State Department appropriations bill in January, 1948. With respect to T. Achilles Polyzoides, as noted above, he is presently the subject of a pending Atomic Energy Act investigation and copies of the reports will, of course, be furnished to the State Department. Further, it is noted that the Louis Ross who is presently employed by the State Department has already been the subject of a Voice of America investigation.

PURPOSE:

To furnish you with a summary of information on Stanley Wilcox who has been identified by the Bureau as being identical with Case No. 63 as referred to by Senator McCarthy in his testimony before the Senate, and who according to Assistant Director S. J. Tracy in his memorandum to Mr. Tolson dated March 8, 1950, informed [redacted] of the Federal Security Agency that he was No. 63 on Senator McCarthy's list.

BACKGROUND:

[redacted] of the Federal Security Agency telephonically advised Assistant Director S. J. Tracy on March 8, 1950, that Mr. Stanley Wilcox had informed a member of the A.F. of L. that he was No. 63 on Senator McCarthy's list. Wilcox further stated that he had been ordered to Russia as an Expert and that he and his wife had made preparations including the purchase of about $300 worth of food to take with them, when their travel orders were cancelled. Wilcox indicated that it created quite a personal hardship, and it was suggested by a friend of his in the A.F. of L. that he take his problem to Paul Keyser of the Labor Department and ask Mr. Keyser to speak to Mr. Peurifoy about the matter.

For your information, there is attached a copy of a summary memorandum concerning Stanley Wilcox which was prepared for you and attached with other memoranda as an enclosure with my memorandum of February 24, 1950.

Mr. Joseph Anshey, Security Office, State Department, informed Mr. Roach this morning that the State Department files on the cases mentioned by Senator McCarthy, and which were transferred to the White House, are now being checked over very carefully by former investigators of the old Truman Senate Committee. The State Department anticipates that, after this review, the Tydings Committee will be permitted to look at summaries prepared by the investigators from the files.

Now that the "McCarthy" case files have been transferred to the White House, the State Department is working on 385 loyalty case files (not mentioned by McCarthy), and will also transfer these files to the White House when they have been collected from the various Divisions in the State Department, tabulated, and summaries prepared on each.

I returned the call of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy this morning. Senator McCarthy was not available and as he had previously suggested, I called Mr. B. Downey Rice. U

I advised him that I had checked with the Department and the Department had suggested that it would be inadvisable for the Bureau to call at the Capitol for the purpose of going over the material received by Senator McCarthy concerning the list of State Department employees and suggested that in lieu thereof, Mr. Rice bring any pertinent material to the Bureau where it could be gone over with him to determine whether there were any matters of interest to the Bureau. Mr. Rice stated he would do this at the first possible opportunity and further, that he would advise Senator McCarthy of my call. U

Comments to the State Department

Mr. Samuel S. Boykin, Director, Office of Consular Affairs, State Department (a Deputy to Under-Secretary Peurifoy and responsible for the operations of the Security Division), informed Mr. Roach today that the State Department anticipates being questioned by Senator Tydings (D-Md.) concerning various phases of the security and loyalty investigations activity in the State Department. Mr. Boykin and Mr. Peurifoy state that, undoubtedly, the question of investigations under the Loyalty Program will arise, and that the State Department will probably be asked to explain what they do in compliance with the President's Loyalty Order. The State Department will reply that they send loyalty forms to the FBI for checking against our files and for appropriate loyalty investigations if the data in our files warrants such action.

The next question anticipated by the State Department is what basis is used by the FBI in opening loyalty cases. It is the answer to this question that the State Department desires to receive from the Bureau. Mr. Boykin stated that, if the question is asked of the Secretary of State, Mr. Peurifoy, or himself, they will answer that the State Department does not know, as an answer could only be given by the Bureau. Boykin stated, however, that, for their own information, they would like to know from the Bureau the basis we use for opening loyalty cases; i.e., when do we open a loyalty case and what facts must be present before a case is opened, and how do we determine whether the investigation is to be a preliminary inquiry or full-field investigation.

Mr. Roach pointed out to Mr. Boykin that it was not understandable why the State Department should be concerned by such a question that may be asked by the Committee, and, certainly, if the Committee had any such inquiries, the State Department was not the proper place to receive an answer. Mr. Roach further pointed out that each loyalty case is considered upon its own merits, and that the matter of conducting preliminary inquiries or full-field investigations is a matter which is judged by the facts in our files on the given case, plus that derogatory information given to us by the employing agency on the loyalty form.

OBSERVATIONS:

It would appear that the State Department is attempting to anticipate questions and to make replies to questions which are not within their jurisdiction and which should not be of concern to them. It is believed that we should not give to the State Department, even informally, a statement regarding the basis for opening loyalty cases, if the Bureau has not heretofore given such statements to the press or to other Government agencies. If you feel, however, that it would be advisable to give the State Department some type of a statement on the inquiry they have presented, then it should be directed to the Liaison Section for personal delivery to either Mr. Boykin or Mr. Peurifoy.

RECOMMENDATION:

This memorandum will be brought to the attention of the Loyalty Section for its information and consideration. In addition, it is recommended that the State Department be again advised by the Liaison Section that each Loyalty case is considered upon its own merits, based on such information as is available to us including information which has been furnished by the employing agency on the Loyalty form. It is not recommended that we go into any of the details as to the exact basis for our investigations and how we determine whether the investigation should be a preliminary inquiry or a full field investigation. In view of the fact that the proceedings are scheduled to open soon, it is recommended that this be handled immediately.

PURPOSE:

To furnish you with information concerning a statement made by Mr. Peurifoy of the State Department concerning 326 security cases still pending in the State Department, as set forth in the Congressional Record-Senate dated March 2, 1950.

BACKGROUND:

On Page 2678 of the Congressional Record-Senate dated March 2, 1950, the following information is set forth concerning testimony of Mr. Peurifoy, Deputy Under Secretary of State, in answer to certain questions by Senator Knowland:

"Page 2678 - Mr. Knowland spoke concerning 'Communists in Government Service.' He included information from Mr. Peurifoy, Deputy Under Secretary of State, giving a breakdown of the 326 security cases which are still in process. Mr. Knowland stated he does not feel there is any justification for any security case to be pending for more than a year. 'It seems to me that security cases of the State Department should be given the highest type of priority. If the FBI says they would like to have additional information, whether it be fingerprints or other information which they are seeking, the request should be sent in regular courier pouches by air, and the information should be returned immediately'."

In a memorandum dated March 3, 1950, from Mr. Glavin to you setting forth the above quoted information, you noted, "This should be locked into at once."

From a review of the remarks made by Mr. Peurifoy, it is obvious he is referring to the submission of Loyalty Forms and fingerprints on personnel of the State Department rather than full field Loyalty investigations, since at the present time we have only five full field Loyalty investigations pending on State Department employees. These cases are, of course, receiving expeditious attention which is afforded to all investigations involving State Department personnel.

Regarding Loyalty Forms received from the State Department, as you know, we are still receiving Loyalty Forms at this date, the majority of which are on Foreign Service personnel coming from various parts of the world. On January 11, 1950, there were received in the Records Section of the Bureau 143 Loyalty Forms.

Loyalty Forms received in the Bureau are being processed on a current basis. However, in some cases it is necessary to return the Forms to the State Department where the forms contain some error or errors of substance; for example, where the employee failed to fill in the item regarding organizations with which affiliated. In October, 1949, we received a number of Loyalty Forms from the State Department and it was necessary to return 121 of these Forms in order that more complete identifying data could be inserted by the State Department. In addition, in some instances, the fingerprints submitted with the Loyalty Form are of such a nature that they cannot be processed by the Identification Division, and it is necessary in such cases to return such prints for resubmission. State Department Loyalty Forms are not returned unless it is absolutely necessary and we have returned no Forms to them for correction since October, 1949. It is, of course, the responsibility of the State Department to insure that Loyalty Forms are properly executed and submitted to the Bureau for processing. In this connection the Federal Personnel Manual contains regulations promulgated by the Civil Service Commission to the effect that, with respect to incumbent employees, it is the responsibility of the employing department or agency to "(1) Establish and maintain within the department or agency a control system for insuring the submission of information on all incumbent employees on the rolls as of September 30, 1947. (2) Obtain and submit the required forms properly prepared for each incumbent employee to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Certify the completeness of the coverage to the Civil Service Commission in accordance with the procedure prescribed." Similar regulations are also set forth in the Federal Personnel Manual with respect to the responsibilities of the employing department or agency in so far as Loyalty Forms relating to appointees are concerned.

At the present time Loyalty Forms and fingerprints received in the Bureau are handled on a current basis and, as stated above, unless it is absolutely necessary to return Forms or fingerprints to the State Department for correction, the same are processed in an expeditious manner.

In accordance with instructions received by SAC GUY HOTTEL from Assistant Director D. M. LADD on March 7, 1950, Special Agents [redacted] and WILLIAM J. McGRATH, Jr. attended the meeting of the Foreign Relations Sub-Committee, investigation of State Department personnel, in the Caucus Room of the Senate Office Building on March 8, 1950.

This hearing was opened by Senator MILLARD E. TYDINGS, Sub-Committee Chairman, who stated that the Sub-Committee received a mandate from the Senate which contained the authority to investigate and hear charges of disloyalty against the government by employees of the Department of State and other such agencies against whom charges have been heard and to subpoena the loyalty files against all such persons.

Senator JOSEPH R. MCCARTHY was sworn in as the first witness.

Chairman TYDINGS then referred to prior testimony of Senator MCCARTHY in which Senator MCCARTHY had stated on the floor of the Senate that one employee of the State Department who was employed in December 1945 as a Translator had been investigated during 1946 and that this investigation showed evidence which caused his later dismissal due to homo-sexual acts and connection with the Young Communist League. He further stated that on January 22, 1946 the Division of Security and Investigations, State Department, recommended the discharge of this individual and on February 19, 1946 his services were terminated. On April 1, 1946 this termination act was rescinded. Senator MCCARTHY's testimony showed that there was a CSA report dated September 27, 1947 which was replete with information that a high official of the State Department tampered with the records of the State Department and personally contacted witnesses and asked them to retract their testimony concerning the aforementioned employee. Senator TYDINGS then asked Senator MCCARTHY whether or not he could furnish the Committee the name of this official in the State Department who was charged with tampering with official records and covering up the activities of disloyal employees.

Senator MCCARTHY did not disclose the name of this high official at this time and brought out that he would present to the Committee in

He stated that for the Sub-Committee to get complete information regarding all individuals that he will mention it will be necessary that the Sub-Committee subpoena four sets of files to wit the State Department investigations file complete with the sub-rosa section, the State Department personnel file, CSC files and FBI files. He further stated that all cases discussed will have derogatory data developed by the FBI.

Senator McCARTHY then proceeded with Case No. 1 and named ~~DOROTHY~~ KENYON, a present employee of the State Department who was receiving $2,000 per annum and who is presently a US member assigned to a committee at the UN. He stated DOROTHY KENYON was affiliated with twentyeight front organizations, nine of the twentyeight being listed by the Attorney General and that her record dates back some ten to fifteen years. He then proceeded to present to the Committee photostatic copies of documents which would show her connection with these subversive organizations.

The Committee was recessed until 10:30 AM on March 9, 1950.

There is enclosed herewith for your information the opening statement to the Sub-Committee by Senator McCARTHY, which had been previously given to the Press and Secretary of State DEAN ACHESON's testimony before the Senate Appropriations Committee on Tuesday, February 28, 1950, which had also been given out to the Press.

SECRETARY ACHESON'S LOYALTY YARDSTICK

From testimony of Dean Acheson, Secretary of State, before Senate Appropriations Committee
Tuesday, February 28, 1950

The first category constituting a security risk is a person who engages in, supports, or advocates treason, subversion, or sedition, or who is a member of, affiliated with, or in sympathetic association with Communist, Nazi, or Fascist Parties, or of any foreign or domestic party or movement which seeks to alter the form of government of the United States by unconstitutional means or whose policy is to advocate or approve the commission of acts of force or violence to deny other persons their rights under the Constitution of the United States; or a person who consistently believes in or supports the ideologies and policies of such a party or movement.

The second category is a person who is engaged in espionage or who is acting directly or indirectly under the instructions of any foreign government; or who deliberately performs his duties, or otherwise acts to serve the interests of another government in preference to the interest of the United States.

The third category is a person who has knowingly divulged classified information without authority and with the knowledge or belief or with reasonable grounds for the knowledge or belief that it will be transmitted to agencies of a foreign government, or who is so consistently irresponsible in the handling of classified information as to compel the conclusion of extreme lack of care or judgment.

The fourth category is a person who has habitual or close association with persons known or believed to be in categories A or B (i.e., first and second categories), to an extent which would justify the conclusion that he might, through such association, voluntarily or involuntarily divulge classified information without authority.

After the information I have received is collated and examined, it will be turned over to this Committee. I shall withhold nothing and

~~the information which has been made available to me.~~ shall make available to the Committee the information which has been made available to me.

I have carefully studied the standards of loyalty, as set forth by Secretary of State Acheson.

I agree with them wholeheartedly.

I have come to the conclusion, however, that these standards of loyalty are meaningless unless they are applied to all government employees without exception.

It is the exception that I wish to bring to the attention of the Committee.

I am convinced that in a sizable number of cases these standards have not been applied properly.

One bad risk is too many and a very few might well be disastrous to our National Security.

Opening Statement by Senator McCarthy and given to the Press

I am grateful to the Committee for its invitation to appear here today, and make available information which has come to me from a variety of sources bearing on the security of our Nation.

Certainly we are all in accord on the premise that every possible precaution should be taken to protect the National Welfare and time and experience has shown us that subversive and un-American actions cannot stand the light of day.

To that end, I shall make available to this Committee the names and background of persons who are, or have been in the service of the Government who, by virtue of their background and activities do not deserve the confidence and trust placed in them.

The fair security risk does not exist. Every man or woman in the employ of the United States government is a bad or good security risk.

We have had, through our courts, our governmental investigating bodies, our public press and radio, a shocking and frightening series of reports on men and women in high and low places in our government who transferred their allegiance to a foreign and dangerous ideology.

It is obviously impossible for me, without investigative personnel, funds and authority and without full and free access to the voluminous and comprehensive files of numerous Government agencies to give you gentlemen an adequate picture of this distressing situation.

I hope that this distinguished Committee, charged by its colleagues in the Senate with a difficult and exhaustive duty, will be able to find a solution to a hitherto insoluble problem.

PURPOSE

To furnish you with information concerning the State Department's identification of the cases referred to by Senator McCarthy before the Senate.

BACKGROUND

By memorandum dated March 3, 1950, Mr. Belmont informed me that Supervisor Roach had been advised by the State Department that they had identified all of the 81 cases cited by Senator McCarthy and that the files on these cases had been transferred to the White House. You noted that "We should make very certain we are in clear as to our investigations in these cases."

You will recall that by memorandum dated February 24, 1950, summary memoranda were furnished to you on 68 individuals referred to by Senator McCarthy which we were able to identify from a comparison of his testimony with the material furnished to the Bureau on January 29, 1948, by former Special Agent Robert E. Lee. Although the Senator in his testimony talked of having 81 cases, a review of his testimony showed that he omitted four cases, lumped six others as typical of Voice of America employees and cited two cases which were identified as referring to the same individual. Thus, there were only 70 cases cited by Senator McCarthy which could possibly be identified and we identified 68 of them.

The list of names furnished to us by the State Department as representing the individuals referred to by the Senator lists 71 individuals and 68 of them are the ones we previously had identified. It is interesting to note that one of the cases identified by the State Department is "Case No. 35," which was omitted entirely by Senator McCarthy in his testimony before the Senate. The State Department identifies this case as referring to one Melvin Shell, not otherwise identified, and indicates he terminated his employment with the State Department on December 24, 1948. A check of the Bureau's files on the name Melvin Shell fails to disclose any information.

Thus, of the 70 cases actually mentioned by the Senator which were subject to possible identification, the State Department has been able to identify the two cases on which we did not have sufficient facts to arrive at an identification, namely, cases numbers 19 and 36. The State Department further indicates that 33 of the persons on their list are still employed.

In connection with Case number 36, Senator McCarthy, in his testimony before the Senate stated "This individual is 43 years of age. He is with the Office of Information and Education. According to the file, he is a known Communist. I might say that when I refer to someone as being a known Communist, I am not evaluating the information myself. I am merely giving what is in the file. This individual also found his way into the Voice of America broadcast. Apparently the easiest way to get in is to be a known Communist."

In regard to "Case No. 36," the State Department identifies this case as pertaining to one Fred William Smith. It is noted the State Department inserted a question mark after the name, possibly indicating that they are not sure of this identification. The State Department further indicated that Fred William Smith presently is employed but they did not furnish any identifying data concerning this individual. Former Special Agent Robert E. Lee, in his material furnished to the Bureau on January 29, 1948, referred to one Frederick W. Smith (Schmidt), who was employed in New York City with the Office of Information and Educational Exchange, State Department. Lee identified this case as being No. 40 and advised that the State Department files indicate that Smith's application was very sketchy; that there had been no investigation conducted; that Smith was 43 years of age and that the case was awaiting a report from the New York Office. Mr. Hamilton Robinson, in his testimony before the House Appropriations Committee on January 28, 1948, stated that case No. 40 was reported as having been "approved." This individual is apparently identical with Frederic William Smith, also known as Frederic William Schmidt, who is the subject of a Voice of America investigation conducted by the Bureau during June and July, 1948, copies of the reports prepared having been sent to the State Department on July 27, 1948. He is also the subject of an investigation conducted in 1942, for the Office of the Coordinator of Information. Copies of the reports prepared were sent to the Office of the Coordinator of Information on June 19, 1942. During the Voice of America investigation, the Washington Field Office checked the records of the Security and Investigations Division of the State Department, which reflected that Smith had been given security clearance on November 21, 1947. Further, that these records contained no further pertinent information. The Voice of America investigation disclosed that Smith was a close acquaintance of Paul Hagen, who, according to persons interviewed during the investigation, was a former member of the Communist Party of Germany. Bureau files reflect that Paul Hagen was at one time editor of the publication "Die Rote Fahne," alleged official organ of the German Communist Party.

In connection with "Case No. 19," the State Department identifies this case as referring to Hans H. Landsberg and indicates that he has never been employed by the State Department. Our files disclose that one Hans Herman Landsberg, who is possibly identical with the individual in question, was investigated by the Bureau in 1949 under Executive Order 9835 as an employee of the Department of Commerce who formerly had been with the Office of Strategic Services. The investigative reports were sent to the Civil Service Commission on July 14, 1949, and to date we have not received a disposition from the Loyalty Review Board.

You will recall that in addition to the above, in the case of Estelle Gordon and T. Achilles Polyzoides, the Bureau had not conducted previous investigations. In my memorandum of March 6, 1950, this was pointed out to you and Mr. Tolson noted in connection with Estelle Gordon that "We should order a preliminary inquiry on Gordon at once." You indicated "Yes." This has been done. In respect to T. Achilles Polyzoides, my memorandum of March 6, 1950, pointed out that an investigation presently is being conducted under the Atomic Energy Act concerning Polyzoides. Mr. Tolson noted, "We should expedite this investigation; Liaison should advise Jack Neal of the current investigation." You noted "Yes." On March 8, 1950, Mr. Jack Neal of the State Department was informed of this investigation. The investigation is being given expeditious attention and copies of the reports will be furnished not only to the Atomic Energy Commission but also to the Civil Service Commission and the State Department.

As mentioned above, the State Department has advised that they have identified 33 individuals mentioned by Senator McCarthy who are still employed. In addition to the individuals mentioned above, an analysis of the cases of the others still employed by the State Department reflects that Loyalty type investigations, Voice of America investigations, preliminary inquiries, applicant type investigations or security investigations have been conducted where information in the Bureau's possession warrants or where the State Department has furnished disloyal information to the Bureau for investigation. Of course it is possible that the State Department has disloyal information in its files concerning the cases which have been identified by the Bureau as well as other cases which Senator McCarthy may possibly have in his possession, which has not been brought to the Bureau's attention.

Allegation by Senator McCarthy

"Case No. 14: This is a case of pressure from a high State Department official to obtain security clearance for an individual with a bad background from the standpoint of security. He was appointed in December 1945 as a translator in the State Department.

"This is an interesting case showing the extent to which some of their superior officers will go when they find that some of these very unusual individuals are going to lose their jobs. He was appointed in December 1945 as a translator in the State Department. A report from another Government investigating agency under date of January 9, 1946, advised that the subject should [redacted]

[redacted] He had extremely close connections with other individuals with the same tendencies, and who were active members of Communist-front organizations, including the Young Communist League.

"I think this is interesting, Mr. President. I asked one of our top intelligence men in Washington, one day, 'Why do you find men who are so fanatically Communist? Is there something about the Communist philosophy that attracts them?'

"He said, 'Senator McCarthy, if you had been in this work as long as we have been, you would realize that there is something wrong with each one of these individuals. You will find that practically every active Communist is twisted mentally or physically in some way.'

"The State Department's own security agency recommended the discharge of this employee on January 22, 1946. On February 19, 1946, this individual's services were terminated with the State Department. Subsequently on April 1, 1946, the action discharging this individual was rescinded and he was reinstated in his job in the State Department. In this case a CIA report of September 2, 1947, is replete with information covering the attempt of a high State Department official to induce several individuals who had signed affidavits reflecting adversely upon the employee to repudiate their affidavits. The file shows that that high State Department employee even went out and personally contacted the individuals who signed the affidavits and asked them, 'Won't you repudiate them?'

"This individual, according to the security files of the State Department, was a very close associate of active Soviet agents. As to whether he is in the State Department at this time or not, I frankly do not know, but in view of fact that he was reinstated, I answer that he is."

Possible Identification

This individual apparently is Ernst Theodor Arndt. The Bureau files reflect we conducted a loyalty investigation of Arndt from December 14, 1945, to March 3, 1949; a Departmental espionage investigation from June 15, 1938, to December 12, 1938; an Espionage - C investigation from February 20, 1940, to August 26, 1942; and he was afforded an interview under the provisions of the Hatch Act on March 6, 1942. (121-13297; 77-9361; 65-800)

Investigation has disclosed information that Arndt was reported to have exhibited pro-Nazi sympathies and to have associated with members of the German Embassy. Investigation developed no evidence of espionage or subversive activities.

Investigation reflected information indicating [redacted]

According to Bureau files, Arndt has indicated he was employed by the State Department from December 6, 1945, to May 17, 1948, when he resigned. He had also been employed by the State Department in 1936 as a German translator. From 1936 to 1939, he was employed by the Department of Justice in the Alien Property Division. In October, 1946, information was received from the Office of Naval Intelligence that Arndt was employed by the State Department in the Special War Profitees, German Embassy Group, in the Office of Research and Records. It was reported by ONI that at the time Arndt applied for a position with the State Department, the Division of Control disapproved Arndt's appointment, but this disapproval was overruled by the then Acting Secretary of State, whose name was not known, and Arndt was subsequently appointed.

Case files reflect that Arndt has stated he was dismissed by the State Department on February 19, 1946, and was subsequently cleared by the Secretary of State who had delegated the case to Deputy Assistant Secretary of State J. Anthony Fauch. Arndt has furnished information that he was formerly cleared by the State Department on April 1, 1946, as to loyalty and security. Arndt was appointed as a research analyst (translator) on August 3, 1948, with the Department of the Air Force, Washington, D. C., which is his last known employment.

Reports reflecting the results of the loyalty investigation were furnished the Civil Service Commission under date of March 3, 1949. The Civil Service Commission under date of November 7, 1949, advised regarding the disposition of the case that Arndt was "eligible on loyalty."

In addition to the Civil Service Commission, information relating to Arndt has been disseminated to the following: The Attorney General, Office for Emergency Management, Department of State, Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, Department of the Army, and the Office of Naval Intelligence.

PURPOSE

To inform you of the identity of the State Department employee referred to yesterday by Senator Millard E. Tydings at the hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee as being terminated by the State Department on February 19, 1946, for "homosexual acts and connection with the Young Communist League," the termination being rescinded April 1, 1946, through intervention of a "high official of the State Department." The identity of the "high official of the State Department" is also set forth for your information.

BACKGROUND

You will recall the Washington Field Office, by letter dated March 8, 1950, advised the Bureau regarding certain details taken up at the opening session of the Foreign Relations Subcommittee hearing on State Department personnel. Senator Tydings referred to prior testimony of Senator McCarthy in which he had stated on the floor of the Senate that one employee of the State Department who was employed in December, 1945, as a translator had been investigated during 1946 and this investigation showed evidence which caused his later dismissal due to homosexual acts and connection with the Young Communist League; that on January 22, 1946, the Division of Security and Investigations, State Department, recommended the discharge of this individual and on February 19, 1946, his services were terminated; that on April 1, 1946, this termination act was rescinded; that a CSA report, dated September 27, 1947, was replete with information that a high official of the State Department tampered with the records of the State Department and personally contacted witnesses asking them to retract their testimony concerning the aforementioned employee. Senator Tydings asked Senator McCarthy whether he could furnish the Committee with the name of this official in the State Department who was charged with tampering with official records and covering up activities of disloyal employees.

You noted concerning this information, "Do we know who he is talking about?"

From a comparison of Senator Tydings' remarks, as set forth above, with the previous testimony of Senator McCarthy before the Senate, as published in the Congressional Record under date of February 20, 1950, it is obvious that the State Department employee he is talking about is Ernst Theodore Arndt who McCarthy originally referred to as "Case No. 14."

Arndt was employed by the State Department from December 6, 1945, to May 13, 1948, when he resigned. He subsequently was appointed as a Research Analyst (Translator) on August 3, 1948, with the Department of Air Force, Washington, D. C., which is his last known employment. As an employee of the Department of Air Force he was the subject of a full field loyalty investigation which was completed on March 3, 1949, and we have received advice from the Loyalty Review Board under date of November 7, 1949, to the effect that Arndt was "eligible on loyalty." There is attached for your information a copy of a summary concerning Arndt which was submitted to you by my memorandum of February 24, 1950, in the group of summary memoranda originally submitted to you on the cases cited by Senator McCarthy which the Bureau had been able to identify as of that time. (121-13297)

With respect to the "high official of the State Department" referred to by Senators Tydings and McCarthy, from an examination of the loyalty reports on Ernst Theodore Arndt and the material provided to us confidentially by former Special Agent Robert E. Lee on January 29, 1948, the State Department official in question has been identified as Joseph Anthony Panuch, who is no longer with the Department of State. [REDACTED] b7D

[REDACTED] However, this individual subsequently advised that the information he previously had supplied to the Bureau in 1938 concerning Arndt was true and that the aforementioned affidavit had been urged falsified by Joseph Panuch, who identified himself to this individual as employed in the office of the then Assistant Secretary of State Russell.

With regard to Joseph Anthony Panuch, our files show that he was employed November 15, 1945, to January 23, 1947, as Deputy Administrator to Donald S. Russell, former Assistant Secretary for Administration, Department of State. He subsequently was appointed as Special Adviser to the Commander in Chief, European Command, and Military Governor, Office of Military Government for Germany, effective July 25, 1947. You will recall that a full field loyalty investigation was instituted concerning Panuch on February 25, 1949, upon receipt of his loyalty form from the Office of Military Government for Germany. This investigation was based on information provided to the Bureau confidentially by Morse Allen, Security Officer, Economic Cooperation Administration, and formerly an investigator in the Security Section, Department of State, to this effect: that while employed at the State Department Panuch definitely indicated he was not in favor of the campaign being waged by the Security Section of the State Department to rid that Department of Communists and Communist sympathizers and, further, that Panuch was believed to be one of the main stumbling blocks in the attempts to dismiss employees of the State Department who were considered subversive.

You may recall that the receipt of the loyalty form on Panuch was called to your attention and it was pointed out, among other things, that, according to Fred Lyon and Jack Neal of the State Department, Panuch in 1946 had started a rumor that the Director of the FBI was not able or willing to back up the cases of Alger Hiss and Gustav Duran which had been submitted to the State Department; that an article had appeared in the May, 1947, issue of the Times-Herald regarding the trial of Carl Aldo Marzani wherein Marzani was quoted as recounting certain conversations with his former boss, J. Anthony Panuch, to the effect that Marzani did not have to worry so long as Donald Russell (former Assistant Secretary of State) and Panuch were there; that in October, 1947, our liaison representative confidentially obtained information from the State Department to the effect that Joseph Panuch was then attached to the staff of General Clay, U. S. Military Governor of Germany, in a civilian capacity, acting as a Special Assistant to General Clay, and during the course of an investigation five State Department employees were found guilty in varying degrees of homosexual acts or acts of perversion, among whom was Joseph Panuch; that in July, 1948, Colonel C. W. Clarke, M.D., expressed to our liaison representative that he was surprised to learn that Panuch was one of the most influential men in the American Zone of Germany and had become, according to Colonel Clarke, a chief adviser and a "fair-haired boy" of General Clay.

You may further recall that prior to initiating a full field loyalty investigation on Panuch, we discussed the matter with IDA to determine if the Army desired a loyalty investigation. Upon discussion of the matter with IDA, it was indicated by IDA officials that investigation of Panuch in Europe by the Army probably would not receive the enthusiastic concurrence of General Clay; that the Army desired an investigation of Panuch with the understanding that any investigation in Europe be withheld until completion of the Bureau's investigation in the United States and that if investigation in the United States indicated possible disloyal activity which might authorize the Army to act under P.L. 803, it was believed at such time an investigation of Panuch could be undertaken by the Army in the European Command whether General Clay liked it or not. This unusual request was submitted for your approval and we thereafter conducted and completed the full field loyalty investigation of Panuch in the United States and sent the reports to the Civil Service Commission on April 13, 1949.

Aside from the original allegations of Morse Allen to the effect that Panuch was not in favor of the campaign being waged by the Security Section of the Department of State to rid the Department of Communists and Communist sympathizers and that Panuch was believed to be one of the main stumbling blocks in the attempts to dismiss employees of the State Department who were considered subversive, little information was developed of a substantive nature indicating disloyalty on Panuch's part. Allen when reinterviewed requested anonymity and in support of his original allegation cited the case of Carl Marzani, who was recommended by the Security Section for dismissal from the State Department because of previous Communist activities. Allen indicated this recommendation was blocked by Panuch, who became a bottleneck on the disposition of Communist cases. However, Allen pointed out that he had no evidence which would in any way connect Panuch with the Communist element in the State Department and had no personal knowledge regarding Panuch's loyalty.

Robert Bannerman, former Chief of the Security Section, Department of State, who also requested anonymity, observed that Panuch was not in favor of the effort being made by the Security Section to get rid of Communists employed in the State Department; that Panuch would not accept the reports and recommendations of the Security Section at face value but would continually send them back for further investigation and in this way delayed the program of the Security Section which believed it had sufficient evidence to fire an employee for security reasons before such a recommendation was made. Bannerman felt that Panuch was a security risk because of his personality and his above-described actions in the State Department.

Samuel Klaus, Assistant to the Legal Adviser, Department of State, commented that Panuch had felt the investigators in the Security Division, State Department, were not doing an adequate job in getting facts which he insisted they do before taking action and although the State Department had the power to summarily fire an employee suspected of disloyalty without disclosing reasons for such action, Panuch felt that this power should not be exercised until the facts and reasons to substantiate such action were on hand. Klaus cited the Marzani case as an example in this regard. A similar comment was also made by William Walter Chapran, Executive Assistant to the Assistant Secretary of Administration, State Department, who stated that Panuch, being a lawyer, took a legal approach to security investigations and wanted sufficient legal evidence and facts that would stand up in a court of law before firing an employee. Associate Justice William Douglas, United States Supreme Court, made the same comment concerning Panuch and pointed out that Panuch, because of a close personal relationship with Douglas, had frequently discussed problems involved in the Marzani case with him, that Panuch looked at matters from a lawyer's point of view and felt he should have the type of evidence required before a court of law to take action before firing a Federal employee.

Former Assistant Secretary of State for Administration, Donald Russell, when interviewed stated that he had delegated the problem of security and detection of Communists within the State Department to Panuch who conducted several successful investigations which resulted in dismissal of State Department employees; that Panuch is anti-Communist and took an active part against alleged Communists and Communist sympathizers in the State Department and there was absolutely no reason to doubt the loyalty of Panuch.

Robert C. Alexander, Assistant Chief, Visa Division, State Department, who requested anonymity, commented that it was his observation Panuch, while employed at State was "so naive that Communists could be crawling all over him and he wouldn't know it"; that for a long time Panuch refused to take any action on the Marzani case and "held the Marzani case in his lap until the case nearly blew up in his face." You will recall that Marzani was convicted in the U. S. District Court for concealing Communist affiliation while at the State Department and sentenced to serve one to three years in prison.

No information was volunteered by witnesses interviewed during the investigation to the effect that Panuch had in any way engaged in homosexual acts or acts of perversion. Accordingly, no information in this regard was contained in the reports disseminated to the Civil Service Commission. During the course of the investigation of Panuch, numerous prominent individuals who were well acquainted with Panuch were interviewed and all attested to his loyalty. Among these were Robert Patterson, former Secretary of War; H. Struve Hensel, former Assistant Secretary of Navy; William Douglas, Associate Justice, Supreme Court; Judge Jerome N. Frank, U. S. Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, New York; Judge Alfred C. Coxe, U. S.

District Court, Southern District, New York. It is noted that John E. Feurifoy, Assistant Secretary of State for Administration, indicated that he had known Panuch since 1942 and that although they were not intimately acquainted, he had no reason to question Panuch's loyalty. John W. Snyder, Secretary of the Treasury, indicated he knew Panuch in 1945 while Panuch was employed with the Office of War Mobilization and though not intimately acquainted, he had no reason to question Panuch's loyalty.

By letter of August 19, 1949, the Loyalty Review Board advised the Bureau that Panuch had been "cleared on security - P.L.808." Since that time we have received no additional information from the Department of the Army and there is nothing in our files which would indicate that Panuch is not still employed by the Army. [redacted] of the Washington Field Office, called to advise that the hearings of the Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, continued this morning with Senator McCarthy as witness.

Senator McCarthy continued his observations on the case of Dorothy Kenyon. He refused to name the high official concerning whom he talked on March 8, 1950. He reiterated that it was important to get the FBI files, as these were the only ones not tampered with. He stated that the State Department files had been rifled and tampered with. Senator McCarthy advised that this issue will test the authority of the Committee to subpoena files. He refused to give the Committee the documents in his possession regarding the high official and accused the Committee of having as its purpose the disclosure of his informants so that the Committee could take punitive action regarding his informants in the State Department. He called the Committee a tool of the State Department. Senator McCarthy said that the FBI file on Kenyon is more complete than the information he has furnished and shows that she was affiliated with more than twenty-eight subversive organizations. He pointed out that in connection with the Loyalty Program the FBI does not screen employees and makes no recommendations in Loyalty cases. He said that the FBI has done a good job on the Loyalty Program and the FBI is not responsible for security risks in the State Department.

[redacted] advised that the Committee is considering having members of the State Department Loyalty Board appear before the Committee with reference to these cases. The hearing was adjourned until further notice.

The Washington Field Office was instructed to confirm this information by letter.

OBSERVATIONS:

As pointed out in my memorandum of March 8, 1950, it is very possible that the Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations will attempt to secure FBI files relating to the individuals mentioned by Senator McCarthy.

SUBJECT: COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT
(ALLEGATIONS BY SENATOR JOSEPH McCARTHY)

DATE: March 9, 1950

ATTN: Assistant Director
D. M. LADD

In accordance with verbal instructions by Assistant Director D. M. LADD TO SAC GUY HOTTEL on March 7, 1950, Special Agents KENNETH D. ANENSON and WILLIAM J. McGRATH, JR. attended the meeting of the Foreign Relations Subcommittee investigation of State Department personnel in the Caucus Room of the Senate Office, on March 9, 1950.

The hearing was opened by Senator TYDINGS, who asked Senator McCARTHY if he had the name of the individual that he promised the Committee at yesterday's hearing, which was referred to as Case #14. Senator McCARTHY then handed the Committee the name of the subject of this Case #14 and stated that the name of the high official in the State Department, who was accused of altering records, would be found in this person's file. At this point, Senator McCARTHY reiterated that it would be very important for the Committee to get the State Department looseleaf and loyalty files together with the Civil Service Commission and FBI files. He advised that the Committee can now test their authority of subpoena by obtaining these files. Chairman TYDINGS replied that "we will, in due time, attempt and obtain access to these files."

The Subcommittee then pressed Senator McCARTHY for the name of the high State Department official and asked whether or not he had this name in his possession or in his personal files. Senator McCARTHY stated that numerous names were reflected in his files and, in his own mind, he believed he knew who this high State Department official was; however, the only way that the Committee would be able to ascertain definitely who the official was would be to get possession of the State Department secret files.

The Committee then pressed Senator McCARTHY as to just what documents and evidence he had in his possession concerning this high State Department official and also questioned him as to how he knew or had reason to know who this official might be. Senator McCARTHY then stated that he was well aware of the purpose behind their wanting this information - that it was to find out the names of the individuals who had furnished information to him, so that the names could be turned over to the Department of State so that the necessary heads would fall. Senator McCARTHY stated that he was sorry that the Committee has turned out to be a tool of the State Department. Chairman TYDINGS, at this point, repudiated McCARTHY's statement and advised that the Committee will exhaust every avenue to investigate the charges made.

WASHINGTON FIELD OFFICE LETTER TO DIRECTOR, FBI
RE: COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT

Senator McCARTHY then brought out the point that it would be a valuable aid to the State Department to be aware of just what documents he had in his possession, if any, in the way of photostatic copies of their files, because if the story of rifling of files is true, then the Department of State would know just what documents to make available to the Committee and would not "be caught short."

Senator McCARTHY then discussed the Loyalty Board at the State Department and stated that he questioned their competence and ability to perform the job designated when a Board could review so many loyalty cases and only find one person who had to be dismissed from the Department and find every other person loyal to the Government.

The Committee then decided that they would call before it, at some future time, all nine members of the Loyalty Board at the State Department; with the latter decision being made that they would wait until they had received further information from Senator McCARTHY relative to the exact number of cases he knew of in which the Loyalty Board cleared the employees and where the Civil Service Commission Board, at a later date, noted that a mistake must have been made and sent this information back to the State Department Loyalty Board.

After considerable discussion concerning the setup of the Loyalty Boards in the various agencies, together with the Appeal Boards, Senator McCARTHY stated that he wanted to make this clear, that the FBI does no screening and makes no recommendations whatsoever, simply conducts the investigation and sends the investigative report, upon completion, to the agency concerned which, in turn, makes the necessary decision. He stated that in the case of ~~DORIS~~ KENYON that the FBI did an excellent job and intimated that the FBI report, as furnished to the State Department, contained information relating to her membership in organizations cited as subversive in excess of the twenty-eight, as mentioned by him in the original accusations.

Senator McCARTHY, at this point, also wanted to reiterate his prior statement about the necessity of subpoenaing all files and wanted to state that the FBI file could be depended upon not to have been tampered with in any way.

Senator McCARTHY also stated that the FBI was, in no way, responsible for the presence of any persons considered security risks now in the State Department.

WASHINGTON FIELD OFFICE LETTER TO DIRECTOR, FBI
RE: COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT

The Subcommittee then asked Senator McCARTHY whether or not he had any information regarding the members of the present Loyalty Board at the Department of State, to which he replied that he is presently compiling information regarding various members of the Loyalty Board and will present this later to the Subcommittee.

Senator McCARTHY then continued with presenting evidence in the KENYON matter to the Committee and also advised that Case #2, which would be taken up next, was infinitely worse than the KENYON Case.

In closing the hearing, Senator TYDINGS read aloud a telegram from Judge DOROTHY KENYON of New York, requesting that she be allowed to appear before the Committee to refute the accusations made against her by Senator McCARTHY. The Committee meeting was adjourned with Senator TYDINGS stating that the next meeting would be announced later in the day.

There is enclosed, for your information, a prepared statement which was given to the press.

ENCLOSURE

*Prepared statement given to Press
on 3/9/50.*

I understand the Chairman would like me to answer the following questions on Case Number 14: 43539

(1) "Will I give him the name of this individual?" The answer is "Yes", and I now hand him that name.

(2) "Can I give him the name of the State Department official mentioned in the secret files in that case and am I making any 'charge' against that official?" The answer is "No". The committee can make such charge against this or any other individual in this or any other case as it sees fit — that is the task delegated to the committee by the Senate. Only those whom I name am I charging as bad security risks. However, the committee may find many whom it desires to charge in like manner.

If the Chairman desires the name of this particular State Department official, I can tell him how to obtain it in a very simple and easy manner — by subpoenaing the files in this case. However, to get the complete story in this case, it undoubtedly will be necessary to get not merely the State Department's loose leaf loyalty and personnel files, but also the files of the Civil Service Commission and the F.B.I.

If the Chairman considers this morals case more important than the other cases, then I have no objection to recessing the hearings until the committee obtains those files.

SUBJECT: FORMER SA EUGENE RINTA

Mr. Musulin, ONI, on March 7, 1950 advised the Liaison Section that he had discussed the subject of sexual perversion of CIA and State Department employees with former agent Eugene Rinta. Musulin indicated that Rinta was conducting an inquiry for Senator McCarthy regarding the sexual perversion habits of such employees, and that Senator McCarthy planned to expose the CIA employees, along with the State Department employees, in his present hearings on the Hill regarding subversives in the State Department.

MR. NICHOLS

Mr. Morgan called to inform me of a request that is going to be made of me. He stated he received a call from Senator Millard Tydings today who asked him to come to his office and when he got there Les Biffle and Senator Scott Lucas were also in his office. Mr. Morgan stated Senator Tydings wanted him to act as his counsel on the current investigation of the State Department and in the course of his discussion the Senator stated he was going to ask me for the assignment of some four Agents to his committee to help on it. I stated I was very glad to know about this.

Very truly yours,

MEMORANDUM FOR THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

In connection with the investigation being conducted by a Senate subcommittee of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the United States Senate into the charges made by Senator McCarthy that subversive elements are employed in the State Department, I have been advised that it is very likely that the subcommittee may request of you the assignment by the FBI of some Agents to the Committee to conduct investigations into these charges.

I bring this matter to your attention because I would strongly urge that this Bureau not be directed to assign personnel to the Senate Committee for the purposes indicated. It has been a consistent policy of the Department over a long period of years not to accede to requests of Congressional Committees for the assignment of Special Agents of the Bureau to conduct investigations for such Committees. Many requests have been made over a period of years for such personnel and they have all been denied.

There seems to be very good reason for this policy in that the FBI is already considerably over-burdened with its legitimate work without rendering investigative assistance to Committees of Congress, and, secondly, many of the matters into which Committees are making inquiries from time to time are of such an extreme controversial character as to make it undesirable for the FBI to be injected into such matters. In the particular instance in question, the FBI has investigated many of the personnel of the State Department and submitted reports thereon to the Civil Service Commission and to the State Department. These reports have given all of the facts which the FBI has been able to develop. Of course, no conclusions were reached in our reports as the Bureau has strongly confined its function to that of being a fact-gathering organization. Obviously, if Agents of the Bureau should be assigned to such a Committee, it would be an indirect way for the Committee to get access to the files of the FBI which, up to the present time, have consistently been denied to all Congressional Committees.

At the above time I talked to Special Agent [redacted] of the Washington Field Office concerning Senator McCarthy's testimony which he began this morning, March 13, 1950.

Senator McCarthy identified as "Case No. 2" Haldore Hanson, whom the Senator described as an expert on Chinese affairs. Senator McCarthy said Hanson is to be the head of a new divisional establishment (apparently in the State Department) of an "Interim Office for Technical Cooperation and Development." According to Senator McCarthy, this group will be spending hundreds of millions of dollars of the taxpayers money.

Senator McCarthy described Hanson as having been affiliated with the State Department since February, 1942, and the Senator then began to list the alleged Communist connections of Hanson. He said that these date back to 1939 and he said that Hanson has been associated with the Institute of Pacific Relations which he described as presently being headed by Mr. Field, who has Communist connections.

At the time of [redacted] call, Senator McCarthy was continuing to list the alleged Communist connections of Henson.

It might be noted that "Case No. 2", according to the Bob Lee list and as identified by the Bureau, pertains to John Carter Vincent. A special summary on Hanson is in the process of preparation, and it will be submitted promptly. It might be noted that a full field loyalty investigation was completed by the Bureau and submitted to the Civil Service Commission June 24, 1948. A disposition notice was received September 30, 1948, to the effect that Hanson had been "retained."

It might be noted that the Field referred to by Senator McCarthy is presumably Frederick Vanderbilt Field, whose Communist connections are well known. He is not the head of the Institute of Pacific Relations; rather Clayton Lane, a person who has openly expressed anti-Communist sympathy is the head of this organization.

[redacted] of the Washington Field Office called at 11:45 a.m. with regard to the continuation of Senator McCarthy's testimony this morning.

At the outset [redacted] stated that Senator McCarthy had said that Case #1 and Case #2, which he has mentioned in the last two or three days, were not in the group of cases which he mentioned in his testimony on February 20, 1950. Case #1 pertains to Dorothy Kenyon, and Case #2, as it now stands, pertains to Haldore Hanson.

Senator McCarthy went on to refer to his information concerning Hanson, stating that Hanson had written a book "Human Endeavor," which was published around 1939. This book concerns the activities of Hanson while in China and refers to the Chinese civil war. Senator McCarthy claims that this book shows Hanson's admiration for the Communist regime. He said he had trouble getting a copy of the book, since the copies have mysteriously disappeared, but that he obtained one copy from the publisher. In his testimony Senator McCarthy quoted portions of the book.

Senator McCarthy concentrated on this book as indicating the views of Hanson. He further stated that former Congressman Fred Busbee had discussed this same book on the floor of the House on May 14, 1945, thus calling the book to the attention of the Department of State.

He went on to refer to Hanson's activities in the Institute of Pacific Relations and his writing for the publication, Anerasia. (It will be recalled that Anerasia was the publication of Philip Jacob Jaffe.)

Case #3 - Dr. Esther Laukin Brunauer (A copy of the Bureau's write-up on this individual is attached)

Senator McCarthy went on to identify Case #3 as being the captioned person, which in his previous testimony was Case #47. He said that she is a member of the United Nations Ethnic Scientific and Cultural Organization. She is an Assistant Director of Policy, receiving $9,000 a year. He said his information indicates that immediate action is necessary with regard to Dr. Esther Brunauer. He indicated that she was a member of the Communist Party and that the status of her husband is most important and he would not present it at a public hearing but indicated he would refer to it in executive session.

RECORDED - 46

He went on to say that both the Brunauers, according to information available, have been listed as Communist Party members. He said that the husband has a confidential position with the Navy Department.

He went on to say that Esther Brunauer was executive secretary of the Association of University Women, and that she has been in various Communist front groups in the consumers field. He also stated that she presided at a meeting in Washington of the American Friends of the Soviet Union, on June 11, 1936.

Mrs Mrs

Senator McCarthy identified the husband of Esther Brunauer as Stephen Brunauer, a Commander in the United States Navy, presently on active duty, and a scientist on several top secret projects. He stated that both Esther and Stephen Brunauer are members of the Communist Party, as reported by another government agency. He considered this case of urgent importance and stated immediate access to State Department loyalty and personnel files, to the files of the Civil Service Commission and, of double importance, immediate access to the FBI files, was necessary. In his opinion the investigative agencies have done excellent work in this case and it is unbelievable that the Brunauers have been able to get top secret clearance in various government agencies in the face of the information developed. He does not feel that the members of the Senate subcommittee are qualified to make the necessary investigation. He feels that highly trained government investigators should be employed to make this investigation and that preferably they should be FBI men who are available.

He also introduced in evidence certain documents concerning front organizations to which the Brunauers belonged.

At the time of [redacted] call concerning the Brunauers (12:05 p.m.) he said that Senator McCarthy was identifying Case #4 as that concerning Owen J. Lattimore. A memorandum is being prepared concerning Lattimore.

At 1:25 p.m. Special Agent Stephen A. Smith of the Washington Field Office called to supply the additional developments in connection with Senator McCarthy's testimony.

It was indicated that the staff and the investigative personnel of the subcommittee will be named shortly.

Senator McCarthy reiterated that it was highly important that the committee obtain the many files of the FBI, ONI and Department of State on Stephen A. Brunauer (as indicated previously, a memorandum is being prepared on Brunauer). Handwritten notes and signatures on right margin.

RECEIVED

Senator McCarthy stated that a good deal of the material he presently possesses was not originally in his possession when he addressed the Senate on 2/20/50. He further stated he has received a constant flow of letters from Republicans.

The subcommittee concluded its hearings for Monday, March 13, 1950, at approximately 1:20 p.m.

American Association of University Women; that she was active in front enterprises in the consumers fields and that she had presided at a Washington meeting of the American Friends of the Soviet Union on June 11, 1936.

Mr + Mrs Senator MC CARTHY further stated that ESTHER BRUNAUER is the wife of STEPHEN BRUNAUER, a Hungarian by birth, who was a Scientist and has had the rank of Commander in the U. S. Navy.

At this point, he advised it was highly important that this Committee immediately, in accordance with their mandate from the Senate, obtain the files of the FBI, Naval Intelligence, and the State Department on the activities of STEPHEN BRUNAUER and set forth a list of three items which the Committee should immediately seek to learn the answers to. It was doubly important that they obtain the files of the FBI.

There is enclosed herewith complete text of testimony by Senator MC CARTHY concerning ESTHER CAUKIN BRUNAUER and numbered on pages twelve-A through fourteen.

Senator MC CARTHY further advised that in his opinion the Committee should immediately appoint an experienced investigative staff to begin immediate investigation of the individuals he has named. He further advised that if at all possible, the Committee should obtain the services of Special Agents of the FBI who might be available at this time to conduct such investigation.

Senator MC CARTHY then furnished the name of Case Number 4 before the Sub-Committee and named OWEN J. LATTIMORE. He identified this individual as a former high official in the State Department and who now is located at John Hopkins University, Baltimore, Maryland, where he is Director of a course in Problems of the Far East. He further advised that LATTIMORE was born in Washington, D. C., but spent his entire youth in China and the Far East. He also advised that LATTIMORE is considered one of the top United States officials in Far Eastern matters.

MC CARTHY further advised that at the present time LATTIMORE is not on the payrolls of the State Department but added that because of his vast background and experience he is often called in as a Consultant on current Far Eastern problems. He also advised that LATTIMORE has been closely associated in an advisory capacity to the ROOSEVELT and TRUMAN administrations for many years. He also advised that when HENRY WALLACE was Vice President, LATTIMORE was his chief adviser on a trip WALLACE made to Siberia.

Ltr. to Director

RE: COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT

Senator MC CARTHY also advised that during the past several years, State Department policy has been influenced by two publications which he listed as No. 1 Far Eastern Affairs, and No. 2 Pacific Affairs. He advised that in 1941 Mr. LATTIMORE was the Editor of Pacific Affairs, and is now listed as a Trustee of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Senator MC CARTHY also advised that LATTIMORE has been closely associated with several organizations which have been declared as Communist fronts by the Attorney General. He also advised that LATTIMORE has been a prolific writer and has written ten volumes concerning Asia and the Far East. Senator MC CARTHY also stated that the Columbian, Knights of Columbus magazine for September, 1949, contained an article concerning the fall of China which stated that OWEN LATTIMORE gets most of the credit for the fall of China.

A mimeographed statement concerning the testimony regarding OWEN J. LATTIMORE could not be obtained at this time.

There is enclosed herewith a mimeographed statement in which Senator MC CARTHY called to the attention of the Committee the press campaign Secretary ACHESON is presently putting on in these Loyalty cases. In his testimony Senator MC CARTHY altered the prepared statement by stating that if Mr. ACHESON had the necessary guts he should stand up like a man and take the blame for this situation and quit making a goat of PEURIFOY.

During the course of Senator MC CARTHY'S testimony before the Sub-Committee, he stated that in his opinion the Government investigative agencies have done an excellent job in developing information concerning individuals engaged in subversive activities in the United States and that he finds it unbelievable that in spite of the derogatory information developed by these Government agencies, these individuals have been given top secret clearance by their agency.

Following testimony before the Committee, Chairman TYDINGS stated that the staff of the Committee would be named shortly and added that he hoped this staff could begin work on investigating the individuals named by Senator MC CARTHY sometime this week.

Senator MC CARTHY also stated following his testimony concerning the aforementioned individuals that the material to be presented (March 14, 1950) was not originally in his possession on February 20, 1950, when he made his original charges on the floor of the Senate. He advised that there has been a constant flow of information in the form of letters which contained tips and leads, some of which are working out remarkably fast.

The Committee is scheduled to meet tomorrow morning and hear further testimony by Senator MC CARTHY and at the present time it is believed that DOROTHY KENYON will appear before the Committee during the afternoon.

U

Jaffe was arrested, indicted, and found guilty of having been in illegal possession of several hundred secret documents from the State, Navy, War, and other Government Department files.

Mr. Chairman, I have before me a document entitled "Department of State, Departmental Announcement 41." The heading is "Establishment of the Interim Office for Technical Cooperation and Development." Then in parenthesis, by way of explanation of this rather high-sounding name, we find "Point Four Program."

The first paragraph of the order reads as follows:

- "1. Effective immediately there is established under the direction of the Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs of the Interim Office for Technical Cooperation and Development (TCD)."

On page 4 we find that the chief of this Technical Cooperations Project Staff is one Haldero Hanson.

Paragraph 2 on Page 1 sets forth the following responsibilities of Hanson's division:

"The Interim Office is assigned general responsibility within the Department for (a) securing effective administration of programs involving technical assistance to economically underdeveloped areas and (b) directing the planning in preparation for the Technical Cooperation and Economic Development (Point Four) Program. In carrying out its responsibilities the Interim Office will rely upon the regional bureaus, Bureau of United Nations Affairs, and other components of Economic Affairs area for participation in the technical assistance programs as specified below, and upon the central administrative offices of the Administrative area for the performance of service functions."

From this it would appear that his division will have a tremendous amount of power and control over the hundreds of millions or billions of dollars which the President proposes to spend under his Point Four Program, or what he has referred to as the "Bold New Plan".

Hanson's appointment is not made by the President, but by the State Department and is not subject to any Senate confirmation. Therefore, it would seem rather important to examine the background and the philosophy of this young man.

The State Department Biographical Register gives what would on its face seem to be a chronological story of an increasingly successful young man. It shows that he graduated from college, for example, in 1934 at the age of 22; that he was a teacher in Chinese colleges from 1934 to 1937; and then a press correspondent in China from 1936 to 1939; a staff writer from 1938 to 1942; then in 1942 he got a job in the State Department at $4,600. a year; that in 1944 he was listed as a specialist in Chinese affairs at $5,600; that in 1945 he was made Executive Assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State at $6,500; that in May of 1948 he was made assistant chief of the area division number 3; that on June 28, 1948 he was made acting chief for the Far Eastern Area, Public Affairs Overseas Program Staff; that on November 14, 1948 he was made Executive Director of the Secretariat of the Inter-Departmental Committee on Scientific and Cultural Cooperation. There is certainly nothing unusual about this biography. Nothing there to indicate that this man might be dangerous in the State Department as Chief for the Far Eastern Area Public Affairs, Overseas Program Staff, during a time when the Communists were taking over China. However, much is left out of this biography. It does not show, for example, that this young man was running a Communist magazine in Peiping when the Japanese-Chinese war broke out. It does not show, for example, that he spent several years with the Communist cadres in China, writing stories and taking pictures which the Chinese Communists helped him smuggle out of the country. Nor does this biography show that this man, after his return from China, wrote a book — a book which sets forth his pro-Communist answer to the problems of Asia as clearly as Hitler's Mein Kampf set forth his solutions for the problems of Europe.

Nothing that he has said or done since would indicate that he repudiates a single line of that book.

This man clearly believes that the Communists in China stand for everything that is great and good. His is not the picture of a mercenary trying to sell his country out for thirty pieces of silver. In reading his book, you are impressed with the fact that he truly believes the Communist leaders in China are great and good men and that all of Asia

Take, for example, what he had to say about Mao Tse-tung, the head of the Communist Party at that time and now the Communist ruler of China, and Chu Teh, commander-in-chief of the 8th Route Communist Army, and according to Life Magazine of January 23, 1950, Number Two man in prestige to Mao Tse-Tung.

In Chapter 23, entitled "Political Utopia on Mt. Wut'ai", in describing a meeting with an American Major Carlson, here is what he had to say:

"We stayed up till midnight exchanging notes on guerrilla armies, the farm unions, and the progress of the war. I was particularly interested in the Communist leaders whom Carlson had just visited and whom I was about to meet. Mao Tse-Tung, the head of the Communist Party, Carlson characterized as 'the most selfless man I ever met, a social dreamer, a genius living fifty years ahead of his time.' And Chu Teh, commander in chief of the 8th Route Army was 'the prince of generals, a man with the humility of Lincoln, the tenacity of Grant, and the kindness of Robert E. Lee'."

For a man slated a chief of the bureau which may have the job of spending hundreds of millions of dollars throughout the world this indicates, to say the least, a disturbing amount of hero-worship for the number one and number two Communist leaders in the Far East today.

On page 349, he condemns the right wing groups in the Chinese government for "fighting against the Democratic revolution as proposed by Mao Tse Tung and the Communists."

On the same page he points out that anti-Red officials within the government were making indirect attacks upon the Communists and that "leaders of the Communist youth corps were arrested by military officers at Hankow. I myself was the victim of one of these incidents and found that local officials were the instigators."

From Hanson's book it appears that the Nationalist government knew of his close collaboration with the Communist Army. For example, on page 350, we find that his passport was seized by the police in Sian when they found that he was traveling from Communist guerrilla territory to the Communist headquarters. He states that the man responsible "for this illegal action was governor Ching Ting - Wen -- one of the most rabid anti-Red officials in China. The governor's purpose was merely to suppress news about the Communists."

Before quoting further from this book written by Mr. Hanson, it might be well to give a clearer picture of the job which Secretary Acheson has picked out for him. The State Department document lists some of the duties of his bureau as follows:

1. Developing over-all policies for the program.
2. Formulating general program plans and issuing planning directives.
3. Coordinating specific program plans developed by the regional bureaus and making necessary adjustments.
4. Approving projects, determining action agencies, and allocating funds for U.S. bilateral programs.
5. Directing negotiations and relationships with inter-governmental agencies and with other U. S. agencies participating in the coordinated program or otherwise carrying on technical assistance activities.

1. Initiating and developing plans for technical assistance programs for individual countries or groups of countries within their respective regions.
2. Reviewing program proposals affecting their regions which originate from any other source.
3. Negotiating and communicating with foreign governments.
4. Directing State Department personnel assigned abroad to coordinate and give administrative and program support to, bilateral programs.
5. Continuously evaluating programs and projects within regions.
6. Proposing program changes.
7. Initiating instructions to the field carrying out their responsibilities and reviewing all other instructions concerned with technical assistance programs.

This gives you some idea of the tremendous powers of the agency in which Mr. Hanson is a top flight official.

Let us go back to Hanson's writings:

All through the book he shows that not only did he have complete confidence in the Communist leaders but that they also had complete confidence in him.

Chen-Tsao acted as his couriers, smuggling packets of films and news stories for him with the aid of Communist guerrilla spies into Peiping.

In this connection I might say that he very frankly points out that the Communists do not tolerate anyone who is not completely on their side. Hanson makes it very clear all through the book that he is not only on the Communist side, but that he has the attitude of a hero worshiper for the Chinese Communist leaders.

His respect and liking for the Communist leaders permeates almost every chapter of the book. For example, on page 284 and page 285, he tells about how some ragged waifs whom he had gathered into his sleeping quarters regarded Mao Tse Tung and Chu Teh as "Gods". He then goes on to tell about their favorite Communist General, Holung, and states that they convinced him that Holung was a very extraordinary man whom they described as "big as a Shantungese, heavy as a restaurant cook but quick as a cat in battle." He then goes on to describe on page 285 how, when he met General Holung, he found him to be much as the hero-worshipping boys had described him. "He is, said Hanson, "a living picture of Rhett Butler from the pages of Gone With the Wind."

This praise of Chinese Communist leaders -- goes on page after page. On Page 278, he describes Communist General P'eng as the most rigid disciplinarian and "the most persistent student of world affairs".

In Chapter 26, he speaks with apparent bated breath of the "Brain Trust" of Communist leaders who were immortalized by Edgar Snow in his Red Star over China.

After describing in complimentary manner this university and the students, on page 296 he says, "Every cadet divides his time between political and military subjects. On the one hand he listens to lectures on Marxian philosophy, the history of the Chinese Revolution, the technique of leading a mass movement; on the other hand he studies guerrilla tactics, the use of military maps, and the organization of a military labor corps."

On page 297 he points out that no tuition is charged at the academy and that each student is supplied with uniform, books and food, plus a pocket allowance, and then has this to say: "Some recent visitors to Yenan have spread a report that the academies are supported by Russian rubles -- a thin piece of gossip. I was told by several Chinese leaders, including Mao Tse-Tung, that the largest contributions came from American sympathizers in New York."

On page 297 and 298, Hanson relates that in talking to one of the Nationalist war-lords. "I suggested that he could learn a great deal from the Communists about discipline and integrity of leadership."

On page 303, Hanson has this to say, "My attitude toward Communist China's leaders was a mixture of respect for their personal integrity and a resentment of their suspiciousness. They impressed me as a group of hardheaded, straight shooting realists."

After an interview with Mao Tse Tung he states, "I left with the feeling that he was the least pretentious man in Yanan and the most admired. He is <sup>a</sup> completely selfless man." 43525

Following is Hanson's description of how the Reds took over. I quote from page 102:

"Whenever a village was occupied for the first time, the Reds arrested the landlords and tax collectors, held a public tribunal, executed a few and intimidated the others, then redistributed the land as fairly as possible."

In Chapter 28, in comparing the Communists to Chiang Kai-shek's troops, Hanson had this to say:

"I left Yanan with only one conviction about the Communists; that they were fighting against the Japanese more wholeheartedly than any other group in China."

He then goes on to condemn "Red-baiting" officials in Chungking.

On page 312 of his book, Hanson quotes a Communist editor as stating as follows:

"Our relationship to the USSR is no different than that of the American Communist Party. We respect the work of Russia's leaders and profit by their experience wherever we can, but the problems of China are not the same as those of Russia. We plan our program from a Chinese point of view."

Hanson then adds, "The explanation seemed logical enough to me."

In connection with Hanson's position as Chief of the Technical Cooperation Projects Staff, in charge of Truman's Point Four Program, the following on pages 312 and 313 of his book would seem especially significant. He quotes Mao Tse Tung as follows:

"China cannot reconstruct its industry and commerce without the aid of British and American capital."

Can there be much doubt as to whether the Communists or the anti-Communist forces in Asia will receive aid under the Point Four Program with Hanson in charge?

Gentlemen, here is a man with a mission - a mission to communize whose the world - a man whose energy and intolligence coupled with a burning all-consuming mission has raised him by his own bootstraps from a penniless operator of a Leftist magazine in Peiping in the middle thirties to one of the architects of our foreign policy in the State Department today -- a man who, according to State Department announcement #41 will be largely in charge of the spending of hundreds of millions of dollars in such areas of the world and for such purposes as he decides.

Gentlemen, if Secretary Acheson gets away with his plan to put this man to a great extent in charge of the proposed Point Four Program, it will, in my opinion, lend tremendous impetus to the tempo at which Communism is engulfing the world.

landlords' heads have been removed apparently never occurred to him.

On page 31 he explained that it took him some time to appreciate the appalling problems which the Chinese Communists were attempting to solve."

In Chapter 4 of Hanson's book, he presents the stock Communists' arguments for the so-called Stalin-Hitler Pact of 1939.

Secretary Acheson is now putting Hanson in the position to help the Communists solve the "appalling problems" in other areas of the world with hundreds of millions or billions of American dollars.

The obvious area in which this man will start using American money to help the Communists solve the people's problem will be Indo-China and India.

It should be pointed out that this case was brought to the attention of State Dept. officials as long ago as May 14, 1947. At that time, the Honorable Fred Busbey, on the Floor of the House discussed this man's affinity for the Communist cause in China.

I should now like to take up the case of Esther Caukin Brunauer, Assistant Director of Policy Liaison, UNESCO Relations Staff, Department of State, at a salary of $9,706 a year according to the current Federal Register.

I urgently request that this committee give serious consideration to the details of this case and act immediately to ascertain the facts.

Mrs. Brunauer was for many years Executive Secretary of the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. Brunauer was instrumental in committing this organization to the support of various front enterprises, particularly in the so-called consumer field. One such instance of this activity was reported in the New York Times of April 27, 1943. In that case the American Association of University Women joined with Consumers Union, The League of Women Shoppers, and other completely Communist controlled fronts. I have explained to the committee that these organizations have been declared subversive by various governmental agencies.

Exhibit "R" indicates that Mrs. Brunauer presided at a Washington meeting of the American Friends of the Soviet Union. This organization has been cited as subversive by the Attorney General of the United States, the House Committee on Un-American Activities and the California Committee on Un-American Activities. The principal speaker at this meeting was Myra Page, long an avowed leader of the Communist Party and frequent writer for the Daily Worker and other Communist periodicals. 43529

Certainly this committee has no doubts as to the domination by the Communist Party of the American Youth Congress. It has been cited as subversive by the Attorney General and other governmental agencies.

Exhibit "S" shows Esther Caukin Brunauer was a signer of the call to the annual meeting of the American Youth Congress in 1938.

Esther Brunauer is the wife of Stephen Brunauer, a Hungarian by birth. He is a scientist who has had the rank of Commander in the United States Navy and his scientific work has involved some of the topmost defense secrets which the armed forces of this country possess.

I think it highly important that this committee immediately, in accordance with their mandate from the Senate, obtain the files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Naval Intelligence, and the State Department on the activities of Stephan Brunauer, the husband of this ranking official of the State Department.

~~I ask that the committee immediately seek to learn whether or not~~

Stephan Brunauer luc

1. Seen the subject of a constant investigation by government agencies over a period of ten years.

2. A close friend and collaborator of Noel Field, known Communist who recently and mysteriously disappeared behind the Iron Curtain.

3. He has admitted to associates that he was a member of the Communist party.

I am reluctant to go any further into this case but I am prepared to produce competent witnesses who will testify to the importance of immediate action in this matter.

It can be readily shown that at least three government agencies have been sifting the activities of a small group of people whose work seriously threatens the security of the country.

Certainly the Communist front activities of Mrs. Braunauer are sufficient to seriously question her security status.

In closing, I must call the attention of the committee and the public to the very unusual campaign Secretary Acheson is putting on to avoid blame in these loyalty cases. All of the onus is being cleverly loaded onto the shoulders of a harmless and likeable young man by the name of John Peurifoy. Every one of Secretary Acheson's press releases is issued in the name of Peurifoy. Whenever the Secretary wants to do a bit of name calling Peurifoy is the front and the shield. Clearly, however, Peurifoy has no more power to discharge Hanson and some of the other high officials than a White House aide would have to discharge the President. I suggest that Mr. Acheson stand up like a man and take the blame for this sorry situation and quit making a goat of young Peurifoy who must do as he is told or lose his job.

COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT
(Testimony of Senator JOSEPH R. MC CARTHY)
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

In accordance with the verbal instructions of Assistant Director D. M. LADD to SAC GUY HOTTEL on March 7, 1950, Special Agents ROBERT E. LENIHAN and WILLIAM J. MC CRATH, JR. attended the meeting of the Foreign Relations Sub-Committee, investigation of State Department personnel, held in the Caucus Room, Senate Office Building, on March 13, 1950.

Testimony was open<sup>ed</sup> before the Committee by Senator MC CARTHY, who gave the Committee a list of organizations which have been declared subversive. 42500

Senator MC CARTHY then presented Case Number 2 before the Sub-Committee and named HALDOR HANSON and stated that this man occupies one of the most important offices in the State Department. He stated that he is now Executive Director of the Secretariat of the Inter-departmental Committee on Scientific and Cultural Cooperation and that his duties are defined in Department of State Departmental Announcement Number 41, dated February 21, 1950. He stated that HANSON was a contributor to "Pacific Affairs", the official publication of the Institute of Pacific Relations; that he also wrote for the magazine Amerasia; and he then quoted at length from a book which HANSON had written entitled Human Endeavor, which was published about 1939. (Senator MC CARTHY was not sure of the date of publication.)

There is enclosed herewith the complete text of Senator MC CARTHY'S testimony concerning HALDOR HANSON on pages one through twelve of the enclosure.

Senator MC CARTHY then presented Case Number 3 on his list and identified this case as being identical with Case Number 47 as presented on the floor of the Senate on February 20, 1950.

He named ESTHER CAUKIN BRUNAUER, Assistant Director of Policy Liaison, UNESCO Relations Staff, Department of State, at a salary of $9,706 per annum according to the current Federal Register. He advised Mrs. BRUNAUER was for many years Executive Secretary of the American Association of University Women; that she was active in front enterprises in the consumer fields and that she had presided at a Washington meeting of the American Friends of the Soviet Union on June 11, 1936.

Senator MC CARTHY further stated that ESTHER BRUNAUER is the wife of STEPHEN BRUNAUER, a Hungarian by birth, who was a Scientist and has had the rank of Commander in the U. S. Navy.

At this point, he advised it was highly important that this Committee immediately, in accordance with their mandate from the Senate, obtain the files of the FBI, Naval Intelligence, and the State Department on the activities of STEPHEN BRUNAUER and set forth a list of three items which the Committee should immediately seek to learn the answers to. It was doubly important that they obtain the files of the FBI.

There is enclosed herewith complete text of testimony by Senator MC CARTHY concerning ESTHER CAUKIN BRUNAUER and numbered on pages twelve-A through fourteen.

Senator MC CARTHY further advised that in his opinion the Committee should immediately appoint an experienced investigative staff to begin immediate investigation of the individuals he has named. He further advised that if at all possible, the Committee should obtain the services of Special Agents of the FBI who might be available at this time to conduct such investigation.

Senator MC CARTHY then furnished the name of Case Number 4 before the Sub-Committee and named OWEN J. LATTIMORE. He identified this individual as a former high official in the State Department and who now is located at John Hopkins University, Baltimore, Maryland, where he is Director of a course in Problems of the Far East. He further advised that LATTIMORE was born in Washington, D. C., but spent his entire youth in China and the Far East. He also advised that LATTIMORE is considered one of the top United States officials in Far Eastern matters.

MC CARTHY further advised that at the present time LATTIMORE is not on the payrolls of the State Department but added that because of his vast background and experience he is often called in as a Consultant on current Far Eastern problems. He also advised that LATTIMORE has been closely associated in an advisory capacity to the ROOSEVELT and TRUMAN administrations for many years. He also advised that when HENRY WALLACE was Vice President, LATTIMORE was his chief adviser on a trip WALLACE made to Siberia.

RE: COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT

Senator MC CARTHY also advised that during the past several years, State Department policy has been influenced by two publications which he listed as No. 1 Far Eastern Affairs, and No. 2 Pacific Affairs. He advised that in 1941 Mr. LATTIMORE was the Editor of Pacific Affairs, and is now listed as a Trustee of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Senator MC CARTHY also advised that LATTIMORE has been closely associated with several organizations which have been declared as Communist fronts by the Attorney General. He also advised that LATTIMORE has been a prolific writer and has written ten volumes concerning Asia and the Far East. Senator MC CARTHY also stated that the Columbian, Knights of Columbus magazine for September, 1949, contained an article concerning the fall of China which stated that OWEN LATTIMORE gets most of the credit for the fall of China.

A mimeographed statement concerning the testimony regarding OWEN J. LATTIMORE could not be obtained at this time.

There is enclosed herewith a mimeographed statement in which Senator MC CARTHY called to the attention of the Committee the press campaign Secretary ACHESON is presently putting on in these Loyalty cases. In his testimony Senator MC CARTHY altered the prepared statement by stating that if Mr. ACHESON had the necessary guts he should stand up like a man and take the blame for this situation and quit making a goat of PEURIFOY.

During the course of Senator MC CARTHY'S testimony before the Sub-Committee, he stated that in his opinion the Government investigative agencies have done an excellent job in developing information concerning individuals engaged in subversive activities in the United States and that he finds it unbelievable that in spite of the derogatory information developed by these Government agencies, these individuals have been given top secret clearance by their agency.

Following testimony before the Committee, Chairman TYDINGS stated that the staff of the Committee would be named shortly and added that he hoped this staff could begin work on investigating the individuals named by Senator MC CARTHY sometime this week.

Senator MC CARTHY also stated following his testimony concerning the aforementioned individuals that the material to be presented (March 14, 1950) was not originally in his possession on February 20, 1950,

The subcommittee (which has been designated the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, conducting an investigation of State Department Personnel) is now taking up the case of John Stewart Service who the Senator said is presently assigned to Calcutta, India as a foreign service officer. The Senator advised the committee of some of the background of Service and stated that on March 3, 1950 a post-audit was conducted by the Civil Service Commission Loyalty Review Board, which did not agree with the State Department Loyalty Board (which had cleared Service). The Civil Service Board advised the State Department that it was of the opinion a new State Department Board should be formed in this case. The Senator indicated that evidently the State Department had released news items on several occasions indicating that Service had been cleared.

The Senator went on to give a lengthy discourse on the Jaffe case and the connection of Service with the case. (It will be recalled that this involved the theft of State Department documents.) The Senator stated that Service was considered one of the untouchables in the State Department.

The Senator mentioned that Service was not indicted by the grand jury in the Jaffe case, and one reason the House UnAmerican Activities Committee did not take action against the grand jury was that they considered the documents taken not to be admissible, due to the method in which they were obtained by the FBI. He then quoted the House Committee as saying that they felt a motion by the defense to suppress the admission of the documents would have been sustained due to the manner in which they were obtained by the FBI.

(Memorandum on John Stewart Service has been dictated and will be submitted.)

Special Agent [redacted] of the Washington Field Office called at 5:25 P.M. today to furnish the following additional developments of the hearing conducted by the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, looking into the loyalty of State Department employees.

The afternoon session continued with the prepared statement of Judge Dorothy Kenyon who read from this statement and explained her membership in various alleged front organizations or her lack of memory of such membership. (A copy of this statement has been obtained and will be submitted by the Washington Field Office.)

RECEIVED

The statement was utilized by members of the Subcommittee to question Judge Kenyon and the Agents in attendance stated that the most significant question was: Was Judge Kenyon questioned in the State Department prior to her employment with regard to the affiliations? Judge Kenyon said she had not been so questioned but wished that she had been so questioned.

The hearing adjourned after Judge Kenyon was questioned and it was announced that an Executive Session of the Subcommittee would be held tomorrow, March 15, 1950. No date was set for the next open session of the Subcommittee.

The Washington Field Office will submit a letter detailing that which transpired at the Subcommittee hearing today.

He advised that Mr. Edward P. Morgan had been appointed General Counsel for this Subcommittee. Ed Morgan

The first case dealt with by Senator McCarthy this morning was that of Gustavo Duran, former State Department employee who resigned October 4, 1946. He subsequently went to the United Nations and he is now with the International Relief Organization. Gustavo Duran

In connection with Senator McCarthy's testimony on Duran, he referred to an intelligence agency which contains information that he was not making this report confidential data.

A memorandum is in the process of preparation on Gustavo Duran.

Special Agent [redacted] of the Washington Field Office called at 11:45 a.m. to advise as follows regarding the continuation of Senator McCarthy's testimony before the sub-committee hearing:

Senator McCarthy continued on the case of Gustavo Duran by reading a military report which dealt with the accusation that Duran was one of the leaders in the Communist Youth Organization in Spain. No dates were given. The Senator submitted a picture allegedly of Duran, [redacted]

b7D

It was the contention of the State Department that this Duran was not identical with the Duran employed by the State Department. However, Senator McCarthy mentioned a letter from the Assistant Military Attache of the Dominican Republic, stating that it was the same individual.

The Senator stated that Duran is presently employed with the United Nations; that he was unable to ascertain his exact position, but understood his work was in connection with the screening of displaced persons entering the United States, and he was alleged to have been recommended for the United Nations by a member of the President's Cabinet.

The Senator also mentioned Dr. Harlow Shapley in connection with Duran, but it was not determined what the connection was.

The Senator then took up the case of an unknown individual whom he declined to name, who had resigned from the State Department in 1948 and at present is alleged to be in a sensitive position with CIA. This unnamed individual was accused of being a sexual pervert. In this connection, he recalled Secretary Acheson's statement concerning sexual perverts being a security risk. He mentioned that this individual had been arrested by the local police department on sex crimes.

(It is entirely possible that the unnamed person who went from the State Department to CIA in [redacted] office. It will be recalled that

At 3:30 P.M. this date Special Agent  of the Washington Field Office advised as follows:

Dorothy Kenyon has just completed her testimony before the Subcommittee. She completely and categorically denied all of Senator McCarthy's allegations and denied affiliation with some of the organizations which she specifically named. She commented that she did not know that some of the organizations of which she was a member were subversive, and upon finding that to be a fact, immediately withdrew. She stated that she had been an attorney for one of the organizations.

Kenyon stated she was constantly fighting with her Russian equivalent at the United Nations and cited a Russian news release which was critical of her.

She stated that she is a member of Americans For Democratic Action, the American Civil Liberties Union, and other organizations, that she is a registered Democrat, and that she characterizes herself as an "independent liberal and Rooseveltian Democrat." Her entire testimony was read rapidly from a prepared statement and efforts are being made by the Washington Field Office to obtain a copy thereof.

Following the completion of her testimony, she was greeted by loud and spontaneous applause and it was announced that she would be the last witness today.

PURPOSE

To record the results of a check by Supervisor Roach of the Liaison Section with the State Department concerning Frederick Schuman, who was mentioned by Senator McCarthy on the floor of the Senate today.

BACKGROUND

Since information was received indicating Senator McCarthy had referred to Frederick Schuman, a lecturer and consultant for the State Department, Supervisor Ralph Roach contacted Mr. Amshey of the Department of State to ascertain whether Schuman actually is an employee of that Department. According to Mr. Amshey, Frederick Schuman is not and never has been an employee of the Department of State. The only reference in the State Department to such an individual concerns one Frederick Lewis Schuman, who was "brought in" as a lecturer in 1946. Mr. Amshey stated the Department of State from time to time calls in prominent individuals, such as scientists or teachers, for the purpose of lecturing to State Department officers. Apparently Schuman was one of such individuals who was brought in in 1946. However, according to the records of the State Department he never has been an employee of that Department.

Mr. Roach was unable to obtain any further identifying data regarding Frederick Lewis Schuman.

RECOMMENDATION

None. This is for your information. A check of the indices of the Bureau indicates a main Internal Security file on Frederick Lewis Schuman, which will be reviewed and a summary memorandum prepared.

At 12:45 P.M., Special Agent  of the Washington Field Office called to give further developments in connection with the testimony of Senator McCarthy.

Senator McCarthy has now named Professor Frederick Schuman of Williams College, who is a consultant and lecturer at the State Department. He described Professor Schuman as a member or sponsor of or affiliated with numerous Communist front organizations. Beunghoff

Senator McCarthy then gave a list of 25 names to the Subcommittee. These names were not made public. It was indicated, however, by Senator McCarthy that all had been investigated by the FBI and all were considered by him to be security risks. He stated that all are employed or "controlled" by the State Department.

The Subcommittee has adjourned until 2:30 P.M., when it is expected that Judge Dorothy Kenyon will appear before the Subcommittee.

A separate memorandum is being prepared on Professor Frederick Schuman.

PURPOSE

Pursuant to your request, to furnish you with summary memoranda on Stanley Wilcox, Rowena Sheldon Bellows Rommel, John Stewart Service and Richard Montgomery Service.

BACKGROUND

You will recall that there has been some indication to the effect that during Senator McCarthy's presentation of names before the Senate Committee investigating possible subversive individuals in the State Department, the cases of the following individuals may be used by him:

STANLEY WILCOX - Formerly identified by the Bureau as being identical with "Case No. 63," previously mentioned by Senator McCarthy in the Congressional Record dated February 20, 1950. Attached is a copy of a summary memorandum showing the results of the loyalty investigation conducted on Wilcox in 1948, which summary was furnished the Director as an attachment to my memorandum dated February 24, 1950.

ROWENA SHELDON BELLOWS ROMMEL - Formerly identified as "Case No. 51," referred to by Senator McCarthy in the Congressional Record dated February 20, 1950. Attached is copy of summary memorandum previously prepared for the Director on February 24, 1950, concerning individuals mentioned by Senator McCarthy.

JOHN STEWART SERVICE and

RICHARD MONTGOMERY SERVICE - Regarding information that Senator McCarthy possibly may refer to the case of "Robert W. Service," a search of the Bureau's indices fails to reveal a loyalty case on any Robert W. Service. However, since Senator McCarthy has on previous occasions referred to John Stewart Service, who is a Foreign Service Officer in the State Department, it is believed the Senator may present the case of John Stewart Service or his brother, Richard Montgomery Service. You will recall a summary setting forth the results of the loyalty investigation of John Stewart Service was furnished to the Director with your memorandum dated February 15, 1950, regarding possible disloyal individuals in the State Department. A copy of this memorandum is attached for your information. There is also attached a summary memorandum regarding Richard Montgomery Service, brother of John Stewart Service, on whom we also conducted a full field loyalty investigation in 1949.

GUSTAVO DURAN, aka
Gustavo Duran Martinez

Background:

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Gustavo Duran Martinez was born November 14, 1906, at Barcelona, Spain. In compliance with Spanish custom he dropped his mother's name, Martinez, upon her death and has since been known as Gustavo Duran. According to Duran's own statement in an interview conducted on April 29, 1946, his father's name was Jose Duran Labad, born at El Grade, Province of Huesca. His mother was Pedra Martinez Sirera, born at Huesca, capital of the Province of Huesca. Both his father and mother are presently deceased, his father having died in Madrid in April, 1939, and his mother in 1940. According to Duran, his mother and father were both of Spanish citizenship. Duran's father was an electrical engineer and during the Spanish American War served in the Spanish Army, reaching the rank of Captain. Duran has stated that he has one brother, Ernesto Duran Sirera, aged twenty-six or twenty-eight, who is a civil engineer presently residing in Madrid, Spain. His two sisters Josefina Duran De Lopez and Araceli Duran De Martin both reside in Las Palmas, Canary Islands.

Duran received his elementary education both in Barcelona and Madrid, Spain. He also attended the Commerce School in Madrid, the "Instituto del Cardinal Cisneros" in Madrid and the University of Madrid. He did not receive a degree from any university. From 1927 to 1934, Duran lived in Paris, France, where he furthered his musical education and also worked for the painter, Nestor, who is a relative by marriage. According to Duran, he served as manager and secretary for Nestor while in France.

In 1933 he became an employee of the Spanish section of Paramount Pictures, Paris, France, and at the time the Spanish section moved to Spain, Duran returned to Madrid continuing in that company's employment until the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War. According to employment records and Duran's own statement, on the day of the outbreak of war, Duran joined the Republican Army and thereafter was elevated to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. During 1929, Duran for a period of nine months had complied with the compulsory military law in Spain and was honorably discharged as a noncommissioned officer, sergeant, on November 1, 1928. Duran advised that on July 18, 1936, at the time the Spanish Army revolted, he was activated into the organized militia of the Spanish Republican Army. On approximately November 30, 1939, after the defeat by Franco Forces, Duran's activity with the Republican Army ceased and he escaped as a refugee to England, where he resided until May of 1940. On December 4, 1939, at Totnes, England, he married Bonte Romilly Crompton, an American citizen. He left Liverpool, England, and entered the United States at New York City on May 28, 1940, under the Spanish Immigration quota. Soon after arriving he applied for United States citizenship and on November 3, 1942, he was naturalized in Washington, D. C., as an American citizen. U

Employment records which have been corroborated by Duran's own statements reflect that after leaving Spain, he was employed from August, 1939, to May, 1940, in London, England, by the Film Center; from March, 1941, until October, 1941, he was an employee of the Museum of Modern Art in New York City; and from November 19, 1941, to September, 1942, he was employed in the Music Division of the Pan American Union serving in that capacity also under the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs. In September, 1942, he was transferred to the United States Embassy in Havana, Cuba, as a member of the Pan American Union. In January of 1943, he became an auxiliary foreign service officer at the Embassy in Havana. His employment while at the Embassy continued until May 14, 1945, at which time he went to Buenos Aires, Argentina, as assistant to the Ambassador, Spruille Braden. On September 23, 1945, Duran returned to the United States and was employed as special assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State, Spruille Braden. (Duran statement 77-26928-1, 64-27446-37) U

Results of Investigation:

Castor Lasada, who served as a Major in Duran's brigade, has advised that Duran had a quarrel with the Communist Party, opposed the Commissar system in the Republican Army, and when Duran was serving on the East Coast of Spain, his expulsion from the Communist Party was proposed but not acted upon. In this regard it will be noted that Duran during the interview on April 29, 1946, stated that he could not have been expelled from the Communist Party as he was never a member, and Duran further vaguely recalled having known someone by the name of Lasada during the Spanish Civil War but stated he recalled him only casually. (64-27446-35) U

Through a confidential informant, [redacted] Reports furnished the following information concerning Duran: Name, Gustavo Duran Martinez; born Barcelona, Spain in 1906; son of Jose and Pedra Duran, was pianist and travelled with group to Berlin, Cologne, and Paris returning to Madrid from Paris in the year 1934; rented apartment at Calle Hermosilla 3, on March 15, 1935 and occupied same during Spanish Civil War; previously lived with parents at Calle Santa Engracia, Madrid; began contact with the Communist element in the year 1934, worked cautiously and helped unite the Socialist and Communist youth; was a member of the Communist Party; [redacted] joined Spanish Militia as officer and was Captain, then served as Major in the International Brigade and made Lieutenant Colonel in year 1938. (64-27446-90) b7D C

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Confidential Informant T-1 has advised that Duran organized a small group of artists and musicians to fight Franco in the Spanish Civil War. Duran's unit entered the Fifth Regiment in Madrid, which regiment was totally controlled by Communists and most of the principal Spanish Communists came from this regiment. This informant advised that the Communists had confidence in Duran and made him a Lieutenant Colonel in the Fifth Regiment. The regiment was famous in Madrid and was constantly propagandized by the Communist Party in popular songs, and regimental hymns concerning the regiment mentioned General Lister and Gustavo Duran. This source advised that General Lister was reported to have been the most famous Spanish Communist at the time, and the fact that Duran was the only other person mentioned in the hymns indicated Duran's importance. (64-27446-45)

According to the confidential informant, Duran was probably not a member of the Communist Party, but definitely obeyed their orders in Madrid. This source advised that it is possible that Duran fought against Republican and CNT Forces prior to the Madrid surrender. Duran served as an interpreter in the International Brigade and also commanded the Twentieth Army. Duran was wounded during the battle of Ebro. He subsequently escaped from Spain at Gandia, Valencia. This informant also reported that he had received unsubstantiated information that Duran had engaged in the Communist torturing of Falangists. Also, according to this source, who definitely identified him as being the same Gustavo Duran who worked for the United States Embassy in Buenos Aires, Duran while in Buenos Aires did not mix with his old associates and preferred not to talk to them regarding his activities in Spain.

According to Dr. Alfredo Matilla, presently a professor at the University of Puerto Rico, Duran was a composer-musician and an employee of a film company whom he met in 1935 in Madrid, Spain. Matilla advised that in September, 1936, he heard that Duran was in Extremadura serving under General Escobar, a known Communist professional soldier. Duran at that time was a Major and had also been attached to the staff of General Kleber of the International Brigade due to his knowledge of several languages. Matilla advised that he believed Duran to be a Communist during the Spanish Civil War, but that Duran's relations were bad with the Communist Party which considered Duran unaggressive. Matilla advised that he has no knowledge regarding Duran's actual Party membership. According to Matilla, Duran has stated that the Communists abandoned him to Franco Forces as unimportant. Dr. Matilla also advised that he considers Duran honest and loyal to the United States, a non-Communist and detached from Spain's politics. (64-27446-44)

Enrique Casal Chapi, presently a professor at the University of Puerto Rico, advised that he was a close friend of Gustavo Duran for five years prior to the Spanish Civil War. He further states that he believes Duran to have had Communist theory sympathies at the beginning of the Civil War, but had abandoned these theories by the end of the war and has not resumed them. Enrique Chapi stated that he obtained this impression regarding Duran's sympathies while in conversation with Duran in about 1936. (64-27446-44)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

The Falange newspaper "Arriba" in an article published on April 8, 1949, in Madrid, Spain, gave the following unverified details of the subject's career. Duran first came to Madrid in the late Twenties with the painter, Nestor, and frequented artistic circles as a pianist. He was in a ballet company which traveled throughout Europe, including Berlin, and finally arrived in Paris where Duran stayed until the proclamation of the Spanish Republic in 1931. Allegedly because of Soviet agents in France, Duran returned to Spain to become a leader of the Communist Youth Party under the guise of musical activities, and resided at Calle Santa Engracia, Madrid, Spain. Duran was nicknamed "Porcelain" because of his light complexion. At the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War, Duran seized the Convent on Plaza Chamberi and was sick there with typhus in August, 1936. Duran was one of the chiefs of the hurriedly organized Spanish Militia. Duran also was a personal friend of Republican Generals Lister and Modestva, attaining the rank of Lieutenant Colonel. When the International Brigade was formed on the Madrid Front, Duran was attached to the Russian General Staff with headquarters at Tarancon. (64-27446-52)

Through Confidential Informant T-15 who was a [redacted] [redacted] it was ascertained that Duran was rumored in Army circles to be [redacted] Also in this connection Edward Chasres, a Spanish official in the Foreign Exchange Institute, Madrid, Spain, has advised that Duran was known to him in Madrid before the war [redacted] (64-27446-48)

Duran, according to Confidential Informant T-3, displayed no interest in politics until about 1934, when he became completely Communist in his belief, a member of the Communist Party financially aiding "Mundi Obrero," Communist newspaper. Duran was also prominent with the "Unified Socialist Youth" after its merger with the Communist Youth group. According to the informant, Duran was closely associated during this period with Rafael Alberti, a Spanish poet and Communist, who in 1931 made a trip to Russia meeting Stalin and Gorki and who now lives in Russia. (64-27446-53)

Confidential Informant T-4, who served with Duran during the Spanish Civil War, stated that Duran was very intelligent, a fluent linguist, who served as an aide to the Russian General Kleber and was a member of the Spanish Communist Party, but was more active with military matters. This informant advised that Duran was a brave officer serving with the Sixty-ninth Brigade and afterward with the Army Corps on the Eastern Coast Front. This source also stated that Duran was effeminate in his appearance, but that he knew of no perversion during his military career. This informant also advised that Duran was acquainted with the Communist General Lister, but unlike Lister did not engage in Communist propaganda activity during the Spanish Civil War and that Duran was not openly sympathetic to Russia.

According to this informant, he first met Duran in about December, 1936, in Madrid, at which time Duran was serving as an aide to General Kleber. He again met Duran in April, 1937, in the El Pardo Sector where Duran commanded the Sixty-ninth Brigade, and in July, 1937, Duran and the informant took part in the military operation at "Brunet." In September, 1937, Duran went to the Spanish East Coast to organize a division. According to this informant, it is his belief that Duran was a member of the "Unified Socialist Youth" and the Spanish Communist Party, but that Duran did not hold an official position; however, he enjoyed the protection of the Party. This informant advised that he, the informant, was confined to prison in Madrid in 1940, having been mistaken for Duran and was questioned regarding the execution of the Nationalist prisoners by the Sixty-ninth Brigade. Later the identity of the informant was clarified and he was released. It was ascertained that an individual known as Casimiro Duran Munoz, who was Commander of the Thirty-sixth Brigade, was responsible for the assassinations in the "Tunnel of Death" in October of 1937. Gustavo Duran, the subject of this memorandum, it is noted was Commander of the Sixty-ninth Brigade at that time. (64-27446-53, 46, 47)

Confidential Informant T-6 has advised that he is familiar with Duran's military and political background in Spain. He has stated that Duran was a member of the Communist Party in Spain and served as a Lieutenant Colonel in the Spanish Republican Army. In the opinion of this informant Duran is still a Communist and is subtly influencing the Assistant Secretary of State, Spruille Braden, to the detriment of American Foreign Policy in Latin-American Affairs. (64-27446-36)

Louis Salines Garcia, a Lieutenant Colonel of the Republican Army during the Spanish Civil War, has advised that he himself did not participate in the Madrid surrender disorder and is ignorant of Duran's whereabouts at that time, however, Salines emphatically assured that Duran was a Communist during the Spanish Civil War, worked hand and glove with the Communists and defended the Communist cause throughout the Civil War. This informant has no knowledge of Duran's present political ideology. (64-27446-38)

Francisco Marcos Rana, who is today an open member of the Communist Party of Spain and who fought with Duran during the entire Spanish Civil War and knew him well, advises that at the end of the war Duran commanded the Twenty-First Army Corps at Valencia, Spain, and that he remained at Valencia during the Madrid disturbances. According to this informant, Duran remained in Valencia prior to and during the struggle between the Communists and the Republicans at Madrid and did not participate in that struggle. He also states that Duran was a member of the Communist Party of Spain as were most of the officers of the Sixty-Ninth Army Corps. According to the informant, Duran during the war was a fervent militarist, but subsequent to Duran's departure from Spain he abandoned his Communist ideology and is today sincerely pro-American. The informant further states that he has had no contact with Duran since the end of the Spanish Civil War. (64-27446-43)

Dr. Juan Chabas, who was Juvenile Court Judge in Madrid prior to the Spanish Civil War and who fled from Madrid on November 7, 1936, advised that his son was a Lieutenant Colonel in the Spanish Loyalist Army and fled from Madrid prior to Franco's entering the city. Dr. Chabas stated that his son had been a Communist in Spain and was very close to Gustavo Duran. Duran and Dr. Chabas' son fought together in Spain during the war and according to Dr. Chabas, Duran became a Communist although it is believed by him that Duran was not actually a member of the Communist Party at the beginning of the war, although he had many friends among the Communists and had worked with them. According to Dr. Chabas, it was not until after the war had begun that Duran joined the Communist Party. (64-27446-2page 3)

During the interview conducted with Duran on April 29, 1946 by agents of the FBI, Duran advised that he had never been a member of the Communist Party, nor has he ever been a member of the Unified Socialist Youth. He advised that there were two Socialist groups which merged some time prior to the Civil War with the Communist Party, but he was unfamiliar with this organization. Duran also stated that he has never given aid or assistance of any kind to the Communist newspaper "Mundo Obrero". Concerning his leadership of a youth brigade, Duran stated that he became a Major in August or September of 1936, and at that time was asked to organize a battalion of machine guns on motorcycles. He stated that there was no such thing as a motorized youth brigade and that the battalion which he organized existed mostly on paper. He stated further that the membership of the brigade contained all types of individuals and that to his knowledge the socialist youth did not make up a majority of this group. The battalion or brigade went into battle as an infantry unit at a place called "Navalcarnero." Duran further advised that he was activated in the Spanish Republican Army as a sergeant and received his commission rank by selection of other members of his battalion and that the first rank given him by decree of the Minister of War was that of Lieutenant Colonel. He served, however, for some time as a Major although this rank was not official. Duran also advised that he served on the staff of the Russian General Kleber as liaison officer between Kleber and General Miaja who was his superior officer. He served on General Kleber's staff as an interpreter in November and December, 1936. General Kleber was commander of the Eleventh International Brigade and later became commander of the North Sector of the forces defending Madrid. Concerning General Lister, Duran stated that Lister to his knowledge never attained the rank of General, but was probably a Colonel. He further advised that Lister was not a personal friend and that his brigade during the battle of Casa de Campo in April, 1937, was tactically assigned under General Lister's command. Concerning General Modestva, Duran advised that his connection was exactly the same as with General Lister, purely tactical. General Modestva was commander of the Fifth Army Corps and Duran's brigade was under his tactical command during the battle of Burnet in 1937. Also, in January, 1938, during the second phase of the battle of Teruel, Duran was again under the command of General Modestva. Duran denied that they were personal friends and stated that his relationship was not particularly good during the battle of Teruel and that he, Duran, filed a complaint to the Supreme Command concerning General Modestva's actions. Duran further advised that he commanded the Sixty-ninth Brigade holding the rank of Major. His command of this brigade was from the first days of January, 1937 until the first days of July, 1937. The Brigade which was a mobile unit fought under many commands including the battle of Casa de Campo under General Lister, mentioned above as well as under General Miaja. It also fought under the First Army Corps during the battle of La Gernja. Duran denied that he has ever had any command in the Twenty-second Army Corps, however, during the battle of Teruel he commanded the Forty-seventh Division, which was assigned to the Twenty-second Army Corps commanded by Lieutenant Colonel E. Ibarrola. He was under this command from late February or early March 1938, until the end of the so-called battle of Aragon, at which time Franco reached the sea and cut Spain in half. Duran also stated that he was under General Rojo, General Chief of Staff in the Army of Maneuvers. Also he commanded the Twentieth Army Corps, which was a unit of the Army of Levante, serving in that capacity as a Lieutenant Colonel. At the close of the war, Duran advised that he was in command of the Twentieth Army Corps and received his orders to surrender from General Menendez, who was his commanding General.

According to Confidential Informant T-10, Duran from 1929 to 1932 was active in musical circles in Paris. In 1932 he returned to Spain working toward the organization of a Leftist syndicate. In 1933 he became associated with the Communist Party, in which he was outstanding due to his intelligence and knowledge of languages. This informant indicated that during the Spanish Civil War, Duran was the commander of a combat car unit on the Madrid Front, and that he attempted to administer discipline through cruel methods thereby causing chaos and havoc within his own ranks.

The informant also advised that through the Russian Government, Duran was named as the Chief of the S.I.M. (Servicio Inteligencia Militar), with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, placing his services at the disposal of the Communist Party. Duran, according to the informant, appointed approximately four hundred Communist agents, which action evoked the suspicion of the Popular Front Party to the point that the Minister of Defense, Indalecio Prieto, ordered his dismissal. Duran, according to the informant, fled to Valencia taking with him one hundred thousand pesetas entrusted to him by the Ministry of Defense as an installment for the first month's expenses and also taking with him an official car of the S.I.M. It was also stated that Duran came to have great influence in the "Red Army" because of his friendship with an unidentified Russian person who apparently had considerable influence. At this time also, according to the informant, Duran became friendly with the novelist, Ernest Hemingway, and it was pointed out that Duran was referred to by Hemingway in his book "For Whom the Bell Tolls." On fleeing Spain, Duran settled in London where he "exploited the notoriety" which Hemingway had given him and married an influential American citizen, who assisted him in becoming a naturalized American citizen.

According to this informant, Duran was identified as having had command as Lieutenant Colonel of the forty-seven divisions of the Army of Maneuvers, the Twentieth Army Corps and the Twenty-second Levantine Army Corps. This informant also distinguished the Gustavo Duran to which the above information referred from Casimiro Duran Munoz, who was also a Lieutenant Colonel in the Spanish Republican Army and who was organizer of the assassinations committed in the so-called "Tunnel of Death."

According to Confidential Informant T-11, Gustavo Duran from 1929 to 1932 studied in Paris in the company of Leftist writers, musicians and painters and was the protege of the famous French painter, Nestor. Duran returned to Spain in 1932 joining the Communist Party in 1933 and rendered the Party very valuable services as liaison man with Communists abroad.

Confidential Informant T-12, who is close to Communist circles in Spain and also close to individuals who knew Duran prior to the Spanish Civil War, has advised that Gustavo Duran is the son of a Spanish Army officer and a musical and theatrical student. He was known politically in Madrid as a fervent Communist. When the Spanish Civil War broke out Duran voluntarily joined the Communist militia and subsequently was assigned under the command of Colonel Mangada on the Madrid Front. Duran, according to this source, spent the best part of the war on this front ascending, with the aid and support of the Communist Party in the military, until he reached the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, the highest grade in the Spanish Republican Army given to non-professional officers. Duran later served as a Chief of the Army Corps on the Valencia Front. This source advised that close friends who served under him and with him cited him as an intelligent leader who always worked for political rather than military ends. According to this source, persons who knew Duran in Spain are unanimous in their opinion that he is the product of the Communist School, who follows the code "The end justifies the means" and these persons believe that Duran can adapt himself to new situations which may be ultimately beneficial to the political beliefs which he honors. Accordingly, this informant advised that despite Duran's pretense of conforming with the ideals of American democracy he is merely using these tactics for his own ends. Also it has been reported that the Communists have boasted that they had within the American Embassy in Cuba, an entirely trustworthy man who would act as a source of information for them and according to this source the opinion had been advanced that Gustavo Duran was possibly the man to whom they referred.

This informant also advised that the Gustavo Duran who was former Assistant in the American Embassy in Havana was identical with the individual mentioned in the above information.

Mr. Woodruff Wallner, State Department, on April 15, 1946, advised that he was the former American Vice Consul in Valencia, Spain, for a total of eight months, arriving in Valencia in the Summer of 1938. At the time of his arrival Gustavo Duran was a Lieutenant Colonel in the Spanish Republican Army, commanding the Republican Unit which was defending the area surrounding Valencia. This front was an inactive front and the Spanish Republican Unit headed by Duran was engaged in defensive tactics only. Mr. Wallner advised that he met Duran through the usual course of business, inasmuch as Duran was friendly with Colonel Stephen Fuqua, American Military Attache (presently deceased). Duran was described by Mr. Wallner as being a "nice chap" who spoke good English and was regarded as a friendly element among the Spanish Republican sources. There was no indication at that time that Gustavo Duran was a Communist or a radical, however, Mr. Wallner pointed out that Duran could have been an active Communist at the time without the matter coming to his knowledge. On or about March 24, 1939, Gustavo Duran approached Mr. Wallner in the American Consulate stating that word had come from Madrid to surrender to the Franco Army and that further communications between Valencia and Madrid had been disrupted. Duran was seeking asylum inasmuch as Franco troops were beginning to penetrate the city occupying the same under the terms of surrender. Mr. Wallner stated that at this time a state of seige existed in Valencia and Duran was excited and emotionally upset and pled for asylum in the American Consulate in order to escape death at the hands of the Franco Army. Mr. Wallner related that he informed Duran that an American Consul could not afford asylum to a foreigner and suggested to Duran that he hide somewhere in Valencia until some plan could be worked out to assist him. Wallner instructed Duran to send a note by a woman or a small boy giving his hideout location. On the following day Mr. Wallner had luncheon with a British Vice Consul, who was identified as Alexander Ballentine. Ballentine was friendly with Duran and had used Duran as an informant and readily agreed to assist Duran in escaping. Mr. Wallner stated that late in March, the exact date unknown, he accompanied Alexander Ballentine in a British Embassy car to the house in Valencia where Duran was hiding out. Duran was smuggled into the car dressed in civilian clothes and did not appear to be a Spanish National. Mr. Wallner further related that according to Ballentine's story Duran was driven to the waterfront and placed aboard a launch in the harbor which carried Duran safely to a British destroyer anchored off shore. Ballentine is alleged to have introduced Duran to the port authorities as a French diplomat and hurried Duran by the port authorities in such a manner that he was not recognized by the [redacted] (64-27446-59)

Juan Jose Manso, a Spanish Communist and Deputy to the last session of the Cortes in Mexico City, has advised that he, Manso, investigated Duran's activities in Cuba and sent reports to the Spanish Communist Party in France advising them of Duran's change of political affiliations and employment by the American Government. Manso stated that Angel Custodio, a Spanish Communist Party member employed by the newspaper "Hoy" in Havana, Cuba, was severely reprimanded by Spanish Communist Party leaders for attending social affairs with Spruille Braden and Duran. The reprimand was based on Duran being considered a traitor to the Spanish Communist Party. (64-27446-43)

In September, 1945, while Duran was serving in Argentina, Duran's wife is known to have resided in Washington, D. C., at the home of Dr. Ludwig Witold Rajchman, Polish representative to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. Dr. Rajchman is a known contact of the Soviet Embassy and is reported by sources outside the Bureau as being a suspected agent of the NKVD.

According to Duran, in statements made during the interview of April 29, 1946, upon being advised that he would return to the United States from Buenos Aires, Argentina, Duran requested his wife to come to Washington, D. C., to obtain a place for the family to reside. Mrs. Duran contacted real estate agents and through a friend, Rosalind Walling, with whom she had gone to school, Mrs. Duran was told of a room at the home of a family whom Mr. Walling had known in connection with the League of Nations in Geneva, Switzerland. Mrs. Duran took the room and prior to that time had never met Dr. or Mrs. Rajchman but was introduced to them upon her arrival. The Durans remained at that place for approximately one month, and a few days after Duran's arrival, he advised that his wife introduced him to Mrs. Rajchman, and a few days later through Mr. and Mrs. Walling he was introduced to Dr. Rajchman. According to Duran, at that time Rajchman made neither a favorable nor unfavorable impression upon Duran. Subsequent to that time Dr. Rajchman made a trip to Poland and Duran did not see him until approximately November of 1945. At that time Mrs. Rajchman telephoned the Durans, stating that she desired to have them attend a dinner at her home and the French Ambassador would also be in attendance. During the course of the evening a political discussion was held at which time Dr. Rajchman, according to Duran, made "fantastic conversation" to the effect that it was the purpose of the United States to wipe Russia completely off the map. Duran stated that he did not agree with Dr. Rajchman's statements and further resented Rajchman making these statements in the presence of the French Ambassador. Therefore, he left the home at 10:00 on that evening and neither he nor his wife have ever seen Dr. and Mrs. Rajchman again.

u

Confidential Informant T-14, who is considered reliable, has advised that according to the information in that informant's possession, Mr. Duran informed other individuals who contacted her while living at the Rajchman home that she and Gustavo Duran were staying "with friends" until they could find a place to live. Also according to this informant, Mr. and Mrs. Duran had complete freedom of the Rajchman house and apparently shared many friends with the Rajchman family. It is noted further that this informant has advised that Mrs. Duran first lived at the Rajchman home on approximately September 28, 1945, and according to the informant, remained at the Rajchman residence until the first week of November, 1945; also, this informant has advised that as late as December 12, 1945, the Durans and Rajchmans are known to have been in contact and on that particular date Mrs. Duran offered to help Mrs. Rajchman secure homes for Polish refugees. Also, the informant advised that plans were made on that date for Mrs. Rajchman to give a Christmas Party for Mrs. Duran's daughter. (64-27446-59)

It had previously been reported that Duran had made the statement regarding his residence at the Rajchman home, that his wife had secured the room through a newspaper ad appearing in the Washington papers. It is noted in this regard that an examination of the Washington Post, Washington Times-Herald, and the Washington Evening Star failed to reflect any classified advertisements for a room at the Rajchman home immediately prior to the date at which time Mrs. Duran began her residence at that address. (64-27446-59)

As previously mentioned, Gustavo Duran married Bonte Romilly Crompton in England on December 4, 1939. Duran's wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Henry Crompton of Rye, New York, and Wilton, New Hampshire. It is reported that the notation, "Bonte Crompton, Wilton, N.H.", was found among the papers of one Leon W. Davis of Detroit, Michigan, at the time of his arrest on February 6, 1940, in connection with charges of violation of United States laws based on enlistments in the Spanish Loyalist Army of Spain. Davis stated that Bone Crompton was a tourist whom he had met during his travels in France. During the interview on April 29, 1946, Duran stated that to his knowledge his wife had never been associated with the Communist Party or any organization which embraced its principles.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Another Government agency advised on October 18, 1948 that a reliable source in France informed that Duran "has been in the pay of the Communists for the last fourteen or fifteen years". This source further advised that Duran was born in Spain and commanded a Republican Division during the Civil War and associates with highly important officials of the U. S. Government in Washington. Further that during 1932 and 1933 Duran spent some time in the USSR where he was given thorough training in Communism. Despite the fact that Duran has denounced Communism, the source believes that he retains his enthusiasm for the Party. (64-27446-146)

Confidential Informant New York City T-1, a reliable informant, advised in June, 1949 that Gustavo Duran was employed as Chief of the Section of Cultural Activities in the Department of Social Affairs, United Nations, Lake Success, New York, and according to information available has been with that organization since the latter part of 1946. (62-27446-114,151)

On September 20, 1948, Gregory G. Bern, author of the book entitled "Behind the Red Mask," advised the Los Angeles Office of the FBI, that Gustavo Duran was a member of the Soviet Secret Police during the Spanish Civil War. (62-81580-13)

In February, 1949, Herbert Solow, a member of the Editorial Staff of "Fortune" Magazine, New York City, was interviewed in connection with the case entitled "Jay David Whittaker Chambers, aka: Alger Hiss, aka et al, Perjury, Espionage - R, Internal Security - R". During the interview Solow advised that he had heard that Gustavo Duran was attached to the State Department and was believed sympathetic toward Communism. (74-1333-2995 p 15)

By letter dated March 28, 1947, another government agency advised that "One of the Communists personalities high up in this movement (International Brigade) is Gustavo Duran, a former State Department official." (100-7060-370)

In the November, 1949 issue of the "Partisan Republican" edited by the Political Education Committee of the Partisan Republicans of California, Los Angeles, California, there appears the following under the title "The Farcical Loyalty Program": "Gustavo Duran, was a member of the NKVD, the Soviet secret police in Spain during the Civil War in 1936. He came to the United States and, being a Communist, easily obtained a high position in the State Department." (62-90289-5)

By letter dated May 3, 1946, a comprehensive Summary of information concerning Gustavo Duran was transmitted to Mr. Spruille Braden, Assistant Secretary of State, who had requested this information. (Serial 82 of 64-27446)

PURPOSE

Pursuant to your request, there is attached hereto a summary memorandum on Gustavo Duran, aka Gustavo Duran Martinez. U

BACKGROUND

You will recall that you requested a summary memorandum on Gustavo Duran because it appeared that Senator McCarthy would mention Duran in his forthcoming testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee. U

It will be noted that the Bureau conducted an investigation concerning Duran under the caption "Internal Security, Hatch Act" as a result of a request made on April 10, 1946, by Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden and on May 3, 1946, a comprehensive summary of information developed during the investigation of Duran was furnished to Mr. Braden. Copies of reports prepared were not sent to the State Department, since the investigation although carried under the caption "Internal Security - Hatch Act" was a special inquiry type of investigation. You will recall that you interviewed Duran during this investigation at which time he was questioned concerning his previous activities. Subsequent thereto it was determined on October 4, 1946, that Duran had resigned from the State Department to accept a position with the United Nations in New York and as of June, 1949, Duran was employed as Chief of the Section of Cultural Activities in the Department of Social Affairs, United Nations, Lake Success, New York. Subsequent to the special inquiry conducted in 1946, the Bureau has not conducted an active investigation concerning Duran, however, material has been received from time to time under the caption "Internal Security - R". By report dated June 20, 1949, the New York office advised of Duran's connection with the United Nations and the case has been in a closed status since that date. The information contained in the Bureau's files is voluminous and in order to give you the benefit of pertinent information contained therein it was necessary to prepare a lengthy summary memorandum. U

It will be noted that a Loyalty investigation was not conducted concerning Duran, since he left the State Department, prior to the issuance of Executive Order 9835 which instituted the Loyalty Program and his position with the United Nations does not come within the purview of the Order. U

WILLIAM TREADWELL STONE

Allegation by Senator McCarthy

"Case No. 46 is the case of a man who holds a high position in the State Department. He had been affiliated with the magazine Amerasia from May 1937 to November 1941. This magazine consistently followed the Communist Party line. It was under the direction of Philip Jaffe and William Vanderbilt Field. Field has been a leading Communist and was one of the heads of the American Peace Mobilization, which the President and the Secretary of State publicly labeled as a tool of communism. Jaffe, as Senators will recall, was convicted and fined in connection with John Service incident. It will be recalled that the FBI picked up Service for having delivered secret State Department documents to Amerasia. The State Department files show that this individual has been working very closely with these two men. On March 22, 1946, the State Department's own security agency recommended as follows:

"It is recommended that action be instituted to terminate subject's service with the State Department. It is suggested to achieve this purpose that an appropriate officer of the Department should inform him that his continued presence in the Department is embarrassing to the Department and that he be given an opportunity to resign. If he should not resign voluntarily, action should be instituted under Civil Service Rule No. 12, to terminate his services with the Department.

"The Department, however, took no action upon this recommendation.

"After that recommendation, the files show that this individual requested a fellow traveler to seek a position with the Board of Economic Warfare. The file further shows that this individual has been visited on several occasions by an alien fellow traveler. He has also recommended two former employees of the Amerasia Editorial Board to positions with the State Department. In other words, Mr. President, the usual tactics of getting into an important position and then bringing in fellow Communists.

"A report dated August 18, 1947, recorded an interview with a former member of the Editorial Board of Amerasia who labeled this individual as 'far to the left—awfully close to a fellow traveler.' This individual was a subscriber to the Daily Worker. The file names a Communist Party member who has twice worked for this individual. The Biographical Register of the State Department shows him to be still in a position of importance there."

Possible Identification

A review of the Bureau's files indicates that this individual is apparently identical with William Treadwell Stone, who, as of May 27, 1949, was employed as Director of the Office of Information and Educational Exchange, Department of State.

The Bureau's records reflect that a Loyalty of Government Employees investigation together with a Voice of America investigation was conducted concerning William Treadwell Stone which developed the following information.

From 1924 to 1941 Stone was connected with Foreign Policy Association, Inc., 22 East 38th Street, New York City. In January, 1927, the Foreign Policy Association was reported to have been sponsored in its inception by the American Civil Liberties Union and at that time favored United States recognition of the USSR. In June, 1927 the Director of Eastern European Affairs, Department of State, advised that the Foreign Policy Association was considered to be pro-Soviet in its views and propaganda. (62-80315-5 pg 2)

In October, 1945 a reliable informant advised that Ruth S. Rifkin, who had been employed as a secretary by Stone and others at the Foreign Policy Association, had transferred her membership in the Communist Party from the Peter Stuyvesant Club, New York City, to the undercover "Government Group" in Washington, D. C. Ruth Rifkin secured employment with the Foreign Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, Department of State, May, 1943 and was transferred to the Foreign Economic Administration when this administration was established. William Treadwell Stone was at this time employed as Assistant Director of the Foreign Economic Administration. Ruth Rifkin is presently employed by the National Lawyers Guild in Washington, D. C. (62-80315-4 pg 4; 121-10973-14 pg 3)

In February, 1942 William Treadwell Stone was listed as a reference on an application filed with the Foreign Economic Administration, Department of State, by Just Lunning. Lunning was reliably reported to have been a known contact of numerous subjects in the Gregory Case and was later discharged from a responsible position at the Department of State. (62-80315-3)

In 1937 Stone became a member of the original Editorial Board of "Anerasia" of which magazine Frederick Vanderbilt Field was Chairman and Philip Jacob Jaffe, Editor. In 1946 Jaffe was indicted and fined for the possession of secret State Department documents which had been delivered to him by John Service, an employee of the Department of State. In 1941

Frederick Vanderbilt Field was head of the American Peace Mobilization and at the present time, according to reliable informants, is a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Communist Party, USA, and a writer for the Daily Worker. (121-10973-14 page 6; 62-80315-8) U

November 19, 1939, while Stone was employed as the Washington Correspondent of the Foreign Policy Association, he was visited by Adam Von Trott Zu Zolz, a German alien who was suspected of engaging in German espionage and Communist activity. (121-10973-14 page 2) U

During an interview with Clinton Hartley Grattan, conducted by special agents of the Bureau in connection with a Hatch Act investigation, Grattan advised that he had been asked by Stone to take a position under him with the Board of Economic Warfare, Department of State. The records of the HCUA reflected that Grattan had written an article for "Fight" magazine, the official publication of the American League for Peace and Democracy, and was a contributor to and an advisory editor of the magazine "Champion," the official organ of the Young Communist League. Stone, in a subsequent interview, stated that he considered Grattan a "liberal writer" but definitely not a "radical." (121-10973-14 page 7) U

An informant of known reliability advised in December, 1945, that Stone was a friend of Maurice Halperin. This informant reported that Halperin was known to have been in contact with several persons suspected of engaging in Soviet espionage activities in the late 1930's and early 1940's in Washington, D. C., and New York City. (121-10973-14 page 2) U

A reliable informant advised that William T. Stone, Room 1359, National Press Building, Washington, D. C., was a subscriber to the Daily Worker in 1941. According to the Biograph Encyclopedia of the World, Stone was Director of the Washington Bureau, Foreign Policy Association, Inc., from 1933 to 1941. The Washington offices of the Foreign Policy Association are located in the National Press Building. (100-3-60-75-163) U

Copies of Loyalty of Government Employees reports concerning Stone were transmitted to the Civil Service Commission on July 30, 1948, and to the Office of Special Investigations, Department of the Air Force on April 7, 1949. U

The Bureau file reflects that as of May 27, 1949, Stone was still employed as Director, Office of Information and Educational Exchange, Department of State, Washington, D. C. U

March 14, 1950

HALDORE EUGENE HANSON
Executive Assistant to Assistant Secretary for Public and Cultural Relations
U. S. Department of State

Background

Haldore Eugene Hanson was born on April 22, 1912, at Virginia, Minnesota. From 1934 through 1937 Hanson served as a teacher of English at the YMCA Commercial College, Peiping, and Central China College, Wuchang, both in China. During 1936 through 1937 he was Hankow Correspondent for the Associated Press, the North China Herald, and editorial writer for the Hankow Herald. From 1937 through 1939 Hanson was a correspondent for the Associated Press at Shanghai, China, and was assigned to the Japanese troops, the Chinese Guerrilla Forces and with the Chinese Central Government Forces. The employee was engaged in writing the book "Humane Endeavor" from February to September, 1939. He was again employed by the Associated Press in Chicago, Illinois, from September, 1939 to 1942. In February, 1942 he started employment with the Department of State, Washington, D. C., and from September, 1947 to the present (May, 1948) he has been Acting Chief, Office of Information and Education Exchange, Far Eastern Division, Department of State.

Basis for Investigation

The Congressional Record of May 14, 1947, reveals that on that date Congressman Fred E. Busbey, U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., made a speech dealing with the activities and composition of the Cultural and Information Division of the U. S. State Department. He stated the activities of this division were "conducted by a group of pro-Communist fellow-travelers and muddleheads; they filled the ether and tons of paper with a combination of material favorable to the Soviet Union and the Communists, or just plain twaddle." Among the personnel conducting the program of this division he mentioned Haldore E. Hanson, Assistant Secretary of the Office of Information and Culture. According to Congressman Busbey, the employee by his writings indicated that he enjoyed the complete confidence of the Chinese Communists when he was in China, had been given official documents by the Chinese Communists and safe conduct through their lines. In this same speech Hanson was identified with the Central Hopei Mass Movement which was stated to be a part of the official Communist plan. Congressman Busbey further alleged that Hanson enthusiastically related in his writings the aims and achievements of the Chinese Communists.

Results of Investigation

The following is a summary of the disloyal information developed as a result of the investigation conducted by this Bureau concerning the captioned individual under the provisions of Executive Order 9835:

A copy of the aforementioned speech by Congressman Fred E. Busbey as contained in the Congressional Record of May 14, 1947, commencing on page 5433, was enclosed as an exhibit in furnishing the results of the loyalty investigation to the Civil Service Commission. Also enclosed as exhibits were photostatic copies of several magazine articles written by the employee, some of which were referred to in the speech by Congressman Busbey. These articles were identified as follows:

"Smuggler, Soldier and Diplomat," Review of Reviews, February, 1937, Page 67

"China's 50-50 Chance," The Nation, Page 400, April 8, 1939

"The Situation in Central Hopei," The China Weekly Review, May 7, 1938

"China Has an Army," Review of Reviews, July, 1937, Page 54

Representative Fred E. Busbey, U. S. House of Representatives, was interviewed and he stated that he was not personally acquainted with the activities of the employee. He stated that his knowledge of Hanson was obtained from research which had been included in a speech which he made on the floor of the House of Representatives and which is contained in the Congressional Record referred to above. Representative Busbey could furnish no further information regarding the loyalty of the employee.

The "Chicago Daily News" for June 11, 1947 contains a by-line of Wallace R. Deuell of the "Daily News" Foreign Service. This by-line states in part:

"Here are Busbey's (Congressman Fred E. Busbey, 3rd Illinois Congressional District) statements about Hanson, and Benton's (Assistant Secretary of State William Benton) replies as given in the Assistant Secretary's memorandum:

"Busbey 'A book by Hanson entitled Humane Endeavor shows that Hanson travelled with the Chinese Communist Armies, was given safe conduct through their lines, travelled in the Commander's motor-car, and received Chinese Communist documents.'

"This shows that Hanson enjoyed the complete confidence of the Chinese Communists.

"Reply - 'Mr. Busbey does not state that Mr. Hanson's book is a description of the Japanese invasion of China in 1937-38, that Mr. Hanson was writing as a War Correspondent of the Associated Press, that he carried Press Credentials from both the American Embassy and the Chinese National Government, and that the Associated Press assigned him to cover the North China front, which was defended by the Communist Armies.

"Mr. Hansen's despatches, as well as his book, pointed out that the Chinese Communists were still engaged in proselytising, despite the Japanese invasion.

"Mr. Kent Cooper, General Manager of the Associated Press, sent Mr. Hanson his personal commendation on these reports from the Communist front, and Mr. Hanson's reports were reprinted at length in both 'Time' magazine and 'Reader's Digest'."

The Washington Times Herald of May 22, 1947 carried an editorial on page 14 entitled, "Voice of What?" This article reads in part: "Conducted by a group of pro-Communist fellow-travelers and muddleheads, they fill the ether with tons of material favorable to the Soviet Union and the Communists, or just plain twaddle. The quotation is from a recent speech in the House by Representative Fred E. Busbey (R) of Illinois about the 'Voice of America'." This article further reads in part: "Benton's three top assistants in charge of the 'Voice of America' broadcasts have been Messrs. William T. Stone, Haldore E. Hanson, and Charles H. Thomson.

"Stone is an ex-member of the Editorial Board of 'Amerasia' magazine, which has printed large amounts of pro-Russian copy. Hanson was for long a soldier of fortune in China, where his best friends and confidants were Chinese Communists. He was shifted hurriedly to another State Department niche when the Congressional heat was turned on the 'Voice'. Thomson has had considerable to do with production of pro-Communist movies, and is on record with some loud praises of the Communists' activities in the Spanish Civil War."

Mention was made in Congressman Busbey's speech that Hanson joined a group in Peiping, China, headed by Edgar Snow and his wife, who were organizing a new political magazine. Reliable informants of the FBI have related that Edgar Snow and his wife are Communist Party sympathizers, are acquainted with prominent Communists, and have written pro-Communist literature.

A memorandum from the Director's Office dated March 3, 1948 states that Bob Lee advised that a very responsible State Department employee told him that he had heard from Mrs. Bouchard, who is Legal Representative for the AFL on the Hill, that she had seen at the AFL Headquarters a photostatic copy of Hanson's membership card in the Communist Party. Further, a memorandum dated March 9, 1948 from Mr. W. R. Glavin of this Bureau relates that while discussing other matters with Congressman Karl Stefan he mentioned that Sam Davenport had advised him that an individual by the name of Hanson, presently employed in the State Department, is to go to China soon, may be Communistically inclined and that Sam Davenport supposedly had seen or has in his possession a photostatic copy of a Communist Party membership card of Hanson's.

In the course of the loyalty investigation Congressman Karl Stefan was interviewed, at which time he stated that the foregoing information had been furnished to him by Sam Davenport, who, in turn, stated that he got this information from William C. Bourne of the State Department. In turn, when Bourne was interviewed he stated that Muna Lee of the State Department had given him this information and she, in turn, upon interview, stated that the information emanated from Selma Borchardt. The latter, upon interview, stated that she had never seen such a card nor did she know of anyone who had seen such evidence of membership in the Communist Party. The investigative reports do not mention the above allegation specifically since, as noted above, the allegation was traced to its original source [redacted] and found to be without basis. However, interviews were reported with Samuel R. Davenport, William C. Bourne, Muna C. Lee and Selma M. Borchardt. Davenport, Bourne and Miss Lee indicated generally that they had no information reflecting on Hanson's loyalty. Miss Selma M. Borchardt, Vice-President and Legislative Representative, American Federation of Teachers, American Federation of Labor, advised that she was not personally acquainted with the employee but knew him only by his writings, all of which she had read. She stated that she did not believe Hanson to be a member of the Communist Party, but rather one who is rather "ignorant of the real motives of Communism." She explained this by referring to a statement of Hanson in one of his writings to the effect that, "Everything good in China has been brought about by the Communists." Miss Borchardt stated that she considered this statement unintelligent. She advised that judging from his writings Hanson is unaware of the moral and political destructiveness of the Communists and because of this she stated he is to be considered as a "security risk." Miss Borchardt added that she did not question the loyalty of the employee but did question his fitness for the job which he holds.

Raymond D. Chadwick, Dean of the Duluth Junior College, advised that Hanson had been an editorial writer for the school paper as well as an associate editor while he attended the Duluth Junior College from September, 1930 until June, 1931. Dean Chadwick made available a letter that Hanson had written to Maude Young, the debate teacher at Duluth Junior College, dated June 12, 1936 from which the following is quoted: "Last night I was over at a Jewish friend's house, discussing Carl Marx; this fellow is a former stock broker in New York, and Peiping's number one communist intellectual." A photostatic copy of this letter was furnished to the Civil Service Commission in transmitting the results of this investigation.

[redacted] informed that she recalled Hanson as a student at the Duluth Junior College and stated that he had corresponded with her after he had settled down in China. She identified the letter previously referred to and said that Hanson was the type of person who would go to almost any end to broaden his thinking and for that reason associated with men of "every political belief" to obtain their viewpoints. With reference to the letter in question, she stated that Hanson's contact with Peiping's number one communist intellectual was indicative of his endeavor to broaden his education and obtain experience in new political thought.

Mr. Benjamin Stolberg, writer and lecturer, Chelsea Hotel, New York City, furnished information on March 1, 1948 that Haldore E. Hanson, an employee of the State Department in the Division of Cultural Relations, had worked actively with the Chinese Communists prior to joining the State Department in 1942. Stolberg also reported that Hanson had contributed to "Amerasia" and to "Pacific Affairs." When reinterviewed Stolberg stated that he had obtained his information on Hanson during the course of gathering material for his writings. He added that his information was obtained from research and from persons close to the State Department who were acquainted with Communist activities. He made an extensive search of his files but was unable to locate any notes or papers relating to the employee. Mr. Stolberg recalled that Hanson had been actively associated with the Chinese Communists during his years in China prior to joining the State Department and also that Hanson had written articles for "Amerasia" and "Pacific Affairs." However, he was unable to recall the exact source of his information.

[redacted] New York City, stated that he was not personally acquainted with Haldore Hanson but had noted that Hanson had written articles for "Amerasia" and "Pacific Affairs." [redacted] referred to his notes and remarked that he had a reference to an article written by Haldore Hanson which appeared in the September, 1938 issue of "Pacific Affairs." [redacted] stated that in his opinion the Chinese Communists would not have allowed a reporter to travel behind their lines unless he was a Communist or pro-Communist.

"Amerasia" was cited in a report of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, House of Representatives, page 1446, in a list of Communist Party and Party line organizations.

"Pacific Affairs" is published by the Institute of Pacific Relations. The Institute of Pacific Relations was referred to as "a notorious Communist front" in an article by David Sentner in the "New York Journal American" on May 8, 1947.

Mr. Louis Budenz, former Managing Editor of the "Daily Worker," East Coast Communist daily newspaper, stated, "The Communist Party did have very great influence in the Institute of Pacific Relations and at times controlled its policy."

Various articles by Haldore Hanson were published in "Pacific Affairs" and "Amerasia," copies of which were furnished to the Civil Service Commission in transmitting the results of the loyalty investigation. These articles are set forth as follows:

"The People Behind the Chinese Guerrillas" published in "Pacific Affairs" September, 1938, page 285. This article is an analysis of the Communist led Chinese Guerrilla Forces and the strategy used by them to enlist the support of the people

In "Pacific Affairs," June, 1939, pages 184 and 185, Hanson comments on an article by R. Ernest Dupuy, "The Nature of Guerrilla Warfare"

U

"Firebrands and Chinese Politics" is published in "Amerasia," April, 1939, pages 78 - 82

"Japanese Balance Sheet in China" is published in "Amerasia," June, 1939, page 158

Mr. William Benton, Chairman of the Board, Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc., 342 Madison Avenue, New York City, advised that when he replaced Archibald MacLeish as head of the Cultural Division of the U. S. State Department, Haldore Hanson was assigned as one of his two assistants. Mr. Benton stated that he soon learned that Hanson's name was on various "government Communist lists" and he decided to look into the matter. Mr. Benton stated that he read Hanson's file in the State Department and decided that "it was full of suspicion" without any conclusive evidence that Hanson was a Communist. Mr. Benton stated that he then called Hanson in for questioning and Hanson denied being a Communist. Mr. Benton stated that he then asked Hanson to relate any incidents in his life that he could think of which might cause people to think him to be a Communist. Mr. Benton stated that Hanson told him that he could only think of two things: (1) That he had been with the Associated Press in China and had covered the activities of the Chinese Communists. He later had written a book and several articles about China which had been published in "Amerasia;" and (2) He had spent a week end at the home of a wealthy man who was a financial supporter of "Amerasia." Mr. Benton was unable to recall the name of the man that Hanson had mentioned but said that Hanson stated that he received the week end invitation as a result of submitting articles to the "Amerasia" office after his return from China. Mr. Benton stated that Hanson was his assistant for about 18 months and "during that time I never saw one shred of evidence to indicate that he is a Communist or even pro-Communist. You can say for me that I never heard him say anything that would cause me to question his loyalty. Of course, I do not know what he might have been doing after working hours." Mr. John Howe, Assistant to Mr. Benton, Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc., 342 Madison Avenue, New York City, stated that he had been an assistant to Mr. Benton while in the State Department and had worked with Haldore Hanson for two years. Mr. Howe stated: "I saw Hanson almost every day for two years and during that time I never heard him say one disloyal word. You can say for me that I had no cause to question Hanson's loyalty."

Miss Eloise ReQua, Director, Library of International Relations, 84 East Randolph, Chicago, Illinois, was listed by the employee as a character reference in 1942. Upon interview Miss ReQua advised that she had been well acquainted with Haldore Hanson and his wife, Bernice, for the past 10 or 12 years, stating that the employee first came to her attention due to literary contributions he had made to the publication "Institute of Pacific Relations" which she recalled were factual accounts of his experiences in China during the Japanese invasion of Manchuria and North China. Miss ReQua did not have copies of this material and stated that the Institute was no longer in existence. She added that on Hanson's return to the United States in 1939 he was invited by her to speak at off-the-record round-table discussions held at the Library of International Relations, but she stated there was nothing in the content of these talks which would reflect on his loyalty as an American citizen. [redacted] advised that she regarded Hanson and his wife as loyal Americans and that nothing to the contrary had ever come to her attention.

Confidential Informant New York T-1 in October, 1945 reported that in the first annual report of the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship Eloise ReQua was among those listed as signing a letter of that organization issued by its Initiating Committee. Confidential Informant [redacted] who at times has furnished unreliable information, reported that [redacted] was listed as a sponsor of the Chicago Society for American-Soviet Relations in a letter explaining that organization's becoming affiliated with the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship and advising that the Chicago Society for American-Soviet Relations was changing its name to Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship. This same informant supplied a letter dated October 1, 1943, under the letterhead of the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship, which letter listed [redacted] among the organization's sponsors. The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship was listed by the Attorney General on November 24, 1947, as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835. b7D

Quincy Wright, Professor of International Law, University of Chicago, residing at 5744 South Blackstone Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, advised that he was acquainted with Haldore Hanson. He stated he had visited with Hanson in Washington on several occasions during the war. He described Hanson as a loyal American citizen. Confidential Informant New York T-1 in October, 1945, reported that Quincy Wright was among those listed as signing a letter issued by the Initiating Committee of the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship and so listed in the first annual report of that council.

The files of Washington T-1 (Security Division, Department of State) contained a personal history statement by Hanson dated February 4, 1942. One of the references mentioned on this form is Owen Lattimore, Johns Hopkins University, Editor and Envoy. Reliable informants have advised that Owen Lattimore is an associate of pro-Soviet and pro-Communist sympathizers as well as known Communist Party members. He is reported to have appeared on a program sponsored by the American Peace Mobilization and in 1941 to have been a sponsor of a meeting of the Washington Committee to aid China. He is also reported to have been a member of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties.

It is to be noted that after the invasion of Russia by Germany in 1941, the American Peace Mobilization became known as American People's Mobilization. The American Peace Mobilization has been declared by the Attorney General as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835. The National Federation for Constitutional Liberties has also been declared by the Attorney General as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835. The Washington Committee for Aid to China has been declared by the House Un-American Activities Committee in its report of March 29, 1944, as a Communist front. U

Washington T-2, stated that the Washington Committee for Aid to China was completely controlled by the Communist Party.

Washington T-3 stated that the Washington Committee for Aid to China was infiltrated by and finally controlled by the Communist Party.

Copies of the book "Humane Endeavor" written by the employee were not transmitted to the Civil Service Commission as exhibits to the loyalty reports but the Civil Service Commission was advised in the letter transmitting the reports that a copy of this book was available at the Library of Congress.

The results of the investigation conducted by this Bureau concerning the employee under the provisions of Executive Order 9835 were transmitted to the Civil Service Commission on June 24, 1948. By letter dated September 30, 1948 the Chairman, Loyalty Review Board, U. S. Civil Service Commission, advised that the employee was being "retained" in his position.

CHARLES ALEXANDER THOMSON
Director
Office of the Assistant for Public and Cultural Relations
U. S. Department of State
Washington, D. C.

Background

Charles Alexander Thomson was born November 15, 1893, at Springfield, Ohio. He was appointed as Assistant Chief of the Division of Cultural Relations, Department of State, on February 15, 1939.

Basis for Investigation

The Congressional Record of May 14, 1947, page 5435, contained the following statements made by Congressman Fred E. Busbey (R. Indiana) regarding Charles Alexander Thomson:

"Another member of the leading triumvirate in Mr. Benton's office is Charles Alexander Thomson. In a study entitled 'The War in Spain,' published in Foreign Policy Reports of May 1, 1938, page 39, he has the following eulogy of the work of the Communists:

"To the Communists must go the major credit for the introduction of order and unity in this nondescript army. *** On the Government side, the most important political developments have been: (1) the rise of the Communist Party; (2) the working alliance effected by the Communists with the right-wing Socialists and the Republican Parties; *** (3) the decline of Communist influence and its later resurgence in the cabinet formed on April 4, 1938. *** When Franco troops approached Madrid early in November 1936, a new and decisive foreign influence appeared on the scene. Russian aid had arrived—not only airplanes and tanks, but also advisers, technicians and the forces of the International Brigade, in many instances recruited by Communist agencies. Thanks in great part to Soviet influence, the Spanish revolution was not destined—as has so often been the case in history—to pass from the hands of moderates to those of extremists. Instead, the Communists cast their weight against radical trends; they proclaimed that the purpose of the war was not to advance social revolution, but to defend a legal and democratic government.

"The Spanish Communists must be credited with significant achievements. They led in transforming the militia into a disciplined army, and encouraged a unified command. They worked to unify and strengthen the central government as against the local committees. They put a check on wholesale socialization of industry and collectivization of agriculture. They sought to substitute discipline under centralized authority for the spontaneous and disorderly enthusiasm of the masses. They demanded that the social revolution be definitely subordinated to the task of winning the war.

U

"The Communists, whose numbers had not exceeded 50,000 prior to the revolt, derived power to enforce these policies from various factors. First, of course, was aid from the Soviet Union. A second factor was superior organizing ability shown by their success in marshaling support both within the army and behind the lines. The Communists won the allegiance of General Miaja and many other officers, largely controlled the commissar system and the censorship, and were particularly strong in the Madrid forces and in the aviation corps. In the third place, the Communists skillfully exploited a policy of moderation toward socialization of industry and agriculture, which gained the support of numerous middle-class elements, notably small business men and the richer peasants. In consequence their numbers showed a marked increase, being estimated at 220,000 in January 1937, and 400,000 in September of the same year.

"This report is in complete contradiction to the statements of numerous anti-Franco authorities to the atrocities and disruption committed by the Communists under their Russian commissars in the Spanish Civil War.

"According to Mr. Carlton J. H. Hayes, former American Ambassador to Spain, in his book, Wartime Mission to Spain, Mr. Thomson was responsible for the appointment of Abel Flenn as cultural attache in Spain. Mr. Flenn's ideology can be determined from his recent book, Wind in the Olive Trees, which is severely critical of every phase of American policy in Spain during the war. His pro-Communist bias is evident throughout the book which has been enthusiastically promoted by the Communist press and Communist book shops.

"According to the Daily Worker of July 4, 1946, page 11, Mr. Thomson entered into hearty cooperation with Tom Brandon, producer and distributor of pro-Communist films. This is enough to show where Mr. Thomson stands."

Results of Investigation

Congressman Fred E. Busbey was interviewed during the loyalty investigation, at which time he advised that he had no additional information regarding Charles A. Thomson other than what is set forth in the Congressional Record of May 14, 1947.

It will be noted that Thomson has not previously been identified as one of the individuals referred to by Senator McCarthy; however, in the material furnished by former Special Agent Robert E. Lee on January 29, 1948, which was taken from the State Department files, Thomson is described as "Case No. 58." The State Department files indicate that Thomson was at that time assigned to UNESCO. According to information received on October 22, 1946, from several sources, it is reported in the State Department files that Thomson associated and was in sympathy with various left wing elements; allegedly the friend of Charles Page, who was removed from the Department of State on the basis of his long record of Communist activities; and, together with William Treadwell Stone, was trying to secure a position for Page in the Cultural Relations Division of the Department, even though his record as a Communist was well known. A notation appears in the State Department files that Thomson and Stone were both employed in the Cultural Relations Division during the time of Lee's investigation. The State Department files also indicate that in an article appearing in the Daily Worker in 1946 Thomson allegedly addressed a meeting concerning films for UNESCO along with Thomas J. Brandon of the Film Council of America, a well known propagandist. The State Department files also indicated that the investigation of Thomson, was pending at that time.

During the loyalty investigation the records of Washington T-1 (State Department) were examined and reflected the following comments in answer to the statements of Congressman Busbey as set forth above:

1. Foreign Policy Reports, published by the Foreign Policy Association in New York, are balanced and objective statements on current international issues giving conclusions supported by evidence. Each report, before publication by the FPA, is submitted to outstanding authorities for criticism.

The Congressman, in his statement, removed three paragraphs from the context of this report by Mr. Thomson. The paragraphs concern the military discipline and organizing ability of Spanish Communists. The Congressman did not quote a number of paragraphs in the same report by Mr. Thomson concerning the work of the Communist Political Police, including references to assassinations and clandestine prisons.

2. Abel Flenn never served as Cultural Attache in Madrid. Abel Flenn is not mentioned in Mr. Hayes' book.

Abel Flenn was sent to Spain by OWI early in 1944 to take charge of picture exhibits. He was ordered home by OWI after several months of service in Spain. OWI records available in the Department of State show that Mr. Flenn was terminated involuntarily on January 9, 1945. He never had any connection with the State Department and Charles Thomson had nothing to do with his appointment by OWI.

(Ambassador Hayes does mention in his book, page 75, that he wrote to Charles Thomson requesting appointment of a Cultural Attache. He also states on page 77 that Professor John Van Horne of the University of Illinois, a specialist in Spanish language and literature, was sent. Ambassador Hayes speaks favorably of the work of Professor Van Horne.)

3. The Daily Worker, on July 4, 1946, page 11, says nothing about Mr. Thomson entering into hearty cooperation with Tom Brandon.

The Daily Worker story reports that the American Council on Education invited 82 national organizations to discuss an international film program for UNESCO. The article concludes: "The meetings were addressed by Thomas J. Brandon, New York Film Council; William H. Wells of UNRRA; Charles A. Thomson and others." This is the only reference to Charles Thomson.

A photostatic copy of the pertinent page of the Congressional Record, a photostatic copy of the article entitled "War in Spain," and a photostatic copy of the article appearing in the July 4, 1946, issue of the Daily Worker were transmitted with the reports as exhibits. U

In the May 22, 1947, issue of the "Washington Times Herald" an editorial appeared captioned "Voice of What," which was a denunciation of the State Department's Voice of America Program. The editorial relates that the Voice of America Program was the State Department's radio set-up under Assistant Secretary of State William Benton and that Benton's three top assistants in the Voice of America Program were Messrs. William T. Stone, Haldore E. Hanson and Charles A. Thomson. The editorial describes Stone as being a member of the Editorial Board of Amerasia magazine, which printed large amounts of pro-Russian copy; further, that Hanson was a long time soldier of fortune in China where his last friends and confidants were Chinese Communists. According to the editorial, Hanson was shifted hurriedly to another State Department "niche" when the Congressional heat was turned on the Voice of America. In connection with Thomson, the editorial related that he had had "considerable to do with the production of pro-Communist movies, and is on record with some loud praises of the Communist activities in the Spanish Civil War." U

In connection with William Treadwell Stone and Haldore E. Hanson, mentioned above, it will be noted that they are subjects of full field loyalty investigations conducted in 1948 based upon Congressman Busbey's accusations of Stone and Hanson which appeared in the Congressional Record of May 14, 1947, when Congressman Busbey was speaking about the activities and composition of the Cultural and Information Division of the State Department. Congressman Busbey, in his testimony, indicated that Hanson and Stone were a part of this Division, concerning which he related the following: "But the activities of the Cultural and Information Division of the State Department must not be confused with a sound program. As carried on today, they are a monstrosity costing the nation millions of dollars and serving no constructive purpose for the United States. Conducted by a group of pro-Communists, fellow travelers and muddle heads, they fill the ether and tons of paper with a combination of material favorable to the Soviet Union and the Communists, or just plain twaddle." U

Congressman Busbey further stated in his testimony that William Treadwell Stone had previously been a member of the Editorial Board of the magazine Amerasia from 1937 to 1941, whose manager was Philip Jacob Jaffe, who had been indicted and fined for the possession of confidential government documents. U

Regarding Charles A. Page, who was mentioned in Lee's material as being a friend of Thomson, the files of Washington T-1 (State Department) reflect that he, Page, was found to be a "definite security risk," who was removed from the Department on the basis of his long record of Communist activities. In this connection Washington T-2, a reliable informant, has identified Charles A. Page as a member of the Communist Party.

Mr. William Dawson, former United States Ambassador to Uruguay, advised that he had been acquainted with Thomson and his program in the Cultural Relations Division of the State Department. He stated that he knew Thomson and Charles A. Page had been associated in that program and that they were friends; further, that he himself felt that he was responsible for the appointment of Page as Cultural Attache to Montevideo, Uruguay, inasmuch as when he was Ambassador to Uruguay he had requested Page to come to Uruguay at that time to be employed. Dawson stated that regardless of the association of Page and Thomson he did not believe that Page was a Communist and that even though Page might be Communistically inclined, that he did not believe that would indicate that Charles A. Thomson was inclined toward Communism or disloyal to the United States. U

Washington T-3, a reliable informant, advised that Mr. Thomson is probably not opposed to Communism but that Thomson himself is not a Communist or tinged with Communism. He stated that when he knew the employee in Central America many years ago, Thomson had associated with persons who were at least "pro-Communist or leaned toward Communism." The informant stated that he considers the employee to be loyal to the United States. U

Washington T-4, a reliable informant, advised that he knew Charles A. Thomson in Central America during 1930 and 1931. He stated that Thomson had associated with pro-Communists and some known Communists in Central America. T-4 stated that he could not say definitely that Thomson was pro-Communist but felt that Thomson could be considered at least "not to be trusted." The most apt description that the informant could give was a term applied to him rather generally, "the anti-American American." In explanation of this term T-4 advised that the name was attached to him inasmuch as it seemed that everything American Thomson opposed. The informant declined to furnish a signed statement and does not desire to appear before a Loyalty Board. U

Washington T-5, a reliable informant, advised that he had attended numerous UNESCO conferences with the employee. He stated that he could not point to any provable actions of disloyalty by specific instances or activities on the part of the employee but that "to say the least thought he was a person of poor judgment and indiscretion and would consider him a security risk for making such appointments to the State Department as Charles A. Page, a known Communist." Washington T-5 stated that Thomson and associates of Thomson must be judged by the "whole pattern of their activity." He stated that "if they allow infiltration of pro-Communist individuals and appoint pro-Communists and Communist sympathizers, it must be said at least that their judgment and discretion are to be questioned from a security point of view and that, therefore, they constitute security risks." The informant refused to give a signed statement and will not appear before a Loyalty Hearing Board. U

The records of the House Committee on Un-American Activities were checked during the investigation and noted to contain the statement reflected by the Congressional Record dated May 14, 1947, made by Congressman Fred E. Busbey regarding Charles A. Thomson.

Co-workers, associates and neighbors advised that they consider Thomson to be a loyal American.

Reports to CSC July 7, 1948.

PURPOSE

To furnish you with summary memoranda on Charles Alexander Thomson and Haldore Eugene Hanson pursuant to your request. Also, attached for your assistance is summary memorandum on William Treadwell Stone.

BACKGROUND

You will recall that Senator McCarthy referred to Haldore E. Hanson in his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Monday, March 13, 1950, as having "pro-Communist proclivities." In connection with Charles Alexander Thomson, you requested a summary on him since it appeared that Senator McCarthy would mention Thomson in his forthcoming testimony.

It will be noted that in the May 14, 1947, issue of the "Congressional Record," Congressman Fred E. Busbey made allegations concerning the Cultural and Information Division and the Office of International Information and Cultural Affairs of the State Department. Included in his allegations were William Treadwell Stone, Director of the Office of International Information and Cultural Affairs, Haldore E. Hanson, Assistant Secretary of the Office of Information and Culture, and Charles A. Thomson, who Busbey referred to as another member of the leading triumvirate in Mr. William Benton's Office. Congressman Busbey identified Stone as being a former member of the Editorial Board of Amerasia magazine, whose managing editor, Philip Jacob Jaffe, was indicted and convicted and fined for the possession of confidential government documents. In speaking of the Cultural and Information Division of the State Department, Congressman Busbey stated, "The activities of the Cultural and Information Division of the State Department must not be confused with a sound program. As carried on today, they are a monstrosity costing the nation millions of dollars and serving no constructive purpose for the United States. Conducted by a group of pro-Communists, fellow travelers, and muddle heads, they fill the ether and tons of paper with a combination of material favorable to the Soviet Union and the Communists, or just plain twaddle."

It will be noted that the Bureau conducted full field investigations on Hanson, Thomson, and Stone based on Congressman Busbey's allegations as reported in the "Congressional Record" of May 14, 1947, as set forth above. The reports prepared during the investigation on Thomson were sent to the Civil Service Commission on July 7, 1948; on Hanson June 24, 1948; and on Stone July 30, 1948.

It will be further noted that William Treadwell Stone was previously identified by the Bureau as being Senator McCarthy's "Case No. 46," which he referred to in his testimony before the Senate on February 20, 1950. By your memorandum dated February 24, 1950, a summary of information on Stone was submitted to the Director.

At the request of Mr. Donald S. Dawson of the White House, Mr. Roach called on him this afternoon, at which time William Boyle, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was present.

Mr. Dawson stated the White House had learned that there was a leak in the Loyalty Review Board (Seth Richardson's group), in view of the fact that Senator McCarthy this morning had stated that the loyalty case of John Stewart Service, a State Department employee, was being referred back to the State Department by the Loyalty Review Board. According to Dawson, McCarthy made this disclosure prior to the time that the Board had actually referred the case back to the State Department and, therefore, it was evident to them that a leak had occurred in the Board and the information had been passed on by a member of the Board to McCarthy.

Both Dawson and Boyle wanted to know if the Bureau would investigate this leak. Dawson stated if the Bureau would undertake this investigation he would like to have it handled as expeditiously as possible. Boyle commented that "if we can satisfy ourselves of the identity of the person giving the information to McCarthy, we will fire him outright." Dawson commented that he had heard a rumor that a member of the Board, whom he was unable to identify, had recently been seen in McCarthy's office and, further, that this same person allegedly had lobbied against the Senate confirmation of Service as United States Ambassador at the time his case was on the Hill.

In Mr. Roach's presence Dawson placed a call to the Capitol, but was unable to contact his source for further details or verification of this rumor. He stated, however, that he would do so if the Bureau decided to go into the case and he would pass the information on to us.

Both Dawson and Boyle asked that this matter be called to your attention and stated they were hopeful the Bureau would undertake investigation. Mr. Roach pointed out to these gentlemen that the matter appeared to be purely administrative, within the Loyalty Review Board, and something that they would probably desire to check out themselves or have investigators of the Civil Service Commission handle. Mr. Dawson stated this was undoubtedly true, but he still desired to make the request of the Bureau and wanted to know if you would call him this afternoon concerning your decision or would get word to him.

RECOMMENDATION -

It is recommended that the Bureau not undertake this investigation in view of the political aspects involved, as well as the fact that it is purely administrative within the Loyalty Review Board. If you concur, Mr. Dawson will be so informed by Mr. Roach this afternoon.

I concur. Also because to start inquiry now would no doubt result in resentment by the Senate both Democrats & Republicans. If any investigation were to be made of the incident to do it now would be bad timing.

I took a telephone call by reference from your office from Mr. Seth W. Richardson of the President's Loyalty Review Board. He referred to the present discussion on the Hill on the part of Senator McCarthy with reference to loyalty cases. He stated that this morning in a speech made by McCarthy he, McCarthy, made reference to a decision handed down by the Loyalty Review Board on March 3, 1950 in the case of John Stewart Service. This decision amounted to an overrule of the Department of State Loyalty Board and a referral back to that Board for further consideration of the Service case.

Mr. Richardson stated that this decision had been held very close in the Loyalty Review Board and had not been communicated to the State Department until this afternoon after McCarthy's speech.

His purpose in calling was to determine whether the FBI would conduct an investigation as to who in his group had disclosed this information.

I told Mr. Richardson that this was strictly an administrative check within the operation of his own office and did not amount to a violation which this Bureau could investigate.

I told him it was a matter either for himself or Civil Service to check on but that the FBI could be of no assistance to him in connection with this problem.

He expressed appreciation.

Senator McCARTHY closed his testimony of Professor SCHUMAN by stating that the most casual survey indicates that SCHUMAN is not a card-holding member of the Communist Party, but the difference is so slight that it makes no difference.

Senator McCARTHY then advised the Committee that he was not going to present any additional cases for the day and then submitted to the Chairman a list of 25 names which requires further investigation. He advised that all the individuals are either in the state Department or in closely related agencies and all have been investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation; that such investigation disclosed information which, according to ACHESON'S own yardstick of loyalty, would stamp any, if not all of them as being bad security risks. He further stated that none of the names covered cases which he originally presented on the Senate floor.

There is enclosed herewith the text of the statement to the Committee by Senator McCARTHY concerning the 25 names furnished.

TO : DIRECTOR, FBI
 FROM : GUY HOTTEL, SAC, Washington Field
 SUBJECT: COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT
 (TESTIMONY BY SENATOR JOSEPH R. McCARTHY)
 LGE

Attention: Assistant Director D. M. LADD

In accordance with the verbal instructions of Assistant Director D. M. LADD to Special Agent in Charge GUY HOTTEL on March 7, 1950, Special Agents KENNETH D. ANENSON and WILLIAM J. McGRATH, JR., attended a hearing held by the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the Caucus Room, Senate Office Building, on March 11, 1950.

Prior to Senator McCARTHY testifying, Senator TYDINGS announced that the Chief Counsel for the Committee was EDWARD P. MORGAN, who was formerly an Agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Assistant Agent in Charge of Federal Bureau of Investigation Field Offices, and Special Agent in Charge of Federal Bureau of Investigation Field Offices following which he had been made Chief Inspector at headquarters of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington, D. C. He advised that MR. MORGAN had made a special study of Communists and Fascists and had lectured to police all over the world regarding this subject. He advised that MR. MORGAN was no longer affiliated with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and was presently a member of a law firm in Washington, D. C.

Testimony before the Committee was opened by Senator McCARTHY, in which he presented the name of GUSTAVO DURAN. Senator McCARTHY stated that this individual was employed by the State Department and voluntarily resigned on October 4, 1946. Following his resignation, he was employed by the United Nations and at the present time, Senator McCARTHY advised he was informed DURAN was with I.R.O. at the United Nations.

Senator McCARTHY then proceeded to give considerable background information concerning DURAN, which included his activities in Spain, at which time he was an officer in the Spanish S.I.M. which was the Spanish counterpart of the Russian NKVD or OGPO. He presented the committee a picture of DURAN in the uniform of this organization. Senator McCARTHY also furnished the Committee intelligence reports from an unnamed agency. As an exhibit to the Committee, he furnished letters from the Military Attache at the American Embassy, Madrid, Spain; letters from JAMES F. BYRNES, Secretary of State, to Senator KENNETH S. WHERRY, and a letter from DONALD RUSSELL, Assistant Secretary of State, to Senator WHERRY. He also furnished the Committee a memorandum which was captioned "For the Military Attache at Havana" and signed SPRUILLE BRADEN. He also furnished a report from the Assistant U. S. Military Attache in the Dominican Republic and an excerpt from the book, "Why and How I Left Defense Ministry in the Intrigue of Russia and Spain," by INDALICIO PRIETO, former Minister of Defense for the Spanish Republic cause. All of these documents were to show DURAN'S background as a Communist.

There is enclosed herewith the complete text of testimony by Senator McCARTHY to the Subcommittee, together with the aforementioned exhibits concerning GUSTAVO DURAN.

Senator McCARTHY then proceeded with his next case and furnished the name of DR. HARLOW SHAPLEY, a member of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO, one of the organizations of the United Nations. He advised that DR. SHAPLEY had participated in the Soviet Peace Conference and that his record with Communist fronts is a long and interesting one.

There is enclosed herewith the complete text of testimony furnished by Senator McCARTHY to the Subcommittee.

Callow

Senator McCARTHY then proceeded with his next case and furnished the Committee with the name of an individual which was not made public. He advised that Secretary ACHESON had stated that sex perverts are considered to be poor security risks and that this case involved a person who had been employed by the State Department Foreign Service until 1948, when he resigned. He stated that this individual had a record with the Metropolitan Police Department as a pervert, that he was known to have been a hanger out at Lafayette Park in Washington, D. C., and that during September 1943, was arrested as a pervert, at which time he elected to forfeit $25.00. Senator McCARTHY advised that this individual is now employed by CIA, receiving from $10,000.00 to $12,000.00 per annum.

Letter to Director

The text of information as presented to the Committee could not be obtained at this time.

Senator McCARTHY proceeded with his next case and furnished the name of JOHN STEWART SERVICE, who is a Foreign Service Officer of the Department of State and presently in Calcutta, India. Senator McCARTHY then proceeded to furnish the Committee considerable background information concerning SERVICE and spent a great deal of time covering the arrest of PHILIP J. JAFFE and others who were arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on June 6, 1945. Senator McCARTHY stated that the Grand Jury which failed to indict SERVICE in this case, was investigated by the House Committee which reported that they would not take any action against the Grand Jury due to the fact that documents which were necessary for prosecution could not be relied upon as evidence due to the fact that it was believed if these were offered in evidence, that a motion by the defense to suppress them would be sustained due to the manner in which the documents were obtained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The suppression of these documents would hinge on the defendants attacking the warrants of arrest.

There is enclosed herewith the complete text of the testimony by Senator McCARTHY to the Subcommittee concerning JOHN STEWART SERVICE.

Revised

Senator McCARTHY then proceeded with his next case and furnished the name of Professor FREDERICK L. SCHUMAN, who is presently employed at Williams College. He advised that Professor SCHUMAN is a lecturer at the State Department where he gives lectures at this school for new Foreign Service employees. He also advised that Professor SCHUMAN is a Consultant whose services are utilized as an expert on Far Eastern affairs. He stated that Professor SCHUMAN is undoubtedly not on the pay roll today but may be at any time that his services are necessary. He identified Professor SCHUMAN as being active in numerous front organizations as sponsor, member or affiliated with them. He also advised that Professor SCHUMAN was considered to be one of the untouchables at the State Department who determined, forced through and carried out the policies of the State Department.

Among the organizations which he stated that Professor SCHUMAN was a sponsor, member or affiliate, were the following:

(Gustavo Duran)

The Committee will recall that the name of Gustavo Duran was first mentioned by me as a possible bad security risk in a speech which I made in Reno, Nevada.

At that time I said: "Now, Let's see what happens when individuals with Communist connections are forced out of the State Department. Gustavo Duran, who was labeled as (I quote) 'a notorious international Communist,' was made assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Latin American affairs. He was taken into the State Department from his job as a lieutenant colonel in the Communist International Brigade. Finally, after intense congressional pressure and criticism, he resigned in 1946 from the State Department -- and ladies and gentlemen, where do you think he is now? He took over a high-salaried job as Chief of Cultural Activities Section in the Office of the Assistant Secretary General of the United Nations."

This statement was promptly ridiculed by the Secretary of State who -- through Mr. Peurifoy -- merely said that this man Duran was no longer an employee of the State Department, but had been in the auxiliary foreign service from January, 1943 until September, 1945, and thereafter until October 4, 1946, in the Department. Mr. Peurifoy added that Duran had voluntarily resigned from the State Department on October 4, 1946.

One of the important facts that the Secretary overlooked in making this press release is that this man is still, as of today, a high salaried official in the United Nations. On March 8th my office phoned the office of Trygvie Lie to find out exactly what type of work he was doing.

My office was advised that information could not be given to me.

The State Department advised me that Duran is now Chief of the Cultural Activities Section of the Department of Social Affairs, United Nations.

I was surprised to find that the Permanent Secretary of the United Nations<sup>v</sup> felt he could not give to a United States Senator the information as to what this man was doing. However, since that time I have had the matter checked in New York and am informed he is actually with the International Refugee Organization, engaged in work having to do with screening refugees coming into this country. The financial contribution which the United States makes toward the running of this United Nations' agency amount to 45.57 percent. (Senate Report 1274, 81st Congress, 2nd Session, Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments, prepared by Subcommittee on Relations with International Organizations.)

At the time that Acheson's man attempted to ridicule my statement, he either did not know the facts in the case or he was covering up the information which is in the files and which should have been known to him.

This information, which I shall document for the committee, was known or was available to the State Department. It shows that Duran was (1) well-known for his rabid Communist beliefs and activities, (2) that he was active in secret Soviet operations in the Spanish <sup>Republican</sup> ~~Republic~~ Army, (3) that a highly confidential report was sent to the State Department by the Military Attache at the American Embassy in Madrid which according to all existing rules called for Duran's immediate dismissal — unless the facts were proven to be wrong. Originally, I understand it was claimed that this was a case of mistaken identity. That claim, I believe, has been subsequently dropped in view of the fact that our intelligence produced pictures of him in the uniform that he wore at the time he was the regional head of S.I.M., which was the Spanish Counterpart of the Russian NKVD or OGPU. I now hand the committee one of those pictures.

✓ At the time this intelligence report reached the State Department, Duran was a highly placed official in a confidential capacity with the State Department in South America.

When the American people read the carefully prepared statement put out by the Secretary of State's office in regard to the Duran statement, they were entitled to rely upon it as being the truth. Unfortunately, anyone who believed that statement got a completely erroneous impression of the actual facts.

Whichever way you wish to interpret this situation I submit to the Committee that it is typical of the carelessness of the top executives of the State Department of this country. The situation I have just discussed is typical of the type of news releases emanating from the State Department; it is typical of the half truths we hear in answer to the information which I have been developing in regard to the bad security risks in that department.

I now submit to the committee the Intelligence Report just referred to in its entirety. It will be noted the State Department received a copy of it. There are certain matters discussed in this report which I do not feel should be made public until the committee has had a chance to thoroughly look into them. I have, therefore, deleted those sections from the copies being handed to the press and will not read them into the record at this time. The entire report, however, with nothing deleted is being handed to each of the members of the committee.

Area Reported On Spain

Who's Who Gustavo DURAN

Following is the report given the Military Attache by the A.C. of S., [redacted] Spanish Central General Staff, After the M/A asked whether DURAN was known:

1. "Gustavo DURAN came to Madrid for the first time in the nineteen twenties from the Canary Island, in the company of another Canarian, a painter called Nestor, who was registered by the Spanish police for the same reasons as Duran *****. As a friend of Nestor, Gustavo Duran became employed as a pianist in the company of that capacity at "Arcañes nita" and went to Berlin to participate in ***** caused him to incur the fury of the Berlin police, which finally ousted him from Germany.

2. "Similar trouble happened to him in other European capitals. His *****grew to the limit in Paris, which was the preferred center for his activities some years before the advent of the Spanish Republic in 1931, while he was under the protection of his friend Nestor, the painter, who was well known in certain Parisian quarters. About that time the Soviets entrusted Gustavo Duran with some missions and finally appointed him their agent.

3. "Upon the proclamation of the Spanish Republic, the "Porcelana" (as he was nicknamed) returned to Madrid. His identity papers indicated that he was the representative of the Paramount Film Co. However, his true mission was service of the G.P.U. Duran was greatly successful in his activities due to the political protection he enjoyed. He soon became one of the leading members of the Youths of the Communist Party and greatly contributed to the merger of the Communist Youths with the youths of the Spanish Labor Party, thus giving birth to the J.S.U. ("Juventudes Socialistas Unificadas"-United Socialist Youths), of fatful remembrance, since this organization committed the most cold-blooded crimes before 18 July 1936 (date of the military uprising) and during the red revolution which ensued.

4. "During the republican regime (1931-1936) Duran continued practising his *****. Together with other "close" friends of his and some young pro-communist poets, among whom Alberty was noted, Duran succeeded in becoming notorious. All them were his tools and all them were made into active communists. In Duran's home located ***** such meetings took place that the police had to interfere frequently, thus giving occasion to complete his record as ***** in the files of the General Directorate of Security. This record as ***** was probably removed by his friend Serrano Poncela, who was the Chief of the "Red" Police during the months of October and November, 1936, in Madrid and political reporter of "Mundo Obrero" (a communist newspaper) and Chief of the J.S.U. Duran's release from his frequent imprisonments for ***** conduct was due to his powerful political protectors, who blindly obeyed orders from the Soviet political police.

5. "Upon the national uprising (beginning of Civil War) Gustavo Duran took over the nearest convent to his house, called "las Siervas de Maria", located at the old Chamberi Plaza. He was there the "responsable", or chief. He was afflicted there with typhoid fever during the month of August, 1936.

The "Cause General" (General Judicial Proceedings) has information about the crimes perpetrated by the militia under the command of Duran's "choca" (illegal prison). He was one of the principal leaders of the popular militia created by the communists. He was a personal friend of Lister and Modestó (commanders of red brigades, now Generals in the Russian Army) and soon became captain, major and lieutenant colonel of the "Red" Army. He belonged to the General staff of the "Red" forces which directed the "brilliant" withdrawals of Talavera de la Reina, Maqueda, Toledo, etc.

6. "When the international brigades were brought into the Madrid and Aranjuez fronts, Gustavo Duran formed part of the High Russian General Staff, with headquarters at Tarancon and its vicinity, where they left sad and hideous recollections.

7. "After Tarancon we (the Spanish Intelligence Service) lost track of Duran. It appears that he went to Moscow with a delegation of male and female members of the "Red" Army. It appears that later he was for some time in Paris.

8. "And now he is in Washington as a collaborator of Spruille Braden, Chief of a Section of the State Department."

9. M.A. Comment: A very reliable Spaniard who is anti-Franco in sympathies but is middle of the road republican and extremely pro-U.S. and democratic in his views states that he knows personally that DURAN as commander officer of an international brigade in a small town not far from Madrid ordered the execution of the town electrician and another man who was a mason, neither of whom has committed any act for which they should have suffered this execution.

The Honorable Kenneth S. Wherry wrote to the State Department on August 2, 1946, demanding the immediate discharge of Duran.

I now submit this letter as my exhibit - marked Exhibit B-2.

EXHIBIT B-2 FOLLOWS ON NEXT PAGE

August 2, 1946

The Honorable James F. Byrnes
Secretary of State
Washington, D. C.

Dear Secretary:

As a member of the Appropriations Committee, on April 18, 1946, I asked for investigation of certain persons holding positions of trust and responsibility in your Department.

It was my purpose then and is now to withhold appropriations that finance the salaries and activities of anyone in the State Department whose allegiance apparently is to some other country rather than to the United States.

You will recall, Mr. Secretary, that when you appeared I questioned you about some of these officials and among them was a Gustavo Duran. This was just prior to the Carter Glass funeral. At that time you stated there was a question of identity of Gustavo Duran. You stated further an investigation had revealed that he was some other person than the man in the State Department, who has been an assistant to Spruille Braden.

It has now come to my knowledge there exists an extensive military intelligence report on this man, Gustavo Duran, and I am reliably informed that several copies of this report have been delivered to the State Department.

I am now making this formal request upon you in my official capacity as a United States Senator, and as a member of the State Department Sub-Committee on Appropriations, that on the basis of this report you immediately discharge Gustavo Duran.

Cordially yours,

KENNETH S. WHERRY

-9-

After Senator Wherry wrote this letter to the State Department, demanding the immediate discharge of Duran, he received on September 14, 1946, the following letter from Mr. Donald Russell, the Assistant Secretary of State:

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE
WASHINGTON

September 14, 1946

My dear Senator:

I am in receipt of your recent inquiry about the security investigation by the Department of Mr. Gustavo Duran. As you know, the Department has a Security Committee which confines itself to reviewing security investigations and to making recommendations based thereon. Of course, this committee has nothing to do with reviewing the qualifications or competency of the person reviewed for a position in the Department other than as security is involved. I have added this because from our conversation I would assume that you seriously question the qualifications of Mr. Duran for employment, as distinguished from security consideration. That phase of Mr. Duran's employment is not within the scope of the Security Committee.

After reviewing the entire record on Mr. Duran as procured from all available sources, the Security Committee recommended favorably on Mr. Duran. I have carefully gone over the record before the Security Committee and I have approved their recommendation.

While I recognize that the above conclusions are at variance with your own feelings, I have to do my duty as I see it and I hope that you will recognize that I have attempted to exercise my judgment faithfully and honestly.

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

(s) Donald Russell

The Honorable
Kenneth S. Wherry
United States Senate

When Mr. Russell wrote this letter on September 4, 1946, he had in his files the top secret report from the Military Attache in Madrid, which I have already referred to, outlining in detail the facts I have given on Duran.

What was the mysterious power in the possession of Duran that enabled him to continue to serve as a confidential assistant to Spruille Braden, the then head of the State Department's South American affairs?

Why was this man permitted voluntarily to resign in the face of these grave charges?

Mr. Duran obviously had powerful friends and one of his greatest champions was his immediate chief, Spruille Braden.

I now show the Committee Exhibit D-2, which is a copy of a letter marked "secret" and dated December 21, 1943, in Havana.

Memorandum for the Military Attache:

Mr. Gustavo Duran was recommended to me in the first instance by a friend of unimpeachable patriotism and integrity. He was recommended for a specific objective requiring a person of highly specialized qualifications; his duties were to be concerned with protecting United States interests through confidential surveillance over Falangist activities in Cuba.

As to Mr. Duran's background, he is a naturalized American citizen born and educated in Spain. He is of good family, and in his youth was particularly interested in the arts. When the Spanish civil war began in July, 1936, he gave up everything to fight on the side of the Loyalists and from a somewhat dilettante but brilliant young man, turned into a vital force for the Republican cause. His military record was reportedly brilliant. He was further described to me as being a man whose hatred for the Fascists, and his deep devotion to liberal principles, are not open to debate. A close association with him during a period of over a year fully support this description.

Mr. Duran arrived in Habana in November 1942 on the payroll of the Pan American Union and was to transfer to the staff of the C.I.A.A. on February 1, 1943. Instead, I urgently recommended his employment as an Auxiliary Foreign Service Officer in a telegram from which I quote the following:

"I regard Duran as eminently qualified for the work he is performing and I have the highest estimation for his intelligence and character as well as for his complete loyalty and discretion. He has already proven of very great value to this Embassy and I anticipate that his usefulness will increase as he becomes more familiar with conditions in Cuba. I consider that his continuance here is particularly desirable at the present time when our relations with Spain are of such vital importance."

✓ Mr. Duran has now served as one of my immediate associates for more than a year. His work has been excellent and outstandingly useful to the United States government. From my personal knowledge based on close association, Mr. Duran is not a Communist but a liberal of the highest type. I consider him an unusually worthy, patriotic and honorable American citizen, who shows great promise as a United States Government official capable of high responsibility.

Spruille Braden

Mr. Braden describes Mr. Duran as one recommended to him by a friend of unimpeachable integrity.

He set forth in his letter that Duran was a naturalized citizen, born and educated in Spain, of good family and in his youth was particularly "interested in the arts". Braden said that from 1936 Duran gave up everything to fight on the side of the Spanish Loyalists and said he "urgently recommended his employment as an Auxiliary Foreign Service officer".

Following Senator Wherry's letter to the State Department of August, 1946, in which the Senator maintained that this man was such a bad security risk that he should be discharged, we find that he was permitted to resign on October 4, 1946.

In view of the grave charges made by Senator Wherry and the unusual attitude of the State Department in permitting this man's resignation, it would be interesting to know what, if any, investigation was made by State Department officials as to his conduct while in a responsible, confidential capacity in the Department.

But Duran's friends in the State Department did not turn their backs on him.

After his resignation, Duran almost immediately was employed as a representative of the International Refugee Organization of the United Nations. He was employed there as of yesterday.

I have received a confidential report that Duran was recommended for his U.N. position by a member of the present Presidential Cabinet. It has also been reported to me that Duran is the brother-in-law of Michael Straight, the owner and publisher of a pro-Communist magazine called the "New Republic".

Here again it is certainly pertinent to inquire where this man got his power, what he did while in the State Department and, possibly, of equal importance, is what he did not do.

To complete this picture, I attach hereto copies of the following documents:

- (1) Report from Edward J. Ruff, Assistant U. S. Military Attache in the Dominican Republic, addressed to the American Intelligence Service dated December 30, 1943 marked Exhibit E-2.
- (2) Excerpt from the book, "Why and How I Left Defense Ministry in the Intrigue of Russia in Spain," by Idalicio Prieto, former Minister of Defense for the Spanish Republican cause, marked Exhibit C-2.
- (3) A list of reference material for the committee's use in further checking into the background and activities of this man who is now with IRO, screening refugees coming into the United States.

Report from Edward J. Ruff, Assistant U. S. Military Attache in the Dominican Republic, addressed to the American Intelligence Service.

"I want to take this opportunity to clarify my position in connection with Report No. 428, dated 13 December, 1943, Subject: Gustavo DURAN, Alleged Communist Employee of the C.I.A.A., Havana. As you know, this office received a cable from the Military Attache, Havana, requesting that dissemination of this report to be held up on the grounds that it was 'absolutely incorrect'. A few days ago we received letter No. 7967 from Lt. Col. Brown, written by Ambassador Braden concerning this individual. Both these communications corroborated information which we had regarding Duran and I cannot see on the basis of these reports how our report can be branded as 'absolutely incorrect'. Our only statement in the report on Duran is that he was a member of the Communist Party in Spain. From further reports received, this information can now be evaluated as A-1. For your own knowledge, the information on Duran was submitted by a Spanish refugee who also served as a Lt. Colonel in the Spanish Republican Army and had served on Duran's promotion board in Spain, which board was charged with considering recommendations for promotion of Spanish Republican Officers. As our source was actually sitting on the Board at the time that Duran's recommendation for promotion came through, he himself saw all Duran's papers and letters of recommendation, and had access to complete information regarding Duran's background.

He states, dogmatically, that the records showed Duran to be a member of the Spanish Communist Party. Our source had previously made available to us the information agreeing with that sent to us by Military Attache, Havana, except the statement that Duran entered the Army as a private. According to our Agent, Duran was commissioned directly from civilian life and given the rank of Major in the Militia. Later when the Militia became part of the Spanish Republican Army, he was made a Major in the Army. The only additional information we had, and which we did not mention in the report as it was not believed pertinent, was the reported fact that Duran is a homosexual. I do not question Duran's interest in the arts, his culture or intelligence. However, we only stated in our report that Duran was a member of the Communist Party, and that we did not know whether he is still a member of the Communist Party. I, myself, am convinced that Duran was a Communist and consider Ambassador Braden's statement that he is a "liberal of the highest type" to be a euphemism. Under the circumstances, I believed the reliability of our report still remains as originally submitted.

The Ambassador here is inclined to concur in my report on Duran, but has asked that no further official correspondence on the subject be sent up. Hence this personal letter from me.

Sincerely,

EDWARD J. RUFF
1st. Lt., A.G.D.
Assistant Military Attache"

EXHIBIT "C"-2

Excerpt from the book, "Why and How I left Defense Ministry in the Intrigue of Russia in Spain," by Indalicio Prieto, former Minister of Defense for the Spanish Republic cause.

"It is true that I have had certain incidents with the Russians. Certain Russian technicians proposed to me in Valencia, that a service of Military Investigations should be created. This was the Spanish counterpart of the NKVD. I confess that I opposed the project. But because of insistent pressure, I created the S.I.M. I was especially concerned with choosing a chief, until I gave it to an intimate friend of mine, who had just come from France, where he was with his family. In entrusting him with the task, I gave him these instructions:

'You are going to form the S.I.M., carefully, with elements of all groups of the Popular Front. Your only charges will be these two: Do not permit the new organization to be converted into an instrument of the Communists and do not permit Russian technicians to gain control. Listen to the advice of these technicians and follow their orientations, which can be very useful to you, but control must always be in your hands and in that of the Government, and of no one else.'

"I showed little tact in the selection of that comrade. A Republican named Sayagues came in fact to be the chief of S.I.M. Regional chiefs of the S.I.M. were designated and they proposed to me a certain Gustavo Duran for the Madrid zone. It was not concealed from me that the person proposed was a Communist (Duran). I knew this, but in spite of that, he was appointed by me. In the decree creating the S.I.M. of August 1937 - a decree which I myself drew up, because I did not wish to follow in a slavish manner the project which was handed me -- there is an article by virtue of which the appointment of all agents of the S.I.M. rests exclusive with the Minister of National Defense. This was a guarantee which temporarily I wish to establish. No one could be an agent of the S.I.M. who was not in possession of the memorandum book which bore duplicate the signature of the minister. Duran having been appointed chief of the demarcation of the army of the center, of his own accord and without power to do so, appointed the agents who were under his orders, which to the number of some hundreds, were Communists and only four or five were Socialists. I faced an intolerable situation, wherefore alleging, and with reason, that I lacked commanders in the army. I ordered that all military chiefs who were not in particular positions in the army should return to their former positions and thus Major Duran had to return to his military function. Because of Duran's leaving the S.I.M. I received a visit from a Russian technician, of these services, who said to me:

'RUSSIAN AGENT. I have come to speak to you about the dismissal of Duran. What happened?

'PRIETO. Nothing special, I lacked commanders in the army and ordered Duran to return to it.

'RUSSIAN AGENT. No. You discharged him because he appointed Communists as agents in Madrid.

'PRIETO. That is also sufficient reason, because Duran absolutely lacked authority to make appointments.

'RUSSIAN AGENT. Why did he not have the power to appoint agents?

'PRIETO. Because by virtue of the decree creating the S.I.M. that power is reserved exclusively to the Minister.'

"I read the decree and before the evidence of my statement my visitor alleged:

'RUSSIAN AGENT. Duran could make temporary appointments.

'PRIETO. Neither actual nor temporary. Here in Spain, moreover, the temporary is converted into the definitive.

'RUSSIAN AGENT. Be that as it may, I come to ask you to immediately restore Major Duran as chief of the S.I.M. in Madrid.

'PRIETO. I am very sorry, but I cannot consent.

'RUSSIAN AGENT. If you do not consent to restore Duran, my relations with you are broken.

'PRIETO. I am sorry, but Major Duran will go to the front of his division and will not return to the S.I.M. Your attitude is unjustified and I cannot yield to it.'

"I did not yield as a matter of fact, and my relations with the Russian technician, through his own wish, were absolutely cut off. I have not seen him since that scene."

The next case I will discuss is that of Dr. Harlow Shapley, a member of the U. S. National Commission for UNESCO, one of the organizations of the United Nations.

In my Lincoln Day speech I stated that Dr. Shapley was prominent in the affairs of the Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace which gathered in New York City in March 1949. That organization, as you know, and as I stated in my speech, was nothing more than a Soviet-Communist meeting for the purpose of discrediting this nation's fight against communism in Europe and elsewhere.

Mr. Acheson himself denounced this "peace" conference as -- "a sounding board for communistic propaganda".

After I made my Lincoln Day speech, the State Department's Deputy Under-Secretary John Peurifoy, had this to say in his press release of February 13, 1950 concerning Dr. Shapley:

"Dr. Shapley has never been an employee of the Department of State. However, in 1945, he served as a member of the American Delegation at the UNESCO Conference in London; and in 1946 to the International Astronomical Union at Copenhagen.

"Dr. Shapley is a member of the National Commission for UNESCO, representing the American Association for the Advancement of Science."

I submit that this statement in Mr. Peurifoy's press release is a misrepresentation of the true facts concerning Dr. Shapley's association with our Department of State. ~~This is merely another instance of the efforts on the part of the State Department to discredit the statements I have made, and to mislead the American public by presenting half truths.~~

The full facts concerning Dr. Shapley and the facts that the State Department's press release conveniently omitted are these:

Dr. Shapley was appointed to the National Commission for UNESCO by the Secretary of State in May 1947 to fill an unexpired term, and he was reappointed to that position by the Secretary of State in June 1947 for a second term on the Commission, which expires in April of this year.

Not only was Dr. Shapley twice appointed to the National Commission by the predecessor of the present Secretary of State, in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 565 of the 79th Congress, but his transportation expenses and $10 per diem are also paid by the State Department, in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 565.

I am at a complete loss to understand how the State Department could seek to avoid responsibility for Dr. Shapley's appointment and continuance on the National Commission, in view of these uncontroverted facts.

As a matter of fact, I know that John Peurifoy had all of these facts in his possession concerning the appointment and payment of expenses for Dr. Shapley at the National Commission, at the time his misleading press release of February 13 was issued to the public. I know that because I have a letter from John Peurifoy, dated February 16, 1950, in which he furnished me with the facts concerning Shapley's appointments and compensation, in accordance with Public Law 565.

Now I personally do not blame John Peurifoy for attempting to mislead the public and whitewash the State Department in that press release. I have known Peurifoy to be an upright, honest individual, and I for one am convinced that he is issuing these misleading half truths to the American public on orders from higher ups.

It is inconceivable that the Secretary of State should be condemning the Communist-inspired Scientific and Cultural Conference for World Peace on the one hand, and retaining Dr. Harlow Shapley, one of its main organizers, in an important position with UNESCO on the other.

As this Committee well knows, the power to appoint carries with it the power to dismiss unless definite restrictions are placed on the appointing authority, which they are not in the case of Dr. Shapley.

Furthermore, inasmuch as ~~U. S. Treasury~~ funds are being used to pay

~~the traveling expenses and per diem of Dr. Shapley's at the National~~ Commission, there is no reason why he could not be summarily dismissed from that position by Secretary Acheson under the broad powers of the so-called McCarran Rider.

Dr. Shapley's active participation in the Soviet Peace Conference is not the last nor only Communist-front with which this man has been affiliated. His record with Communist-fronts is a long and interesting one.

PURPOSE

To furnish for your information and in accordance with your request summary memoranda regarding Dr. Esther Caukin Brunauer, Stephen Brunauer and Owen J. Lattimore.

BACKGROUND

Reference is made to Mr. Winterrowd's memorandum to you dated March 13, 1950, advising you with respect to Senator McCarthy's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on the morning of the 13th. You will recall that in Senator McCarthy's testimony he identified his current Case No. 3 as Dr. Esther Caukin Brunauer, who, as you will recall, was identified as "Case No. 47" in his previous testimony before the Senate as published in the Congressional Record of February 20, 1950. There is attached a copy of the summary memorandum prepared on Dr. Esther Caukin Brunauer identifying her as "Case No. 47," which was submitted to the Director by memorandum of February 24, 1950, along with summaries on 67 other individuals identified as those referred to by case numbers in Senator McCarthy's testimony published in the Congressional Record of February 20, 1950.

Senator McCarthy in his testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee yesterday also mentioned Esther Brunauer's husband and stated that the status of this case was most important and he would not present it at a public hearing but would refer to it in executive session. He identified the husband of Esther Brunauer as "Stephen Brunauer, a Commander in the U. S. Navy, presently on active duty, and a scientist on several top secret projects." You will recall that the only investigation the Bureau ever has conducted on Dr. Stephen Brunauer was under the Atomic Energy Program at the request of the Atomic Energy Commission. You will recall further that the Bureau never has conducted a loyalty investigation of Brunauer. Details concerning the factors which caused the Bureau not to initiate investigation of Brunauer under Executive Order 9835 are set forth in the attached summary memorandum on Stephen Brunauer under the heading "Action By Bureau Under Loyalty Program." You may recall particularly that on December 13, 1947, the Bureau wrote to Rear Admiral Thomas B. Inglis, then Chief of Naval Intelligence, pointing out to him the fact that an investigation was conducted by the Bureau regarding Brunauer under the Atomic Energy Act due to a request received from the Atomic Energy Commission on March 19, 1947; that if the investigation of Brunauer had been continued by the Bureau on completion of the Atomic Energy Act investigation, it would have involved a violation of the Delimitation Agreement in that Brunauer was a civilian employee of the Department of the Navy; that all information in the Bureau's possession was provided to ONI for such action as they deemed advisable; that this action antedated the new procedures established under the President's Executive Order on Loyalty of Government Employees; that information furnished to the Bureau periodically had indicated that investigation of Brunauer was actively being conducted by the Department of the Navy. It was further pointed out to Admiral Inglis because of all of the elements involved in the situation, particularly in light of the information contained in the Bureau's reports of its investigation of Brunauer conducted at the request of the Atomic Energy Commission, as well as the fact that Brunauer had been the subject of an active investigation by the Navy Department, the Bureau had withheld initiating an additional investigation of Brunauer under the terms of the President's Executive Order on Loyalty of Government Employees because obviously such investigation would duplicate, in large measure, the investigation previously conducted by the Bureau, as well as that apparently being conducted by the Department of the Navy.

You also will recall that subsequent to this letter we never received a request from the Department of the Navy for an investigation of Brunauer under the Loyalty Program and ONI continued its active investigation of Brunauer. Accordingly, when we received the Loyalty Form submitted on Stephen Brunauer, copies thereof were returned to the Civil Service Commission by letter dated May 22, 1948, in which the Commission was advised that the Bureau had received information to the effect that ONI had for some time been conducting an investigation of the activities of Stephen Brunauer and that the investigation still was being actively pursued; that in view of the investigation being conducted by ONI, no investigation regarding Stephen Brunauer would be conducted by the Bureau.

With reference to Owen J. Lattimore, you will recall that Mr. Winterrowd's memorandum to you yesterday indicated that Senator McCarthy was identifying his current "Case No. 4" as that concerning Owen J. Lattimore. According to an article appearing in the final edition of the Washington Daily News dated March 13, 1950, Senator McCarthy named Owen J. Lattimore as a former adviser to President Roosevelt who was "pro-Communist." This article indicates he told a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee that Mr. Lattimore still holds a position as a part-time State Department Consultant on Far Eastern problems; that Lattimore, who was the late President Roosevelt's adviser in China, is a bad security risk and may already "have done this nation incalculable and irreparable harm."

Lattimore has never been the subject of a Loyalty Investigation. At the present time he is the subject of a pending espionage investigation which was initiated in March, 1949. CIA and ONI are cognizant of the espionage investigation being conducted on Lattimore but since this is an espionage investigation, no information has been supplied to the State Department.

However, in answer to a routine flimsie, requesting a name check for the State Department, according to memorandum dated February 3, 1950, liaison informed Mr. Walter E. Jessop of the State Department that the Bureau had

DR. ESTHER CAUKIN BRUNAUER
aka Mrs. Stephen Brunauer
Assistant Director for Policy Liaison
UNESCO Relations Staff
Department of State
Washington, D. C.

Background

Dr. Esther Caukin Brunauer was born on July 7, 1901 at Jackson, California, She was employed from September, 1927 to March, 1944 by the American Association of University Women, Washington, D. C., and at the conclusion of her services with that organization she was International Relations Secretary. She is married to Dr. Stephen Brunauer who is with the Office of Naval Research, Department of the Navy, Washington, D. C.

Basis for Investigation

The House Committee on Un-American Activities reported that the employee presided at a meeting on June 11, 1936 which was sponsored by the American Friends of the Soviet Union in Washington, D. C.

Results of Investigation

The files of the HCUA reflect that on June 11, 1936 in Washington, D. C. the employee presided over a lecture given by Myra Page which was held under the auspices of the American Friends of the Soviet Union. A leaflet describing this lecture states that Myra Page was an instructor at Commonwealth College in Arkansas, was a former member of the "Moscow Daily News" and was on the editorial staff of the magazine "Soviet Russia Today."

The American Friends of the Soviet Union was cited by HCUA as a Communist front. The magazine "Soviet Russia Today" was cited as a Communist front. Commonwealth College was also cited by HCUA as having received extensive donations from the Communist supporting Garland Fund.

HCUA files reflect that the New York Times, March 16, 1939, described Esther Brunauer as a member of the Executive Committee of the American Union for Concerted Peace Efforts, which the HCUA cited as a Communist front.

Washington Informant  (anonymous source known to the Washington Field Office) advised that "Dr. Esther Brunauer, American Association of University Women, 1634 I Street, N.W.," appeared on the active indices of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action, an organization which the Attorney General cited as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835. Washington T-2 (a highly confidential source known to the Little Rock, Arkansas Office) advised that the employee's name appeared in the active indices of Commonwealth College, described above.

Washington [redacted] advised that the employee in December, 1942, as a representative of the American Association of University Women, made arrangements with Vladimir Bazykin, First Secretary of the Soviet Embassy, to exchange publications with the Soviet Women's Anti-Fascist Committee. The informant stated employee had received a communication from the latter organization. S

Files of the HCUA also reflect that in November, 1937, the American Friends of the Soviet Union issued a one hundred page edition of its official publication, "Soviet Russia Today, celebrating the twentieth anniversary of Soviet Russia. This publication contained a list of speakers sponsored by the AFSU, including one Dr. Stephen Brunauer. Washington T-4 (Mrs. Franklin E. Allison, former neighbor of the employee) recalled that the employee met her husband through their mutual interest and activity in the Friends of the Soviet Union. U

Joseph B. Matthews, former Research Director of the Dies Committee, recalled his association with the employee and her husband in the late 1920s and early 1930s while he was a professor at Howard University in Washington, D. C. Matthews said that in 1928 Stephen Brunauer informed him that he was a member of the Communist Party. U

A representative number of neighbors, fellow employees, and associates of the employee, in addition to those described above, were interviewed and considered the employee loyal to the United States. U derogatory information in its files regarding Lattimore. Mr. Jessop informed that the name check request which had been furnished to the Bureau was sent after a passport had already been issued to Lattimore and Jessop requested that the Bureau supply any derogatory information concerning Lattimore for future use as he indicated Lattimore is a rather frequent traveler abroad.

In view of the fact that Lattimore was the subject of a current Bureau espionage investigation and our files contained information from the Civil Service Commission that Lattimore had left the employment of the State Department on February 12, 1946, it was believed desirable to obtain Lattimore's exact relationship with the State Department in connection with his foreign travel before we furnished any derogatory information to the State Department which had been obtained during the espionage investigation.

Consequently, by memorandum of February 24, 1950, the State Department, through liaison, was requested to advise as to Lattimore's relationship with that Agency and on March 10, 1950, the State Department in response to this inquiry advised they had no record of Lattimore's employment. However, on March 13, 1950, the State Department amended this statement and indicated that Lattimore had been employed for a three-day period in October, 1949, as a Consultant on Far Eastern Affairs on a per diem basis.

Advice was received on March 6, 1950, that Lattimore had been hired by the Economic Affairs Division of the United Nations on a fixed term appointment for one month. He departed from New York for Kabul, Afghanistan March 6, 1950 on a three-weeks trip to make a preliminary survey in Afghanistan in connection with a United Nations program to afford technical assistance to backward nations. Accordingly, a summary of information is being prepared for the State Department, and this is being expedited.

STEPHEN BRUNAUER
Technologist, High Explosives
Bureau of Naval Ordnance
U. S. Navy Department
Washington, D. C.

Background:

Stephen Brunauer was born February 12, 1903, in Budapest, Hungary, and was naturalized in New York City on September 1, 1927. He attended City College of New York and received his A.B. degree from Columbia University, New York City, in 1925. He received a Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins University in 1933. In January, 1926, he married Anna Friedman and divorced her in March, 1931. In the same year he married Esther Caukin. He was employed by the Department of Agriculture as a Chemist from 1928 to October, 1942. He was appointed a Lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve in August, 1942, was promoted to Lt. Commander, September 30, 1943, and was promoted to Commander, November 9, 1945. He was relieved from active duty November 13, 1946, and given a certificate of honorable service. He entered on duty September 9, 1946, as a Technologist, High Explosives, with the Bureau of Naval Ordnance.

Atomic Energy Act - Applicant Investigation:

On April 5, 1947, an Atomic Energy Act - Applicant investigation was instituted concerning Stephen Brunauer based on information received on February 15, 1941, from a representative of the House Committee on Un-American Activities (Joseph B. Matthews) that Stephen Brunauer and his wife, Esther Caukin Brunauer, who was Secretary of the American Association of University Women, were both members of the Communist Party. This information was furnished to the Atomic Energy Commission on March 22, 1947. This information was also furnished to ONI on December 13, 1945, in connection with a name check on Stephen Brunauer.

During the Atomic Energy Act - Applicant investigation the following information was developed.

Major John B. Gulley, then Security Officer for the Joint Army-Navy Task Force No. 1, Washington, D. C., advised that on his application for admission to Johns Hopkins University, Mr. Brunauer had stated that he was interested in attending meetings of "liberal groups." He stated that from a security standpoint Brunauer had not been issued a pass to allow him to attend the Bikini atom bomb test although his name had been submitted by the Bureau of Naval Ordnance as its representative to attend this test. Major Gulley related that when Brunauer went overseas he had misrepresented himself as a representative of the Office of Naval Intelligence.

Captain F. R. Duborg, Head of the Technical Intelligence Center, Operations 32-F-2, U. S. Navy, Washington, D. C., advised that he had heard that Brunauer, a Lieutenant Commander in the U. S. Navy, was going to Hungary and, having a small mission to be carried out in Hungary, asked that Brunauer see him. When Brunauer came in, Captain Duborg became immediately suspicious and decided that he was not the type of person to trust with this mission, although there was nothing definite on which he could base his opinion. He related that after Brumauer had gone overseas, various reports from him came in and that in one official report Brumauer made the statement that he had been asked by the Chief of the Office of Naval Intelligence to go to Hungary and round up various scientists with a view toward bringing them to the United States. Captain Duborg related that in his opinion this statement was a deliberate misrepresentation since in the first place Brumauer had not talked to the Head of the Office of Naval Intelligence, and Brumauer could not reasonably have received the impression from their conversation that the purpose of his mission was such as he had stated. Captain Duborg stated that he does not trust Brumauer but has never been able to prove definitely that Brumauer is disloyal.

The files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities had information that Dr. Esther Caukin Brumauer was one of the signers of the Call of the Congress of Youth in July, 1939, and the following is quoted from the proceedings of the Congress of Youth, which was the fifth national gathering of the American Youth Congress held in New York City in July, 1939:

"The signers are issuing this call, not as the official representatives of their organizations, but in their personal capacities as individuals concerned with the knowledge of young people in the United States."

The American Youth Congress appears on the list of organizations coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

Co-workers, associates, neighbors and references, which included Senator Joseph Ball, advised that Stephen Brumauer is a loyal individual.

During the Atomic Energy Act - Applicant investigation it was determined that the Office of Naval Intelligence was also conducting an investigation of Stephen Brumauer, who was listed as a Commander, USNR, and arrangements were made through the Liaison Section at the Bureau to secure copies of the ONI reports.

The Atomic Energy Act - Applicant reports were sent to the Atomic Energy Commission, Washington, D. C., on May 15, 1947, together with a summary of information in the files of ONI. Copies of the Bureau's reports were sent to ONI on May 22, 1947, and to the Attorney General on December 6, 1947.

Investigation by the Office of Naval Intelligence

The ONI investigation was instituted at the request of the Bureau of Ordnance, Department of Navy, based on the information received from this Bureau as a result of the name check on Stephen Brumauer.

An ONI report dated March 22, 1946, contains background information concerning Commander Stephen Brunauer. An ONI report dated April 16, 1946, reflects that the files of the Chemistry Department of Johns Hopkins University contained a letter submitted by Stephen Brunauer with his application for admission to the Graduate School in 1933 in which he stated that he was interested, among other things, in liberal clubs and participated as a spectator in liberal club meetings when he had the opportunity.

An ONI report dated June 28, 1946, reflects that Commander Brunauer was a personal friend of the Honorable Szegedi Maszak, who was then the Hungarian Minister in Washington, D. C., and set out the names of various Hungarian officials and scientists. ONI pointed out that while in Hungary, Brunauer had met many of the Hungarian officials and scientists whose names were listed. Information was also received from ONI that Brunauer had reportedly related that his brother was practicing law in Hungary. The files of ONI reflect that Brunauer had been officially sent to Hungary to report to Captain Dietrich, U. S. Representative on the Allied Control Commission in Hungary, in the Spring of 1946.

ONI also furnished a copy of a memorandum concerning Commander Brunauer dated January 23, 1947, which stated:

"The informant stated that he had known subject quite intimately in 1929, 1930 and 1931, and had met him socially on numerous occasions. Subject was, at that time, an Instructor in Chemistry at John Hopkins University in Baltimore, Maryland. The informant stated that there was no doubt that at that time the subject was definitely a Communist; that on numerous occasions he had discussed politics with subject and subject had always indicated definite pro-Communist attitude. The informant stated that he was surprised to learn that subject is presently Naval Attache in Budapest. He stated that he had not seen subject in a number of years, but he was certain that anyone as definitely Communistic as this individual had been, could not have changed his views over a period of time and he felt some investigation should be conducted as to subject's background and character."

An ONI report dated April 29, 1947, contains the results of an interview with Mr. S. Chapin, Director-General of the Foreign Service, Department of State, who had been appointed Minister to Hungary, concerning his contact with Stephen Brunauer who had met with Mr. Chapin in order to effect some arrangement whereby he could accompany Mr. Chapin to Hungary. During his interview with Mr. Chapin, Stephen Brunauer stated that while in Hungary with Captain Dietrich he got to know, among others, a few of the members of the Hungarian Communist Party, but he did not know the leaders of the Party. He thought that he could be of some assistance to Mr. Chapin because of his acquaintance with people in Hungary.

This report also contains the results of an interview with Mr. Audrey Keith Brewer, a former fellow employee of Stephen Brunauer at the Department of Agriculture, who advised a representative of ONI that Stephen Brunauer "used to be terribly pro-Russian. We used to have some rather heated political arguments. He was very atheistic. I would say that he was terribly Communistic....."

This report reflects the results of an interview with Mrs. F. E. Allison, 4930 Butterworth Place, N. W., Washington, D. C., a former fellow employee of Stephen Brunauer at the Department of Agriculture, who advised that a notice had appeared in the Sunday Star, Washington, D. C., around 1934 to the effect that Dr. Stephen Brunauer would speak before the Friends of the Soviet Union. Mrs. Allison related that on seeing this notice she advised the supervisor of Dr. Brunauer at the Department of Agriculture. When Brunauer was called in by his supervisor and cautioned not to make this speech, she was told by the supervisor that Brunauer had agreed not to make the speech but stated that it would be made by his wife. The ONI report pointed out that the May 6, 1934, issue of the Sunday Star, Washington, D. C., contained the following notice:

"Dr. Brunauer to Lecture.

"Dr. Stephen Brunauer will speak on 'Culture in the Soviet Union and in Nazi Germany' Thursday evening at a meeting of the Friends of the Soviet Union in its Headquarters, 1013 C Street, S. E."

The May 10, 1934, issue of the Evening Star, Washington, D. C., contained the following article:

"City News in Brief:

"Today

Lecture: Dr. Stephen Brunauer, 'Culture in Soviet Russia and Nazi Germany,' 1013 C Street, S.E., 8:15 P.M."

Friends of the Soviet Union was cited as a Communist front by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities.

An ONI report dated September 18, 1947, reflects that on January 27, 1926, Stephen Brunauer married Anna Friedman. Marriage records on file at the City Clerk's Office, Bronx County, New York, New York, reflect that Stephen Brunauer listed his parents as Sarah and Louis Popper. The records of the Supreme Court, Bronx, New York, reflect that Mrs. Anna Brunauer had been granted a divorce from Stephen Brunauer on March 20, 1931. This report reflects that John Roman, brother of Anna Friedman, the former wife of Stephen Brunauer, was the editor of the Hungarian newspaper "Magyar Jovo," which was allegedly Communist controlled and subsidized by the International Workers Order. The report continues that confidential informants have stated that Roman is the dominant force and one of the chief leaders of the Hungarian Communists in the United States.

International Workers Order appears on the list of organizations coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

A copy of the ONI report dated September 18, 1947, received subsequent to completion of the Bureau's Atomic Energy Act investigation, was sent to the Atomic Energy Commission on October 27, 1947.

An ONI report dated April 5, 1948, reflects the negative results of the investigation conducted to determine if Stephen Brunauer had written for a Communist publication under an assumed name.

This information was furnished the Atomic Energy Commission by letter dated April 28, 1948.

Two copies of a letter from the Office of the Naval Attache, American Embassy, Paris, France, dated April 22, 1948, which had been furnished by ONI, were sent to the Atomic Energy Commission by letter dated May 4, 1948. U

An ONI report dated July 26, 1948, contains background information concerning Stephen Brunauer's former wife, Anna Friedman, also known as Anna Krauss, Anna Popper, Anna Brunauer, who was then residing in Santiago, Chile. An ONI report dated July 27, 1948, consisted of a summary of information and an investigative recapitulation of the results of investigation conducted by ONI concerning Commander Stephen Brunauer, USNR (Inactive). A copy of these reports were furnished to the Atomic Energy Commission on February 7, 1949.

An ONI report dated September 30, 1948, consisted of a portion of the transcript of the Loyalty Board Hearing granted Mrs. Esther Caukin Brunauer on July 28, 1948; a letter from the U. S. Naval Attache, Santiago, Chile, dated September 10, 1948, setting forth the results of the interview with Brunauer's former wife, Anna Friedman; a translation of a letter of power of attorney; and a photostatic copy of Form 57 executed by Stephen Brunauer on August 22, 1946. Anna Friedman Krauss was accompanied by her husband, Louis Krauss, when she was interviewed in Santiago, Chile, concerning Stephen Brunauer. Although she expressed her willingness to cooperate, she furnished no information reflecting on the loyalty of Brunauer. The interviewer commented, "The overall impression obtained from this interview was that the Krausses were definitely wary about handing out any information concerning Brunauer. Their emphatic attempts at veering away from any connection with a leftist background was obvious."

The ONI pointed out that Stephen Brunauer had possibly falsified his Form 57 inasmuch as he had answered "no" to Question 26 which reads as follows: "Do you advocate or have you ever advocated, or are you now or have you ever been a member or any organization that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence?" ONI pointed out that in his testimony before the Loyalty Hearing Board in behalf of his wife, Stephen Brunauer admitted former membership in the Communist Party.

In its letter of October 8, 1948, ONI pointed out that their report of September 30, 1948, was a closing investigative report and that the entire file on Stephen Brunauer had been referred to the Office of Industrial Relations of the Navy Department for a decision as to future procedure.

Information Obtained by the Bureau Subsequent to the Atomic Energy Act - Applicant Investigation

By letter dated December 17, 1947, the Washington Field Office furnished the following information which had been received from Confidential Informants Washington  U

Confidential Informant Washington [redacted] who has furnished reliable information, advised that one Edmund Ferency, a Hungarian citizen and a member of the Communist Party, was the Hungarian delegate to the UNESCO conference held in Mexico City. Informant stated that during this conference the question came up as to whether Hungary would be permitted to become a member and when the question came to a vote all nations, except the United States, voted in favor of Hungary's admission. The United States delegate, Dr. Esther Caukin Brunauer, abstained from voting. According to this informant, Ferency became incensed at Dr. Brunauer's refusal to vote in favor of Hungary's admission and told Dr. Brunauer that in retaliation he would ruin her husband. Ferency told Dr. Brunauer that he knew of her husband's present position in the United States Navy and that he was certain the proper authorities in the United States would be interested in knowing that the husband had formerly written articles under an assumed name for an American Communist newspaper and, further, that he, Ferency, knew where he could locate two or three American citizens who knew this to be a fact and by whom he, Ferency, could prove this allegation. Washington [redacted] advised that Ferency left for New York en route to Hungary and that he was to fly to Europe on December 16, 1947. He added that Andrew Sik, Cultural Attache at the Hungarian Legation and alleged to be a Communist Party member by Washington [redacted] became aware of the statements made by Ferency, and he believed that Sik finally persuaded Ferency to desist from any action in this matter. This informant believes that neither Esther Brunauer nor Stephen Brunauer are sympathetic toward the Communist Party or its policies. Informant declined to furnish a signed statement and does not desire to testify.

Confidential Informant Washington [redacted] who has furnished reliable information, advised that he is well acquainted with Esther Brunauer and Stephen Brunauer and does not consider either of them Communists or sympathetic to Communism but rather feels that they are both loyal to the United States. He advised that many years ago, around 1925, Stephen Brunauer wrote some articles for an American-Hungarian language newspaper called "Magyar-Jovo," published in New York City. He believed that Stephen Brunauer wrote under the name of Stephen Barabas. The paper was operated by John Roman, brother of his first wife, and, according to this informant, this paper was a Communist language paper for Hungarian groups at that time. Informant declined to furnish a signed statement and does not desire to testify.

Both Confidential Informants [redacted] advised that Stephen Brunauer has a younger brother in Hungary who is a very active Communist.

The above information, which had been furnished by [redacted] was summarized and furnished to ONI in the form of a blind memorandum dated January 7, 1948, and was furnished to the Atomic Energy Commission, Washington, D. C., by letter dated February 4, 1948.

In connection with the Loyalty investigation on Dr. Esther Caukin Brunauer, Dr. Joseph B. Matthews, Research Director for the John A. Clements Associates, 250 West 57th Street, New York City, a former Research Director for the Dies Committee, advised that his knowledge of both Stephen Brunauer and Esther Caukin Brunauer is limited to the period of his association with them while he was a Professor at Howard University in Washington, D. C. During that time, which covered the late 1920s and early 1930s he met regularly with a small group of people for discussions on political beliefs. This group called itself the Liberal Club, and certain members of this group were "avowed Communists," according to Matthews. Matthews said that in 1928 Stephen Brunauer informed him that he was a member of the Communist Party, but he never had any positive information that Esther Caukin Brunauer was a Communist Party member although he "assumed that she was also a member in view of her close association with Stephen Brunauer." He said that both of the Brunauers were members of the American Friends of the Soviet Union and that on one occasion in 1934 Stephen Brunauer was to have delivered an address before that organization but "since he was a Government employee at the time, he was prevailed upon to forego the occasion." Instead, according to Matthews, Esther Brunauer delivered the speech which had been prepared by her husband. Matthews was unable to give the exact date or place and was unable to furnish documentary evidence that Esther Brunauer had delivered the speech.

The files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities reflect information indicating that in November, 1937, the Friends of the Soviet Union issued what it called the Golden Book of American Friendship with the Soviet Union. In addition, this organization issued a one hundred page edition of its official publication, "Soviet Russia Today," eulogizing Soviet Russia on its twentieth anniversary. Several hundred thousand signatures of Americans appeared in the Golden Book under greetings to the Soviet Government. The special one hundred page edition reproduced some of these names. Included in the list of speakers sponsored by the Friends of the Soviet Union in this edition was the name of one Dr. Stephen Brunauer.

Soviet Russia Today was cited as a Communist front by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities.

An examination of the ONI Summary Report dated July 27, 1948 on Stephen Brunauer shows that they had substantially the same information as set forth above.

The report of Special Agent Robert A. Frink dated December 14, 1948, at New York in the case entitled: "Gregory Hankin, aka, Henry Hankin, Consultant - Appointee, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C., Loyalty of Government Employees", sets out the signed statement of Mr. J. B. Matthews, which reads in part as follows:

".....While serving as a member of the faculty at Howard University, Washington, D. C., in 1928 and 1929, I was associated with a group known as the International Relations Club. This group was a small discussion group, composed of approximately 30 members, which held meetings once a week at an old Quaker meeting house on 'I' Street in Washington, D. C. The International Relations Club was an informal group without specific policies or courses of action and did not maintain a membership roster. The actions of the group, however, were controlled by approximately six persons whom I considered as Communists. I cannot remember the names of all of these persons, but at least three of them had at some time admitted to me that they were members of the Communist Party. They were MALCOLM NURSE, who later became a Commissar in the Communist International for the entire continent of Africa, under the name of George Padmore; Noel Field and Stephen Brunauer, a chemist; Esther Caukin, who later married Brunauer, was also a leader in the club, although she had never admitted to me that she was a member of the Communist Party. This group was not affiliated with the Communist Party, but I can not recall any incidents wherein there was open disagreement with the general Communist Party line which was being followed by the group....."

It is noted that the above information is, in substance, the same as that which had been furnished to ONI in connection with its name check on Stephen Brunauer. However, Mr. Matthews does point out that Noel Field was also a member of the International Relations Club at the same time as Stephen Brunauer and had admitted to Mr. Matthews that he, Noel Field, was a member of the Communist Party.

Action By Bureau Under Loyalty Program:

As previously indicated, active investigation of Stephen Brunauer under the Atomic Energy Act was completed and referred to the Atomic Energy Commission, May 15, 1947. Subsequently, on November 21, 1947, the Bureau received a letter from Admiral Thomas B. Inglis, Chief of Naval Intelligence, in which Admiral Inglis pointed out that ONI had for the past two years been interested in the activities of Stephen Brunauer who was described as a former Commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve and at the time of the letter a civilian employee of the Bureau of Ordnance, Department of the Navy. Admiral Inglis referred to the reports of investigation of Brunauer conducted by the Bureau under the Atomic Energy Act, copies of which had been furnished to ONI, and requested that a recheck be made of the Bureau's files for the purpose of determining whether there existed any additional data other than that previously furnished to ONI. It is noted that this letter did not request the Bureau to conduct an investigation of Stephen Brunauer.

At the Interdepartmental Intelligence Conference held on November 25, 1947, the case of Stephen Brunauer was cited by the Office of Naval Intelligence as one of three cases where FBI cooperation with ONI had not been satisfactory. On November 29, 1947, the Bureau responded to the letter received from Admiral Inglis dated November 21, 1947, and also responded to ONI's citation of the case of Brunauer as evidencing a lack of cooperation between the FBI and ONI. It was pointed out to Admiral Inglis that the Bureau had, under the provisions of the Atomic Energy Act and at the request of the Atomic Energy Commission, conducted an investigation of Brunauer and that copies of the reports had been furnished to ONI; that a recheck had been made of our files and revealed no additional information which had not already been furnished to ONI; that it appeared the Bureau had furnished to ONI all information in its files concerning Brunauer and had never been requested by the Navy Department to conduct any investigation regarding him; that the Bureau was at a loss to understand in what manner the Bureau had merited his criticism of its cooperation in this case. 4

On December 1, 1947, the Director received a call from Admiral Inglis advising him that Secretary Sullivan, Department of the Navy, had communicated with the Attorney General to request the FBI to expedite its investigation of Brunauer. The Director wrote a memorandum to the Attorney General pointing out that at no time had the Navy Department requested the Bureau to conduct any investigation of Stephen Brunauer; that the Bureau had conducted an investigation of him at the request of the Atomic Energy Commission and had furnished copies of the reports thereof to ONI. The Director advised the Attorney General that the Navy Department had never requested the Bureau to make an investigation of Brunauer and that the Bureau had furnished the Navy Department all information in its possession concerning him and consequently it appeared that Secretary Sullivan was misinformed regarding the true facts involved in this situation. 4

It is noted that on December 1, 1947, Mr. Ladd received a call from Mrs. Stewart in the Attorney General's Office, advising him that Secretary Sullivan had communicated with the Attorney General along the same lines as indicated above. Mrs. Stewart advised that the Attorney General desired copies of the Bureau's reports when the investigation was completed. Mr. Ladd advised her that the Bureau had not received a request for investigation in connection with Brunauer to which she replied she understood the request had been submitted by the Navy approximately ten days prior thereto. It was ascertained that the request in question apparently referred to the letter received from Admiral Inglis dated November 21, 1947, discussed above wherein the Office of Naval Intelligence requested us to recheck our files for any additional information concerning Brunauer which had not previously been furnished to the Office of Naval Intelligence. A check was made through liaison with Mr. Wilson of ONI who stated that he thought Secretary Sullivan had probably been confused in referring to a request for investigation and was probably referring to the request for a name check based on Admiral Inglis' letter of November 21, 1947. However, a memorandum was directed to the Attorney General furnishing him with copies of the Bureau's reports reflecting the results of the Atomic Energy Act investigation concerning Brunauer at which time it was pointed out to the Attorney General that continuation of this investigation by the Bureau after the completion of the investigation under the Atomic Energy Act would have been a violation of the Delimitation Agreement in that Brunauer was a civilian employee of the Navy and as such was within their jurisdiction for investigations relating to internal security, et cetera. It was pointed out to the Attorney General that copies of the Atomic Energy Act investigative reports had been furnished to ONI.

In response to the Director's memorandum to him dated December 1, 1947, the Attorney General addressed a memorandum to the Director dated December 16, 1947, referring to the request of Secretary Sullivan's Office for the FBI to expedite its investigation of Stephen Brunauer. The Attorney General advised him that he had talked with Secretary Sullivan's Office and understood that Admiral Inglis had been in touch with the Director and that appropriate arrangements had been made to acquire all the information necessary.

Aside from the above interchange of correspondence relating to the request from Secretary Sullivan's Office, Admiral Inglis addressed a letter to the Director dated December 3, 1947, commenting further on the reasons for his mentioning the case of Stephen Brunauer at the Interdepartmental Intelligence Conference on November 25, 1947. He pointed out that when the ONI received the Bureau's reports in connection with the investigation for the Atomic Energy Commission, ONI assumed that because of certain derogatory information contained therein, an investigation of Brunauer's wife and perhaps of Brunauer also would be conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation; that more recently they had received information that the Bureau had Brunauer under current investigation which lead Admiral Inglis to write his letter of November 21, 1947 (referred to above) and to make mention of the case at the Interdepartmental Intelligence Conference. Admiral Inglis further indicated that the assumption and the information ONI received regarding current investigation of Brunauer by the Bureau were incorrect. He went on to point out that the Secretary of the Navy had a direct interest in Brunauer's case and that ONI had continued this case as active and considerable information not contained in the Bureau's reports had been developed. He mentioned that the results of ONI current inquiries would be made available to the Bureau as soon as possible. Separate advice was received through liaison channels from Mr. Wilson of ONI on December 2, 1947, to the effect that the Office of Naval Intelligence was continuing its investigation on Brunauer.

In response to Admiral Inglis' letter of December 3, 1947, the Bureau advised him by letter dated December 13, 1947, that if the investigation of Brunauer had been continued by the Bureau on completion of the Atomic Energy Act investigation, it would have been involved a violation of the Delimitation Agreement in that Brunauer was a civilian employee of the Department of the Navy; that the information in the Bureau's possession was provided to ONI for such action as deemed advisable; that this action, of course, antedated the new procedure established under the President's Executive Order on Loyalty of Government Employees. It was pointed out further that information furnished to the Bureau periodically had indicated that investigation of Brunauer was actively being conducted by the Department of the Navy; that with reference to his wife, Esther Brunauer, a request had been received for investigation from the State Department and consequently an investigation was being initiated concerning her. Admiral Inglis was advised that "because of all the elements involved in this situation, and particularly in the light of the information contained in the Bureau's reports of its investigation of Brunauer conducted at the request of the Atomic Energy Commission, as well as the fact that Brunauer has been the subject of an active investigation by the Department of the Navy, I have withheld initiating an additional investigation of Brunauer under the terms of the President's Executive Order on Loyalty of Government Employees because obviously such investigation would duplicate, in large measure, investigation previously conducted by the Bureau, as well as that apparently being conducted currently by the Department of the Navy." It is noted that Mr. E. A. Tamm, then Assistant to the Director, in referring this letter to the Director for his approval pointed out in a memorandum from Mr. Ladd to the Director dated December 6, 1947, that "technically we probably should open loyalty investigations on Brunauer and his wife. This apparently is what the Navy is trying to force us to do. They have carried Brunauer as an officer and as a civilian on the Navy roles for four or five years in spite of derogatory information in their possession and now are hysterically trying to find a way out of their dilemma with the result that I am convinced they are trying to dump this foul-smelling goat on us and absolve themselves from Congressional responsibility by placing the matter entirely in our hands. I believe, consequently, that we should resist their efforts at this time."

Admiral Inglis acknowledged the Bureau's letter of December 13, 1947, by letter of December 26, 1947, wherein he indicated ONI was continuing their investigation of Brunauer since it involved a definite security problem of prime importance to the Navy; that all information developed by ONI would be made available to the Bureau as soon as possible and indicated that any information ONI might have which would be of assistance before a formal report was written would be given to the Bureau's representatives if desired.

Subsequently, on February 26, 1948, Captain Sabalot of ONI called Mr. Ladd and advised him that ONI had received a tip that Stephen Brunauer had been indicted by the Grand Jury in New York. He inquired as to whether Brunauer was a subject in the case in New York (the Gregory Case). Mr. Ladd advised Captain Sabalot that Brunauer was not under investigation by the FBI but that he had been informed that ONI was investigating Brunauer. Captain Sabalot stated Navy was taking no action toward prosecution of Brunauer, although they were investigating him.

You will note from the above that ONI was continuing its active investigation of Brunauer and consequently when the Loyalty Form on Brunauer was submitted to the Bureau, copies thereof were returned to the Civil Service Commission by letter dated May 22, 1948, advising the Civil Service Commission that information had been received by the Bureau to the effect that the Office of Naval Intelligence had for some time been conducting an investigation of the activities of Stephen Brunauer and that this investigation was still being actively pursued; that in view of the investigation being conducted by ONI, no investigation regarding Stephen Brunauer would be conducted by the Bureau.

By letter dated October 8, 1948, from Captain DuBois, Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, enclosing a complete copy of a closing investigative report by ONI concerning Brunauer, it was stated that inasmuch as all investigative action in this case had been completed, and in view of the fact that Brunauer was afforded a complete background investigation by the FBI in 1947 in connection with another matter, the entire file had been referred to the Office of Industrial Relations of the Navy Department for a decision as to future procedure. It was further indicated that the FBI would be informed of the ultimate disposition of Brunauer's case.

The Bureau file does not reflect that we have as yet received a final disposition in Brunauer's case from the Navy.

Testimony of Stephen Brunauer before the Loyalty Board in Connection with the Loyalty Hearing on his wife, Esther Caukin Brunauer.

ONI made available pertinent portions of the Transcript of the Loyalty Board Hearing granted Mrs. Esther Caukin Brunauer on July 28, 1948, which contains the testimony of Stephen Brunauer under oath. At this hearing Stephen Brunauer testified:

"...With your permission, I should like to say now a few words about myself. As you know, at the beginning of my adult life I became a Communist. If one's adult life begins at 18, then this was in the second or third year of my adult life. I met my wife when I was 25 years old, and by that time I was not a Communist any more. Even so, for a while I still retained some of the trappings of that ideology. My wife had a great share in helping me to get rid of these remnants of false beliefs, and was at my side in my progress.

"For more than a decade and a half I have been opposed to Communism and fought against it as best I could...

QUESTIONS BY MR. ST. CLAIRE:

Q. A few. Just as a matter of clarification of a few points, Mr. Brunauer, would you restate for the record when you did sever your connection in the Hungarian Section with the Young Communist League?

A. I do not remember the exact date, Sir, but it must have been either the end of 1926 or the beginning of 1927. I rather think it was the earlier date.

Q. For the better part of twenty years, more than twenty years since you never had any connection whatsoever with that League or the American Communist Party or any of the ideals of the Communist Party?

A. That is correct...

Q. Do you recall a Dr. J. B. Matthews?

A. Yes, Sir.

Q. Who is he, please?

A. Just rather recently I read about him in the papers in connection with some test, but I know that he was--I do not know what exactly his title was but he was on the Committee on Un-American Activities as an expert or adviser or whatever his job was...

Q. Do you recall at any time telling Dr. Matthews that you were a member in Baltimore of the Communist Party?

A. I believe not, Sir..."

Stephen Brunauer denied having any association with Dr. Matthews around 1934 in the Friends of the Soviet Union. Brunauer continued:

"As I mentioned in my statement, I still was a pretty 'pink' radical up to about the time of 1931-32 or maybe even later but...I was in an organization called the 'International Friendship Club,' which was organized by the Quakers here in Washington and which met at the Friends Meeting House at 1811 I Street or some place there. That is where I met my wife and I believe that is the place where I met Mr. Matthews..."

"Q. Do you recall an incident occurring in May 1934 in which you were scheduled to address a meeting of the Friends of the Soviet Union and having been invited to do so by a young man which you met earlier at a party?

A. I met him at a meeting where I spoke.

Q. Yes, at a meeting. Had you ever seen that young man before that meeting?

A. Does that happen to be this Hadmore whom we are talking about?

Q. I do not know.

A. I think I met him before...

Q. Do you recall seeing a so-called "Golden Book on Soviet Russia Today" about 1937?

A. No, Sir, I do not recall.

Q. Do you recall being listed in that book as being one of the sponsors of the American Friends of the Soviet Union...Or seen your name appearing in such a book?

A. No, I have not seen it...

Q. Would you have any reason to suspect why your name might have appeared in it?

A. The only reason is this, on this meeting I was supposed to speak at, and they may have listed me as a sponsor. I did not speak there. My wife spoke in my place, so I never did.

Q. Did you ever write for a Hungarian newspaper called 'Magyar Jaro'...

A. No; probably if it is supposed to be Jaro, that paper did not exist when I was in the Communist movement. It is a successor of the Communist daily which was called Uj Elore. I wrote in that paper occasionally when I was in the Communist movement back in, as I have told you, '24 or '25 or so.

Q. Did you write under your own name?

A. No, Sir, and may I say something about that?...The Communists told me to change my name, but the explanation they gave me was not at all to cover myself up because that was ostensibly a legal party, but they said, 'You work considerably in the Hungarian Section,' and I had a German name and they said, 'Why don't you take a Hungarian-sounding name, and then you will be more effective?' more accepted by the Hungarians with whom I was in contact, and those whom I was supposed to convince about the correctness of that..."

He admitted contributing four or five articles to this newspaper but stated that this contribution had taken place more than twenty years ago. Brunauer admitted knowing Joe Lokuras and stated that he knew that Lokuras was a Communist. In explaining why he came to be associated with the Communist movement, Brunauer reported:

"...I got acquainted with my former wife, to whom I was married for two years, and she was a Communist, and with her friends. They took me to a meeting. I listened to the talk, they worked on me, tried to convince me, this circle of friends she had and others, eventually convinced me to join this Hungarian Section of the Young Communist League. That is the way I got into this Communist movement.

"I think for a number of months I was just listening and watching things and talking with people, and then eventually--I do not know, perhaps a number of months or maybe a year, maybe less--I joined this group. So that was back in 1923, I guess, in 1923. That is about all I can say about getting in...

"Now about getting out of it, there were a number of complex things which came into my getting out. I became dissatisfied with their attitudes on one thing after another. For example, I gradually came to realize that the movement is directed from Moscow. For example, this is what happened. There was a so-called factional fight in the Communist Party. The Party broke into two factions. The subject of the fight was whether the Communist Party should work as a separate organization or whether it should work for the Farmer-Labor Party—that is what they called that movement at that time—in other words, a third party in the United States which would draw in the type of elements that third-party movements have since drawn in a number of times. This was at the time of the LaFollettes, and now there was a majority of the Party, led by Foster, which was opposed to this third-party activity and a minority of the Party, which was led by Rutenburg, and the minority was for this third-party movement.

"I was with the minority. In other words, I was for this third party. The Executive Committee of the Party, I believe a great majority, was against it. When it was put to the Party—on the latter fact I wrote on this subject a couple of articles in the Hungarian paper. This was put to a vote or referendum of the Party and the majority of the Party supported the majority of the Executive Committee and was against it, so I was on the losing side. But very shortly thereafter the order came from Moscow that the minority was right and the majority was wrong, so I became right, and by order of Moscow I got on the right side, but I didn't like it anyhow because it hurt my sense of—well, I believe in the majority decisions, and well, of course, I believed in sort of democratic processes even in such an organization as that, so I began to realize more and more the direction from Moscow.

"Then on one item after another—for example, I read books by the leading Communist writers and I read, for example, one book which had a great adverse affect on me, which was Lenin's book on Empiroid-Criticism. I had, like all other Communists at that time, a great respect for Lenin, which of course I have lost for a long time since, but here at that time I had a very great respect for him, but here he was discussing science, and I had been beginning to work in the field of sciences at that time and I know that scientists do not work and that scientific processes are not the ones he laid down, the man whom he attacked in his book, which is a very German physicist Marx, was really one who knew science and Lenin did not, so that was very disappointing.

"Then their attitude—I could go into details on a great many different things which I did not like and matters, the way they were working, the unscrupulousness, the philosophy that if the aim is right then you can lie and cheat and kill and do anything, I gradually, slowly but surely got disgusted with one thing after another.

"Q. How did you sever that connection? How did you break the link eventually?

"A. I began to stop paying my membership dues and dropped out and announced that I am dropping out of the Communist Party and stopped paying membership dues and saw the group less and did not attend meetings any longer.

"Q. All of this came about, as you feel, as a matter of enlightened philosophy?"

"A. Not nearly enlightenment on philosophy, but on the other hand their methods and ideas I did not like, and the way the whole thing was working at that time. Of course, even when I severed my connection, and years after that, two or three years after that, I had not had as full realization of what they are standing for and what the Communists are and how this Communist International, how the Communist Party in Soviet Russia, and so on, works, but I gathered it of course in the course of the years. But as I said at least—I would say at least fifteen years since I was definitely opposed to that, started to actively work against them.

"You see, there was a transitional period from the time when I just left them to the time when I began to work against them."

The Young Communist League appears on the list of organizations coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

Mrs. Esther Brunauer, in her testimony before the Loyalty Board, stated that Edmond Ferenczi had been a Hungarian delegate to the UNESCO conference held in Mexico City in 1947. She stated that in her contact with him, Ferenczi did not discuss the American abstention from a vote on the Hungary question and that Ferenczi did not at any time threaten to expose the fact that Stephen Brunauer had written an article under an assumed name for a Communist newspaper.

Referral of Brunauer's admission before Loyalty Board to Criminal Division of Department for decision regarding prosecutive action.

By letter dated October 15, 1948, Assistant Attorney General Alexander M. Campbell was advised that on March 11, 1947, Brunauer executed a Personnel Security Questionnaire for clearance in connection with work for the Atomic Energy Commission. At that time Brunauer was employed by the Bureau of Ordnance, Navy Department, Washington, D. C. In Item 16 of the questionnaire entitled "All Organization Membership, (inclusive dates and any office held)," he listed the American Chemical Society, 1929 to present; the Philosophical Society of Washington, 1938 to present; and the Washington Academy of Sciences, 1938 to present. Mr. Campbell was advised that the Bureau had never conducted a loyalty investigation of Brunauer in view of the fact that at the time the Executive Order concerning Loyalty of Government Employees was promulgated, Brunauer was under investigation by the Office of Naval Intelligence. The Navy was advised that in view of their investigation the Bureau would not conduct a loyalty investigation. There was enclosed to Mr. Campbell a photostatic copy of pertinent pages of the transcript of the hearing before the Loyalty Board of the Department of State concerning Mrs.

Esther Caukin Brunauer, wife of Stephen Brunauer. Attention was called to the fact that in his testimony before the Loyalty Board, Brunauer admitted prior membership in the Communist Party. There was enclosed to Mr. Campbell a memorandum reflecting the results of an interview with Brunauer's former wife by the United States Naval Attache at Santiago, Chile. Mr. Campbell was informed that on August 22, 1946, Brunauer executed Standard Form 57 and in answer to Question 26, which reads: "Do you advocate or have you ever advocated or are you now or have you ever been a member of any organization that advocates the overthrow of the government of the United States by force or violence?", he answered, "No." The Department was requested to advise whether the above facts constitute a basis for prosecution and if further action by this Bureau was desired.

By letter dated January 28, 1949, the Department requested that the Bureau contact ONI to ascertain whether its investigation of Stephen Brunauer has been completed; secure for the Department a copy of the ONI reports; ascertain if the Navy Department or the Atomic Energy Commission has preferred charges; secure for the Department a copy of any such charges and the answers thereto; and if Brunauer has had a hearing before a Loyalty Review Board, a copy of the transcript of such proceedings.

By letter dated February 16, 1949, Mr. Alexander M. Campbell was informed that ONI has advised that their investigation of Brunauer has been completed but the matter was still pending in the Office of the Chief of Ordnance. Copies of the ONI reports were furnished to Mr. Campbell. Mr. Campbell was informed that the Atomic Energy Commission had filed no charges against Brunauer and that no administrative review had been afforded this matter. The Commission's Security Office had made known that it was agreed with the Navy that Brunauer would not be used on any matters involving classified Atomic Energy material.

The Department advised in a memorandum in the case entitled "Stanley Slavko Schneller, Atomic Energy Act, Fraud Against the Government," that in those cases investigated as possible violations of the Fraud Statute in connection with the filing of a Personnel Security Questionnaire for employment with the Atomic Energy Commission when Sections 16 was entitled "All organization membership, name, address, type, (inclusive dates and any office held)", it was not believed that successful prosecutions could be had.

DETAILS

Owen Lattimore was born in Washington, D. C. on July 29, 1900. When he was one year of age, he left for China with his parents and resided there until he was thirteen years of age when he was sent to Switzerland and England to complete his education. He returned to China in 1919 and engaged in newspaper work and business in Shanghai, Tientsin, and Pieping. He traveled extensively in China and Asia and did research work in Manchuria and Mongolia under grants from the Social Science Research Council, the Harvard - Yenching Institute and the J. S. Guggenheim Memorial Foundation. U

In 1933 he joined the staff of the Institute of Pacific Relations as editor of its journal "Pacific Affairs" and worked in that capacity in China and the United States until 1938 when he was appointed Director of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations at Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore, Maryland. In July, 1941, he was appointed personal political adviser to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek upon the recommendation of President Roosevelt. In 1942 he resigned that position to accept an appointment with the Far Eastern Department of the Office of War Information and on March 24, 1945, was appointed as the Director of Pacific Operations for OWI. In December, 1944, he resigned from OWI to return to his work at Johns Hopkins University, where he is currently employed as Director of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations. U

The October 30, 1945, issue of the "Baltimore Sun" reported that Lattimore had been appointed as Chief Economist of the United States Reparations Commission for Japan. U

It has been reported that Lattimore has been engaged as a consultant and adviser on Far Eastern Affairs by various officials of the State Department, but inquiry by the Liaison Section of the State U

Department revealed no record of Lattimore's employment other than that he was engaged for three days in October, 1949 as a consultant on Far Eastern Affairs on a per diem basis at a rate of $6.00 per day.

Lattimore's name, however, appears on a Civil Service Commission list of Government employees whose loyalty was questioned. The Civil Service Commission card indicated he left the employment of the State Department on February 12, 1946. A loyalty form has not been received on him.

The "New York Times" of August 6, 1949, reported that the Secretary of State had appointed a three-man committee to review the situation in China and Central Asia. This committee included Dr. Philip Jessup of the United Nations; Raymond D. Fosdick, the former President of the Rockefeller Foundation; and Dr. Everett Case, President of Colgate University. On August 18, 1949, Dr. Jessup as "Ambassador at Large," wrote Lattimore and requested that he furnish the Advisory Committee with a summary of his views on the objective of the United States policies and methods to be employed in the Far East.

Francis H. Russell, Director of the Office of Public Affairs of the State Department, reported that Lattimore had appeared as a lecturer on the Department's Orientation Program for Foreign Service employees. (100-267360)

The "Baltimore Sun" of June 9, 1949, reported that Johns Hopkins University had been awarded $75,000 to carry out studies on "Inner Asia Frontiers" under a cooperative project sponsored by the Foreign Service Institute of the State Department, Johns Hopkins University, and the American Council of Learned Societies.

The Baltimore and New York Offices by teletype of March 6 and 8, 1950, reported that Lattimore has been hired by the Economic Affairs Division of the United Nations on a fixed term appointment for one month. He departed from New York for Kabul, Afghanistan on March 6, 1950, on a three-weeks trip to make a preliminary survey in Afghanistan in connection with a United Nations Program to afford technical assistance to backward nations. This preliminary trip will eventually be followed by a more prolonged trip next summer. Lattimore is accompanied by Harold E. Caustin, Deputy Director of the United Nations Economic Stability and Development Division and a Mr. Walter, a Belgian representative of the United Nations.

BASIS FOR INVESTIGATION

The current investigation on Owen Lattimore was initiated upon receipt of information from Alexander Gregory-Graff Barmine, a former Russian diplomatic officer who defected from the Soviets in 1937, who when interviewed on December 14, 1948 said that while attached to the Foreign Trade Commission in Moscow, he had occasion to see General I. Berzin, then head of Soviet Military Intelligence approximately every day. During the course of one of these visits, Berzin in discussing China mentioned to Barmine that the Soviets had some Americans working for them there. According to Barmine, Berzin named Owen Lattimore and Joseph Barnes as being two of these individuals. After his entry into the United States, Barmine began to read closely the writings of these individuals, as well as newspaper articles concerning them and from these sources, he formed his own opinion that they were actually Soviet agents.

Paul and Hedi Massing, former Soviet agents have likewise expressed the view, based upon Lattimore's writings, that he is a Soviet agent.

It should be noted that allegations along a similar vein have been received concerning Lattimore, but although an extensive investigation has been conducted between March, 1949 and the present date, during which time his activities have been closely followed, no tangible evidence has been uncovered to date to corroborate the allegations or to indicate that he is involved in espionage or known Communist activity.

RESULTS OF INVESTIGATION

The following allegations that Lattimore has engaged in espionage or pro-Soviet activities have been made, but to date no corroboration of these charges has been received:

1. As previously related, Alexander Gregory-Graff Barmine alleged that General Berzin had identified Lattimore as an American working with the Soviet Government. (74-1333-1147, p. 90)
2. As related above, Paul and Hedi Massing expressed the opinion that Lattimore was a Soviet agent, based upon a review of his writings.

4. On May 24, 1949, Bernard Yho, Secretary to the Archbishop of Nanking, China, who was a Colonel in the Chinese Army Intelligence during the war, advised the New York Office that in 1946, Yf Chi, Director of Kuomintang Intelligence had informed him that some Chinese who had been arrested by Kuomintang Intelligence in 1942 or 1943 had reported that Lattimore, while acting as an adviser to Chiang Kai-Shek, had been divulging information to the Soviets. Yho had never met Lattimore nor had he heard of him prior to this time, nor could he supply any further details about this allegation. He suggested, however, that the Chinese arrested may have been "information brokers" who bought and sold information for monetary gain rather than for ideological motives. This information was relayed to CIA on May 22, 1949 for investigation but to date nothing has been received from CIA to confirm the allegation. (100-24628-38) u

5. Miss Freda Uteley was interviewed on May 16, 1949 by agents of the Washington Field Division and stated that she formerly worked for the Comintern in Moscow. She said that in the spring of 1936, she met Lattimore with Edward C. Carter in Moscow and at that time both were engaged as representatives of the Institute of Pacific Relations. She was then employed by the Institute of World Economics and Politics which was affiliated with the IPR. She said that Carter acted as a subservient employee of the Russians and took instructions from them, while Lattimore on the other hand was argumentative, was not inclined u

to yield in his judgment and according to Miss Utley, was not a member of the Communist Party. He indicated to Miss Utley that he considered Carter much too subservient to the Russians at that time. (Ibid. 80) U

Louis Francis Budenz reported that the Institute of Pacific Relations was not a Communist front but that Communist Party members and apologists had infiltrated its most influential committees. Budenz pointed out that Lattimore had been editor of "Pacific Affairs," journal of the Institute of Pacific Relations from 1934 to 1941. He related that in many instances Communists were successful in impressing their views on the State Department by planting articles with the proper slant in such magazines as "Far Eastern Survey" and "Pacific Affairs," as well as "Amerasia." The first named two magazines are publications of the Institute of Pacific Relations. (100-24628-80) U

6. On October 6, 1949, former Ambassador William C. Bullitt, Ashfield, Massachusetts, advised Agents of the Boston Office that in his opinion Owen Lattimore was the type of person whom the Communist Party would not permit to become a member of the Party because he was too valuable to the Soviet Union in the capacity of a non-member of the Communist Party. Bullitt expressed the opinion that Lattimore had considerable influence on policy-making officials of the Department of State and their relationships with countries of the Far East, but said that he was the type of person who was very hard to directly identify with the Communist Party because he was "too subtle." He further expressed the opinion that Lattimore, while not a card-bearing member of the Communist Party, closely followed the Soviet line. Bullitt said he had no factual information regarding membership in the Communist Party on the part of Lattimore. (Ibid. 94) U

7. Father James F. Kearney, S.F., in an article in the September, 1949 issue of "Columbia," a monthly publication of the Knights of Columbus entitled "Disaster in China," charged that Lattimore's advice to the State Department had already brought China to disaster and that there were those who believed that no American deserved more credit for the Sino-American disaster and the Russian triumph than Lattimore and a small group of his followers. Father Kearney was editor of the "Catholic Review" at Nanking, China from 1929 to 1946. (Ibid. 138) U

Father Kearney who is now located at Santa Clara, California was recently interviewed by the San Francisco Office and advised that U

he had no direct knowledge of Lattimore's activities and that the principal source of his information had been Alfred Kohlberg of the American-China Policy Association in New York City, who had charged that Lattimore "screened" applicants for positions in the Far Eastern Division of the State Department. Father Kearney pointed out that Kohlberg was intensely anti-Communist and was known to be indiscreet. Bureau files indicate that Kohlberg has not always been factual in his allegations and because of his intense hatred of Communism cannot be implicitly relied upon. (Ibid. 149)

8. Dies Committee. The "Baltimore News Post" of September 28, 1945, in an article entitled "Communist Propaganda in Our Armed Forces" by David Sentner and Kent Hunter, reported that Lattimore had been named in the files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities as being affiliated with the following Communist front groups:

- The Hollywood Writers' Mobilization;
- The Maryland Association for Democratic Rights;
- The Washington Committee for Aid to China;
- The Editorial Board of "Amerasia."

The reference to the Hollywood Writers' Mobilization possibly refers to a report submitted by the Dies Committee which revealed that a program announcing the Writers' Congress, 1943, listed Owen Lattimore, Office of War Information, as a speaker at the opening session scheduled for October 1, 1943, at Royce Hall, University of California. According to the program, the Congress was to be held October 1 to 3, 1943, under the joint auspices of the University of California and the Hollywood Writers' Mobilization. Nowhere in this report was any other affiliation of Lattimore with this group announced. (62-7582-1298, p. 989)

The reference to the Maryland Association for Democratic Rights possibly referred to a Dies Committee report that related that a conference on Democratic Rights was held June 14 and 15, 1940, by the Maryland Association for Democratic Rights, 19 Medical Arts Building, Baltimore, Maryland. The Maryland Association for Democratic Rights was reported to have been formed by a group of individuals who were concerned with "freedom of religion, speech press assembly...., no unreasonable search...., no arrest without warrant...., right to trial by jury...., equal protection for all persons." This association was affiliated with the National Emergency Conference for Democratic Rights. (61-7582-1298, p. 1136)

Among the sponsors for the conference were Owen Lattimore and Mrs. Owen Lattimore.

In this connection, a Bureau memorandum dated May 12, 1944, entitled "Vice President Henry Wallace's Trip to China and Russia, Information Concerning," contains a summary of information on Owen Lattimore in which it is stated: "He is also noted as a member of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties." The memorandum further states: "On February 12, 1941, he appeared on the same program with Frederick V. Field, Secretary of 'Amerasia' and Executive Secretary of the American Peace Mobilization, at a rally held in Washington, D. C., sponsored by the American Peace Mobilization." (100-1170-49; 62-71788)

These statements are significant inasmuch as both the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties and the American Peace Mobilization have been designated by the Attorney General as being organizations within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

An effort was made without success to locate specific references in Bureau files to Lattimore's membership in the NFCL and his appearance on an APM Program. (100-1170-49; 62-71788)

The references of 100-1170-49 and 62-71788 on which the statements in the memorandum were based contain information from the report of Special Agent T. W. Dawsey dated March 10, 1941 at Washington, D. C., entitled "National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, Internal Security - C." On page 49 of that report the following statement appears: "The following is a list of names and addresses of individuals and organizations contained in the active indices of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties. It is believed that those are the names of individuals.... interested in social legislation who might participate in a national lobby against legislation objected to by the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties."

On page 52 of this report, the names of Dr. and Mrs. Owen Lattimore, Johns Hopkins University appear on the list, which is not identified as a membership list. (100-1170-73; 49; 62-71788)

The further reference to Lattimore's appearance at a rally sponsored by the American Peace Mobilization, above referred to in the memorandum of May 12, 1944, could also not be substantiated by a specific reference in Bureau files. It should be noted that the Dies Committee reports contain a reference to a meeting held on February 11, 1941 at the First Baptist Church in Washington under the sponsorship of the Washington Committee for Aid to China, at which Owen Lattimore and Frederick V. Field, Editor of "Amerasia; member of the Board of Trustees of the Institute of Pacific Relations; and Executive Secretary of the American Peace Mobilization were the principal speakers. At this meeting Lattimore was quoted as saying that this country, "although pledged to become the arsenal of democracy, had become the arsenal of aggression." (Dies Committee Report, pages 1688, 1689; 62-7582-1298)

The "Washington Post" of February 12, 1941, also reported that Frederick V. Field, Executive Secretary of the American Peace Mobilization and Owen J. Lattimore spoke at the "Stop Aiding Japan" mass meeting held at the First Baptist Church on February 11, 1941.

In testimony before the Dies Committee, one Zola Ardene Clear stated that the Washington Committee to Aid China was a Communist Party front organization. However, there is no reference in the Bureau files to indicate that a similar meeting sponsored by the American Peace Mobilization was held in Washington on February 12, 1941 and it is thought that the reference in the memorandum of May 12, 1944, erroneously referred to the aforementioned meeting. (100-1170-49)

According to the Dies Committee report, the August, 1938 issue of the magazine "Amerasia" listed Owen Lattimore as a member of the editorial board. The report stated that the magazine "Amerasia" dealt with matters of America and the Far East, and specialized in Communist propaganda. (61-7582-1298, p. 18)

In this connection, Bureau files indicate that in the spring of 1945, one Andrew Roth, formerly a Lieutenant in the Office of Naval Intelligence, was arrested with five others, all of whom were charged with having in their possession certain secret Government documents. The charges against Roth were dropped early in 1946, although two persons, Philip F. Jaffe, Editor of the "Amerasia" magazine and Emmanuel Larsen, State Department employee were convicted and were fined $2500 and $500 respectively on the aforementioned charge. Roth was a known associate of Lattimore and at least on one occasion was known to have spent the night at Lattimore's home in Baltimore.

9. Other material contained in Bureau files.

The Maryland Civil Liberties Committee, 513 Park Avenue, Baltimore, Maryland, an affiliate of the American Civil Liberties Union, held a one-day conference on October 19, 1940. The introduction was given by Dr. Owen Lattimore, Vice Chairman. (100-26140-1, p. 13) U

Owen Lattimore and his wife have been prominent in Russian War Relief activities in the vicinity of Baltimore. Mrs. Lattimore was a sponsor of the Russian War Relief, Incorporated for Baltimore, and was on the Advisory Board of Russian War Relief, Incorporated, the national organization. (100-267360-920X1) U

Guenther Reinhardt, a confidential informant of the Bureau, advised that Lattimore attended a Russian War Relief dance in New York which was attended by many prominent Communists and Soviet Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff. Mr. and Mrs. Lattimore were guests of Edward C. Carter, President of Russian War Relief, Incorporated and sat in the Carter box with Litvinoff, Lady Clarke-Kerr and Lillian Hellman. (61-7566-3299) U

Owen Lattimore wrote a letter of introduction to Robert Sherwood of the Office of War Information for Haakon Chevalier, which he signed as Director of Pacific Operations, OWI. Chevalier was then under investigation as a possible Soviet agent. He had been very active among professional branches of the Communist Party in the San Francisco area, and allegedly was a Party member himself. (100-267360-920X1; 65-56402-292, p. 13) U

Owen Lattimore was included in a partial list of stockholders of the Metropolitan Broadcasting Company of Washington, D. C., who were suspected of Communist activities or sympathies. Mary Jane Keeney, the program director for the company, with whom both Lattimore and his wife are friendly, is now employed by the United Nations Secretariat, is a suspected Soviet agent and a close associate of subjects in the Gregory case. She is also in close contact with numerous satellite diplomatic officers. The Lattimores were observed in 1946 at the Keeney home in Washington. (65-56402-1908, p. 55) U

Lattimore and his wife were also observed in 1947 in company with Dave Wahl, who was described as head of the Communist underground movement in Washington and Vladimir Houdek, First Secretary of the Czechoslovakian Embassy. The meeting apparently was in connection with a trip that Lattimore contemplated to Czechoslovakia. (65-56402-1-1763) U

In 1945, Lattimore was Honorary Vice Chairman and served on the Board of Directors of Indusco, Inc., or the American Committee in Aid of Chinese Industrial Cooperatives, which is said to be Communist influenced and is currently under investigation by the Bureau as a Communist front. (92-2956-10)

10. Information obtained from public sources.

The Washington "Times Herald" of October 26, 1945, in an article entitled "State Department Sends McArthur Soviet Sympathizers as Aides," reported that, "Another Red sympathizer, if not a Communist, Owen Lattimore, has been named a Special Economic Adviser to Tokyo." (109-12-23-234-A)

The New York Times of April 21, 1947, in an article entitled "Fight Nears Climax in Pacific Institute," reported that Alfred Kohlberg, who had been carrying on a struggle against alleged Communist domination of the professional staff of the Institute of Pacific Relations, explained his contention that the Executive Committee of the Institute of Pacific Relations was dominated by four individuals - Edward C. Carter, Frederick V. Field, Harriet Lucy Moore and Owen Lattimore. (100-64700-A-9)

The "Chicago Tribune" of February 9, 1946, reported a speech in the House of Representatives by Rep. Shafer (R. Michigan), in which he charged that the State Department was being "Stalined" and that one of the Soviet sympathizers sent as an Aide to General McArthur was Owen Lattimore. (62-39749A)

The Washington "Evening Star" of April 9, 1944, in an article headlined, "Expense-Paid Palestine Parley Accused as Extremist Front," reported that at a meeting held at the Statler Hotel, Washington, D. C. on April 8, 1948, sponsored by the American League for a Free Palestine, charges were made by several other organizations that those attending were serving unwittingly as a front for the extremist organization. Among the college professors, members of Congress and former Government officials attending was Owen Lattimore. (100-316012-A)

The May, 1947 issue of "Plain Talk" charged that the turning point in American Far Eastern policy came with the mission of Henry A. Wallace to China in the summer of 1944. Among his advisors and guides on the trip was Owen Lattimore, who was described as the leading propagandist for the doctrine that Chinese Communists are not real Communists but are true Democrats who are "merely innocuous reformers." (94-36511-59) U

United States Army Intelligence Reports in two articles dated February 12 and 13, 1941, entitled "Moscow Derides American Forum of the Air" reported a Radio Moscow attack upon an American Forum of the Air Broadcast from San Francisco in which Lattimore, Congressman Walter Judd and others participated. Radio Moscow reported Lattimore's contention that American armaments were flowing to the Kudemintang Army and that claims that the Chinese Communists were receiving aid from the Soviet Union were completely lacking in proof. (62-73361-440, p. 8) U

An article by Lattimore on "Soviet Policy Toward Minority Peoples," which reflected a favorable attitude toward Soviet policies and an analysis consistently approving Soviet action in the Far East was published in "Far Eastern Journal" and was reprinted in "Soviet Culture in Wartime" in 1944. (123-1212-3) U

Benjamin Holberg, an anti-Communist writer prepared a 26-page document on Communist infiltration in the State Department for the Industrial Conference Board of New York City in 1946 in which he charged that Lattimore was the most important adviser to the State Department on Far Eastern Policy. He was classed as "one of a number of top-flight apologists in this country for Soviet Policy in China, who have written pro-Soviet books and articles, who have addressed and sponsored Communist front organizations, who have been officially associated with important Communist Party members on various boards, but who, nevertheless, blithely deny they are pro-Communist." Holberg said that one of Lattimore's tasks in the State Department was to conduct "orientation conferences and training programs for personnel of the Foreign Service." (62-39749-828) U

Owen Lattimore was named among noted writers who had supported Communist-controlled movements, manifestoes, political candidates and the like in an article entitled "Noted Writers, Actors, Artists and Professors Follow Party Line, Espouse Red Causes," published July 2, 1946, in the "Communist Fifth Column" by the Chicago Journal of Commerce. (100-3-2018 Enc. p. 27) U

The October, 1937 issue of "Amerasia" reported that Philip Jaffe, Editor of "Amerasia" had recently returned from a four-months U stay in the Far East, accompanied by two other members of the "Amerasia" Editorial Board, T. A. Bisson and Owen Lattimore. Jaffe interviewed Mao Tse-tung, whom it will be noted is the present leader of the Chinese Communist Government in Peking.

It should be noted that none of the foregoing information was disseminated to outside agencies with the exception of a brief summary furnished to the Attorney General on March 29, 1949 in requesting a technical surveillance.

CIA and the Navy Department were also advised that the Bureau was conducting an espionage investigation in connection with requests for investigation to those agencies on May 22, 1949 and May 15, 1949 respectively.

The State Department has requested a summary of derogatory information, and a memorandum will shortly be furnished that Department.

When informed of the Director's absence, Mr. Richardson requested to speak with Mr. Ladd and was transferred accordingly.

Mr. Ladd's office advises that Mr. Richardson believes there is a leak in the Loyalty Review Board. He stated that Senator McCarthy had made a statement this morning about John Stewart Service and this information had not been furnished to the State Department until after McCarthy's testimony of this morning. Mr. Richardson wondered if the FBI could help and Mr. Ladd advised him this appeared to be an administrative matter and that either he, Richardson, or the Civil Service Commission should look into it.

Former SA B. Downey Rice stopped by to see Mr. Laughlin late in the afternoon of March 14, 1950. Mr. Rice referred to a conversation had with you regarding the list of State Department employees and you suggested that in the event he had any information of interest to the Bureau that we would appreciate obtaining any data he cared to turn over.

Joseph R. McKeown
Mr. Rice advised that approximately two or three weeks ago he received information indicating that Senator McCarthy was looking for an investigator. Upon talking to the Senator, Rice agreed to undertake on a fee basis the investigation of certain cases. Mr. Rice said that he was assisted locally by former SA Dale Adams and more recently for a shorter period of time by former SA Don Surine. He added that former SA John Keenan handled some of the leads in New York.

Mr. Rice explained that Senator McCarthy had some information and it was the duty of he and his coworkers to endeavor to develop this material. He said it was a terrifically hard job in that in but a few cases was there any substantive material and, further, since Senator McCarthy was constantly "jumping the gun." Rice mentioned that he and his coworkers did succeed in getting some information on approximately four or five good cases which the Senator was to use in his statement before the Subcommittee on Foreign Relations this week. However, quite obviously, Mr. Rice continued, the Senator was not relying completely on his investigators but must have had some other sources. For example, Rice stated, he and his group furnished the Senator absolutely no information on Dorothy Kenyon. Whoever made material on her available to Senator McCarthy did it "via the back door." Rice said that he suspects that some newspaper reporter gave the Senator the information on Kenyon. He added that the Senator's mentioning her came as a complete surprise to him and the other investigators.

Rice then stated that former Inspector E. P. Morgan had been named as General Counsel of the Subcommittee on Foreign Relations to probe this matter. He was of the opinion that no other members of the staff had been selected at the time of his conversation. He said that he was aware that originally it was intended that the Assistant Counsel would be a Republican but that he, Rice, gathered from talking to Morgan that Morgan wanted a free hand and was not concerned with the political question.

Mr. Rice said that he and the other investigators who assisted him were "out" as of that time and would have no further access to any of the material available to Senator McCarthy.

Undermining Foreign Policy

A Communication

WE ARE deeply disturbed by the current attacks upon the integrity and devotion to American interests of the Secretary of State, Mr. Acheson, and the personnel of the State Department.

We are keenly aware of the corrosive results of such attacks upon the efficiency and effectiveness of Government personnel. However much Government officials may steel themselves against irresponsible onslaught, however much they may seek to ignore unfounded personal abuse, their ability to devote themselves to their tasks, to command public confidence and to persuade those with whom they deal are profoundly affected.

It is for this reason that we believe that the irresponsible personal attacks upon Mr. Acheson and the personnel of the State Department represent a serious danger to the national interest. These attacks, sponsored as they are by persons in high position, have the effect of undermining the officials who are in charge of our foreign relations. They are a severe blow to our effectiveness in international affairs.

NO ONE would suggest that it is necessary for Americans to agree on any particular policy advanced by the State Department. All international programs must be subjected to public criticism if they are to receive public support. But the attacks upon the State Department now made are not criticism of its policies. On the contrary, they are attempts to make both Americans and citizens of foreign countries believe that whatever policy the State Department advocates is the product of men who do not have the real interest of the United States at heart. This is being done by innuendo and suggestion of Communist affiliation and sympathy. The effort of the charges is to create suspicion of the motives of those who are engaged in the most difficult task which American diplomacy ever faced.

Nor would it be suggested that officials of the Government, including the State Department, should be immune from criticism or investigation. But to make unsupported charges of Communist affiliation, however disguised or qualified, is base, inexcusable and unpatriotic in a fundamental sense.

ANYONE—including a Senator—who impairs the effectiveness of our international relations for partisan purposes, discredits his party and his office; and anyone who does this by unfounded personal attacks upon the loyalty and integrity of individual public officials, is doubly guilty.

We are forced to conclude that the very purpose of these attacks is to divide the people of this country, for partisan purposes, on the crucial question of foreign policy administration. Certainly its effect is to weaken the position of our officials abroad and to impair their efforts to rally the free nations of the world to united opposition to the spread of communism. No one, except a Communist sympathizer or a vain, reckless and arrogant man would deliberately lend himself to such ends.

We write this letter in the hope that others will join with us in expressing to the State Department, in whose hands our destiny is so largely entrusted, that we believe in its high purpose and integrity and that we regard any attempt to undermine confidence in its good faith as subversive of American interests.

The Attorney General

Director, FBI

The Bureau has received two requests that it investigate an alleged leak of information in the President's Loyalty Review Board. These requests emanated from Mr. Seth Richardson of the Loyalty Review Board and Mr. Donald S. Dawson of the White House.

The requests are based on statements made by Senator McCarthy before the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which is looking into the loyalty of State Department employees. In dealing with the case of John Stewart Service, a State Department employee, Senator McCarthy stated that the loyalty case on Service was being referred back to the State Department Loyalty Board by the Loyalty Review Board.

Mr. Richardson, in connection with his request, stated that the decision concerning the Service case had been held very close to the Loyalty Review Board and had not been communicated to the State Department until the afternoon after Senator McCarthy, on the morning of the same day, had referred to the matter.

Mr. Dawson has been advised that the Bureau cannot undertake this investigation in view of the fact that the leak is purely an administrative matter within the Loyalty Review Board.

I also wanted to inform you that Mr. Richardson was advised that this matter is strictly an administrative problem and does not amount to any violation which this Bureau can investigate. It was suggested that either the Loyalty Review Board or the Civil Service Commission handle the inquiry.

SUBJECT: LEAK OF INFORMATION
LOYALTY REVIEW BOARD

DATE: March 15, 1950

On March 14, 1950, SA Edward S. Sanders was advised by Chester D. Smith, a personal friend, who is a Civil Service Commission legal advisor to the President's Loyalty Review Board, that apparently Thomas W. Beale, also assigned as legal advisor to the Review Board, is furnishing information to certain Republican Congressmen. Smith advised Sanders that while he could not prove this allegation, he based it upon the fact that the Dorothy Kenyon case was sent to the Loyalty Review Board for a post audit and was assigned to a Mr. Davis for review. Beale allegedly exhibited an extreme interest in the case and, in fact, wrote the review of the case in which he "blistered" the State Department for the stand taken in instant case. The memorandum written by Beale was referred to Mr. Mulloy, under whom the legal advisors operate, and Mulloy returned the case to the State Department by letter which neither approved nor disapproved the stand taken by the State Department. However, according to Smith, the next morning Senator McCarthy severely criticized the State Department for its stand and quoted the stand supposedly taken by the Loyalty Review Board. McCarthy's information apparently came directly from the review written by Beale.

Smith further advised Sanders that Beale spends a great amount of his time abstracting information from Bureau reports, reports from the House Un-American Activities Committee and other sources on 3 by 5 cards which he cross references for personal files in his office. It was stated that this project is not a Civil Service Commission project, is not a part of Beale's official work, and is never used in connection with Civil Service Commission business. It was estimated that Beale had approximately 30,000 of these cards filed alphabetically in his office. It was further alleged that several months ago Beale carried home with him each night a full brief case. Smith did not know what was contained in the brief case but advised there was no reason for Beale to be taking official work home with him at night. Smith further advised Sanders that Beale had made the statement that he could sell the 3 by 5 cards in his file for a considerable amount. Smith did not indicate whether Beale indicated any intentions of "peddling" this information. He did state, however, that the file is strictly personal and that Beale would not go to such lengths to abstract this information "just for the fun of it." Sanders interpreted this remark that Beale either intends to use the cards politically at this time or perhaps for monetary gains at a later date.

According to Smith, in 1944 the Civil Service Commission established, for all practical purposes, that Beale had been furnishing information to Congressmen Wigglesworth, Busby, Reese and Vursell. He further pointed out that Busby was defeated last year for reelection but is running again in the next election and that his campaign is to be based upon the anti-Communist platform. He stated that Busby and his wife have recently visited in Washington, D. C. in the home of Beale.

MEMO TO MR. LADD

Smith advised Sanders that he was recently approached by telephone by a Mr. Houston, who is with AFGE, a Federal employees union, and was requested to furnish to a representative of an unnamed Congressman information concerning the inside operation of the Loyalty Review Board. Upon Smith's refusal, Houston allegedly remarked to another individual on the other end of the telephone line: "It makes no difference. I have another contact inside the Loyalty Review Board." Smith stated that Beale is acquainted with Houston.

Smith advised that he realized that the foregoing is not conclusive proof that Beale is giving out information, but that there definitely appears to be a leak in the Loyalty Review Board and that it is his personal feeling that Beale is the source of the leak. Smith characterized Beale as a staunch Republican.

The foregoing information was given to Sanders in the strictest of personal confidence with the understanding that it would be passed to you. Smith requested, however, that any action taken by the Bureau in this connection be in such a manner as to not indicate that he had furnished this information. He pointed out that several people working at the Loyalty Review Board are aware of the fact that he and Sanders are personal friends and that they would naturally suspect him of furnishing information to the Bureau. He advised that he is willing to furnish to the Bureau through Sanders any information he may have or may be able to obtain. He advised that his actions are not motivated by any personal dislike for Beale, but that he did not feel that the information in the Board should be divulged to other persons.

Sanders has advised that Smith originally set up the Civil Service Commission subversive files and has a number of years of experience in Civil Service investigative and administrative work. He is further described as a stable, reliable person.

RECOMMENDATION:

The foregoing is for your information and in accordance with your instructions to Sanders to submit this memorandum inasmuch as this matter would be of interest to the Director.

Mr. Peyton Ford called me with reference to the meeting of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee <sup>held this morning in the</sup> and Lodge were present. I commented that I certainly could not agree with Senator Lodge's attitude about issuing a statement and Mr. Ford agreed and stated that he had gotten a final agreement that if there was one leak about the meeting or anything connected with it then a statement would be issued promptly. I commented I certainly felt the Attorney General was entitled to that consideration. Mr. Ford then read to me a rough draft of a proposed statement to be used in the event of a leak and asked for my opinion. The statement is as follows:

"Senator Millard D. Tydings, and members of the Subcommittee investigating charges of subversives in the State Department met with the Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, Department of Justice, this morning on the invitation of the Attorney General for the purpose of giving to the Subcommittee such information as the Attorney General felt he could give to them <sup>consistent to the best</sup> interests of the United States. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover, prepared for the Attorney General complete analysis of the FBI files with respect to the one name on which the Committee sought the cooperation of the Department. The Attorney General read this complete summation to the Committee and both he and Director Hoover gave to the Committee a very complete statement on the file in this particular case and also a statement with respect to making available to Congressional Committee FBI files. The Attorney General pointed out to the Committee that the contents of this file must be kept in complete confidence, and the fact that such a file was in existence was not to be construed as any reflection on the person involved as it is standard procedure to investigate all allegations made. held this afternoon because we could have gotten a statement up in time for my appearance there that could have nailed it then. As it is I stated that because of Senator Lodge's position in the matter it will have to go over under Monday which is likely to cause a lot of speculations and charges being made up and down the country as to what the mystery is all about.

I told Mr. Ford the thing that concerned me, and which I did not care to mention at the meeting this morning, was that Senator Hickenlooper was not present and I was wondering if the agreements were binding as far as he was concerned because I certainly did not feel that the summary which was read at the meeting should be made public at any hearing. Mr. Ford stated that Senator Hickenlooper was bound by them and that he, Ford, would see that the summary was not introduced. Mr. Ford stated that if any other questions were asked of me the Attorney General and he would object to them, and upon my query as to whether the Attorney General would be back from New York in time for the hearing, Mr. Ford replied that he would be back in time.

Attention: Assistant Director D. W. Ladd

In accordance with verbal instructions of Assistant Director D. W. Ladd to Special Agent in Charge Guy Hottel on March 7, 1950, Special Agents Kenneth D. Annenson and William J. McGrath, Jr. attended the hearing of the Sub-Committee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the investigation of State Department personnel held at the Caucus Room, Senate Office Building on March 14, 1950.

During the afternoon session of this Committee meeting, Miss DOROTHY KENYON appeared before the Sub-Committee in response to her request and to answer the allegations made by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy.

Miss KENYON furnished background information concerning herself and answered the charges by stating that she is not and never has been a Communist, Fellow Traveller, supporter of, member of, or sympathizer with any organization known or suspected of being controlled or dominated by Communists. Her denial was intended to be all inclusive. She advised that she was a member of Americans for Democratic Action, American Civil Liberties Union, was a registered Democrat, and defined herself as being an independent liberal Rooseveltian Democrat devoted to and working for the working conditions of labor and the preservation of Civil Liberties.

She then followed the list of organizations which she was alleged to be a member of and which she procured from the newspapers and offered her explanations for each of the allegations.

Miss KENYON had a special text which she read to the Committee concerning the foregoing and a copy of this text is enclosed herewith.

Senator Hickenlooper, a member of the Sub-Committee, then proceeded to question Miss KENYON regarding the exhibits which had been turned over to the Sub-Committee by Senator McCarthy and Miss KENYON followed as her answers those which had been given to the Committee in her prepared text. For those organizations of which she stated she had no prior knowledge, she advised that she either had no information in her files, could not remember being active in them, or advised that she had withdrawn from the organization once she found out what the general purpose of it was.

Senator Hickenlooper produced a photostatic copy of an article appearing in the Daily Worker on February 10, 1944, which reflected a letter sending greetings to the Women of the Soviet Union. He pointed out that Miss KENYON's name appeared as one of the signers to this letter. Miss KENYON stated that she, along with other notable persons such as DOROTHY THOMPSON, had sent this letter of greeting to the Women of the Soviet Union, but pointed out that this was at the height of the war effort when the United States and Soviet Russia were considered close allies, and that she and the other signers did wish to express their admiration for the part the Soviet Women played in the war effort.

Senator Hickenlooper also called to Miss KENYON's attention a news story which appeared in the Times Record, Troy, New York, on January 17, 1950, reflecting the account of a speech Miss KENYON had made before a group in regard to the trial of ALGER HISS. This article quoted Miss KENYON as saying that the trial of ALGER HISS was a result of the hysteria brought about by the House Investigative Committee. She was also quoted as saying that there was no direct evidence to prove the accusations against HISS. In answering, Miss KENYON stated that these statements were correct as she recalled, and remembered also saying that she felt that any jury that might be selected to try ALGER HISS would be prejudiced to a certain degree. She felt that it would be impossible to get a fair jury for the trial of HISS because of the hysteria built up by the House Committee on Un-American Activities about the case.

Miss KENYON further added that she had always been a champion of Civil Liberties and a fighter for the cause of the underdog and that she felt that the terming of an organization as being subversive without direct process of law was in itself a violation of civil liberties.

In further defense of her statements that she was not a Communist, or Communist sympathizer, Miss KENYON stated that since she has been at the UN she has constantly fought for her Russian equal on the Board who is a Madame POPOVA. She also cited the release of a news item from Moscow which was critical of her work at the UN and her fight with her Russian counterpart.

During the proceedings, Miss KENYON was asked whether or not she had ever been questioned about her membership in these organizations by anyone at the State Department, to which she answered definitely no. In response to a question she stated that she would have appreciated and been delighted to have been questioned concerning any allegations or questions which might have been reflected in her file.

In closing the hearing, Senator McMahon of Rhode Island, produced a letter which he had received and which Miss KENYON's counsel read into the record. This letter was from a group of prominent New York attorneys attesting the loyalty and fine character of Miss KENYON.

League of Women Shoppers

I begin with the League of Women Shoppers because my connection with that organization, which was set up to investigate labor disputes, is ancient history and it was also very short-lived. Evelyn Preston Baldwin, wife of Roger Baldwin and a close friend of mine, became its president at its founding in 1935 or thereabouts. I was a sponsor. We both withdrew a year or so later. I remember that I did so because I did not approve the way the investigations were being handled. If it was communist then, neither of us knew it.

Political Prisoners' Bail Fund Committee

The Political Prisoners' Bail Fund Committee is also ancient history.

I have no documentation on this organization in my files but I remember that I served as sponsor for a short time at the request of Roger Baldwin. Mr. Baldwin, who was a trustee of the Fund, tells me that he and others set it up about 1925 to write bail in a great variety of worthy cases, some may possibly have involved communists but most of them definitely did not. It was liquidated about 1934. He regarded it as wholly non-partisan and non-communist. It is significant that it is apparently not on any subversive list. It is described in the charges merely as subsidiary to the International Labor Defense, which is on the subversive list. The connection between them is not stated.

There is no evidence it subsidiary of I.L.D. (4) (X)

Consumer's Union

The Consumer's Union is also ancient history. I have never represented Consumer's Union. I had acted as attorney for Consumer's Research in its incorporation and for several years thereafter prior to 1935 but I never acted for Consumer's Union. Consumer's Union came

Thus far I have not been confronted with this documentary proof and as I am totally unaware of the contents of most of the documents, I am in no position to make any categorical denials or assertions regarding such statements as they may contain. Here and now, however, I can and do state, with the absolute confidence borne of my personal and positive knowledge, that there does not exist and never has existed any genuine document that proves or even tends to prove that I have ever knowingly joined or sponsored or participated in the activities of any organization known to me to be even slightly subversive.

Frankness and caution admonish me to avoid creating false impressions or otherwise putting myself in the position of the lady who protested too much. I cannot and do not deny that my name may have been used, even at times with my consent, in connection with organizations that later proved to be subversive but which, at the time seemed to be engaged in activities or dedicated to objectives which I could and did approve. Nevertheless I challenge and defy anyone to prove that I ever joined, or sponsored, or continued to identify myself with, any organizations or individuals I knew, or had reason to believe, were subversive.

I do not even know the names of all the 28 or more Communist Front Organizations I am supposed to have joined. I have taken the list of organizations from the published reports in the press. The names may not be quite accurate and the list is apparently incomplete. It was impossible for me to identify some of the names and events described in those charges. I have done the best I could, however, in the brief time since hearing of them and have searched my files, and my own memory in respect to each one. If any further organizations are alluded to today I shall ask the Committee's indulgence for time to investigate and make my replies thereon at a later date.

My interest in education, in labor problems and in the problems of women made me an early member of the American Association of University Women, of which I am now second vice-president. I am also a member of the National Board of the Y.W.C.A., a director of the Women's City Club of New York, the Association for the Aid of Crippled Children, and the Committee of Women in World Affairs. I was also for many years on the board of the Consumers' League of New York and was for a time its President. I am also a member of numerous other women's organizations.

I am, and always have been, an independent, liberal, democrat, devoted to and actively working for such causes as the improvement of the living and working conditions of labor and the preservation of civil liberties. To the latter cause especially I have given much time and attention and have made speeches on that subject for many years in various parts of the country. ~~At times I have expressed~~ unpopular causes in that connection and have probably made some enemies of those who disagreed with my views.

I am, and always have been, an ardent, outspoken American citizen, yielding to no one in my admiration of the great privileges this country offers to all its sons and daughters and determined to do all I can to maintain those privileges inviolate forever. I am, and always have been, unalterably opposed to anyone who advocates the overthrow of our Government by force or violence or who otherwise engages in subversive activities or entertains subversive ideas.

I am not content to rely on these general denials and observations, and therefore proceed to deal more specifically with the charges against me. In substance, as I understand it, it is claimed that it can be established by documentary proof that I have been at some time a member of 28 or more Communist Front Organizations and therefore stand convicted under the doctrine of guilt by association.

jurists (of whom I was the only American) to study the legal status of women throughout the world. This Commission continued to operate until the war made further communication between the members impossible. I have also served on a number of governmentally appointed Commissions and committees dealing with such subjects as the regulation of employment agencies, minimum wage legislation, consumer cooperative corporations, problems growing out of the war-time employment of women, etc. I have also done a small amount of labor arbitration.

My interest in good government led me early into the ranks of the League of Women Voters, of which I have been a member for almost thirty years and which I have served in many capacities and offices. It also led me into the Citizens Union of New York, of whose Executive Committee I have been a member for almost twenty years. When the American Labor party was formed in New York I was one of its earliest members but I left it after our efforts to save it from communist domination finally failed. I am now an enrolled Democrat. I am also a member of Americans for Democratic Action.

My interest in civil liberties led me equally early into the ranks of the American Civil Liberties Union, of which I have been a member of the board for almost twenty years. In that connection I have fought on many civil liberties issues and have participated in many briefs amicus in defense of the bill of rights.

people and my impulse to fight for them is my religion and it is the light by which I live. I also believe that it is America. There is not a communist bone in my body.

This is a matter of grave consequence to me. Literally over night, whatever personal and professional reputation and standing I may have acquired after many years in private practice and some in public office, have been seriously jeopardized, if not destroyed by the widespread dissemination of charges of Communistic leanings or proclivities that are utterly false. The truth may never catch up with the lie, but in so far as I can, I desire to regain as much of what I have lost as possible and I have faith that this Sub-Committee will see that justice is done. Of course I am more than willing to attempt to answer any questions the members of this sub-committee, or anyone permitted by the sub-committee, may care to ask. I conclude with an expression of my appreciation of the opportunity and privilege afforded me so promptly, to answer these charges at this public hearing.

The issue was always slavery versus freedom. I raised the point over and over again in writings, speeches, at meetings, even over the Voice of America.

Eventually Moscow answered back. -- Maria Sharikova, Assistant Chairman of the Moscow Soviet on the Rights of Women is reported on January 5, 1949, to have said:

"Dorothy Kenyon, in endeavoring to conceal her reactionary stand has engaged in slandering the Soviet people, in particular Soviet women. In a radio broadcast over the Voice of America, she talks a lot of irresponsible drivel attempting to deny the political, economic, and social equality enjoyed by the women of the USSR, at the same time painting a glowing picture of the position of women in Britain and the United States, when she knows full well what their position really is. 'I am shocked at this shameful downright lie, completely unsupported by the tiniest fact.' As it happens, Dorothy Kenyon could not quote facts for that would at once disprove her assertions.

"Dorothy Kenyon had engaged in slandering the 'freest women on earth, the women of the USSR.' However, as any of the thousands of visitors to the USSR can witness, 'the slander indulged in by Dorothy Kenyon can hoodwink no one.'"

This is my defense. What does it add up to? With all the mistakes and errors of judgment which the best of us can and do commit only too frequently, I submit that the record proves without question that I am a lover of democracy, of individual freedom and of human rights for everybody, a battler, perhaps a little bit too much of a battler sometimes, for the rights of the little fellow, the under-dog, the fellow who gets forgotten or frightened or shunned because of unpopular views but who is a human being just the same and entitled to be treated like one. The converse of these things; dictatorship, cruelty, oppression and slavery are to me intolerable. I cannot live in their air, I must fight back. This is not perhaps a very wise or prudent way to live but it is my way. It has got me into hot water before and probably will again. But my faith in

This was signed, among many others, by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas. (See attached photostat),

This history of my efforts during the crucial years 1940-1941 hardly needs any gloss but it should give pause to those who dare to call me a Communist.

After Russia had been attacked we all changed our viewpoint slightly and many of us made earnest efforts to be friends with our new allies. I do not apologize for that impulse or effort. I think it was right and good.

However we failed. When the war ended the cold war began and it is intensifying. I have been in the thick of it. Confronted with Madame Popova of the U.S.S.R. at the United Nations I have had a fight on my hands from the outset. At the first meeting of our Commission on the Status of Women held in February, 1947, she sought preferential treatment for her particular pet organization, the Women's International Democratic Federation, (of which the Congress of American Women is the United States affiliate). I battled her on eight different occasions during that first meeting on that one issue alone, practically single-handed since some of the other delegates did not yet know what it was all about. They know now, though. The reports and summary records of the Commission's proceedings tell the tale.

The struggle went on at subsequent Commission meetings. It reached its peak at Beirut, Lebanon, last spring (See New York Times clipping of March 26, 1949, attached), when after bitter debate over many things, including equal pay for equal work, I finally demanded of Mme. Popova, whether women received equal pay for equal work in the Soviet slave labor camps.

The Communist party line in 1940-41 was anti-war, anti-French and anti-British. But it was not my line. Being on the contrary passionately pro-French and pro-British I became increasingly anxious to aid them as the months passed by, first by all means short of war and later by war itself if need be.

I was one of the original members of the so-called William Allen White Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. William Allen White in a telegram invited me to join saying,

"Here is a life and death struggle for every principle we cherish in America, for freedom of speech, of religion, of the ballot, and of every freedom that upholds the dignity of the human spirit. Here all the rights that the common man has fought for during a thousand years are menaced. Terrible as it may seem, the people of our country cannot avoid the consequences of Hitler's victory or of those who are or may be allied with him. A totalitarian victory would wipe out hope for a just and lasting peace."

I favored giving Great Britain overage destroyers, I favored Lend Lease, selective service, etc., etc. I made many speeches during that period extolling freedom, urging aid to the Allies and criticizing the isolationists and the Communists alike for their opposition.

On May 26, 1941 (a month before Hitler attacked Russia) I joined with other members of that Committee in an Open Letter to the President of the United States, in effect inviting him to declare war on the dictators. It read in part:

"We cannot close our eyes to the wholesale murder of liberty.... The dictators have extended their world war and world revolution from continent to continent .... The challenge is inescapable. We know that strong action, even armed action, will be required of us."

In the early years of my life I knew very little and cared less about Communists. They were an utterly negligible factor in my life. During the thirties, however, as world tension increased, they began showing their hand, and by the end of that period, I, like others, had come to know and loathe their philosophy. The signing of the Hitler-Stalin Pact in October, 1939, suddenly made the issues startlingly clear. I voiced those issues in a letter I wrote to Alex Rose, Secretary of the American Labor Party, under date of October 10, 1939, as a statement for him to use in conjunction with my candidacy as Judge of the Municipal Court:

"I regard with horror and loathing the Hitler-Stalin Pact. I agree with you that any fusing of the brown and red dictatorships is a treacherous blow to world civilization, etc." (See attached photostat of letter).

Events moved so quickly after that, by February, 1940, we had been forced to form a Liberal and Labor Committee, of which I was a member, to safeguard the American Labor Party and to fight the Communist attempt to capture it. (See attached photostat of leaflet). At the same time the American Civil Liberties Union found it necessary to purge from its own Board all non-believers in civil liberties. This action barred from its governing councils anyone "who is a member of any political organization which supports totalitarian dictatorship in any country, or who by his public declarations indicates his support of such a principle". Within this category we include organizations in the United States supporting the totalitarian governments of the Soviet Union and of the Fascist and Nazi countries (such as the Communist Party and the German-American Bund and others); as well as native organizations with obvious anti-democratic objectives and practices." Needless to say, I was not one of those purged, and I am still a member of that board.

Advisory Committee of the Citizen's Committee to Aid Striking Seamen

Milk Consumer's Protective Committee

I can find nothing on any of these matters in my files and have no memory of them except a vague recollection of the Gerson and Schappes controversies. If I participated in either of them in any way I have completely forgotten it and I am certain that I never approved or endorsed Communist activities in those or any other matters.

Congress of American Women

This is one organization I know something about. It is the American affiliate of the Women's International Democratic Federation, a wholly Moscow-controlled body over which I have been battling with Mme. Popova of the U.S.S.R. at the United Nations for all the years since the creation of the Commission on the Status of Women. To charge me with membership in this organization is nothing short of fantastic.

This completes the roster of specific charges.

One general charge remains, my "constant adherence to the ... party line," as evidenced by this alleged multiplicity of associations, (actually boiled down to a handful and most of them before 1940). Well, how about it? Is this all I have done? Is this the whole of my life? Emphatically, No. I have done many other things, some of them strangely inconsistent with the party line, some of them in flat contradiction to it. Let's look at the record, in the round and not just a distorted fragment.

American Committee for Democracy and Intellectual Freedom

I have no recollection of documentation in respect to signing a petition in my files. I do have correspondence, however, showing that in 1940 I accepted membership on a Citizen's Committee to promote free public education. The letterhead lists many distinguished college presidents and professors, including Miss Park, former President of Bryn Mawr and Professor Harold Urey. This organization is not on the Attorney General's list.

(12)

Greater New York Emergency Conference on Inalienable Rights

I can find nothing on this in my files but I find a press clipping reporting a meeting held in New York February 15, 1940, at which Newbold Morris and Mary Woolley, former President of Mt. Holyoke College, were listed as speakers.

Advisory Board of Film Audiences for Democracy and Advisory Board of Films for Democracy

I can find nothing on either of these organizations in my files. I may possibly have made a speech before them. Neither of them are on any subversive list that I can find.

Shappes Defense Committee

(15)

Daily Worker Letter on Simon W. Gerson

(16)

American Committee for Anti-Nazi Literature

"The President has asked me to extend to you every good wish for the success of the meeting and to assure you of his interest in all efforts to continue the good relations between this country and the Soviet Union."

As for the Red Dean of Canterbury, I certainly never welcomed him at Madison Square Garden or anywhere else. I surmise that the fact that my name remained on the sponsor list longer than it should have is the explanation of this incident.

American Russian Institute

I have no recollection of sponsoring the dinner in question but, since it was given in honor of President Roosevelt, it would not seem inappropriate had I done so.

(8)

American Lawyers' Committee on American Relations with Spain

Now for the group connected with Spain. This committee was apparently working early in 1939 to lift the embargo on Spain, which was defeated by the combined efforts of revolutionary forces within <sup>that country</sup> the community plus Hitler and Mussolini. This organization is not on any subversive list that I can find and I was on it

(9)

Washington Committee to Lift the Spanish Embargo

As for the Washington Committee I can find nothing on this in my files.

Veterans of Abraham Lincoln Brigade

The Abraham Lincoln Brigade probably belongs in here too. I have no recollection or documentation for this whatever. Furthermore, if the petition which they say I signed really contained a charge that war hysteria was being whipped up by the Roosevelt Administration it is inconceivable that I could have signed it, since I myself was then passionately pro-ally and in process of trying to force our government into greater and greater activity in their behalf rather than less.

June 15, 1949

"Gentlemen:

I am advised that you are still carrying my name on your letterhead as a sponsor of your organization.

I became a sponsor in 1943 or 1944 when the Germans were at the gates of Stalingrad and the United States was deep in admiration of the great courage of the Russian people. Anything which looked toward genuine friendship between the peoples of our two countries was highly desirable. Since then, however, your policy, as I have had occasion to observe it in the press, has had less and less to do with development of genuine friendship between the peoples of our two countries and more and more to do with mere apologetics for the Russian Government, which you have supported no less consistently than you have attacked the United States. This is no way to build friendship and it makes a mockery of your name and alleged purposes. My sponsorship of the Council as a genuine organ of friendship between the peoples has therefore long since lapsed.

I have previously requested you to remove my name from your list of sponsors and I must now insist that you do so.

Sincerely yours "

I assume that my name has been removed by now, although I have no way of being sure. I have no apologies whatever for sponsoring this organization at the time I did and under those circumstances.

As indicative of the standing it had, it is significant that President Roosevelt himself sent a message of greeting to the Council at its meeting on November 16, 1944, reading as follows:

"I am grateful to you and all those who are celebrating American-Soviet Friendship Day for the words of support and confidence I have received. There is no better tribute we can hold out to our Allies than to continue working in ever-growing accord to establish a peace that will endure. The Dumbarton Oaks Conference was a step in this direction. Other steps will be taken. In line with this objective such meetings as you are holding in Madison Square Garden and in other great centers throughout the United States are of tremendous assistance and value."

and that President Truman followed it up by another greeting on November 14, 1945, reading as follows:

into existence, as I recall it, following a strike and split-up of the business into two organizations. They both test merchandise and give advice as to good buys. This is where I had my short acquaintance with Arthur Kallet. He was with Consumer's Research and later with Consumer's Union.

Conference on Pan-American Democracy

The Conference on Pan-American Democracy comes next. I find a letterhead in my file listing me as a sponsor of this organization dated March 4, 1939, along with <sup>now</sup> Senator Paul A. Douglas, John Haynes Holmes, Quincy Howe, Stanley Isaacs, and Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, all friends of mine. I remember almost nothing about this organization except that I think I may have spoken before it in 1938 or thereabouts. I have never heard of it since. I certainly had no idea at that time that it was communist and I am sure my other sponsor friends had no such idea either.

National Council of American-Soviet Friendship

Now for the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship: I was never a member of this organization but I became a sponsor of it (along with many distinguished people) at the height of the war effort (in 1943, I think it was), when the Russians were making their stand before Stalingrad and many of us believed that friendship with the people of Russia was both possible and good. I withdrew my sponsorship some three years later, when I had become convinced that the organization was no longer being used for the purposes stated in its title. Not long ago a friend told me that my name had not been removed from the sponsor's list as I had requested, and I wrote demanding its removal. I quote that letter:

First, let me deny acquaintance with practically every one of the persons mentioned in the charges as being "familiar company" to me, "collaborator," or "fellow red." I do not know and have never to my knowledge laid eyes on Bernhard J. Stern, Albert Maltz, Anna Louise Strong, William Gropper, Langston Hughes, Hewlett Johnson, Ben Gold, Lee Pressmen, Whittaker Chambers, Howard Fast, Saul Mills, Ella Winter, John Howard Lawson, Henry H. Collins, Rockwell Kent, Lewis Merrill, Mervyn Rathborne, Dirk J. Struick, Harry Bridges, Paul P. Crosbie, Benjamin J. Davis, Charles Krumbein, Morris V. Schappes, Simon W. Gerson, Louis Weinstock, Irving Potash, Helen Selden, or Josephine Herbst.

I once heard Paul Robeson sing at a concert. Harry F. Ward was, in the thirties (before its communist purge), chairman of the board of the American Civil Liberties Union and I of course knew him there. Corliss Lamont is still on its board. I met Carol King years ago, before she went "left," but I have seen hardly anything of her in many years. Arthur Kallet's name I vaguely remember, as I vaguely remember Consumer's Union, but he and it date back in my memory at least fifteen years and, if he were a communist then, I did not know it.

I may be pardoned for putting the other names mentioned in a different category. They are Mrs. Dean Acheson, Stanley Isaacs, Philip Jessup, and Franklin D. Roosevelt. I am proud to say I have had a slight acquaintance with them all.

To repeat, the rest are unknown to me, except as above mentioned, and the innuendoes as to my relationship with them absolutely false.

Now for the organizations themselves.

I received my A.B. degree from Smith College and my law degree (Doctor Juris) from New York University Law School. I am a member of Phi Beta Kappa and have been for several years a Senator of the United Chapters of Phi Beta Kappa.

I come of a family of lawyers, my father having been a patent lawyer in New York City where my brothers and a cousin now practise under the firm name of Kenyon and Kenyon. My father's cousin, William S. Kenyon, was for many years a member of the United States Senate and later a Federal Judge in Iowa.

I was admitted to the Bar in 1917 and have practised law continually ever since except during certain periods when I held public office. Mine is a general practice. I am a member of the Bar Association of the City of New York, the New York County Lawyers' Association, the New York State Bar Association, the American Bar Association, the National Women Lawyers' Association, the American Society of International Law, the American Branch of the International Law Association, and several others.

I have held public office three times, first from June 1, 1936, to December 31, 1937, as Deputy Commissioner of Licenses by appointment of Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, second from January 1, 1939, to December 31, 1939, as Municipal Court Judge in New York City, also by appointment of Mayor LaGuardia, and third, from January 1, 1947, to December 31, 1949, as U.S. Delegate to the Commission on the Status of Women of the United Nations, by appointment of President Truman, ratified and confirmed by the Senate. I was also appointed in January, 1938, by the League of Nations as one of a Commission of seven notice or warning to me.

My answer to these charges is short, simple and direct. I am not, and never have been, a Communist. I am not, and never have been, a fellow traveller. I am not, and never have been, a supporter of, a member of, or a sympathizer with any organization known to me to be, or suspected by me of being, controlled or dominated by Communists. As emphatically and unreservedly as possible, I deny any connection of any kind or character with Communism or its adherents. If this leaves anything unsaid to indicate my total and complete detestation of that political philosophy, it is only because it is impossible for me to express my sentiments. I mean my denial to be all-inclusive.

So absolute a negation of the charges should be supplemented with an equally positive, but brief, affirmation of what I am and have been.

TUESDAY,

AFTER 2:00 P.M.

My name is Dorothy Kenyon. I live at No. 433 West 21st Street, New York City. I am a practising lawyer with offices located at No. 50 Broadway, New York City.

When I was informed of the accusations that were made against me before this subcommittee last week, I did explode. Doubtless my indignation led me to make some impulsive remarks in unparliamentary language. Reflection, and a recollection refreshed by such investigation as I could make in the interim, now permits a much more dispassionate approach. However, nothing can diminish the deep resentment I feel that such outrageous charges should be publicized before this subcommittee and broadcast over the entire nation without any

MR. TOLSON:

As a matter of interest, Peyton Ford told me today that he has a very high regard for Jack Peurifoy at the State Department. He stated Millard Tydings had put Peurifoy in a bad position by making the announcement the State Department had promised free and unlimited access to the files of persons suspected of being disloyal or security risks; that after this statement appeared Peurifoy contacted Tydings and Tydings stated that he deliberately issued the statement because he thought it would be good public relations to show the State Department was ready, willing, and able to cooperate. Peurifoy told Tydings the agreement was that the President would wait to hear what the specifics of McCarthy's charges were and would then make a decision. Tydings waived this off by stating it was a matter they could meet later on.

JOSEPH R

I asked Ford if Peurifoy wasn't in a spot in making available State Department files to the Appropriations Committee in 1947. He stated Peurifoy was very much upset about this since he had done this on the orders of General Marshall who had made the statement before one of the Committees that the State Department would make available the files. I told him my recollection was that Congressman Busby was carrying a letter around addressed "To Whom It May Concern," signed by Peurifoy, to people in the State Department instructing the files be made available to them. He stated that should this ever become an issue apparently Peurifoy has an explanation.

ENVOY RETURNS—Dr. Philip C. Jessup and Mrs. Jessup are pictured upon their return to Washington last night after a hurried trip from the Far East. Dr. Jessup, United States Ambassador-at-Large, came back to answer charges by Senator McCarthy that he has an affinity for Communist organizations.

Wisdom of Documenting

In his letter to Tydings, McCarthy said the recall of Service "amply demonstrated" the wisdom of his past procedure in slowly but fully documenting all his cases. He said he had hoped to document all of the 81 cases equally well, but finally decided to comply with Tydings' demand. He will furnish the names to the subcommittee in secret, he said.

When Tydings told reporters earlier in the day that he was promised access to the files, he said that he had called John E. Peurifoy, Assistant Secretary of State, and found him perfectly willing to make the files available.

The method by which this will be done, however, is not yet decided, Tydings said. He added that there is no question of him attempting to use powers of subpoena voted to his subcommittee by the Senate. The word "subpena" was not even mentioned in his conversation with Peurifoy, Tydings stated.

Search May Be Enough

It may be that Tydings will be content to send his investigators to the State Department to look at the files, rather than take physical possession of them in the Capitol.

Tydings seemed himself a little dubious about the wisdom of congressional committee searching executive branch files.

He pointed out that Presidents since Washington of several parties, had resisted attempts by Congress to obtain executive papers, and their power to do so had never been successfully gainsayed.

"So if President Truman lets the committee have the files," Tydings went on, "he will be creating a precedent. No doubt it will be seized upon to plague him by those who will ask for files they know pretty well in advance he is not going to let them have, so as to make a political football out of the situation.

"But in spite of that, the State Department indicates rather precisely that in the instant matter it will make the files available."

State Dept. To Open Files In Loyalty Quiz

Tydings Announces
Promise of 'Free, Unlimited' Access

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Senator Tydings (D., Md.) announced yesterday that the State Department has promised him "free and unlimited" access to its files of persons suspected of being disloyal or security risks.

At the same time, Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.), whose charges of Communist infiltration in the State Department Tydings and a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee are investigating, said he would "reluctantly" give Tydings the names involved in 81 cases.

McCarthy outlined these cases, without giving names, in a Senate speech on February 20. Tydings has been seeking the names from McCarthy ever since the investigating subcommittee was set up. Yesterday, talking to reporters, he repeated the demand in sharp words.

A few hours later, McCarthy wrote him he would turn them over in a few days, and by Monday at the latest.

This will permit Tydings and three newly employed investigators to search, at one time, the files in the 81 cases, plus those of some 33 more names that McCarthy has given the subcommittee.

Other major developments yesterday in connection with the investigation of McCarthy's charges were:

1. U. S. Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup, hurriedly called back from Far East and European talks after McCarthy said he had "an unusual affinity for Communist causes," arrived here yesterday. He said he was ready to appear before Tydings' subcommittee. He added that there is "no substance" to the charges.

2. John S. Service, United States diplomat denounced by McCarthy as pro-Communist, has been summoned home from India to appear before a State Department loyalty board.

In testimony Tuesday morning, McCarthy said that although Service had been given clearance by the department loyalty body several times, the Government loyalty board of appeals and review had recently made a post-audit of the clearances.

Then the board sent the case back to the State Department, McCarthy said, with a rejection of the findings, a demand that Service appear personally before the department loyalty board, and that a new panel, differing in membership from the one that previously heard the Service case, be convened for a rehearing.

Most of Charges Denied
Lincoln White, State Department press officer, flatly denied most of this yesterday.

He said the review board returned the case to the department Tuesday afternoon, several hours after McCarthy's testimony.

He added that the board did not suggest that Service should be denied a clearance, but simply that he appear personally—as he apparently had not done before—for questioning by the department's loyalty board.

Finally, he said the review body had not suggested that any new or different panel be appointed to hear the Service case.

White said the board's recommendation does not mean that Service is "under any suspicion" and he told reporters:

"We assume the board thinks that Mr. Service should have an opportunity to speak for himself."

White said Service is now en route by ship to Calcutta, India, to take up a new assignment as secretary in the American Embassy at New Delhi. He will return to this country immediately by plane.

A question still unanswered is how McCarthy knew in advance of the review board's action in sending the case back to the State Department.

SA Carroll listened to the captioned program yesterday in which the moderator was Carl Shipley and in which the participants were Robert Silverstein, Executive Secretary of the National Lawyers' Guild, Mrs. John Gunther of Americans for Democratic Action, and F. Trowbridge Von Bauer (phonetic). U

The opening comments were by Robert Silverstein who described the hearings propelled by Senator McCarthy as absurd, inasmuch as individuals were assumed to be guilty "by association." He abhorred the lack of objective standards in conducting the hearings and stated that charges of disloyalty should be based upon evidence not "guilt by association." He indicated that the fact that an organization was labeled pro-Communist without a hearing was not fair and he indicated that he could not see why inquiries were being leveled against the State Department which itself is conducting an anti-Communist campaign. U

Von Bauer maintained that the McCarthy hearings reflected the inability of the administration to fully cope with the security problem in an effort to ascertain what the Communist Party was up to and that Congressional hearings of this nature certainly do a lot of good and to prove his premise he mentioned the Alger Hiss case. U

Mrs. Gunther, in reply, stated that Von Bauer painted a terrifically bad picture inasmuch as he intimated that there were a number of Communists in the government and she felt that the Loyalty Program itself had not proven this point. She described the McCarthy hearings as a "smear campaign." Von Bauer replied that there was no room for Communists or Communist sympathizers and any efforts made to drive them out were worthwhile. U

Silverstein commented that Von Bauer's allegations hadn't been proven by the McCarthy committee or any other committee of Congress. U

Von Bauer retorted by saying that Communists constantly "squeal" when any sort of charges are publicly made and that Senator McCarthy's charges should come out and be aired. Mrs. Gunther wanted to know whether or not the Loyalty Program was not sufficient to ferret out disloyal workers in the government. Von Bauer stated that the administration had not done everything possible to dissipate public feeling that there were Communists in the Government. To this Silverstein asked for specifics. Von Bauer replied that he could not be in the position of being a judge; that he did not have complete knowledge of the evidence. Mrs. Gunther said people U begin to fear when accusations spring from governmental committees and Von Bauer replied that in this instance the inquiries were being made under the leadership of Senator Tydings who is experienced, fair and will give all an adequate hearing.

At this point Shipley steered the discussion along the lines that inquiries and investigations themselves could do more damage than actual damage done by the Communist Party. Mrs. Gunther observed that accusations by "headlines" were extremely dangerous; that headlines certainly gave aid and comfort to the Kremlin and the Communist Party by discrediting the State Department and that the net result would be that attention would be swung away from real Communists. Silverstein at this point stated that Senator McCarthy's accusations and activities did nothing ~~to~~ increase hysteria in the United States.

Von Bauer replied that we were not in a position to tolerate any compromise with Communism and cited the Fuchs case as an example of the damage which could be done. He said that even if a little hysteria crept in, nevertheless present Congressional activities were searching for something "deep."

Shipley asked why the President and the Executive Branch of the government could not handle the situation rather than Congress. Mrs. Gunther observed that the Loyalty Program was created for this sort of activity even though she felt that the Loyalty Program was unnecessary and expensive.

Silverstein indicated that if Congress had evidence it should be turned over to prosecuting authorities and that the Executive Department should remove persons on the policy level whose loyalty is doubtful. Von Bauer replied that all individuals whose loyalty was doubtful should be wiped out of government; that the Executive Branch should do the job but he wondered whether the Executive Branch was trying to do the job and stressed President Truman's indifference to this type of program. Von Bauer said no one could blame Congress for inquiring into these matters. Von Bauer was asked whether the Loyalty Program was not sufficient to cover this situation and he replied that at the present time no one was in a position to state whether it was adequate and again pointed out President Truman's indifference to the whole problem of disloyal individuals.

Silverstein commented that no one had the right to a job in government, but if people were kept out of jobs because of their political beliefs the net result was government censorship. To this Von Bauer replied that Silverstein evidently had a very tolerant attitude toward Communism and commented that every Communist was an Agent of Russia. Silverstein replied that everyone had a right to be considered innocent until proven guilty to which Von Bauer replied that Silverstein was not realistic.

MARCH 20, 1950

In summation Mrs. Gunther catalogued McCarthy's meager allegations as creating a situation of "guilt by association." Silverstein stated that McCarthy's charges were based upon ideas and associations and the net result was an infringement of an individual's basic rights. Von Bauer stated that Communism was a serious matter; that the public was concerned and anxious for the truth and that until the truth fully came out every avenue of investigative activity had to be pursued.

SUBJECT:

Peyton Ford called me at 3:00 PM and advised that he had just returned from a two-hour stormy session with Senators Tydings and McMahon. They are insisting that the files of the Bureau be made available to the committee in connection with McCarthy's charges. Mr. Ford stated that at the request of the Attorney General, he had called on the Senators and had very forcibly and flatly stated the Department's position and had stated that they could not be produced. Mr. Ford stated that the Senators agreed with his logic but stated that in this case they felt that the files should definitely be made available. Mr. Ford stated that he flatly refused this request.

He advised further that he had talked to Donald Dawson "Down south" by telephone today and that Dawson is also O.K. as far as the Department's position is concerned. Mr. Ford states he does not think the Senators are going to drop the matter at this point and he expects that he will have further sessions with them.

I told him it was imperative that the Department maintain its position that the files could not be made available. He assured me that he would do so.

Commentary in the State Department

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED
HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED
DATE 11/19/01 BY 60322 UCBAW

Late today Attorney General J. Howard McGrath confirmed the statement of Senator Millard E. Tydings that he had had a conference this morning with Senator Tydings.

The Attorney General, by way of explanation, said that this morning's meeting, which was attended by Senator Tydings and members of his subcommittee, was held at the Attorney General's office in the Department of Justice; that at this conference Senator Tydings discussed the desire of the committee to secure certain files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Attorney General and Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, agreed to accept an invitation of the committee to appear before the committee on Monday afternoon for the purpose of making such statements as they may care to make at that time with respect to the files.

In answer to an inquiry as to what else was discussed at the meeting, the Attorney General confirmed that there was a lengthy discussion of circumstances involving one principal case in which the committee was interested. The Attorney General said that Director Hoover, at his request, had prepared for him a complete analysis of the FBI file with respect to this one case; that the Attorney General read this complete analysis to the Committee; that both he and Director Hoover gave to the committee a complete summation of this particular file.

The Attorney General stated to the conferees . . at this morning's meeting that the contents of the file read to them must be kept in strictest confidence. He said that the fact that there was a file on this person was not necessarily to be construed as any reflection on the person involved, as it is standard FBI practice to conduct investigations on all allegations received.

Attending the conference with the Attorney General from the Department of Justice was Director J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI, Mr. Peyton Ford, The Assistant to the Attorney General, and, during the part of the conference when the Bureau files were not under discussion, Mr. John E. Pourifoy, Deputy Under Secretary of State.

The Attorney General said that the President of the United States has been fully advised.

Dear Mr. Hoover

Foreign Relations Committee

If the FBI files are released to the public gaze (and the information whooped up to make headlines and sell papers), it could cause incalculable harm. Not only to individuals but to our nation's unity.

Could you send us a statement of your stand on this that we could publish prominently in our next issue, and which I would bring to attention of other editors? If you can, I would appreciate getting it by next Monday, April 3d. We would like to publish your statement without any embellishment or any omission.

Faithfully yours,

ASAC Lally called from Baltimore at 11:30 A.M. on the morning of March 20. He stated that through Don Surine, a former Bureau Agent, the Baltimore Office has learned that Surine, who is connected with Senator McCarthy's Office, has in his possession a memorandum which contains information regarding Walter N. Posniak, a State Department employee. This memorandum quotes information from the report of SA Joseph Kelly and SA Clancy of the Bureau in June of 1948. SA John Montgomery, who saw the memorandum, believes that actual portions of the report were copied.

The former Agent also had in his possession the list of 81 names mentioned by Senator McCarthy. The only name which could be obtained by the Baltimore Office was that of Cora DuBois.

ADDENDUM

Cora Alice DuBois was identified by the Bureau as being Case #60 as referred to by Senator McCarthy. By your memo dated February 24, 1950, captioned "Communists in the State Department (Allegations by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy - Rep.-Wisconsin)," a summary memo concerning DuBois was sent to the Director. A copy is attached. Cora Alice DuBois is the subject of a full field loyalty investigation conducted by the Bureau in 1948, and copies of the reports were sent to the CSC on September 10, 1948. By letter dated June 15, 1949, the Loyalty Review Board advised that the employee had been declared "Eligible on Loyalty."

Walter N. Posniak. Bureau files do not disclose any identifiable information concerning this individual. It is believed that this person is possibly Edward George Posniak, a State Department employee who was investigated under the Loyalty Program in 1948 and copies of the reports were sent to CSC on July 26, 1948. By your memo dated February 15, 1950, captioned "Loyalty of Government Employees, U. S. Department of State," a summary memo concerning Edward George Posniak was sent to the Director. A copy of this summary is attached.

UNRECORDED COPY FILED IN 66-722

CORA ALICE DuBOISI. ALLEGATION BY SENATOR McCARTHY

"Case No. 60. This individual was employed by OSS, in the Division of Research, from June 1942 to September 1945, at which time he was transferred to the State Department. He is now a branch chief in Research and Intelligence. One of his former supervisors stated that he was a Communist.

"For some time he has resided with another State Department employee, previously mentioned herein, whose investigation was requested because of communistic activities. Nevertheless, this individual has been cleared and is still working in an important position where he handles top-secret material in the State Department."

II. POSSIBLE IDENTIFICATION

A review of the Bureau's files indicates that the above person is apparently Cora Alice DuBois, also known as Alice Cornelia DuBois, Chief, Southern Areas Branch, Department of State, Washington, D. C. Bureau records reflect that we made an investigation of this person under the Loyalty Program. The basis for this investigation was the appearance of the employee's name on an open letter to the President of Brazil requesting the release of Luiz Carlos Prestes, Honorary Chairman of the National Liberation Alliance of Brazil, from a Brazilian prison. This letter appeared in the December 3, 1940 edition of "New Masses" and was sponsored by the Council for Pan American Democracy, an organization declared within the purview of Executive Order 9835. As a result of this investigation, copies of this letter were furnished to the Civil Service Commission. In addition, it was developed that employee roomed with Jeanne Taylor who registered in the New York State elections in 1935 as a Communist and in September, 1941, signed two Communist Party nominating petitions in New York City. Reliable informants linked Jeanne Taylor with individuals connected with Communist front organizations who had given support to Communism. Jeanne Taylor was terminated from the State Department on April 23, 1947 as an undesirable employee. Miss DuBois was listed as a reference by Miss Jane Foster in 1943, when the latter applied for a position with OSS. A reliable informant identified Miss Foster as a Communist Party member during her stay in Washington. Miss DuBois was also listed as a reference by Furhan Abdul Careen, an OSS applicant who was formerly employed in the building housing the "Daily Worker," an East Coast Communist newspaper, and who had contributed articles to the "Daily Worker."

CORA ALICE DuBOIS (Continued)

In 1948, Miss DuBois requested permission from the Department of State to accept a nomination to the Board of Directors of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations, cited as a Communist front organization by the California Committee on Un-American Activities in 1943. Miss DuBois was employed by the Division of Special Information from June 8, 1942, until January 31, 1943, when this division was transferred to the Office of Strategic Services. She was employed there until September 30, 1945, transferring to the State Department. No former or present supervisor of the employee stated during this investigation that he or the employee was a Communist. Copies of reports in the Loyalty investigation were sent to CSC on September 10, 1948, with supplemental reports being furnished on November 9, 1948. By disposition sheet dated June 15, 1949, the Bureau was advised that the employee was "Eligible on Loyalty." As of August, 1949, this employee was still working at the Department of State, Washington, D. C. (121-8038)

EDWARD GEORGE POSNIAK
Economist
Department of State
Washington, D. C.

Background

Edward George Posniak was born on June 4, 1911, at Moscow, Russia. He entered the United States on August 8, 1935, and was naturalized in Washington, D. C., on January 3, 1939.

Basis for Investigation

In June, 1942, Washington T-1 [redacted] a reliable informant, of the E. Quincy Smith Real Estate Company, Washington, D. C.) advised that the name Edward G. Posniak appeared on the mailing list of the United American Spanish Aid Committee.

Washington T-1 was recontacted but furnished no additional information. b7D

Washington T-4 [redacted] a reliable informant) advised that Posniak was a member of the United American Spanish Aid Committee in the late 1930's. T-4 further advised that the employee's wife was a member of the Communist Party both before and after her marriage to Posniak. T-4 stated Posniak admitted being a member of the Communist Party in Europe and reportedly stated his father was a Trotskyite. T-4 reported Posniak came to some "open unit" meetings of the Communist Party and also to recruiting meetings of the Communist Party from 1938 to 1942. The informant said Posniak was "horrified" at the Russo-German Pact in 1939. T-4 reported that Posniak's wife was formerly secretary to Dave Lasser of the Workers Alliance. She was also active in the Young Communist League before and for a while after she became a member of the Communist Party. Mrs. Posniak formerly lived with Etta Claire Hershfield and the wife of Bernard Ades. Both employee and his wife have maintained close association with Hershfield, who, according to T-4, is an admitted member of the Communist Party. T-4 stated that Ades and his wife are members of the Communist Party. Mr. Ades ran for Governor of the State of Maryland on the Communist Party ticket in 1934, according to T-4.

Washington T-2 [redacted] a reliable informant) advised that Etta Claire Hershfield is a member of the Communist Party.

Other associates, fellow employees and neighbors consider Posniak loyal.

One informant, [redacted] a fellow employee in the State Department in 1946, now at Stanford University, Palo Alto, California, advised that Posniak seemed to be more patriotic to the country of his birth but could furnish no details. He informed that this opinion was based on his (Posniak's) approach to Czechoslovakian affairs which he handled in the State Department.

100-23-55

The United American Spanish Aid Committee was cited by the House Committee on Un-American Activities as a Communist front on March 29, 1944. The Workers Alliance, the Communist Party and the Young Communist League were cited by the Attorney General as within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

Neither Washington T-1 nor Washington T-4 will testify.

Reports to CSC, July 26, 1948; to Department, March 23, 1949.

Disposition

No disposition in file February 13, 1950. No prosecution by Department May 18, 1949.

My dear Senator:

I wish to acknowledge your communication of March 21, 1950.

In response to your inquiry, I wish to advise that this Bureau has not investigated Mr. Robert Morris, nor has he ever been officially associated with the FBI.

Mr. Frederick Ayer, Jr. was appointed a Special Agent on August 25, 1941, and voluntarily submitted his resignation on December 14, 1945. His record in the service of the FBI was excellent.

I trust that the foregoing information will be of assistance to you.

With best wishes and kind regards,

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover
 Director
 Federal Bureau of Investigation
 Department of Justice Building
 Washington 25, D.C.

My dear Mr. Hoover:

On behalf of the minority members, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. and myself, of the subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, appointed to investigate charges against State Department employees made by Senator Joseph McCarthy, the names of Mr. Robert Morris as co-counsel and Mr. Frederick Ayer, Jr., as his assistant, have been submitted to the subcommittee to act as co-counsel and his assistant along with the counsel and assistants named by the majority members.

Mr. Morris worked with the Coudert Committee in New York investigating Communist activities, he was with the Naval Intelligence during the war and I believe he had charge of the Communist Soviet Desk for that department during at least a portion of that time. He now is associated with Congressman Coudert.

Mr. Frederick Ayer, Jr., was, as I am informed, with your Bureau for a substantial period of time during the war.

I am submitting these names to you out of an abundance of caution for any comment which you may care to make or for any information in your files which might indicate that it should be called to our attention, and that might mitigate against the employment of these men in this important capacity. I may say that Senator Lodge and I have no derogatory information against these men, but on the contrary have recommendations of the highest degree for the both of them.

Thanking you for any cooperation or information which you may feel it proper to give, I am

Sincerely yours,

B. B. Hickenlooper

Communists in State Department

PURPOSE: To record telephonic conversations held this morning with Colonel McIntyre of IDA regarding the above-captioned case.

BACKGROUND: Late yesterday afternoon, Colonel McIntyre called the Correlation and Liaison Section concerning the above-captioned case and referred to the Army's letter of January 5, 1948, requesting an investigation of Meigs who was being considered for employment by the Army. Colonel McIntyre asked whether the Bureau had ever replied to this letter.

This morning Mr. Millard of the Correlation and Liaison Section called Colonel McIntyre back and advised him that our file reflects that the Army's letter was acknowledged on January 12, 1948, at which time the Army was advised that an investigation had been instituted and that upon completion the results would be furnished through channels. Colonel McIntyre admitted that he had the Bureau's acknowledgment and wanted to know if any further reply had ever been made. Mr. Millard pointed out to Colonel McIntyre that the reports of a full field investigation were sent to the Civil Service Commission in accordance with established procedures under the Loyalty Program on April 19, 1948. Mr. Millard further pointed out that our files show that individual copies of the loyalty reports were given to the Army through liaison channels on April 20, 1949. Colonel McIntyre indicated that this was true and he was in possession of these reports. This satisfied his inquiry in this regard and thereafter he asked Mr. Millard concerning the general evaluation of informants by the Bureau in Loyalty cases. Mr. Millard informed him that in each instance confidential informants are evaluated as to their reliability in loyalty reports, and suggested if he wanted to talk to someone familiar with the Loyalty Program to discuss the matter with Mr. Johnson of the Loyalty Section.

Colonel McIntyre thereafter pointed out to Mr. Johnson that he was interested in knowing whether the Bureau's loyalty investigation had proved or disproved the original allegations against Meigs. Mr. Johnson informed him that we had conducted the investigation at the Army's request and that we had forwarded the reports reflecting the results of that investigation to the appropriate authorities and that the question as to whether the allegations were proven or disproven was a question for the Board adjudicating the matter to decide. Colonel McIntyre then asked whether, in those instances where an informant is evaluated by the Bureau as of known reliability, the statements of such informants could be taken as reliable. Mr. Johnson advised Colonel McIntyre that when the Bureau evaluated an informant as of known reliability, we did so on the basis of our past experience with that informant and that we had no reason to question the reliability of the informant. He further pointed out to the Colonel that it was a matter for the Army to decide as to what evaluation they felt should be given to the statements of such informants. Colonel McIntyre indicated that he recognized this fact and Mr. Johnson then indicated to Colonel McIntyre that if the Army had any question concerning the reliability of any particular informants in this case, if he would direct a letter to the Bureau we would endeavor to furnish any additional information regarding our experience with the informant consistent with security. Colonel McIntyre indicated he appreciated this fact but stated that he did not have time to direct such a letter to the Bureau since he was engaged in reviewing the matter apparently for the purpose of writing a summary on the case which "had to be out immediately." He further indicated that his inquiry had been satisfied. U

As you will recall, Peveril Meigs has been identified as "Case No. 3" cited by Senator McCarthy on the floor of the Senate as reported in the Congressional Record of February 20, 1950. It appears from Colonel McIntyre's closing remarks that the Army is aware of this and may be concerned over the fact that he is apparently still employed by the Army. U

It is noted that Meigs was investigated by the Bureau at the Army's request but as an applicant for a position with the Quartermaster General of the War Department. Our file shows that the Regional Loyalty Board of the Fourth Civil Service Region had jurisdiction over the adjudication of the loyalty case pertaining to Meigs since he was an applicant apparently for a classified position. We received a disposition from the Loyalty Review Board under date of April 15, 1949, reflecting that Meigs had been "retained" as an economist and educational specialist for the Department of the Army. This disposition, according to subsequent information set forth in file, was based on an adjudication of the case by the Fourth Civil Service Region Loyalty Board. Thus, the Army did not in fact adjudicate the loyalty case pertaining to Meigs. U

ACTION: None. There is attached a copy of a summary of the information developed during the loyalty investigation regarding Meigs which was furnished to the Director by memorandum dated February 24, 1950, in connection with the original identification by the Bureau of 68 of the individuals mentioned by Senator McCarthy.

It appears that the only purpose for Colonel McIntyre's call is the probability that the Army is concerned over Senator McCarthy's allegations regarding Meigs and is looking for an "out." It further appears that the Bureau has fully discharged its responsibilities under the Loyalty Program in this case by providing reports to the Civil Service Commission in the first instance for further dissemination to the Army and in subsequently providing individual copies of the reports directly to the Army through Liaison channels. As Candidate for Nomination

COLORADO

Don't withhold your vote today and let me on the ballot for the Primary Election. If you do, I will tour this district and show you the serious threat that Russia and Communism are to the welfare of the United States of America and to the World, according to the Bible; also what God intends to do with Russia, and what we the people of the United States must do also. The children of Israel had something to do in connection with the atheism of ancient Egypt.

I will propose a perfect working plan to avoid labor strikes every year when new contracts are wont to be made. I will show you a way to make new contacts and strikes unnecessary. Many other helpful plans I have for the welfare of the United States. This is still democratic America. Give me your vote and insure me a place on the ticket. Thank you.

Dear Sir:

I am a natural born citizen of the United States, and a taxpayer, also a hater of Communism.

I would like for you to tell me why it is necessary for the President of the United States to give his consent before the members of Congress or any of its committees can have access to Loyalty Records of the Executive branch of the United States.
I want to know what laws, customs or the like regulate these matters.
If they are laws you dont need to quote them verbatim, only cite them.

Thanking you very kindly for a short letter to advise me,

Dear Mrs. Hanill:

Your letter dated March 22, 1950, has been received and I do want to thank you for your kind comments relative to the manner in which this Bureau has discharged its responsibilities.

I appreciate your letting me have your thoughts with regard to making FBI reports available in certain instances, and I thought you might like to know that this is not a matter within my discretion.

FBI files are maintained as confidential in accordance with instructions of the Attorney General of the United States. For your information, however, I feel very strongly that his policy in this regard is essential to the effective functioning of the FBI.

Sincerely yours,

Hon. Edgar J. Hoover,
Federal Bureau of Investigation,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

First of all, let me congratulate you and your Bureau on the magnificent job you have done for many years in the interest of our great country. Nothing but praise for you and your men is in order.

Now comes the matter of F.B.I. reports in the case of the accused personnel in Senator McCarthy's charges. I feel that Senator Tydings' Committee investigating these charges, should have the F.B.I. reports on the State Dept. officials named. There is too much evidence that the Far Eastern Division of the State Dept. has acted consistently contrary to the interests of the U.S. How else can we get the truth, except by your reports?

Surely, with proper safeguards, you could make this information available to the Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee who are investigating Senator McCarthy's charges.

Many good wishes and thanks for your wonderful work.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Marie A. Hamill

Peyton Ford advised me that he was going to adopt the strategy of trying to get the committee to agree to let the Loyalty Review Board review the charges of the cases involved in Senator McCarthy's allegations and thus take the matter out of the hands of the Committee. He did not know whether this would meet with any success.

DML:dad

This certainly would be illogical as most of the cases I assume have been before the Board & have been cleared by the Board.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON
MR. LADD
MR. NICHOLS

Senator Brien McMahon called to advise me that there was some talk up on the Hill as to how Senator Joseph McCarthy was getting into our files and that the suggestion is never made that he is getting it from the State Department but that it must be coming from the FBI. Senator McMahon stated that unfortunately Senator Hickenlooper had asked Jessup, while he was on the stand, if he had not said to Owen Lattimore "will you go to China with me?" and of course that indicated a tap. He also commented that he felt the question as to whether the files should be made available will be stubbornly pressed as time goes on as he understands that McCarthy wrote something for this afternoon's release to the President in which he tells him that he is undermining the security of the country by not producing the files. I stated that of course my position was that it was up to the Attorney General to decide this issue; that I had previously expressed myself on the over-all policy as far back as the Coplon Case, and other cases that had arisen, that the files should not be made available. Further, I commented that I basically felt that when a person makes charges as have been made in this instance that it is certainly not incumbent upon the administration to prove the charges, in other words, if a man makes an allegation he should certainly be called upon to prove it himself, otherwise he should not have made the allegation. I stated that very serious accusations were made and now they were calling upon the FBI to produce its records and files to prove these allegations. I added that I felt this would set an over-all bad precedent; that if this can be done in one case, anyone else, either on the House side or the Senate side, can get up and make charges and demand that we produce the files, and if they are produced one time and refused another time then the assumption is going to be made that we are afraid to produce them. I stated it did not necessarily follow that if the files were produced they would sustain these allegations; that, as a matter of fact, I did not know what cases McCarthy was referring to except the nine that he has publicly named. Senator McMahon interrupted me at this point to comment that of course I knew who McCarthy meant by the top espionage agent and I stated that I assumed he was talking about Owen Lattimore but I was puzzled as to some of the statements that had been made.

Senator McMahon then advised me that a stenographic transcript had been made of the proceedings and he thought I might like to look it over. I commented that I would very much like to see this especially in view of the general assumption that McCarthy is getting his information from the FBI. He stated he would send me the transcript.

SENT FROM D. O.
TIME 4:15 pm
DATE 4-28-50
BY

35 MAY 1 1950

In regard to the speculation as to the source of McCarthy's material I advised Senator McMahon that yesterday Doris Fleeson, the newspaper woman, called and in my absence talked to Mr. Nichols. I informed him that she inquired as to whether McCarthy was getting his information from here and she was told that this was a perfectly outrageous question as obviously we would not do that, and then she queried Mr. Nichols as to my friendship for McCarthy and as to my supposedly Republican background and she was informed that many of the Senators were considered as my friends but that I hadn't seen McCarthy for weeks since this thing happened because I had purposely refrained from being any place where I might come in contact with him. She was also advised that I had been appointed in the Department under a Democratic administration and had served under both Republican and Democratic Attorneys General. I advised Senator McMahon that Miss Fleeson was quite hostile toward the Bureau and explained to him generally the basis for the same. U

In regard to the general assumption that this information was coming from the FBI I told the Senator that I, too, was very much puzzled as to where this was coming from; that I had certain suspicions but did not know whether they were very well founded. However, I stated that I believed McCarthy had either employed some ex-Agents of the Bureau or had been in contact with them. McMahon interrupted me at this point to state that McCarthy had said he had three ex-Agents working for him. Further, I commented that I understood that former Agent Downey Rice was working for him and that former Agent Surine was working for him or was going to work for him. I explained that Surine had been dropped from our rolls about three or four months ago and had been attached to our Baltimore Office which had been investigating Lattimore and although he had not been assigned to this case that would not have precluded him from having access to the files. The Senator was advised that I had requested a complete summary on the Lattimore case so that I would know what the facts were in back of it. I stated that we had never made a loyalty investigation on Lattimore because the State Department had never asked for one but that we have had him under investigation for espionage; that he has been involved on the fringe of a lot of Communistic activity though we have never been able to find any indication that any so-called out and out Russian Agents contacted him. McMahon stated that of course as a matter of fact he, Lattimore, has never been in the strictest sense an employee of the State Department. Senator McMahon stated he was very much concerned because McCarthy had stated he had the facts and he was willing to stand or fall on this one particular case, the Lattimore Case, though when he was asked if he had actually seen the files he said no and he was very evasive when asked if he had seen photostatic copies of the file or evidently had talked with someone who had seen the copies. McMahon told McCarthy that if he had open access to the file then certainly his committee would want access to the file. U

I stated very confidentially to Senator McMahon that last Sunday night in his broadcast Walter Winchell mentioned a fellow by the name of Adams; that he said the FBI had Adams in custody and the State Department ordered the FBI to release him and that Adams was a top Russian spy. I stated that this was not correct at all; that we had not had Adams in custody at any time; we had him under surveillance and while he was under surveillance an ex-Agent of the Bureau went to the New York Journal American and told them the story about Adams and they printed it over my protests and Adams disappeared. I further commented that Winchell called me last night and stated that someone in Washington had called him for details regarding Adams and he was advised that his information on Adams was incorrect, and that if the person in Washington who was asking for this information was some Member of Congress or in a position where they think they can use such information and he did not want to disclose his source of information he ought to tell them so. I stated his source was a party in New York City who, I thought, had gotten it from an ex-Agent and I did not know whether this ex-Agent was deliberately lying or whether by lapse of time he had gotten his memory twisted because these statements were not true. I stated it was merely a surmise but I felt probably the same thing had happened to McCarthy and of course it was even possible that some disgruntled State Department employee could be feeding him a lot of stories. U

With reference to the Lattimore Case I stated I did not believe the telephones were tapped; that I had not heard that angle before. McMahon then referred again to the questioning of Jessup and his denial that he had called Lattimore to ask him to go to China with him and the suspicion which this question by Senator Hickenlooper had aroused as to a possible tap. I also commented that I was concerned when McCarthy made some indication that he had seen reports indicating that two Russian agents had gone directly to Lattimore and I commented that it stood to reason if we had actual legal proof that Lattimore was a top Russian spy in this country we probably would have moved in on him long ago. McMahon agreed with me and stated that he had previously made the statement that it was very important that he know where McCarthy got his information and all about it because if the facts were as he detailed them then someone be it in the FBI, the Attorney General, or the Secretary of State, was in a very precarious position for having concealed a top Russian spy. I stated that of course Lattimore had been suspect and we have been conducting an investigation of him but we had no definite proof and if we didn't have it then nobody else would have it. I commented that I did not know McCarthy had staked all on this particular case and I was only assuming it was Lattimore. I stated that when these cases were mentioned in the papers they were unnamed and we tried to match them with our information but did not know how successful we were and that at first we thought McCarthy was referring in this particular case to John Carter Vincent but finally figured it must be Lattimore. I stated that I felt in this case as I did in the Coplon Case that any material in our files should be kept confidential; that if one committee were permitted access to our files then there was no reason why another committee should not have access to them, and of course there was the possibility that they might be used as a political football. I stated, however, that of course if the President, who has the final decision, decides it has to be done then it has to be done. I then discussed with him generally the various aspects of our problem regarding the confidential status of our files.

Very truly yours,

ENCLOSURE 62-37147-1489

PHILIP CARYL JESSUP
Deputy U. S. Representative
United Nations Security Council
New York City

Background:

Philip Caryl Jessup was born at New York, New York, on January 5, 1897, as the son of Henry Wynans Jessup born in Syria and Mary May Statesbury born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Jessup attended Columbia University where he received a Doctor of Philosophy degree on June 1, 1927. He was admitted to the District of Columbia Bar in 1926, and to the New York State Bar in 1927. From 1927 to 1945, he was a member of the Law Firm of Parker and Duryce, New York City. Since 1925, he has been a member of the Faculty of Columbia University at New York City. During 1924 and 1925, he was Assistant Solicitor for the U. S. State Department. In 1925, he served as Assistant to Elihu Root at the Conference of Jurists on a Permanent Court of International Justice. He lectured at the Academy of International Law at the Hague during 1929, and in 1930, was Legal Adviser to the American Ambassador to Cuba. Jessup held the position of Chairman of the Office of Foreign Relief in the U. S. Department of State from February until December, 1945. During 1943, and 1944, he also served as Assistant Secretary General at the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration Conference and the Bretton Woods Conference. Jessup is the author of numerous books dealing with International Law.

Basis for Investigation:

On May 28, 1948, a Loyalty of Government Employees investigation was instituted on Philip Caryl Jessup for the position of "Member, U. S. Mission to the United Nations, U. S. Department of State" on the following basis:

Confidential Informant New York City T-1, a reliable informant furnished a letter dated April 29, 1940, wherein appears the letterhead of the National Emergency Conference for Democratic Rights. This letter had listed Jessup as a member of the Board of Sponsors of this organization. It is to be noted that Confidential Informant New York City T-2 has advised that the National Emergency Conference for Democratic Rights, merged its work with that of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties in 1939 or 1940. The National Federation for Constitutional Liberties has been declared by the Attorney General to be within the purview of Executive Order 9835. Confidential Informant New York City T-3, a reliable informant advised that in June, 1945, Professor S. B. Krylov, Legal Adviser to the People's Commissariat for Foreign Affairs and Russian Delegate to the San Francisco Conference, informed Glesarenko, a Russian Consular official, that he considered Jessup, who was then Consultant with the American Delegation to the San Francisco Conference, to be a very important person and Krylov described the employee as "very useful to us."

Results of Investigation:

On June 31, 1948, the investigation concerning Jessup was discontinued when it was learned that Jessup had resigned his position as Member of the U. S. Mission to the United Nations. On July 27, 1948, the Civil Service Commission transmitted the letter from the State Department advising that Jessup had been appointed to the position of Deputy U. S. Representative on the United Nations Security Council, and requested that the investigation of Jessup be reinstated. In view of Jessup's latter position, Departmental advice was requested as to whether the investigation should be reinstated. Under date of September 4, 1948, the Department authorized such investigation.

The loyalty investigation was then completed and developed the following information in addition to that set out in the Basis:

Confidential Informant New York City T-4, a reliable informant advised that in 1948, the name "Philip Jessup, State Department" appeared in the address book of Jacob Arenoff, who was an associate of Arthur Adams, a suspected Soviet Intelligence Agent. Confidential Informant New York City T-5, a reliable informant advised that in 1941, Jessup's name appeared on a list maintained by the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties.

New York City T-7, a reliable informant advised that in 1947, Mrs. Philip C. Jessup, the wife of the employee, was a member of the Board of Directors of the China Aid Council at New York City. It is to be noted that the China Aid Council was cited as a Communist front and a subsidiary organization of the American League for Peace and Democracy by the California Committee on Un-American Activities in its report of 1948. (121-8893-12)

The files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities contain the following information pertaining to Jessup:

"Public Hearings, Appendix 9, page 1098, indicates that one Philip Jessup (Prof.) Columbia University, New York, New York, was on the Faculty Advisory Board of the 'American Law Student's Association.' Page 1087 of the above-mentioned volume indicates that the 'American Law Student's Association' was included among those organizations classified as 'Miscellaneous Communist and Communist-front organizations.'"

Dies Public Hearings, Appendix 9, Page 1097, indicates that one Philip C. Jessup (Dr.), appeared on a list of sponsors of a dinner dedicated to "American-Soviet Post-War Relations," which was held at the Hotel Commodore, New York, N. Y., under the auspices of the "American-Russian Institute."

Dies Public Hearings, Appendix 9, Page 1206, indicates that one Philip C. Jessup, (Prof.), not otherwise identified, appears as a signer of a call for a "National Emergency Conference" at Washington, D. C. on May 13, 14, 1939, which on Page 1205 of the above-named volume is indicated to be a Communist-front organization.

Dies Public Hearings, Appendix 9, Page 1210, indicates that one Philip C. Jessup (Prof.) appears on the letterhead of a "Legislative Letter" issued by the "National Emergency Conference for Democratic Rights, 306 Broadway, New York, New York, dated February 13, 1940, and announcing the success of the organization in achieving the dismissal of indictments against 16 Detroit people charged with having aided Americans to enlist in the Army of the Spanish Republic.

The above-named subject is listed as an officer of the "National Emergency Conference for Democratic Rights," in the capacity of a member of the Board of Sponsors. It is indicated that the "National Emergency Conference for Democratic Rights" was cited as a Communist-front by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, March 29, 1942; March 29, 1944.

The files further reflect photostatic copies of original letterheads dated April 6 and 13, 1944, which indicate that Philip C. Jessup (Mrs.), was on the Board of Directors of the "China Aid Council." (121-9893-16)

The personnel file of Michael Greenberg at the Bureau of Economic Warfare reflects that in an application filed in 1942, he listed as a reference Philip Jessup, Professor of International Law, Columbia University. Confidential Informant Washington T-5, a reliable informant advised that Michael Greenberg was active in a Soviet Espionage Conspiracy in New York City and Washington, D. C., in the early 1940's and had been reported to this informant to have been a member of the Communist Party in England. This informant further stated that Greenberg was in close contact with many known Communist and pro-Soviet individuals. (121-9893-16)

On his Loyalty Form, Jessup listed membership in the Institute of Pacific Relations and the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and the biographical sketch concerning Jessup in the files of the U. S. Mission to the United Nations set forth the fact that Jessup was Chairman of the Pacific Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations from 1938 to 1942. Concerning the Institute of Pacific Relations, Louis Buzenz, former managing editor of the Daily Worker, an East Coast daily Communist newspaper, on April 22, 1948, advised that "the Institute of Pacific Relations was originally non-Communist, but Communists infiltrated it. The Institute of Pacific Relations was discussed at political committee meetings of the Communist Party. The professional staff of the Institute of Pacific Relations contained many non-Communists who were friendly to the Communists because of the myth that the Chinese Reds were merely agrarian reformers. The Communist Party did have a very great influence in the Institute of Pacific Relations and at times controlled its policy." (121-9893-12)

Mr. Bernard F. Sandifer, Assistant Chief, United Nations Affairs, Department of State, Washington, D. C., advised that he had been personally acquainted with Jessup since 1927, and had been closely associated with him during a greater part of that time. It was Sandifer's opinion that Jessup had an excellent mind, practical common sense and wide experience and was one of the outstanding men of the country and probably the best international lawyer in the United States. He stated that Jessup had been active in foreign affairs in the United States since 1924 and in his opinion was entirely loyal to the United States. Sandifer stated that the only criticism he had ever heard concerning Jessup's associations was that as an international lawyer particularly, he was criticized for his attitude around 1940, when he had been opposed to what he felt was the breaking of neutrality laws by this government and attempting to aid England and France. Sandifer stated that he learned that Jessup had been a member of the American First Committee but was certain that such membership had no effect upon Jessup's loyalty.

Mr. Sean Rusk, Director, United Nations Affairs, Department of State, Washington, D. C., advised that it had been his observation that Jessup had been "superbly effective in defense of the positions of the United States, an excellent advocate, and a person whom he had found to be entirely loyal to his instructions." Rusk stated that it was "quite clear that he is devoted to the progress of the United States and to our part in the United Nations." According to Rusk the only two organizations to which Jessup belonged where any suspicion might be attached were the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, where Jessup served on the Board of Directors and the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Rusk advised that he did not believe the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace was subversive or Communist controlled and that he thought the reputation of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations had been gained through the personal indiscretions of Carter who had headed the organization. It was Rusk's opinion that Jessup was definitely anti-Communist and a person to whom the foreign policy of the United States could be entrusted with complete faith. (121-2595-48)

Professor Roger W. Jervey, School of International Relations, Columbia University, New York City, advised that he had known Jessup for 20 years and had an excellent opportunity to judge the loyalty of Mr. Jessup due to his close associations. He stated that Jessup was "entirely sound as far as loyalty to the United States was concerned" and further was "definitely opposed to permitting Russia or any other foreign country to dictate to the United States or force the United States to take any action contrary to its best interests." Jervey emphasized that if allegations of disloyalty had been received against Mr. Jessup that it should be borne in mind that it was impossible for a man to reach a high position such as that held by Mr. Jessup without making enemies. He also emphasized that it should further be borne in mind that "during the war Russia had been ally and the American Government had encouraged friendliness toward Russia." Under such conditions Professor Jervey stated, many persons who were not Communists joined organizations or permitted their names to be used as "sponsors" quite freely, frequently granting such requests merely upon receiving a general statement of the purposes of the organization involved.

Mr. Harry Guggenheim, former American Ambassador to Cuba, advised that Jessup had been legal advisor to him in Cuba in 1930. Mr. Guggenheim declared "there is no question as to Mr. Jessup's integrity and loyalty. They are above reproach."

Mr. Adolf A. Berle, Jr., former Assistant Secretary of State, described Jessup as "one of the greatest living American experts on international law." Berle stated that he is certain that the employee has never been a Communist and has never been sympathetic in any way to the political theories of Soviet Russia and, in fact, was actively opposed to many Russian theories. (121-9893-41)

It is to be noted that during the Bureau's investigation, interviews with fellow employees, associates, employers, neighborhood investigation failed to develop any disloyal information concerning Jessup.

Regarding Dr. Jessup's connection with the American Russian Institute, it is to be noted that the following was developed by the Bureau during its loyalty investigation:

"Dias Committee Public Hearings, Appendix B, Page 1097, indicates that one Philip O. Jessup (Dr.), appeared on a list of sponsors of a dinner dedicated to the "American-Soviet Post War Relations" which was held at the Hotel Commodore, New York, New York, under the auspices of the "American Russian Institute."

Furthermore, Confidential Informant NYC 9-6, a reliable informant furnished a photostatic copy of a Program for a Dinner and Presentation given by the American Russian Institute on May 7, 1946, at New York City. This Program lists the employee as a "sponsor". Confidential Informant [redacted] on March 22, 1946, advised that the organization which was giving the dinner and presentation on May 7, 1946, was the "American-Russian Institute for Cultural Relations with the Soviet Union, Inc., located in New York City. (121-9893-41) (121-9893-16) b7D

This information from informants and the information in records of the House Committee on Un-American Activities relative to association with the American Russian Institute was not incorporated into the Bureau's loyalty reports inasmuch as the American Russian Institute for Cultural Relations with the Soviet Union at New York City was not at that time cited by either the Attorney General or the U. S. House of Representatives Special Committee on Un-American Activities as a subversive organization. It is to be noted that the "American Russian Institute, New York" was first cited by the Attorney General on April 21, 1949.

It is noted that Dean Eusk, mentioned previously, was investigated under the Loyalty Program in 1948, copies of the reports being transmitted to the Civil Service Commission on December 9, 1948. By letter dated June 13, 1949, the Loyalty Review Board advised that Eusk had been declared "eligible on loyalty."

Disposition:

The Bureau was advised by the Loyalty Review Board by Disposition Sheet dated February 4, 1949, that Eusk had been "retained."

PURPOSE
In State Department

To review the discussion at an Executive Session of the Senate Subcommittee, Committee on Foreign Relations, held on March 21, 1950, under chairmanship of Senator Tydings. Others present were Senators Green, McMahon, and Hickenlooper of the Committee, and Senator McCarthy. On a routing slip attached to a transcript of the proceedings you wrote: "Review at once. It was furnished by Sen. McMahon." U

FACTS

At the close of a session lasting an hour and 20 minutes, much of which time was devoted to questioning Senator McCarthy as to whether he knew the contents of the FBI files on Owen Lattimore, the Committee approved a motion by Senator Hickenlooper authorizing and directing the chairman to "immediately request all of the security, loyalty, and personnel files of the State Department and of the Civil Service Commission and the F.B.I. (investigative files on, No. 1, the nine persons publicly mentioned by Senator McCarthy; No. 2, the list of twenty-five that he gave; No. 3, the list of eighty-one, or whatever it is, that he has furnished to the subcommittee by delivery to the chairman," (p.34)/as amended by Senator McMahon (p.36)/ to exclude from the request "the twenty-five against whom no specific charges have been made." Following this action, Senator McMahon said the request would be followed by subpoena if not complied with, but Senator Hickenlooper declared the committee had taken no action on that. (p.37) U

At the outset Senator McCarthy identified the case of Owen Lattimore as the very important one about which he desired to give the committee information. He said: "I am absolutely confident that this is the case that you really should find--well, its explosive. If you crack this case it will be the biggest espionage case in the history of this country." (pgs. 1, 3, 4) U

Senator McCarthy said he thought the committee would have to rely quite largely upon the FBI file. (p.2) Asked by Senator McMahon if he had seen the FBI files, Senator McCarthy replied that he thought he knew what was in them. (p.5) Senator McMahon pressed the question at length, pointing out that if McCarthy was permitted the files he did not know why the committee should not be permitted to see them. McCarthy finally stated he might say "that I have not seen the original FBI files." (p.7) Senator McCarthy had the following to say:

"I do not know if you have had any experience with the F.B.I files or not. They are serialized and numbered. You could take things out of those files. It would be extremely difficult.

"In the Kansas City case, which was not made public, I do not believe, some of the F.B.I. files were obtained, and it did appear that a sizeable number of documents had been removed. But the staff apparently--Flanagan and Rogers, I believe, were on the staff--had no difficulty at all detecting the number of documents that were removed. I think fortunately we did nothing about that publicly.

"I was giving a picture of the files. As I recall, the evidence was that Hoover did not know anything about any removals, and such like. I merely mention that to show you if you get those files I do not think you will have any trouble at all knowing what is in them.

"I have not talked to Hoover about this. If I did, I do not suppose he would give me the information.

Senator McCarthy stated he thought that if Chairman Tydings took this testimony over to Mr. Hoover and said: "Is this substantially true?" that with the respect McCarthy had for Mr. Hoover, he was sure Mr. Hoover would not lie to the chairman. McCarthy wanted to make it clear that Mr. Hoover had not given him any information himself of any kind from the files. (p.10) McCarthy said any information he gave would tend to disclose the source of his information. (p.11) He said he thought Lattimore was the top of the whole ring of which Hiss was a part; that he also thought the committee would find that Stephen Brunauer and Herbert Fierst were tied up with that ring.

Senator Tydings served notice on every man on the committee that he was "going to do everything that I can do to get every file that is requested." (p.13) The chairman said he had been well advised, though he had not talked with you, that you, unfortunately for this hearing, had taken the position that the minute you ever disclosed one of the FBI files, persons subsequently interviewed, would, in the light of knowledge of such revelation, refuse to be as frank as they would otherwise be. Senator Tydings said he understood by the grapevine that you were protesting against the opening of any of the files because FBI reports are in the loyalty files. "Hoover is a right tough bird," Senator Tydings said, "and he isn't going to do this unless we can show him a particular circumstance that will justify him in making an exception."

Senator McMahon declared "If Mr. Hoover's files are going to be divulged to Senator McCarthy and by him the contents of them to the press then certainly the reason why we should not get them falls to the ground, because the Senator has made this charge against Lattimore. True, he did not attach his name to it last night, but he has made this charge. He has made it on the basis of the FBI files. Now, so long as a charge has been made on the basis of the files, I don't see how they are going to keep the FBI file away from us. Therefore, it is very material to find out whether the Senator from Wisconsin actually did have access to those files." (pgs 14, 15)

In the following discussion of the possibility as to whether criminal prosecution had been considered by the Justice Department, McCarthy stated categorically he was making no charge of any dereliction by the prosecution forces. (p.17) Senator McCarthy declared it was his firm conviction from all the information he could get that the files would show Lattimore had been contacting and giving material to Russian espionage agents. (pgs 19, 20)

Senator Tydings stated he had reason to believe the President wanted to give the committee the files. He likewise had reason to believe the State Department wanted to give the committee the files. However, he had reason to believe that you and Attorney General McGrath were probably concerned about this question of opening the files for fear of its effect on future investigations and the chairman repeated: "I don't care what McGrath wants or what Hoover wants, I want those files." (pgs 27, 28)

As the session drew to a close, Senator Tydings emphasized anew that he was going to exert every influence he had to get the files. (p.32)

In addition to Lattimore, Hiss, Fierst, and Brunauer, the names, Service, Thayer, Jessup, and Kenyon were referred to during the session.

As you will recall, our investigations of Esther Caukin Brunauer, Herbert Abner Fierst, Dorothy Kenyon, John Stewart Service, and Charles Wheeler Thayer, among others, were summarized in my memorandum to you dated February 15, 1950, captioned "Loyalty of Government Employees, U. S. State Department." In addition, summaries on Brunauer and Fierst were included in my memorandum to you under date of February 24, 1950, providing identifying data and summaries concerning the individuals accused anonymously by Senator McCarthy before the Senate. This memorandum was captioned "Communists in the State Department - Allegations by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy - Rep. - Wis.)"

There is attached hereto for your additional information a summary which Mr. Belmont furnished me on March 11, 1950, regarding Philip Caryl Jessup.

For record purposes, it should be noted that I attended a conference with you in the office of the Attorney General on the late afternoon of March 23. Also present were Messrs. Peyton Ford and James McInerney. On that occasion, the Attorney General called attention to the demand by the Congressional Committee on the President for the production of the files in connection with Senator McCarthy's charges of State Department employees.

Concurrence

You outlined very completely and thoroughly your position with reference to the production of such files, i.e. that it would be an extremely bad precedent, that in the event any change was made from previous rules with reference to the production of files that the matter would continue to plague the Department and the Bureau on every case that came up for discussion on the Hill. You further pointed out that every President since George Washington had refused to produce files and had been upheld by the Courts. The Attorney General indicated that he thoroughly concurred in your views and Mr. Peyton Ford indicated that he had, as previously advised, pointed out to Senator Tydings and others the position of the Department and the Bureau.

The Attorney General, however, exhibited a note to you which he had received from the President in Florida, which indicated that the President thought that the position of the Department was peculiar and that he, the President, might have to take some other action. The Attorney General indicated that in light of this, he thought that it was necessary to immediately make some definite ruling. You concurred and pointed out that time was of the essence that a definite position should be taken immediately and that this position should be maintained.

The Attorney General indicated that one of three positions could be adopted:

(1) The Department should make the files available to the Committee in accordance with their request.

(2) The Attorney General could, on a confidential basis in Executive Session, have the Committee call at his office and read your summary memorandum to the Committee, after securing assurance that it would be treated in strict confidence. The memorandum would not be made available to the Committee.

(3) The Attorney General could ask the Committee to submit questions that they were interested in in connection with this matter and the Attorney General could prepare a letter back to the Committee giving the answer to those specific questions.

The Attorney General stated he thought in the light of the President's letter, it would be necessary that he talk to the President and make some definite recommendation, otherwise he was fearful that the President would be advised by his advisors in Florida to make the files all available. In view of that, the Attorney General indicated that he would be inclined to adopt the second, namely, to read the memorandum to the Committee in Executive Session.

You advised the Attorney General that your position was still the same, that you felt the files should not, under any circumstances be made available, that you would defer to his judgment with reference to Item #2; that, however, if this was done, a definite position should be taken that the files would not be made available at this time and in no circumstances would that position be altered once the memorandum had been read to the Committee.

You suggested the desirability of a statement being issued by the Department advising of the position adopted by the Department and including a statement that the files would not be made available.

The Attorney General indicated that he thought this was a good idea and suggested the desirability of a joint statement.

During the time that you were in the Attorney General's office, the Attorney General received a call from Senator Tydings who informed the Attorney General that he felt that the administration was losing ground in this argument with McCarthy and that a decision should be made by the Department one way or the other immediately; that if the decision was that the files would not be made available, it would be necessary for the committee to request the appearance of the Attorney General and yourself either by subpoena or by letter to appear before the Committee and explain to them why the files could not be made available.

The meeting concluded with the Attorney General indicating that he was going to propose to the President the reading of the memorandum, as set forth in Item #2 above.

GENERAL J. HOWARD MCGEE
BEFORE
8:30 P.M., MARCH 27, 1950

Mr. Chairman: I appreciate the opportunity of appearing before your Committee today, together with the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in order to discuss with you a serious problem that has arisen in the course of the investigation that you are conducting pursuant to Senate Resolution 231. There has been a great deal of talk about the production before your Committee of loyalty and investigative files relating to the persons against whom Senator McCarthy has brought charges of disloyalty. I think that it is well that we should discuss this matter together at this time in the interest of clarifying some of the issues.

I need not remind you that it is only a matter of months since I myself was a member of that great body of which this Committee is a part, the United States Senate. Having had the privilege of serving in the Senate, as well as in the Executive Branch, I am fully aware and indeed extremely sensible of the degree of cooperation that must exist between the legislative and Executive branches of the Government if we are to make our tripartite system of government work.

Cooperation, however, is but one facet of the key to the solution of our problem. If our tripartite system is to work, each branch must also carefully avoid encroaching upon the prerogatives of the other.

This is such a basic principle that it was recognized as early as the administration of our first President. On February 22 last, the very day on which the Senate agreed to the Resolution under which this Committee is proceeding, the Farewell Address of President Washington was read in the Senate chamber. I call your attention to one paragraph of that Address, which appears on page 2151 of the Congressional Record of February 22, and which so aptly states the principles by which we must be governed. President Washington stated:

It is important likewise, that the habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department, to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism. * * * If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the constitution designates.--But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in the instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed. The precedent must always greatly overbalance in permanent evil any partial or transient benefit which the use can at any time yield.

President Washington was speaking from personal experience with the very problem we now have before us--namely, a request by a congressional Committee for the production of documents which in the opinion of the Executive branch must be held confidential in the public interest. The problem, you see, is as old as the Government itself.

In March of 1792, the House of Representatives adopted a resolution establishing a Committee to inquire into the causes of the failure of the expedition under Major General St. Clair, and empowering that Committee to call for such papers and records as might be necessary to assist the Committed in its inquiries. The House based its right to investigate on its control over the expenditure of public money. When the Committee asked the President for the papers relating to the campaign, President Washington called a meeting of his Cabinet. Present were Thomas Jefferson, Secretary of State, Alexander Hamilton, Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Knox, Secretary of War, and Edmund Randolph, the Attorney General. The President stated that he had called his Cabinet together because this was the first demand on the Executive for papers within his control and he desired that in so far as the action taken would constitute a precedent, it should be rightly conducted. President Washington readily admitted that he had no doubt of the propriety of what the House was doing, but he did conceive that there might be papers of so secret a nature that they ought not to be given up. The President and his Cabinet came to a unanimous conclusion as follows:

First, that the House was an inquest, and therefore might institute inquiries. Second, that it might call for papers generally. Third, that the Executive ought to communicate such papers as the public good would permit, and ought to refuse those, the disclosure of which would injure the public.

The precedent there set by President Washington and his Cabinet was followed in 1796 when he refused to comply with a resolution of the House of Representatives which requested him to lay before the House a copy of the instructions to the United States Minister who negotiated a treaty with Great Britain, together with the correspondence and documents relating to that treaty. In declining to comply, President Washington stated: "As it is essential to the due administration of the Government that the boundaries fixed by the Constitution between the various departments should be preserved, a just regard to the Constitution and to the duty of my office * * * forbids a compliance with your request."

It was because of such experiences that President Washington felt called upon to refer, in his Farewell Address, to the importance of maintaining the independence of our separate branches of government. Later, President Jefferson refused to allow two members of his cabinet to supply documents at the trial of Aaron Burr. In 1825 President Monroe declined to comply with a request of the House of Representatives to transmit to the House certain documents relating to the conduct of naval officers. In 1833 President Jackson refused to comply with a Senate request that he communicate to it a copy of a paper purporting to have been read by him to the heads of the executive departments relating to the removal of the deposits of public money from the Bank of the United States. In 1866 President Cleveland supported his Attorney General's refusal to comply with a Senate resolution calling for documents and papers relating to the removal of a District Attorney. Similarly, in 1843, a resolution of the House of Representatives called upon the Secretary of War to communicate to the House the reports made to the War Department by Lt. Col. Hitchcock relative to the affairs of the Cherokee Indians, together with all information communicated by him concerning the frauds which he had been charged to investigate. The Secretary of War advised the House that he could not communicate information which Col. Hitchcock had obtained in confidence, because it would be grossly unjust to the persons who had given the information. The House, however, claimed the right to demand from the Executive and heads of departments such information as may be in their possession relating to subjects of deliberations of the House. President Tyler, in a message dated January 31, 1843, said in part:

And although information comes through a proper channel to an executive officer, it may often be of a character to forbid its being made public. The officer charged with a confidential inquiry, and who reports its result under the pledge of confidence which his appointment implies, ought not to be exposed individually to the resentment of those whose conduct may be impugned by the information he collects. The knowledge that such is to be the consequence will inevitably prevent the performance of duties of that character, and thus the Government will be deprived of an important means of investigating the conduct of its agents.

President Tyler also declined to comply with a resolution of the House of Representatives which called upon him and the heads of departments to furnish information regarding such members of the 25th and 27th Congresses as had applied for office in the executive branch. In so refusing, President Tyler stated:

Applications for office are in their very nature confidential, and if the reasons assigned for such applications or the names of the applicants were communicated, not only would such implied confidence be wantonly violated, but, in addition, it is quite obvious that a mass of vague, incoherent, and personal matter would be made public at a vast consumption of time, money, and trouble without accomplishing or tending in any manner to accomplish, as it appears to me, any useful object connected with a sound and constitutional administration of the Government in any of its branches.

In my judgment a compliance with the resolution which has been transmitted to me would be a surrender of duties and powers which the Constitution has conferred exclusively on the Executive, and therefore such compliance can not be made by me nor by the heads of Departments by my direction.

These are only a few of the precedents to be found in the constitutional history of our Government; many more could be referred to,

Although I have mentioned only a few of the precedents, I might add that almost every President has found it necessary at some time during his administration to decline, for reasons of public policy, to furnish confidential papers to congressional committees. The courts have recognized this constitutional prerogative of the Chief Executive and the great constitutional scholars uniformly agree that it is for the President to determine what papers and information in the Executive branch must be retained in confidence in the public interest. William Howard Taft, following his term as President and prior to his appointment as Chief Justice, summarized the situation succinctly and accurately when he wrote in his book, The Chief Magistrate

The President is required by the Constitution from time to time to give to Congress information on the state of the Union, and to recommend for its consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient, but this does not enable Congress or either House of Congress to elicit from him confidential information which he has acquired for the purpose of enabling him to discharge his constitutional duties, if he does not deem the disclosure of such information prudent or in the public interest.

It is against this background that we must consider President Truman's directive of March 13, 1948, concerning the confidential nature of loyalty files. Against this same background we must consider this Committee's request for the production of such files.

In his directive, the President stated:

The efficient and just administration of the Employees Loyalty Program, under Executive Order No. 9835 of March 21, 1947, requires that reports, records, and files relative to the program be preserved in strict confidence. This is necessary in the interest of our national security and welfare, to preserve the confidential character and sources of information furnished, and to protect Government personnel against the dissemination of unfounded or disproved allegations. It is necessary also in order to insure the fair and just disposition of loyalty cases.

For these reasons, and in accordance with the long-established policy that reports rendered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other investigative agencies of the executive branch are to be regarded as confidential, all reports, records, and files relative to the loyalty of employees or prospective employees (including reports of such investigative agencies), shall be maintained in confidence, and shall not be transmitted or disclosed except as required in the efficient conduct of business.

At the time of issuing this directive, the President specifically referred to some of the precedents that I have mentioned this afternoon and called particular attention to the sound reasons of public policy requiring the maintenance of the confidential status of loyalty files. The President referred to an opinion rendered by Attorney General Jackson at a time when, at the direction of President Roosevelt, he declined to furnish certain reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to the House Committee on Naval Affairs, as follows:

Disclosure of the reports could not do otherwise than seriously prejudice law enforcement. Counsel for a defendant or prospective defendant, could have no greater help than to know how much or how little information the Government has, and what witnesses or sources of information it can rely upon. This is exactly what these reports are intended to contain.

Disclosure of the reports at this particular time would also prejudice the national defense and be of aid and comfort to the very subversive elements against which you wish to protect the country. For this reason we have made extraordinary efforts to see that the results of counterespionage activities and intelligence activities of this Department involving those elements are kept within the fewest possible hands. A catalogue of persons under investigation or suspicion, and what we know about them, would be of inestimable service to foreign agencies; and information which could be so used cannot be too closely guarded.

Moreover, disclosure of the reports would be of serious prejudice to the future usefulness of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. As you probably know, much of this information is given in confidence and can only be obtained upon pledge not to disclose its sources. A disclosure of the sources would embarrass informants--sometimes in their employment, sometimes in their social relations, and in extreme cases might even endanger their lives. We regard the keeping of faith with confidential informants as an indispensable condition of future efficiency.

Disclosure of information contained in the reports might also be the grossest kind of injustice to innocent individuals. Investigative reports include leads and suspicions, and sometimes even the statements of malicious or misinformed people. Even though later and more complete reports exonerate the individuals, the use of particular or selected reports might constitute the grossest injustice, and we all know that a correction never catches up with an accusation.

With respect to files which this Committee has requested, their disclosure would, it seems to us, seriously impair the effectiveness of the Employee Loyalty Program. It would subject the persons in question to a type of double jeopardy which is contrary to sound concepts of good government, fairness, and justice. It would also make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for the Federal Bureau of Investigation to perform its investigative duties. The Federal Bureau of Investigation conducts all investigations under the Employee Loyalty Program. Loyalty files, therefore, are for all practical purposes F.B.I. files. Mr. Hoover is here to give you his view, which he has held for many years, of the damaging effect that would be caused by the disclosure of such files. I know of no one better qualified to speak on this subject. I am in thorough accord with his views in this regard.

It is my opinion--for the reasons stated--that loyalty and investigative files should be preserved in strict confidence.

MR. LADD
MR. NICHOLS

I called the Attorney General to give him the results of my conversation with Senator Joseph McCarthy. I stated that McCarthy said Senator Tydings made a statement on the Floor that I was to appear there on Monday afternoon and that information had been out that I would be there to express my views as to the release of the files. I stated that I told McCarthy that that was correct but that I didn't know it had been announced; that I understood it was a confidential matter at the present time. The Attorney General was then informed that McCarthy asked me if I was going to discuss the files and I said I was not and I then inquired of him as to where he had been getting his information about the so-called top espionage agent. I commented that McCarthy stated he could not disclose where he got but said it came from a very reliable source at which I remarked that I was anxious because we certainly did not have that information. I advised the Attorney General that I remarked to McCarthy that I was just wondering if he was getting straight information or if someone was planting some phony material on him and trying to get him out on a limb. I stated that McCarthy insisted his information was very reliable and I suggested to him that it might be a good idea for him to get it in affidavit form. I told the Attorney General that McCarthy then asked me if I thought the files would be made available and I told him I did not know; that at the present time they were not available to anyone and commented that the opinion of the Attorney General as well as my own on this matter was very well known. I stated that McCarthy told me he was going to keep on asking for the files and I told him that was his prerogative but I wanted him to be sure he was on the right track and to urge him to be very sure of his allegations and accusations. I stated that I mentioned the question of Jessup being in touch with Lattimore by telephone and that I had told McCarthy we had no such information but he, McCarthy, stated he had the information from other sources and I had commented I did not know who else would be investigating Lattimore. I further stated that the Senator indicated he was going to make some statements over the week-end; that he had thought the announcement by Senator Tydings was just window dressing; that everyone knew what I thought about the files. I stated I again urged him to be very sure of his charges before making them. The Attorney General was in agreement with this.

Very truly yours,

Opening The Files

By Marquis Childs

Let J. Edgar Hoover Testify

SENATOR McCarthy began by charging in his first political speech that there were 207 card-carrying members of the Communist Party in the State Department. When he used this same speech a little later in Nevada, the figure 207 had been crossed out and 57 written in.

Childs

Up to the moment of this writing it has not been established on the basis of McCarthy's presentation that there is or ever was a Communist Party member in the department. This is a fact that should not be lost sight of.

It becomes doubly important in view of the speech of Republican Chairman Guy George Gabrielson at Lincoln, Nebr. That speech lends considerable official party backing to the McCarthy line. It refutes those who have been saying that he is acting on his own while the party leadership looks on worried about the next move their irresponsible prankster may make. Gabrielson says, "We have too long tolerated communism within our Government." He says, "We must drive them out!" This goes quite a way toward making it official.

Now this may be good politics. Gabrielson directs the same kind of attack against Americans for Democratic Action, which has been a highly effective spark plug of the Democratic Party. The elections this fall will be in some measure a test of the anti-Communist, anti-Socialist line of the GOP.

BUT there are other considerations that overshadow the outcome of the next election or even the election after that and after that. The future form of this Government is conceivably at stake—concepts and traditions going back to the founding of our system.

Republican Senators are demanding that confidential files of the executive branch of the Government be opened to Senate inspection. Even though presumably this would be done in executive session, the material in these files would certainly be "leaked." A concept preserved since the time of George Washington would have been destroyed and a dangerous precedent established.

On the immediate and practical side, the efficient functioning of the Federal Bureau of Investigation would be impaired, even though he is reluctant, and properly so, to give public testimony on matters of public policy, the Senate committee should call on FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover for his opinion on opening the files.

There can be little doubt what that opinion would be. The issue arose in the first trial of Judith Coplon. Miss Coplon's attorneys persuaded the judge that the FBI files should be opened.

After the first three or four files were spread on the record, Hoover made a strenuous protest to the then Attorney General, Tom Clark. He pointed out that serious injustice was being done to individuals by putting under public gaze hearsay and rumor—the raw material of the FBI files—intended only for confidential use. He also pointed out with great emphasis that if this practice were to be followed in other cases, the usefulness of the FBI would rapidly diminish.

AT THE first Coplon trial, it will be recalled, the Department of Justice went so far as to suggest that if it came down to making the files public in relation to vital evidence in the case, the evidence might be withheld. That is a measure of how seriously the FBI took this action.

It may be, of course, that the Republicans do not really want the confidential files opened. They may want to have their request refused so they can say that the refusal cloaks the guilt of individuals, who have not been successfully tagged as "pro-Communist" by random accusations.

But if the request is granted, those who have forced the decision should at least have a clear understanding of its immediate and practical consequences. The man who can make that unmistakably clear is FBI Director Hoover.

As was pointed out in this space, his opposition to the Smith amendment attached to the National Science Foundation bill was stated in a letter sent to Congress by the assistant to the Attorney General. That amendment would make the FBI detective, policeman, judge and jury. Hoover gave it as his opinion that the FBI does not want powers which would create a state police organization.

The raw material of the FBI files may be compared to a newspaper reporter's notes. Material that cannot be verified or that is plainly libelous is not included in a news story. Government must be permitted the same responsibility of privacy for the raw material of confidential Government investigations.

Very well stated!

Only one more editorial on McCarthy charges. Hitavada of Nagpur commented: "recall of Phillip C. Jessup, who was patiently building up anti-Communist front in Asia will not strengthen US diplomacy. To the Republicans all is Red that is not reactionary. Democratic Party has repeatedly trounced Republicans but they determined never to learn. US masses not so much enamoured of private enterprises as Republicans would have it. Every Liberal in US now under fire and apparently policy of Republican Party is to try to return to power on wave of anti-Russian, anti-Communist hysteria engendered by their reactionary veterans. Loyalty check up of State Department employees will yield little more than verbal pyrotechnics".

Senat - Foreign Relations Committee

In regard to the letter from Senator Hickenlooper regarding the proposed appointment of Robert J. Morris as Assistant Counsel to the Investigation Committee, pursuant to your instructions I called ASAC Whelan in New York regarding Morris and he advised that he was a member of the Law Firm of Hochwald, Morris and Richmond who have offices at 40 Exchange Place, New York City. He stated that Morris was a New York secretary of Congressman Coudert and was formerly a secretary for Congressman Coudert when Coudert was a Senator at which time he was engaged in Communist investigations. Morris was a Lieutenant Commander assigned to the Third Naval District, O.N.I. assigned to Communist Investigations during World War II. Whelan stated that Morris was a member of the "Anti Communist Intelligencia" of New York. U

Morris is personally known to Agent Robert Granville who stated that Morris has always been most cooperative with the Bureau and holds the F.B.I. in highest esteem. Whelan stated that no investigation had been made on Morris and there was nothing derogatory concerning him in their files. U

MR. LADD

I called the Attorney General to advise him that I had received a telephone call from Senator Joseph McCarthy requesting to see me and I had told him that of course I would be glad to see him and speak to him, or anybody else that dropped by at any time. I told the Attorney General that McCarthy said he would come down this afternoon and I wondered if he, the Attorney General, would have any objection to my asking McCarthy point blank as to where he is getting his information. I further stated that I imagined he wanted to talk about something on the Lattimore case. The Attorney General stated he had no objection and in fact thought perhaps I could give him some good advice. I told the Attorney General that I would call him after I had seen Senator McCarthy.

Very truly yours,

John Edgar Hoover
Director

MEMORANDUM FOR THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Re: Views of Judge Thomas J. O'Connor concerning Confidential Nature of FBI Files

In view of your recent appearance before the Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on the matter of the confidential nature of the files of this Bureau, I thought you would be interested in receiving a copy of a letter sent to me by Judge Thomas J. O'Connor, Court of Common Pleas, Lucas County, Ohio.

I think you will agree that Judge O'Connor's letter is highly appropriate, and because of his experience and position, his views are worthy of note.

Respectfully,

J. Edgar Hoover

Hon. J. Edgar Hoover, Director,

Dear Mr. Hoover:

From January 1933 to January 1937 I served as Assistant Prosecuting Attorney in this County, and in January 1937 and up to February 9, 1943 I served as Prosecuting Attorney of this County. On February 9, 1943 I took office as Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and am now serving my second term of six years. I was born in this city in 1891 and have resided here all my life, so that I am personally acquainted with a lot of people.

While I was serving in the Prosecuting Attorney's office I was interviewed many times by agents of your department and also agents of the Treasury Department and the office of United States Post Office Inspector. During the course of these interviews I was questioned about certain people who were under investigation, and I answered those questions truthfully and gave the interrogator such information as I had, some of which would be supported by legal evidence and some of which was based upon what we know in law as hearsay evidence.

According to the newspaper accounts of investigations now being conducted by the Senate and House Committee, demands have been made for a disclosure of the contents of the files in your department and even a production of your files.

I am sure the American people have complete confidence in the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and I am very much disturbed about the result of a disclosure of the contents of your confidential files, and as a responsible citizen I feel certain that you will resist and positively refuse to lay your files open for the inspection of any member of Congress, whether he be of the House of Representatives or the Senate. I know from experience that your Department has persisted in preserving the confidence of those who have been interviewed from time to time. On the other hand, if it should be determined that your files are available for inspection, I can foresee much difficulty in investigations by your agents for the apparent reason that citizens will be hesitant to talk when they realize the danger that at some time or other their names or their reports may be made public.

STATEMENT OF JOHN EDGAR HOOVER, DIRECTOR,
FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION,
BEFORE SUBCOMMITTEE OF THE SENATE
COMMITTEE ON FOREIGN RELATIONS, 3:30 P.M.,
MONDAY, MARCH 27, 1950

In the 26 years during which I have been privileged to serve as Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, I have always maintained the view that if we were to fully discharge the serious responsibilities imposed upon us, the confidential character of our files must be inviolate.

A cardinal principle of success for any agency having a responsibility for investigations is its ability to secure information. To do that, it must be able to maintain confidences. Any person furnishing information must have the security of knowing that when he furnishes information on a confidential basis, he will not at a later date find that confidence broken. When that occurs, the ability of the investigative agency to discharge its responsibilities in the future is materially lessened.

The public record clearly proves that the FBI because it does maintain confidences has been able to develop valuable sources of information which have a direct bearing on the internal security of the nation. I need refer only to the government witnesses who testified in the trial of the eleven Communist leaders in New York last summer. Seven of these witnesses risked their lives as undercover employees of the FBI.

The question of opening the files of the FBI involves a grave matter of principle. In taking the position that the files of the FBI should remain inviolate, I would not, of course, presume to discuss files other than those of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

These files contain complaints, allegations, facts, and statements of all persons interviewed. Depending upon the purpose of the investigation, particularly in security cases, they contain not only background data on the individual but details of his private life which bear upon the investigation. In these files also are the identities of our confidential sources of information and full details of investigative techniques. In short, they consist of a running account of all that transpires.

A file is maintained in each case because the FBI has received information, allegations, or a complaint which if proven comes within the sphere of our responsibility, in pursuance of either Congressional or Executive Directives. After the investigation is completed, when indicated by Department procedure or judgment, a summary of the facts developed is furnished to the Department of Justice or United States Attorneys. In other types of investigations, the reports of Special Agents are submitted to the interested agency of the government. Details and information dealing with administrative operations and confidential sources of information remain in our files. The contents of these files were never intended to be disclosed and, unless we drastically change and circumscribe our procedures, they should not be disclosed.

The question of divulging contents of the files of agencies of government is not a new one. When confronted with the question of divulging the files of an Executive Department of the Government in 1909, the late President Theodore Roosevelt said:

"Some of these facts....were given to the Government under the seal of secrecy and cannot be divulged and I will see to it that the word of this Government to the individual is kept sacred."

The disclosure of the contents of the files of the FBI would reveal confidential procedures and techniques. If spread upon the record, criminals, foreign agents, subversives, and others would be forewarned and would seek methods to carry out their activities by avoiding detection and thus defeat the very purposes for which the FBI was created. Each exception undermines this principle, establishes a precedent, and would inevitably result in a complete collapse of a traditional policy which has proven its soundness.

A disclosure of FBI reports would reveal the identity of confidential sources of information and, if it did not place the lives of such persons in actual jeopardy, it would certainly ruin their future value and effectiveness.

The disclosure of FBI reports would make otherwise patriotic citizens reluctant to furnish information. Already, as a result of some unfortunate disclosures of our files in court proceedings, our Special Agents frequently are being told by persons from whom they seek information that they will decline to be interviewed for fear the information will be misused by some agency other than the FBI.

In the conduct of official investigations, information of a highly restricted nature having a direct bearing upon national security often finds its way into the files which, if disclosed, would be of considerable value to a foreign power. Increasingly, we have observed efforts of a foreign power to seek intimate personal details concerning many of our leaders in Government and industry. They should not be aided by having these details made public for their use and advantage, thereby crippling the important work of the FBI.

So far, I have directed my remarks against a disclosure of FBI files on security grounds. There are other compelling reasons why the files of the FBI should remain inviolate. For the want of a more apt comparison, our files can be compared to the notes of a newspaper reporter before he has culled the printable material from the unprintable. The files do not consist of proven information alone. The files must be viewed as a whole. One report may allege crimes of a most despicable type, and the truth or falsity of these charges may not emerge until several reports are studied, further investigation made and the wheat separated from the chaff.

I, for one, would want no part of an investigative organization which had the power of discretion to decide what information would be reported and what would be omitted. An item of information which appears unimportant today may provide the solution of a case when considered with information received at a later date, or it may later establish the innocence of the accused.

Should a given file be disclosed, the issue would be a far broader one than concerns the subject of the investigation. Names of persons who by force of circumstance entered into the investigation might well be innocent of any wrong. To publicize their names without the explanation of their associations would be a grave injustice. Even though they were given an opportunity to later give their explanation, the fact remains that truth seldom, if ever, catches up with charges. I would not want to be a party to any action which would "smear" innocent individuals for the rest of their lives. We cannot disregard the fundamental principles of common decency and the application of basic American rights of fair play.

The FBI has the obligation, within the scope of Federal law, not only to protect the rights, lives, and property of our citizens, but also to protect the confidential relationship of the citizen when he patriotically serves his Government by providing information essential to our security.

FBI reports set forth all details secured from a witness. If those details were disclosed, they could become subject to misinterpretation, they could be quoted out of context, or they could be used to thwart truth, distort half truths, and misrepresent facts. The raw material, the allegations, the details of associations and compilation of information in FBI files must be considered as a whole. They are of value to an investigator in the discharge of his duty. These files were never intended to be used in any other manner and the public interest would not be served by the disclosure of their contents.

In taking this stand, I want to reiterate - a principle is involved. I would take this same stand before the Attorney General, as I already have, or before any other body. The fact that I have great respect, confidence, and a desire to be of assistance to a committee of distinguished Senators, however, in no way detracts from a principle. I say this because I do not want any misinterpretation of my remarks, nor do I want it said that this and other committees of Congress do not have my respect and confidence. I would be derelict to my duty, untrue to my conscience, and unworthy of my trust to take any other position.

Dear Sir, _____

I have been following Sen:McCarthy's Communist accusations to our State Department people. I have my own deductions of all this. It may not interest you but as a loyal faithful citizen of this good old U.S.A I feel it my privelage to write what I think.

Hurrah for you not allowing your files to be interviewed by the commies a thing they are after.

Here is what I believe. No one loyal American citizen is going to stir up such accusations unless they are well planed obversive schemes laid by others to him to put across. No man would defy all America for such accusations as he has made unless he feels losing faith with his country people is done for an organization that has made him feel he will forever be a hero doing for his cause if it means ostracization , annihilation or even death if he carries on for the cause. This is my idea of SEN. McCarthy. I believe he is the head of communists here in U.S.A. Who better to put on this exposee than the head man himself? Who would be the least suspected? The head himself.

World. They do not want war as much as they want time to undermine our very government workings and our relations with other countries.

We better demand Sen. Mc Carthy's arrest and nip it in the middle of his dirty work, anyway a thorough investigation of all his moves would be a fine act and do it swiftly.

I would like to see his expression when he would be accused of being the communies head man. My hobby is to read expressions. He should give enough away when confronted with his being the head man. I bet you would hear loud wild retorts along that line. That would be your answer. For a truly good U.S.A person would of course deny but not rave and rant. Why would he be having others investigated if he were one? There you have my theory. No one would expect the head man to be the accuser.

Why is he pulling all these people home to accuse them? To stall for time and get their dirty work in where these men were going. To defame them and the U.S.A. To underground.

Some years ago I nursed at a home in an apartment building in Pittsburgh. The people on the third floor were commies. I found that out by facial study. I saw truck loads of books going out from the home. A large book about 8 by 10 inches and about two and a half thick. A white book with large red letters. "When Russia rules the world." This was just before the second World war.

They have been planing long before the Kaiser or Hitler ever thought of so doing. The devil is very clever. He moves slyly and smoothly. Better if the other side did spin their good way. We better awake before it is too late. Read your Bible on the future of the world after the flood. It is all recorded there. It behoves us to read and learn. At this time the words have more meaning than ever before because face~~d~~ with conditions there-in stated. Our Bible can be our guide to save us only we must awake and use it. The solution is all in the Holy pages. 4490

The communies are laughing up there sleeves how asleep we are. How they are putting it over on us. The flying disks are no mith to me. They are real. They are what I have been suspecting. Russia is a few jumps ahead of us. They are her work. She p~~a~~aned and used her means for it while we gave her war supplies so she could save hers for us later. Of course at the time this could not be seen. It grieved me to see us as her allies.

The flying planes are a Russian devise very cleverly made up. They have something in those planes so when they are seen, as they can see our planes, they explode and throw a mist between them and a plane to make their get away.

They are not from other planets. The mist between the other planets will stay there until God does His wonderous works of taking it away so we can go there and they here. I believe we are not necessary to <sup>them</sup> me or they to us only when the World is destroyed for wickedness as it once was by water, this time by fire. Those saved will go to one of the unhabitated planets. No those Flying saucers are only a new type of plane the Russians are using to freigh~~t~~en us into thinking they are supernatural and will destroy us. There dange is not greater than any other plane we used during the war. No sir they do not want war. They want to tare us apart in our middle and by Sen. MacCarthy they are making a good start.

Let's stop him Mr. Hoover. You are the core man of this great nation so put yourself forth to stop their speed..

It must be stopped before our people lose faith within themselves.

I would be in for it here in Buffalo if my name were mentioned I wrote this as they tell me Buffalo is lousy with Commies. I was told to be careful what I said and who I said anything to concerning Commies.

I am from Pittsburgh Penna. I assure you there are plenty in Pitts. There I am not liked by them. My two daughters nearly got into one of their organizations as a Youth movement for young Americans. Luckily I was told in time to investigate and I learned what they were. I exploded to one of their members and was told to keep my mouth shut or it would be shut for me. This was fifteen years ago. Some start they have on us poor unsuspecting people.

Let's get busy and catch them in their own traps laid for us. Let's not talk so much but work. Sometimes I feel our press is a little too open with our affairs.

Well-- Mr. Hoover I got off my chest what I feel is my duty to say. Take it or leave it but my hope is take it. Do something about it and above all stick like the soldier you are to your guns and do not open your files to the head communist as he wants. This is his way of getting us exposed into their hands.

This is long I know and hope I have not taken too much of your time if you ever get to read this.

I am one American who thanks God for all my grandparents who had the foresight to come to the best country in the world the good old United States of America. They were thankful so am I even more than they as they could not see the awful future ahead which has been my time to live.

Mr. Hoover can't you urge people to go to the Bible today for the world solution of today they can find there?

A man like you will have more effect on a world hook' up than any one or many ministers. The rabble would say they are fanatics . You, they will believe because you are dear in every loyal American's heart today and are looked up to greatly. Won't you try. ? This is the only way we can win over the communies. Be on God's side and have Him with us.

Thanks you Mr. Hoover. Don't let us down,
Yours is a great work done and to be done.

Sincerely in the life of the U.S.A

WHICH IS IT, SENATORS?

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has told a Senate foreign relations subcommittee that turning over to the subcommittee State Department "loyalty files" demanded by Sen. McCarthy of Wisconsin would bring about "complete collapse" of the FBI system of obtaining confidential information. Mr. Hoover added that "a foreign power" (and he obviously meant Russia) has been seeking "intimate personal details concerning many of our leaders in government and industry."

"They should not be aided by having these details made public for their use and advantage, thereby crippling the important work of the FBI," he said.

 But Sen. McCarthy keeps up his hue and cry and he has been joined by Sen. Bridges of New Hampshire. This leads any logical observer to one of two conclusions—either (1) the two senators won't take Mr. Hoover's solemn word, despite the country's confidence in the FBI chief, or (2) they are willing to "cripple" the FBI and bring about "complete collapse" of its system, in order to get a little more ammunition for their smear-Acheson campaign.

Well, which is the answer, Senators? Speak up

ATTORNEY GENERAL J. HOWARD McCARATH

BEFORE
3:30 P.M., MARCH 27, 1950

Mr. Chairman: I appreciate the opportunity of appearing before your Committee today, together with the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in order to discuss with you a serious problem that has arisen in the course of the investigation that you are conducting pursuant to Senate Resolution 231. There has been a great deal of talk about the production before your Committee of loyalty and investigative files relating to the persons against whom Senator McCarthy has brought charges of disloyalty. I think that it is well that we should discuss this matter together at this time in the interest of clarifying some of the issues.

I need not remind you that it is only a matter of months since I myself was a member of that great body of which this Committee is a part, the United States Senate. Having had the privilege of serving in the Senate, as well as in the Executive Branch, I am fully aware and indeed extremely sensible of the degree of cooperation that must exist between the legislative and Executive branches of the Government if we are to make our tripartite system of government work.

Cooperation, however, is but one facet of the key to the solution of our problem. If our tripartite system is to work, each branch must also carefully avoid encroaching upon the prerogatives of the other.

ENCLOSURE

ORDER REC.

This is such a basic principle that it was recognized as early as the administration of our first President. On February 22 last, the very day on which the Senate agreed to the Resolution under which this Committee is proceeding, the Farewell Address of President Washington was read in the Senate chamber. I call your attention to one paragraph of that Address, which appears on page 2158 of the Congressional Record of February 22, and which to me aptly states the principles by which we must be governed. President Washington stated:

It is important likewise, that the habits of thinking in a free country should inspire caution in those intrusted with its administration, to confine themselves within their respective constitutional spheres, avoiding in the exercise of the powers of one department, to encroach upon another. The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism. * * * * If, in the opinion of the people, the distribution or modification of the constitutional powers be in any particular wrong, let it be corrected by an amendment in the way which the constitution designates.--But let there be no change by usurpation; for though this, in one instance, may be the instrument of good, it is the customary weapon by which free governments are destroyed. The precedent must always greatly overbalance in permanent evil any partial or transient benefit which the use can at any time yield.

President Washington was speaking from personal experience with the very problem we now have before us--namely, a request by a congressional Committee for the production of documents which in the opinion of the Executive branch must be held confidential in the public interest. The problem, you see, is as old as the Government itself.

In March of 1792, the House of Representatives adopted a resolution establishing a Committee to inquire into the causes of the failure of the expedition under Major General St. Clair, and empowering that Committee to call for such papers and records as might be necessary to assist the Com.

It was because of such experiences that President Washington felt called upon to refer, in his Farewell Address, to the importance of maintaining the independence of our separate branches of government. Later, President Jefferson refused to allow two members of his cabinet to supply documents at the trial of Aaron Burr. In 1825 President Monroe declined to comply with a request of the House of Representatives to transmit to the House certain documents relating to the conduct of naval officers. In 1833 President Jackson refused to comply with a Senate request that he communicate to it a copy of a paper purporting to have been read by him to the heads of the executive departments relating to the removal of the deposits of public money from the Bank of the United States. In 1886 President Cleveland supported his Attorney General's refusal to comply with a Senate resolution calling for documents and papers relating to the removal of a District Attorney. Similarly, in 1843, a resolution of the House of Representatives called upon the Secretary of War to communicate to the House the reports made to the War Department by Lt. Col. Hitchcock relative to the affairs of the Cherokee Indians, together with all information communicated by him concerning the frauds which he had been charged to investigate. The Secretary of War advised the House that he could not communicate information which Col. Hitchcock had obtained in confidence, because it would be grossly unjust to the persons who had given the information. The House, however, claimed the right to demand from the Executive and heads of departments such information as may be in their possession relating to subjects of deliberations of the House. President Tyler, in a message dated January 31, 1843, said in part:

And although information comes through a proper channel to an executive officer, it may often be of a character to forbid its being made public. The officer charged with a confidential inquiry, and who reports its result under the pledge of confidence which his appointment implies, ought not to be exposed individually to the resentment of those whose conduct may be impugned by the information he collects. The knowledge that such is to be the consequence will inevitably prevent the performances of duties of that character, and thus the Government will be deprived of an important means of investigating the conduct of its agents.

President Tyler also declined to comply with a resolution of the House of Representatives which called upon him and the heads of departments to furnish information regarding such members of the 26th and 27th Congresses as had applied for office in the executive branch. In so refusing, President Tyler stated:

Applications for office are in their very nature confidential, and if the reasons assigned for such applications or the names of the applicants were communicated, not only would such implied confidence be wantonly violated, but, in addition, it is quite obvious that a mass of vague, incoherent, and personal matter would be made public at a vast consumption of time, money, and trouble without accomplishing or tending in any manner to accomplish, as it appears to me, any useful object connected with a sound and constitutional administration of the Government in any of its branches.

In my judgment a compliance with the resolution which has been transmitted to me would be a surrender of duties and powers which the Constitution has conferred exclusively on the Executive, and therefore such compliance can not be made by me nor by the heads of Departments by my direction.

These are only a few of the precedents to be found in the constitutional history of our Government; many more could be referred to.

Although I have mentioned only a few of the precedents, I might add that almost every President has found it necessary at some time during his administration to decline, for reasons of public policy, to furnish confidential papers to congressional committees. The courts have recognized this constitutional prerogative of the Chief Executive and the great constitutional scholars uniformly agree that it is for the President to determine what papers and information in the Executive branch must be retained in confidence in the public interest. William Howard Taft, following his term as President and prior to his appointment as Chief Justice, summarized the situation succinctly and accurately when he wrote in his book,

The Chief Magistrate:

The President is required by the Constitution from time to time to give to Congress information on the state of the Union, and to recommend for its consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient, but this does not enable Congress or either House of Congress to elicit from him confidential information which he has acquired for the purpose of enabling him to discharge his constitutional duties, if he does not deem the disclosure of such information prudent or in the public interest.

It is against this background that we must consider President Truman's directive of March 13, 1948, concerning the confidential nature of loyalty files. Against this same background we must consider this Committee's request for the production of such files.

In his directive, the President stated:

The efficient and just administration of the Employee Loyalty Program, under Executive Order No. 9835 of March 21, 1947, requires that reports, records, and files relative to the program be preserved in strict confidence. This is necessary in the interest of our national security and welfare, to preserve the confidential character and sources of information furnished, and to protect Government personnel against the dissemination of unfounded or disproved allegations. It is necessary also in order to insure the fair and just disposition of loyalty cases.

For these reasons, and in accordance with the long-established policy that reports rendered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other investigative agencies of the executive branch are to be regarded as confidential, all reports, records, and files relative to the loyalty of employees or prospective employees (including reports of such investigative agencies), shall be maintained in confidence, and shall not be transmitted or disclosed except as required in the efficient conduct of business.

At the time of issuing this directive, the President specifically referred to some of the precedents that I have mentioned this afternoon and called particular attention to the sound reasons of public policy requiring the maintenance of the confidential status of loyalty files. The President referred to an opinion rendered by Attorney General Jackson at a time when, at the direction of President Roosevelt, he declined to furnish certain reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to the House Committee on Naval Affairs, as follows:

Disclosure of the reports could not do otherwise than seriously prejudice law enforcement. Counsel for a defendant or prospective defendant, could have no greater help than to know how much or how little information the Government has, and what witnesses or sources of information it can rely upon. This is exactly what these reports are intended to contain.

Disclosure of the reports at this particular time would also prejudice the national defense and be of aid and comfort to the very subversive elements against which you wish to protect the country. For this reason we have made extraordinary efforts to see that the results of counterespionage activities and intelligence activities of this Department involving those elements are kept within the fewest possible hands. A catalogue of persons under investigation or suspicion, and what we know about them, would be of inestimable service to foreign agencies; and information which could be so used cannot be too closely guarded.

Moreover, disclosure of the reports would be of serious prejudice to the future usefulness of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. As you probably know, much of this information is given in confidence and can only be obtained upon pledge not to disclose its sources. A disclosure of the sources would embarrass informants--sometimes in their employment, sometimes in their social relations, and in extreme cases might even endanger their lives. We regard the keeping of faith with confidential informants as an indispensable condition of future efficiency.

Disclosure of information contained in the reports might also be the grossest kind of injustice to innocent individuals. Investigative reports include leads and suspicions, and sometimes even the statements of malicious or misinformed people. Even though later and more complete reports exonerate the individuals, the use of particular or selected reports might constitute the grossest injustice, and we all know that a correction never catches up with an accusation.

With respect to files which this Committee has requested, their disclosure would, it seems to me, seriously impair the effectiveness of the Employee Loyalty Program. It would subject the persons in question to a type of double jeopardy which is contrary to sound concepts of good government, fairness, and justice. It would also make it extremely difficult, if not impossible, for the Federal Bureau of Investigation to perform its investigative duties. The Federal Bureau of Investigation conducts all investigations under the Employee Loyalty Program. Loyalty files, therefore, are for all practical purposes F.B.I. files. Mr. Hoover is here to give you his view, which he has held for many years, of the damaging effect that would be caused by the disclosure of such files. I know of no one better qualified to speak on this subject. I am in thorough accord with his views in this regard.

It is my opinion--for the reasons stated--that loyalty and investigative files should be preserved in strict confidence.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

To the many voices congratulating you on your stand in the McCarthy affair, it is a pleasure to add my few words. I am so relieved to know that you have stuck to your guns under heavy pressure that I cannot refrain from some expression, although I am not a prolific letter writer.

It has been my feeling, and the feeling of every one I have discussed this matter with, that McCarthy's unbridled license has already caused sufficient damage. To open your files to such as he would add immeasurably to the anger and dissension already built up. Congratulations, and power to your arm.

Very sincerely yours,

PURPOSE

To advise you of the results of a check of our files on all the names furnished to the Tydings Committee by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy with reference as to (1) whether the cases have been properly handled and (2) whether our files are in shape.

BACKGROUND

By memorandum of February 24, 1950, you were furnished the identity of 68 of the individuals referred to anonymously by Senator McCarthy before the Senate, as reported in the Congressional Record of February 20, 1950. These identifications were made through a comparison of the Senator's allegations with the material which had been provided to the Bureau confidentially on January 29, 1948, by former Special Agent Robert E. Lee.

You will recall that, with respect to the original testimony of Senator McCarthy, certain cases mentioned by him could not be identified by either the Bureau or the State Department due to the fact that the Senator lumped several cases together and omitted several others.

On March 21, 1950, the State Department furnished us with a list of the 81 names given by Senator McCarthy to the Tydings Committee. Subsequently, on March 24, 1950, the State Department furnished the Bureau with a chart showing the employment status at the Department of State of each of the 81 individuals plus the 9 individuals named by Senator McCarthy in his appearances before the Tydings Committee.

You instructed that we check our files on all the names furnished to the Tydings Committee by Senator McCarthy and make certain that we have properly handled the cases and that our files are in shape.

An analysis has been made of the complete list of 81 names furnished to the Tydings Committee. In 41 of the cases full field loyalty investigations have been conducted and referred to the Civil Service Commission. In one case (Estelle Gordon, Case No. 40) we are presently conducting a full field loyalty investigation at the specific request of the State Department. In 6 of the cases preliminary inquiry type loyalty investigations have been conducted and in 14 of the cases full field investigations were conducted under the provisions of Public Law 402, 80th Congress (Voice of America Program). In those cases where we have completed preliminary inquiry or full field type loyalty investigations, or investigations under the Voice of America Program, the case files show that the investigations were properly handled in accordance with existing Bureau policy.

In 7 of the 81 cases other type applicant or security investigations have been conducted in the past or are presently pending. With respect to these 7 cases, however, 5 of the individuals involved are no longer employed in the Government and have not been in Government service since 1947 so far as our files show. The remaining two involve Case No. 79 - T. Achilles Polyzoides and Case No. 68 - Aaron Jack Gross, both of whom are still employed at the State Department. Polyzoides is presently the subject of an Atomic Energy Act investigation which we estimate will be completed March 29, 1950. As you previously have been advised, reports in this case will be furnished to the Civil Service Commission and the State Department as well as the Atomic Energy Commission. With regard to Gross, State Department records indicate he transferred to the State Department from the Office of War Information on June 3, 1946. In 1942 we conducted a Special Inquiry type investigation regarding Gross for the Office of Coordinator of Information, predecessor agency to the OWI. It is noted our reports in this Special Inquiry case do completely cover the allegations presently made by Senator McCarthy. Although there is nothing additional in our files, it does not appear that this case has been properly adjudicated under the Loyalty Order and, consequently, we have initiated a full field investigation.

There are 12 of the 81 cases in which no investigation has been conducted by the Bureau but of these 10 of the individuals involved are no longer employed by the State Department and there is no indication in Bureau files that they are employed elsewhere in the Government. A check has been made with the Civil Service Commission and there is nothing in their records to indicate these 10 individuals are employed in the government at the present time. The remaining 2 involve Case No. 56 - Paul A. Lifantief-Lee and Case No. 59 - Franz Leopold Neumann, both of whom are presently employed by the State Department. Our files do not show sufficient information to warrant initiation of investigation of Lifantief-Lee. With respect to Neumann, it is noted that the case involving him could not be identified by either the Bureau or the State Department until Senator McCarthy actually furnished the 81 names to the Tydings Committee due to the fact that in his original testimony before the Senate on February 20, 1950, Senator McCarthy omitted Case No. 59. No Loyalty Form for Neumann has been located in our files. However, our files do contain some information of questionable significance which may pertain to Neumann and which does warrant the initiation of a preliminary inquiry type loyalty investigation to establish identity and to further evaluate the information. Accordingly, a preliminary inquiry type investigation has been initiated.

In so far as the condition of our files is concerned, in the event they are subpoenaed by the Tydings Committee, it should be noted that the following general characteristics pertain in the loyalty files:

- 1) The original copy of reports as received from the field have been, in almost every instance, edited and changed by the Bureau to delete controversial material. It might be noted that, in this connection, many of these cases were handled in the early stages of the Loyalty Program.
- 2) Original copies of the reports contain administrative and informant pages showing the identity of our confidential informants and the identity of cooperative private citizens who have cooperated with the Bureau on a confidential basis.
- 3) References are made in the files to other Bureau file numbers and investigations.
- 4) Each file contains an administrative marking of "disloyal" or "unfounded" for statistical purposes within the Bureau. If these notations came to the attention of outsiders, it might create the erroneous impression that the Bureau is adjudicating these cases and eventually result in a controversy with the Loyalty Review Board.

5) Administrative memoranda containing various notations as to proper action which should be taken on controversial issues by various Bureau officials.

6) Intra-Bureau communications revealing use of confidential procedures and the identity of other Government agencies providing us with information.

The characteristics noted above will also pertain generally in the case files of investigations conducted under the Voice of America Program, as well as those where we have conducted other type applicant investigations. These characteristics are, of course, in accordance with existing Bureau policy and procedure. Although the above list is not purported to be a complete list of the controversial types of material appearing in case files, it does present a general picture of the type of material contained therein which strongly evidences the need for us to strenuously resist any efforts on the part of the Tydings Committee or any other Congressional Committee to obtain our files for either public or private hearings.

As you will recall, Senator McCarthy in his early appearances before the Tydings Committee named 9 individuals whose names were publicized in the press. Some of these 9 individuals are the subjects of pending internal security or espionage investigations. In investigations of these types all investigative techniques are utilized, including those of a very confidential nature, and, of course, the case files in these type investigations are replete with information revealing identity of extremely confidential informants. Also contained in files of this nature are names of various innocent citizens who would be dealt a grave injustice by having their names publicly revealed. Particularly illustrative of these points is the Bureau's internal security file on Harlow Shapley, which is so replete with serials containing information identifying confidential techniques of the Bureau and mentioning the names of prominent individuals that under no circumstances could this particular file be made available to any outside agency or committee for examination. We have, of course, disseminated all information of a type that can be disseminated to the proper authorities. Particularly with respect to loyalty investigations and investigations under the Voice of America Program, the Civil Service Commission and/or the State Department already are in possession of our investigative reports.

For your information there is attached a list showing a brief analysis on each of the 81 cases cited by Senator McCarthy, showing the Bureau's investigative position and the employment status of each of the individuals involved so far as our files and the records of the State Department reflect. A separate list is also attached showing an analysis of the Bureau's investigative position on the 9 individuals mentioned by Senator McCarthy in his appearances before the Tydings Committee whose names were publicized in the press. As you will recall, these individuals were Esther C. Brunauer (and her husband, Stephen Brunauer), Gustavo Duran, Haldore Hanson, Philip Jessup, Dorothy Kenyon, Owen J. Lattimore, Frederick L. Schumann, John Stewart Service and Harlow Shapley. It is noted that Esther Brunauer and Philip Jessup also are included as Case Numbers 47 and 15, respectively, in Senator McCarthy's list of 81.

ACTION

As you testified, disclosure of our files would seriously hamper our entire operations and would jeopardize the identity of our informants and our future effectiveness. Grave injustices would be done to many innocent people. We should certainly continue to resist any efforts on the part of the Tydings Committee or any other Congressional Committee to obtain our files for review.

STEPHEN BRUNAUER (mentioned in connection with case of wife, Esther C. Brunauer.) Stephen Brunauer was subject of investigation by Bureau under Atomic Energy Act, which was completed 5-15-47. Reports furnished to Atomic Energy Commission 5-15-47; to ONI 5-22-47; and to Attorney General 12-6-47.
Brunauer has also been the subject of extensive investigation by ONI, which was completed, according to Bureau files on 10-8-48. As a result of fact ONI was actively investigating Brunauer at time
Bureau charged with investigative jurisdiction over Naval civilian employees under EO 9835, no investigation under Loyalty Program initiated by Bureau.
When Loyalty form received, returned to CSC by letter 5-22-48, advising CSC that ONI had for some time been conducting investigation re activities of Brunauer; that this investigation still being actively pursued; that in view of ONI investigation, no investigation regarding Stephen Brunauer would be conducted by Bureau. In this connection no request for investigation of Stephen Brunauer ever received by Bureau from ONI. (116-2863)

Presently employed Department of the Navy.

GUSTAVO DURAN, resigned State Department,
10-3-46. Note Duran resigned from State Department 10-3-46 prior to issuance EO 9835 on 3-22-47. Duran subject Internal Security - Hatch Act investigation in 1946, which, in effect, was special inquiry for Spruille Braden, then Assistant Secretary of State. Summary of results this investigation furnished State Department 5-3-46. Duran presently subject of pending espionage investigation by Bureau. (64-27446)

As of June, 1949, employed

Abe Harris of the Department phoned with regard to the Director's memorandum to the Attorney General dated February 24, regarding public disclosure of FBI reports and in particular to item Number 4, Page 2, wherein Harris feels some words were left out of the last line. Harris feels the sentence would read better if it were corrected and the White House has asked him this morning if the wordage can be clarified. The paragraph in question reads - "disclosures might be made under circumstances which would deny the aggrieved to publicly state their positions." Harris feels that the words "the opportunity" should be added after the word aggrieved so that the sentence would read - "disclosures might be made under circumstances which would deny the aggrieved the opportunity to publicly state their positions."

I see no objection to the change and recommend we advise Harris that it would be satisfactory to insert the words "the opportunity" so he can advise the White House.

Dear Mr. E. Hoover,

Though I am not yet of age to vote, I feel that by the time I am of age - there won't be any Country to vote in.

Why all this puttering around and beating about the bush? If there are so many communists in government positions unknown to the democratic public, why keep the fact a secret? Why not publish their names and deport or try as traitors these "upholders of democracy" - who are so unfaithful. How can they contribute to one country's government and welfare when in their hearts they are pledged to an other country?

Sir, couldit you please take this fact into consideration - that it is really me of the next generation whom are going to pay for your mistakes. Perhaps you don't even realize this fact but it's very true. So why not be more careful in your (departments) doings!

For instance - open those so called "Files" in Spanish as is befitting those whose names appear therein. Don't you realize that this is a "cat and mouse" game. Pretty soon the "cat" will over come the "mouse" - and it will be the younger generations that will suffer. Silence may be golden but this just doesn't seem to be a case for such action.

Since the above mentioned seems to be the problem - why don't you do something about it? Jaspers! think about us a little... don't be so selfish. Remember we are supposed to follow in our elders' footsteps. Does this exclude their errors or doesn't it?

Boy! you people sure do give us something to look forward to. But what it may be - I hope and pray will be for betterment.

Good luck, Sir!

Sincerely yours,

D. Meyers

Dear Sir: It seems absurd for me to make suggestions to the F.B.I., but they say every crack pot in the country is doing it, so I venture to ask, what has already perhaps been considered, if the history and affiliations of Chairman MacCarthy of the Un-American Activities Committee have been investigated? What he is accomplishing, - disturbances within our borders and weakening of our position abroad, - fits so neatly into the Russian pattern that one can but wonder. Certainly what he is doing might well be the <sup>dream</sup> of any Russian spy.

His apparent stupidity may be only assumed. I make the suggestion for what it is worth,
Yours truly,

81	Ruby A. Parsons Department of the Army	December 15, 1948

In accordance with your request, with reference to the individuals listed above, the files of this Bureau are presently being reviewed and in the event additional information to that already furnished to the Civil Service Commission is reflected therein, such information will be made available to you.

Regarding case numbers five and twelve, Jay Robinson and Helene Yuhas, respectively, the records of this Bureau reflect that loyalty investigations were instituted on Robinson and Yuhas and discontinued upon receipt of information indicating that they had terminated their employment with the State Department. The Civil Service Commission was so advised on June 11, 1948.

With reference to case number 40 involving Estelle (Stella) Gordon, case number 59 involving Brans Leopold Neumann, and case number 68 involving Aaron Jack Gross, full field loyalty investigations are presently being conducted and you will be furnished with the results of these investigations immediately upon their completion.

Investigations have been conducted by this Bureau in the following cases under Public Law 402, 80th Congress (Voice of America):

Case No.	Name and Agency
21	Mucio Delgado Department of State
22	Alexander Rapoport Department of State
23	Nelson Chipchin Department of State
24	Ether Less, also known as Esther Less Kopelovich Department of State
25	Tegnel Conrad Grondahl Department of State
26	Lowell M. Clucas Department of State
27	Ivan Katuzich Department of State
31	Lewis (Louis) Ross Department of State

Case No.	Name and Agency
32	Robert Ross Department of State
33	Herman Seigel Department of State
36	Frederick W. Smith (Schmidt) Department of State
37	Olga F. Osnatch Department of State
65	Victor Hunt Department of State
70	Harold Berman Department of State

With reference to the above Voice of America cases, attached hereto are photostatic copies of this Bureau's investigative reports in those cases in which the Civil Service Commission has not previously been furnished with reports. Of course, copies of the reports in the above Voice of America cases were previously forwarded to the Department of State upon completion of the investigation.

Regarding case No. 78, Andrew W. Kamarck, an investigation was conducted by this Bureau under the European Recovery Program and reports were furnished to the Civil Service Commission for consideration under Executive Order 9835 on October 27, 1948.

The files of this Bureau are being reviewed and any additional information regarding Kamarck, as well as the individuals investigated under the Voice of America Program, will be made available to you.

Regarding case No. 79, T. Achilles Polyzoides, an investigation was conducted by this Bureau under the provisions of the Atomic Energy Act and reports were forwarded to the Civil Service Commission for consideration under Executive Order 9835 on April 7, 1950.

In case No. 2, John Carter Vincent, as the records of the Civil Service Commission will reflect, the loyalty form for Vincent was returned to the Civil Service Commission by this Bureau on April 18, 1949, with the notation on the reverse side that information available concerning Vincent in the files of this Bureau had been furnished to the State Department and that in the absence of a specific request no loyalty investigation would be instituted. This action followed correspondence between the Department of Justice and the Department of State concerning the desirability of an investigation. A summary of pertinent information appearing in the files of this Bureau concerning Vincent will be furnished to you.

In case No. 57, Fred Warner Neal, an inquiry was instituted and discontinued when it was ascertained that Neal had terminated employment with the State Department. The Civil Service Commission was advised of this fact on August 19, 1948, by return of Neal's Loyalty Form.

In case number 62, Isham W. Perkins, the loyalty form was returned to the Civil Service Commission on May 19, 1948, marked, "No disloyal data."

In case number 74, Joseph T. Jankowski, an inquiry was instituted in this case and discontinued when it was ascertained that Jankowski had terminated employment with the State Department. The Civil Service Commission was advised of this fact by this Bureau on December 24, 1948, by return of the loyalty form regarding Jankowski.

It is noted that the records of the Civil Service Commission reveal that the three individuals listed immediately above, Neal, Perkins, and Jankowski, are not presently employed in the Executive Branch of the Government.

In case number 75, Mrs. Preston Keesling Lewis, the records of the Department of State reveal she resigned her position with that Department on September 23, 1947. According to the records of the Civil Service Commission, Mrs. Lewis is not presently employed in the Executive Branch of the Government.

The records of the Civil Service Commission fail to indicate that the following individuals are presently employed in the Executive Branch of the Government:

Case Number	Name	Date Terminated State Department
4	Gizella Illyefalvi-Vitez	March 5, 1948
10	Margery Posner	February 11, 1948

17	Jeanne H. (E.) Taylor	April 23, 1947
18	Edythe J. Lemon	November 28, 1947
20	Samuel Stephenson Smith	Applicant - Never employed State Department
30	Joseph Josephson	December 6, 1947
35	Melvin Shell (Melville Shell)	December 24, 1948
42	Ottfried Thomas Mann	May 26, 1947
44	William D. Carter	July 26, 1947
66	David Randolph (Rosenberg)	September 16, 1947
67	John Richard Lindsey	September 12, 1947
71	Stoian Stoianoff	December 8, 1947
73	Leonard Horwin	November 12, 1947
76	James T. Ford	Never employed State Department

With reference to case number 56, Paul A. Lifantieff-Lee, the records of the Department of State reflect that Lifantieff-Lee is presently employed by that Department. A summary of pertinent information appearing in the files of this Bureau concerning Lifantieff-Lee will be prepared and furnished to you.

With reference to Jay Robinson, Helene Yuhas, Fred Warner Neal, Isham W. Perkins, Joseph T. Jankowski, and Mrs. Preston Keesling Lewis on whom some action under the Loyalty Program has been taken by this Bureau, a review of our files is being made and you will be furnished with a summary of pertinent information appearing therein concerning these individuals.

With regard to the eight additional individuals referred to on your list, the records of this Bureau reflect that full field loyalty investigations have been conducted concerning the following three and reports furnished to the Civil Service Commission on the dates indicated:

Name and Agency	Reports to Civil Service Commission
John Stewart Service Department of State	December 23, 1948
Dorothy Kenyon Department of State	June 20, 1949
Haldore Hanson Department of State	June 24, 1948

The remaining five individuals, Gustavo Doran, Mary Jane Keeney, Dr. Harlow Shapley, Owen J. Lattimore, and Dr. Frederick L. Schuman, have not been investigated by this Bureau under the provisions of Executive Order 9835. The files of this Bureau do not reflect a request for investigation of these individuals under the Loyalty Program nor advice indicating they are presently employed in positions bringing them within the purview of Executive Order 9835. These cases have been discussed with Mr. Peyton Ford, The Assistant to the Attorney General, with whom you have conferred on this project. Accordingly, no information is being furnished in these cases since they did not come within the purview of the Loyalty Program.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

Dear Mr. Hoover:

As you are aware, the President has requested the Loyalty Review Board to review such cases as have been identified before the Tydings Subcommittee. I have been endeavoring to secure an authentic list of such cases, and I enclose the list as I have been able to have it made up.

The request of the President called for the inclusion within the record for review, of all material available to the FBI. As you will observe from this list, some of these persons have gone through the loyalty program, and a pertinent FBI report has been made concerning them. With reference to such, we would like to have any additional or supplemental material which the FBI may have with reference to them.

With reference to the other names, we would like to have from the FBI anything by way of material relevant to questions of loyalty, which the FBI can furnish to us.

Since the matter is one of first importance, any expedition in furnishing any of the suggested material to the Board would be very much appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Miss Roy:

Your letter dated March 28, 1950, has been received and I am taking the liberty of acknowledging it in the absence of Mr. Hoover from Washington.

I am enclosing the complete text of Mr. Hoover's Statement before the Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on March 27, 1950.

I am sure that the Director's remarks will clarify any misconception that you may have with reference to the need for maintaining the files of the FBI inviolate.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Hoover:

In regards to the probe into the State Department, for communistic minded persons and the charges made by the Hon. Senator McCarthy, we do not understand the decision handed down by you and the Attorney General McGrath. Certainly, we know that you, Mr. Hoover, have reasons, far beyond the statements given on the air. Surely, making the records of Government employees public is not Unamerican.

In this day and age, Mr. Hoover, every American is either fully aware or becoming aware, that the Nation is pock-marked with subversive activities. Thousands of people have sworn allegiance to the Communist Party. Millions of people have sworn allegiance to Labor. These allegiance, Mr. Hoover, are believed by us to be Unamerican and we believe, that before many months have passed, that this Great Nation will have to suffer. The lust for power has become a vile and evil thing. The method of attack being the paycheck, which is an illusion. The people know that a great evil exists but the propaganda is so great that they have not yet been able to clear up their confused minds.

Do you think, Mr. Hoover, that by "white washing" the Republican Party and our very great American Men, such as: the Hon. Senator, McCarthy, Senator Taft, and Senator Bridges, will relieve this great overall confusion? Mr. Hoover, after viewing the charges made by Senator McCarthy, after listening to the answers, the radio commentators, and considering the President's views, I cannot help but believe, with all my heart, that Senator McCarthy is right. I also believe that it is Unamerican to keep the file of the FBI closed at this time. There can be no more half-way business now. Either we are Americans fighting for the American way of life, which is freedom all the way, or we are not Americans, fighting for power in a secretive, underhanded, subversive way designed to kill the American way of life.

If I were in the State Department, or in any Government Organization of importance, I would demand that my record be made public to the people. As an American citizen my record stands open to the world. I am proud of my passed record, of my honesty in dealing with my fellow men, I am proud of my deep concern regarding the confusion and the fear that is so prevalent today, among the people. I am proud of the American blood that is in my veins, ~~but~~ I am greatly perturbed about the decisions and the bickering that goes on in the Capitol of this Nation.

If there is anything in the files, against any of these men, I believe it should be made public, and the employees should be dismissed from their jobs immediately. No one in this Nation is indispensable unless, perhaps, it is you, Mr. Hoover, because you head the greatest department in our Nation, your job has been handled honorably and you yourself have become the bulwark of the people. I know that you know how great the subversive element is, how strong they have become and how hard they are working for their cause. I only hope that the decision you have made in holding back these files will prove to be the right decision.

May God Bless You.

Respectfully yours,

Edna Roy

Comm. into State Dept.

Mar. 28th, '50

Dear Mr. Hoover:

While I have always maintained that you have been doing a marvelous job, I cannot comprehend the logic of your arguments in the present crisis in our State Dept. You state that you cannot show the records investigating the loyalty of persons in your dept. for obvious reasons. According to that reasoning, no matter what your agents discover, guilty persons cannot be punished, for the sources of information would be revealed making your force subject ~~information~~ to inferior work or a possible work fate in the future. Then ~~more~~ the obvious conclusion is that we must let subversive workers simply continue, without prosecution of the guilty ones, and let our government go under be default or decadence. I would appreciate a personal reply, for I am most concerned about the direction we are heading the past 10 years or so. Sincerely, Edwin T. Schlaifer

Dear Mr. Schleiher:

Your postal card dated March 28, 1950, has been received and I am pleased to enclose a copy of my statement before the Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on March 27, 1950.

My remarks on that occasion make clear my views with reference to the confidential nature of the FBI's files.

In connection with your conclusions that we must let subversion continue without prosecution I need refer only to the trial of the eleven communist leaders in New York last summer. The record proves that the FBI desires to maintain confidences so as to be able to develop valuable sources of information which have a direct bearing on the internal security of the nation.

For your information the FBI has nothing to do with the institution of prosecutive actions; that is the responsibility of the Attorney General, his assistants in the Department of Justice, and the United States attorneys in the various sections of the country.

Sincerely yours,

John Edgar Hoover

Honorable Edgar Hoover
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

I want to convey to you some thoughts that come to me concerning the request that the F. B. I. should open its files to the Congress for investigation.

As I come in contact with many people I get often inquiries in connection with the loyalty checkups.

I would not mind to give information of a very definite character but often I may have only some distant "leads" or suspicions. They might be of no importance at all but they might lead to important discoveries during further investigations.

I and many others like me will always hesitate possibly to give such unimportant information if there is any chance for it to become publicly known.

In other words, I consider the opening of the files will greatly impede the loyalty investigations.

Please remember that the public knows that all information given to a large group of people, even to a Congress committee, becomes publicly known.

I am writing this to you in the spirit of cooperation to improve the work that you are interested in.

Sincerely yours,

SUBJECT: PRODUCTION OF BUREAU LOYALTY FILES

Senate FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE

While talking to Peyton Ford on other matters on the evening of March 28, I made reference to the subpoena issued for the Attorney General by the Senate for the production of the Bureau's loyalty files. U

I told Mr. Ford that I hoped the Department would hold tight in its position of refusing to produce its files and not weaken at the last minute. He stated that the Department was going to hold tight; that he, Ford, was going to contact and coordinate with the Civil Service Commission and the State Department in order that they followed the position of the President; that he is going to try and get by with a letter saying that the matter has been referred to the White House; that if this does not work that he, Ford, may have to personally appear for the Attorney General and refuse to produce the records and be held in contempt in order that this test case may be taken to Court. Re: Congressional Reaction Relative To The Position of the FBI In The Present Controversy Over The Charge of Communism In The State Dept.

Yesterday an acquaintance of mine, John L. Smith, a business man from Massachusetts stopped to see me enroute home from a vacation in Florida and asked me to have lunch with him. The luncheon took place at the Capitol and present were Congressman Philip J. Philbin and Harold Donohue, both Democrats from Massachusetts. By chance Congress-woman Edith Nourse Rogers joined the group. As you know, she is a Republican from Massachusetts.

On being introduced to me by Congressman Philbin she immediately posed the question: "What is going on in the State Department?" and "What has the FBI to say to clear up the matter?" I replied that Mr. Hoover had spoken for the Bureau and I had nothing to add. She went on rapidly, somewhat loosely and incoherently to infer that what had been said was not wholly satisfying, hinting that possibly Communist activities in the State Department were not being brought out into the open as they deserved to be. She then turned quickly and said to me (I was sitting beside her on the right) "The FBI is doing a splendid job." I thanked her for this "gracious" comment and added that the Director's position in this and other matters was sound. Congressman Philbin briskly injected the statement at this point that "His position and conduct are always sound and commendable and he has the full support and confidence of the people." Congressman Donohue nodded his assent and said something about the need for keeping Communists out of the government service. This quick, spontaneous exchange of comments occupied only a minute or so following which I changed the subject and nothing further was said about it during the remainder of the luncheon.

After the luncheon was over Congressman Philbin, whom I know very well, called me aside and said: "I believe you may want to know that a number of Congressmen seem to be getting the impression that there may be some truth to the charges directed against the State Department but that the Administration is putting strong pressure on Mr. Hoover to 'white wash' the charges against the State Department and that the FBI is being forced to comply in this matter." Congressman Philbin (who incidentally has been anti-New Deal Democrat) went on to say that he did not share this impression; that he realized that the FBI could not disclose its files and would not take political sides in the controversy."

This is for your information.

At 5:15 pm Special Agent R. A. Collier advised that he had confidentially obtained a copy of Senator McCarthy's manuscript from which he is speaking today. This was made available to you. At 6:00 pm SA Collier reported that at 5:00 McCarthy resumed the floor and immediately started reading into the record the writings of Lattimore. He then took considerable time identifying Frederick V. Fields, Service, Jaffe, Bisson, and others in the Amerasia case. He then elaborated on Fields' connection and said Fields has identified himself as the most important Communist in this country. He produced photostatic copies of two checks made by Fields to the Institute of Pacific Relations. One of these checks was in the amount of $1,000.

McCarthy then went into a discussion on Dr. Jessup and said he thinks Jessup is a dupe, but a dupe and tool in the hands of Communists. Jessup has a propensity for joining organizations and all the organizations are subversive and many are Communist Party fronts. He said Jessup over night became an expert on Far Eastern Affairs and associated with the Institute of Pacific Relations personnel. He referred to a letter which Jessup wrote requesting that no investigation be conducted into the subversive nature of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

At 6:20 pm SA Collier advised that McCarthy is now tracing Acheson's foreign policy speeches and is pointing out that in his opinion Lattimore put the ideas in Acheson's mind which he has expressed in these speeches. He then referred to a secret State Department document dated March 17, 1950, which he advised was written by loyal State Department employees and pointed out that their ideas are not in conformity with that of Acheson's.

ADDENDUM: Approximately 6:30 pm Senator McCarthy concluded his address to the Senate, during the last portion of which he had continued his criticisms of Acheson's use of Lattimore, Jessup, et al in the formation of American Foreign policy. He then concluded reading his written text and made remarks regarding his service in the Pacific as a marine and the fact that he had written letters to the wives of men who had lost their lives in the last World War. Other Senate business was thereafter taken up.

On the evening of March 29, 1950, Mr. James M. McInerney, Assistant Attorney General, Criminal Division, called and asked if the Bureau had a list of the 81 State Department employees against whom Senator McCarthy had made charges of subversiveness. He said that a copy had been made available to him and if the Bureau wanted it, he would make it available so copies could be made.

Stetley

I told Mr. McInerney that I did not know whether we had a list of these individuals. As a matter of fact, the Bureau does have such a list, having obtained it from the State Department on March 24, 1950.

After discussing this with Mr. Ladd, I called Mr. McInerney back and told him that we would appreciate it very much if we could obtain his list in order to make a copy for our files.

Mr. McInerney's secretary personally delivered this list to my office on the evening of March 29 and the attached copies were made. It is noted that in addition to the 81 alleged State Department employees, the list contains the following names also mentioned by Senator McCarthy in his speeches:

- Service, John Stewart
- Duran, Gustave (Gustavo)
- ~~Kenny~~ Kenny, Mary Jane
- Shapley, Dr. Harlow
- Lattimore, Owen J.
- Kenyon, Dorothy
- Hanson, Haldore
- Schuman, Dr. Frederick L.

The original list furnished by Mr. McInerney has been returned to him by hand, pursuant to his request.

REMARKS

When advised of the Director's and Mr. Tolson's absence Mr. Ford consented to speak to the Acting Director, after checking he was referred to Mr. Ladd.

Mr. Ladd Advises <sup>Senator Joseph</sup> that Mr. Ford wanted to know if we had gone over the McCarthy material as yet. Mr. Ladd told him the material was being photostated at the present time and it has not been analyzed yet.

We are not going to release material we receive from McCarthy until analyzed. Trust is in our out. If we do it will surely lead out to state to the Hill & to columnists.

SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE
Dear Frank:

I wanted you to know that I appreciate very much the comments upon my position with regard to maintaining the confidential nature of FBI files which appear today in The Times-Herald editorial, "It's There, Find It."

As my statement before the Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations made clear, I feel that the entire structure that the FBI has laboriously created for obtaining information vital to the internal security of our country would be endangered should this Bureau be required to disclose the data recorded in its files.

Sincerely yours,

My dear Judge:

It was indeed thoughtful of you to write as you did on March 25th to furnish your views on the confidential nature of the files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. It is very comforting to me to know that clear-thinking citizens are of the opinion the files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation should remain confidential in every sense.

I thought you might be interested in the attached duplicate of my comments as expressed before the Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on March 27, 1950.

Your comments concerning the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the motives which caused you to write are highly appreciated.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON
MR. LADD
MR. NICHOLS

Mr. Peyton Ford called me with reference to the meeting of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held this morning in the Attorney General's Office, at which meeting Senator Tydings, McMahon, Green and Lodge were Present. I commented that I certainly could not agree with Senator Lodge's attitude about issuing a statement and Mr. Ford agreed and stated that he had gotten a final agreement that if there was one leak about the meeting or anything connected with it then a statement would be issued promptly. I commented I certainly felt the Attorney General was entitled to that consideration. Mr. Ford then read to me a rough draft of a proposed statement to be used in the event of a leak and asked for my opinion. The statement is as follows:

"Senator Millard D. Tydings and members of the Subcommittee investigation charges of subversive in the State Department met with the Attorney General J. Howard McGrath, Department of Justice, this morning on the invitation of the Attorney General for the purpose of giving to the Subcommittee such information as the Attorney General felt he could give to them consistent to the best interests of the United States. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, under the direction of J. Edgar Hoover, prepared for the Attorney General complete analysis of the FBI files with respect to the one name on which the Committee sought the cooperation of the Department. The Attorney General read this complete summation to the Committee and both he and Director Hoover gave to the Committee a very complete statement on the file in this particular case and also a statement with respect to making available to Congressional Committee FBI files. The Attorney General pointed out to the Committee that the contents of this file must be kept in complete confidence, and the fact that such a file was in existence was not to be construed as any reflection on the person involved as it is standard procedure to investigate all allegations made. Attending the conference, et cetera ***** The President of the United States is fully advised by the Attorney General in this matter."

I stated that I thought this statement was all right because I felt there was bound to be a leak someplace. I stated I wish a public hearing could have been held this afternoon because we could have gotten a statement up in time for my appearance there that could have nailed it then. As it is I stated that because of Senator Lodge's position in the matter it will have to go over under Monday which is likely to cause a lot of speculations and charges being made up and down the country as to what the mystery is all about.

I told Mr. Ford the thing that concerned me, and which I did not care to mention at the meeting this morning, was that Senator Hickenlooper was not present and I was wondering if the agreements were binding as far as he was concerned because I certainly did not feel that the summary which was read at the meeting should be made public at any hearing. Mr. Ford stated that Senator Hickenlooper was bound by them and that he, Ford, would see that the summary was not introduced. Mr. Ford stated that if any other questions were asked of me the Attorney General and he would object to them, and upon my query as to whether the Attorney General would be back from New York in time for the hearing, Mr. Ford replied that he would be back in time.

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I am sure millions of Americans are with me when I congratulate you for refusing to surrender FBI files to be used as political bait. As you say, many innocent people would suffer, because many reports have been unchecked. In addition, valuable sources of information would dry up. The percentage of convictions brought about by the efforts of your department is evidence that your agents are thorough in gathering testimony and that guilt is pretty well established before trials are begun.

We can maintain our freedom only by sifting the truth from the lies - and by eliminating half-truths and innuendo. During the depression days many people now in prominent places were, perhaps, associated with organizations which were later infiltrated by Communists. During the last war, Russia was an ally, so it is quite possible that there were organizations, thoroughly loyal, that had a friendly attitude towards Russia.

Because we live in a free country, we tolerate open debate, which is just as it should be. However, it is one thing to debate openly and another to smear without sufficient ground. There are many liberals in the country who are forward looking, but who would willingly lay down their lives in defense of our democracy against any foreign ideology, whether it be Communism or Fascism.

I will echo Voltaire - "I may disagree with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it." I believe the late President Roosevelt said it once too. Free speech is the cornerstone of our form of government.

But sometimes it is carried beyond the limits of good taste, as in the present fracas. I hope that Senator McCarthy will not find a way to get into your files. In these days, loyalty checks are necessary and it would be a detriment to us all if your department were crippled in its operations. I believe that the accused should have a right to face their accusers and should also have a right to trial by jury, but that is outside your province.

Very truly yours,

I took a call from Peyton Ford at 8 p.m. last night, by reference from your office.

He asked me what McCarthy's material looked like. I asked him what material he was referring to. He stated Dean Sheller had furnished to the Bureau a mimeographed copy of McCarthy's speech. I told him I had not looked it over as yet, that it was down being photostated, and I could not, therefore, make any comment on it.

Tom Donegan called me from New York and stated he had talked to Peyton Ford yesterday, at which time Ford suggested that it might be necessary to have McCarthy go before a Grand Jury, but that he, Ford, thought it would look bad to do this at the present time. Donegan states that apparently Ford is going to follow through on this at a later date.

I am attaching hereto a photostat containing the changes that were made in the Director's testimony before the Subcommittee on Foreign Relations. I wanted to return this to the Chief of Staff of the Committee, Mr. Francis O. Wilcox; however, he was on the Senate floor all day yesterday. We promised to return the testimony at 6:00 last night. Accordingly, I had Mr. Wick return it and talk to Wilcox's assistant and ask that he have Wilcox call me.

I have received your letter of March 31, 1950, and I appreciate very much indeed the expressions of your approval of my position with regard to the disclosure of information contained in FBI files.

It is my sincere belief that if the FBI were required to depart from its established policy in this connection all law enforcement would suffer from the resulting loss of confidence on the part of the public.

It is most encouraging to know that you concur with my views.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I have received from Mr. John K. Mumford, Special Agent in Charge, FBI, Mobile, Alabama, a transcript of your statement before the subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations March 27, 1950.

After carefully reading your statement I want to offer my endorsement of your views as embodied in this statement.

I most emphatically subscribe to the recognized procedure of all duly constituted law enforcement agencies in that if an investigative body divulges the source of its information of a confidential nature, our entire system of investigation of crimes and apprehension of criminals will collapse. I believe that the bedrock of our National security rests on the citizens of our Nation who will aid us in the enforcement of their laws. If we are forced by legislative action to break confidences placed in us by these citizens, it will be a serious deterrent to enforcement of the laws by not only the FBI, but all law enforcement agencies.

Again expressing my approbation for your stand in this matter, and wishing you success in defending it, I am,

Very truly yours,

PURPOSE:

To advise you that the ten individuals on whom the Bureau has conducted no investigation, who were formerly employed by the State Department and appear on Senator McCarthy's list, are not presently employed in the Executive Branch of the Federal Government according to the records of the Civil Service Commission. Stanley

BACKGROUND:

You will recall by memorandum of March 28, 1950 the Director was furnished an analysis of the Bureau's files on the 81 cases furnished to the Tydings Committee by Senator McCarthy. It was pointed out that in ten of the cases the Bureau had conducted no investigation but that the individuals involved were no longer employed by the State Department and there was no indication in Bureau files that they were employed elsewhere in the Government. On March 29, 1950 WFO was telephonically instructed to make a check with the Civil Service Commission to verify that these ten individuals are not employed in the Federal Government at the present time. E. F. [unclear]

Supervisor Grapp of the WFO telephonically advised me on March 30, 1950 that, according to the records of the Civil Service Commission, none of these ten individuals are presently employed in the Executive Branch of the Government. The ten individuals in question are listed as follows, together with the case number by which they have been described by Senator McCarthy:

- Case No. 4 - Gizella ~~X~~illyefalvi ~~X~~Vitez
- Case No. 10 - Margery S. ~~X~~Posner
- Case No. 17 - Jeanne H. ~~X~~Taylor (Jeanne E. ~~X~~Taylor)
- Case No. 18 - Edythe J. ~~X~~Lemon
- Case No. 20 - Samuel Stephenson ~~X~~Smith
- Case No. 30 - Joseph ~~X~~Josephson
- Case No. 35 - Melvin ~~X~~Shell (Melville ~~X~~Shell)
- Case No. 42 - Gottfried Thomas ~~X~~Wann
- Case No. 73 - Leonard ~~X~~Forwin
- Case No. 76 - James T. ~~X~~Ford (Joseph T. ~~X~~Forno).

Concerning Posner, Shell, Smith and the name James T. Ford, the Civil Service records contain no information, not even a record of any previous employment of these persons by the Department of State. As to the other names, the records of the Civil Service Commission reflect previous employment of these individuals at the Department of State. However, in each case, the records show termination from the State Department and no information of subsequent employment in the Executive Branch of the Government.

In addition to the above checks at the Civil Service Commission, the Washington Field Office has also checked the records of the State Department in order to ascertain whether its records reflect a transfer of any of these individuals to another Government agency. As to the name James T. Ford, the State Department records fail to reveal any person by that name ever being employed. Regarding Samuel Stephenson Smith, the records indicate this person was an applicant for a position in the State Department but was never actually employed. The records at the State Department on the remainder of these individuals reflect only their employment at the State Department and do not indicate any transfer of either the individual or the individual's file to any other Government agency subsequent to their termination at the State Department.

ACTION:

None. This is for your information. An addition was made to the memorandum to the Director dated March 28, 1950 to reflect that CSC records do not show the ten individuals in question to be presently employed in the Government.

Dear Sir:

Because of a deep concern over the investigations being made of the State Department by several members of the Senate. I am asking the liberty of writing this letter setting forth a few ideas which I offer for your consideration. Anyone reading recently of Senator McCarthy's charges against the State Department is of necessity forced to do some pretty deep thinking over the motivations involved in those charges. I should like to say at once that I personally do not feel that those charges are motivated by a Republican effort to discredit the present administration, since this is the most obvious explanation. The actual motivations are probably concealed to an extent I cannot imagine, but I should like to make a few guesses:

1. Taking into consideration the long term view that the Communist Party has always held in making its plans for the future, it would seem perfectly possible that the information being used could be from a Communist source. There are a great many nations in the world who are at the present time wavering between alliance with the Western powers and the Soviet State. Nothing could be more fortuitous to Russia than for the assurances given by our State Department to these waverers to appear to be without any weight at all, even if it meant the raising of a "red menace" in this country. I know it seems odd that information being used by Republican members of the Senate could be of Communist sources, but what could be more useful to the Communists than a person apparently above suspicion. Because of the complete absence of any suspicion of Communist influence in the Republican Party, I should say that this would be a most fertile ground for an adroit agent of Russia, especially when he would be associating with people who are very eager to charge that Communism influences the administration. Such an agent could by furnishing information, true or untrue, create just the sort of crisis which exists now, thereby alienating our allies, encouraging wavering nations to enter the Soviet sphere, and embarrassing our Government both at home and abroad.

2. At the same time, one must never forget that under the guise of a great crusade against one evil it is very easy for another evil to slip in. It would be a simple matter indeed for a Fascist group to use the present hue and cry against Communism as a means of getting people who are like minded into public office by making charges of Communism against people who oppose them. It could even be that such people would use a "front man" supplied with half-truths in an effort to discredit their opposition. Such a group, however, would have to be in a position to influence the people who would make the appointment of replacements were they successful in having the "opposition" removed from office.

3. The most alarming part of the entire investigation to my mind are the charges of homosexuality against members of the State Department. Similar technique in recent history has always been the forerunner of efforts of a minority group to seize power or positions of power in the Government. The charge of homosexuality itself, being so repugnant to the American mind and being such an indefensible position for the accused appears to be the result of careful planning rather than the exploiting of a perhaps existant fact. The technique has so often been used by both Communists and Facists that both possibilities should be very carefully considered.

4. Summarizing these guesses, it would seem <sup>Joseph</sup> to my mind that there should be certain courses of action. First, that the sources of information used by Senator McCarthy be very carefully checked for Communistic or Facistic leanings or are in fact an agent of the Soviet Government; secondly, whether Senator McCarthy is making these charges and pushing this investigation under any form of duress; and third, whether the sources of information have any connection, however remote, with the people who can influence the appointment of public officers in the Government.

I hope these thoughts can be of assistance to you, although you have, undoubtedly, already given them your attention.

Sincerely yours,

Gene I. Granich

* Attached is a copy of a statement which is to be made by Mr. ~~Boyer~~ Snow, Chairman of the Loyalty Board of the Department of State, before the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee (Tydings Committee) tomorrow morning (April 5, 1950).

This statement was furnished to Mr. Roach of the Bureau confidentially by Mr. Samuel D. Boyking, Director, Office of Consular Affairs, Department of State, who suggested that Mr. Roach review it and if anything in the statement was objectionable from the Bureau's standpoint, he, Boykin, would do everything in his power to have appropriate deletions and/or corrections made. Mr. Boykin told Mr. Roach that it was necessary for him to have the attachment returned to him as soon as the Bureau had an opportunity to review it. Copies have been made for the Bureau's records and they are attached for your information.

Generally, the statement of Mr. Snow relates to the organization and responsibilities of the State Department's Loyalty Security Board, setting forth its authority for considering cases under both Executive Order 9835 and the summary power of dismissal vested in the State Department by the so-called McCarran Rider. In the latter part of this statement Mr. Snow discusses the eighty-one cases mentioned by McCarthy. He mentions no names but does quote some figures which are inconsistent with the analysis of these same cases by the Bureau.

Specific comments of Mr. Snow in the attached statement which do bear upon the Bureau and which might possibly create an erroneous impression as to the Bureau's operations are discussed separately hereafter.

Mr. Snow States:

On page 7 in commenting on the Bureau's full field investigations, Mr. Snow states that "everything they say is put down - whether it bears on loyalty, security, morality or even fitness for employment."

Comment:

Investigations conducted under the Loyalty Program are confined to the issue of loyalty unless information relating to morals is volunteered by witnesses interviewed during the investigation. No comment is ever made in a loyalty investigation as to a man's fitness for employment. A distinction should be drawn here in that the Bureau, in addition to conducting loyalty investigations for the State Department, does also conduct investigations under Public Law 402, 80th Congress, which do include comments concerning character and fitness for employment. However, Mr. Snow makes no distinction here and the implication is that loyalty investigations include in every instance material relating to morality and fitness for employment.

Mr. Snow States:

On page 11, paragraph 1, Mr. Snow states, "If there are any Communists in the State Department, the FBI have not discovered them and the Loyalty Security Board is uninformed of their existence."

State will delete

Comments:

No distinction is drawn between persons presently affiliated with the Communist Party and those where information has been developed of past affiliation with the Communist Party. <sup>the</sup> Statement of Mr. Snow appears to place the responsibility of the failure by the State Department to dismiss any undesirable employees on the FBI.

Mr. Snow States:

Page 11, paragraph 2, Mr. Snow here is discussing the 81 cases named by Senator McCarthy. He states, "I do not know how many of those 81 were ever employees of the Department, but only 38 of them ever came before the Loyalty Security Board. If the other 45 cases were employees of the Department, no derogatory information regarding them has yet come into the possession of the FBI so as to occasion a full field investigation, unless such investigations are pending or incomplete. I mean by this that the FBI have not passed to the Department any reports on these 45 cases."

State will delete

Comments

Obviously Mr. Snow as a representative of the State Department does know how many of the 81 individuals named by McCarthy are still employed by the State Department. By not showing specific figures as to those employed by State and those not employed by State, Mr. Snow leaves the impression that the Bureau has been derelict in its duty with respect to the "other 45 cases."

State will delete

It is suggested that Mr. Snow's comments be clarified to show how many of the 81 cases are still employed in the State Department and that he clarify these figures in order to show a true picture. It is noted in this connection that in 14 cases of the 81, we have conducted Voice of America investigations which apparently are not included in Mr. Snow's comments.

ACTION

It is recommended that Liaison point out the possible misleading comments mentioned above since the State Department may desire to clarify them.

Mr. Chairman:

The Loyalty Security Board of the Department of State of which I am chairman is the organ of the Department to which are referred all reports from the FBI of full field investigations of Department employees, for determination as to loyalty and security risk. Its decisions are post-audited by the Loyalty Review Board, of which Mr. Seth W. Richardson is Chairman, and to that Review Board go appeals from adverse decisions of the Loyalty Security Board. Both Boards are part of the President's Loyalty Program, initiated on March 21, 1947, by Executive Order 9835.

The purpose of Executive Order 9835, was stated to be: to assure (a) that persons employed in the Federal service are of complete and unswerving loyalty to the United States; (b) that the United States afford maximum protection against infiltration of disloyal persons into the ranks of its employees; and, at the same time, that (c) there be given equal protection to the loyal employees of the United States from unfounded accusations of disloyalty.

The Executive Order itself stated the standard for the removal from employment of an employee on grounds relating to loyalty, which must be applied by both Boards. It is "that, on all the evidence, reasonable grounds exist for belief that the person involved is disloyal to the Government of the United States." The Executive Order sets forth various activities and associations, which, if present, may be considered in connection with the determination of disloyalty. They are:

(a) Sabotage or espionage, — or knowingly associating with spies or saboteurs;

(b) Treason or sedition, — or advocacy thereof;

(c) Advocacy of revolution, or of force or violence to alter the constitutional form of Government of the United States;

(d) Intentional unauthorized disclosure of documents or information of a confidential or non-public character obtained as a result of employment by the Government of the United States;

(e) Performance of duties, or otherwise acting, so as to serve the interests of another Government in preference to the interests of the United States;

(f) Membership in, affiliation with, or sympathetic association with, any organization or group of persons, which has been designated by the Attorney General as totalitarian, fascist, communist, or subversive, or as having adopted a policy of advocating or approving violence, either to deny to other persons their rights under the Constitution, or to seek to alter the form of Government of the United States.

Some

Some of these activities, were we to find them, would be their very definition necessarily involve disloyalty to the United States, -- as to this, espionage, treason, sedition, revolution. Some of the associations, on the other hand, are only evidence on the issue of disloyalty. The President, for instance, in a statement to the Press of November 14, 1947, said with reference to the Attorney General's List: "Membership in an organization is simply one piece of evidence which may or may not be helpful in arriving at a conclusion as to the action which is to be taken in a particular case." This was reaffirmed by the Attorney General, who added that "guilt by association has never been one of the principles of American jurisprudence."

Thus the President said, however, and what the Attorney General said, is not applicable to membership in the Communist Party. Under the Hatch Act, Section 9A of August 2, 1939, it is unlawful for any Federal employee to have membership in any organization advocating the overthrow of the Constitutional Form of Government of the United States. On February 5, 1943, under Executive Order 9830, -- four years before Executive Order 9835, the Department of Justice disseminated among Government agencies a List of organizations which were subversive under the terms of the Hatch Act. This List included the Communist Party of the U.S.A. This was reaffirmed by the Attorney General on May 27, 1948, accordingly, were the Loyalty-Security Board to find in the Department of State a member of the Communist Party, his membership would not be not be merely evidence of disloyalty; the dismissal of that employee would be mandatory.

Acting under Executive Order 9835, after appropriate investigation, the Attorney General, on November 24, 1947, transmitted to the Loyalty Review Board, a list of organizations which was disseminated to the Department on December 4, 1947. An additional list was disseminated on May 23, 1948; and on September 21, 1948, the Attorney General furnished a consolidated list which contained the names of all the organizations previously designated, and segregated into categories as totalitarian, fascist, communist, subversive, advocating force or violence to deny others their constitutional rights, or seeking to alter the form of Government of the United States by unconstitutional means. These lists include all the so-called "front organizations", generally designed to trap the unwary liberal-minded individual, and not all by any means either infiltrated or controlled by communists from the outset of their existence. I mention this particularly because in considering membership in, affiliation with, or sympathetic association with such organizations, the Boards have to take judicial notice of the fact that the characterization of these organizations by the Attorney General was first publicized to the employees of the Department, in some cases on November 24, 1947, in other cases on May 23, 1948. Membership or other association with these organizations in the late 30's and early 40's has therefore to be considered with some circumspection as evidence of disloyalty or of security risk.

The

The problem of the State Department in implementing the President's Loyalty Program was complicated by the fact that the Secretary of State has been granted by Congress, in the so-called McCarran Rider of the 79th Congress, and repeatedly in subsequent appropriation Acts, the power in his absolute discretion to terminate employment whenever he shall deem such termination necessary or advisable in the interest of the United States. This power of summary dismissal is the basis of the right of the Secretary to dismiss on account of security risk, without having to resort to a determination, that on all the evidence reasonable grounds exist for belief that the employee is disloyal.

Acting in accordance with this power of summary dismissal, and five months before the organization of the Loyalty Review Board, the Secretary of State, General Marshall, on July 9, 1947, appointed a Personnel Security Board, of which I was appointed Chairman, and Maynard Barnes and Barrall St. Clair members. Both of the latter two have since left the Department, but only after a considerable service on the Board. The Secretary also designated four categories of employees as security risks: to wit

(a) A person engaging in, supporting or advocating treason, subversion or sedition, or who is a member of, affiliated with or in sympathetic association with the Communist, Nazi or Fascist Party, or of any party which seeks to alter the form of Government of the United States by unconstitutional means, -- or a person who consistently believes in or supports the ideologies and policies of such a party.

(b) A person who is engaged in espionage, or who is acting directly or indirectly under the instructions of a foreign government, or who deliberately performs his duties or otherwise acts to serve the interest of another government in preference to the interests of the United States.

(c) A person who has knowingly divulged classified information without authority and with the knowledge or belief that it will be transmitted to agents of a foreign government, or who is so consistently irresponsible in the handling of classified information as to compel the conclusion of extreme lack of care or judgment.

(d) A person who has habitual or close association with persons known or believed to be in categories (a) or (b) to an extent which would justify the conclusion that he might, through such association, divulge such classified information without authority.

Under these security principles of the Department of State, adopted in 1947, it will be seen that the Personnel Security Board had to apply a standard much stricter than those prescribed for the Loyalty Program. Not only Communists were proscribed as security risks, or persons affiliated with, or in sympathetic association with the Communist party, or who consistently believed in or supported the ideologies and policies of the Communist Party, but even persons who had habitual or close association with such persons, so as to justify the conclusion that they might voluntarily or involuntarily divulge classified information without authority.

The President's Loyalty Program was put into effect on December 17, 1947, by the issuance by the Loyalty Review Board, under Seth W. Richardson as Chairman, of five directives, one requiring the establishment of Departmental Loyalty Boards, and four regulating the initial consideration of loyalty cases by such Boards, the manner of conducting hearings, and the determinations by the Boards and the matter of appeals from their decisions. The State Department promptly followed suit, by adopting the Loyalty Standards of Executive Order 9835, and transforming the Personnel Security Board, with the same membership, into the Loyalty Security Board, with the functions of applying both the Loyalty Standards of the Executive Order and the Security Principles of the Department of State.

The Loyalty Security Board is not an investigatory body. It performs a judicial function, and the basis for action on its part is always a report from the FBI. The FBI, in its name check of all the employees of the State Department, has found itself in possession of certain derogatory information regarding an employee, and has consequently conducted a full field investigation and submitted its report to the Department. The report is exceedingly complete in most cases, — it covers the life history of the employee, from his college days and in some cases high school days to the present. Every one who remembers the employee, and many who don't, has been contacted, — neighbors, teachers, friends, enemies, and associates. Everything they say is put down, — whether it bears on loyalty, security, morality or even fitness for employment. Most of the information is imparted to the FBI agent in confidence, and the greater part of the witnesses refuse to sign statements or to appear before a loyalty board. Many of the witnesses are anonymous to the Board, and are designated in the report simply by letters and numbers, with some suggestion either that their reliability is unknown, or has hitherto been found to be reliable. The good is reported as fully as the bad. The report, of course, particularly in the field of association with other persons, contains derogatory information regarding these other persons, with supporting testimony. The reports are completely objective, — they make no attempt to evaluate the information, derogatory or otherwise, and draw no conclusions on the evidence.

These FBI reports are submitted to the Loyalty Security Board in triplicate, and are at once passed to a panel of 3 out of the nine members of the Board. Each member of the panel reads the report by himself, and makes up his own mind as to the action indicated. Then a meeting of the panel is held, and, under the Regulations of the Loyalty Review Board, the Board may come to any one of four conclusions:

(a) It may conclude that in some respect the FBI report is incomplete, and refer the report back to the FBI for farther investigation;

(b) It may direct a written interrogatory to the Employee, but may not question him otherwise;

(c) It may make a finding clearly favorable to the employee. Because of the full nature of the FBI reports this is possible in a large proportion of the cases;

(d) It may

(d) It may propose removal action, which is done by a notice to the employee in writing stating the charges in factual detail. ~~These written charges are generally amplified orally by the legal office of the Board, so as to enable the employee to prepare his defense.~~ The employee, either in writing or orally, is informed of the names of all organizations with which he is accused of having been connected, and of all persons with whom he is charged with associating.

In case the panel decides to make charges of disloyalty or of security risk the employee is entitled either to reply in writing or to have an administrative hearing, at which he may appear personally, be represented by counsel of his own choosing and present evidence. If a hearing is required, no one is present beside the Board, its legal officer -- Mr. Allen B. Moreland -- the stenographer, the employee, his counsel, and the witness who is testifying. A complete transcript is made of the hearing, and is added to the file in the case. The Board presents no evidence on behalf of the charges, since the FBI file is considered part of the case, even though it cannot be shown to the employee or his counsel. Any adverse witnesses who have stated willingness to appear before a Loyalty Board are invited to attend and testify, but they rarely do, and the Board has no power to summon or no money to pay expenses of witnesses. The Board is required and makes every effort, to conduct the hearing with fairness, impartiality and cooperativeness. It is an <sup>active hearing</sup> investigation, not a prosecution.

After

After the hearing, the panel meets in Executive session, with-its-legal officer, to decide the case. The regulations require that in its determination it shall state merely the action taken, which may be either to clear the employee or that on all the evidence, reasonable grounds exist for belief that the person is disloyal, or to recommend dismissal as a security risk. If the decision is adverse, the employee has an appeal to the Secretary of State or to a person designated by him. The Board has never been reversed on appeal.

Every loyalty determination by a panel of the Board goes up to the Loyalty Review Board for post-audit. The Review Board permits itself any one of four actions:

- (a) It may affirm the determination of the Loyalty Security Board.
- (b) In case the Loyalty Security Board has decided the case without preferring charges it may remand the case for charges and a hearing.
- (c) In case the Loyalty Security Board has decided the case without interrogation it may remand the case for an interrogatory.
- (d) It may hold a hearing itself, and either affirm or reverse the decision of the Loyalty Security Board.

Since 1947 the Loyalty Security Board of the State Department has determined 245 loyalty cases; 31 per cent of the cases have been post-audited by the Loyalty Review Board. Out of the 199 cases post-audited, three cases have been remanded for an interrogatory, two cases have been remanded for a hearing, and no cases have been reversed. The Board has held 36 hearings. It has found three employees to be security risks; seven have resigned rather than face hearing.

I have served continuously as Chairman of the Board, and have participated as a member of the panel in 85 per cent of the cases. I have sat on most of the hearings. I have tried to give every case my most careful and judicial consideration, I am sure that the other members of the Board have done likewise. If there are any communists in the State Department, the FBI have not discovered them and the Loyalty Security Board is uninformed of their existence.

I come now, Mr. Chairman, to the 81 cases named by Senator McCarthy. I do not know how many of those 81 were ever employees of the Department, but only 38 of them ever came before the Loyalty Security Board. If the other 45 cases were employees of the Department, no derogatory information regarding them has yet come into the possession of the FBI so as to occasion a full field investigation, unless such investigations are pending or incomplete. I mean by this that the FBI have not passed to the Department any reports on these 45 cases.

Of the 38 cases on which the Board did receive reports from the FBI, 27 were cleared by the Loyalty Security Board, 10 after charges and hearing, and 17 without charges or hearing. This means that in 17 of the 27 cases the files taken as a whole did not contain, in the opinion of the deciding panel, sufficient derogatory information to merit charges, and that in 10 of the 27 cases the derogatory information was, in the opinion of the hearing panel, fully and satisfactorily explained on hearing. Of these 27 cases, 24 were loyalty cases, and all but 2 of the 24 decisions have been post-audited by the Loyalty Review Board. In every case the post-audit sustained the Loyalty Security Board, except that one case was remanded for an interrogatory, and subsequently, after interrogatory, favorably post-audited. One of the 2 cases not yet finally post-audited was remanded to the Loyalty Security Board for a rationale of the reasons for the decision, because the vote of the panel to clear had been 2-1. The rationale was duly furnished, but the case has not yet been finally passed by the Review Board.

This leaves 11 of the 38 cases decided by the Loyalty Security Board. One of these was found to be a security risk, and was allowed to resign. Four resigned after charges preferred, rather than face hearing. Five, although cleared by the Loyalty Security Board, have since resigned or been terminated. One case is pending. This is the case of John Service, remanded by the Loyalty Review Board to the Loyalty Security Board for a hearing on charges.

In other words, to summarize our trusteeship of the 38 cases mentioned by Senator McCarthy which have been made the subject of FBI investigations and have been before the Loyalty Security Board of the State Department, — 27 have been cleared by the Board (10 after hearing) — 10 are no longer with the Department, and one case is pending. Only 3 of the 25 cases post-audited by the Loyalty Review Board have been remanded; — one for a rationale, one for interrogatory, and one for hearing. The Loyalty Security Board is proud of the fact that its decisions have been so uniformly sustained by the Review Board, and is not at all embarrassed by the fact that it now has one case to hear that it had previously cleared without hearing.

It would

It would not be appropriate for me to discuss the individual cases mentioned by Senator McCarthy, in view of the fact that the President has committed the entire list to the Loyalty Review Board for a re-review. Any discussion by me or by my Board would presume on this function of the Loyalty Review Board.

RECORDED - 23

I thought you would be interested in the attached copy of a proposed statement which Mr. Conrad E. Snow, Chairman, Loyalty Security Board, Department of State, was to use in an appearance before the Tydings Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today. A copy of this proposed statement was furnished to the Bureau by the State Department last night with a suggestion that we review it and offer comments as to anything contained therein objectionable from the Bureau's standpoint. It was indicated that on the basis of such comments appropriate revisions of the statement would be made.

You will note the statement generally relates to the operations of the Loyalty Security Board of the State Department and the principles and standards upon which it decides cases submitted to the Board for review.

On page seven of the statement reference is made to investigative reports of the FBI. A comment is made in the last paragraph on this page, relating generally to interviews with witnesses, to the effect that "Everything they say is put down,--whether it bears on loyalty, security, morality or even fitness for employment." Investigations conducted by the Bureau under the President's Loyalty Order are confined to questions of loyalty unless witnesses interviewed volunteer, on their own initiative, comments relating to the character and morals of the individual under investigation, in which case such voluntary comments are reported. In no instance do we inquire into the individual's "fitness for employment" during a loyalty investigation. We do, of course, also conduct investigations for the Department of State under the provisions of Public Law 402, 80th Congress (Voice of America) and during investigations conducted under this authority we do inquire into the individual's character, reputation, fitness for employment, (as distinguished from qualifications for employment), as well as his loyalty. The proposed statement, however, deals generally with loyalty and the implication in the above-quoted comment is that the FBI reports in question are reports of loyalty investigations conducted under the provisions of the President's Loyalty Order. With this in mind the comment, as contained in the proposed statement, was misleading and was therefore pointed out as such to the State Department.

In paragraph one, page eleven, of the proposed statement, after a discussion of the action taken by the Board in the cases it has reviewed, there appears a statement to the effect that "If there are any Communists in the State Department, the FBI has not uncovered them and the Loyalty Security Board is uninformed of their existence."

As you know, the word "Communist" covers a broad field and there are many fine distinctions to be drawn therefrom in the interests of accuracy, such as past or present membership in the Communist Party. The above-quoted comment in the proposed statement could leave the impression that the State Department was placing the responsibility for its failure to dismiss various categories of undesirable employees on the FBI and therefore this comment was brought to the attention of the State Department.

On page eleven there also begins a discussion of the 81 cases cited by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy and in paragraph two on this page there appears the comment, "I do not know how many of those 81 cases were ever employees of the Department, but only 36 of them ever came before the Loyalty Security Board. If the other 45 cases were employees of the Department, no derogatory information regarding them has yet come into the possession of the FBI so as to occasion a full field investigation, unless such investigations are pending or incomplete. I mean by this that the FBI have not passed to the Department any reports on these 45 cases." The figures quoted above are inaccurate on their face, since only 81 cases are involved. The Bureau, of course, does not know how many of our investigations in these cases have actually been considered by the Loyalty Security Board of the State Department but it might be noted in this connection that several of the individuals involved were subjects of investigation under the provisions of Public Law 402, 80th Congress (Voice of America), in addition to those who have been investigated under the President's Loyalty Order. Furthermore, the State Department obviously knows how many of the 81 individuals have been or are presently employed by the State Department. The above-quoted comment, as it appears in the proposed statement, without specific reference as to how many of the cases involved individuals who are or have been employed in the State Department or elsewhere in the Executive Branch of the government since the issuance of Executive Order 9835, leaves the impression that the FBI has been derelict in its duties with respect to "the other 45 cases" and the State Department was so informed.

For your further information, the State Department representative with whom the above three comments were discussed has assured the Bureau that in each instance the material commented on by the Bureau will be deleted from the statement when given to the Senate Subcommittee by Chairman Snow of the State Department Loyalty Security Board.

I am providing the foregoing for your information so that you will be fully informed in the event Chairman Snow's statement to the Tydings Committee receives publicity in the local press.

April 5 (MA) 1950

Dear Sir: I have been a great admirer of you for a long time, I always felt that as long as you were the head F.B.I. man, we had little to worry about as far as Commies were concerned. But I am not so sure about that now. I know deep in your heart you want to permit Sen. McCaughy to do all he wants to do, to clean up the State Dept. Be yourself, push politics away and work with him, the good people of our country need you to work together, to save what is left of the State Dept.

State Foreign Relations Committee

Supervisor Oberndorf of the WFO called at 12:15 P.M. today and advised that the first witness from the State Department before the Tydings Committee this morning was Donald Nicholson, Chief of the Division of Security, Office of Controls. Nicholson identified himself as formerly Chief of the Investigative Division of the State Department. He testified regarding investigative procedures utilized by the Department of State.

At the completion of his testimony Nicholson was asked the following question by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy: "Are there 205 card carrying Communists in the State Department?" Nicholson emphatically denied that there were any Communists employed in the Department of State. No other questions were directed to him and at the time of the call Mr. Snow, the Chairman of the Loyalty Hearing Board of the State Department, was on the witness stand. Mr. Seth Richardson was scheduled to take the stand after Mr. Snow.

The WFO was instructed to keep the Bureau advised of any pertinent comments made by these witnesses before this Committee.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee

At 3:35 P.M. Supervisor Oberndorf of the WFO called and referred to his previous call at 12:15 P.M. today, which was reported to you in a memorandum from Mr. Laughlin.

Conrad Snow, Chairman of the State Department Loyalty Board, testified that he reviewed derogatory FBI reports and, if justified, made requests for full field investigations. Policy matters referred to him were generally not answered, and he referred the Committee to Seth Richardson.

Seth Richardson next testified and he outlined the method of handling loyalty cases by the Loyalty Board. Richardson was favorable to the Bureau in his comments but stated that in spite of the efficiency and excellent investigations conducted by the Bureau, not one case of espionage had been developed in connection with the loyalty investigations. Senator Lodge brought up the Coplon case but Richardson said that that case never came before the Loyalty Board. Another Senator mentioned the Hiss case and Richardson pointed out that the information developed in the Hiss case occurred before the Loyalty program was begun. Richardson stressed the high caliber of the men in the Loyalty Review Board. He said that he thought the Program was being handled as well as could be expected.

During the testimony of Richardson, which completed the testimony before the Subcommittee today, Senator Hickenlooper made much of the fact that the Loyalty Review Board and the Regional Boards had access to confidential FBI reports whereas the Senate Subcommittee did not.

TO : DIRECTOR, FBI

DATE: April 5, 1950

FROM : GUY HOTTEL, SAC, Washington Field

SUBJECT: ALLEGATIONS BY SENATOR JOSEPH McCARTHY REGARDING THE STATE DEPARTMENT

The Sub-Committee hearing of the Foreign Relations Committee was called to order at 10:30 a.m. this date by its chairman, Senator MILLARD E. TYDINGS, Maryland. The hearing was in Senate Office Building Caucus Room No. 318. The chairman, Senator TYDINGS, stated that the purpose of the Committee hearing was to acquaint the Committee and the public with the procedure in effect at the State Department concerning the "passing on" of the loyalty of employees in the Department. He stated that it was desired that these hearings would tend to make more effective the procedural handling of such matters in the State Department.

The chairman, Senator TYDINGS called the first witness, MR. DONALD L. NICHOLSON, Chief of the Division of Security, Department of State. MR. NICHOLSON so identified himself and in stating to the Committee his background, mentioned that he had formerly been a Special Agent in the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He mentioned that he had been with the Federal Bureau of Investigation for a period of four years from 1931 through 1935. Upon making that remark, the chairman, Senator TYDINGS, interrupted and stated, "I feel that your experience in the Federal Bureau of Investigation and your other experiences qualify you well for your present position in the State Department."

MR. NICHOLSON generally outlined the program of investigations by the State Department. He mentioned in particular that his division was in charge of applicant investigations in the State Department. He said that these investigations were made and that generally the applicant under consideration received an appointment of employment with the State Department prior to the determination on the part of the State Department as to whether or not the particular applicant had any derogatory record with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Senator BOURKE HICKENLOOPER of Iowa, interrupted MR. NICHOLSON at this point and stated that he was of the opinion that it would be more feasible on the part of the State Department if they would submit the names of their applicants to the Federal Bureau of Investigation prior to any investigation that the State Department would make on the applicant. MR. NICHOLSON then remarked that the suggested procedure by the Senator had not been found practical because the State Department did not always have fingerprints of their applicants until after an appointment of employment was made. There was considerable discussion between the Senator and MR. NICHOLSON over this point, the Senator maintaining that he felt that it would be an advisable practice for State to submit the names of their applicants to the Federal Bureau of Investigation prior to considering them for a position in the Department. This remark prompted MR. NICHOLSON to state that he wanted the Committee to understand that the Federal Bureau of Investigation later got all information in the State Department files on any employees who would be further screened in case there was any question of a security risk on the part of the applicant involved.

MR. NICHOLSON declined to answer questions concerning the procedural handling of loyalty cases at the State Department and advised that the next witness, General CONRAD E. SNOW, the Chairman of the Loyalty Board at the State Department, would be better qualified to answer questions regarding the Loyalty Program it has at the State Department.

Senator BRIEN McMAHON of Connecticut asked MR. NICHOLSON if, to his knowledge, there were 205 card-carrying members of the Communist Party employed at the State Department. MR. NICHOLSON responded emphatically that there were none to his knowledge. Senator McMAHON said that there would be no further questions. Then MR. NICHOLSON remarked that 202 employees had separated themselves from the State Department's employ subsequent to the initiation of the Loyalty Program. He stated that their separation was either by personal choice or by action on the part of the Department of State. MR. NICHOLSON mentioned that there are approximately 5,000 investigations conducted annually on applicants at the State Department. Of this number, he stated that approximately one-half received appointments of employment.

The second witness, General CONRAD E. SNOW, was sworn in at 11:40 a.m. He identified himself and stated that he was a retired Colonel in the Department of the Army. He mentioned that he had served in World War I and World War II. He further advised that he was Chairman of the Loyalty Board at the Department of State. He said that he was appointed Chairman at the time the Loyalty Board was set up. General SNOW advised that he had been employed with the Department of State since 1946. He stated that his duty as Chairman of the Loyalty Board at the Department of State was to pass upon the cases who were referred to the Board after the Federal Bureau of Investigation had conducted full field investigations upon subjects in the Department.

Letter to Director

General SNOW was particular in his description of the manner in which cases are investigated and also very detailed concerning the distinction between loyalty cases and security cases which were considered by his Board in the Department of State.

Many questions were asked General SNOW by Senator HICKENLOOPER and they chiefly concerned the practice that prevailed in screening of foreign service personnel. He indicated particular interest in the procedural method of the State Department in handling cases abroad.

The third witness, MR. SETH RICHARDSON, was sworn in at 12:25 p.m. He identified himself and stated that he was Chairman of the Civil Service Loyalty Review Board. He mentioned in his introductory remarks that he was former Assistant Attorney General throughout the HOOVER Administration and advised too that he had served for a time in the Roosevelt Administration under Attorney General HOMER CUMMINGS. MR. RICHARDSON, in response to a question by the Chairman, Senator TYDINGS, advised that he was a Republican.

The Chairman, Senator TYDINGS, emphatically brought this to the attention of the Committee as he had previously when eliciting from General SNOW the fact that he, too, had always been a Republican. Senator TYDINGS then remarked that he felt that it was a credit to the Loyalty Program that men of such caliber as MR. RICHARDSON and General SNOW could serve with distinction on the program.

MR. RICHARDSON remarked that the Loyalty Program was instituted by Executive Order 9835 in March 1947, and that the Board, of which he is Chairman, was set up in November 1947. MR. RICHARDSON indicated that his Board received, for the purpose of review, cases which had been considered previously by the various Department Loyalty Boards throughout the Government. MR. RICHARDSON emphasized considerably the fact that the Loyalty Boards were not aware of the confidential sources that the Federal Bureau of Investigation used in connection with the Federal Bureau of Investigation full field investigations that were conducted on the parties involved.

Letter to Director

MR. RICHARDSON described the functional aspects of the Loyalty Board, of which he is Chairman, and also explained the opportunities that were afforded the parties who were directly involved from an investigative standpoint in the Loyalty Program.

Senator HICKENLOOPER inquired of MR. RICHARDSON as to the political composition of the Loyalty Board and MR. RICHARDSON remarked that he felt that politically the Board was evenly divided. He mentioned in this remark he knew of one Board member who asked to be excused in order that he might run for a judgeship in his particular district on the Republican Party ticket. MR. RICHARDSON also remarked that a brother of Senator GLASS was also serving on the Loyalty Review Board and he added, "I presume that he is a Democrat."

MR. RICHARDSON stated that there were 160 Loyalty Boards throughout the United States and he stated that the membership of the various Boards was not a fixed number; that the composition of each Board was left to the discretion of the Department head.

MR. RICHARDSON emphasized that a person was not dismissed from Government service unless on the basis of all the evidence, there were reasonable grounds to believe that the party's continued service in the Government would be a security risk to the Government. He added that of the 3,000,000 cases considered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and of the 10,000 full field investigations conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, there was not one case of espionage involved. He stated that the majority of the full field investigations were the result on the part of the employee concerned with association and affiliation with subversive groups. He said that he noted, however, that during the early stages of the Loyalty Program that there was an immense increase in resignations from the various Government departments and he added that perhaps there were many of these who feared an investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He said that perhaps there were many others who declined to apply for Federal positions because of fear of an investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation into their background.

Letter to Director

MR. RICHARDSON pointed out that contrary to the circulated rumor at the time the Loyalty Program was put into effect, that the morale of Government service had not suffered and he added, as a matter of fact, the morale in Government service has tended to improve since the initiation of the Loyalty Program.

MR. RICHARDSON then remarked that he felt that the caliber of the members of the Loyalty Board was very good and that he felt that the Program was most constructive and beneficial to the Government.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then announced to the Chairman, Senator TYDINGS, that he felt it most unusual that conservatively speaking the 600 members of the Loyalty Review Boards could have access to confidential reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and that the Sub-Committee which was inquiring into the various cases were not afforded the same opportunities. Senator HICKENLOOPER pointed out that the total number of Loyalty Review Board personnel exceeded the total number of Congressmen and Senators and that in his opinion the same opportunities were not afforded the Committees of the Legislative Branch of our Government as were afforded those who came under the Executive Branch of our Government. U

The Committee had no further questions to direct to MR. RICHARDSON and when he stepped down at 1:10 p.m., the Committee hearing was adjourned until April 6, 1950, at 10:30 a.m. The Chairman, Senator TYDINGS, announced that MR. OWEN LATTIMORE would be the first witness in tomorrow's hearing.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

We appreciate your stand on turning over the secret files to this Tydings Comm: but at least, you can say whether or not there are grounds for McCurtain's stand. In face of the inexcusable and incredible obstructionist tactics imposed upon Mundt & Nixon, (in spite of which Hiss was convicted beyond the shadow of a doubt) we feel that the reason this case was not given to the House un-American Committee was because they did such a magnificent job, and Truman & Acheson don't want those results this time.

When a loyal American tries to safeguard this country he is immediately set upon by the government. The spies & traitors are coddled and shown every kind of consideration. What good are your findings at all if they cannot clear the matter of who is & who is not loyal to this government? The way we are being sold out by white traitors gives a government packed with communists & jews calls for drastic action at once. We want the truth about Acheson, Truman, Eleanor, Berne Davis, Jessup, Patterson and the rest. The American people will not be put off this time. We have no any more.

When we know they began using the Social Security money under Roosevelt & have continued to spend it, and now we read that "Washington has taken a lot of gold out of Fort Knox for foreign countries" - This is the last straw.

Senator Bridges and Rep. Cox and Senator George and Mc Carthy have expressed the views we can trust.

Please say if there is or is not grounds for investigation of the State Dept. If they throttle you we have no recourse but to act as enemies within our government.

Our courts except for Goldsborough

It is not McCarthy who has put a

PURPOSE:

To recommend a course of action in responding to the request received today from the Honorable Seth W. Richardson, Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board, for information from the Bureau regarding the cases identified by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy before the Tydings Subcommittee.

BACKGROUND:

Mr. Richardson, by letter dated April 5, 1950, pointed out that the President has requested the Loyalty Review Board to review such cases as have been identified before the Tydings Subcommittee. Mr. Richardson states he has been endeavoring to secure an authentic list of such cases and encloses a list that he has been able to make up. He points out that the President called for the inclusion, within the record for review, of all material available to the FBI. He observes some of the persons on the list have gone through the Loyalty Program and that a pertinent FBI report has been made concerning them; that with reference to such individuals he would like to have any additional or supplemental material which the Bureau may have regarding them.

Mr. Richardson further observes that with reference to the other names on the list he would like to have anything by way of material relevant to questions of loyalty which the Bureau can furnish him. You noted on Mr. Richardson's letter "handle immediately."

Earlier today you were furnished with a numerical tabulation of our investigative position on all the cases mentioned by Senator McCarthy. Attached is a copy of my memorandum dated April 6, 1950, furnishing you with this tabulation.

With respect to the (39) completed full field investigations, it is suggested Mr. Richardson be advised of the date on which reports in these cases were sent to the Civil Service Commission and the caption under which they were sent, since in some instances the investigations were conducted for agencies other than the State Department. We will also advise Mr. Richardson that we are checking our files and will furnish him as soon as possible with any additional pertinent information the Bureau has received since the completion of these investigations.

In connection with the two full field investigations which were initiated and then discontinued when it was ascertained that the employees involved had terminated their positions with the Government, it is suggested that we refer Mr. Richardson to the Bureau's letter to the Civil Service Commission advising them of the termination and the fact that the investigation had been discontinued. We will also point out to Mr. Richardson that a recent check of the records of the Civil Service Commission fails to reflect that either of these two individuals is presently employed in the Executive Branch of the Federal Government.

In so far as the two cases are concerned where we have presently pending full field loyalty investigations, we will advise Mr. Richardson that this is the case and that he will be furnished the reports reflecting the results of these investigations in the immediate future.

As set forth in the attached tabulation, 14 of the cases have been investigated under the provisions of Public Law 402, 80th Congress (Voice of America Program). We will point out this fact to Mr. Richardson, advise him of those instances where the Commission already has copies of the investigative reports and further advise him that in the other cases, copies of the investigative reports under the Voice of America Program are being sent to him immediately under separate cover. It will be pointed out to Mr. Richardson that copies of the reports in all of these Voice of America cases have been previously furnished to the State Department.

You will note that one of the cases has been investigated under the European Recovery Program. However, copies of the reports reflecting the results of this investigation were sent to the Civil Service Commission for consideration under the Loyalty Program and, in fact, we have a disposition from the Loyalty Review Board showing that the case was considered under the Loyalty Program and that the individual involved was retained. Mr. Richardson will be referred to the Bureau's letter furnishing copies of the reports in this case to the Civil Service Commission for consideration under the Loyalty Program.

In the case involving T. Achilles Polyzoides, who has recently been investigated under the Atomic Energy Act, reports have been sent to the Atomic Energy Commission and to the Civil Service Commission. Mr. Richardson will be so advised.

In the five cases where we have conducted preliminary inquiry type loyalty investigations, we will point out to Mr. Richardson that three of these were discontinued when it was ascertained the individuals involved were no longer employed in the Government; that a recent check of the Civil Service Commission records reflects that they are not presently employed in the Executive Branch. With respect to the one preliminary inquiry discontinued because no disloyal data was developed, we will refer Mr. Richardson to the loyalty form returned to the Commission on May 19, 1948, stamped "No disloyal data." It is noted no allegations of disloyalty were made in this case by Senator McCarthy. The remaining one preliminary inquiry involves John Carter Vincent and in this case we will advise Mr. Richardson that the information in our files was referred to the Attorney General for a decision regarding investigation and in turn referred by him to the State Department which advised that virtually all the information regarding Vincent was in possession of the State Department at the time of his appointment; that a review of Vincent's full record convinced the State Department of his loyalty to the United States. Mr. Richardson will be referred to the Loyalty Form returned to the Civil Service Commission bearing a notation that all information in the possession of the Bureau was in the possession of the State Department and no investigation would be conducted in the absence of a specific request.

We have one pending preliminary inquiry type Loyalty investigation which was converted today to a full field investigation when identity was established. Mr. Richardson will be advised that a full field investigation is being conducted in this case and that he will be furnished with reports in the immediate future.

In the five cases where we have conducted security or applicant type investigations in the past, none of the individual's involved are presently employed by the State Department and a recent check made with the Civil Service Commission reveals that they are not presently employed elsewhere in the Government. It is suggested in this category we advise Mr. Richardson of the date these individuals resigned from the State Department, according to their records, and further advise him that the Civil Service Commission records fail to indicate that they are employed in the Government.

The remaining eleven cases have not been investigated by the Bureau. In ten of them the individuals are no longer employed in the State Department and the Civil Service Commission records fail to reflect that they are employed elsewhere in the Government. We will advise Mr. Richardson of this fact and since no investigations have been conducted by the Bureau, we will not furnish him with unverified information in the Bureau files. The remaining one individual is presently employed in the State Department and a summary of information in the Bureau files will be furnished to Mr. Richardson.

With respect to the additional individuals mentioned by McCarthy but not included in his list of 81 cases, we will refer Mr. Richardson's attention to our full field loyalty investigations where such have been conducted and in those cases where we have espionage and internal security type investigations, we will point out to him that these individuals are not employed in the Executive Branch of the Government. You will recall Stephen Brunauer, presently employed by the Navy, was mentioned incidentally by Senator McCarthy in connection with the case of his wife, Dr. Esther C. Brunauer. Although Stephen Brunauer was mentioned in the press, his name does not appear on the list furnished to the Bureau by Mr. Richardson. Consequently, it is suggested we make no comment with respect to him in our reply to Mr. Richardson since, as you know, the investigation of Stephen Brunauer was conducted primarily by ONI. It is noted Mr. Richardson's list includes Mary Jane Keeney, presently employed by the United Nations and not a Government employee, who is the subject of a pending espionage investigation. We will simply point out to Mr. Richardson with respect to her that she is not employed in the Executive Branch of the Government. It should be noted that the name, Mary Jane Keeney, has not been on any previous lists furnished to the Bureau but, you will recall, McCarthy mentioned her name in one of his early speeches. In all other respects, the list furnished by Mr. Richardson ~~is~~ identical with lists previously in the Bureau's possession.

COMMENTS:

For your information we have been advised that the President in his letter to Senator Tydings on this subject, among other things, stated:

"I have, therefore, asked Mr. Seth Richardson, Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board, to have the Board arrange for a complete and detailed review as soon as possible of all cases in which charges of disloyalty have been made before your Subcommittee (including a re-examination of such cases heretofore reviewed by the Board), and have asked him to give me a full and complete report in each case after review. This review will include all reports of Loyalty investigations made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and files of the State Department and the Civil Service Commission relating to these cases, as well as all other evidence of disloyalty made available to the Loyalty Review Board, including, of course, any evidence produced before your Subcommittee."

RECOMMENDATION:

Fully considering this statement of the President, it is recommended that we furnish to Mr. Richardson reports and/or information only on those individuals on whom the Bureau has conducted investigation under the Loyalty Program or Public Laws mentioned above such as, AEA, ERP and VOA, as indicated in the body of this memorandum. It is felt that Mr. Richardson should not be furnished with information regarding those persons who were not investigated under the Loyalty Program or the mentioned Public Laws and who are not, according to the records of the Civil Service Commission and the State Department, presently employed in the Executive Branch of the Government. For your information this group would include such persons as Dr. Harlow Shapley, Owen J. Lattimore, Mary Jane Keeney and Robert T. Miller, III, and others, on whom the Bureau is conducting or has conducted espionage or security type investigations.

Recapitulating for your information, there are a total of 89 cases involved (81 on the list and eight additional mentioned). Of these, if you concur, we can furnish Mr. Richardson reports, where not already done, and/or advice regarding the action taken by the Bureau in 69 cases. Of the remaining 20 cases, we will inform Mr. Richardson ~~that since~~ these individuals, according to the records of the State Department and the Civil Service Commission, are not employed in the Executive Branch of the Government, ~~we cannot make available to him any information since to do so might interfere with other investigations which the Bureau may be conducting.~~

PURPOSE: To furnish you, pursuant to Mr. Tolson's instructions, with a tabulation of the Bureau's investigative position with respect to the 81 cases identified by Senator McCarthy to the Tydings Committee.

BACKGROUND:
There is set forth below a numerical tabulation of the Bureau's investigative position on the 81 cases furnished to the Tydings Committee by Senator McCarthy:

Number of Cases	Bureau's Investigative Position
39	Full field loyalty investigations completed and reports disseminated.
2	Full Field loyalty investigations discontinued on termination of employment. CSC advised of termination.
2	Pending full field loyalty investigations. (Estelle Gordon, one lead outstanding, will be completed today. Aaron Jack Gross, two offices outstanding and these have been telephonically instructed to expedite completion of investigation.)
14	Completed investigations under Public Law 402, 88th Congress (Voice of America).
1	Completed investigation under European Recovery Program. Reports sent to CSC for consideration under Loyalty Program.
1	Investigation under Atomic Energy Act (T. Achilles Polyzoides - report sent to Atomic Energy Commission and being sent today to CSC.)
5	Preliminary Inquiry type investigations.
3	Discontinued on determination no longer employed;
1	Discontinued when no disloyal data developed and form returned to CSC 5/19/48 stamped "No disloyal data." • No allegations this case made by Senator McCarthy involving question of loyalty.
1	John Vincent Carter - Facts presented to Attorney General for decision re advisability of conducting full field investigation. No investigation conducted pursuant advice from Justice Department and State Department.

Dear Sir: State Department

I have been following with much interest the recent charges made concerning the State Dept. and on the news broadcast this morning, it was stated that Senator Tydings gave Owen Lattimore a "clean bill of health" after F. B. I. Files were reviewed.

People like myself, of course, have only the newspapers, radio, etc., to go by. About a week ago I believed you testified before the Tydings Committee and said you would not submit your files. - Now I can understand your statement relative to the fact that such disclosures may injure innocent people and may also be detrimental to your source of information and activity, such as Mr. Philbrick, who testified at the Communist's Trial in N. Y. C., which I think was a great piece of work.

Mr. Hoover I do not understand how Senator Tydings could quote from F. B. I. Files when they were unobtainable from your Dept. <sup>121-23278-112</sup>

Attached are copies of a letter dated April 13, 1950, addressed to this Bureau by Mr. Seth W. Richardson, Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board.

As you will note from the attachment, Mr. Richardson indicates that since the President has asked the Loyalty Review Board to make a complete and detailed review of the cases in which charges of disloyalty have been made before the Tydings Committee, Mr. Richardson is of the opinion that this instruction of the President does not confine the Loyalty Review Board to the limitations of the Loyalty Program under Executive Order No. 9835.

Accordingly, Mr. Richardson is requesting copies of FBI reports on cases involving persons who are no longer employees of the Government as well as available investigative reports regardless of whether the investigations were conducted under the Loyalty Program or under any other authority.

Mr. Richardson's letter has been acknowledged and he has been advised that this matter is being referred to you for consideration and reply inasmuch as the questions raised in his communication involve matters of policy to be decided upon by the Department. Appended for your information is a copy of our acknowledgment to Mr. Richardson.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ -
PY SPECIAL MESSENGER

Honorable J. Edgar Hoover
Director
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Department of Justice
Washington 25, D.C.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

I have your letter of April 10 in reply to my letter of April 5 with respect to loyalty investigations and reports concerning persons identified before the Tydings Committee.

I note your suggestion with respect to a considerable number of the persons thus listed, that investigations commenced have been discontinued because the particular employee had left the Government service. I also note an additional number of name of employees reported as not presently employed. Furthermore, you suggest that some five individuals whose names are included in the list, have apparently been investigated by the FBI but the investigation was not conducted under Executive Order 9835 or under the loyalty program.

As you are aware, on March 28, the President asked the Loyalty Review Board to make a complete and detailed review of the cases in which charges of disloyalty have been made before the Tydings Committee. Since the President is the the authority for the loyalty program, his letter of March 28 would seem to be a direction to the Loyalty Review Board, as an Executive Board operating under his authority, to consider all of the cases identified before the Tydings Committee, regardless of whether any of the persons thus mentioned are presently employees of the Government.

Obviously, it will be impossible to adequately consider cases where we do not have the advantage of an FBI report, and as you will observe, our activities under the President's letter are not confined to the limitations of the so-called loyalty program instituted under Executive Order 9835. Consequently, I am wondering whether we will not have FBI reports prepared on cases involving persons who are no longer employees of the Government. Moreover, it would seem to me that it would also be necessary for us to have any investigative reports which you have available, regardless of whether the investigations relating thereto were made under Executive Order 9835, under the loyalty program, or under any other authority.

The only alternative I would have, in the light of your letter of April 10, would be to advise the President (a) that FBI reports on persons not presently employees will not be available from the FBI presently or hereafter; and (b) that reports which are available but which were not made under Executive Order 9835 and the loyalty program or any other authority, will not be furnished to this Board in furtherance of the purposes indicated in the President's letter.

The list of names in question represents, in effect, charges made before the Tydings Committee with reference to the history of subversive repressions on the part of the Government, and for other reasons and particularly with respect to the State Department. It seems obvious that the full purpose of the President's request cannot be effectuated unless the loyalty Review Board has available, the pertinent FBI report relating to all the persons named, regardless of whether they are presently employed or not.

Since the matter is one of importance in point of time, I would be very much obliged if you would give this matter immediate attention.

Very truly yours,

Seth W. Richardson

Up to now I have had the greatest admiration and respect for you and the FBI but I am afraid you have fallen for the political pressure that has been put upon you by McGrath and the Truman New Dealers. Of course I think you are right in not making public your files but your every action at this time confirms the impression most deep thinking Americans learn, that you are playing right into the hands of the leftists and fellow travelers. Dear Mr. Looper:

Your letter of April 7, 1950, has been received and I want to thank you for making available to me your observations with reference to Communism.

For your information, however, report you referred to with reference to having stated that I would like to question an individual named by a Member of Congress as a pro-Communist is not accurate. I did not make the statement to which you referred.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover,
Director of the F.B.I.,
Dear Sirs,

~~Communist in the State Department~~

W-11

I understand from news reports that you said that one of the men named by Senator McCarthy is a pro-communist, and that you would like to ask this man certain questions.

I believe that a thorough investigation of people in Washington in government is a good thing, if it leads to conviction or their being fired from jobs; but this slipshod manner of naming men at random from the State Department, and not being able to prove anything is not only terrifying at home, but it destroys the character of innocent people and a divided voice from the State Department weakens our position overseas.

Now, in order to have an honest investigation, I would like to see you and Judge Medina and sit outstanding democrats and sit outstanding Republicans conduct the investigation behind closed doors, and not condemn a man, as has been done, until he is proven guilty. The names of those under investigation should not be repeated outside of the closed doors until he has been found guilty, and is ready to be tried or removed from his job. This method would not be repeated a partition affair, and would not permit the office of the State Department to be used as a political football.

Another thing that I would like to see brought to light is what programs are necessary to prevent the spread of communism overseas, and what programs are designed to form a socialistic state of the United States. Many voices put together form a picture in my mind that we are facing three evils:

1. Communism and its imperialistic tendencies.
2. Economic bankruptcy.
3. An attempt to form a socialistic state for excessive spending.

Now, what is the truth, and what do we do to do the right course to follow?
One more thing; I hear over the news that the Soviets are accusing us of going to attack them this month. In the light of the fact that they always accuse of doing the very thing that they are going to do, we should be on the alert. We know that we can't attack them first.

Yours for the welfare of the nation

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON
MR. NICHOLS
MR. LADD

Mr. Peyton Ford called me this morning and advised that the Attorney General wanted Ford and myself to come around to his office, that Senator Hickenlooper was on his way over. I told Mr. Ford I was leaving in ten minutes for New York but would stay if the Attorney General thought it necessary. Mr. Ford called the Attorney General and he stated he would tell Senator Hickenlooper I had gone to New York and if Hickenlooper wanted to see anyone else it would be OK. I informed Mr. Ford I did not think it was necessary to see anyone else; that Mr. Ladd was sick with the flu and he was the only one here familiar with the details; that all in all, it probably is a good idea for nobody from the Bureau to actually be there. Ford stated Hickenlooper might insist on it. I stated if he did I would be back in town on Monday. I told Mr. Ford I still felt as I did originally; that it was foolish to give this Committee anything; that this will go on until next November. I stated I thought Tydings and McMahon were both using bad judgment and it is one of those things I think is going to lead to more and more trouble. I told him if anything should turn up that he should want to see me about, I could be reached through the New York Office.

Very truly yours,

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover

Dear Sir Senator Joseph McCarthy

Senator McCarthy's outburst against infiltration of communists in our government personnel, acts of Kremlin inspiration

Call-1

He has accomplished with the aid of our free press, in a few days what the comparatively few communists would be unable to, in years of effort. He has planted the seed of confusion and distrust in our form of government and personnel in the mind of the average citizen, always the first step to communistic domination.

The American people have confidence in the ability of the F.B.I. to cover their employees in Washington including Mr. McCarthy.

FROM : GUY HOTTEL, SAC, WASHINGTON FIELD

SUBJECT: COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT
(ALLEGATIONS BY SENATOR JOSEPH MC CARTHY, R - WISCONSIN)
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

DATE: April 10, 1950

Examination

ReBulet April 5, 1950.

State Department Personnel, Foreign Service Personnel & Foreign Economic Administration files were checked and personnel files on following individuals were reviewed: JAY ROBINSON, aka J. ROBINOWITZ; ROBERT T. MILLER III; WILLIAM DRAPER CARTER; FRED WALTER HEAL; ISHAM W. PERKINS; DAVID RANDOLPH (ROSENBERG); JOHN RICHARD LINDSEY; STOIAN STOIANOFF; JOSEPH T. JANKOWSKI; and Mrs. PRESTON KEESLING LEWIS, aka MARY KEESLING LEWIS.

In every instance the individuals' employment was terminated on the date shown in reference Bureau letter. The files reflected no subsequent Government employment.

The main personnel file of HELENE YUHAS was transferred to Division of Personnel Operations, Department of Commerce, on February 17, 1948. A skeleton personnel file of Miss YUHAS' maintained at Department of State reflected she resigned there September 5, 1947. Miss YUHAS' main personnel file was reviewed at Department of Commerce and reflected following: She resigned from State Department September 5, 1947. She was given a temporary appointment not to exceed June 30, 1948 as Clerk-Stenographer, Office of Publication, Office of the Director, Department of Commerce on February 11, 1948. Miss YUHAS resigned March 12, 1948 to accept a position in New York City. The file did not reflect any subsequent government employment.

The records of Mail & Files, Office Services Division, Civil Service Commission were checked and following information was obtained: CSC has files on all 11 persons mentioned above. In every instance, with the exception of STOIAN STOIANOFF and HELENE YUHAS, CSC files reflect that the individuals resigned from State Department on same date as that shown in referenced Bureau letter. In the case of STOIANOFF, CSC files show he returned from military leave to Office of War Information on December 11, 1945. CSC files do not reflect the date his State Department employment was terminated. In this connection STOIANOFF'S personnel file reflects that he was transferred from Office of War Information to State Department January 1, 1946.

In the case of HELENE YUHAS, CSC files reflect her employment at State Department was terminated September 5, 1947. CSC files reflect no subsequent government employment for Miss YUHAS or STOIANOFF. On the other 9 persons mentioned in this letter CSC files contain no subsequent government employment to that shown. RUC.

0 Com. minutes in the State Department

In connection with the Seth Richardson letter of April 5, requesting information pertaining to the individuals mentioned by Senator McCarthy before the Tydings Subcommittee, the Director has instructed that we send everything we have to Mr. Richardson on individuals now in the Government's service. Obviously if copies of the material have already been furnished we need not send additional copies. However, the Director instructed that each case be reviewed; that we be certain that everything was sent; that this would include confidential information with, of course, appropriate editing to protect confidential sources of information.

The Director wanted it clearly understood that everything was to go and that he wanted no misunderstandings about this. The Director also concurred that on those individuals not now in the Government, that we would present the matter to the Department for ruling.

I took the matter up with Mr. Peyton Ford who stated that the material furnished Richardson would include all those cases covered by the Loyalty Program, all those cases investigated by the Bureau as applicants; that anybody not now in the Government who is on the list or who are under security or espionage case investigations but who was not covered by the Presidential directive need not be sent to Mr. Richardson. As a specific illustration Ford mentioned that material on Owen J. Lattimore, Dr. Harlow Shapley, and Gustavo Duran need not be sent to Richardson.

Mr. Ford stated he has talked to Mr. Richardson and that all Richardson wanted was information on cases on whom the Bureau has made loyalty investigations, applicant investigations, or whose service terminated by the completion of loyalty investigations.

OFFICE MEMORANDUM - UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : MR. TOLSON

DATE: April 27, 1950

FROM : L. B. NICHOLS

SUBJECT:

With reference to the Director's notation on my memorandum of April 25 "What is LaRoe talking about?" you are advised that Tony Smith, the reporter who related to me the LaRoe statement, stated that a discussion had occurred before the President's Loyalty Review Board and in the course of the discussion it had been pointed out to the Loyalty Review Board by some members that the FBI had said there were 286 cases of State Department investigations who warranted a full field investigation.

We, of course, have made no such statement but what they probably had in mind was that we had opened up this number of full field investigations, and the fact that there had been 286 full field investigations without a single vestige of disloyalty caused LaRoe to feel that possibly the Board was opening itself to criticism.

For your information, we have conducted a total of 302 investigations of State Department personnel in connection with the loyalty program. We have closed 297 of these investigations.

FROM : MR. L. L. LAUGHLIN

SUBJECT: LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Mr. L. J. Williams of the Research Section of the Library of Congress (extension 704) called Supervisor J. T. Hilsbos, who was on duty in your office, today and inquired whether the Bureau has a copy of the statement made by Mr. Seth Richardson, Chairman, Loyalty Review Board, on the charges made by Senator McCarthy of the State Department. Mr. Williams told Supervisor Hilsbos that some Senator was very much interested in obtaining a copy of this statement and he wanted to know if the Bureau could help in this matter.

I called Mr. Williams and told him that the Bureau did not have a copy of Mr. Richardson's statement. I suggested that he might call the Loyalty Review Board directly and talk either to Mr. Richardson or to Mr. L. B. Melloy, Executive Secretary. Mr. Williams said he hesitated to do this because they might ask what Senator was interested in obtaining this statement and the reason for the Senator's interest. Mr. Williams said that he called the Bureau because he thought we might have some kind of a clipping service.

I told him we did not have such a service, and suggested that he might check the local newspapers which have been giving this entire matter a great deal of publicity. He said that he already was doing this and had just finished checking the New York Times without success and he was looking for a "quick short cut."

(Letter from Seth Richardson)

While talking with Mr. Ford on other matters today I advised him that a memorandum was being sent back to him with reference to Seth Richardson's letter on the Loyalty program; that it was not felt Richardson's letter was entirely clear or in line with the instructions he, Mr. Ford, had given Mr. Nichols and myself previously, and that the Bureau was preparing a reply to him, outlining the instructions we had received from Mr. Ford.

Mr. Ford stated when this was received he would prepare a memorandum, over his own signature, to Seth Richardson, endeavoring to clarify the matter.

PURPOSE

To recommend that the attached letter be transmitted to Mr. Belmont Seth W. Richardson in response to his letter to the Bureau dated April 5, 1950.

BACKGROUND

You will recall that by letter dated April 5, 1950, Mr. Stanley Mr. Seth W. Richardson, Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board, requested information concerning the individuals whose names were referred to the Tydings Committee by Senator McCarthy. Mr. Richardson later furnished a list of the individuals in whom he was interested.

The list furnished by Mr. Richardson includes Senator McCarthy's 81 cases plus the names of 8 additional individuals who have also been mentioned by the Senator. It is noted that in the list of 81, case number 72 is not identified, since the name involved in this case was not given by the Senator to the Tydings Committee; thus, there are a total of 88 individuals involved on the list as furnished by Mr. Richardson.

You will note that in response to Mr. Richardson's letter, we have advised him of the cases where the Bureau has conducted full field loyalty investigations or preliminary inquiry type loyalty investigations, investigations under the provisions of public laws, such as Voice of America, Atomic Energy Act and European Recovery Programs, and in those instances where the Civil Service Commission is not already in possession of our reports reflecting investigations under the above public laws, photostatic copies of the reports are being furnished as enclosures to our letter. With regard to those cases where we have conducted preliminary inquiry type loyalty investigations, the individuals involved are no longer employed in the Executive Branch, according to Civil Service Commission records, with the exception of John Carter Vincent, and Mr. Richardson is being so advised. We intend to furnish Mr. Richardson with a summary of information in our files concerning John Carter Vincent whose case you will recall was discussed between the Justice and State Departments as to the desirability of conducting a loyalty investigation concerning him.

In those instances where the Bureau has not conducted any investigation or we have conducted some Special Inquiry type or Security type investigation in past years, we have simply advised Mr. Richardson of the date these individuals terminated their employment with the State Department and the fact that the Civil Service Commission records do not reflect that these individuals are presently employed in the Executive Branch of the Federal Government. There is one exception to this general statement in that we have advised Mr. Richardson that we will furnish him a summary of information regarding case number 56, Paul A. Lifantieff, who is presently employed by the State Department and concerning whom the Bureau has conducted no investigation.

You will note we are also advising Mr. Richardson that in those instances where we have conducted full field loyalty investigations or full field investigations under one of the public laws mentioned above, the files of the Bureau are presently being checked for any additional information contained therein which will be made available to him.

RECOMMENDATION

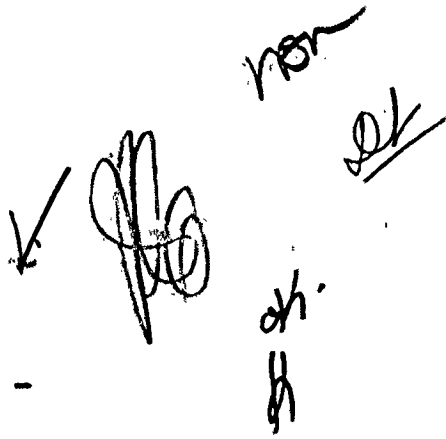

If you approve of the above course of action, it is recommended that the attached letter be transmitted to the Honorable Seth W. Richardson.

ADDENDUM, LBN:FML, 4/10/50:

With reference to the first paragraph above, we should furnish information in our files only if the investigation pertains to an employee who left the Government's service after the loyalty program became effective.

This is in accordance with Mr. Peyton Ford's observations and interpretation of Richardson's letter.

McCarthy Past and Present

WASHINGTON

SEN. JOSEPH MCCARTHY'S STANDARDS for service in the Department of State are most exacting. One can almost hear the roars of righteous rage the senator would emit if he could prove that the department had willfully employed a man officially described by a high judicial body as guilty of an infraction of the moral code, and guilty also of violation of his oath of office.

McCarthy

McCarthy has not been able to prove anything of the sort. So far in his attempt to support his assertion that there are "57 card-carrying Communists" in the State Department, he has failed to produce solid evidence of anything but his own political ambition. Yet if McCarthy really wants to find in the American government the man identified above, he need not look far. He will find him in the Senate, in the person of Joseph McCarthy.

The official records of the Supreme Court of Wisconsin, McCarthy's state, make fascinating reading. There already have been reports of certain rather unlovely aspects of McCarthy's career in Wisconsin. But stories of the senator's peculiar attitude to the income tax and the odd circumstances surrounding contributions to his campaign, are less convincing than the cold black and white of the official record.

The Wisconsin Supreme Court has twice reviewed the ambitious senator's activities. The first time was 1941, when McCarthy was a circuit judge. At that time, he decided a certain case in favor of the plaintiff, and against the state. When he gave his decision, he dictated certain remarks from the bench to the court stenographer. These remarks must have been to put it mildly, unwise.

At any rate, when the case was appealed, McCarthy had this part of the court record destroyed. The state supreme court, according to the official record, angrily ruled this action "highly improper" and "an abuse of judicial power."

UNDER ORDINARY circumstances, McCarthy's destruction of the record might have been written off as the hasty action of a young man. But what makes the case interesting now is simply the fact that McCarthy, with a great show of righteousness, has repeatedly intimated that "higher-ups" were preparing to destroy the records which would substantiate his accusation that the State Department is riddled with potential traitors.

In view of the high moral tone which the senator habitually assumes, the record of McCarthy's second brush with the Wisconsin Supreme Court, which came to a head last year, is even more interesting.

When McCarthy ran against Sen. Robert La Follette in 1944, he remained on the Wisconsin bench during the campaign, taking his pay and trying cases.

He thus doubled in brass as a judicial officer and an active candidate for political office. For obvious reasons, the Wisconsin Supreme Court was asked to disbar him. "No valid excuse or justification," the court ruled when the case finally reached it last year, "can be offered for the defendant's violation of the oath which he took as a circuit judge."

McCarthy's act, the court said, was "a clear violation of the provisions of the Constitution," and it proved that "the defendant is guilty of an infraction of the moral code."

In the end, after long consideration, the court decided that "the failure of the defendant to keep his solemn promise to support the Constitution," infraction of the moral code though it was nevertheless did not "disclose such a degree of moral turpitude as to disbar him from the practice of law."

McCarthy can still legally operate as an attorney in Wisconsin. But it is not difficult to guess what McCarthy would have to say if he could discover a State Department employe on whose conduct a state supreme court had made a similar ruling.

When this record is taken into account, the atmosphere of moral equalor and downright nastiness which surrounds the current goings-on on Capitol Hill is not surprising.

The issue of internal security in these times is a desperately serious one, as the Alger Hiss and Klaus Fuchs cases have clearly shown. There could be no more serious allegations than those McCarthy has made.

AS OF THIS WRITING, instead of proving his charges, McCarthy has produced, as weary, stale, flat and unprofitable a performance as Congress has witnessed for a very long time. It has the familiar trimmings—guilt-by-association, occasional fussy-mindedness, labeled disloyalty to the country, and reputations ruined by unsupported charges hurled from behind the comfortable protection of congressional immunity.

No doubt, in view of McCarthy's personal standards, as recorded by the Wisconsin Supreme Court, nothing more could have been expected.

Yet the McCarthy matter has a certain ominous significance. For the tendency is growing, like some nasty fungus, to substitute the cheap pleasures of this kind of political hate-fest for the hard and painful effort which must be made if the free world is to survive.

Dear Mrs. Avant:

Your letter dated April 13, 1950, has been received.

I deeply appreciate the complimentary remarks which you have made. For your information the FBI is strictly an investigative agency. It draws no conclusions from its investigations nor does it make any recommendations concerning the employment of governmental employees. I also wish to point out that the files of the FBI are confidential in character and information contained therein cannot be divulged to unauthorized persons.

For your interest I am enclosing a statement which I made on March 27, 1950, before the Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Communists in the State Department

I realize that you are much too busy to be bothered with strange correspondents, but I wonder if you would mind answering a question which is bothering the people of this part of the country greatly. I have talked with many from Alabama, Georgia and Florida and find it always the same--they are practically petrified over the stories emanating from Washington about spies and traitors in the State department itself. We find most people shocked beyond words at the implications.

Mr. Hoover, is it not true that if Dean Acheson, or any other member of his staff in authority, knew there were spies in the department they would be weeded out? And is it not true that you yourself have the authority if you found Owen Lattimore to be the "top Russian agent in the United States" to yank him out of his job and into jail?

In other words, what people here are asking (and not specifically about the man I named) is this--does the government actually ignore dangers pointed out to them by the FBI or is the whole thing a mare's nest.

I believe the only man in the United States (and I except nobody) many people now believe in in yourself. But a lot of them are scared that you are being hog tied by a bunch of politicians. I would certainly appreciate a note to the contrary.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

You hold a very important position as head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and have been doing very much for our country.

If possible, I think that if the files on the different men accused of having Communist tendencies or of being Communists, were brought out, the men accused either be cleared or convicted.

Comm. to State Dept. end

Mr. Nichols and I conferred with Peyton Ford on the evening of April 13. We showed him a copy of a letter from Seth Richardson dated April 13, 1950, wherein he requests copies of all reports on individuals named by Senator McCarthy rather than merely the reports in loyalty cases. Mr. Ford, on reading this letter, stated Mr. Richardson was way out of line; that prior to the President's issuing his letter to Senator Tydings and to Seth Richardson, he, Peyton Ford, had discussed the matter with Mr. Murphy of the White House and it was clearly understood by the White House that the espionage cases, such as on Owen Lattimore, were not to be referred to Seth Richardson's Board. He also stated that he had conferred with Seth Richardson and Mr. Richardson was also of the strong opinion that only the loyalty cases on Government employees should be and would be considered by Richardson's Board. Mr. Ford pointed out that the Loyalty Review Board would have no jurisdiction to go into the question of loyalty of private citizens or to look into espionage and similar investigations.

Laughlin
Stall

He requested that the letter from Mr. Richardson be left with him in order that he might take the matter up with the Attorney General, who in turn might mention the matter at the Cabinet meeting on April 14.

Mr. Ford stated he would confer with the White House and that it might be necessary for him to confer with Seth Richardson concerning this matter, but that reports in those cases falling within the category of Owen Lattimore should not be made available to the Loyalty Review Board and he stated he would see that an appropriate decision was reached in connection with this matter and the Bureau would be advised.

I talked to Peyton Ford on the morning of the 14th and told him that the Bureau was going to send a short reply to Mr. Richardson in response to his letter advising that inasmuch as the questions raised involved a matter of policy that his, Mr. Richardson's letter was being referred to the Department of Justice for consideration and reply. Mr. Ford said this would be all right.

As he requested, a copy of Seth Richardson's letter was made available to Mr. Ford.

DETAILS

The enclosed letter is identified on page 5 of the memorandum from Mr. Ladd to the Director, dated April 4, 1950, entitled, "Owen Lattimore; Espionage - R." This memorandum summarizes all of the material received from Senator McCarthy's Office on March 30, 1950. The letter from George O. Hackett was referred to the Internal Security Section for review as a of the above memorandum.

This letter from Hackett to Senator McCarthy dated March 24, 1950, advised that the correspondent and his wife were active in Republican circles at Spokane, Washington, and in this connection having heard Ben Kizer, speak on occasions, rated him a follower of the CP line. Kizer was reported by Mr. Hackett as having recently returned from Washington, D. C., where he had conferred with the State Department in forming the "Chinese Policy." Hackett alleges that Kizer's speeches were favorable to the Chinese Communists whom he considered to be agrarian reformers.

As a result of this letter, a teletype was directed to the Detroit Office on April 10, 1950, requesting an interview with Hackett relative to the allegations. The Detroit Office advised by teletype dated April 13, 1950, that Hackett, upon interview, continued with the same allegations against Kizer as above set out and, in addition, suggested contact with a Mr. Al E. Canwell, Chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee in the State of Washington, who has a complete file on Kizer.

Bureau files indicate that a Benjamin H. Kizer of Spokane, Washington, was on the Editorial Board of the publication "Amerasia" in 1943. He is a past member of the Lawyers Guild and the Russian War Relief Committee. He has been active in the Institute of Pacific Relations and in this connection, as a representative of IPR, attended a conference of Indian and American intellectuals at New Delhi, India, in December, 1949. Kizer departed from New York on the same plane with Owen Lattimore, December 4, 1949, for this conference. (Lattimore brief, file 100-24628-152 p 26 & 27) U

In view of the above allegations and as a result of the Bureau's file references, it is recommended that a security case be opened on Kizer. U

Hon. Jos. McCarthy,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Senator McCarthy:

By way of introduction, let me identify myself as a naval reserve officer on inactive duty (Commander, USNR: File 131814), now recently returned to my pre-war home, Detroit after living in Spokane, Washington from 1945 until last summer. My wife and I were active in Republican circles in the west, which I believe Congressman Walt Horan and Senator Harry Cain will substantiate.

Your "Operation Pinko", I hope, will shake out the left wingers and party liners from the government and its circle of immediate influence. One name, which you may already have, bears investigating: Ben Kizer, Spokane attorney, former head of UNRRA in China and reportedly a man of influence and advice to the state department.

Many people in the Pacific Northwest consider Mr. Kizer to be considerably left of center in his thinking and speaking. I have heard him speak several times, and believe that he makes it easy for people to rate him as a follower of the party line. He is reported to have recently returned from Washington, D. C. where he conferred with state department officials in shaping up China policy. Certainly, his public speakings up to the Chinese Red victory was favorable to the Chinese Communists, whom he considered to be agrarian reformers.

Mr. A. E. Canwell, chairman of the former state un-American Activities Committee, and who is seeking the Republican nomination for the United States Senate, can speak about Mr. Kizer in greater detail.

If Mr. Kizer is not a left-winger, then I hope somebody, some day will clear him of the suspicions which his words and actions have aimed his way.

Best wishes.

Sincerely,

George O. Hackett

PURPOSE:

To advise you of the status of the above material furnished to the Internal Security Section for review. u

DETAILS:

The material originally furnished to the Internal Security Section in this matter is identified on page 5 of the memorandum from Mr. Ladd to the Director dated April 4, 1950, entitled "Owen Lattimore, Espionage - R." This material, designated for the Internal Security Section, consists of four letters addressed to Senator McCarthy. The following is the status of each: u

1. Letter dated March 21, 1950, from George O. Hackett, Dearborn, Michigan, in the nature of a complaint on one Ben Kizer, Spokane, Washington. u

The Detroit Office interviewed Mr. Hackett and as a result of this interview a security case is being opened on Kizer. Kizer is identified as an attorney in Spokane, Washington. He is alleged to be in sympathy with the Communist action in China and was reportedly an advisor to the State Department in the shaping of the "China policy." u

2. Letter dated March 9, 1950, from John Saxton, Oxford, Ohio, in the nature of a complaint on Alexander Johnpoll, Assistant U. S. Ambassador, Belgrade, Yugoslavia. u

Mr. Saxton was interviewed by the Cincinnati Office on April 7, 1950, and in a signed statement advised that Johnpoll stated in 1936 that "The only war I'd ever fight in would be for Communism in this country." u

As a result of Johnpoll's present employment, this matter was referred by memorandum dated April 11, 1950, to the Loyalty Section for consideration. u

3. Letter dated March 15, 1950, from L. A. Berry, Austin, Texas, in the nature of a complaint on Fred L. Schuman.

At the direction of the Bureau, Berry was interviewed by the San Antonio Office on April 12, 1950, and advised that his opinion that Schuman is pro-Communist is entirely a subjective evaluation as a result of Berry's review of Schuman's book on international politics published in 1948. Berry is a graduate student at the University of Texas and advises that he reviewed Schuman's book in line with his research for a thesis he was preparing. He has had no personal contact with Schuman. He identified Schuman as Frederick L. Schuman.

The Bureau conducted a Hatch Act investigation of Frederick L. Schuman. Copies of the investigative reports in this matter were furnished to the Department on March 12, 1943. Schuman at that time was a principal Political Analyst, Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, Federal Communications Commission. A Security Matter - C investigation was conducted on Frederick L. Schuman and it is presently in a closed status as a result of the report from Boston dated September 17, 1948. Schuman is presently employed as a Professor at Williams College, Massachusetts. A review of the security case fails to reflect that any of the investigative reports were submitted to the Department.

The book above identified by Mr. Berry has been identified as "The Western State System - International Politics" published in 1948 by McGraw-Hill. This is the fourth edition on a series of international politics which Schuman began in 1933. At present efforts are being directed to obtain a copy of this book for the purpose of reviewing it at the Bureau to determine the extent of the allegations by the correspondent Berry.

4. A four page letter in the nature of a complaint dated February 26, 1950, from Donald Day, American Zone, Germany.

Day alleges that prior to the war he discovered dangerous Communist agents whom Moscow had assigned to various activities in the United States and who had been refused visas by our American Legation in Riga, Latvia, and were allowed to travel on to Berlin from where they had no trouble whatsoever in immediately procuring the necessary visas to enter the United States through the American Consulate in Berlin.

The Bureau files reflect a pending Treason case on Donald Day. The Department has been following the Bureau's investigation closely in connection with this Treason matter.

In view of the above allegations, this matter was referred to the Liaison Section by memorandum dated April 10, 1950, for the purpose of requesting the Army to interview Day in Germany relative to the identity of the individuals alleged to be Communist agents.

RECOMMENDATION:

None. This is for your information.

Peyton Ford called me on Saturday, April 15, and stated that he had talked to Donald Dawson of the White House concerning Seth Richardson's letter; that Dawson's reaction was "The s.o.b. I called him and read both letters before I mailed them to Richardson and he had a clear understanding of the limitations". u

Mr. Ford stated he would give Dawson a copy of the Richardson letter and he would follow the matter with him further.

On April 17 Peyton Ford called and advised that Dawson had been in touch with Richardson and Richardson now agreed that (1) he did not want the security cases such as Lattimore, etc. (2) Richardson agrees that the FBI need not investigate those employees who have already resigned but should merely furnish the information available concerning them (3) that where names of the individuals on the list are presently employed by the Government all loyalty data should be furnished to Richardson, but if information is available which does not deal with the loyalty, Mr. Ford stated it should not be given to Richardson. u

I advised Mr. Ford that I would advise you of this matter. He stated that he would follow the matter further with Mr. Dawson. u

With further reference to the letter from Seth Richardson in connection with the Loyalty cases and particularly my memorandum of April 17, 1950, I talked to Peyton Ford further concerning this matter. U

He stated that Dawson was having further conferences with Seth Richardson; that he was going to insist that Richardson submit a memorandum as to the exact understanding in order that there would be no lengthy exchange of correspondence with Richardson in the future. U

He stated as he understands the matter at the present moment if any of the names on Richardson's list had not been covered by the Loyalty Program and were not now in the Government, it was not necessary to furnish any information to Richardson. U

This clarifies point two in my memorandum of April 17. U

The hearing was resumed at 2:35 P. M. with ABE FORTAS, attorney for LATTIMORE, attempting to get Brigadier General, still unknown, on the stand. Senator HICKENLOOPER objected and Senator LODGE supported Senator HICKENLOOPER. Mr. FORTAS got a two minute recess to talk to the General. Senators HICKENLOOPER and LODGE objected, so BUDENZ continued testifying. u

BUDENZ was told by Counsel MORGAN that a Soviet magazine called LATTIMORE, "Learned Lackey of Imperialism". BUDENZ was asked if he could explain this, how it related to his testimony that LATTIMORE was a Communist. BUDENZ said he had no comment and that he would have to examine the magazine.

Senator GREEN then started questioning, asked about Father CARNEY (phonetic), where did Father CARNEY get his information, who he is, what does BUDENZ know about him. BUDENZ said he has no information about CARNEY, does not know where CARNEY got his information. GREEN asked if CARNEY got his information from KOHLBERG. BUDENZ did not know. GREEN asked if BUDENZ knew KOHLBERG. BUDENZ said he has known KOHLBERG a couple of years. KOHLBERG came to ask BUDENZ at first meeting about Communists in IPR. BUDENZ does not always agree with KOHLBERG and he has spoken to KOHLBERG only as he has spoken to numerous others who have questioned him about his knowledge of Communist Party affairs. BUDENZ does not necessarily adopt KOHLBERG's views but his, BUDENZ', views on China coincide in the main with KOHLBERG's views in that KOHLBERG is opposed to a Communist China and that KOHLBERG thinks the loss of China by the United States would be a great blow. BUDENZ thinks the United States should not recognize Red China. u

In 1934, Communist Party delegations from the U. S., China, and the Philippines resolved to wipe American Imperialism out of the Pacific. A Red China should be established to keep the U. S. out of China. This was discussed with KOHLBERG by BUDENZ. BUDENZ also discussed the LATTIMORE case with KOHLBERG but not to "any extent". BUDENZ has not discussed the LATTIMORE case with KOHLBERG "recently". BUDENZ does not know GOODWIN, but has a vague idea who GOODWIN is. All of this above was in answer to Senator GREEN's questions.

Senator GREEN then asked has BUDENZ discussed LATTIMORE's case with anyone else. BUDENZ named Mr. MORGAN, LAWRENCE, F. B. I. Agents, MORRIS, and former Representative KERSTEN (phonetic). He never discussed with McCARTHY. BUDENZ recently received a letter from McCARTHY re LATTIMORE but did not get this letter as he wished to shun any public appearance. Soon after McCARTHY's

GREEN then asked about the list of the 400 Communists which BUDENZ was preparing and asked if there were any government employees on that list. BUDENZ said he did not think so but will give in two weeks to the Committee the names of all of the Communists in government whom he, BUDENZ, knows. The list of 400 includes a substantial and impressive showing of Communists in Hollywood, Communists in radio, Communists in other aspects of public opinion, and Communists in professional classes and the like. GREEN then chided BUDENZ about not preparing a list of Communists in government. BUDENZ replied his list of Communists was started long before the TYDINGS Committee was in existence. BUDENZ said he was going to be more careful about naming Communists in government because they have more protection, they are highly protected, and he wants to be absolutely certain. This list will be based on official communications made to BUDENZ when he was a Party member.

GREEN then asked a question about BUDENZ' statement to Mr. PARIS of Colliers Magazine and BUDENZ replied that he did not make an outright statement to PARIS because he did not wish to expose himself to a libel suit. GREEN then intimated that unless BUDENZ were under oath he would not tell the truth. BUDENZ advised that this was not correct. BUDENZ pointed out that a Communist would lie for the Party in a libel suit and BUDENZ will not become so involved. GREEN asked if Communists have to carry a Party card. BUDENZ said no, he does not but a Communist is always under Party discipline and cited HISS as an example. GREEN then remarked, "This is the second time that you have mentioned HISS. Do you know him?" BUDENZ replied he did not know HISS but he has seen him and used him because he was a good example. GREEN then remarked that BUDENZ had incorrectly testified before the HCUA that he had never met HISS and BUDENZ said that his one meeting with HISS had been forgotten by BUDENZ at the time he testified before the HCUA and that HISS at the time of this meeting was using an assumed name.

GREEN then said that if the Communist Party line twists and turns then that sometimes there must be within the Communist Party all of those people who agree with the Party line. When the line turns the other way, other people who agree with this new turn must be in the Party. BUDENZ, although he did not say so, intimated that this was preposterous and reminded GREEN that the Communist Party did have a big turn over and that as an example, during the Russo-German Pact, a lot of people joined the Communist Party who later fell away from it when the Pact was split. BUDENZ pointed out to GREEN that these kind of members are not the real Party leaders but the real Party leaders follow the line day-in and day-out. GREEN then asked if LATTIMORE consistently followed the Party line. BUDENZ replied he could not say whether he did not nor because he has not read all of LATTIMORE's books. GREEN asked how many he had read and BUDENZ said very few, only "Situation in Asia", and that he is not drawing his deduction from LATTIMORE's writings but he is testifying as to what he knows as a former official Communist about LATTIMORE. BUDENZ said he will analyze LATTIMORE's writings and furnish this to the Committee.

GREEN then summed up BUDENZ' testimony and told BUDENZ what he knew about LATTIMORE was hearsay. BUDENZ ignored this and GREEN suggested that if Communist Party members lie, why wouldn't a Party member lie to BUDENZ. BUDENZ said a Communist Party member does not lie to his colleagues; that within these limits the truth must be told. GREEN then said that these onion skin documents might be lies because the Party knew or might have known that BUDENZ was going to break but BUDENZ pointed out that these onion skin documents were circularized to the whole National Committee (drawing a lot of laughter). GREEN then asked what form did Communist Party discipline take and BUDENZ replied that expulsion and slander were the usual forms. GREEN asked if one could resign from the Party and BUDENZ said no, one must be expelled, there is no resignation.

GREEN asked if anyone who favored recognition of the Communist Government in China were ipso facto a Communist. BUDENZ replied certainly not but that he himself did not favor recognition of the Communist Government in China. GREEN then quoted a statement and asked BUDENZ if BUDENZ agreed with that statement. BUDENZ said it was not a Communist statement and that many people agreed with this. GREEN then said it was a statement by DULLES. BUDENZ said that China is the key to Asia and that HARRY BRIDGES went to Hawaii to meet the Chinese Communists in the Pacific in order to drive out American Imperialism in the Pacific.

Senators McMAHON and LODGE said they would have questions to ask in Executive Session. Senator LODGE then said that since the Committee's primary interest is in Communists in the government why did not BUDENZ give the Committee his list of Communists in the government. BUDENZ promised to produce this list within two weeks. Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked if BUDENZ at once took over a top spot in the Communist Party. BUDENZ said that he was made Labor Editor of the Daily Worker and a member of the National Committee within a year and said that the top man in the Communist Party is the international representative who is "run by STALIN, make no mistake about that".

SUBJECT:

Peyton Ford asked me to come by his office this evening and at that time gave me a copy of a memorandum received from Seth Richardson, which is attached, clarifying his understanding of what reports would be made available to him.

This memorandum from Richardson appears to clear up the problem involved; that it indicates that where reports have been made with reference to any employee with reference to the loyalty of persons named by the Tydings' Committee, that the reports will be forwarded. This means loyalty reports on applicant investigations, AEC, etc.

He further pointed out that the Loyalty Review Board will confine their questions to loyalty and will not cover questions of so-called security and that where an investigative report has not been made, the Loyalty Review Board will confine their inquiry to existing files.

This, according to Mr. Ford, would eliminate the necessity for sending information to the Loyalty Review Board where the Bureau has not conducted a loyalty or applicant type investigation and thus eliminates the necessity for sending over espionage investigations, such as Lattimore, Harlow Shapley, etc.

Mr. Ford requested that he be advised of the Bureau's views concerning this matter by memorandum and such a memorandum will be prepared in line with the above.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~
~~BY SPECIAL MESSENGER~~

The Honorable

The Attorney General

Attention Honorable Peyton Ford
The Assistant to
The Attorney General

Sir:

As you know, the matter of my communication with the Federal Bureau of Investigation concerning the delivery to the Loyalty Review Board of all FBI reports relevant to cases identified in connection with the activities of the Tydings Committee, has been the subject of discussion between representatives of the White House and yourself, as well as the Bureau.

In order that there may be no misunderstanding as to the approved arrangement, may I state what I understand such arrangements to be;

(1) All FBI reports of investigation which are relevant to questions of employee loyalty with respect to persons identified in connection charges before the Tydings Committee, regardless of whether such FBI reports were prepared under, as a result of, or in connection with the so-called loyalty program and Executive Order 9835, will expeditiously be delivered to the Loyalty Review Board for use in connection with the report of the Board to the President under the request of March 28, 1950;

(2) With respect to employees identified before the Tydings Committee, where no FBI investigation and report has been made, the Loyalty Review Board will proceed to consider such cases wholly on the basis of the existing file, and no FBI investigation or report will be contemplated in such cases

(3) Obviously, if there are to be any future FBI reports in cases where no such report presently exists, care should be taken to forward such report when made, to the Board in connection with a review of the particular case.

ENCLOSURE

ENCLOSURE

It is clearly understood that the review and report by the Loyalty Review Board under the terms of the President's request above noted, is to be confined to questions of loyalty and is not intended to cover questions of so-called security other than loyalty.

If the foregoing correctly states the existing arrangement, I would be very much obliged if you would so advise me and at the same time see to it that all possible expedition is used in forwarding to the Board, the reports noted.

Very truly yours,

Seth W. Richardson

Allegations of Senator JOSEPH McCARTHY
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Pursuant to instructions received from the Bureau, agents of the Washington Field Office are attending hearings of the above Committee being held today, and the following has transpired thus far: U

BUDENZ was the first witness called. OWEN LATTIMORE was present, together with his wife, and his attorney, ABE FORTAS. BUDENZ said he would make a statement in three parts: (1) his own part in the Communist conspiracy; (2) evidence in connection with LATTIMORE; and (3) corroboration of this evidence in connection with LATTIMORE. U

BUDENZ said that from 1935 until December, 1945 he was a member of the Communist Party. He was brought out from under cover in 1935 by EARL BROWDER when BROWDER returned from Moscow. BUDENZ attended a number of meetings of the Politburo, now known as the National Board of the Communist Party, USA. He named as the international links between the Politburo and Moscow, ALEX BIDDLEMAN, WILLIAM Z. FOSTER, JACK STACHEL, and a man named TRAJMAN. He said the Politburo receives its instructions from international members who get their own orders from Moscow. BUDENZ received daily instructions from the liaison man between the Politburo and the Daily Worker. BUDENZ was then editor of the Daily Worker. BUDENZ was told to keep a list of 1000 names in his head. These names were prominent Communist Party members. He remembered these names and any shifts of affiliation of these 1000 persons. Four men who acted as liaison between BUDENZ and the Politburo were: BIDDLEMAN, WILLIAM Z. FOSTER, EUGENE DENNIS, and JACK STACHEL. BUDENZ said he was not always supplied with the names of the small fry, but had the overall picture. U

In 1936, BUDENZ knew that a Communist cell was organized in the Institute of Pacific Relations. He said the IPR was not a Communist organization but was successfully infiltrated, influenced and controlled as early as 1936. One of the principal Communists in the IPR was FREDERICK VANDERBILT FIELD, whom BUDENZ knew first as Conrad SPENZER (phonetic). He was secretary of the American Council of the IPR and reported to the Politburo. Another Communist Party member in the IPR was PHILIP JAFFE, who was a surreptitious Communist in the IPR and had a loose affiliation with the IPR. He edited the publication called "China Today", under the name of PHILLIPS. BUDENZ said flatly that both FIELD and JAFFE were espionage agents for Soviet Russia.

BUDENZ said that in this same cell with JAFFE and FIELD was OWEN J. LATTIMORE. At a meeting of the Politburo in 1937, LATTIMORE was commended by FIELD and BROWDER for putting articles and Communist writers in "Pacific Affairs", which is another publication put out by IPR. LATTIMORE was not in attendance at this Politburo meeting. One of these writers was JAMES S. ALLEN, who wrote for "Pacific Affairs" when OWEN LATTIMORE edited this publication. One of the things on the agenda for this Politburo meeting was to clarify the Communist Party position on the Communist Situation in China. It was brought out that LATTIMORE was to be given instructions in organizing writers to represent Chinese Communists as agrarians.

At this point, Senator TYDINGS asked if LATTIMORE were there and BUDENZ said no. TYDINGS asked if BUDENZ knew LATTIMORE. BUDENZ said not but he didn't know ALGER HISS either.

The second allegation concerns a Politburo meeting in 1943, when EARL BROWDER was also present. Again LATTIMORE was mentioned. At this meeting, the Chinese question also came up. There was a shift at that time and the Communist Party no longer attacked KAI-SHEK but Nationalist China was to be characterized as feudal and Red China was to be called the New China. Instructions were asked for by the U. S. Politburo from Moscow by cable and they received an article written by T. A. BISSON. This article set out that the Nationalist China was feudal and the Red China was the New Modern China. Then one HARRIET L. MOORE of IPR said that there was a mistake in this new Party line and there was a great deal of confusion about it and right shortly thereafter, a Coalition Government approach was stressed and the Party found itself in a peculiar situation in that the ordinary men in the Communist Party were told one thing and the inner circle was told another thing.

The third allegation concerns events during year of 1944. In 1944, JACK STACHEL told BUDENZ that when LATTIMORE went to China with WALLACE that he, BUDENZ, should consider LATTIMORE as a Communist and treat his statements in connection with China as authoritative.

The fourth allegation takes place in 1945 in connection with the Merasia case. BUDENZ said that JAFFE stole documents from Washington. There was consternation on the ninth floor of the Communist Party headquarters where Politburo meetings were held and the first inclination was to label JAFFE as a Nazi Jap agent. BUDENZ then said that he will mention other names connected with theft of documents in an Executive Session in order to do justice to the F. B. I.

At this point, Senator TYDINGS conferred with the Committee and then said that BUDENZ could go ahead and name anybody he wanted to. Senator HICKENLOOPER disagreed with this idea and said he thought the public interest should come first and that he thought the F. B. I. should have the first chance at these names. Then BUDENZ said he had already given the names to the F. B. I. Then he was asked if he has also given the F. B. I. all of the evidence available to him against all of these people who were still unnamed. BUDENZ said that he was not certain, that he has given more time to the F. B. I. than to any other person in the United States, but that there is a physical limitation on the time he could give the F. B. I. He mentioned the fact that he had a permanent part in the prosecution of the 11 Communist Party Leaders and admitted there were some general things that he has not given to the F. B. I. but that he would give the Committee any evidence he has not already given to the F. B. I. and that he would continue to give information to the F. B. I.

At this point, Senator LODGE said that he was against continuing the hearings publicly and then BUDENZ continued.

At the time the Amerasia case broke, STACHEL told BUDENZ that LATTIMORE had been in touch with Amerasia defendants and that they, the defendants, in touch with LATTIMORE and that he had given the defendants considerable help.

As corroborative evidence, he said that in 1940 and 1941 (these dates are not necessarily exclusive), the Politburo issued onion skin documents to the National Committee members and probably sent these same onion skin documents to Moscow. In the United States, they were sent through mail drops. These documents were designed to give National Committee members an insight on what went on in the Politburo and were more or less matters of the Politburo meetings. BUDENZ recalled that in Chicago, his copies were given to him by MORRIS (or MAURICE) CHILD (phonetic). These documents referred to Communist Party members by initials as a means of a security device.

In one, or more, of these documents in the Far Eastern Section of the documents, were the initials "L" or "XL". STACHEL told BUDENZ that these initials "L" and/or "XL" apparently were used by and both referred to LATTIMORE. These documents were so confidential that they could not be burned but had to be torn up into small pieces and disposed of by means of flushing down water pipes. A little later they were sent to a common center for destruction. BUDENZ repeated on these documents the initials "L" and "XL" referred to OWEN LATTIMORE and then he said that with due diligence, corroborative evidence against LATTIMORE can be obtained.

He recommended to the Committee that they subpoena four people: F. V. FIELD, PHILIP JATTE, EARL BROWDER, and principally, by all means, JACK STACHEL. BUDENZ then asked for two weeks to prepare documents which he said will corroborate his remarks against LATTIMORE. He does not have any of these onion skin documents and doubts if they are any way obtainable.

BUDENZ then presented three documents: (1) an article by Father JAMES CARNEY (phonetic), S.J., printed in the September, 1949 issue of the "Columbia", which is the official publication of the Knights of Columbus.

At this point, Senator GREEN wanted to know if the F. B. I. has seen these documents and BUDENZ said he didn't know. BUDENZ is not sure that he has shown the F. B. I. all of the documents which he wants to get ready in two weeks but he is perfectly willing to show them to the F. B. I. first before he gives them to the Committee.

As a second document, BUDENZ presented a copy of "New Masses" of October, 1937 and called attention to an article written by JAFFE which dealt with a trip into Red China made by LATTIMORE, JAFFE, and BISSON. An epilogue of this article was written by AGNES SMEDLEY. BUDENZ said that 30 (or 13 ?) years ago, AGNES SMEDLEY admitted to BUDENZ that she was a Soviet spy. This was when she was married to an individual whose first name was ROY.

The third document given by BUDENZ was the article written by T. A. BISSON which came up in the 1943 Politburo meeting. It deals with China's part in the Coalition Government and is the article which calls Nationalist China feudal and Red China the New and Democratic China.

BUDENZ concluded by saying he had no interest in this affair so far as LATTIMORE is concerned. He said he was not a partisan in this affair; that he advocated a strong Bi-Partisan policy against Communism which is the greatest threat in the U. S. history.

Senator GREEN at this time asked BUDENZ if he gave this information to Senator McCARTHY. BUDENZ said first of all, "As far as I know, McCARTHY does not know of this testimony up to this minute". Then he kind of admitted that McCARTHY had access to this information through BUDENZ' friends with whom he had discussed this affair but he at no time admitted giving it to McCARTHY. BUDENZ said that he always testified reluctantly, reminded the Committee that he was under subpoena, and again that he was non-partisan in this matter.

BUDENZ said that he came out into the open in the Communist Party on October 2, 1935 at the insistence of himself, of GERHARD EISLER, and of EARL BROWDER. He remained in the Party until October 11, 1945. He said he never heard of OWEN LATTIMORE in an official capacity until about October, 1937, which he, BUDENZ, places vaguely as the date of his first allegation.

Counsel for the Committee, Mr. MORGAN, began questioning the witness and stated he was primarily interested in the four periods that BUDENZ previously mentioned in the summarization of the testimony and that he would divide this into the dates, namely: the periods of 1937, 1943, 1944 and 1945. U

In connection with this, BUDENZ mentioned in going back over the period that he was in the Party, stated that he joined in August, 1935 because of the Peoples Front policy as stated by the Seventh Congress of the Communist Party which said that the Party would cooperate with World Tendencies. BUDENZ stated that he was convinced at that time that the Communist Party was the standard bearer for the common people. He stated then that BROWDER, after returning from Moscow, urged him along with GERHART WEISLER, to go into the open Party. He stated that this was on October 2, 1935. He mentioned that he left the Party on October 11, 1945. U

Then referring to the period 1937, BUDENZ stated in answer to question that at that time he first learned of OWEN LATTIMORE. He stated that he believed this was about October, 1937, at a meeting which he had attended with BROWDER. He stated that LATTIMORE's name was discussed at the time and he felt for the purpose of familiarizing himself with men considered important in the Party before he, BUDENZ, left for Chicago. U

BUDENZ at that point stated he wished to remind the Committee that though he referred to the Communist Party as a Party, he actually knew it to be a conspiracy and not having the semblance of a party in any sense. U

BUDENZ then stated that through the Politburo, instructions had been given that the two chief assignments of the Communist Party were in the acquiescence of Red China and Red Poland; that these two assignments were the chief conquests in the world. A question was then asked of BUDENZ if OWEN LATTIMORE was in the conspiracy. BUDENZ stated he did not wish to indicate that LATTIMORE was present at any of the meetings. (BUDENZ was then asked how was LATTIMORE a part of the conspiracy and he replied FREDERICK FIELD, Secretary of the American Branch of Pacific Relations, stated that LATTIMORE was charged with the responsibility of placing the right people in the China field.) BUDENZ stated that based upon FIELD's report, he formed this opinion. U

Counsel MORGAN then asked BUDENZ if he were aware of the many drafts which he prepared for his article which appeared in Colliers Magazine of March 19, 1949, and Mr. MORGAN referred to page 48 of the Colliers Magazine. There was then a discussion between Committee members about an examination of the article. BUDENZ was asked by Senator GREEN if he had given the information contained in this article to the F. B. I. and BUDENZ said that he assumed he had given the substance of it; that he had had many conferences with the F. B. I. and that he had always endeavored to provide them with the benefit of the information which he possessed. BUDENZ again mentioned that there was a great projected plan of action as far as the Communist Party was concerned and that he felt that OWEN LATTIMORE was associated in this plan; that FIELD so indicated this fact to him. He then stated that FIELD said that OWEN LATTIMORE was responsible for placing writers in the China field.

At this point, BUDENZ mentioned the name of JAMES S. ALLEN, the former Communist representative in the Philippines, as also being connected with the above described Communist plan. At this point, BUDENZ stated that he recalled that the meeting which he had attended, which had been called by BROWDER, had also been attended by the following persons: FRED BROWN, J. PETERS, HARRY GANZ, CARL BRISSON (all phonetic). BUDENZ explained that although BROWDER had called the meeting, that FIELD was the one who went forward with the discussion. He mentioned that it was at this discussion that he gathered his impression about LATTIMORE.

BUDENZ then mentioned that he was careful in his statements about the members who were formerly connected with the Communist Party and that he was prompted to be so because he recalled that ALEX TRACKENBERG (phonetic) had stated that anyone who was formerly in the Party and who was accused as being Communist should sue for libel his accuser. BUDENZ stated that knowing this to be the policy of the Party in the United States, he had to be particularly careful. He pointed out that this was a complete change from the former policy of the Party; that prior to the announcement of the policy by TRACKENBERG, no-one had ever been permitted to ever bring suit against any accuser who labeled them as a Communist.

At this point of the hearing, Counsel for LATTIMORE, Mr. FORTAS, asked the Chairman, Mr. TYDINGS, if he could pass to the Committee Counsel, Mr. MORGAN, questions which he wished to be asked of the witness. This request was granted by TYDINGS and MORGAN was handed a list of prepared questions to ask BUDENZ. MORGAN, upon examining the questions, asked BUDENZ if he could identify the 22 page draft of the article which appeared in the Colliers Magazine. At this point, Mr. FORTAS again asked the Chairman, Mr. TYDINGS, if he could have it understood that he did not receive this draft from the Colliers Magazine. He stated, "I owe this to the magazine".

BUDENZ then examining the 22 page draft of the article which appeared in Colliers Magazine, referred at the request of Counsel MORGAN to pages 13 and 14.

Before he could answer the Counsel's question about a particular section of the article appearing on these pages, Senator HICKENLOOPER requested that the Chairman grant the privilege to other members of the Committee to examine the document before it was read into the Record. Much discussion took place on this particular issue. After agreement was made that the article would be introduced into the record, BUDENZ then stated that the 22 page draft was one of several drafts which he had prepared on the article which he had submitted to Colliers. BUDENZ mentioned that he believed that this draft was one which he had prepared sometime in 1949. He stated that the preparation of the article "dragged along" unnecessarily. He identified the draft as the first draft which he had left with Colliers.

Mr. MORGAN then asked BUDENZ if he had had a conversation with LEONARD PARIS (phonetic) of Colliers relative to this article. He stated that he had. He was asked if it was a stenographic transcribed conversation. He stated that he was not certain.

Mr. MORGAN then read from a document which appeared to contain questions and answers that occurred during the conversation between BUDENZ and PARIS concerning the article which Colliers was to publish.

In brief, the questions which Mr. MORGAN read and asked BUDENZ to explain concerned the manner of expression relative to certain statements which appeared in the draft which BUDENZ had submitted to Colliers Magazine.

BUDENZ, in explaining the reasons for his believing that LATTIMORE was connected with the Party, stated that onion skin documents which were prepared at the instruction of the Politburo bore the initials "L" or "XL". These initials, BUDENZ stated, were said by Mr. FIELD to indicate that they were to be identified as LATTIMORE's. BUDENZ was asked how he knew this and he replied that JACK STACHEL had many times told him that the initial "L" meant LATTIMORE.

BUDENZ then referred to a meeting which was called by BROWDER, at which policy was discussed. He mentioned that this meeting was in 1943. He stated that in addition to BROWDER, the following attended: STACHEL, FIELD, BROWDER. He stated that PHILIP JAFFE might also have been present at that meeting but that if he were present, he was only passably active. At this meeting, BUDENZ stated that LATTIMORE's name was mentioned when FIELD discussed that there was a change of attitude as far as the Party was concerned towards CHIANG KAI-SHEK. BUDENZ stated that BROWDER did not seem surprised by FIELD's announcement. He stated that it was indicated at that time that an article should be written so reflecting the new position and he said that an article did appear in the magazine, "Pacific Affairs". He stated that the substance of this article reflected that Nationalist China was feudal China; that Red China was Democratic China.

BUDENZ then mentioned that it was felt that more confirmation should be obtained from Moscow relative to this charge and he stated that an article came from Moscow signed by one ~~ROGOF~~ (phonetic), in which CHIANG KAI-SHEK was condemned. BUDENZ then noted that this article created considerable disturbance in our press and that later it was stated by ROGOF that he had been misquoted. Thereafter, BUDENZ said that he, and he explained his position as managing editor of the Daily Worker, was told that the paper should indicate its favor of a Coalition Government and that through the Coalition Government they should endeavor to scuttle CHIANG KAI-SHEK.

BUDENZ then mentioned that there were many other names who figured prominently in the Party; that he could not recall all of them at the time. He asked the advice of the Chairman if he should name before such names were given to the F. B. I. Upon consultation, the Chairman advised that no names should be referred to outside of Executive Session and that the Committee did not wish to thwart the efforts of the F. B. I. in any investigation that it might have.

BUDENZ made the observation that members of the Party were never photographed and that because of this fact he was entitling a new book which he was writing, "Men Without Faces". He mentioned in connection with this book the name of ~~JOHN SERVICE~~ appears. He stated that SERVICE had been referred to in Communist discussions as LATTIMORE's pupil. BUDENZ said he mentioned this but that he did not have any other information concerning SERVICE.

Mr. MORGAN then asked BUDENZ about the first time that he had mentioned LATTIMORE's name to any agency of the government and BUDENZ stated that he had mentioned LATTIMORE's name to the F. B. I. a couple of days before the Committee had examined the F. B. I. report. He stated that this was sometime in March of this year. He pointed out at that time that he had been tied up chiefly with giving concentrated information to the F. B. I. about the 11 Communist Party leaders. He then explained that he had not previously given this information to the F. B. I. because his interviews with the F. B. I. had dealt principally with the 11 Communists.

He stated that in most of his interviews with the F. B. I., they concerned cases which were under prosecution. He then explained that the names which he had and which he knew to be Communist Party members had not yet been completed; that there were 400 names which he wished to be turned over to the F. B. I. He stated that he had about 200 names available at this time. He said he was deliberate in his handling of these names because of their importance. He stated that as soon as he had the list completed, he would first make it available to the F. B. I.

Mr. MORGAN then gave BUDENZ a photostatic copy of page 12 of the April 29, 1949 issue of the Daily Worker. On this page appeared a book review by DAVID CARPENTER of "Situation in Asia", a book written by DAVID LATTIMORE. BUDENZ knows

CARPENTER as a Communist Party member. CARPENTER said in this book review that LATTIMORE shows that the U. S. Government has done nothing but alienate the Far East and recommends that the U. S. Government should stop intervention in internal affairs in the Far East and let China set up its own government. The book review says that LATTIMORE admits that China is looking to the USSR and turning away from the United States but the book review says that LATTIMORE refuses to see that the reason that China is looking toward the USSR for help is because he, LATTIMORE, refuses to see that the USSR has overthrown Capitalism and that is the reason why China wants help from Russia. BUDENZ BUDENZ was asked if this book review criticized LATTIMORE's position. He said yes, it did in parts, and that it was customary to so review a book by a Communist in the Daily Worker and as to the author, "praise him with a faint damn".

BUDENZ pointed out that the emphasis of this article was on the criticism in the book of the U. S. Government and that the article objected to LATTIMORE's advocacy of a third course for China to follow, which third course was neither U. S. nor USSR, but a middle road. BUDENZ also said that the book review objected to LATTIMORE's implied advocacy of capitalism.

It was then brought out that LATTIMORE had testified that he participated in a fund raising project on behalf of the Finns who were fighting Russia. BUDENZ was asked if this would guarantee that LATTIMORE was not a Communist and he said that this fact was not indicative that LATTIMORE was not a Communist and that examples of this nature had been granted to people in delicate situations and that LATTIMORE was in a delicate situation.

BUDENZ was then asked if LATTIMORE's support of the Marshal Plan would seem to reflect that LATTIMORE was not a Communist. BUDENZ replied that he had left the Party before the Marshal Plan came into being but quoted from the New York World Telegram which said that "UNCLE JOE" could not have put the Communist line in China any better than LATTIMORE did. BUDENZ again said that LATTIMORE may have given an example so that he could back the Marshal Plan as a cover. BUDENZ said that the main line of support was the most important thing and that exceptions could always be made.

BUDENZ was then asked if he thought LATTIMORE was the top Soviet Agent as McCARTHY charged. BUDENZ said that this statement was technically not accurate; LATTIMORE was not the top Soviet Agent as far as he knew. BUDENZ was asked if LATTIMORE were subject to Communist discipline and if he, BUDENZ, had ever disciplined LATTIMORE. BUDENZ replied that he had never disciplined LATTIMORE and was in no position to do so but the Politburo did assign certain tasks to LATTIMORE through FIELD. FIELD and LATTIMORE did not always agree in the same way that HARRY BRIDGES did not always agree with the Politburo.

BUDENZ was then asked to give one instance of an order given by the Politburo to LATTIMORE. BUDENZ mentioned the orders given LATTIMORE on the China policy to be promulgated by LATTIMORE through his position in the IPR. BUDENZ was again asked if LATTIMORE were a Communist Party member and subject to Communist discipline, and did he know this of his own knowledge. BUDENZ said he knew it only by STACHEL's representation and that he did not ever see LATTIMORE at a Communist Party meeting and outside of what BUDENZ has been told by Communist Party leaders, he knows nothing of LATTIMORE's Communist Party affiliation. BUDENZ was asked what corroboration he could offer and replied that FIELD, STACHEL, JAFFE, should be subpoenaed along with FIELD's records. BUDENZ said he would give other names in executive session.

At this point, ABE FORTAS interrupted and wanted to put on a Brigadier General, U. S. Army (Ret.), who must leave town tonight. Senator LODGE objected and Senator TYDINGS could not get a vote of the Committee members. This General's name was not given but he was present. Senator HICKENLOPER wanted BUDENZ to finish and the hearing was recessed for noon until 2:30 P. M.

Seth Richardson called on April 21 and stated that with reference to the 90 some cases before the Tydings Committee, that there were about twenty in which no FBI Loyalty investigation had been conducted. He stated he had raised the question as to whether there should be one and that the White House had instructed that in only those cases where the subject had been investigated under the Loyalty Program should the Loyalty Review Board take any action. [Handwritten: 4]

I made no comment to Mr. Richardson with reference to this matter in view of the fact that Mr. Ford is handling this directly with Mr. Dawson of the White House and he has promised to get an official memorandum to the Bureau as to the results of the conference. [Handwritten: 4]

Dear Mr. Garvey:

I wish to express my sincere appreciation for your letter in which you enclosed a copy of the editorial "Keep the FBI Files Secret" which appeared in the Cincinnati Post on March 28. It was also kind of you to bring to my attention a copy of the letter which you directed to the Honorable John W. Bricker and the Honorable Willard Tydings, United States Senate, under date of March 29, 1950.

You have my sincere appreciation for your friendly interest in my administration of the activities of the FBI and I am happy to know that you approve of the views which I expressed in my statement before the Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations on March 27.

My associates and I are greatly encouraged by such expressions of confidence and support as yours and we earnestly hope that our efforts will always be deserving of your unqualified approbation.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

Keep the FBI Files Secret

Sen. McCarthy, who is still trying to prove that the State department harbors some card-carrying Communists, insists the FBI files will back him up and demands that they be produced for examination.

FBI Director Hoover and Attorney-General McGrath testified Monday on the prudence of turning over these files to a congressional committee. As had been expected, they strongly opposed such action.

They gave excellent reasons for their stand. Mr. Hoover argued that the FBI's loyalty files were inconclusive, could be quoted out of context or used to thwart truth, distort half truths and misrepresent facts. Moreover, he insisted, making them public would endanger FBI sources of information and undermine effectiveness of the organization.

Mr. Hoover, in fact, hinted that he might resign if he were forced to spread FBI secrets before a congressional committee. As a matter of principle, he said, they should be withheld from all congressional committees.

Mr. McGrath, supporting Mr. Hoover, contended Congress had no constitutional right to order the FBI, as an agency of the executive branch, to make its reports available.

Regardless of the question's legal aspects, we think Mr. Hoover's stand is clearly correct. And Sen. McCarthy, in particular, is not an investigator who could be trusted to examine the FBI's files, being too much given to shooting off his mouth.

Dear Senator:

Am sorry you have seen fit to subpoena the FBI files after Mr. Hoover has given very real reasons why they should not be opened to Congress. And what Mr. Hoover says I subscribe to most heartily against any and every voice in Congress.

I think we have had far too many Congressional blow-hards who in the past have put our most closely guarded secrets in the lap of Moscow. I believe that we should finally become sufficiently adult and sensible to follow the advice of the one man in Washington who really and truly knows his job — J. Edgar Hoover.

Even though the mail is heavy for Senator McCarthy to ferret out the Reds, I am most doubtful of anything coming from his effort, with or without the FBI files. The Senator is not the man for the task in my estimation. Too much brag, bluster and froth, and full of inaccuracies.

As for the State department, do anything you want with it, if, in fact, we have any such department. I am in favor of establishing one.

Finally, for once ... just this once ... the President is right, I think, in backing up Mr. Hoover.

Cordially yours,

TO : A. H. BELMONT

DATE: April 24, 1950

FROM : C. E. HENDRICH

SUBJECT: TYDINGS COMMITTEE HEARINGS

Senate Foreign Relations Committee

ASAC Whelan of the New York Office advised on the morning of April 24, 1950, that over the weekend Supervisor Granville was contacted by Robert Morris of the Tydings Committee. During the conversation, Morris indicated that the Committee during the present week will go into the following cases: John Carter Vincent, John S. Service, and Theodore Geiger. Also they will go into a general resume of the Amerasia Case.

It was indicated that Frank Belaski, formerly of OSS, will lead off as a witness. Morris indicated that the Committee generally was pleased with the testimony of Budenz. He also said that the Committee had found out about a conference which Lattimore attended at the State Department on October 2, 1949, and several of the persons at the conference were Communists.

This is for your information.

J. Edgar Hoover Says

To Open F.B.I. Files Would Violate Right of Fair Play

For 26 years J. Edgar Hoover has been director of the F.B.I. In recent testimony before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, he told why F.B.I. files must be kept confidential. Here are highlights from his testimony.

IN the 26 years during which I have been privileged to serve as Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, I have always maintained the view that if we were to fully discharge the serious responsibilities imposed upon us, the confidential character of our files must be inviolate.

A cardinal principle of success for any agency having a responsibility for investigations is its ability to secure information. To do that, it must be able to maintain confidences. Any person furnishing information must have the security of knowing that when he furnishes information on a confidential basis, he will not at a later date find that confidence broken. When that occurs, the ability of the investigative agency to discharge its responsibilities in the future is materially lessened.

The question of opening the files of the F.B.I. involves a grave matter of principle. These files contain complaints, allegations, facts, and statements of all persons interviewed. Depending upon the purpose of the investigation, particularly in security cases, they contain not only background data on the individual but details of his private life which bear upon the investigation.

There are other compelling reasons why the files of the F.B.I. should remain inviolate. The files do not consist of proven information alone. I would not want to be a party to any action which would "smear" innocent individuals for the rest of their lives. We cannot disregard the fundamental principles of common decency and the application of basic American rights of fair play.

F.B.I. reports set forth all details secured from a witness. If those details were disclosed, they could become subject to misrepresentation, they could be quoted out of context, or they could be used to thwart truth, distort half truths, and misrepresent facts.

Unfinished Business Of the 81st Congress

THE 81st Congress will begin winding up its affairs soon after it reconvenes following the Easter recess. Its Calendar is loaded with bills that would make our country stronger. Despite a courageous fight by liberal Congressmen and Senators, every important piece of constructive legislation has been blocked so far in this session. Led by Taft of Ohio and Byrd of Virginia, the reactionaries of both parties control this Congress—with the help of a few timid souls who are afraid to follow their conscience. As citizens there are two things we can do. We can write letters to our Congressmen and Senators now, and we can register and vote. We can help elect a majority that will have the courage to support legislation designed to do the greatest good for the greatest number. Here, in part, is the record of unfinished business of this 81st Congress.

BILL	PLAN	OPPOSITION	WHERE IT IS
TAFT-HARTLEY REPEAL	Restores free collective bargaining under Wagner Act with amendments to protect national welfare	Taft Republicans and Byrd Democrats have a majority against repeal. Three more labor votes are needed in Senate. 14 more in House to pass repeal bill.	There has been no action on Taft-Hartley repeal since the Wood bill was sent back to Committee in the House last Summer.

McCarthy's Charges No Substitute for Legislation

YOUR Congressman will probably be at home next week. Congress is quitting for a week's recess over Easter. If he's at all concerned about re-election, your Congressman will use part of next week to take soundings in his home district. He wants to hear what you think about this Congress. Especially, he's going to want to know what you think about Senator McCarthy's attack on State Department employees.

If your Congressman is a reactionary, like the majority in this 81st Congress, he is going to hope that you are now so worried about Commies that you'll overlook or forgive the do-nothing record of this Congress. He may even hope that by now you will agree that Federal aid to education, increased social security benefits, repeal of Taft-Hartley, rent control, health insurance and every other constructive measure is nothing but socialism and should be defeated.

If your Congressman is a reactionary, he is doing some worrying himself. He knows that Senator McCarthy has failed so far to produce any evidence against a single State Department employee. But, he is hoping that you will have accepted Senator McCarthy's charges on faith and haven't been concerned by this lack of evidence.

If he is a reactionary, your Congressman hopes that you have forgotten that it was only last year that the New York Herald-Tribune, a Republican newspaper, published a long series attacking the State Department's loyalty review board and charging that the State Department was being too rough in its investigation of anyone with even vaguely liberal sympathies.

If he is a reactionary, your Congressman hopes that you won't remember that it was the Communists, the Nazis and the Fascists who developed this tactic of public denunciation as a potent political weapon until it has become part of the stock in trade of the supporters of the police state everywhere.

If he is a reactionary, your Congressman knows that all these denunciations of Government employees—without evidence—is worrying many Americans more than the State Department which is now better organized to fight Communism than ever before in history. More and more thoughtful Americans are convinced that our country is in much greater danger of losing its liberties in the name of anti-Communism, anti-Socialism or anti-Unionism, than it has ever been from Communism or any other phony proletarian propaganda.

Budget

By Joe Henry

Your Car Costs More Than You May Think

If the family budget is as tight at your house as it is at ours, you'll be interested in some ideas we ran across the other day on how to cut the cost of owning and driving the family chariot. The Kiplinger Magazine, Changing Times, put a cost accountant firm to work on how much the average family actually spends on its car. The results startled us. You can read them in the magazine's April issue.

If your family is like most, you drive about 10,000 miles a year. That means you're spending approximately $482 a year just to operate your car. That's $40.15 cents a month. This may be the reason you find it so hard to balance the budget at home.

If you've any doubts, here's the way the accountants break down this cost: $207 for gasoline, $88 for maintenance, $40 for tires, $98 for insurance (fire, theft, property damage and liability), $19 for license fees, $50 for miscellaneous expenses including parking, polishing and minor body work. If you do your own repair work, you save $83 a year—but that's all. On top of that, of course, you have to allow for part of the difference between what the car cost and what you'll get for it when you trade it in. The magazine estimates the normal life of a new post war car at 4 1/2 years. It is generally true that it costs more money to keep an old car running than it does to buy a new one.

A car is expensive in any family. It's as expensive as rent if these cost accountants are reasonably accurate. Changing Times suggests three ways that any family can save money in operating its car. Here are three simple rules:

"Drive slowly. On a 1,000-mile trip you can save $12.22 by averaging 45 miles an hour instead of 55. You can save $19.36 by driving 35 miles an hour instead of 55.

"Make repairs promptly. Don't try to skimp by postponing needed repairs or replacement parts. Faulty brakes, worn tires, defective steering may cost you plenty.

"Keep accurate records. The best way to check your car's performance is to keep a running record of all your expenses in one of the pocket-size record books printed for that purpose. You might find that it costs you more to keep your present car than it would to buy a new one."

We could add one more money-saving rule: Always have your repairs done by an I.A.M. mechanic.

SHOP SHAVINGS

"My uncle can play the piano by ear."
"That's nothing. My uncle fiddles with his whiskers."

A visitor to Mark Twain's home commented on his large collection of books, and the rather limited storage space for them.

"Yes," agreed the author wistfully, "but it's so hard to get friends to loan you shelves."

Girls, when they went out to swim,
Once dressed like Mother Hubbard,
Now they have a bolder whim;
They dress more like her cupboard.

"If I cut a beefsteak in two," asked the teacher, "then cut the halves in two, what do I get?"

"Quarters," answered the boy.

"Good. And if I cut the quarters in half?"

"Eighths," "Correct. And once more?"

"Sixteenths," "Exactly. And again?"

"Thirty-seconds," "And once more?"

"Hamburger!" said the little boy.

This week's brain twister: Two clerks start work in the same office at the same salary—$1,000 a year. One has his pay increased $50 every six months; the salary of the other is raised $200 every year. The salaries are paid each half year. Which clerk fares better? (Answer on page 2.)

Copies of this letter are going to the editor of a metropolitan newspaper, to Senator McCarthy and to President Truman.

To the Editor:

The Philadelphia Inquirer of April 25th reported that President Truman was "ready, willing and anxious" to have the Government loyalty files opened, but that J. Edgar Hoover was opposed to such a move. In other words, the President is safe in being "ready, willing and anxious" as long as J. Edgar Hoover is unwilling. Could this apparent lack of cooperation be nothing more than a scheme to shield the President?

What is the real purpose of the loyalty files, anyway? Are they just a gadget for the permanent storage of information, or, should this data be used when the occasion demands it? Has J. Edgar Hoover ever denied that these files contain the information Senator McCarthy claims they do? If he has not, we are justified in assuming that they are brimming with revelations. If there is anything in those files that will verify Senator McCarthy's charges, let's have it. Otherwise, what's the purpose of the files?

The FBI is, to all appearances, an agency that functions only after the horse is stolen. After the crime is committed, after our freedom is gone, the FBI will catch the culprit, and the files will spill what should have been disclosed in the public interest long ago.

In President Truman's radio speech on April 24th, he very generously invited every citizen who knows of the presence of a single Communist or other subversive person in any federal job to furnish the information to the Attorney General or the FBI. He promised that there would be a prompt and thorough investigation. If the President is sincere, why does he condemn Senator McCarthy who has followed the President's suggestion to the letter? Consistency, thou art a rare jewel in these days!

The Assistant to the Attorney General
Director, FBI

April 26, 1950

LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

DECLASSIFIED BY 2909
ON 4/11/78 DPB/DLC

Reference is made to the letter addressed to the Attorney General by the Honorable Seth W. Richardson, Chairman, Loyalty Review Board, under date of April 24, 1950, a copy of which you furnished to Assistant to the Director D. M. Ladd of the Bureau.

Mr. Richardson in his letter to the Attorney General outlines his understanding of the arrangements, entered into through discussion with White House representatives, under which the Bureau will furnish to the Loyalty Review Board data with respect to the cases identified before the Tydings Subcommittee.

A review of Mr. Richardson's letter reveals that it does not clearly set forth the restrictions on the Bureau furnishing data to the Loyalty Review Board which you have previously outlined to an official of the Bureau. There is set forth below our understanding of the instructions you have given to us in regard to this matter:

APPROPRIATE AGENCIES
AND FIELD OFFICES
ADVISED BY SLIP
DATE 4-26-50

(1) That no data should be furnished to Mr. Richardson regarding the individuals, such as Owen Lattimore, who are or have been subjects of security type investigations by the Bureau but who have not been investigated by the Bureau under the Loyalty Order. (Memo Mr. Ladd to Director 4-17-50.)

(2) That if any of the individuals on Mr. Richardson's list had not been covered by the Loyalty Program and were not now in the Government, it was not necessary for the Bureau to furnish any information on individuals falling within this category to Mr. Richardson. (Memo Mr. Ladd to Mr. Belmont 4-18-50)

(3) That where individuals on Mr. Richardson's list are presently employed by the Government, all loyalty data should be furnished to him but if information is available which does not deal with loyalty, it should not be given to Mr. Richardson. (Memo Mr. Ladd to Director 4-17-50)

In addition, you will recall that on April 13, 1950, while discussing this matter with Bureau officials you indicated that you had conferred with Mr. Richardson and that he was of the opinion that only the loyalty cases on Government employees should be and could be considered by the Loyalty Review Board. You also pointed out that the Loyalty Review Board would have no jurisdiction to go into the question of loyalty of private citizens or to look into espionage or similar investigations. It is, therefore, our understanding of your instructions that the Department desires the Bureau to furnish to the Loyalty Review Board copies of reports of investigation conducted by the Bureau since the effective date of the Loyalty Order, or presently being conducted, under the provisions of the Loyalty Order itself or pursuant to such public laws as Public Law 402, 80th Congress (Voice of America Program), Public Law 472, 80th Congress (European Recovery Program) and the Atomic Energy Act, concerning those individuals on Mr. Richardson's list who have been employed in the Executive Branch of the Government since the effective date of Executive Order 9835. Such reports would, of course, be delivered to the Loyalty Review Board only in those instances where they have not previously been made available to the Civil Service Commission for consideration under the Loyalty Program.

With respect to those individuals on Mr. Richardson's list who are not presently employed in the Executive Branch and who have not been subjects of investigation or inquiry by the Bureau, either under the provisions of the Loyalty Order itself or one of the aforementioned public laws, since the effective date of Executive Order 9835, the Bureau will not be required to furnish any data or report to the Loyalty Review Board.

The above is provided in accordance with your request to be advised of the Bureau's views in this matter. If our understanding of your instructions, as set forth above, is not correct, we would appreciate your advice at your earliest convenience.

Mr. Donald L. Nicholson, (former Bureau agent), Chief of the Security Division, State Department, called Mr. Roach this morning and stated that his Division is to be investigated by the Senators now serving on the Senate Subcommittee hearing the McCarthy charges. The investigation grew out of a statement made by Senator Brewster of Maine on the Floor when discussing the activities of the investigative group in the State Department. Senator Mundt of South Dakota stated that recent State Department activities (he referred to the alleged investigation of Mr. Kenneth Crawford of "Newsweek" by State Department investigator), warranted an investigation of their activities and that he, Mundt, intended to see that it was done.

Nicholson advised that although no one is in his office now making the check, he expects them soon.

ADDENDUM: (4/27/50, ilw). The records reveal that Mr. John E. Peurifoy on September 13, 1947, prior to the time that Nicholson was appointed to his present position, called Mr. Tamm of the Bureau and stated that he was endeavoring to obtain someone to head-up the Special Agent Section of the State Department. He stated that the name of former Special Agent Donald L. Nicholson had been given to him and that before he contacted Nicholson, he wanted to check with the Bureau to determine whether Nicholson's record with the Bureau was good. Mr. Peurifoy was subsequently informed by Mr. Tamm of the dates of Nicholson's service with the Bureau and that he resigned of his own volition without prejudice and that his record had been satisfactory. (He was not recommended for the position by the Bureau). RRR.

Allegations of Senator JOSEPH McCARTHY
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

DATE: May 1, 1950

Massburg

PP

The Sub-Committee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee resumed open hearings today at 2:30 P. M., in connection with the OWEN LATTIMORE matter, and Miss FRIEDA UTLEY was the first witness called.

Miss UTLEY was sworn in and thereafter began reading from a dossier which she had with her wherein there was contained information reflecting an analysis which she had compiled on the writings from the "Amerasia" magazine, as well as certain writings of OWEN LATTIMORE. Miss UTLEY inferred in giving her testimony that the editorial policy of the "Amerasia" magazine was the same policy that OWEN LATTIMORE had been following.

Senator TYDINGS at this point asked Miss UTLEY if of her own knowledge she knew of any influence brought to bear by LATTIMORE that caused the "Amerasia" magazine to have the particular views which she alleged. Her answer, which was inaudible to the audience, was apparently not satisfactory to Senator TYDINGS and he again repeated his question, and on the third time that he repeated his question, he stated that he wished she would continue her testimony, that he felt she had not satisfactorily answered the question, and he desired not to delay the proceedings further.

Miss UTLEY mentioned that the reason she was bringing out these particular points concerning the Communist situation in China was to indicate to the public that both parties the Democratic and Republican, had been completely misguided. Senator TYDINGS at this point stated that it was too bad that she didn't find out from the very beginning of the Communist Party in 1919 that the Party itself was poison.

Miss UTLEY referred to many writers and authors who attacked the policy that OWEN LATTIMORE followed concerning China. In particular, she named A. W. DALEIA, a writer in the Yale University Press. Again Miss UTLEY was interrupted by Senator TYDINGS who stated that one could not be condemned because he or she might be attacked by any certain member of the press.

At this point, Miss UTLEY remarked that her purpose in mentioning this was to indicate that others had observed how subtly LATTIMORE had followed the Party line and she referred in particular to pages 164, 219, 147, 152, and 151 of his recent book, "Situation in Asia", wherein he clearly shows his feelings about the situation in China.

Miss UTLEY then mentioned that LATTMORE in his recent book was most misleading in his statement to the effect that China (CHIANG KAI-SHEK's forces) had been given a great quantity of arms by the United States. She added that as a matter of fact the United States had only given approximately one quarter of a million dollars in arms to China. Senator TYDINGS asked her for her source of information on this particular item and she stated that she received her information from Colonel L. B. HOOEY (phonetic) (Retired), formerly of the Army Ordnance who was familiar with the shipment of materiel to China.

PAMPHLET "AMERICA BETRAYED"
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Enclosed herewith for the Bureau's information are two copies of a 62-page pamphlet entitled, "America Betrayed - the tragic consequences of Reds on the Government payroll" by JOSEPH P. KAMP, copyright 1950 by Constitutional Educational League, Inc., 342 Madison Avenue, New York 17, New York.

This pamphlet was brought to the attention of this office by WILLIAM GROCAN, Security Officer, New York Administrative Office, Department of State, 250 West 57th Street, New York City, three copies thereof were discreetly purchased at the offices of the Constitutional Educational League. The third copy is being retained in the New York files.

It is noted that JOSEPH P. KAMP and the League are the subjects of Bureau file 61-10355, entitled; "Constitutional Educational League, Inc and JOSEPH P. KAMP, et al, Internal Security - C, Registration Act", New York file 65-7018.

REGARDING THE STATE DEPARTMENT

The pamphlet concerns itself with a review of America's China Policy and the State Department in connection therewith, as well as with the allegations of Senator JOSEPH McCARTHY (R. Wis.) which have been recently in the national press. On pages 54, 55 the pamphlet, under the heading "Senate Investigators Must Have Access to 'Loyalty' Files", the pamphlet states: "On the theory that the American people are entitled to know to what degree their public servants are, or were involved with Communism... the attention of the Senate Committee is.....directed to the 'loyalty' files of the following persons now in the State Department, or who were in the State Department....." and gives a list of 25 names together with the divisions of the State Department in which those named persons are or were employed.

Inasmuch as no allegation against these persons is made, except that loyalty files exist on each, no investigation based hereon nor any contact with KAMP or other officials of the League is contemplated, and this data is being forwarded for the information of the Bureau.

PURPOSE

The purpose of this memorandum is to relate some information furnished to Special Agent William C. Sullivan by Mrs. Robert Freer who, as you recall, is a society reporter and radio broadcaster in Washington. She furnishes the Bureau with information on a fairly regular basis.

DETAILS

Mrs. Freer on April 26, 1950, advised Special Agent William C. Sullivan that the State Department is taking testimony from reputable citizens concerning their personnel. She said the idea of securing this testimony is to offset possible investigations of State Department employees on moral or security grounds.

Mrs. Freer advised that a friend of hers, Barbara Bolling, wife of a young Congressman from Missouri, testified, she thinks, before the Loyalty Review Board on April 20, 1950, at the request of the State Department for the purpose of furnishing information on the character and background of some people known to her in Kansas City who are now employed by the State Department. Mrs. Bolling did not furnish Mrs. Freer with the names of these people and Mrs. Freer did not deem it advisable to ask.

Mrs. Bolling explained to Mrs. Freer that she was glad to give the testimony because she dislikes the present tactics of Senator McCarthy and "feels this witch hunting could happen to anyone." Mrs. Bolling told Mrs. Freer that she was approached by the State Department and that she did not offer to give them information on her volition but rather did so following the request made of her.

This memorandum is for your information.

Mr. Peyton Ford called with reference to the Bureau letter to him concerning Seth Richardson's letter and advised that the Bureau's letter to Ford properly expressed his instructions to the Bureau as to the type of case in which reports should be submitted to Seth Richardson dealing with the names on McCarthy's list.

AG Belmont

I asked him if he would send a memorandum to the Bureau confirming this and he stated he would do so. He then stated that he was going to acknowledge Seth Richardson's letter by merely stating "You will be furnished promptly all investigative reports dealing with employee loyalty".

Stacks

I told him that I thought this would be much better if he had spelled the understanding out with Richardson accordance with the instructions which he gave to us. He stated that if he endeavored to furnish Richardson a long letter, it would merely embroil longer letters in return from Richardson, who has a mania for letterwriting, according to Mr. Ford.

I told him that if he was going to merely briefly acknowledge Richardson's letter as indicated that it was very important that he confirm his instructions by memorandum to the Bureau and he stated that he would do this.

He further stated that if any questions arose on the part of Richardson, that he, Ford, and Dawson would confer with him further.

SUBJECT: ① Sub-Committee of Senate Foreign Relations Committee
Allegations of Senator JOSEPH McCARTHY
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

DATE: April 27, 1950

At 10:40 A. M., Senator TYDINGS swore in Mr. EARL BROWDER and Mr. BROWDER stated he resided at 7 Highland Place, Yonkers, New York. BROWDER stated he was fifty-eight years of age and unemployed. The questioning of Mr. BROWDER was then turned over to the Counsel for the Committee, Mr. MORGAN.

Mr. MORGAN's first question concerning inquiry of Mr. BROWDER if he were present at a meeting which was held in New York City and which was attended by Mr. TRACHTENBERG and other members of the Communist Party. Mr. BROWDER replied that he could not tell exactly what meeting was being referred to and accordingly he could not answer. He then added in 1937, he was General Secretary of the Communist Party. Mr. MORGAN then asked if at a meeting in October 1937, there was any determination taken on the part of the Party relative to the United States' stand concerning the Chinese problem. BROWDER answered this query by stating that in 1937, great events were taking place in China. He then remarked in 1927 he was in China in connection with the Workers Day Meeting, and spent several months there in latter 1927 and during 1928. He stated he had great interest in China and he presumed that in the October 1937 Meeting of the Communist Party in New York the Chinese problem was discussed. It was important

Mr. MORGAN asked BROWDER if he participated in formulating the policy of the Communist Party wherein Communists in China were to be pictured in a new role. BROWDER replied that he had not, that he recalled no such policy or action on the part of the Communist Party. He then added that the Communist Party attempted to portray the Chinese Communists and represent them as the fighting section of the Chinese people. Mr. MORGAN asked if at that time, it was decided that the Chinese Communists were to be referred to as the North Dakota Non-Partisan Leaders. BROWDER replied that that was not true and that such an assertion was ridiculous.

Mr. MORGAN then asked BROWDER if as Secretary of the Communist Party, it was his responsibility to project a policy in respect to China wherein the Communists of the United States should attempt to influence United States policy relative to its position concerning China. BROWDER indicated that it was the policy of the Communist Party in the United States to influence United States policy into accepting a coalition government in China and he added we urged unity for the struggle against Japan. Mr. MORGAN asked what methods the Communist Party employed to advance their aims in this respect and BROWDER replied by direct address to the people of the United States. This he said was accomplished largely through my own medium as spokesman for the Communist Party and through writings in the Daily Worker. He was asked if the Communist Party used transmission belts. BROWDER explained that the term, "transmission belts" had been referred to incorrectly. Actually, he said, by transmission belts the Communist Party referred to every possible channel of approach.

W. J. [unclear]
BROWDER was then asked by Mr. MORGAN if he were familiar with the Institute of Pacific Relations and if the Communist Party employed this organization and BROWDER replied that the Communist Party did not employ the Institute of Pacific Relations.

At this point in the testimony, Mr. MORGAN read from the Record, Page 1040, the testimony given by Mr. BUDENZ. In this portion of Mr. BUDENZ' testimony, the names of JAFFE and FREDERICK VANDERBILT FIELD were mentioned. Mr. MORGAN asked BROWDER if he knew either of these men. He replied that he did. Then he was asked if he knew Mr. LATTIMORE and he replied that he had never seen the man and to his knowledge he did not know him. He was next asked if at the October 1937 Meeting which Mr. BUDENZ had referred to in his testimony, there was any mention of the name LATTIMORE. BROWDER replied he could categorically deny any statement to the effect that the name LATTIMORE was mentioned at that meeting.

Mr. MORGAN continuing to read from the testimony given by Mr. BUDENZ, read that portion of Mr. BUDENZ' testimony which stated that during the October 1937 Meeting, FIELD commended Mr. LATTIMORE for his zeal. Mr. MORGAN asked BROWDER to verify his comment and BROWDER stated that such assertion was false and utterly ridiculous; that it was hard for him to imagine how even a professional perjurer could make it up.

Mr. MORGAN then asked BROWDER if at the 1943 Meeting of the Communist Party in New York, did a discussion take place concerning information reported from Mr. LATTIMORE which indicated that a change in policy had taken place relative to the Chinese Communist situation. Again BROWDER stated that he recalls nothing like that being discussed and stated he never heard of LATTIMORE's name mentioned in Party circles. He only knew of his name because of certain publications which he had written.

BROWDER was next questioned about the initials which appeared on the onionskin sheets which contained instructions issued by the Communist Party. BROWDER stated he had never heard of and that he did not personally know of the existence of any such initials and felt they had no significance. (The initials referred to here were stressed by Mr. BUDENZ in his testimony as being the identification of the author on any particular matter explained on the onionskin sheets).

BROWDER at this point stated that he would like to mention that in 1942, as far as the United States Government was concerned, there was a change in policy towards Communist China. He said that this change was announced to him by the then Under-Secretary of State, Mr. SUMNER WELLES. He said that WELLES invited him to the State Department and that his appearance there was a matter of record, that the Press was aware of the conference he had with WELLES. He stated that this change in policy was dictated by our necessity of fighting a global war.

Again at this point, BROWDER was asked if he knew OWEN LATTIMORE to be a Communist. BROWDER replied on the contrary he knew of OWEN LATTIMORE as an anti-Communist and one who expressed anti-Communist views. BROWDER was then asked if he knew FREDERICK VANDERBILT FIELD to be a member of the Communist Party. He answered this question by saying he knew FIELD when we were both cooperating. I assumed him at the time to be in the Communist Party but I did not know that he was. He was asked if he knew if Mr. JAFFE was a member of the Communist Party. He replied - I accepted him as a friend; I did not know that he was in the Communist Party. Mr. MORGAN then stated that both JAFFE and FIELD have been referred to previously by testimony given before the Committee as being members of an espionage ring. He asked BROWDER if he knew whether or not either or both of these men were engaged in any espionage ring. BROWDER replied that to the best of his knowledge and belief, they had never been so engaged.

BROWDER was next asked if he knew WILLIAM W. LOCKWOOD. He stated he did not. He did mention that he knew EDWARD CARTER and he said that EDWARD CARTER and he, BROWDER, had a common objective. CARTER, he said, was with the Russian War Relief and it was my duty to see that every Communist gave it every assistance.

BROWDER was asked if he knew various individuals who were connected with the Editorial Board of the publication which was sponsored by the Institute of Pacific Relations; namely, BENJAMIN KISER, KAY MITCHELL, HARRIET MOORE, and ANNA LOUISE STRONG. Of these, he mentioned knowing ANNA LOUISE STRONG and stated he has known her for a period of thirty years.

BROWDER then briefly outlined his association with the Communist Party which he stated began in 1919 and ended with his technical expulsion in February 1946. It might be noted that BROWDER refused at this point to advise the Committee why he was expelled from the Party. BROWDER stated in response to a question concerning his ideology that his political opinions had never changed during his adult life.

BROWDER was asked by Mr. MORGAN if the Communist Party attempted to recruit members in Government office and he replied that the Party felt that such activity was foolish and futile. Mr. MORGAN in conclusion announced to BROWDER the purposes of the Committee Hearing; namely, to inquire into the loyalty of employees of the State Department. He then asked BROWDER if he knew of any disloyalty on the part of anyone in the State Department. Mr. BROWDER replied he had no reason to think that any person in the State Department was disloyal. He added in the past I have felt that certain persons were detrimental to United States policy. I fought those persons openly, he said. Lastly, he was asked if he knew of anyone in the State Department who was a Communist, would he advise the Committee. He replied that he would not give the Committee the name of any Communist; but that he would, if he knew of any Communists being in the State Department, advise the Committee of that fact.

The meeting of the above Committee was called to order on the morning of April 28, 1950 by Senator TYDINGS. The first witness of the day was FREDERICK VANDERBILT FIELD. In a prepared statement read into the record, FIELD stated that BUDENZ had said he, FIELD, was a Soviet espionage agent and that he had said that OWEN LATTIMORE was a Communist. FIELD stated the missing witness HUBER would have said that FIELD attended a certain meeting. In his statement, FIELD said he would deny under oath without qualification that he had been an espionage agent of the Soviet Government or any other government. FIELD stated that he had never attended a meeting with OWEN LATTIMORE or LATTIMORE's wife and he had never stated that LATTIMORE was a Communist or was dominated by Communists.

FIELD stated he was with the Institute of Pacific Relations from 1928 until 1940 and thus he had met LATTIMORE in connection with IPR. FIELD stated his relationship with LATTIMORE was limited and that their association did not involve relationship with the Communist Party. FIELD declined to testify relative to his political reviews and political relations.

FIELD stated that the question, "Are you a Communist or have you ever been a member of the Communist Party?" is used by the government to intimidate individuals.

ED MORGAN, Counsel for the Sub-Committee, read into the record Senate Resolution #231, under which resolution the Committee functions.

FIELD was asked whether he is now or ever has been a member of the Communist Party. FIELD declined to answer this question under the privileges granted him in the Constitution.

FIELD was asked if an answer to this question would tend to incriminate him. To this, he stated he would refuse to answer and again declined on the grounds given for the first question.

Upon the request of MORGAN, Senator TYDINGS asked FIELD whether or not he was now or ever had been a member of the Communist Party. FIELD again declined to testify, stating he was exercising his constitutional rights.

on Lattimore case. Hearing record is best evidence copy 5/1/50

FIELD was asked if he attended a meeting at 35 East 12th Street, New York City during the month of October, 1937, which meeting was attended by ALEXANDER TRACHENBERG, EARL BROWDER, J. PETERS, and others. FIELD declined to answer this question on the grounds previously given. Again this question was repeated as coming from Senator TYDINGS and FIELD again declined to respond.

FIELD was asked if he knew EARL BROWDER or ALEXANDER TRACHENBERG. FIELD declined to answer these questions on the grounds previously given.

MORGAN stated that BUDENZ had indicated he had known FIELD as Conrad SPENCER. FIELD was asked if he had ever been known as "SPENCER" or "Conrad SPENCER". FIELD again declined to answer.

FIELD was asked if he knew OWEN LATTIMORE. His answer to this question was "yes". FIELD then indicated he had first met LATTIMORE in the early 1930's, believing it to be more specific in 1934, shortly after LATTIMORE had joined the IPR staff.

When questioned as to the nature of FIELD's association with LATTIMORE, FIELD stated that LATTIMORE had worked for the International Secretariat of the IPR at the same time FIELD had been connected with the American branch of that organization. FIELD stated their association was limited due to the fact that they were employed by separate branches of the IPR and were generally in different parts of the United States.

FIELD was asked why he admitted knowing LATTIMORE when he declined to answer whether or not he knew BROWDER or TRACHENBERG. FIELD declined to answer this question on the grounds of self incrimination.

In answer to a question relative to the specific occasions upon which he had met LATTIMORE, FIELD stated they were both employed by the IPR but in different branches. He stated he had met LATTIMORE in Committee meetings and had also seen him at International Conferences held in different parts of the world.

FIELD was then questioned relative to his most recent association with LATTIMORE. FIELD stated he has not seen LATTIMORE in approximately five or six years to the best of his recollection. When asked what the occasion of their last meeting was, FIELD stated he did not remember. FIELD then continued that he had remained a member of the Board of Trustees of the IPR after his resignation from his job with that organization. He stated LATTIMORE was also a Trustee of the IPR. FIELD stated it was his belief that his last meeting with LATTIMORE was likely at a meeting of the Trustees in the early 1940's. FIELD stated he believed all of his meetings with LATTIMORE to be in connection with the IPR. He stated further that he had limited social meetings with LATTIMORE and his wife and had probably had the LATTIMORES in his home but that he does not remember when.

FIELD was asked if he had ever used his home for a meeting place or a place for a fund raising campaign for any organization. FIELD declined to answer this question on the grounds of self incrimination. Senator TYDINGS directed the question be repeated and be considered as coming from Senator TYDINGS himself. FIELD again declined response.

MORGAN asked FIELD as to whether or not he knew LOUIS BUDENZ. FIELD declined to answer this question on the grounds of possible self incrimination.

FIELD was asked if he had ever made a financial contribution to the IPR. FIELD declined to answer this question on the grounds given previously.

FIELD was asked if the IPR is a Communist organization. To this, FIELD answered no and continued it is not and was not. FIELD stated nothing had ever come to his attention to indicate that it was a Communist organization.

FIELD was again asked if he had ever made a financial contribution to the IPR. He again declined to answer this question. He continued, however, that he was paid by the Institute and that he had also made contributions. He stated his contributions to the IPR were a matter of public record.

FIELD was asked if he was familiar with a publication called "Amerasia". FIELD answered in the affirmative to this question. He further advised that he had been associated with this publication as Chairman of the Editorial Board from its inception until 1943. He further advised that he had written articles for "Amerasia".

FIELD was asked if he knew PHILIP JAFFE. He declined to answer this question on previous grounds. FIELD was then asked if JAFFE was the Managing Editor of "Amerasia", to which FIELD answered that this was a matter of public knowledge.

He was then asked if he was acquainted with T. A. BISSON. FIELD declined to answer this question on grounds previously given. When asked whether or not BISSON was a member of the Editorial Board of "Amerasia", FIELD said he believed he was but that information could be found in the masthead of the magazine itself.

FIELD was asked if he had known a WILLIAM J. LOCKWOOD during the period he was with "Amerasia". FIELD declined to answer on the grounds of self incrimination.

FIELD was asked if he knew an EDWARD C. CARTER during the period he was with "Amerasia". FIELD again declined to answer.

FIELD was then asked if he was acquainted with OWEN LATTIMORE during the period he was with "Amerasia". FIELD answered that he had already indicated that he had known LATTIMORE.

FIELD was asked about the position that LATTIMORE held on the "Amerasia" staff. He indicated he did not recall but believed him to be a member of the Editorial Board.

FIELD was then asked if he was acquainted with a BENJAMIN KIZER. FIELD declined to answer this question.

FIELD was asked if he was acquainted with KATE HUNNELL. He declined to answer this question.

FIELD was then asked if he was acquainted with a HARRIETT MOORE. He declined to answer this question.

FIELD declined to answer a question as to whether or not he was acquainted with ANNA LOUISE STRONG.

At this point, FIELD was asked why he acknowledged knowing OWEN LATTIMORE while declining to answer whether or not he knew the eight other persons. To this, FIELD answered that if he answers questions pertaining to the other eight, he would destroy his privilege as granted to him under the Constitution. When asked for further reasons why he declined to answer the question, FIELD stated that he had fully indicated his reasons and that he had nothing to add.

FIELD was asked if, during the period of his association with IPR, he had known a man named PHILIP JAFFE. FIELD declined to answer this question. The same question was repeated with regard to T. A. BISSON. FIELD indicated his refusal to answer any questions about anyone with the exception of OWEN LATTIMORE.

In answer to a question relative to the publications of the IPR, FIELD stated that that organization had published about 500 books in addition to numerous periodicals. He indicated the periodical publications to be "Far Eastern Survey", "Pacific Affairs", and "IPR Notes". FIELD further indicated that the national council of other countries had published their own periodicals.

FIELD was asked if he had written an article, "Civil War in China", published in the magazine, "Foreign Affairs" in 1946. FIELD declined to answer this question on the grounds that it might be self incriminatory. Senator TYDINGS directed FIELD to reply to this question. FIELD then indicated he does not recall whether or not he wrote the article.

FIELD was asked if he had written an article entitled, "New China Program of American Interventionists", published in the January 1948 edition of "Political Affairs". FIELD declined to answer this question.

The meeting was called to order at 10:37 A. M. on this date by Senator MILLARD TYDINGS.

Dr. OWEN LATTIMORE, represented by PAUL PORTER, took his place at the witness stand. LATTIMORE proceeded to read a lengthy prepared statement. He indicated his appreciation in being able to reappear before the Committee to meet the charges that had been made since his first appearance.

LATTIMORE stated that since his first appearance, professional investigators had been beating the bushes frantically in order to show up any more evidence that would support the original charges. LATTIMORE stated that as yet, Senator McCARTHY's charges had not been supported by any evidence and the Senators procured witnesses did not back up McCARTHY's original charges.

LATTIMORE said that none of the witnesses had attempted to support the charges that he, LATTIMORE, was a top Soviet agent. He said that none of the witnesses had given any indication that he, LATTIMORE, was a member of the Communist Party.

LATTIMORE stated that Senator McCARTHY's original charges that LATTIMORE maintained a desk and a telephone in the State Department, and was an official of the State Department, were definitely not proven. LATTIMORE stated it was his opinion that Senator McCARTHY hoped that if the charges against LATTIMORE could be proved it would tie in with the State Department.

LATTIMORE said that he and he alone was responsible for whatever material he has ever written. He said that he was a private citizen and not a public official and further, that he had taken no money from Soviet Russia, KOHLBERG, the China Lobby or Senator McCARTHY.

LATTIMORE indicated that Senator McCARTHY had stated that the validity of the charges against the State Department depended on the charges against LATTIMORE, and that he, LATTIMORE, believes McCARTHY has lost his case.

LATTIMORE indicated that it was his wish that the Committee would not discount the testimony of General THORP (phonetic) and DEMAREE BESS. LATTIMORE stated that unlike Senator McCARTHY, he has never been charged with violation of law of the United States, of destroying records, or of violating the ethics of his profession.

LATTIMORE stated he considered KERLEY to be a stand-in for the missing witness HUBER. LATTIMORE stated HUBER would have said he, LATTIMORE, attended a meeting in 1946 in the home of FREDERICK FIELD. LATTIMORE stated the meeting was supposedly in conjunction with the "Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy". LATTIMORE stated that he had never joined this Committee and that he could obtain the testimony of the former Mrs. FREDERICK FIELD to indicate that he had never been at the meeting in the FIELD home.

With reference to the testimony given by FREDA UTLEY, LATTIMORE stated that there was no evidence that he was a Communist Party member and there was no evidence that he was a Soviet espionage agent. LATTIMORE pointed out that UTLEY had stated McCARTHY was wrong in setting forth this charge. He indicated that UTLEY had said that LATTIMORE "came near to" supporting the Party line. He concluded that nothing in UTLEY's testimony supports the charges made against him.

LATTIMORE then indicated that the testimony of LOUIS BUDENZ was the only testimony to come within "shouting distance" of Senator McCARTHY's charges. LATTIMORE indicated that BUDENZ had stated LATTIMORE had been given permission to deviate from the Party line inasmuch as he, LATTIMORE, was given permission to criticize the Soviet Union. LATTIMORE stated that if MOLOTIV, FOSTER, or STACHEL had said one thousandth of what LATTIMORE had said against the Soviet Union they would have been punished.

LATTIMORE indicated that BUDENZ had said that he, LATTIMORE, came under Party discipline. He said BUDENZ had given as an example the fact that LATTIMORE was ordered to represent Chinese Communism as an agrarian reform movement. LATTIMORE stated that under questioning by Senator LODGE, BUDENZ had indicated this to be the most concrete example of LATTIMORE following Party discipline. LATTIMORE then indicated he would show that he did not believe Chinese Communism to be an agrarian reform.

LATTIMORE indicated BUDENZ had stated that he, LATTIMORE, was in a good position due to the fact that he could place Communist writers on the staff of "Pacific Affairs". LATTIMORE indicated that this publication had no writers on the staff except the editors and therefore he, LATTIMORE, could not have placed writers on the staff as charged. LATTIMORE indicated that under further questioning, BUDENZ had finally whittled this statement down to the name of one JAMES S. ALLEN who wrote an article on "Agrarian Tendencies in the Philippines". LATTIMORE indicated that at this time there was a general interest in the farm movement in all countries bordering the Pacific and that the material for ALLEN's article had come from the Philippine Department of Agriculture.

LATTIMORE then brought up BUDENZ' testimony relative to a Communist Party meeting which he had attended in 1943. LATTIMORE pointed out that BUDENZ did not say that LATTIMORE was in attendance at the meeting.

LATTIMORE indicated that BUDENZ had testified to the effect that LATTIMORE had received word of a change of attitude toward CHIANG KAI-SHEK through FREDERICK FIELD. LATTIMORE then indicated that later in his testimony, BUDENZ had stated that LATTIMORE had informed FIELD of the change of attitude. LATTIMORE indicated that in 1943, he was with OWI and was not connected with "Pacific Affairs". LATTIMORE indicated that he had supported CHIANG long after American Communists had attacked the Generalissimo.

LATTIMORE indicated that it was his belief that the entire story by BUDENZ is a fabrication. LATTIMORE stated that BUDENZ is either a plain old fashioned liar or a pathological liar.

LATTIMORE noted that BUDENZ had made reference to certain onion skin documents which bore certain initials which BUDENZ stated would connect LATTIMORE with the Communist Party. He stated these documents had apparently been so secret that they were disposed of. LATTIMORE then indicated that he wondered if these documents also contained initials which would connect J. EDGAR HOOVER or Congressman DIES. LATTIMORE stated he believes this story also is a lie.

LATTIMORE indicated that he believed all of BUDENZ' statements to be a product of a malignant and twisted personality. He stated that since 1945, BUDENZ has testified before a dozen government agencies and that during this testimony, no mention has ever been made of LATTIMORE. LATTIMORE stated BUDENZ had spent hours being interviewed by agents of the F. B. I. and no mention of LATTIMORE had been made until after the current investigation was instituted.

LATTIMORE stated he believed BUDENZ is engaged in a transparent fraud. LATTIMORE indicated BUDENZ hops on the band wagon of Communist investigations and uses the name of Communist Party officials because he knows they will not testify or appear in rebuttal.

LATTIMORE stated that in the Colliers article written by BUDENZ last year, LATTIMORE was originally identified as an adherent to the Chinese Agrarian theory. LATTIMORE indicated that BUDENZ had later voluntarily struck out the only reference to LATTIMORE in the entire story.

Reference previous WFO letter to the Bureau this date.

At this point Senator TYDINGS introduced and read a telegram from what he described as the American Chamber of Commerce of a large Chinese city, dated March 16, 1949. Senator TYDINGS advised that due to the fact that he had been asked to keep the signatures to the telegram in strictest confidence, he would not reveal such at this time, but would make them known to members of the Committee in closed session. Senator TYDINGS further advised concerning this telegram that he had presented it following its receipt by him, to the Armed Services Committee in secret session approximately one year ago. Senator TYDINGS read the very lengthy telegram concerning the United States' position in China as viewed by members of the American Chamber of Commerce in this Chinese city. The telegram indicated that China was primarily interested in arranging peace negotiations and that any attempt to gain influence among the Chinese people would have to be from sources other than the "self-interested groups of the past", and stated that control of China ought to be taken out of all extreme hands.

The telegram further declared that, in effect, the Nationalist Government of China, under Chiang-Kai-Shek, had been corrupt and inefficient and had favored a select few and made no effective use of supplies sent to China from the United States. The telegram further stated that the Nationalist Government never invested one cent of its own money in furthering the nation's interest and actually sold goods obtained from abroad to the highest bidder. The telegram charged that the Nationalist Government, since V-J Day, had heavily taxed people in Northern China and Manchuria, had forced armies upon them and stated that the officers of the troops were chiefly obsessed with a desire to acquire personal wealth. It was further charged that discipline and the will to fight simply were non-existent in the Chinese Nationalist troops as a result of these conditions.

It was further alleged that warehouses of ammunition which the Nationalist Government would not release to its own troops were consequently painlessly transferred to Communist units in China following surrender or flight of Nationalist troops. It was further alleged that as a result of the treason of the former ruling Chinese Nationalist Government, Communist troops in China rode in American vehicles, ate American food, and were equipped with American arms and ammunition. The advice offered to this Government in the telegram was that we should withhold aid to China at that

At this point EDWARD MORGAN, Counsel for the Committee, questioned Mrs. UTLEY concerning her relationship with OLIVER COBURG (phonetic). Mrs. UTLEY stated that she had known COBURG and had worked for him and estimated the total income received from her writings from COBURG at approximately $140 to $150. Mrs. UTLEY stated that her occupation at this time consisted of writing books and articles as a free lance writer and of giving lectures. Thereupon she was questioned by Mr. MORGAN concerning income derived by her from Chinese sources since 1945, to which she replied negatively. Mrs. UTLEY then told Mr. MORGAN that she is presently a member of the Chinese Policy Association, is not a director of such organization, and received no compensation as a result of her association with that body. In attempting to outline the purpose and objectives of that association, in reply to a query by Mr. MORGAN, Mrs. UTLEY was interrupted on several occasions and summarized the purpose and objectives as being primarily anti-Communist with regard to China.

At this point, Mrs. UTLEY was questioned by Mr. MORGAN concerning a book written by her in 1940, and entitled "Three We Lost" or "Tree We Lost", and admitted that in that publication she had advocated a negotiated peace with the Nazi Government of Germany. Mr. MORGAN called her attention to her statement on Page 261 of that book concerning the possible "humanization and democratization of National Socialism", which Mrs. UTLEY explained as being anti-Russian rather than pro-German, as implied by Mr. MORGAN. MORGAN then called Mrs. UTLEY's attention to an article by her in the periodical "Common Sense" in 1941, which appeared also in the Readers Digest for October, 1941, in which he recalled her as saying "the evil of Nazi dominated Europe is less than the evil of an England fighting in vain---."

MORGAN next called Mrs. UTLEY's attention to her book "The High Cost of Vengeance" written in 1949, in which UTLEY allegedly described Brigadier General TAYLOR (phonetic) as being pro-Russian at that time. MORGAN next pointed out a review of her book by DELBERT CLARK, appearing in the New York Times on July 10, 1949, in which CLARK described her book as consisting of half-truths, lies, etc, concerning her statements regarding the United States policy in the occupation of post war Germany. At this point Mrs. UTLEY stated that the policy adopted with the consent of the United States as to the allied occupation in Germany resulted in a Communist dominated policy. MORGAN then pointed out that in a review of her book in the periodical "Catholic World" in September, 1949, UTLEY placed the blame for the persecution of the German people during the occupation of Germany on the people of the United States.

At this point Mrs. UTLEY was questioned by Senator GREENE, of Rhode Island. In response to Senator GREENE's question as to whether OWEN LATTIMORE was ever, according to her own personal knowledge, a Soviet Agent or a member of the Communist Party, Mrs. UTLEY replied in the negative, adding, however, that in response to Senator GREENE's second question, she personally observed very little difference between an actual Communist Party member and one who, like LATTIMORE, consistently followed the Communist Party line. At this point Mrs. UTLEY was questioned by Senator GREENE concerning her membership in the Communist Party several years ago and stated that she had never taken any pledge of loyalty to Stalin on joining the Party. She further admitted that she vowed on joining the Party to follow international Communist Party doctrines and that such determination at that time was probably not really consistent with her loyalty to this country. Mrs. UTLEY stated generally that lying and cheating were common among members of the Communist Party and stated that she finally left the Party when it became clear to her that she too would have to lie, cheat, commit perjury, etc.

Senator GREENE then questioned Mrs. UTLEY concerning her book "China at War", which he maintained was published in 1932, but which she insisted was published in 1938 or 1939, wherein, according to Senator GREENE, Mrs. UTLEY stated that the Chinese Communists had become radical in the 19th Century sense of the word. In replying to Senator GREENE's questioning as to whether parts of this book might not be interpreted as favorable to Russia and Communism, Mrs. UTLEY pointed out that her husband had been arrested in 1937, without trial, in Russia and that her writings following that time simply had to be at least not unfavorable to Russia for fear of the consequences to her husband.

At this point Senator GREENE questioned Mrs. UTLEY concerning her relationship with COBURG (phonetic), the American China Policy Association (whose policy Mrs. UTLEY described as being consistently pro-Chiang-Kai-Shek), and the AMTORG. Mrs. UTLEY also advised that she had been a Consultant for the China Supply Commission. Mrs. UTLEY stated that she knew of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and knew that COBURG (phonetic) was at one time connected with the Institute of Pacific Relations, but stated that she had never helped COBURG in his work for the Institute of Pacific Relations.

At this point there followed a rather lengthy session between Mrs. UTLEY and Senator GREENE, which attempted to demonstrate that both Mrs. UTLEY and LATTIMORE at times may have followed the Communist Party line, but that to brand LATTIMORE a Communist on such basis would be as erroneous as to charge Mrs. UTLEY with being a Communist on the same grounds.

Senator TYDINGS, at this point, entered into the record a letter from Mr. DEMAREE BEST, of the Saturday Evening Post, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

In introducing Mr. BEST, Senator TYDINGS established, through BEST's answers to his questioning, that BEST has been a Foreign Correspondent for the past twenty-five years and spent ten years in China and four years in Russia. Mr. BEST thereupon proceeded to read the letter sent by him previously by Senator TYDINGS. The main content of BEST's letter was to the effect that LATTIMORE had been a house guest of BEST at Moscow in 1936, and had had some contact with a Russian official whose name he recalled as KANTOROVICH or KANTROVICH. At this point the hearing room became extremely noisy and the entire content of BEST's letter could not be ascertained; however, it is believed that BEST stated that LATTIMORE had somehow ascertained some information from a Soviet source and had later furnished this information to agencies of the United States Government. BEST further stated that during the late 1930's he recalled many individuals who had the reputation of being "parlor pinks", but, based on his knowledge of LATTIMORE, he never would include the latter even in this category.

The hearings adjourned at 5:45 P.M., at which time Senator TYDINGS announced a continuation of the hearings at 10:30 A.M., May 2, 1950, at which time OWEN LATTIMORE is scheduled to address the Committee, on his own behalf.

Attached for your information and ready reference is a chart showing the status, as of the close of business April 28, 1950, of the project of furnishing to the Loyalty Review Board reports and data in connection with the President's instruction that the Loyalty Review Board review those cases which have been cited by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy before the Tydings Subcommittee.

You will note there are actually a total of 88 cases involved. Of these there are 20 in which no data is being sent to the Loyalty Review Board because the 20 individuals involved are not employed in the Executive Branch of the Government and have not been investigated by the Bureau under provisions of Executive Order 9835 or such public laws as Public Law 402, 80th Congress, Public Law 472, 80th Congress, and the Atomic Energy Act. This leaves a balance of 68 cases on which we will report to the Loyalty Review Board. Of these 68 two are pending full field loyalty investigations, namely, Aaron Jack Gross and Franz Leopold Neumann. These should be completed in the immediate future and on completion the reports will be directed to Mr. Richardson's attention. In one case (John Carter Vincent) we have requested advice from the Attorney General as to whether a loyalty investigation should be conducted. Of the remaining 65 there are only six cases in which we have not completed our review of the files and furnished to the Loyalty Review Board a letter and/or reports where appropriate. These six cases that we are working on are set forth below, together with the exact status of each case:

* - Letter to Loyalty Review Board, cc Department, advising supplemental investigation has been instituted and reports will be forwarded on completion.

Counsel MORGAN read five other passages from LATTIMORE's book and asked the witness to explain further the reasons for his statements.

LATTIMORE was then directed to previous testimony in which he had indicated he had never called the Chinese Communists "agrarian reformists". Counsel MORGAN read from the Virginia Quarterly Review, Spring, 1940 issue, Pages 164 and 165, in which LATTIMORE had referred to "agrarian radicalists". LATTIMORE stated this phrase was the current expression at the time and he had used that phrase in quotes to indicate that they were in his words. LATTIMORE stated the people were not as much for Communism as they were against the Chinese Government.

At the conclusion of MORGAN's questioning, Senator HICKENLOOPER indicated that Mr. MORRIS (phonetic), Assistant Counsel, had some questions to ask the witness. Senator TYDINGS said if MORRIS had questions he should submit them to Senator TYDINGS, who would ask the questions for MORRIS. Senator TYDINGS would not allow MORRIS to question LATTIMORE, whereupon Senator HICKENLOOPER took over the questioning.

Under Senator HICKENLOOPER's questioning, LATTIMORE stated he had never met LOUIS BUDENZ, had never had any correspondence with him and until the present hearings had never had any quarrels or difficulty with him. Senator HICKENLOOPER asked the witness if he knew why BUDENZ would lie about LATTIMORE as LATTIMORE has claimed. LATTIMORE referred the Senator to Page 4 of his statement in which he considered the career of BUDENZ for the past five years. LATTIMORE indicated his belief that BUDENZ was activated by commercial aspects and a motive of personal profit.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked LATTIMORE numerous questions about his knowledge of and connections with VILHJALMUR STEFANSSON, the Arctic explorer. In answer to these questions LATTIMORE stated he had purchased a farm in Connecticut during the summer of 1949, in partnership with STEFANSSON.

Senator HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if he knew a Chinese by the name of TUNG PI WU. LATTIMORE's answer was in the negative.

Under further questioning by Senator HICKENLOOPER, LATTIMORE stated he did not furnish character references for PHILLIP JAFFEE after the latter was arrested in connection with the "Amerasia Case". LATTIMORE stated he hadn't seen JAFFEE since 1940 or 1941. LATTIMORE further indicated that JAFFEE and T. A. EISSON accompanied him, LATTIMORE, on a trip to Hunan, China; further, LATTIMORE stated he did not know GERHARD EISLER in China or anywhere else by the name of EISLER or by any other name.

Next, Senator HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if he knew MAYUGI OTAKU (phonetic), to which LATTIMORE responded that he could not recall. Whereupon Senator HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE whether LATTIMORE's wife, Mrs. LATTIMORE, had ever lectured before the Tom Mooney School in San Francisco, California.

To this question LATTIMORE replied that he did not know, according to his own knowledge.

Reference

Next, Senator HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if it were so that, about the time of the arrests in the Amerasia Case, ROTH and JAFFEE visited him at Baltimore. To this question LATTIMORE replied in the affirmative, and stated that also JOHN SERVICE had visited him on that occasion. Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked LATTIMORE what was the purpose of ROTH's visit. To this LATTIMORE replied that ROTH was at that time working on a book, and as a younger author, wanted LATTIMORE to look over the galley-proofs of his book. LATTIMORE explained that the purpose of SERVICE's visit was merely the fact that SERVICE was a friend of his of many years standing, and may also have been there to look at the galley-proofs, but that he could not recall for certain at this time. Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked LATTIMORE whether SERVICE had, at that time, brought or taken away any galley-proofs on that occasion. To this question LATTIMORE replied that he could not recall.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then read to LATTIMORE an article from a San Francisco newspaper reporting a scheduled lecture by Mrs. OLGA LATTIMORE concerning a subject related to China, at the Tom Mooney Labor School, Turk Street, San Francisco, California, at 8:00 p.m., on Friday, April 30 (year unintelligible). Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked LATTIMORE how he would account for that article and whether his memory had not now been refreshed. After some delay, LATTIMORE responded by asking Senator HICKENLOOPER whether there was any reason why one should not speak at the Tom Mooney Labor School. Senator HICKENLOOPER pointed out to LATTIMORE that this was not the answer to his question and that LATTIMORE was apparently overlooking a fact. Senator HICKENLOOPER next asked LATTIMORE if he had ever met RICHARD SORGE, whom he described as having been a subject of an espionage investigation in China, and in Japan. LATTIMORE replied by stating that he could not recall.

The next question put to LATTIMORE by Senator HICKENLOOPER was whether, to LATTIMORE's knowledge, the Peoples World was one of the official publications of the Communist Party in 1943. Due to disturbances in the hearing room at this point, LATTIMORE's answer was unintelligible. Senator HICKENLOOPER next asked LATTIMORE whether, while he was in Yenan, China, he had ever aided EDGAR SNOW in obtaining information for his book, "Red Star Over China". To this question LATTIMORE replied, "No Sir, not that I can recall".

Senator HICKENLOOPER then queried LATTIMORE as to whether he knew HARRIET DINEEN CHI, whom he described as the wife of the present proposed UN Representative of the Chinese Communist Government, presently awaiting to assume his post, in New York City. LATTIMORE stated that he had known HARRIET CHI. Senator HICKENLOOPER's next question concerned the possible employment relationship between HARRIET CHI and LATTIMORE. To this question LATTIMORE replied that she had been employed as his Secretary during the summer of 1936.

When queried by Senator HICKENLOOPER, LATTIMORE state that this was the only period during which she had been employed by him. To Senator HICKENLOOPER's question as to whether HARRIET CHI is PHILLIP JAFFEE's niece, LATTIMORE replied that he did not know.

At this point, 5:40 p.m., Senator TYDINGS called attention to the hour and advised, that due to the fact Senator HICKENLOOPER had stated that he had many more questions to ask LATTIMORE, the hearings would be carried over at that time until 10:00 a.m. tomorrow.

The hearings were resumed by Chairman Senator GREEN at 2:07 P. M.

OWEN LATTIMORE stated as an addendum to the last question answered by him during the morning session, that in 1945 at least one newspaper friend of his was refused permission to take a copy of LATTIMORE's book, "Solution in Asia" into Russia. LATTIMORE stated that the reason why permission was not granted by Russian authorities would become apparent by consulting page 83 of his book.

Senator HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if he knew LAWRENCE ROSINGER. LATTIMORE replied that he did and that he first knew ROSINGER when the latter was working for the Foreign Policy Association. HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if ROSINGER at that time was a Consultant of the State Department. LATTIMORE's answer was unintelligible. HICKENLOOPER then asked LATTIMORE if he were acquainted with WILLIAM C. STONE, to which LATTIMORE replied that he was, and that STONE was a former member of the Board of Consultants on "Amerasia". When asked as to whether he knew ANNA LOUISE STRONG, LATTIMORE stated that he had met her several times. HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE whether STRONG had ever visited his home during the past two years. To this, LATTIMORE replied that she had visited him on one occasion between trains following her return from Russia. HICKENLOOPER asked whether LATTIMORE had discussed STRONG's experiences with her, to which LATTIMORE replied that he had. HICKENLOOPER then asked LATTIMORE if he were acquainted with SHO CHU MINH, to which LATTIMORE responded that he was not. HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE whether he had stated that he had never met Secretary of State DEAN ACHESON. LATTIMORE stated that this was correct, that he had never met Mr. ACHESON.

In response to HICKENLOOPER's question, as to whether he had believed from time to time that Chinese Communist leaders were under the influence of the Communist International, LATTIMORE replied by stating that in a book published by him in 1932 he had stated that he saw only a peasant uprising, but that later, upon having had an opportunity to study the Chinese more carefully, he had consistently held the view that the Chinese Communist Party was an out and out follower of the Soviet Communist Party. He stated that his statement applied to the Chinese Communist leaders also. LATTIMORE stated that the Chinese Communists and their leaders are devout Communists, if nothing else. He pointed out that the Chinese Communist Party has undergone a turbulent revolution of its own, just as in Russia. He advised also that he had observed considerable evidence that the Chinese Communists, while relying on the principles of Russian Communism, often deviated in minor matters pertaining to their activities in the China area.

At this point, HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if he had ever been associated with the American League for Peace and Democracy. LATTIMORE replied that he did not believe so. At this point, HICKENLOOPER mentioned various members of the Advisory Boards of the American League for Peace and Democracy and of the China Aid Council. Among them: Dr. CLAUDE E. FORKNER, ARTHUR UPHAM HOLT (phonetic), Dr. HENRY A. ATKINSON, Dr. LYMAN R. BRADLEY, Mrs. EDWARD C. CARTER, CAROL CHING CHI, Mrs. ELIZABETH B. COTTON, Mrs. FORKNER, TERESA BERLONG (phonetic), Mrs. PHILIP C. JAFFE, LUPTON, and Miss DOROTHY McCONNELL.

LATTIMORE stated that he was not certain as to whether he knew Dr. FORKNER, unless this individual was the same Dr. FORKNER whom he had met through the Johns Hopkins University. He stated that he knew ARTHUR U. HOLT (phonetic) but had had infrequent contact with him. LATTIMORE admitted knowing Dr. BRADLEY, CAROL CHING CHI, TERESA BERLONG (phonetic), Mrs. PHILIP C. JAFFE, and Mrs. EDWARD C. CARTER, whom he described as the wife of E. C. CARTER former head of the Institute of Pacific Relations when LATTIMORE was employed by that agency.

Senator HICKENLOOPER's next line of questioning concerned LATTIMORE's acquaintance with one Dr. WALTER HEISSIG. In response to HICKENLOOPER's questions, LATTIMORE stated that he had met HEISSIG on one occasion for about one-half hour on December 31, 1945 or January 1, 1946. LATTIMORE stated that he had been introduced to HEISSIG, a German national, by a Swedish friend whom he did not name. LATTIMORE stated that he had on that occasion given HEISSIG money with which the latter was to purchase any books, writings, etc, which had been made in Peiking and in Manchuria during the Japanese occupation, for LATTIMORE. In response to HICKENLOOPER's question as to whether he had had any contact with HEISSIG after V-J Day, LATTIMORE stated that he could not recall. At this point, HICKENLOOPER called LATTIMORE's attention to an article in the New York World Telegram-Sun in 1947, which article appeared in a column bearing the picture of FRANK FERRILL. HICKENLOOPER stated that the article appeared under the heading "Secret Service", and made reference to the investigation of LATTIMORE by Senator JOSEPH McCARTHY.

According to HICKENLOOPER, the article called attention to the fact that HEISSIG, an agent of the German S.D., was caught by United States agents at Peiking while even then promoting activities in Japan after V-J Day which were against the best interests of the United States. The article also points out that LATTIMORE quickly ran to HEISSIG's aid, and pointed out that there appeared to be sufficient evidence against HEISSIG that he could then have been tried as a war criminal. The article pointed out that HEISSIG was finally sentenced to 20 years hard labor. The article also referred to HEISSIG's dealings with OWEN LATTIMORE in Manchuria.

In response to HICKENLOOPER's further questioning of LATTIMORE concerning his contacts with HEISSIG, LATTIMORE maintained that the only personal contact with HEISSIG which he could recall was the one mentioned previously by him. He stated that contrary to other reports, HEISSIG had never offered him his library. LATTIMORE went on to point out that certain of his American friends who had been caught with HEISSIG in Peiking following the Pearl Harbor disaster, had told LATTIMORE that HEISSIG had been most helpful to them. LATTIMORE named Professor ARTHUR WRIGHT of Stanford University as one of those persons. LATTIMORE went on to state that he recalled writing a letter to Mr. LEIGHTON STUART, American Ambassador at Nanking at the time, to see what could be done about resolving the situation which involved HEISSIG. LATTIMORE stated that he had never made what might be called an appeal in behalf of HEISSIG. LATTIMORE also stated that he soon thereafter wrote to General THORPE and advised the General that HEISSIG had some valuable information concerning matters in Mongolia and suggested that the General refer this information to the proper channels. LATTIMORE also stated that he corresponded with Dr. HEISSIG through prison censorship while HEISSIG was imprisoned. He advised that HEISSIG was permitted to continue his research work while in prison and sent LATTIMORE some of his work for publication in this country.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked LATTIMORE as to his acquaintance with ALGER HISS. LATTIMORE stated that he had met ALGER HISS late in the 1930's when HISS was employed at the State Department in the office of Dr. HORNBECK. In response to HICKENLOOPER's question as to the occasion for his visit to the State Department at that time, LATTIMORE stated that he had gone there to visit Dr. HORNBECK. He further stated that he could not recall anyone else whom he had visited at that time at the State Department with the possible exception of Mr. MILTON B. JOHNSTON, former Minister to China, who was at that time Under-Secretary of State. In response to HICKENLOOPER's question as to whether he had ever conferred with ALGER HISS concerning United States-China policy, LATTIMORE answered negatively. In response to HICKENLOOPER's question, LATTIMORE stated that he had never met DONALD HISS.

At this point, Senator HICKENLOOPER recalled to LATTIMORE the latter's testimony to the effect that he had met EARL BROWDER only on one occasion in 1936. HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if he had ever seen BROWDER to talk with or had ever met him at any other time than the one occasion mentioned by LATTIMORE. LATTIMORE replied that he had not. HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if he had ever sent to BROWDER, directly or indirectly, or had received from BROWDER, directly or indirectly, any communications. LATTIMORE replied, "No; never".

At this point, Mr. EDWARD MORGAN, Committee Counsel, pointed out to LATTIMORE that FREDERICK FIELD had testified that LATTIMORE and his wife had visited his home in New York on one occasion. LATTIMORE stated that he may have seen FIELD at one time or another between 1942 and 1946, and if so, that contact had been so casual that he could not recall it at this moment. LATTIMORE stated that he had been in Mr. FIELD's home subsequent to 1938 and that it might have been on one or more than one occasion, or several, that he could not recall. He stated, however, that he was never in FIELD's home in 1946.

At this point, Senator HICKENLOOPER called LATTIMORE's attention to questions previously asked by him of LATTIMORE concerning the latter's acquaintance with the young Mr. CHI, Mr. FREDERICK V. FIELD, PHILIP JAFFE, NIM WALES (phonetic), AGNES SMEDLEY, T. A. JOHNSON. HICKENLOOPER pointed out that it occurred to him that although LATTIMORE by his own testimony admitted that he had met these people and known them over a period of years, he had stated that he had no reason to know if several of them were of leftist leanings. HICKENLOOPER pointed out that in view of the known, very strong leftish leanings, on the part of some of those individuals, he was at a loss to understand how a person of LATTIMORE's brilliance and ability, could have failed to recognize the fact. He stated that he did not wish to admit that he considered Mr. LATTIMORE to be naive. In response to this statement, LATTIMORE repeated that with regard to CHI and FIELD, he had never had any reason to question these individuals in the matter set forth by HICKENLOOPER.

HICKENLOOPER then asked LATTIMORE whether or not a compact or treaty of friendship was made in approximately 1945 between Russia and the Chinese Nationalist Government. LATTIMORE replied yes, that he believed there had been, near the end of the war. HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if there had not been some sort of agreement between STALIN and CHIANG KAI-SHEK and an expression of cooperation between their governments, at least on paper. LATTIMORE replied that there may have been. He stated that as he recalled, statements of such agreement were published following the surrender of Japan. In response to HICKENLOOPER's question as to whether these agreements were in complete agreement with the decisions arrived at in the Yalta Conference, LATTIMORE replied that he did not know. At this point, HICKENLOOPER advised Senator GREEN, Acting Chairman, that he desires a closer examination of LATTIMORE's statements with reference to his present line of questioning.

LATTIMORE stated that it has always been his expressed view that it was a grave mistake of American policy in attempting to reach agreements with other countries concerning the internal disposition of Chinese territory, and that such attempts were not only unnecessary but unproductive and harmful. He also stated that it was his view that the United States should never have taken a position to appease any other nation.

The following is continuation of hearings of above committee this date.

Senator McMAHON began his questioning concerning LATTIMORE'S association with FIELDS in the ~~Institute of Pacific Relations~~ and asked him whether or not FIELDS had visited him in Baltimore and whether or not LATTIMORE visited FIELDS in New York. He also requested information as to whether or not anyone else was present at those meetings and LATTIMORE replied no. He advised he had only been present at a few of these meetings.

No dissemination information to Dept. 4-24-50 + 5-12-50 suggesting they obtain transcript EMG.

Then Senator McMAHON discussed the fight over control of the Institute of Pacific Relations, as to the time of the year and whether or not he had any personal knowledge of the personnel on both sides of this question. LATTIMORE recalled that one KOLBERG (ph) was the main person against whom the charges were circulated. He said the committee, composed of one WALTER HANSON, WALTER DILLINGHAM, Professor JOSEPH TAMBERLANE and PHILIP HESSUP (ph), heard the questions in connection with the Institute against KOLBERG. LATTIMORE stated that he was also one of those attacked and that he did not appear before this committee.

Alfred Kolberg

Senator McMAHON then asked LATTIMORE if he had on occasions, visited the State Department to which LATTIMORE replied yes, he had, to urge a tougher policy against Japan. He said he had visited the office of one DR. HORNBECK and he was aksed if ALGER HISS participated at this consultation and he said no, but that HISS did sit in the outer office.

He was asked why he was advocating a stronger policy against Japan and in what manner he advocated his policy should be followed and he stated that he, like a lot of other people, were alarmed over the growing power of Japan and felt that shipments should be stopped to Japan. Senator McMAHON then asked LATTIMORE what the relationship between Japan and Russia was when he was urging a stronger stand against Japan and LATTIMORE answered that it was his understanding that at one time, there was an undeclared war upon the Siberian Frontier, which would explain the relationship between Japan and Russia.

Letter to Director

LATTIMORE recalled the leading proponent of a tougher policy toward Japan was HENRY STIMSON, and LATTIMORE had also served on a committee urging a stronger policy, although he has never met HENRY STIMSON.

Senator LODGE then spoke up and requested that the hearing be continued in Executive Session, saying "he was interested in taking the show off the road." After some discussion, LODGE continued the examination of LATTIMORE and asked if, while LATTIMORE was in China, he knew a gentleman by the name of ~~XHO YUNG CHI~~, who was Secretary of the Document Section for General WIDEMEYER and General MARSHALL in China. LATTIMORE could not recall, but did state that he had met ~~XAGNES SIMEDLEY~~ in the Far East many times, specifically in 1934, 1935 and 1937. He could not recall having met her in the United States at all since the war.

Senator LODGE then asked LATTIMORE if he had ever received from, or transmitted to, the following persons, any documents, secret documents or otherwise, and he enumerated the following persons: ~~XPHILIP NAIFE~~, one ~~XLAWSON~~, ~~XROTH~~, ~~XSERVICE~~, ~~XMITCHELL~~. LATTIMORE replied that he had not.

Senator LODGE then asked if ~~XFREDERICK FIELDS~~ had been Secretary of the Institute of Pacific Relations when the vote on control was taken and LATTIMORE replied that he did not believe so, although he wasn't sure. Senator LODGE then asked what LATTIMORE had meant in a statement of yesterday when he stated that BUDENZ had come to Washington as a "call to colors" and LATTIMORE replied that it was a call to come to smear someone as a Communist who wasn't one.

Senator LODGE, regarding yesterday's testimony, asked if LATTIMORE had stated that the FBI did not vouch for BUDENZ' credibility. LATTIMORE replied that he was not clear as to that statement and the answer and asked his counsel to look into the matter. MR. PORTER got up then and stated that they had no specific information that the FBI does not believe in the credibility of BUDENZ and that we did not refer specifically to BUDENZ. PORTER stated that he had talked to a Department of Justice official who stated that they had used BUDENZ as an informant, but not to identify members of the apparatus.

Senator GREEN came in and asked if LATTIMORE had ever gotten approval of his policy on Japan and LATTIMORE stated no and before the war he was a University Professor and wrote articles, and he was over alarmed by the dangerous policy of Japan's great power. After the war, he stated he was asked to write a syndicate newspaper column and that changed his relationship with the State Department in that he gave no information except through his column, and would drop into the State Department occasionally for information. When asked by Senator GREEN who he contacted in the State Department, LATTIMORE replied it was usually someone in the Far Eastern Office and he recalled no specific name, only that it was someone in the Far Eastern Office.

He recalled that on the Chinese situation, he had seen one KENNETH HENRY MANN and DR. PHILIP SPROUSE. The Senator asked him how often he visited the State Department and LATTIMORE replied once in six months approximately, and the Senator raised the question as to whether that was enough to keep him up-to-date. LATTIMORE replied that it was.

At 3:45 p.m., the session was discontinued until 10:30 a.m. tomorrow when it opens in an Executive Session.

Sub-Committee of Senate Foreign Relations Committee
Allegations of Senator JOSEPH McCARTHY
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

The meeting was called to order at 2:35 P. M. by Senator TYDINGS. Questioning was begun by EDWARD MORGAN of the Sub-Committee.

MORGAN referred to page X-7 of the prepared statement which was read by LATTIMORE in the morning session. He referred to the last sentence of the first full paragraph in which Mrs. FIELD was quoted as stating she is not and never has been a member of the Communist Party and further that she stated the LATTIMORES were never at the FIELD home to attend a meeting in 1946. MORGAN asked LATTIMORE whether or not the same statement would hold for other years. LATTIMORE answered that as far as he could recall, he and Mrs. LATTIMORE had never attended a meeting in the FIELD home.

MORGAN then referred to page A-2 of the statement, particularly in reference to a fund raising campaign for Finland. MORGAN asked LATTIMORE if he had any documents to support this statement. LATTIMORE stated that he had a copy of the minutes of the committee meeting dated February 20, 1940 in which he, among others, was to serve on the committee. (It is believed that this committee was the Committee of Sons to Aid Finland.)

MORGAN then referred to page A-15 of the statement relative to BUDENZ' testimony that JOSEPH BARNES and LATTIMORE, if not Communists, at least were fellow travelers. LATTIMORE's Counsel, ABE FORTAS, stated there is a transcript of this testimony in the records. LATTIMORE was then asked if PARRIS (phonetic) (editor of Colliers Magazine) thought that BARNES and LATTIMORE were Communist Party members or fellow travelers. LATTIMORE answered he had not seen the transcript of the conference between PARRIS and BUDENZ.

Counsel FORTAS then requested that the exact language of the transcript be placed in the record at this point.

MORGAN referred to page A-17 of the statement and made the observation that LATTIMORE had made reference to "the disgusting sport of being an informant". LATTIMORE answered that he believed BUDENZ would be an extremely disgusting person. He denounced BUDENZ' practice of taking advantage of Senatorial immunity in order to cast names around before he had given these names to the proper government authority.

Senator McMAHON then asked whether or not BUDENZ had been subpoenaed as a witness or whether he had appeared as a voluntary witness. LATTIMORE then indicated that BUDENZ has had five years since he broke with the Party in which to make his charges. LATTIMORE stated it seemed peculiar that after five years he has come out with some 400 other names and until this investigation had not mentioned LATTIMORE.

LATTIMORE was then asked whether or not BUDENZ knew he was going to be a witness before the current Sub-Committee when he gave LATTIMORE's name to the F. B. I. Counsel FORTAS answered this question by stating this information was in the record.

MORGAN then referred to the top of page B-4 of the statement. LATTIMORE was asked with reference to this part of the record whether or not LATTIMORE was referring to testimony BUDENZ has given to the government. LATTIMORE stated he was referring to the exploitation of BUDENZ by himself and to BUDENZ' sordid past. He stated he did not like the idea of BUDENZ being able to waive around a list of 400 names and put people in a position to be told "you better be careful or you will be on BUDENZ' list".

LATTIMORE was then asked if he was referring to BUDENZ' activities in making available the information he had concerning the Communist Party. LATTIMORE answered that the more information we have the better off we are.

LATTIMORE was then asked if his reference was not to what BUDENZ does but the way he does it. His answer was that any accusation should be accompanied by the proper proof.

MORGAN then referred to the same paragraph and asked how LATTIMORE regards the Communist Party. LATTIMORE stated he could make no statement relative to the Communist Party structure except information he had by hearsay.

LATTIMORE was then asked whether or not we must not rely on men like BUDENZ to furnish information on the Communist Party. LATTIMORE answered that there was much literature on the subject and many political scientists have analyzed the Communist Party. LATTIMORE stated that kind of study was proper and necessary and added that he was not an expert on the subject.

LATTIMORE was asked about his general ideas of the American Communist Party. He stated the American Communist Party seems to have no roots. He stated it consists very largely of people of recent European extraction. He said the Party seemed to be composed of an extraordinary collection of crackpots, misfits, and mal-contents. He stated his overall impression was that the American Communist Party has a small place in American life and a small future in American life. LATTIMORE stated this country has been the one in which the real Democratic structure is the most real and most genuine. He stated that he has been in other countries where Democratic sayings are only slogans.

MORGAN then referred LATTIMORE to his statement that the American Communist Party seems to have no roots and asked him where he believed the roots of the American Communist Party lay. LATTIMORE advised that he is not an expert but it is known all over the world that the Party looks to Russia and Russia looks to Moscow. He stated that is as far as his knowledge goes and his knowledge is based on other countries.

MORGAN referred LATTIMORE to page B-3 of his statement with particular reference to his letter to Admiral YARNELL in which he made reference to the different meanings of words in Russia and the United States. MORGAN asked LATTIMORE if "Democracy" has a different meaning in Russia. LATTIMORE stated that it does but that he is not enough of a political scientist to know the exact difference.

MORGAN then asked LATTIMORE how he, LATTIMORE, uses the word "Democracy". LATTIMORE stated he tried to recall a definition he used not so long ago. He stated the essence of a Democracy is to be found in a society where men and women may freely get together to discuss political ideas and if they agree on the set of ideas, allow representative process of government under a Constitution.

MORGAN then quoted a passage from one of LATTIMORE's books in which LATTIMORE had referred to groups in China looking across the border to "Democracy in Russia". LATTIMORE stated that there were certain groups in Asia who have never had Democracy as we know it. He stated it is something to which they aspire; a hope of something they might get. He said that to those people, Democracy means something that would be nice to have.

MORGAN then indicated that LATTIMORE had referred to Democracy on the Russian side of the border and not to Democracy as previously defined by LATTIMORE. LATTIMORE stated that the people who wished Soviet Democracy are out of touch with people in the United States and do not know our type of Democracy.

Peyton Ford sent over the attached copy of a letter which the Department had received from Seth Richardson, which is identical with the letter the Bureau received with reference to a list of the cases presently being considered by the panels of the Loyalty Review Board.

In accordance with a note to call Mr. Ford, I called him at 5:15 PM this evening and told him that it would appear from this letter that Seth Richardson is out of line again in that he has requested all investigative reports and pertinent information secured under authority of any Statute, Executive Order or other authority whatsoever.

Mr. Ford stated that he was trying to get in touch with Mr. Dawson now to have Mr. Dawson discuss the matter further with Mr. Richardson; that Richardson now is of the opinion that he should get reports on all cases except those which might be presently under investigation for espionage or other crimes such as Lattimore, Mary Jane Keeney, etc.

I pointed out to him that Gustavo Duran was on the list and he stated that Richardson feels he should get copies of reports in that case. Mr. Ford indicated that he thought Richardson might be right in insisting that he get all reports if the case was no longer under active investigation.

I pointed out to Mr. Ford the wording of the President's letter was that the Review Board should consider the FBI's loyalty reports and made no mention of other FBI reports.

He requested that we review the individual cases listed in Richardson's letter and let him, Mr. Ford, know whether the cases were espionage or whether they were under active investigation at the present time and the nature of the investigation conducted in each case in order that he might discuss the matter further with Mr. Dawson and Mr. Richardson.

This list is being reviewed for this purpose at the present time.

Sir:

Reference is made to our previous correspondence regarding the list of cases mentioned before the Tydings Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and the request of the President that the Loyalty Review Board review such cases, reporting to him the Board's decision on the question of the subject person's loyalty. In these cases your bureau has been requested by our Board to furnish to it any and all reports of investigation or information in your files pertaining thereto.

You are advised that the following cases have been forwarded to panels of members of the Loyalty Review Board for their study and ultimate decision:

William Draper Carter
Gustavo Duran
Leonard Horwin
Victor M. Hunt
Joseph T. Jankowski
Joseph Josephson
Mary J. Keeney

Sub-Committee of Senate Foreign Relations Committee
Allegations of Senator JOSEPH McCARTHY
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

The hearing was resumed by Chairman Senator TYDINGS at 10:05 A. M. this date, at which time Senator TYDINGS announced that he had sent letters of inquiry to former Secretaries of State MARSHALL, HULL and BYRNES, and Secretary of State DEAN ACHESON, as to whether LATTIMORE had had any part in formulating State Department Far Eastern policy. TYDINGS announced that replies had been received and would be read in the session at the close of the cross examination.

At this point, LATTIMORE submitted for the record a copy of the memo sent by him to Generalissimo CHIANG KAI-SHEK and his Yen-an Diary covering interviews with Chinese Communists in 1937. LATTIMORE noted that the last page of the diary contained a long list of names of Chinese and British Christians, which list had been given him by a Chinese Christian Doctor with the request that LATTIMORE write to the people listed and explain to them the situation of the encroaching Communists. LATTIMORE stated that this Doctor feared to contact the individuals while remaining in the Communist dominated section of China.

At this point, LATTIMORE also pointed out that as a Political Scientist, his writings had not taken the form of simple denunciation. He stated that he had repeatedly advocated policies in his writings which would limitate action by the Russians. LATTIMORE also submitted examples of attacks against him appearing in the American press which had been collected by his wife. Among these, he claimed were several from Communist dominated organs.

LATTIMORE stated that it is his opinion that the "shadow of McCarthyism" hangs over the whole procedure of our public life today and represents a dangerous trend. He asked the question "how often does a man have to prove his loyalty to his country, not by his works, but by replying to violent attacks against him?" LATTIMORE pointed out the similarity as he sees it, between articles currently appearing in the American press concerning investigation of loyalty and those appearing in the Soviet press, all of which he said have to begin with praise of STALIN and have to end with denunciation of all things foreign to the Communist ideology. LATTIMORE praised a rhetorical question as to whether we are to reach a point in American life where an University professor can only hold his Chair for so long a period as he is able to defend himself against attack.

Senator HICKENLOOPER replied to LATTIMORE by recalling that in yesterday's session, LATTIMORE had appeared to challenge the search for truth on the part of the Committee, while he at the same time had himself implied that scholars and writers were being limited in their freedom. LATTIMORE replied that he was not raising any objection to the search for the whole truth in our public life but merely objected to a specific line of questioning which implied denunciation and which appeared to him to be similar to that employed in Russia.

Senator HICKENLOOPER stated that the "shadow of McCarthyism" may hang over the Committee, but that the shadow of Communism also may hang over matters being considered by that Committee. HICKENLOOPER explained to LATTIMORE that the latter had become an element in this inquiry and that it was the duty of this Committee to find out, through his answers to certain questions, whether there is a basis for certain allegations or not. At this point, LATTIMORE pointed out that his case has now been before the Committee for over a month and that his business affairs are suffering as a result.

Senator HICKENLOOPER at this point recalled his question to LATTIMORE at yesterday's session as to whether Mrs. LATTIMORE had spoken in 1943 before the Tom Mooney Labor School at San Francisco, California. HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE if he and Mrs. LATTIMORE had had a chance to refresh their memories concerning that question. To this, LATTIMORE replied that they had. He stated that in 1943, he and his wife, like many other people, were at the height of their war activity. He stated that he and his wife were both doing what they felt was their part and did so in many places. He also stated that in 1943, both he and Mrs. LATTIMORE were heart and sole behind the Chinese Nationalists and CHIANG KAI-SHEK. He stated that Mrs. LATTIMORE at that time spoke before what she understood to be a Labor School and also spoke at churches and other organizations. LATTIMORE then pointed out that the Committee inquiry had sent some right low blows, but that the attempt to attach him through his wife, through searching her opinions, has struck a new low.

At this point, Senator HICKENLOOPER pointed out to LATTIMORE that the answers to certain questions being asked of LATTIMORE were most pertinent to the investigation.

At this point, LATTIMORE questioned Senator HICKENLOOPER as to the nature of the Tom Mooney Labor School. To this, HICKENLOOPER replied by citing pages 63, 77, 78, and 79 of the California Committee on Un-American Activities Report for 1947 and advised LATTIMORE that the School had been described as a Communist Party functionary. LATTIMORE at this point replied that in 1943, he and his wife were engaged in patriotic activity, and were not discoverers of subversive schools. He stated that if it now turns out that the Communists were against the Chinese Nationalists at that time and if it turns out that he has now learned that this school was at that time Communist dominated, then it was an extremely good thing that his wife was able to appear to give her views before such a group.

At this point, Senator HICKENLOOPER questioned LATTIMORE as to whether he had ever sent any communication via Soviet diplomatic pouch. LATTIMORE replied that he may have used it on one occasion in 1947 when he was hoping to make a trip to Outer Mongolia. He stated he had written a letter to the Premier of Outer Mongolia, hoping to receive permission for the trip, and had enclosed an original letter written in Mongolian, with English translation, and had asked the Soviet Ambassador in Washington, D. C. to transmit it to Mongolia through Moscow. He avowed that he did not know if the diplomatic pouches were used or not. To HICKENLOOPER's question as to whether LATTIMORE had ever made use of the Soviet diplomatic pouch at any other time, LATTIMORE replied, "not that I can recall; I think it most unlikely".

At this point, Senator McMAHON requested LATTIMORE to furnish a copy of the letter mentioned, to which LATTIMORE replied that he would furnish such copy.

Senator HICKENLOOPER next asked LATTIMORE to tell of the circumstances as to whom he had contacted and to who arranged for his trip to Yen-an. LATTIMORE replied that he had planned the trip by train and motor car. He stated that their first Communist contact was made with the first Communist Outpost at which they met, and that no previous arrangement and no special procedure had been planned. It is noted that LATTIMORE briefly mentioned at this time the name of VISSON (phonetic), but the exact connection was not understood. LATTIMORE stated that at that time every newspaper man in China was trying to get to Yen-an and that the world was avid for news of that area. He stated that a few such correspondents got into the area. In response to Senator HICKENLOOPER's question as to whether AGNES SMEDLEY and WALES (phonetic) were at Yen-an when LATTIMORE arrived, he replied that they were and that upon his arrival at Yen-an, he had met them at an hostel which had been put up by the Chinese Communists for foreigners. LATTIMORE stated that he had only social contact with SMEDLEY and WALES and talked with them very briefly.

Senator HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE next if he had ever read the SORGE story. LATTIMORE replied that he had seen references to it but had not read the story in detail. In response to HICKENLOOPER's question as to whether he was aware that AGNES SMEDLEY was involved in that story, LATTIMORE replied that he was, and stated that he was also aware of a press story in which she denied being involved.

Senator HICKENLOOPER next questioned LATTIMORE concerning the radio production "Pacific Story", presented on NBC in 1943. LATTIMORE stated that he had been approached by NBC in 1943 to act as a commentator on "Pacific Story", a radio drama, for three to four minutes at the end of each broadcast. He stated that his wife was also asked to act as a research worker for the program. LATTIMORE further stated that this program was entirely the responsibility of the producer and NBC. In response to HICKENLOOPER's question as to whether AGNES SMEDLEY ever appeared on such a broadcast, LATTIMORE replied "not that I ever heard of; not while I was there". HICKENLOOPER then asked LATTIMORE if he had ever arranged for her to be on the program, to which LATTIMORE replied that he had not; that he was on the program only three or four months and had never arranged for anyone else to be on the program.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then questioned LATTIMORE as to his knowledge of INDUSCO. LATTIMORE stated that he was acquainted with the organization. When asked by HICKENLOOPER whether he had ever been an official of INDUSCO, LATTIMORE replied that he may have been on a Committee before leaving for China in 1941. HICKENLOOPER next asked LATTIMORE if it were not possible that he was in fact an honorary Vice-President of INDUSCO, to which LATTIMORE replied that it was possible and that he may have been. At this point, Senator HICKENLOOPER asked LATTIMORE whether PHILIP JAFFE and Mrs. LATTIMORE were not members of the Board of Directors of INDUSCO. LATTIMORE's reply to this question could not be overheard.

At this point, Senator HICKENLOOPER advised that he had received a communication from FREDA UTLEY, a recent witness in the hearing, who had enclosed a number of questions which she suggested should be asked of Mr. LATTIMORE. Mr. HICKENLOOPER announced that the questions had been given to Mr. MORGAN, Committee Counsel, for further action.

At this point, Senator TIDINGS inquired as to the presence of an individual named FRANK GILLESPIE or GILLASPIE, who he said had sent a message to the Chairman requesting that he be called by the hearing. Mr. GILLESPIE or GILLASPIE did not respond to a call for his appearance in the hearing room.

Reference is made to your telephone conversation last evening with a Bureau official in which you advised him that you had just learned the President is going to permit the Tydings Subcommittee to call at the White House and review the State Department loyalty files on the 81 individuals who have been mentioned by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy.

You indicated that you were sure the Attorney General had no advance information regarding this matter and in view of this development you suggested that the Bureau not send any more material or data to Mr. Seth Richardson, Chairman, Loyalty Review Board, in connection with the Board's review of the 81 cases since you desire to determine from the White House what position is being adopted with respect to these cases.

You, of course, are aware that the Bureau already has furnished to the Board material on some of the 81 cases. It is my understanding of your instructions, as set forth above, that the Bureau should immediately stop sending to the Board material on any of the cases identified before the Tydings Subcommittee and presently being reviewed by the Board except in those instances where we are conducting active full field or supplemental investigations under the provisions of Executive Order 9835 regarding persons on Mr. Richardson's list who presently are employed in the Executive Branch. In such instances, the provisions of Executive Order 9835 itself would require that we furnish to the Civil Service Commission the reports of such investigations upon completion.

If the Bureau's understanding of your instructions in this regard is not correct, I would appreciate receiving your immediate advice.

I took a call from Miss Dorothy Swartz, Secretary to Senator Cain (R. Wash.) by reference from your office. She indicated that the Senator had a letter from a constituent inquiring concerning the Director's position with reference to the release of files to a Senate Committee.

I told her that the Director had testified before the Committee at a public hearing as to his position in this matter and that a copy of that testimony would be forwarded to her. She expressed appreciation for this courtesy.

It is suggested that Mr. Nichols forward a copy of the statement made before the committee to Senator Cain, attention of Miss Dorothy Swartz.

Reference is made to my memorandum to you dated May 4, 1950, regarding telephone call received from Peyton Ford on that evening indicating that the Department had just learned the President is going to let the Tydings Subcommittee call at the White House and review the State Department loyalty files on the 81 individuals referred to by Senator McCarthy. Mr. Ford suggested that the Bureau send nothing else to Seth Richardson until Ford advises the Bureau to do so since he wants to determine from the White House what position is adopted. You noted: "Confirm by writing memo to Ford as to our understanding re not sending anything more to R."

As you know, we have been reviewing our files and furnishing information concerning the names on Senator McCarthy's list to Seth Richardson. However, in view of instructions received from Peyton Ford no further information will be sent to Seth Richardson. Of course, where we presently have pending either a full field investigation or a supplemental investigation, for example, in the case of John Carter Vincent on whom the Department recently has requested a full field loyalty investigation, we are required under the provisions of the Loyalty Order to furnish the results of such investigations to the Civil Service Commission.

ACTION

There is attached for your approval a memorandum to Mr. Peyton Ford confirming our understanding of his instructions to me on May 4, 1950.

Reference is made to my previous memorandum of this date.

Senator HICKENLOOPER: Did you know a MR. CHI who was proposed by the present Communist Regime in China as Representative at the United Nations?

MR. OWEN LATTIMORE: I knew him before the war in 1934, rather slightly.

HICKENLOOPER: Did you ever believe him to be a Communist or were you ever reliably informed he had Communist tendencies?

LATTIMORE: No.

HICKENLOOPER: When did you learn that he was a Communist?

LATTIMORE: I do not know that now.

HICKENLOOPER: Even now, when he is proposed by the Communist Government in China as the Representative to the United Nations? How long have you known FREDERICK FIELDS?

LATTIMORE: Yes. I knew him when we were both employed in the Institute of Pacific Relations.

HICKENLOOPER: During that association, did you believe or were you ever reliably informed that he was a Communist or had Communist tendencies?

LATTIMORE: No sir. Quite the contrary as far as I know. He was a rather likeable young man, although my conversations were casual. I only recently learned that he was at one time a NORMAN THOMAS supporter.

HICKENLOOPER: In regard to PHILIP JAFFE, did you ever know he was a Communist or were you ever reliably informed he had Communist tendencies?

LATTIMORE: No. We were on a trip to Yunnan together and I saw him occasionally in Baltimore in 1938.

(In his opinion, JAFFE was one of those Americans who had a bright and hopeful view of Asia and LATTIMORE had no reason to believe he was a Communist.)

HICKENLOOPER: In regard to AGNES SMEDLEY, did you ever know her to be a Communist, or were you ever reliably informed that she was a Communist or had strong Communist sympathies?

LATTIMORE: No. I was never very close to SMEDLEY, although I had met her on a few occasions.

HICKENLOOPER: Regarding NEM WHALES (Ph), did you ever believe him to be a Communist or were you ever reliably informed that he had Communist tendencies?

LATTIMORE: My acquaintance with WHALES was slightly less than that with SMEDLEY. I knew her in Yunnan, which was no reason to believe that she was or is a Communist.

HICKENLOOPER: Regarding T. A. VISSON (Ph), did you know him to be a Communist or were you ever reliably informed that he was a Communist or had Communist tendencies?

LATTIMORE: None whatsoever.

HICKENLOOPER: Regarding these people -- were many of them known to you to be Communists or to have strong Communist leanings?

LATTIMORE: That is a hypothetical question which I might answer by pointing out that during those years, particularly when I was in China and associating with some of those people, they did not speak or read Chinese as I did and I did not go to them for information. I always went to the original sources.

Letter to Director

HICKENLOOPER: Did you say that LAUGHLIN CURRY had recommended you to the President as an Adviser to CHIANG KAI-SHEK?

LATTIMORE: No. I was asked to come to Washington, having heard that the President was considering sending a representative to CHIANG KAI-SHEK. I do not know how my name came up.

HICKENLOOPER: Did you know LAUGHLIN CURRY?

LATTIMORE: No. Prior to that time, I had read of him in the newspapers, but I did not know him.

HICKENLOOPER: After your trip to Yunnan, did you submit a report to anyone in the Government?

LATTIMORE: No. I was not responsible to anyone in the Government.

HICKENLOOPER: In connection with the trip by WALLACE into Siberia and his book on Siberia, credit was given you under author's notes for certain aspects of the book. Have you read the book?

LATTIMORE: No. I have merely looked through it, but have never read it through.

HICKENLOOPER: I consider the book to be a praise of the Soviet System of operation in Siberia. How much did you contribute to the book?

LATTIMORE: The reference in the book to me is more laudatory than I deserve. The proofs were sent to me in New York. It was my duty to see that they were correct, which I did.

HICKENLOOPER: Did you contribute to the conclusions of the book?

LATTIMORE: No.

HICKENLOOPER: During the time you were Pacific Representative to OWI, did you follow the articles or read the China Daily News in New York, and did you believe it was a Communist controlled or Communistic paper?

WPS:MFL
121-13947

Letter to Director

LATTIMORE: No, very definitely not. My knowledge of the China Daily News came primarily from a DR. GHI (Ph) who wrote editorials for the paper.

HICKENLOOPER: During the picnic in Baltimore at your place a day before or a day after the Amerasia raids, when MR. ROTH, SERVICE, JAFFE, and MISS MITCHELL were present at your place, were there any documents of the government there which were classified as secret, top secret or classified?

LATTIMORE: Not that I was aware of.

HICKENLOOPER: Did you discuss secret documents or classified documents that day?

LATTIMORE: No, sir.

HICKENLOOPER: Did you discuss the Amerasia case of the seizure of documents with SERVICE, ROTH or JAFFE before or after the raids?

LATTIMORE: I cannot recall discussing the case after the raid. I saw MR. ROTH in India. It was a surprise - I did not know he was there. I did not get to talk to him because immediately after a lecture I gave, I was whisked away to a dinner. I did not talk to MR. SERVICE except for some time after the charges against him had been dismissed. Naturally, we discussed the matter. I do not recall the details.

HICKENLOOPER: Had any of those people displayed to you restricted or classified documents?

LATTIMORE: Not that I recall.

HICKENLOOPER: Since June 1945, how frequently did you consult MR. JAFFE, ROTH, SERVICE or MISS MITCHELL?

LATTIMORE: ROTH only once; MITCHELL and JAFFE, I do not recall.

HICKENLOOPER: Where was the office and established headquarters of the magazine, "Amerasia?"

WPS:MFL
121-13947

Letter to Director

LATTIMORE: I don't remember.

HICKENLOOPER: Were you not connected several years with the magazine?

LATTIMORE: I was Consulting Editor, but lived in Baltimore.

HICKENLOOPER: Where was the office of the Institute of Pacific Relations?

LATTIMORE: When I was with them (Institute of Pacific Relations) it was located at East 52nd Street, and later moved to East 54th Street.

HICKENLOOPER: At any time during your association with the magazine, was the Office of Pacific Affairs adjacent to the office of "Amerasia?"

LATTIMORE: I do not recall.

HICKENLOOPER: Was there a door out between the two offices?

LATTIMORE: Not that I recall. My work was done in Baltimore and my trips to New York were infrequent.

HICKENLOOPER: Do you know how many subscriptions "Amerasia" had?

LATTIMORE: No.

HICKENLOOPER: Approximately 1700.

LATTIMORE: I had nothing to do with the circulation.

HICKENLOOPER: On your visits to the "Amerasia" Office, did you see the printing plant?

LATTIMORE: No.

HICKENLOOPER: You left "Amerasia" in 1941 - what was the occasion?

LATTIMORE: I was going to China as Adviser to Generalissimo and I had considered resigning for some time because I had been doing very little contributing.

WPS:MFL
121-13947

Letter to Director

HICKENLOOPER: Was "Amerasia" widely read in the State Department in the Far Eastern Section?

LATTIMORE: I have no knowledge of that.

HICKENLOOPER: Was the "Pacific Affairs" subscribed to by personnel in the State Department?

LATTIMORE: No knowledge.

HICKENLOOPER: What was the number of subscriptions of the "Public Affairs?"

(LATTIMORE could not recall, but thought it would be between 900 and 1100).

HICKENLOOPER: The "Amerasia" and "Pacific Affairs" had to be supported by means other than subscriptions. Is that true?

LATTIMORE: I do not know.

HICKENLOOPER: Did FREDERICK FIELDS finance "Pacific Affairs?"

(LATTIMORE recalled that indirectly FIELDS had supported "Pacific Affairs.")

HICKENLOOPER: Did your son, DAVID, attend a World Youth Conference in Prague?

LATTIMORE: My wife, son and I were in Czechoslovakia and my son attended a number of camps and various youth conferences in Prague and just outside Prague. He was trying to secure dormitory accommodations and was a means for him to get away from his parents for awhile.

HICKENLOOPER: Were there a number of students there from the Putney (Ph) School?

(LATTIMORE recalled seeing three students there from the Putney School).

121-13947

Letter to Director

HICKENLOOPER: Did your son return or go to some of these other places in Prague?

LATTIMORE: MRS. LATTIMORE and I went to England and he joined us for some time.

HICKENLOOPER: Did your son go to Russia?

LATTIMORE: No, sir.

HICKENLOOPER: Are you familiar with, and have you read the articles in the "New Times?"

LATTIMORE: I have read articles in the "New Times."

(HICKENLOOPER called attention to a book review of LATTIMORE'S book, "Solution to Asia," reviewed by one B. YAROVY (Ph), which appeared in "New Times" in 1945. HICKENLOOPER pointed out that the article gives LATTIMORE great credit for understanding the position in Asia and he quoted passages from the book.)

HICKENLOOPER: It seems the reviewer was very kind and expresses approval of your book.

LATTIMORE: A communist reviewer is a Communist review for political purposes.

(LATTIMORE pointed out that as late as 1947, General WIDEMEYER went so far as to propose a Chinese-American-British trusteeship on Asia.)

LATTIMORE: Certain aspects of my book appear to contain information the Communists could use to advantage.

(LATTIMORE stated that the reviewer went on to warn the readers that LATTIMORE was not a Communist or a fellow traveller and "presents me as a spokesman and expansionist American capitalist." His reviews are distorted by the reviewed. Moreover, a significant passage was left out by the reviewer.)

Court was recessed at 11:25 a.m., to be resumed

Peyton Ford called me this evening and stated he talked to the White House with reference to the State Department files being made available to Senator Tydings' Committee; that they are going to try and hold off on this until the President returns from his trip; that they are going to insist that the counsel for the committee not be present, no one to be present except the Senators on the committee to review the files at the White House.

Further, Mr. Ford stated that he had insisted that any names of informants, etc. which might appear in FBI reports which were in the State Department files made available must be blacked out.

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

DATE: May 5, 1950

FROM : PHILADELPHIA

SUBJECT: ACTIVITY IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT
GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Reference Bureau telephone conversation April 27, 1950, requesting that Professor PAUL B. EATON, Lafayette University, Easton, Pa., be interviewed for information concerning OWEN LATTIMORE and Communist activity in the State Department. Information concerning OWEN LATTIMORE was previously set forth by report.

On April 28, 1950 and May 1, 1950, Professor PAUL B. EATON, Engineering Department, Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., was interviewed and furnished the following information:

Professor EATON stated that during the latter part of 1942 he wrote the State Department upon the suggestion of such men as DR. COMPTON, M.I.T.; DR. MILLIKEN, California Institute of Technology; DR. DURANT, Cornell University; and DR. E. G. BAILLEY, Bailley Meter Company, and offered his services to the government in the field of engineering.

In November, 1942, Professor EATON was notified by the State Department that he would be sent on a secret mission to China for the purpose of determining what specialized technical personnel and essential operating instruments and supplies of a critical nature were required to maintain the Chinese National Government industries in the war effort. Professor EATON said that it was an extremely important mission because much depended on getting the latest technological information to the Chinese engineers. Professor EATON travelled in China as a representative of a cultural relations group.

Professor EATON was scheduled to leave for China about February 15, 1943, although it was actually the latter part of April or first part of May before arrangements could actually be made for him to leave. He returned to the United States on May 2, 1944. Professor EATON was told by a MR. MYERS, a Representative of the State Department in Washington, that efforts were being made for him to fly to China via Alaska and Siberia but that "We don't know what's happening but apparently the Russians aren't letting us over". Professor EATON indicated that certain individuals in the State Department were delaying his mission as long as possible.

According to Professor EATON, HALDOR HANSEN, in the China Section of the Far Eastern Division of the State Department, was appointed his Washington Manager for his mission to China. The primary duties of the Washington Manager was to see that the person being sent on the mission was properly advised and furnished all information necessary to carry out his mission successfully.

Letter of May 5, 1950 from Philadelphia regarding COMMUNIST ACTIVITY IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT, LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES. Info.
re Hanson furnished by Professor PAUL B. EATON:

According to Professor EATON, HALDORE HANSEN, in the China Section of the Far Eastern Division of the State Department, was appointed his Washington Manager for his mission to China. The primary duties of the Washington Manager was to see that the person being sent on the mission was properly advised and furnished all information necessary to carry out his mission successfully.

In February, 1943, Professor EATON, while talking with HALDORE HANSEN in Washington, D. C., was advised that arrangements had been made for him to talk with DR. HORNBECK, LAUCHLIN CURRIE, Vice President HENRY A. WALLACE, as well as several other individuals. Professor EATON informed HANSEN that he was not interested in talking with WALLACE, which he later realized was a mistake since it "opened me up" to the so-called liberal element in the State Department.

According to Professor EATON, he attended a small party at the residence of HALDORE HANSEN the evening before he left for China. Also in attendance of this party were ROGER SHERMAN GREEN (deceased), HALDORE and Mrs.
HANSEN, AGNES SMEDLEY, and a newspaper photographer. During the course of the evening AGNES SMEDLEY criticized the Nationalist Government of China and praised the Communist group. She indicated the Communists represented the real people of China and that the Capitalist form of Government should be done away with. As a result of these remarks Professor EATON and AGNES SMEDLEY engaged in a heated argument. AGNES SMEDLEY suggested to Professor EATON that he look up YAP CHW-FAY, a Chinese engineer, when he arrived in China.
Professor EATON added that he did meet YAP CHW-FAY in China and found him to be definitely "pro Red". Professor EATON was convinced that AGNES SMEDLEY attended the party for the purpose of ascertaining the purpose of his mission to China. Professor EATON did not know if she was actually invited to the party or just dropped in of her own accord. However, from her actions, he was of the opinion that she was fairly well acquainted with HANSEN and had been in his residence before.

Professor EATON said that HALDORE HANSEN has never said or done anything which would indicate he was a Communist, although he is somewhat suspicious of him in that he (HANSEN) failed to bring to his attention numerous things which might have assisted him in his work in China before he left, and that he failed to assist or supply him with needed technological data to carry out his mission, all of which are the duties of the Washington manager. In the opinion of Professor EATON, HANSEN could not have helped knowing what was taking place in Chungking, and was either sympathetic with that element in the State Department that was working for the Chinese Communist Government or was afraid to say or do anything about the situation.

However, from her actions, he was of the opinion that she was fairly well acquainted with HANSEN and had been in his residence before.

Professor EATON arrived in Chungking, China, during the early part of May, 1943. He immediately started to make arrangements to carry out the duties of his mission which consisted primarily of determining what specialized technical personnel and essential operating instruments and supplies of a critical nature were required to maintain the Chinese Nationalist Government industries in the war effort. It was also necessary that he inform the Chinese engineers and students of the latest information and developments in the engineering field which they were sorely in need of. However, it became increasingly apparent as time went on that various individuals in the American Embassy in Chungking and the State Department in Washington were doing everything possible to interfere and prevent Professor EATON from successfully carrying out his mission. There is hereinafter set forth a summary of the information furnished by Professor EATON setting forth the difficulties and interference encountered by him in attempting to carry out his mission in China:

u

Letter

HOUSING

Professor EATON advised that he was housed at the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations in Chungking. The institute was centrally located and arrangements were such that interviews and discussions could be held with various Chinese friends and visitors without any embarrassment. However, the sanitary conditions prevailing at the institute were deplorable, and during the winter months when the temperature was near freezing, no heat was available. Professor EATON said that it was necessary to sleep fully clothed which included the wearing of an overcoat to keep from freezing. According to Professor EATON, the American Embassy was well aware of these conditions but made no attempt to assist, although they knew it was interfering with the carrying out of his mission.

FOOD

The food served by the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations was, according to Professor EATON, notoriously bad. He added, in fact, that the institute bore the reputation of serving the worst foreign food in Chungking. Professor EATON said that nearly all Americans in Chungking were allowed to obtain a certain amount of food each month from the Army, but that he and the other individuals at the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations were not aware of this until they had been in Chungking for some time, and then it was only shortly before he left that he was actually permitted to purchase food from Army supplies. Professor EATON discussed this situation with the American Embassy but it was only after months of stalling that he was allowed to purchase food from the Army supplies. Professor EATON was told that he was being paid $7 a day (per diem) which could be used to purchase food. He added, however, that $7 a day would purchase very little food in China on the open market, and that he did not have sufficient time to run around Chungking looking for food because of the heavy schedule required to fulfill his mission. Professor EATON advised he lost 60 pounds during the year he was in China.

Professor EATON said that it is true the American Embassy is not responsible for the food and housing provided by the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations but the Embassy was responsible for the care of the various individuals on secret mission in Chungking, and could have assisted in providing additional housing facilities and food if they desired.

Letter

CLOTHING

According to Professor EATON, he came to China fairly well prepared for the winter months but did need additional clothing such as long underwear, but was not given an opportunity to purchase the same, although some was available through the Army which the American Embassy could have obtained. Other individuals staying at the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations who were also in Chungking on secret missions experienced considerable difficulty in obtaining additional clothing.

MEDICAL FACILITIES

Professor EATON stated that the State Department had advised that medical attention was available through the American Embassy. According to Professor EATON, he had been in Chungking about a month and a half when Professor BROWN needed medical attention. Neither Professors EATON nor BROWN had been advised where medical attention could be obtained and, after some difficulty, finally determined from the American Embassy that a DR. HERRINGTON on the south bank would provide medical aid. It was necessary for Professor EATON to take Professor BROWN to DR. HERRINGTON's Office which was approximately five miles from the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations. In that neither Professors EATON nor BROWN were very well acquainted with Chungking, it took considerable time and difficulty to find DR. HERRINGTON's Office.

TECHNOLOGICAL DATA

Professor EATON advised that he travelled to Chungking by plane and consequently the amount of his luggage was limited to 55 pounds, which consisted of 40 pounds of personal items and 15 pounds of technological data. This was not nearly enough technological data to effectively carry out his mission, but he was told that additional data could be obtained through the State Department. In addition, Professor EATON instructed his wife to enclose certain technological data in her letters to him which were not bulky.

Copy According to Professor EATON the State Department was to ship technological data to him on micro-film and make available a projector so he could transmit the information to the Chinese engineers. However, JOHN K. FAIRBANKS blocked relatively all the shipments of micro-film to China, which micro-film was urgently needed by Professor EATON to carry out his mission. U

Letter

Professor EATON stated that of approximately 1,100 micro-films contained in the National Central Library, only nine pertained to engineering. He said that the "Chungking Embassy and State Department exhibited not only reluctance to expedite the film but exhibited a desire to block ready transmittal".

Professor EATON advised that all technological data mailed to him by his wife was removed from the letters by someone in the State Department before the letters were sent to him in Chungking.

Professor EATON discussed the situation with a MR. FREEMAN in the Chungking Embassy who advised him that if his letters had been sent to a particular office in the State Department they would have received special attention - or words to that effect. Professor EATON advised that even after discussing the matter with the American Embassy, he still received relatively little technological data.

According to Professor EATON, he finally ascertained from a MR. BELTZ that mail could be received through the Army which was not censored. As a result, Professor EATON received considerably more technological data through this means.

Eaton ✓
Professor EATON said that he made arrangements with the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, of which he has been a member for a number of years, to send him technological data on micro-film. However, he never received this material. He learned later that the State Department asked Professor THOMAS REED, a Metallurgical Engineer at Columbia University, if he thought that Professor EATON really needed the data as desperately as he indicated. Professor REED said that EATON did not need the material and was "Just blowing his top". Professor EATON said that Professor REED was the brother-in-law of WILLIS WICK, Head of the China Section of the State Department, who is strongly suspected of being pro Russian by Professor EATON. According to Professor EATON, Professor REED was not acquainted with the activities of the Far East and could not have known if the material was urgently needed or not.

According to Professor EATON, there were other individuals in Chungking on secret missions who were experiencing the same difficulties as he was but they were hesitant to do anything since they were actually employed by the government and were afraid of losing their jobs. However, since Professor EATON was what you might say on loan to the government, he led the fight since he had nothing to fear.

Letter

According to Professor EATON, he had a discussion with WILLIS PECK, Head of the China Section of the State Department on his return from China in May of 1944. PECK wanted to know if Professor EATON could "Forget some of the unpleasantries and unfortunate situations which impacted against you while in China". Professor EATON replied that "I cannot forget; in fact, each passing day finds me more and more indignant because of the inhuman treatment given me and the lack of aid for my mission". MR. PECK expressed deep concern and stated it was all due to his faulty arrangements. Professor EATON stated, however, that PECK had little if anything to do with the situation, and was apparently taking the blame in the hope that he (Professor EATON) would forget the entire situation.

Professor EATON advised that because of conditions in the Embassy in Chungking, LAUCHLIN CURRIE, the personal representative of President ROOSEVELT, came to Chungking to talk with CHIANG KAI SHEK and did not even stop at the Embassy. He added, in fact, that the Embassy did not know of CURRIE's arrival until after he had already returned to the United States.

Professor EATON said that CLARENCE E. GAUSS was American Ambassador in Chungking at that time but was away a considerable portion of the time, and was not acquainted with what was actually happening in the Embassy.

According to Professor EATON, nearly all the trouble in the American Embassy in Chungking stemmed from one man, namely, GEORGE ACHESON, JR. (deceased), Charge de Affairs, who he considered to be "pro Red".

Professor EATON said that ACHESON was responsible for much of the hardships suffered by him and others in Chungking on secret missions in an effort to make their mission less effective or a failure.

Although most of Professor EATON's contacts with the Embassy in Chungking were with MR. BOEHRINGER, MR. FREEMAN and others, he still believes that ACHESON was the person responsible since he was their supervisor.

Professor EATON was of the opinion that these individuals were probably not "pro Red" themselves but were forced to carry out the instructions of ACHESON since they were fearful of losing their jobs.

Professor EATON said that HALDORE HANSEN has never said or done anything which would indicate he was a Communist, although he is somewhat suspicious of him in that he (HANSEN) failed to bring to his attention numerous things which might have assisted him in his work in China before he left, and that he failed to assist or supply him with needed technological data to carry out his mission, all of which are the duties of the Washington manager. In the opinion of Professor EATON, HANSEN could not have helped knowing what was taking place in Chungking, and was either sympathetic with that element in the State Department that was working for the Chinese Communist Government or was afraid to say or do anything about the situation.

Professor EATON was of the opinion that JOHN K. FAIRBANKS, through his actions, has indicated that he is a "pro Red sympathizer and a direct antagonist to the National Central Government of China".

Professor EATON said that MR. MYERS, in the China Section of the State Department, warned him to have nothing to do with DAN LI, the Head of the Chinese Intelligence, prior to his leaving for China. Professor EATON was of the opinion that MYERS was 100 per cent American.

According to Professor EATON, MR. FREEMAN, MR. BOEHRINGER and HARRY STEVENS, all employees of the American Embassy in Chungking were not believed to be "pro Red", although they may have appeared to have been, but were only carrying out instructions of GEORGE ACHESON, JR.

Professor EATON advised that he had little contact with JOHN S. SERVICE but did know that he was thoroughly allied with GEORGE ACHESON, JR., and that he would readily carry out ACHESON's wishes.

Professor EATON advised that he had been in contact with Senator RALPH E. FLANDERS concerning the above situation and expected to be called to Washington, D. C., in the near future to discuss the matter and possibly, to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

There are herewith enclosed several letters made available by Professor EATON which set forth in more detail the situation in connection with his mission to China:

1. A letter from Professor EATON to CLARENCE E. GAUSS, Esquire, American Ambassador, Chungking, China, dated November 22, 1943.
2. A letter from C. E. GAUSS to Professor EATON dated November 30, 1943. (Professor EATON advised that although this letter was signed by Ambassador GAUSS, it was actually written by GEORGE ACHESON, JR.).

ENCLOSURE

Confidential and for transmittal to the Secretary of State.

Clarence H. Gauss, Esq.,
American Ambassador,
Chungking, China.

My dear Mr. Ambassador:

I have been informed by an oral request of Mr. Boehringer it is the suggestion of the Embassy that I expand upon the last paragraph of my report which is being typed.

At the outset of my remarks it must be understood it is not my intention to change or attempt to change any policy established by the Department of State regulating its normal procedure relative to those in its employ but I should desire to know the Department's regulations. Upon ascertaining them I feel I might be in a position to determine the degree of departure, if any, from the established procedure.

I did not expect to find all the amenities available in Chungking - in fact I came prepared to endure many hardships relative to food, shelter, clothing, and knew of a certainty I would lack the elements necessary to carrying out my professional duties such as books, writing paper, projectors, films and such things. I anticipated sharing them jointly with other Americans resident in Chungking and similarly engaged in the war effort. Anyone leaving America for a mission of minor importance such as mine should be aware that difficulties lay ahead when the baggage limitation was placed at fifty-five pounds with an additional ten pounds allowance.

Without doubt my complaint arises mainly from the fact that an accumulation of small items when integrated looms large in one's viewpoint. I shall attempt to enumerate a few of them:

The practice among the Cultural Relations group, from my experience, when determining what was available through the Embassy, appeared to be secured by word of mouth from within the group itself. And none seemed to be aware of any regulatory practice. To cite one example: I had been in Chungking one and one-half months when Professor Brown needed medical attention. The Department of State had provided us with INSTRUCTIONS TO TRAVELERS IN CHINA and I had scrutinized it. It informed us that medical aid was available in Chungking. But neither Professor Brown nor I knew who the doctor was or his location. Even after a call by phone to the Embassy it was my understanding that Professor Brown remained uncertain as to whether or not the doctor recommended was the one officially provided. As for myself, I was of no assistance because I lacked the information. Furthermore, I, personally, was not aware for some period of time that our Cultural Relations group had any special member of the Embassy Staff assigned to assist us. I secured the information accidentally from one of my group. Subsequent changes took place relative to the assignment of a staff member and once again I learned it from a group member. I was led to feel the care of our group was set upon a "hit-and-miss" method.

It was about the middle of June that I noticed other American groups coming to Chungking - some short of certain things and others with apparently plenty to carry out their assignments. ( I use the word " plenty " in a relative sense. ) Yet all of them had some head officer to look after their interests. From what I could determine such things as magazines, newspapers, tobacco, food difficulties, housing and like things were settled each upon a basis depending upon the pressure exerted by the officer in charge of the group. Since the Cultural Relations' group was not housed as a group nor treated as a group it was inevitable that individuals within the group would not secure comparably favorable treatment. No well-defined procedure existed concerning our welfare and, apparently, no well-found procedure was desired. There seemed to be a spirit pervading the atmosphere of " Don't let the other fellow have anything because the more he gets the less there will be for the rest of us. " I had been led to feel when leaving Washington that I was loosely connected to the Department of State staff - an employee of the Department and not of the Embassy. I was therefore prepared for certain differentiation during working hours but I was not prepared, especially due to severe baggage limitations, to encounter discriminatory treatment between the Embassy staff and the Cultural Relations' group when a distribution of life's necessities was made. Undoubtedly there are some who feel there might have been a justifiable difference in treatment since the members of the Cultural Relations' group were provided with $7.00 per diem while simultaneously receiving board from the Chinese government. But let it be known ( and the Embassy should have known it ) that the board at the Institute furnished the Cultural Relations' men was notoriously bad. I write the foregoing words as a seasoned engineer who has worked in remote regions before and additionally on my second trip to China. The Institute bore the unsavory reputation of serving the worst foreign food in Chungking. The reasons which are obvious to me are not pertinent here. The Embassy was aware that the food shortage interfered with the diet of its employees since special subsidies were given certain men and the Embassy secured access for their employees to the army supply of such items as coffee, tobacco, jam, cheese and like things in limited quantities. Yet no word reached me from the Embassy officially or unofficially that we were to be accorded similar treatment. I assumed we were not. I naturally inferred that if I wished to secure the much needed foods I could go into the native markets and purchase them with the $7.00 per diem. Now anyone walking the streets of Chungking would know that the food augmentation could not be secured within the limitations of the allotted per diem. Furthermore, specialists have their specific duties to perform and cannot or should not divert their time to secure food augmentation in the native markets even if available. It appeared to me that common courtesy would demand equitable treatment for all members of the group of Americans resident in Chungking. But such was not the case. We were so few in number compared to other Government agencies enjoying that distinction that it was but natural I should wonder where Cultural Isolation began and ended.

Next come newspapers, magazines and like literature which filter into the Embassy: I have noting but words of praise for Mr. Cherp in carrying out his duties but I was led to believe I should wait my turn until the regular employees of the Embassy had had their choice of literature. This seemed manifestly fair and I would not have given the matter even a passing thought except that I was encountering censorship difficulties in securing newspaper clippings of current technological material forwarded in my wife's letters. Washington was methodically removing them. I had taken the matter up with Mr. Freeman stating that this form of censorship was silly since Mr. Beltz secured his clippings through the army mail without one removal. Mr. Freeman had informed me that if my letters had been sent to a particular office in the Department of State they would have received special attention - or words to that effect. I was properly mystified for I had been led to feel that Mr. Hansen was qualified for that purpose.

I still remain in doubt as to whether or not any action was taken by the Embassy relative to censorship for no word has reached me since the interview. So when one located at the end of the long trail at Chungking is forced to wait at the end of the Embassy line for scraps of technological information the mental effect is not stimulating to say the least. I note from observation that special issues of the New York Times are now in circulation at the Embassy, issues which contain fragmentary technological information, and I still wait to learn whether or not I am entitled to see them.

Next comes the housing: I have stayed at the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations since arriving in Chungking. It is centrally located and arrangements are such that my Chinese friends and visitors can have conferences with me without embarrassment. It is well-suited to my work in this respect. It is my understanding that several sizable sums of money have been given the Institute through one of the agencies of the Government. Yet the sanitary conditions prevailing for the roomers is deplorable. There are two toilets in the building: one is downstairs for the use of the staff members and the other is located on the second floor in the combined one-man toilet and bath room. The latter is supposed to service fifteen roomers, three Chinese staff members, and the few Chinese and foreigners who are aware of its existence when coming into the building for one purpose or another. Resident Americans have been compelled to defecate and urinate repeatedly in cuspidors in their bedrooms and to wait interminably for hot water to be drawn from the tank located in the " usually closed " bathroom. The period of winter is drawing uncomfortably close as I envision from the coal stoves noted in the Embassy quarters and other quarters devoted to housing members of the other American agencies. Thus far no stove has made its appearance at the Institute and without doubt none is contemplated. Yet I am inclined to believe that cultural relations between China and America are supposed to emanate from this source. While the Institute is not organized for profit, a statement from an unofficial source causes me to feel that " starting with practically nothing except an idea we have half a million dollars CN in the bank drawing interest " belies the spirit. I have been informed from other sources that the half million should have been stated as a million and one-half. But granting that the mercenary spirit has not been proved the present lack of sanitary and kitchen commissary facilities leads one to feel the Embassy should take more than a passing interest in the situation. It is my understanding that no representative of the Embassy is on the Board of Directors of the Institute. If this be the case and should another request arise for additional financial aid, it might be well for the Governmental agency to provide essentials instead of money.

Clothing: I came to China prepared adequately if not comfortably for the rigors of winter outdoor life; others were not so fortunate within our group either through ignorance or neglect. I sought to secure underwear, pants and a shirt for one of our group directly from the army commissary. Two undershirts were finally forthcoming from a stock which was indeed meager according to the army records. However, before us stood a member of the Embassy staff ( homeward bound ) turning in blankets which had been drawn previously with the understanding they were available to his group. I was led to feel that the Embassy had not included our group in a request for consideration; if so, I had not been informed. I am prepared to suffer the utmost provided other Americans similarly located in Chungking are compelled by circumstances to follow suit but any other path should not be followed silently.

In conclusion: I trust no one will construe my statements or criticisms as reflecting directly or indirectly upon individuals; they are directed at the system or lack of system prevailing. If one feels that I have been inordinately severe let him live in the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations one month, visit the Embassy as I do looking for literature, witness other American groups protected at least partially from isolation of necessities, and get the polite " brush-off " from time to time. Knowing Americans as I do I am positive that they too would take an action similar to mine when requested to do so. They too would feel that something, perhaps intangible, is amiss and would hope for a review of the situation. They might realize that under the exigencies of war little or nothing worth while would eventuate but he would have had the satisfaction of registering a protest.

Chungking, China,
November 22, 1943.

Very truly yours,

THE FOREIGN SERVICE
OF THE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

AMERICAN EMBASSY

Chungking, November 30, 1943

Professor Paul B. Eaton,
Care of Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations,
Chungking.

My dear Professor Eaton:

Mr. Boehringer has told me of his conversation with you of November 29, 1943 in regard to your letter of complaint addressed to me under date of November 22, 1943 and marked "confidential and for transmittal to the Secretary of State." A copy of your letter is going forward with appropriate comment to the Department of State for the attention of the Division of Cultural Relations.

I am very glad that you have clarified the last sentence in your report of November 6 and to know exactly the nature of the matters which cause you dissatisfaction here. The Embassy wishes, of course, to give every appropriate assistance to the cultural relations specialists and, as you know, I and the appropriate officers of the Embassy are available for consultation in regard to these matters.

I was, of course, somewhat surprised at your dissatisfaction especially as you had not called to consult with me until some six weeks after my return and during our one conversation did not mention these matters. In fact, I believe that your report of November 6 was not submitted on your own initiative but was received only after we requested that you make a report as called for in your official instructions.

I shall be very glad to see you and discuss your complaints with you personally. I may say here that, as regards your dissatisfaction with the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations, it is my understanding that the Chinese Government is providing you both with lodging and with food at the Institute although it is not incumbent upon the Chinese Government to provide you with meals and the Department has furnished you with a per diem for that purpose. The magazines and newspapers received by the Embassy are sent to the Institute and are there, of course, as available to you as to the other residents of the Institute, including two members of the Embassy staff. As regards the question of medical attention: Dr. Herrington, Assistant Naval Attache, provides medical attention to members of the Embassy staff as a courtesy. He has been kind enough to volunteer to extend his services to the cultural relations specialists and to a number of other persons in Chungking. There is no physician "officially provided" as mentioned in your letter; Dr. Herrington's services are purely voluntary on his part and I believe that all of us who have had occasion to avail ourselves of his kindness are very much in his debt. As you know, Dr. Herrington's office is but a few feet from the chancery and if any specialist is in need of medical attention it would be only natural for him to make inquiry of the Embassy in the matter and receive information as to the location of Dr. Herrington's office.

I understand that in your conversation of November 29 with Mr. Boehringer you mentioned that the Ministry of Education has not set up a program for you although you have been in Chungking for some seven months. This matter should, of course, have been reported much earlier to the Embassy in order that it might be discussed with the Ministry with a view to endeavoring to arrange that appropriate use is being made of your services. I should be glad to discuss this aspect of your situation with you at your convenience.

Yours sincerely,

G. E. Gauss

Clarence E. Gauss, Esq.,
American Ambassador
Chungking, China.

My dear Mr. Ambassador:

I have your communication of November 30, 1943 in reply to my expansion dated November 22, 1943, of the last sentence in my report to the Embassy dated November 6, 1943.

It is now crystal clear to me what issues lie between the Embassy and my work in China since I believe I am safe in assuming your reply is official.

1. The Embassy has not given the Cultural Relations group sufficient attention through properly organizing its functions to carry out the wishes of the Department of State nor has it acted upon occasion concerning the welfare of the group when it was possible to do so.

2. Since May 7, to my knowledge, three different members of the Embassy staff have been assigned, at one time or another, to assume our direction and guidance; and I learned recently from a member of our group that a fourth had been assigned apparently. Your Embassy has never informed me concerning one of them except the last, Mr. Hoehringer.

3. The Embassy is now on record as assuming it was not remiss in failing to indicate where it might be possible to secure medical attention. I disagree with your contention while agreeing with you heartily as to the splendid service rendered by Dr. Herrington to all who require it. I am one of his regular patients suffering from colds.

4. From indications, the Embassy has never had the intention of placing our names on a list of those eligible to receive limited supplies from the army commissary.

5. The Embassy has not interested itself to determine whether or not we were properly housed or fed aside from informing the Chinese authorities that we had arrived.

6. The Embassy remains highly indifferent as to whether or not we receive recent technological news from America through the same channels ( and at the same time ) provided for some of its staff carrying purely clerical work.

7. The Embassy, through its favored position, attempts to place me on the defensive in any and every complaint rendered by me through its use of such statements as " appropriate officers are available for consultation in regard to these matters. " As a matter of fact, they are available but I have not received a decision from them on certain matters which I have considered important to my work. The Embassy has hidden behind its bureaucratic position constantly. Your statement that " The Embassy wishes to give every appropriate assistance, etc, " smacks of stilted phraseology when performance is used as the criterion.

I shall attempt to delineate my reasons for the foregoing statements in chronological order. You will also incorporate statements in my letter to you dated November 22, 1943.

1. I visited Mr. Freeman the morning of the day you arrived in Chungking expressing hope that Professor Brown's Helicopter films be retained if they arrived in Chungking. I asked for a ruling on the matter. ( Professor Brown had left China most untimely after stirring up Chinese hopes of seeing the films. ) A dead silence has prevailed since then. What am I to surmise? It is true that Mr. Freeman was available but it availed me nothing. I am still ignorant of the Embassy's decision and I expect from past treatment or lack of it to remain so. Although other incidents are possible to relate, I consider no further word necessary for clarifying my position before the Secretary of State. However I am impelled to present one additional fact: at this late date I still remain ignorant concerning my status relative to the payment of income tax. I quote my wife's letter dated October 25, 1943: " Dearest - First of all, you remember several letters ago you asked me to get in touch with Mr. Hanson regarding your financial status. Well, I did; and received his reply this morning. I quote: " I have turned your letter over to the Foreign Service Administration, etc. They wrote as follows, " you are informed that the tax on your husband's income is not withheld by the Department while he remains abroad. Pertinent instructions in regard to income tax were sent to offices abroad some time ago and your husband should by now be informed of the provisions applicable to his salary. " So there you have it. " ( The last statement is my wife's - not mine. ) Even she is trusting. I learned yesterday that the Embassy's staff has received the information from the Embassy; yet I must remain unserved presumably because the Embassy's technique is faulty in organization and/or performance or because it does not consider the required action " appropriate ".

2. I feel no further comment is necessary to clarify my position.

3. Referring to your letter of November 30, 1943 - last sentence of fourth paragraph: Your statement is correct but irrelevant and therefore tends to becloud the real issue. I quote from the 15th page of " Instructions of Travelers Going to China " : "Medical Facilities. The American Embassy at Chungking has a doctor attached to it who can care for staff members. The American armed forces in China have their own medical staff. " Furthermore, for your information so that you may have the correct timing, the " Brown Incident " occurred when Dr. Herrington's office was on the South Bank - miles away from the present chancery - and in a location unknown to a newcomer.

4. Referring to the first portion of the fourth paragraph of your letter of November 30, 1943. I was under the impression I too had made this point clear in my letter of expansion. I wish to call your attention that tobacco is considered essential to the welfare of those using it. I was informed by one of my group that he had asked for consideration and had received a polite brush-off. There are other American non-military groups receiving limited ration service from the army. Why not we - especially when it has been evident that the food served is not sufficient to sustain one?

5. No further comment is necessary.

6. American magazines and newspapers available at the Chinese-American Institute of Cultural Relations ( December 3, 1943 ) for my work are:

Asia - August
Bull Sheet - none
Life - none
Foreign Policy reports Feb 1, '43

Survey of Current Business May '43

National Geographic Aug. 23
Foreign Affairs Jan. & April '43
American Digest Nov. 26, '43
New York Times - at no time.

Please refer this list to any professional engineer for his comment as to suitability for my work in China. I'll rest my case on the comment given by a reputable man.

Need more be said except to query why the mention of your two staff members was made by you. I presumed you understood we were covering matters incident to my engineering work.

7. The last paragraph of your letter dated November 30, 1943 is entirely erroneous and tends to place me in a position of remissness. You may have understood Mr. Boehringer correctly but the fact is that I never made the statement. I cannot prove it "officially" for I did not have a witness. Are we therefore to assume that Mr. Boehringer's report to you is correct? What I did say was this in essence: that it was my opinion my service as an educator had little value to the Ministry of Education with the exception of my direct work with the professors. That as far as my true direct value to the students was concerned it would be well to get me passage about December 15th. However, my work elsewhere such as consulting, symposia, lecturing before industrial groups and the timely Job Instructor Training Course had real value according to my estimate. Further, that the Chinese Government was the ultimate judge of the value of my services and that I would continue to serve the "fiction" by remaining at Central University until the end of the current term. I told him I went to Central University Tuesdays and Thursdays; also was engaged in teaching JIT Courses Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings from 7:15 to 8:45 to groups of industrialists ( mainly ) numbering approximately 100 total. I have assumed I have been permitted to give work outside of Central University only at the discretion of the Ministry of Education. How, then, in all conscience, could I have wittingly given the impression that I had not been given a program by the Ministry of Education? Can't you see that the foregoing is exactly what I am inveighing against. It is very easy for the Embassy to place any construction they wish upon an interview leaving the interviewee reasonably helpless since he has no knowledge of the " appropriate remarks " sent to the Department of State in Washington. This practice is unamerican and undemocratic. For your particular and direct information and for my representation to all who will review the case: I am proud of my work for China aside from that connected with direct student teaching and I have every reason to feel the Chinese are well-satisfied in all respects.

I have one final statement relative to your letter of November 30, 1943, the last sentence in the third paragraph. You are correct in stating that I did not submit my report on my own initiative but that you requested it. If you will read the copy of my travel orders which you have in your possession you will ascertain that the Department of State instructed me as follows: " You should keep the Ambassador informed of your activities to the extent that the Embassy considers desirable. " I have done so! Not one of your three ( or four ) men assigned to aid our group ever told me specifically when to render a report and I have never been sent ( and it cannot be proved to the contrary ) a written statement of rules, regulations, procedures connected between the Embassy and my work. I have been given the specific impression that the less the contact with the Embassy the better. I have tried to observe this but have been forced to ask for mail and cable service. I have found these excellent. In justice to the Embassy and to the referee, these two functions have been carried out.

In closing, I must inform you that I should prefer to carry out the adjustment of our differences by correspondence. The reason should be obvious. I am enjoying the work with my Chinese friends and hope that I shall be permitted to retain a serene mind while attempting to concentrate upon my immediate task.

Faithfully yours,

Chungking, China

The Honorable Ralph E. Flanders
Room 311
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

My dear Senator Flanders:

Word has reached me via radio news issue that you have taken dominant stand upon the manner of the investigation of the Department of State by Senator McCarthy. When I heard the statement of the commentator I sensed you were taking your position because of your desire to have "fair play" prevail in whatever deliberations ensue. Apparently you believe that Secretary Acheson is being subjected to accusations that have little or no basis in fact and, as a result, you become nauseated at the seeming lack of dignity within the procedure of the investigating group. In this I join you heartily for I too deplore the seeming necessity of exaggeration which is apparently required before the American public becomes aroused. And I too feel that Senator McCarthy has made some statements relative to the numbers of Communists employed by the Department of State that would be most difficult if not impossible for him to substantiate. It is exceedingly regrettable that Senator McCarthy did not confine himself to statements that could be substantiated - statements which are of sufficient merit to cause men like you and me to know that something is rotten at the core of our government structure.

I trust you will agree with me that if Senator McCarthy had made the statement there had been and are men in the employ of the Department of State whose acts played deliberately into the machinations of the Politbureau you would have been willing to remain neutral in your thinking until all the facts had been assembled. I can join you in disbelieving there is now any considerable number of Communists in the Department of State but I wish to make an even more serious charge: there have been and are still those in the employ of the Department of State who are far more dangerous to our American Way of life in that they refuse to affiliate themselves with the Communist Party but simultaneously plan, write, and speak concerning ideologies which aid the diabolical plotting of those Russians who would destroy our freedom. This sort of individual is much more difficult to catch up with than those who join secretly yet actively with our foes.

I realize you are a busy man and have a voluminous correspondence yet I know from our past associations that you are searching for the truth and are willing to spend considerable time in unearthing it. Please listen to the story of my mission to China during the years of 1943 and 1944 - listen with an open mind - attempt to evaluate whether or not I am trying to be truthful - and be in the knowledge that at all times during my mission I lived up to the ethics of the profession of engineering as enunciated by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, a virile association which you and I have had the honor to serve. I am proud to be known as "one of Dean Kimball's boys" for that grand man not only taught me sound and basic technology but also the necessity for observing the ethics of the engineer.

My Mission to China - and Subsequent Happenings

The true purpose of my mission was to determine what specialized technical personnel and essential operating instruments and supplies of critical nature were required to maintain the Chinese National Government industries in the war effort. On the surface, I travelled around Free China as a representative of a Cultural Relations group but my work must have had paramount importance since my Travel Orders stated that "if the Government of the Republic of China was unable to transport me to any locality I could requisition an American plane" --- or words to that effect.

I shall never forget the afternoon of February, 1943, when I sat with Haldore Hanson in the China Section of the Far Eastern Division of the Department of State; he was telling me that arrangements had been made for half-hour talks with Dr. Hornbeck, Mr. Currie, one or two others, AND Vice-President Wallace. When Hanson mentioned that name, I said, "I am not interested". I had my reasons at the time for refraining from any form of contact with Mr. Wallace; and I still have them. I did not meet Mr. Wallace.

There is every reason for me to believe that this rash act on my part opened me up to the so-called liberal element in the State Department who proceeded to make life as unbearable for me as possible during my full year's stay in China. I flew to China with George Acheson, Jr., Charge de Affairs of the American Embassy at Chungking upon his arrival, and acting for the Ambassador in his absence. Mr. Acheson failed in no manner whatsoever to make my mission a thoroughly unworkmanlike job. I must congratulate him upon his diabolical cunning but offer condolence to him that he met his match in my indomitable spirit that I would die before his plans ( and that of the American Embassy at Chungking ) would interfere with the work I had been assigned to bring to a fruition. When I started for home in May of 1944, I left sixty pounds lighter than my arrival weight, and, upon my reaching home, my wife failed to know me until I started to take her in my arms.

I ask you in all frankness: do you condone the lack of physical care and administrative procedure from the Chungking Embassy which reduced me to this distressing condition? And when I inform you that I have in my possession copies of two " Secret, Confidential, and Immediate Transmittal " letters addressed to Secretary Hull calling to his attention distinct remissness of duty by the Chungking Embassy and when you couple General ( Pat ) Hurley's bitter experiences with the same individuals subsequent to mine, can you come to any other conclusion that as early as 1943 there were those within the framework of the Department of State that were doing their level best to " Sell China down the River ".

Looking back upon the years that have intervened since my " nightmare " with the American Embassy at Chungking and the general apathy of the American public towards those who would undermine our form of government, I am not amazed at what has or has not taken place. The credulity of the American public passes all understanding for we have such a confidence in ourselves that we feel no matter what remissness take place we are and will continue to be strong enough to survive. Rome thought so too.

I offer no apology for the splendid group of Chinese engineers and administrators with whom I worked intimately in China and later in America. They command my admiration for their courage and stoicism. It is true that I found occasional mismanagement and a general disintegration within certain of the ministries but these were induced more because of the terrible vicissitudes of the war than an indifference of the leaders towards what was right and honorable. Considering the difference between the relative strengths of the respective governments, I felt at the time and will continue to feel that we displayed more of the elements of basic weaknesses toward graft, corruption, and deceit than the Chinese leaders I encountered. I was housed and fed by and with these men for one full year and worked with them intimately. If they had been as corrupt as you have been led to believe, why was it that my physical and mental condition was so deplorable upon my return to America? I ate their food and shared their shelter. It was miserable. It is fundamental that food, shelter, and clothing are essential to life. When one constantly plumbs the depths as did my friends and myself it follows inevitably that these men were not grafters - yet they were the leaders of China.

I wish to make the following charges against certain members of the Department of State during the years of 1943 and 1944:

1. They were purposely negligent in providing the amenities of life during my stay in China.
2. Every possible interposition was brought to bear to render my mission a failure until I had forcefully informed Secretary Hull of what I termed "remissness" but what I actually knew was diabolical planning.
3. Certain supplies reached the American Embassy in 1944 which were retained at the Embassy instead of passing them over to the Chinese who were leading the program to create a better understanding between America and China.
4. Towards the end of my stay there was more or less open hostility between the Embassy and those of us Americans who were trying to bring order out of chaos. Sneering and slothfulness seemed to be the order of the day. One can never imprison an embassy member for slothfulness or dilatory tactics -- and every member knew it.

I wish to make one more point as emphatic as possible: it takes a brave man to speak openly against the evils of others who are in a position to do him harm. I have that sort of bravery when I am convinced I am in the right. Perhaps I should not declare my temerity so boldly since I am teaching engineering in a small, but independent, college where my right to speak is not abridged and those dependent upon me will not suffer. Other Americans on independent missions similar to mine also suffered indignities of extreme bureaucratic dominance for they told me so most emphatically but ( and here is the crux of the matter ) they feel they dare not speak lest they and their dependents suffer.

What has Mr. Acheson to do with the foregoing? It cannot be denied that he was progressively Assistant Secretary of State and Under Secretary of State during 1943 to date. It may well have been he who read my two letters of protest addressed to Secretary Hull. Those in charge of the destiny of our country have a responsibility placed upon them.

I ask in all fairness, why was it that repeated denials emanated from the Department of State as early as 1943 concerning the true situation in the Department? Could it have been that Secretary Acheson was entirely unaware that some of us Americans possessing the welfare of our country had the facts that traitors were in our midst? If Mr. Acheson were unaware, he shows himself unfit for his important post and if he were aware, why did he not tell the American people the truth?

I stand ready to send you copies of my two letters to Secretary Hull if you desire them. And, further, I am ready to appear before any Congressional Committee for questioning. There resides within me an extreme reluctance at an exhibitionism in Washington but patriotism and a love of one's country should transcend personal wishes.

With kindest personal regards, I am

Very truly yours,

Paul B. Eaton

PURPOSE

To advise the Bureau is in receipt of a copy of a letter from the captioned individual in which she deplors the fact that the Director is opposed to divulging the contents of Loyalty files. Heisler advised copies of files were being forwarded to the editor of a metropolitan newspaper, to Senator McCarthy, and to President Truman.

BACKGROUND

In a letter addressed "To the Editor" dated April 25, 1950, at Reading, Pennsylvania, A. Rachel Heisler asks whether the willingness of the President to open Loyalty files and the opposition of the Director to such action is not a scheme to shield the President. She asks the real purpose of Loyalty files and urges that the contents thereof be revealed if they will verify McCarthy's charges. Heisler states "the FBI is, to all appearances, an agency that functions only after the horse is stolen. After the crime is committed, after our freedom is gone, the FBI will catch the culprit, and the files will spill what should have been disclosed, in the public interest, long ago." Heisler closes by referring to the President's radio speech of April 24, 1950, in which he invited every citizen to report information of a subversive nature to the Attorney General or the FBI, and points out the inconsistency of condemning McCarthy who has merely followed this suggestion.

Attached to the Bureau's copy of this letter was a type-written notation to the effect that copies were being forwarded to the editor of a metropolitan newspaper, to Senator McCarthy, and to President Truman.

Bureau files reflect Anna Rachel Heisler, born February 7, 1896, in Pennsylvania, made application for position of Bureau clerk on January 30, 1943. On the same date the interviewing official reported her as being "too mature in appearance and mannerisms ... temperance worker and is more interested in temperance than in anything else. Created impression of being somewhat fanatical on subject. Too domineering." (67-0-48-4398)

By letter dated August 18, 1944, Heisler wrote the Bureau as Temperance Superintendent of the Berks County Christian Endeavor of Pennsylvania concerning the availability of liquor to service men. (62-0-27456)

LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

DECLASSIFIED BY

4/12/78 DRS/DLC

Attached are copies of a letter dated May 4, 1950, addressed to the Bureau by Mr. Seth W. Richardson, Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board, with further reference to cases mentioned before the Tydings Subcommittee now being reviewed by the Board.

You will note that Mr. Richardson lists twenty-one cases and requests the Bureau to advise him "whether or not any and all investigative reports and pertinent information secured under authority of any Statute, Executive Order or any other authority whatsoever, relating to each of the above listed cases and relevant to questions of loyalty, has been furnished to the Loyalty Review Board." The twenty-one cases listed are identical to those listed in a similar letter received by the Department from Mr. Richardson.

In discussing the letter received by the Department last evening with an official of the Bureau you requested that we review the individual cases listed and advise you whether the cases were espionage investigations, whether they were under active investigation at the present time and the nature of the investigation conducted in each case in order that you might discuss the matter further with Mr. Dawson and Mr. Richardson.

In nine of the cases listed in the attached letter from Mr. Richardson we have already furnished the Board with material and reports where available and not already in the possession of the Civil Service Commission because the nine individuals in question, specifically, Victor M. Hunt, Joseph T. Jankowski, Mrs. Preston Keesling Lewis, Fred Warner Neal, Norman T. Hess, Isham William Perkins, Edward George Posniak, Max Abraham Volin and Helene Yhas, have been subjects of investigation or inquiry by the Bureau under the provisions of the Loyalty Order or Public Law 402, 80th Congress, since the effective date of Executive Order 9835. Copies of the letters directed to the Board concerning these nine individual cases have previously been furnished to you.

With respect to the remaining twelve individuals listed in Mr. Richardson's letter, which you will note include Mary Jane Keeney, Gustav G. Duran and Robert Talbott Miller, III, there is no indication that any of these twelve individuals are presently employed in the Executive Branch of the Government and none of them have been subjects of investigation or inquiry by the Bureau under the provisions of the Loyalty Order or such Public Laws as Public Law 402, 80th Congress (Voice of America Program), Public Law 472, 80th Congress (European Recovery Program) and the Atomic Energy Act, since the effective date of Executive Order 9835.

Peyton Ford called and stated that he had obtained an interpretation of the White House as to the President's statement to Senator Tydings with regard to making available the State Department's files; that the White House indicated that they only intend to make those files available which the Appropriations Committee had seen in 1949; that they are not making any FBI files available.

Mr. Ford stated that he and Donald Dawson had been designated to hold Senator Tydings in line on that point.

While talking with Peyton Ford on other matters, he advised Mr. Nichols and Mr. Ladd that he was going to assign Mike Horan from his office to review all of the State Department files which the President was making available to the Tydings' Committee prior to the time that they were made available to the Committee for the purpose of blocking out the names of any confidential informants or sources which should be protected in Bureau reports. u

He requested the Bureau to make an Agent available to work with Mike Horan on this project. u

We both advised him that we could not do this that this would be a very bad procedure; that the FBI should not be a party to reviewing the State Department's files prior to the time that they were made available to a Senate Committee by the President. He then suggested that the Bureau might go through its own files checking the material which has been sent to the State Department and checking to see if there are any names which the Bureau desired to be blocked out as undesirable for the Committee to see. u

We again pointed out that this would be impractical and unwise. u

It was suggested that in the event Mike Horan is going to make this review that at the time he is reviewing the reports that if he has any questions about any particular reports, that he then contact the Bureau. u

On May 9, 1950, when the writer talked to Mr. Peyton Ford concerning clarification of his penned notation on a memorandum to him, he advised that it was his understanding the following course of action was being taken with respect to making available State Department files to the Tydings Committee:

He said that with respect to ex-employees who were in McCarthy's list of 81, only the material which had been made available to the Appropriations Committee (either Senate or House) in 1947 would be made accessible to the Tydings Committee.

With respect to cases decided on loyalty grounds, either dismissal or retention, General Snow is to make available (apparently to read) a summary of the information and the action taken. If more specific details are requested by the Committee or if the veracity of the summary is questioned, then the State Department file will be made available.

With respect to employees against whom administrative action is taken, Mr. Ford said it was his understanding Mr. Donald Nicholson will make available a summary of information and action to the Committee. If anything is doubted or questioned, then the State Department file will be made available.

It might be noted that Mr. Ford indicated that he was scheduled to see Senator Tydings as of 2:00 or 2:30 P.M., May 9, 1950.

While talking with Peyton Ford on other matters, he exhibited to Mr. Nichols and Mr. Ladd a letter addressed to the Attorney General from Senator Tydings, which dealt with making available by the President to the Tydings' Committee the files of the State Department. U

Senator Tydings was requesting assurance from the Attorney General that all loyalty reports on those 81 cases had been sent by the FBI to the State Department in order that the Committee might be assured that they were obtaining not only information from the State Department but all that which the FBI had furnished to the State Department. U

Mr. Ford wanted the Bureau to take this letter and to suggest how it might be answered. U

We pointed out to Mr. Ford that under the provisions set up in the Loyalty Program, the Bureau does not send reports direct to the employing agency but rather sends all copies to the Civil Service Commission, who in turn transmit the reports to the appropriate employing agency; that, therefore, all the Bureau could say was that the loyalty reports had been sent to the Civil Service Commission. The Bureau obviously could not certify that the Commission had sent them all to the State Department. U

In light of this, it was suggested that the Civil Service Commission would be the proper agency to answer Senator Tydings' letter. U

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : Mr. Peyton Ford

DATE: May 5, 1950

FROM : Director, FBI

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

SUBJECT: LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Reference is made to your telephone conversation last evening with a Bureau official in which you advised him that you had just learned the President is going to permit the Tydings Subcommittee to call at the White House and review the State Department loyalty files on the 81 individuals who have been mentioned by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy.

You indicated that you were sure the Attorney General had no advance information regarding this matter and in view of this development you suggested that the Bureau not send any more material or data to Mr. Seth Richardson, Chairman, Loyalty Review Board, in connection with the Board's review of the 81 cases since you desire to determine from the White House what position is being adopted with respect to these cases.

You, of course, are aware that the Bureau already has furnished to the Board material on some of the 81 cases. It is my understanding of your instructions, as set forth above, that the Bureau should immediately stop sending to the Board material on any of the cases identified before the Tydings Subcommittee and presently being reviewed by the Board except in those instances where we are conducting active full field or supplemental investigations under the provisions of Executive Order 9835 regarding persons on Mr. Richardson's list who presently are employed in the Executive Branch. In such instances, the provisions of Executive Order 9835 itself would require that we furnish to the Civil Service Commission the reports of such investigations upon completion.

If the Bureau's understanding of your instructions in this regard is not correct, I would appreciate receiving your immediate advice.

Reference is made to the attached memorandum from the Director to Mr. Peyton Ford dated May 5, 1950, wherein Mr. Ford has made the notation: "Continue as marked -- I would, however, ___ to continue to furnish the other material as per our conversation until Dawson and see Seth R." u

Pursuant to your instructions, I first contacted [redacted] of Mr. Ford, to determine the meaning of the above-quoted notation. She, in turn, referred me to Mr. Ford and he stated that he could see how we were possibly confused and he stated further that he meant the (Bureau should continue to supply information to the Loyalty Review Board in the same manner as he previously had indicated,) until such time as he, Mr. Ford, talk to Mr. Dawson at the White House and with Mr. Seth Richardson. He said, in other words, the Bureau should furnish loyalty reports and information pertaining to the loyalty of present employees of the State Department, but that if a request for a security type report were received, such a report should not be given to Mr. Richardson at this time. If there are any changes as a result of his conference with Mr. Dawson and Mr. Richardson, he will advise the Bureau. u

Upon my departure from Mr. Ford's office, I specifically stated that I understood that the Bureau should continue to operate on the same basis with the Loyalty Review Board as was previously agreed to by Mr. Ford and that if a request were received for a security type report, that it would not be furnished to the Loyalty Review Board. He stated that this was correct. u

ACTION:

Inasmuch as it was necessary to obtain clarification as to Mr. Ford's penned notation set forth on the Bureau's memorandum of May 5, 1950, it is believed that this should be set forth in writing to Mr. Ford. In this regard it is suggested that this confirmation be handled by the attached memorandum of May 9, 1950, directed to Mr. Peyton Ford, wherein reference is made to a request by Mr. Seth Richardson for a copy of an FBI report on Robert Talbott Miller, III, who, it will be noted, is no longer with the State Department, but who was included in the list of 81 cases referred to by Senator McCarthy. This request of Mr. Richardson is a request for a security type report. The request, consequently, falls within the category which at the present time is not to be complied with.

Accordingly, it is recommended that the attached memorandum serve two purposes: (1) To confirm the clarification of the above-referred-to notation and (2) to refer to Mr. Ford the request of Seth Richardson.

Honorable Millard E. Tydings,
U. S. Senator from Maryland.
Washington D. C.

FIUBAM

Dear Senator:

Would you, or any of your committee, be interested in knowing what the reaction of many of the American citizens are to the debacle which you are now conducting?

Have you given proper consideration to the meaning of the Red, White, and Blue arrangement in the flag of our country?

Do you realize that you gentlemen can and do sit over there in Washington, D. C. and legislate human lives into battle, for the protection and the perpetuation of our freedom and liberty?

Do you believe that it has a tendency to add to the patriotic and moral fiber of our citizenry to see this greatest of all deliberative bodies--the United States Senate--being now prostituted down into the muck and mire of stupidity, for the purpose of promoting the personal political standing of certain people, who are too steeped in their asinine proclivities, to comprehend the fact that their own actions at this particular time is far worse in its influence against Democracy, than the worst individual Communist which you may scare up?

Can't you see, or do you care, that our Secretary of State is right now sweating out his very life's blood trying to stop Communism where it is, and not allowing it to spread all over the world? How may he do this after Joe McCarthy, Sherry, Stassen, Dewey, Taft, and now of all people Herbert C. Hoover? act in such unstatesmen like manner as to reflect discredit, and dishonor upon our State Department? Can they be PATRIOTIC? Are these men placing their COUNTRY ahead of their own personal ambition? The men who died in the last two wars, and those who are permanently maimed, helplessly crippled, and blind forever, had no choice but to sacrifice all this for their country--only to have their noble effort thrown to the dogs!

Do you think that this give me any pleasure to have to write to you in this vein? My heart is filled with sadness at the thoughtlessness of men who should be great, and noble! Oh! that my life could only be sacrificed, in order to erase away all the stain which Senator Joe McCarthy has smeared upon the great escutcheon of liberty and freedom!

Your committee are prolonging this agony, and most foolish crucifixion of our public servants, to the point where there is now a cry going up for the limitation and the restriction of congressional liberty of action! Can't you see that you are destroying your own usefulness, and therein striking the worst blow at our freedom that has been handed out during our lifetime?

These people are aiding and abetting Communism in our country, when they know of any person or act which will be detrimental to our well being and safety, and they commit treason when they do not report such actions to the Department of Justice for proper investigation and prosecution! In addition to being most incompetent to bring about any desirable results, your committee's actions enrage to the high heavens.

Very truly yours,

Harvey Miller

Reference is made to your memorandum of May 10, 1950, attaching a copy of a list of individuals identified from Senator McCarthy's speech before the Senate on February 20, 1950, whose names were also included on the "subpoena" list received from the Senate Subcommittee (S. Res. 231).

In accordance with the instructions set forth in your memorandum, there is attached a list of the individuals, as they appear on the "subpoena" list which you furnished to us, setting forth the material you requested with respect to each individual identified. In those instances where the individual involved has been the subject of investigation by the Bureau under the Loyalty Order, Public Laws 402 and 472, both covering (cases of Communist and European Recovery Programs) or the Atomic Energy Act, photostatic copies of Bureau transmittal letters showing the reports transmitted or the action taken are furnished as exhibits.

You will note that the attachment is divided into Parts I, II and III. Part I pertains to the individuals identified on the "subpoena" list. In Part II there is furnished for your information material relating to additional individuals not identified on the "subpoena" list but who were identified on a list furnished to the Bureau by the Honorable Seth W. Richardson, Chairman, Loyalty Review Board, in a letter dated April 5, 1950. The list furnished by Mr. Richardson under date of April 5, 1950, apparently is being used by the Loyalty Review Board as the basis for its review of the 81 cases in question. In Part III of the attachment there are furnished the exhibits consisting of Bureau transmittal letters described in Parts I and II.

Mike Horan advised me confidentially that he had reviewed the files at the State Department which are to be made available to the Senate Committee strictly from the standpoint of seeing that there was nothing in the files which would be harmful to the Department of Justice and which did not belong in the files. He stated that he wanted to pass on the following information with reference to Bureau information he observed therein.

Horan stated in the Loyalty file on Gertrude Cameron he noted a copy of a long letter from the Bureau to Seth Richardson, Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board, dated April 21, 1950. One paragraph of this letter furnished for Richardson's confidential information the identity of one of our confidential informants. Horan stated that he suggested to the State Department that they block out this paragraph as it had no pertinency and might be harmful. Also he noted in the Gertrude Cameron case a memorandum from Arch K. Jean to Mr. Nicholson of the State Department dated October 21, 1948, saying something to the effect that the FBI did not make as complete an investigation as was possible on Mrs. Cameron's husband. Horan stated there was no indication as to why the investigation on Mrs. Cameron's husband was pertinent in this file. It is noted that the investigation was conducted on Mrs. Cameron and the only references made to her husband were incidental or were related to her activities.

Horan also advised that in the file involving J. Robinson, he noted pencil notations on the Bureau report which was written by Charles A. May at Washington, D. C., in April, 1944. These pencil notations identified the various informants in the report. According to Horan, there was no information as to how the informants had been identified by the State Department. Horan stated he noted there were two original copies of this report in file and one photostat. The photostat did not have any notations on it. Horan stated he suggested to the State Department that they remove the two white copies of the report which contain notations and leave only the photostatic copy in the file.

MR. LADD

On May 12 Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. called to see me stating he desired to discuss with me informally and confidentially the matters which had developed in connection with the review of the State Department files in the 81 cases being considered by the Tydings Committee.

He stated that he and other members of the Committee were now reviewing these files at the White House and after several days of such review he did not know whether he was stupid or ignorant but he was terribly confused about the contents of the files in that the files contained no recommendations and in cases where Loyalty hearings had not been held by the State Department there was no indication as to why they had not been held. He stated furthermore that in some instances there was no indication that various leads had been followed out which appeared in the files and he was wondering whether I could give him my reaction upon the same.

I told the Senator that of course I had not seen the files and was not therefore in a position to speak authoritatively about them. I stated that in so far as the FBI reports were concerned obviously we reached no conclusion because that was not our function, but that we did endeavor to follow out every lead which we developed and also endeavored to indicate the reliability of the source from which we obtained the information. The Senator stated he appreciated completely the position of the Bureau in the matter but he had been confused about the files as a whole.

EXECUTIVE BRANCH, U. S. GOVERNMENT
(NAMES IDENTIFIED BY SENATOR McCARTHY)
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

PURPOSE: To respond to your inquiry as to whether we are sound in not having mentioned, in our memorandum to Peyton Ford of May 15, 1950, incidental references concerning an individual named by Senator McCarthy which appeared in collateral reports furnished to the State Department on other people and in not mentioning confidential memoranda furnished to the State Department in connection with the Gregory case and investigation concerning underground Communist activities of government employees.

BACKGROUND: My memorandum of May 15, 1950, attached for approval a memorandum to Mr. Peyton Ford furnishing to the Department, in accordance with his request, information regarding material sent to the Civil Service Commission and/or the State Department regarding the 81 individuals identified by Senator McCarthy. This material was furnished in connection with a request made by Senator Tydings that the Attorney General furnish him with a letter regarding the material transmitted by the Bureau concerning these 81 cases.

On page two of my memorandum of May 15, 1950, it was pointed out that in connection with the review of our files, in addition to reports and memoranda specifically relating to individuals identified on the Tydings "subpoena" list, it was found that collateral references to these individuals were located in other reports and communications transmitted to the Department of State in some instances; that as a general rule these incidental references had not been included in the memorandum to the Department; that in the past confidential memoranda have been supplied to the State Department in connection with the "Gregory" case, as well as investigation concerning underground Communist activities of government employees, and that in these memoranda numerous individuals were involved and information from highly confidential sources was included; that in such memoranda, where one of the persons named by McCarthy is mentioned collaterally, we had not listed the Gregory summary or the summary on the underground Communist activities of government employees since it was felt to do so would undoubtedly cause the Subcommittee to request copies of the confidential memoranda.

With respect to this particular paragraph in my memorandum of May 15, 1950, you noted, "Are we absolutely sound in marked paragraph on P. 2. I want nothing which is material withheld."

It is felt that we are entirely sound in not having mentioned incidental references appearing in reports or memoranda given to the State Department concerning an entirely different person or subject. An example of the type of incidental references referred to would be a case where we have conducted a loyalty of Voice of America investigation on an employee of the State Department who perhaps associated with one of the 81 individuals named on the "subpoena" list. Naturally, the report furnished to the State Department would mention this association and thereafter set forth briefly information concerning the associate, who happens to be one of the 81 individuals. The substance of any incidental references of this nature appearing in collateral reports on other individuals would, of course, be included in the loyalty or Voice of America investigative reports pertaining to the individual who appears on the "subpoena" list. Consequently, it was felt that listing collateral references of this nature would be a duplication and not serve any particular purpose.

With regard to summary memoranda furnished to the State Department in connection with the Gregory case and investigation concerning underground Communist activities of government employees, the general substance of the information appearing in such summary memoranda would be reflected in the loyalty or Voice of America investigative reports furnished to the Civil Service Commission where the individual in question has been the subject of an investigation of this type. With this in mind, it was again felt that it would be duplication to list such summary memoranda and, further, that it would be extremely dangerous to list them since, if we did so, the Tydings Subcommittee would undoubtedly demand that they be produced and they, of course, contain information concerning numerous individuals not mentioned on the Tydings "subpoena" list and also contain information from highly confidential sources.

As you know, Robert Talbott Miller, III, was one of the subjects in the Gregory case. Miller resigned from the State Department on December 13, 1946, prior to the time the Loyalty Order was promulgated. He, of course, has not been the subject of a loyalty investigation or investigation under the Voice of America Program, the European Recovery Program, or the Atomic Energy Act. At the present time he is the subject of a pending Internal Security - R; Registration Act investigation by the Bureau. Miller is one of the individuals named on the "subpoena" list and with respect to him we pointed out in our memorandum of May 15, 1950, to the Department that he had not been investigated under Executive Order 9835; that he had resigned from the State Department on December 13, 1946; that Civil Service Commission records fail to reflect any employment of Miller in the Executive Branch subsequent to his termination with the State Department. It was pointed out that Miller was investigated by the Bureau in 1944 and 1945 under the provisions of the Hatch Act and we specifically mentioned each report in the Hatch Act investigation which has been furnished to the Department of State. We also specifically referred to memoranda dated February 19, 1946, and July 15, 1946, addressed to Frederick B. Lyon of the State Department under the caption "Robert T. Miller, III." Our files also reflect that letters were addressed to the Secretary of State on February 25, 1946, and November 25, 1946, enclosing summaries of the Gregory subjects, including Miller. We did not mention these letters of February 25, 1946, and November 25, 1946, since we felt that it was dangerous to do so. If they had been mentioned, the Tydings Subcommittee would in all probability demand that they be produced and naturally, in addition to referring to Miller, the summaries referred to other subjects of the Gregory case who were not included among the individuals presently being considered by the Tydings Subcommittee. Furthermore, they contain information obtained by the Bureau from highly confidential sources.

ACTION: None. This is for your information.

There is attached hereto copy of a list of 81 individuals identified from Senator McCarthy's speech before the Senate on February 20, 1950, whose names were also included on the "subpoena" list received from the Senate Subcommittee (S. Res. 231). u

The Attorney General wishes to prepare at the earliest possible moment a letter to Senator Tydings listing, first, those individuals in the group on whom loyalty investigations were conducted, and attaching copies of the Bureau's transmittal letters or memoranda to the Civil Service Commission. It is understood that these transmittal letters identify the investigative reports making up the report of full field loyalty investigations. u

In this group there will undoubtedly be cases in which a loyalty investigation was never instituted because of the absence of derogatory information in the Bureau's files or because it was learned prior to the institution of the investigation that the individual had left the service. Also, there may be cases in which investigations were instituted but later discontinued because the individuals left the service during the course of the investigation. It is desired to list these individuals with an indication of what transpired in this respect. u

There may have been, with respect to some of these individuals, memoranda forwarded to the State Department prior to, during, or following the loyalty investigation, or in cases in which no loyalty investigation has been made. It is desired to make appropriate identifying reference to any such memoranda. u

It is not necessary in this connection to include any material submitted subsequent to February 20, 1950, which date may be accepted as the cut-off date in the search for materials referred to.

List of 81 individuals identified from Senator McCarthy's speech of February 20, 1950 whose names were also included on the "Subpoena" list received from the Senate Subcommittee (S. Res. 231)

In his speech before the Senate on February 20, 1950, Senator McCarthy claimed 81 cases but gave identifiable information on only 71 individuals. Three numbers (15, 27, and 59) he did not discuss, one case he discussed under two numbers (77 and 9) and six cases he grouped under a general description but gave no information that identified the individuals.

In Senator McCarthy's "Subpoena" list he omitted two of the individuals he identified on the Senate floor (numbers 28 and 72). Two individuals named on the subpoena as Jasse T. Ford (No. 76) and John T. Washburn (No. 80) are obvious errors and are intended to refer to Joseph Vasso and John Washburn, who were identified in the Senate speech. The names which were added to the Subpoena list but were not identified on the Senate floor have not been included.

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover
Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation
Peyton Ford
The Assistant to the Attorney General

May 10, 1950

There is attached hereto copy of a list of 81 individuals identified from Senator McCarthy's speech before the Senate on February 20, 1950, whose names were also included on the "subpoena" list received from the Senate Subcommittee (S. Res. 231).

The Attorney General wishes to prepare at the earliest possible moment a letter to Senator Tydings listing, first, those individuals in the group on whom loyalty investigations were conducted, and attaching copies of the Bureau's transmittal letters or memoranda to the Civil Service Commission. It is understood that these transmittal letters identify the investigative reports making up the report of full field loyalty investigations.

In this group there will undoubtedly be cases in which a loyalty investigation was never instituted because of the absence of derogatory information in the Bureau's files or because it was learned prior to the institution of the investigation that the individual had left the service. Also, there may be cases in which investigations were instituted but later discontinued because the individuals left the service during the course of the investigation. It is desired to list these individuals with an indication of what transpired in this respect.

There may have been, with respect to some of these individuals, memoranda forwarded to the State Department prior to, during, or following the loyalty investigation, or in cases in which no loyalty investigation has been made. It is desired to make appropriate identifying reference to any such memoranda.

It is not necessary in this connection to include any material submitted subsequent to February 20, 1950, which date may be accepted as the cut-off date in the search for materials referred to.

SUBJECT: INVESTIGATION BY SENATOR TYDINGS' COMMITTEE OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT LOYALTY CASES

Clive Palmer called at my office at 5:40 PM tonight and left the attached memorandum listing the names of the eighty-one individuals named in the subpoena by Senator McCarthy.

Mr. Palmer stated that Peyton Ford had been in conference all afternoon with Senator Tydings; that Senator Tydings insists that he wants a letter signed by the Attorney General listing the dates of reports on loyalty cases sent to the Civil Service Commission. Apparently they are fearful that the State Department's files have been stripped. Therefore, Mr. Palmer stated that the Attorney General and the White House had instructed that the Bureau prepare a memorandum to the Attorney General sending over a copy of the letter of transmittal in each instance where loyalty reports were transmitted to the Civil Service Commission inasmuch as this cover letter will show the itemization of the reports.

Another paragraph should indicate that the individuals listed thereunder were the subject of a preliminary loyalty investigation which was discontinued when it was learned that the employee had left the Government service and, therefore, no reports were sent to the Civil Service Commission.

A third paragraph should list any cases where no investigation was conducted because no derogatory information was available.

He also advised that Senator Tydings suggested that a cut-off date of February 20, 1950, be set and that nothing be listed thereafter.

I told Mr. Palmer that the Bureau would not prepare any such list until we got a memorandum from the Department in writing listing exactly what it was that the Department wanted. He promised to have this prepared and sent to the Bureau tomorrow, May 10, 1950.

In the meantime, I would suggest that we start working on this and would suggest that a photostatic copy of the letter of transmittal to the Civil Service Commission be prepared, which will only show the name of the Agent preparing the report, the date of the report and the office where made.

Also, I would suggest that the Bureau not use a cut-off date but include everything up to the present time. The Department can use whatever cut-off date they want after they get the Bureau's Memorandum.

PURPOSE

To recommend that the attached memorandum concerning the individuals identified by Senator McCarthy before the Tydings Subcommittee be forwarded to Mr. Peyton Ford pursuant to his request to be advised regarding the dissemination of information in the Bureau's files and the results of investigations regarding these persons to the Department of State.

BACKGROUND

You will recall that in my memorandum of May 9, 1950, which is attached, I pointed out that Clive Palmer had called at my office on the evening of May 9, 1950, and left a memorandum listing the names of the 81 individuals named in the subpoena of the Senate Subcommittee. Mr. Palmer advised that Peyton Ford had been in conference all afternoon with Senator Tydings; that Senator Tydings insists that he wants a letter signed by the Attorney General listing the dates of reports on loyalty cases sent to the Civil Service Commission, as well as information on the individuals who were the subjects of preliminary inquiry loyalty investigations, but which were discontinued upon receipt of information that the employees had left the government service. Palmer further indicated Tydings also desired any cases where no investigation was conducted because no derogatory information was available be listed. According to Palmer, Senator Tydings suggested that a cutoff date of February 20, 1950, be set and that nothing be listed thereafter. Palmer was advised by me that the Bureau would not prepare any such list until we received a memorandum from the Department in writing listing exactly what it was that the Department wanted. It was also suggested that the Bureau not use a cutoff date, but include everything up to the present time. You noted on my memorandum, "I concur."

The attached memorandum dated May 10, 1950, from Peyton Ford requests the following specific information concerning the names included on the "subpoena" list received from the Senate Subcommittee: The Attorney General wishes to prepare a letter to Senator Tydings listing first those individuals in the group on whom loyalty investigations were conducted, attaching copies of the Bureau's transmittal letters or memoranda to the Civil Service Commission; further, in cases where a loyalty investigation was never instituted because of the absence of derogatory information in the Bureau's files or because it was learned prior to the institution of the investigation that the individual had left the service, or where investigations were instituted but later discontinued because the individuals left the service, information is desired regarding what transpired in this respect. Ford further pointed out that there may have been, with regard to some of these individuals, memoranda forwarded to the State Department prior to, during, or following the loyalty investigation, or in cases in which no loyalty investigation has been made. He stated it is desired that the Bureau make appropriate identifying reference to any such memoranda. Peyton Ford, as indicated above, stated it is not necessary to include any material submitted subsequent to February 20, 1950.

All references in the Bureau's files have been reviewed concerning the names set forth on the "subpoena" list furnished by Clive Palmer, together with other individuals who have been identified by Senator McCarthy, and the information requested by the Department has been set forth in the attached memorandum dated May 15, 1950, to Mr. Peyton Ford.

You will observe that the material being furnished to the Department is divided into Parts I, II, and III. Part I pertains to the individuals identified on the "subpoena" list. In Part II, there is furnished for the Department's information material relating to additional individuals not identified on the "subpoena" list, but who were identified previously by Seth W. Richardson in a letter to the Bureau dated April 5, 1950. Part III consists of photostatic copies of transmittal letters requested by the Department.

In connection with the review of our files, in addition to reports and memoranda specifically relating to the individuals identified on the subpoena list, it was found that collateral references to these individuals were located in other reports and communications transmitted to the Department of State in some instances. As a general rule, these incidental references have not been included in the memorandum to the Department. In this same connection, you will recall that in the past confidential memoranda have been supplied to the Department of State in connection with the Gregory case, as well as investigation concerning underground Communist activities of government employees. In these memoranda in many instances, numerous individuals were involved and information from highly confidential sources was included. In such memoranda, where one of the persons named by McCarthy is mentioned collaterally, we have not listed the Gregory summary or the summary on the underground Communist activities of government employees, since it is felt that to do so would undoubtedly cause the Subcommittee to request copies of the confidential memoranda which at the time were not specifically given to the State Department regarding the individuals concerned with this request.

The review of the references on the individuals in question also revealed in various instances oral information had been furnished to the Department of State. This oral dissemination of information has been noted in the memorandum to Peyton Ford inasmuch as it may have been made a matter of record in the files of the State Department. For us to delete such information might create an erroneous impression that the Bureau is withholding material.

ACTION

That the attached memorandum be forwarded to Mr. Peyton Ford.

Communicated to State Department

PURPOSE: To respond to your inquiry as to whether we are sound in not having mentioned, in our memorandum to Peyton Ford of May 15, 1950, incidental references concerning an individual named by Senator McCarthy which appeared in collateral reports furnished to the State Department on other people and in not mentioning confidential memoranda furnished to the State Department in connection with the Gregory case and investigation concerning underground Communist activities of government employees.

BACKGROUND: My memorandum of May 15, 1950, attached for approval a memorandum to Mr. Peyton Ford furnishing to the Department, in accordance with his request, information regarding material sent to the Civil Service Commission and/or the State Department regarding the 81 individuals identified by Senator McCarthy. This material was furnished in connection with a request made by Senator Tydings that the Attorney General furnish him with a letter regarding the material transmitted by the Bureau concerning these 81 cases.

On page two of my memorandum of May 15, 1950, it was pointed out that in connection with the review of our files, in addition to reports and memoranda specifically relating to individuals identified on the Tydings "subpoena" list, it was found that collateral references to these individuals were located in other reports and communications transmitted to the Department of State in some instances; that as a general rule these incidental references had not been included in the memorandum to the Department; that in the past confidential memoranda have been supplied to the State Department in connection with the "Gregory" case, as well as investigation concerning underground Communist activities of government employees, and that in these memoranda numerous individuals were involved and information from highly confidential sources was included; that in such memoranda, where one of the persons named by McCarthy is mentioned collaterally, we had not listed the Gregory summary or the summary on the underground Communist activities of government employees since it was felt to do so would undoubtedly cause the Subcommittee to request copies of the confidential memoranda.

With respect to this particular paragraph in my memorandum of May 15, 1950, you noted, "Are we absolutely sound in marked paragraph on P. 2. I want nothing which is material withheld."

It is felt that we are entirely sound in not having mentioned incidental references appearing in reports or memoranda given to the State Department concerning an entirely different person or subject. An example of the type of incidental references referred to would be a case where we have conducted a loyalty or Voice of America investigation on an employee of the State Department who perhaps associated with one of the 81 individuals named on the "subpoena" list. Naturally, the report furnished to the State Department would mention this association and thereafter set forth briefly information concerning the associate, who happens to be one of the 81 individuals. The substance of any incidental references of this nature appearing in collateral reports on other individuals would, of course, be included in the loyalty or Voice of America investigative reports pertaining to the individual who appears on the "subpoena" list. Consequently, it was felt that listing collateral references of this nature would be a duplication and not serve any particular purpose.

With regard to summary memoranda furnished to the State Department in connection with the Gregory case and investigation concerning underground Communist activities of government employees, the general substance of the information appearing in such summary memoranda would be reflected in the loyalty or Voice of America investigative reports furnished to the Civil Service Commission where the individual in question has been the subject of an investigation of this type. With this in mind, it was again felt that it would be duplication to list such summary memoranda and, further, that it would be extremely dangerous to list them since, if we did so, the Tydings Subcommittee would undoubtedly demand that they be produced and they, of course, contain information concerning numerous individuals not mentioned on the Tydings "subpoena" list and also contain information from highly confidential sources.

As you know, Robert Talbot ~~Miller~~, III, was one of the subjects in the Gregory case. Miller resigned from the State Department on December 13, 1946, prior to the time the Loyalty Order was promulgated. He, of course, has not been the subject of a loyalty investigation or investigation under the Voice of America Program, the European Recovery Program, or the Atomic Energy Act. At the present time he is the subject of a pending Internal Security - R; Registration Act investigation by the Bureau. Miller is one of the individuals named on the "subpoena" list and with respect to him we pointed out in our memorandum of May 15, 1950, to the Department that he had not been investigated under Executive Order 9835; that he had resigned from the State Department on December 13, 1946; that Civil Service Commission records fail to reflect any employment of Miller in the Executive Branch subsequent to his termination with the State Department. It was pointed out that Miller was investigated by the Bureau in 1944 and 1945 under the provisions of the Hatch Act and we specifically mentioned each report in the Hatch Act investigation which has been furnished to the Department of State. We also specifically referred to memoranda dated February 19, 1946, and July 15, 1946, addressed to Frederick B. Lyon of the State Department under the caption "Robert T. Miller, III." Our files also reflect that letters were addressed to the Secretary of State on February 25, 1946, and November 25, 1946, enclosing summaries of the Gregory subjects, including Miller. We did not mention these letters of February 25, 1946, and November 25, 1946, since we felt that it was dangerous to do so. If they had been mentioned, the Tydings Subcommittee would in all probability demand that they be produced and naturally, in addition to referring to Miller, the summaries referred to other subjects of the Gregory case who were not included among the individuals presently being considered by the Tydings Subcommittee. Furthermore, they contain information obtained by the Bureau from highly confidential sources.

ACTION: None. This is for your information.

SENATOR McCARTHY'S TEMPEST IN A TEAPOT

By Leon D'Argent.

F. I. [unclear]

For years, the Republican party aims to discredit the Truman Administration and uses every possible means to drag it into dirt and filth.

Now, this time a young politician, Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin, is using the opportunity of creating a big to-do by claiming incompetence of the State Department. The senator insists this Government agency is infiltrated with Communists, fellow-travellers and people sympathizing with the Russians and their cause, spying in this country for the Reds. He seems unaware of the services he is rendering the opponents of our country with these claims. If we are to follow his conclusions, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt must also have been a Communist, co-operating with the Russians. By his actions he was successful in exterminating the Hitler clique and in winning the war. In politics it is often of greater advantage to keep silence than to speak up.

MORAL: MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

McCarthy obviously was interested in getting in the limelight and in showing his efficiency. He consequently acted according to the principle: The end justifies the means. The public should be interested in learning the sources of McCarthy's information. How much did he pay for it and what promises did he make in return? Maybe his informants are recruited from the ranks of former Russian agents, conspirators against our country, like Whitaker Chambers, Mrs. Gerhard Eisler, etc. People like them enjoy their freedom, are at liberty now, unpunished for their actions. They might act tomorrow again, provided the pay is alright. It's a known fact that most criminals revert to their past crimes. Were honest politicians to serve our country honestly, with no business-like dealings behind the scenes, the world would be free of Al Capones, Joe Fischettis (alias Fischer), etc. and there would be less murders committed.

121-23278-170X

ENCLOSURE

*Allen
[unclear]*

13-50

It's also doubtful whether a McCarthy, unprotected by Congressional immunity would dare to stand up against decent public servants and to slander publicly. Politics is often a dirty business.

MORAL: A MAN IS KNOWN BY THE COMPANY HE KEEPS.

There is no use in criticising. To improve things, that's what counts. If there are dishonest characters, ready to betray our country, our beloved country, then the most severe punishment should be meted out to them. If an Alger Hiss is really guilty he should be punished according to law, with a long prison term, followed by deportation to the country of his heels, which remains has more to offer him than the U.S.

There is also the case of Miss Coplon, worse than the others. She seems to be a child of Russian parentage, whose ancestors driven from Russia not so long ago, found refuge in the United States, liberty and freedom. MORAL: ONE IS TAUGHT WISDOM BY ADVERSITY.

One thing is certain: We are at war again. This time at war with an enemy more dangerous than Hitler. Hitler stated all his future plans and the conception of his world openly in "Mein Kampf". Stalin, however, is acting behind the mask of an honest man, having nothing else in mind but peace. The war now going on and forced upon us only wears a different label: "Cold War". We are not suffering any casualties right now but it might happen any day. Should we lose this war, then everything will be lost for us and we will have ceased to exist as a free nation. This condition now going on for years, is abnormal, extra-ordinary. War conditions require special conditions and measures to be taken. Consider the fact that we are a democratic country, with laws and regulations. Consider the "Lend-Lease" law which helped our allies to fight Hitler until we were ready to step in with actions of our own. If there is a war on, war laws should govern us and, as long as this war lasts, we are to defend ourselves. No obvious damage has been done yet but who knows what we may expect

Our sole and biggest enemy for the time being is Communism. The Communist party should be abolished "for the duration" of the present war or at least for such a period until we return to normal conditions. Membership in its party and public speeches and articles favoring its aims should be forbidden; punishment handed out for those who break the law. We all should strive to hinder the existence of a "Fifth column". We should aim to build up a propaganda department which would prevent decent and loyal citizens from being misguided by lies and false promises. For them Russia would never be the promised land. If Russia were the paradise, praised by its agents in this country, we would be permitted to glimpse behind the curtain and to see for ourselves what is going on there. If Russia is paradise then why keep its people forcibly behind its borders, why prevent them from leaving the paradise even for a short while? MORAL: FORESIGHT IS THE MOTHER OF ALL WISDOM.

Finally, the writer has a suggestion to make: In order to remind all Americans in what golden country we are living, let us sing our National Anthem before the curtain rises in a theatre, before a concert, before every radio music hour and before every television show. I personally would give away all of Europe and Asia for staying in this country. There is nothing better than America. GOD BLESS AMERICA.

Reference is made to the memorandum from Mr. Keay to you dated May 16, 1950 concerning Mr. Horan's observation of the State Department files which are to be made available to the Tydings Committee. It is noted Mr. Horan mentioned the files on Gertrude Cameron and Jay Robinson.

RE: JAY ROBINSON

Mr. Horan indicated he noted pencilled notations identifying informants in a Bureau report written by Charles A. May at Washington, D. C. in April 1944. He further advised the file contained two original copies of the report, one photostat and that the photostat did not have any notations on it.

In this connection Bufiles disclose a Loyalty investigation was instituted concerning Robinson on 5-28-48, however the investigation was discontinued and CSC so advised by letter dated 6-11-48 when it was ascertained Robinson resigned from the State Department on 4-16-48. No LGE reports were disseminated. (121-9838)

In regard to the Hatch Act investigation concerning Robinson it is noted the report of SA Charles A. May, dated 4-22-44 at Washington, D. C., was sent to the Interdepartmental Committee on Employee Investigations on 5-11-44. In addition the file shows a copy of the report was also sent to the State Department on 8-25-47 for information purposes. It is noted the original copy of the report by SA May does not contain any pencilled notations identifying the informants and the file does not reflect the Department of State was ever advised of the identity of the informants. (100-69918-10)

RE: GERTRUDE CAMERON

Mr. Horan referred to a copy of a letter from the Bureau to Mr. Seth W. Richardson, dated April 21, 1950, in which one paragraph set forth the identity of a confidential informant (Mrs. Roswell Skeel, Jr.).

With respect to this observation the letter to Mr. Richardson pointed out that during a Hatch Act investigation concerning Cameron a prominent citizen and personal acquaintance of Mrs. Cameron advised another government agency that the employee "became so wrapped up in Communism" that the informant had to sever their acquaintanceship. The informant also provided information of a disloyal nature regarding employee's husband. The Hatch Act investigation further revealed the informant was reinterviewed by the government agency at which time she modified her previous statements and advised she did not mean "wrapped up in Communism." The informant was ascertained to be Mrs. Roswell Skeel, Jr., former employer of Mrs. Cameron.

During the LGE investigation the modified statement by Mrs. Skeel received from the above-mentioned government agency was reported and her name was not concealed. It is also noted Mrs. Skeel did not have any additional information to offer and her identity was not concealed when she was reinterviewed during the LGE investigation. Because Senator McCarthy stated in his case No. 55, later identified as Cameron, that a former employer described her as "wrapped up" in Communism and did not refer to the reinterview with her former employer in which the allegation was modified, it was considered advisable to point out to Mr. Richardson that Mrs. Skeel was the informant or former employer inasmuch as she had been interviewed and plainly identified during the LGE investigation.

Mr. Horan also mentioned that he observed a memorandum in the State Department file on Cameron dated 10-21-48 indicating the FBI did not make as complete an investigation as was possible on Mrs. Cameron's husband. Mr. Horan added there was no indication as to why the investigation on Mrs. Cameron's husband was pertinent in the file.

A review of the LGE investigation reflects the Philadelphia Office submitted a 3 page report devoted principally to the background of the employee's husband. Other reports in the investigation also set forth pertinent information concerning her husband when it applied to the employee. The report from the WFO dated 5-15-48 stated the Camerons were voluntarily separated because of physical disabilities received by Mr. Cameron during World War II. A review of the file indicates an appropriate investigation was conducted and the Department of State has not requested any supplemental investigations. (121-3702)

PURPOSE

To answer your inquiry concerning the advisability of formally requesting of Senator Millard Tydings the transcript of testimony presented before the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

BACKGROUND

On May 12, 1950, Mr. Ed Morgan, counsel for the Tydings Committee inquired as to whether we had a copy of the transcript of hearings before the committee. When informed that such a transcript had not been made available to us, Mr. Morgan stated that Senator Tydings wanted to be sure that the FBI was being furnished all information in this matter and that he would be glad to make a copy of the transcript available to us. He said that there were only a limited number of copies of the transcript, but that he would make a copy available to us as soon as possible. Informed of Mr. Morgan's offer by memorandum from Mr. A. H. Belmont to Mr. D. M. Ladd, dated May 12, 1950, captioned "Owen Lattimore; Espionage - R," you instructed that "As soon as copy is obtained we should go over it carefully for leads and information."

On May 22, 1950 Mr. Ed Morgan called on another matter, at which time Mr. Belmont took the opportunity to inquire as to whether the transcript was as yet available. Mr. Morgan advised that there was not then an extra copy of the transcript but he would get one as soon as he could. Informed of this call by Mr. Belmont's memorandum to Mr. Ladd dated May 22, 1950, captioned, "Philip Jacob Jaffe, with aliases," you suggested, "Shouldn't we formally request the transcript of Tydings?"

Open sessions of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee have been attended unobtrusively by Agents of the Washington Field Office, who have immediately submitted summaries of pertinent development. Of necessity, these summaries have been incomplete and have not included testimony presented at executive sessions of the committee.

Recognizing that the best record is the transcript itself, on April 24, 1950 a memorandum was sent to Assistant Attorney General James M. McInerney, pointing out that the Department might wish to arrange to receive copies of the official transcript of all testimony before the Subcommittee concerning Owen Lattimore. By memorandum dated May 12, 1950, it was again suggested to Mr. McInerney that the Criminal Division might wish to arrange to secure such transcripts and inquiry was made of Mr. McInerney as to whether such material was available.

At 5:15 PM on May 23, 1950, Mr. Raymond Whearty telephonically advised that the Department now has a single copy of the transcript and that although he is required to follow the matter closely and would like to keep the transcript, he would gladly make it available to the Bureau for photostating.

RECOMMENDATION

Inasmuch as the transcript of testimony presented before the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is now available through the Criminal Division, it is suggested that it be obtained and photostated. Should it prove incomplete or otherwise inadequate for our purposes, it is recommended that a formal request then be made of Senator Tydings for the official transcript.

Sir:

Reference is made to my letter of April 5, 1950 in which I requested certain information be submitted to this office regarding persons appearing on the list mentioned therein and to your letter of April 10, 1950 in reply thereto.

The Loyalty Review Board has decided not to review these cases further at this time, in view of the fact that they are presently the subject of study by the Tydings Subcommittee. Accordingly, please regard my request in letter of April 5, 1950 that information be forwarded directly to this office as withdrawn.

It will be appreciated if any additional information concerning the cases mentioned by Senator McCarthy before the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee be forwarded as usual directly to the Investigations Division of the Civil Service Commission.

Very truly yours,

Seth W. Richardson

Honorable Millard E. Tydings
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

My dear Senator:

I wish to express my appreciation for the very prompt manner in which you made available the transcript of the testimony through May 26.

I think it is vital for the Bureau to receive a copy of this testimony to insure that any information requiring investigative action may have prompt attention.

With expressions of my highest esteem and best regards,

Sincerely yours,
J. Edgar Hoover

You will recall that in April, 1947 at the request of Mr. Fred B. Lyon, State Department, the Bureau conducted a survey of the then Security and Investigative Division of the State Department in which a complete study was made of certain procedures in the Investigative Division, together with recommendations for certain changes. u

In connection with this survey, Mr. Donald L. Nicholson, Chief, Security Division, State Department, informed Mr. Roach today that Senators Lodge and Green of the Tydings Subcommittee have received knowledge of this survey and have inquired of the State Department of the action they have taken on the recommendations made by the FBI. Mr. Nicholson informed Mr. Roach that a number of the recommendations were placed into effect while some were not. He stated that the Senators want to see the report, together with the State Department's explanation of what they have done by way of conforming with the recommendations. Mr. Nicholson's question is whether the Bureau has any objection to the copy now in the possession of the State Department being shown to the Senators. He advised that the State Department would like to do this if the Bureau had no objections. u

RECOMMENDATION:

It would seem that there would be no objection to the State Department disclosing the recommendation made by the Bureau when compiling the answers that they must give to the Senators, however, there appears to be no valid reason why the State Department should turn over our survey report to Senators Lodge and Green for their perusal. If you concur, Mr. Roach will so inform Mr. Nicholson of the State Department. u

PURPOSE:

To advise that the transcript of testimony presented before the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which is now available through the Criminal Division is incomplete and inadequate for our purposes and that a formal request for the complete transcript is being made of Senator Tydings.

Tracy

BACKGROUND:

A memorandum from Mr. D. M. Ladd to the Director dated May 24, 1950, in which it was suggested that inasmuch as the transcript of the testimony presented before the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was available through the Criminal Division, it be obtained and photostated. It was also recommended that should such prove incomplete or otherwise inadequate for our purposes, a formal request then be made of Senator Tydings for the official transcript. To these suggestions the Director indicated his agreement.

At 5:00 P.M. on May 25, 1950, Mr. William E. Foley of the Criminal Division was personally contacted by Special Agent Emory M. Gregg. Mr. Foley advised that as yet the Department has been unable to obtain the complete transcript but did have printed copies of the transcripts of April 20, 1950 and April 25, 1950, which concerned the testimony given by Louis Budenz in both public and executive session. It was noted that the testimony for these two days alone consisted of three bound volumes indicating that the complete transcript will be extremely large.

The transcripts of testimony presented on April 20, 1950 and April 25, 1950, were obtained from Mr. Foley for the purpose of being photostated; however, upon being reviewed they were found to be inadequate for our purposes and were returned to him at 10:00 A.M. on May 26, 1950. By memorandum dated May 23, 1950, Assistant Attorney General James M. McInerney advised that the Department had been informed that the proceedings before the Committee are not being printed for approximately one month, at which time the Department would receive a copy of available transcripts.

Inasmuch as the transcripts obtainable through the Criminal Division are incomplete, Mr. D. M. Ladd has personally requested of Senator Tydings a copy of the official transcript of testimony presented before the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

ACTION:

None, the above is for your information. Upon receipt of the transcript, a photostatic copy will be made for transmittal to the Baltimore Office for their information.

ADDENDUM:

On May 29, 1950 twenty volumes of the transcript of testimony before the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were received and are currently being reviewed.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON
MR. LADD
MR. NICHOLS

Mr. Peyton Ford called again regarding the chart prepared by the State Department and stated he had just had a call from Mr. Fisher, the General Counsel at the State Department, who advised that they wanted to say that they have been advised that the Department of Justice did not evaluate this material; that it was evaluated by the State Department. I stated as far as I knew that was absolutely correct but I did not see any necessity for them using our name at all; that obviously they made the chart and in making it they of course must have evaluated the material. I commented that the only danger in making a statement and in mentioning the FBI in it is that we have not yet seen the material from which they made the chart, and though we never reach a conclusion in our reports, we are not infallible and before a statement is issued quoting us we would have to see the reports from which the chart was prepared. Mr. Ford thought it would be a good idea to tell Mr. Fisher that the State Department did the evaluating and that the Justice Department didn't and I agreed. I stated if there was any question of the FBI having evaluated any report then certainly they should bring this to the attention of our liaison section, but I did not feel it was up to us to check into the material that went into the chart as we did not know what went into it. I commented to Mr. Ford that I felt it was up to the State Department to do this checking as they had prepared the chart. I further added that as far as I knew this chart has never been distributed and I did not know why they had prepared it. Mr. Ford commented that he thought Mr. Panuch prepared it.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON
MR. LADD
MR. NICHOLS

Am 11 1

Mr. Peyton Ford called and stated he had been talking to the Attorney General regarding the allegation that there were eleven Communists in the State Department and commented that eight were now out of the Department and three remained. Mr. Ford stated he had been requested to find out who these three were. I told Mr. Ford I did not know who they were and I assumed we would have to make inquiry of the State Department. Ford then said he understood that McCarthy said he was not going to give this information to the Committee and it was not exactly clear what he was going to do with it; that ~~he~~, McCarthy, had commented if anyone should have it he thought the FBI should have it. I then told Ford that of course I could ask Senator McCarthy but I doubted the wisdom of this. I also asked Ford if McCarthy was still referring to the chart and Ford stated he apparently was. U

Joseph
I thereupon informed Ford that this ~~chart~~ chart was prepared in the State Department; that they have a chart exactly like McCarthy described and that it was prepared from material received from all branches of the Government including the FBI reports. I stated, however, that though I had not seen this chart it was actually prepared by the State Department which would indicate that McCarthy was getting his information out of that Department because no one else has such a chart in his possession. I also told him that our material, which is included in the chart, is not identified as such and that they cannot tell us what is in the chart that came from the Bureau. Mr. Ford then advised me that McCarthy is stating that for the first time in history the FBI is evaluating evidence and I stated I did not know what he based that on. I further stated that the State Department is prepared to issue a press release that they have received no such document as described by McCarthy from the FBI. I commented that of course we said we could neither approve or disapprove any release; that it was up to them what they say. However, I said as to these three names I could give McCarthy a call and ask him or I could try to secure this information from the State Department. Mr. Ford thought we should try to find out from the State Department and I told him I would check with them. U

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

DIRECTOR, FBI

CHARGES OF SENATOR JOSEPH R. MCCARTHY CONCERNING FBI CHART ON COMMUNISTS ALLEGEDLY GIVEN TO STATE DEPARTMENT

Senator McCarthy, on the Senate floor today, stated in substance that ~~three or four years ago, May 15, 1946 or 1947, the FBI performed a function~~
~~entirely outside of its jurisdiction when it supplied to the State Department,~~
~~with evaluation, charts and diagrams purportedly showing Soviet agents, Communists~~
~~and fellow travelers in the State Department. This chart, according to Senator~~ ~~McCarthy, contained 124 names broken down as follows:~~

- 20 Communist Agents
- 13 Other Communists
- 14 Communist Sympathizers
- 77 Suspects

APPROPRIATE AGENCIES
AND FIELD OFFICES
ADVISED BY ROUTING
SLIP(S) OF DeClass
DATE 4-27-78 Bpp

After receiving this information, the State Department called the Bureau and stated that they proposed issuing a press release stating, in effect, that they had no knowledge of a chart or diagram having been received from the FBI, as mentioned by Senator McCarthy. They further advised that a check of the Security Office of the State Department reflected that such a chart in the detail mentioned by Senator McCarthy, in fact, had been prepared by the State Department from information received from various sources, some of which data undoubtedly came from the FBI.

In discussing the press release with the Bureau, Mr. Samuel D. Boykin, assistant to Deputy Undersecretary John E. Pearifoy, desired to know if the Bureau approved or disapproved the release. Mr. Boykin was told that the Bureau neither could approve nor disapprove it, and that this was a matter that the State Department must handle in their discretion.

With reference to Senator McCarthy's statement that only three of the one hundred and twenty-four persons mentioned on the chart are presently employed in the State Department, Mr. Donald L. Nicholson, Security Division, State Department, advised that they have been able to identify only one person whose name appears on the chart as still being an employee of the State Department, namely, Clarence J. Nelson, who is employed in the Communications Section.
Mr. Nicholson stated that another individual who may be one of the three referred to by Senator McCarthy is D. Zablowdowsky, who although no longer employed in the State Department, was one of those named by Senator McCarthy to the Tydings Committee. Mr. Nicholson advised the Bureau that this is only a possibility.
The third individual mentioned cannot be identified by the State Department from their records at this time.

The above information is submitted pursuant to your request.

Mr. Peyton Ford
Deputy Attorney General

(The above was obtained by Mr. R. R. Roach from
of the State Department, 6/6/50.)

In connection with the speech of Senator McCarthy today, alleging that the FBI performed a function outside of its jurisdiction when it supplied to the State Department, with evaluation, charts and diagrams purportedly showing Soviet agents, Communists, Communist sympathizers and suspects employed in the State Department, a check of Bureau records fails to reflect that such a chart was transmitted to the State Department by the Bureau in May 1946 or 1947. Inquiries by Mr. Roach at the State Department developed that the State Department itself had made up a chart from various sources listing individuals under the exact breakdown given by Senator McCarthy. Mr. Nicholson, of the State Department, advised Mr. Roach that the information from which this chart was compiled by the State Department came from several sources, including the FBI. However, at this time he was unable to advise as to which information came from the FBI.

The attached memorandum to the Attorney General has been prepared, reflecting the information available on this matter.

A check is being made to determine whether the Bureau investigated Clarence J. Nelson or D. Zablowdowsky, and if so, whether copies of reports were given to the State Department.

ADDENDUM:

June 7, 1950

Our files reflect that Clarence John Nelson, telegrapher of the State Department, was investigated under the Hatch Act in 1942 and under the Loyalty Program in 1949. Copies of reports under the Hatch Act were sent to the State Department, and under the Loyalty Program, to the Civil Service Commission for transmittal to the State Department. On January 9, 1949, a disposition was received from the Loyalty Review Board that Nelson was retained.

We investigated one David Zablowdowsky, who was employed with OSS. This investigation was conducted in 1943 under the Hatch Act. It is not known whether this is the individual referred to by Mr. Nicholson as D. Zablowdowsky.

Mr. Roach is at the State Department this morning, checking this further, and also attempting to get concrete information to to determine on what information the State Department made up its chart and just what information emanated from the FBI. Mr. Roach is endeavoring to ascertain whether the State Department may have used information from the Gregory Summary (forwarded to the State Department in March, 1946) and other information of this nature in drawing up its chart.

the FBI. Boykin added that Mr. Bannerman denied the statement attributed to him by Mr. Klaus and indicated Mr. Klaus made a misstatement of facts when he prepared his report. The chart which was prepared by the State Department carries a caption that it was prepared in the Reproduction Branch of the State Department and bears the title, "Top Secret, U.S. Department of State, Preliminary Survey of the Communist Infiltration, Prepared May 15, 1946." On the chart the employees were divided into various groups and categories. Senator McCarthy charged that three persons mentioned, whose names appeared on the chart, were still employed by the State Department. The State Department has been able to identify only two; namely, Clarence Nelson and Serban Wallinarascu. As it was indicated in the memorandum of June 6, 1950, the name of David Zablowsky, who is no longer employed by the State Department, may or may not be the third person in view of the fact that he was on a list that Senator McCarthy supplied to Senator Tydings.

With reference to my memorandum to you of June 6, 1950, Mr. Roach has made a check at the State Department and obtained the following information:

The material used by McCarthy on the floor of the Senate yesterday originated from the State Department in a report prepared by Mr. Samuel Klaus on August 3, 1946. A copy of this report is undoubtedly in the hands of Senator McCarthy as numerous excerpts were used in his speech yesterday. The report is in the form of a survey made by Klaus for Mr. Joseph Panuch, a former Deputy to the Assistant Secretary for Administration. The material used by McCarthy from this report and particularly that dealing with the chart that the FBI allegedly prepared appears on Page 29 (copy of report attached) and reads, "FBI has prepared a chart now in the possession of Mr. Bannerman which purports to show a number of 'agents', 'Communists', 'sympathizers' and 'suspects' in the State Department as of May 15, 1947. The tabulation shows, agents - 20, Communists - 13, sympathizers - 14, and suspects - 77."

The report continues on page 30 (pages 29 and part of 30 were produced by McCarthy on the floor although he continued to read from the report.) and sets forth the verbatim text of material appearing in the press this morning, that is, "It turned out that the FBI had produced no convincing proof that any person was an actual agent. In other words, the FBI had made no case to show espionage or a violation of the Foreign Agents Registration Act or similar legislation in any case. The word 'agent' was, therefore, being used by the FBI or by CON-to mean simply a suspect in espionage investigation, and etc."

"No proof of actual Communist Party membership has been produced by the FBI. The word Communist, therefore, was used merely to describe cases of such close affiliations as to lend credence to hypothesis that the person in question was a member --, a fact still to be proven."

The report continues on page 31, "The foregoing cases presumably comprised the total of questionable employees of each security category now in the Department -- i.e. questionable in the opinion of the FBI." The statements by Senator McCarthy that the FBI did not trust the State Department has for its basis the comments of Mr. Klaus appearing on page 32 and 33 which states in substance that the FBI did not freely give information to the Chief Special Agents Office when, in fact, we did give it to Mr. Fred B. Lyon's Office.

JUN 12 1950

There are attached copies of the prepared speech used by McCarthy yesterday on the floor together with a copy of pages 29 and a portion of page 30 which Senator McCarthy distributed together with his prepared speech.

In view of the fact that Mr. Klaus made the definite statement in his report that the FBI had prepared a chart, Mr. Samuel S. Boykin, assistant to Mr. Peurifoy, informed Mr. Roach he talked to Klaus and asked him why he had made such a statement when, in fact, the chart in question was prepared by the State Department and carried a very bold heading that it was so prepared. Klaus, according to Boykin, alibied out of this by stating that Mr. Bannerman (the head of the Security Division and now with CIA) had told him, Klaus, that the chart was prepared by the FBI. Boykin further informed Mr. Roach that Bannerman denies this and that Klaus simply made a misstatement of facts when he prepared his report.

Mr. Roach observed the chart in question which was prepared by the State Department and it was noted that it very plainly states that it was prepared in the Reproduction Branch of the State Department and carried the title "Top Secret, U. S. Department of State, Preliminary Survey of the Communist Infiltration, Prepared May 15, 1946." The chart is approximately four by six feet in size and is the regular organizational chart of the State Department with various names written on it with lines drawn to the respective division in which the employees were working. The employees were divided into two groups: (1) Soviet Underground Intelligence Connections. (2) Amerasia. There are 4 charts in all, each purporting to be the same but with various and different notations with reference to names appearing thereon. None of the charts appeared to be a finished product but appeared to be work sheets. The employees are broken down into categories of agents, Communists, sympathizers and suspects. Of the agents (20) and Communists (13), the State Department has compiled lists (attached). They have not as yet been able to compile lists on the sympathizers (14) and suspects (77). They are presently working on this.

With reference to the charges that Senator McCarthy made that three persons mentioned in the chart are still on the rolls of the State Department, they, the State Department, have been able to identify only two, namely, Clarence Nelson and Serban Vallimarascu. The name of David Zablowsky may or may not be the third person in view of the fact that he was on a list that McCarthy supplied to Senator Tydings but is not now employed by the State Department.

The State Department is presently checking their files against the names that they have to determine the information used in drawing up the chart. They cannot at this time state whether the information came from the FBI, from their own or other sources.

Mr. Samuel S. Boykin informed Mr. Roach that the State Department desires to issue another press release stating in substance that the State Department has contacted the Bureau and the Bureau has assured them that the Bureau did not prepare such a chart and that the Bureau made <sup>no</sup> evaluation placing the various employees in the categories named. Mr. Boykin wanted to know if the Bureau had any objections to this statement. In this regard it is believed that the Bureau should not make any comments, one way or the other, and we should refer such inquiries to the Assistant to the Attorney General Peyton Ford who informed the State Department yesterday that the Bureau did not submit such a chart to the State Department. If you concur Mr. Boykin will be so informed.

The State Department has asked that the attached report prepared by Klaus entitled Survey of the Departmental Personnel Security Investigations be returned to them after we have finished with it.

As the Senate will recall nearly four months ago, I gave it a brief resume of what was in the files on some 81 individuals. At that time I carefully explained to the Senate that there would be no way for me to reproduce for it on any of those individuals all of the material contained in the files. I explained, as the Senate knows, that those files have been worked up over a period of years by thousands of trained investigators at a cost of millions of dollars to the American people.

At the time I made that talk one of the Senators suggested that I should not give the Senate this information unless and until I could individually produce all of the proof in the files. With this I disagreed. I felt that knowing the extremely dangerous nature of the material in the files, I had a duty to bring this information to the attention of the Senate.

No man could at this time duplicate and bring together all of the vast amount of information painstakingly gathered by the F.B.I., the C.I.A., Army Intelligence, Navy Intelligence, etc. Therefore, I was faced with the choice of giving the Senate the information in the files, knowing that it would be difficult beyond words to prove the charges unless the President would cooperate with the Congress and make available to it all of the necessary files.

Since that time, the Administration, with the benefit of its entire paid press staff, has concentrated on trying to convince the American people that unless I, without the benefit of the files, can prove the charges which were based almost solely upon those files that then there are no disloyal people in government.

I have some information today of a nature which I think should be of considerable interest to the Senate. It is based upon State Department files. It is information which has never been brought to the Senate or to the American people.

We find that about 3 or 4 years ago, I say 3 or 4 because the file refers to the date of May 15, 1947 -- however, my information indicates that this may be a typographical error and should be May 15, 1946 -- however, for the time being we will refer to it as 1947 -- we find on that date the F.B.I. performed a function which as far as I know they have never performed since. Apparently becoming disturbed by the situation in the State Department, the Bureau sent over to the State Department on that date a detailed chart listing what they considered as Soviet agents, communists, communist sympathizers, and suspects. As far as I know this is the only time that the F.B.I. has attempted to evaluate the material gathered by it; otherwise, it has been as you know merely a fact finding body, submitting the proof to the Attorney General or to whoever else required it.

The submission of the list of Soviet agents, communists, etc., to the State Department by the F.B.I. met with such little favorable activity on the part of the State Department that as far as I know the Bureau has never submitted a like chart since that date.

I have photostated page 29 and part of page 30 of the report, which shed some light on this chart. It shows for example on May 15, 1947, there were in the State Department a total of 124 agents, communists, sympathizers, and suspects, in the opinion of the F.B.I. During the two months period between the time that chart was submitted by the F. B. I. and the time this report was made, only 18 of these individuals were gotten rid of, leaving in the State Department 106 whom the F. B. I. had named.

You will note that at the time this report was made there were on the payroll of the State Department, according to the F. B. I.'s evaluation of the information in its own files, 11 agents, 10 communists, 11 sympathizers, and 74 suspects, making a total of 106. Normally it could be assumed that the least that the State Department would have done when they were notified by the F. B. I. on May 15, 1947, that the State Department had on its payroll 20 communist agents, that the least it would have done would be to suspend all of those men, pending a complete and thorough investigation. Certainly there was no reason why 106 of the 124 named by the F. B. I should be found on the State Department's payroll two months later.

With that lack of interest on the part of the State Department it is understandable why the F. B. I. became disgusted with the Department. Incidentally, this report also shows that the F. B. I. did not furnish all of its information in regard to suspected individuals to the Department, apparently not trusting the State Department to that extent, which is certainly understandable when they found the Department failed to discharge communist agents named by the Bureau.

It should be mentioned that the report points out that the F. B. I. did not produce for the benefit of the State Department legal cases of espionage covering those listed as agents. It also points out that no proof of actual communist party membership was produced by the Bureau on those listed as communists. It was a case of the Bureau evaluating the information which it had obtained and deciding they were communists, agents, etc.

At least 3 of those listed as communist agents by the F. B. I. three years ago are still holding high positions in the State Department. For any one who says McCarthy must give the proof that those men are communist agents, let me tell you now that will be impossible for me individually to do. I am willing to rely upon the evaluation made of those individuals by the F. B. I. When the Bureau sends a chart to the State Department saying these men are agents of the communist party, I am satisfied that they unquestionably either are agents or so close to the category of agents, that under no circumstances should they be retained in the Department.

The Senate will note that the number listed by the F. B. I. as agents, communists, suspects, etc., and retained by the State Department was 106. The Senate will also recall that I first gave the committee 81 names and later on an additional 25, making a total of 106. I want to make it clear, however, that the fact the State Department retained 106 named by the F. B. I. and the fact that I gave the committee a list of 106 is merely a coincidence. The 106 names on the F. B. I. list are not identical to the 106 names which I gave to the committee. The 3 mentioned whom the F. B. I. labeled as communist agents and who are still in the State Department are, of course, on the Bureau's list and on my list.

Let me make it clear when I point out that 3 of the individuals listed as agents by the F. B. I. are still working in the State Department - that this means a minimum of 3. It will be impossible for me to give you the total number at this time. You will note that I am not discussing the number listed by the F. B. I. as communists, sympathizers and suspects who are still working in the Department. I hope to be able to give the Senate a complete picture of how many of the total of 106 agents, Communist sympathizers, etc., are still on the State Department's payroll and in what, if any, branch of the government those who were permitted to resign are still working.

The names of those 3 whom the Bureau said were agents on May 15, 1947 and are still in the Department, are available to the Senate or to the committee. Those names are included among the 106 names that I gave to the committee.

If the committee desires more specific information as to those 3 agents it may have it. However, I think it would be reasonable to insist that the committee subpoena and obtain the F.B.I. chart mentioned in this report and then investigate not merely the 3 that I have been able to run down, but the entire 106 the Department insisted on retaining and also find out where the 18 who were allowed to resign are now employed.

And keep in mind, those men listed as Communist agents were listed as such by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The proof was not dug up by McCarthy. The proof was dug up by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

And in my book when the Federal Bureau of Investigation says these men are Communist agents -- when the F.B.I. sends over a formal report to the State Department saying we have the evidence; those man are Soviet agents of Communist Russia, that to me is proof. In my book that is proof despite all the screaming and squealing of those who say, "McCarthy you should not expose them because you are injuring those poor people; you are smearing them."

is considerable doubt whether the report was really derogatory on a security basis.

While this does not apply to Departmental personnel, the fact should be noted as demonstrating a further reliance upon FBI by the Department. Presumably, this check is made by FBI as a matter of accommodation, not of duty. No control is exercised by the Department over the investigation.

(e) It is important to note that the Department is entirely and practically exclusively dependent on FBI for the type of information which comes from surveillance, wide coverage, and the use of unusual methods of interrogation and investigation. CSA appears to have neither the experience nor the facilities to do that type of work and it is apparently not used by any one in that type of work. FBI is the sole repository of such information, therefore, as the identity of Communist Party members, of sympathizers and fellow travelers, of espionage cases, and of undisclosed foreign agents.

(d) FBI has prepared a chart, now in the possession of [name blanked out] which purports to show a number of "agents", "Communists", "sympathizers", and "suspects" in the State Department as of May 15, 1947. The tabulation shows

Agents-----	20
Communists-----	13
Sympathizers -----	14
Suspects-----	77

~~SECRET~~

[words blanked out] states that by July 12 (the date of my interview), the number had been reduced to the following:

Agents-----	11
Communists-----	10
Sympathizers-----	11
Suspects - about --	74

Since a considerable number of the persons, so characterized came with the interim agencies, such as FEA, OWI, and OSS, continued reduction in force might dispose of more of these.

X Honorable Willard B. Tydings
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

A.B.±

Dear Senator Tydings:

This is in reply to your letter of March , 1950, in which you have asked for the production before your Subcommittee of the investigative files relating to those Government employees who are or have been employed in the Department of State and against whom charges of disloyal have been made before your Subcommittee by Senator McCarthy. The question raised by your request is a question of grave concern, and I have given very careful consideration to the response contained herein.

In March of 1948 I issued a directive to all officers and employees in the executive branch of the Government directing that all reports, records, and files relating to the Employee Loyalty Program be kept in strict confidence, even in instances where subpoenas were received. As you know, this decision was clearly within my power to make, and I made it only after the most careful consideration and after I had satisfied myself beyond any doubt that any other decision would have resulted in the collapse of the Loyalty Program itself and would have rendered it a vain and useless gesture. At that time I issued a release in which I pointed out the long standing precedents regarding the production of confidential files and the reasons for my decision. I referred, among other things, to a letter from former Attorney General Robert H. Jackson, dated April 30, 1941, to the Chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, declining to furnish that Committee with certain reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which letter was written with the approval and at the direction of President Roosevelt. That letter forcefully pointed out the serious consequences that would have resulted from compliance with the request of the House Naval Affairs Committee. Among other things, Attorney General Jackson stated:

Moreover, disclosure of the reports would be of serious prejudice to the future usefulness of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. As you probably know, much of this information is given in confidence and can only be obtained upon pledge not to disclose its sources. A disclosure of the sources would embarrass informants--sometimes in their employment, sometimes in their social relations, and in extreme cases might even endanger their lives. We regard the keeping of faith with confidential informants as an indispensable condition of future efficiency.

Disclosure of information contained in the reports might also be the gravest kind of injustice to innocent individuals. Investigative reports include leads and suspicions, and sometimes even the statements of malicious or misinformed people. Even though later and more complete reports exonerate the individuals, the use of particular or selected reports might constitute the gravest injustice, and we all know that a correction never catches up with an accusation.

These three elements--the serious prejudice to the effectiveness of the Federal Bureau of Investigation as an investigative agency, the resulting embarrassment and danger to confidential informants, and injustice and unfairness to innocent individuals--led me to the inescapable conclusion that the single most important element in an effective and at the same time just and fair loyalty program was the preservation of all files in connection therewith in the strictest confidence. I cannot overemphasize this point.

During the last month I have been reexamining with utmost care this entire problem, and in this connection, I have asked the Attorney General, the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Mr. Seth Richardson

Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board, to give their careful consideration to this matter. They have unanimously advised me that disclosure of loyalty files would be contrary to the public interest and would do much more harm than good. The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in a report to the Attorney General has outlined the very serious consequences that would result from any such disclosures. The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation stated:

1. The public disclosure of FBI reports will reveal investigative procedures and techniques. If publicized, criminals, foreign agents, subversives, and others would thus be forewarned and seek ways and means to carry out their activities, thus avoiding detection and hampering the efficiency of an investigative agency. The underground operations of criminals and subversives already are most difficult of detection and I do not believe the security of the nation would be furthered by applying any additional shackles to the FBI.
2. For the past 25 years, the FBI has represented to the American public that the FBI would maintain their confidences. To make public FBI reports would be to break confidences and persons interviewed in the future might be even more reluctant to furnish information. In recent months, on numerous occasions, some citizens, shirking their responsibility, have refused to furnish information on the grounds that it might be misused and have gone so far as to decline to furnish information, even in applicant investigations, claiming they would do so only if forced by a subpoena.
3. A public disclosure of FBI reports would reveal the identity of sources of information and in some cases at least, would place in jeopardy the lives of confidential sources of information.
4. Disclosure of information contained in FBI reports might result in an injustice to innocent individuals, who find themselves entwined in a web of suspicious circumstances, which can be explained only by further investigation, and disclosures might be made under circumstances which would deny the aggrieved to publicly state their positions.

5. A public disclosure could warn persons whose names appear in FBI reports of the investigation and serve as an effective means of enabling them to avoid detection, to approach witnesses, to bring about the destruction of evidence, or permit them to flee the country.
6. Public disclosure of FBI reports could contribute to blackmail of persons investigated or could result in degrading persons who have made a mistake or fallen prey to false propaganda.
7. Disclosure might reveal highly restricted information vital to the national security and of considerable value to a foreign power.
8. FBI reports set forth full details secured from a witness and if disclosed could be subject to misinterpretation, quoting out of context, or used to thwart truth, distort half truths, and misrepresent facts.

It is my desire, however, that any charges of disloyalty made before your Subcommittee with respect to any individual be given the most thorough and complete investigation, and it is my purpose to cooperate with your Sub-committee to the greatest extent possible, bearing in mind at all times my responsibility to take care that the investigative activities and efficiency of the Federal Bureau of Investigation remain unimpaired, that innocent people--both those under investigation and those who have provided information--not be unnecessarily prejudiced, and that the effectiveness of the Employee Loyalty Program as a whole not be interfered with. I have, therefore, asked Mr. Seth Richardson, Chairman of the Loyalty Review Board, to have the Board arrange for a complete and detailed review as soon as possible of all cases in which charges of disloyalty have been made before your Sub-committee (including a re-examination of such cases heretofore reviewed by the Board), and have asked him to give me a full and complete report in each case after review. This review will include all reports of loyalty investigations made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and files of the State Department and the Civil Service Commission relating to these cases, as well as all other evidence of disloyalty made available to the Loyalty Review Board, including, of course, any evidence produced before your Sub-committee.

For your information, I am attaching hereto a list of the members of the Loyalty Review Board.

Sincerely yours,

Harry S. Truman

INFORMATION CONCERNING

DATE: June 6, 1950

On May 24, 1950, DON SURINE, former FBI Special Agent and currently employed as an investigator on the staff of United States Senator McCARTHY, furnished the original of the enclosed communication pertaining to captioned subject, which was recently received by Senator McCARTHY.

Enclosed herewith are three photostatic copies of this communication which is self-explanatory. The original of this document has been returned to SURINE.

In furnishing this document, SURINE requested that Senator McCARTHY and he be fully protected in the event investigation is initiated or re-opened on the basis of this communication.

These enclosures are submitted for the information of the Bureau and no investigation is contemplated by this office on the basis of this document unless the Bureau advises to the contrary.

Dear Congressman:

Tell Senator McCarthy to subpoena a certain letter sent to Seth Richardson, Chairman, President's Loyalty Board about five or six weeks ago by the Protestant War Veterans Organization there in Washington, D. C., but which is being suppressed by the Attorney General. It names names and unmask for the first time the super spy organization that has its agents in every department of this government in the halls of Congress, where ever you, Clare, are being spied upon from every angle.

This private gestapo, with over sixty thousand paid and unpaid agents and whose budget for the last six months of 1949 exceeded 6 million dollars was named in this dynamic letter with the THREAT that unless the Department of Justice took the proper action, they, the Protestant Veterans would take the necessary action and go into open court and THERE PROVE their charges and this letter is suppressed by this so-called "Loyalty Board".

You just think that over

While I cannot sign my name, you know me well for I am a well-known newspaperman, who is preparing a series of articles on this stinking setup.

If Seth Richardson denies he has this letter, then ask the Attorney General for it was too damn hot for Richardson, but it is made to order for McCarthy.

The Artful Dodger

WASHINGTON

TRUTH IS OFTEN COMPLEX. An untruth, on the other hand, can be made easy to understand, and can be tailored to fit the headlines. This is one of the major secrets of the technique of the artful dodger, Sen. Joe McCarthy.

Consider his latest thunderbolt hurled at the State Department. McCarthy produces a photostat, which includes a "chart" of subversives in the State Department, ostensibly provided for the department by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in 1946.

Ives

Twenty "Russian agents," as well as large numbers of other subversives, are named in the chart. McCarthy asserts—and no one denies it—that at least three of these "Russian agents" are still employed in the State Department.

McCarthy waves his photostats and shouts that if the FBI says so, "that to me is proof . . . despite all the screaming and yelling."

Heads are shaken. Even some of McCarthy's more sensible colleagues, like Sen. Irving Ives, are impressed. And although it can be demonstrated that this is just another dollop of McCarthy's poisonous nonsense, it is hopeless to expect this fact to catch up with the original distortion.

The photostats McCarthy waved on the Senate floor consisted of about a page and a half of a report of more than 100 pages prepared within the State Department in 1946.

THE HISTORY OF this report is interesting. It was prepared on orders of Joseph Panuch, then in charge of the State Department's security branch, by one of Panuch's assistants, Samuel Klaus. Panuch ordered this over-all report for a simple reason—the whole State Department security setup was in a frightful mess.

Security agents had been recruited helter-skelter, with little regard for ability or experience. Thus the security branch was staffed with a gaggle of amateur Hawkshaws. They spent their time spying on each other and on high officials whom they happened to dislike.

Three of these Hawkshaws were particularly incompetent, and particularly eager to make a name for themselves. These three put their heads together and produced the chart of which McCarthy is now the proud possessor. They dredged up the names of 124 State Department employes, and on the basis of the kind of tittle-tattle and poison-pen venom which always comes into the possession of any security agency, they divided these names arbitrarily into four categories—"Russian agent," "Communist," "sympathizer" and "subversive."

When Klaus was gathering material for his report, he came upon this chart. He asked the men who had prepared it where they got it; and, perhaps because they regretted their over-eagerness, he was assured that it had been provided by the FBI.

Hoover

In good faith, Klaus included this statement in his report to Panuch. He also included in his report some pretty scathing criticism of the FBI, which presumably sprang from his belief that the FBI had been responsible for this fantastically amateurish "evaluation."

The FBI had nothing to do with the chart, which was strictly the brain-child of the eager beavers in the State Department.

If this were not the case, McCarthy's revelation would be highly embarrassing to the FBI's J. Edgar Hoover, whom McCarthy professes to admire intensely. Hoover has repeatedly stated that the FBI never evaluates information.

The chart did contain the names of some genuine security risks, who were subsequently discharged or allowed to resign. Many of the others were found, after exhaustive investigation, to be entirely innocent.

AS FOR THE THREE amateur Hawkshaws, all three were soon eased out of the security branch. It is an interesting footnote to the whole affair that it was these three who prepared the "derogatory" report on their own superior, Panuch, after tapping Panuch's telephone wires. This report explains why, in McCarthy's original list of 81 Communists, Panuch figures as a hero in Case No. 14 (for firing suspected homosexuals) and as a potential subversive in Case 41.

That is the real story of McCarthy's thunderbolt. The trouble is that the story is a trifle complicated and cannot be crowded into headlines.

The fact that the FBI had nothing to do with the chart, a fact which McCarthy himself could easily have ascertained by the simple expedient of a telephone call, is lost in the shuffle.

And the further fact that McCarthy's whole case therefore crumbles into just so much more poisonous nonsense is lost also. So this must be considered another round for McCarthy.

Yet others have tried the game of playing the American people for boobs before, and failed in the end. There are now, at last, beginning to be signs that this will happen again.

Norway's F.D.R. Statue Is Tribute to U.S.

OSLO, NORWAY

THE CROWD waiting for the king and the royal party to arrive for the ceremonies of unveiling the monument to Franklin D. Roosevelt was large and enthusiastic. As I stood listening to our national anthem, I realized anew what a beautiful site has been chosen for this statue. It stands over the quayside looking down the fjord. The speeches were fine and warm and I think there was a full realization by all the people present that this statue symbolizes their gratitude not to one man alone, but to the people of the United States of America, to President Truman and Congress. And to the ideals for which they stand—continuing to give cooperation and support to attain peace and justice which men in the United States military services fought for during the late war, side by side with their allies.

Mrs. Roosevelt

On Tuesday morning we did some sight-seeing while Elliot and the children did a little shopping for me as well as for themselves, choosing some distinctive Norwegian handicraft work as souvenirs.

I have been sent a very beautiful book by Mr. Halfdan Arenberg on the Norwegian folkcraft which I am delighted to have. Also a book on cooperatives in Norway by O. B. Grimley which I am sure will be a valuable background for understanding the economy of this nation.

The sight-seeing was extremely interesting. We saw the old Viking ships which were found buried in clay and remarkably well preserved. One with beautifully carved bow and stern was evidently used by a queen. In those days the custom was apparently to build a kind of house behind the mast and bury the dead king or queen, surrounded by the royal household possessions, in the ship. When you look at these open ships and their oars you wonder how they ever reached Greenland and the coast of North America. You wonder, in fact, how these men built such strong and beautiful ships with the few tools they had at that time.

WE SAW also a church which has recently been renovated after being closed for a year and a half. This is now the cathedral. The carvings on the altar and the pulpit and around the organ are of the somewhat baroque period but extremely interesting and beautiful. The modern frescoed ceiling, the modern glass, and the great bronze doors are very fine. There is an old stone embedded at the right side of the door which is very ancient carving, and much of the stone used in building the church came from the old church which dated back a great many hundreds of years.

This is the celebration of the 900th year since the founding of the city of Oslo, and so they have an exhibit of the shipping which has existed in the city from the earliest days. It is interesting to see the models of the Viking ships, the old sailing ships and the gradual change to the ships of today, with their modern machinery and equipment.

Half of the Norwegian merchant marine was destroyed in the last war, but they are back again in their place as the third largest merchant marine force in the world. Six thousand of their sailors died in the war. Today there is a lack of personnel in the service, so they are trying to encourage young people to enter the navy. And indeed it is a very worthwhile career. In many parts of the world they maintain homes for Norwegian sailors.

McCarthy and the Smear

THE "PHONEY 'LIBERAL' PRESS" is, according to Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.), "smearing" him.

The dictionary defines "smear," in the sense McCarthy means as "to befoul, obscure, obliterate and defame . . ."

My objective today is the opposite. I wish to clarify the senator's Friday speech in Milwaukee.

McCarthy blamed Sec. of State Dean Acheson for our $90 million loan to Poland in April, 1946. Appealing, I judge, to Mid-western Polish-Americans, McCarthy charged:

It was Acheson who placed the guns, the whips, the blacksnakes and the clubs in the hands of those Communists. It was Mr. Acheson who furnished them with bullets to keep a Christian population under Soviet discipline . . . who helped put uniforms on the masters of prostrate Poland."

For $50 million of our 1946 loan, McCarthy explained, had been made available for Poland to buy surplus U.S. war property abroad. The other $40 million was for the specific purchase of locomotives and coal cars, to move Poland's surplus coal to other countries then terribly in need of it.

In return for this loan, Poland's 1946 coalition government pledged "free and unfettered elections" which, if held, were expected to reduce Communist influence. Elections were held, but the Communists gradually dominated the country anyway.

So Acheson, then Undersecretary of State, can reasonably be charged with exchanging cash for useless promises. James Byrnes, then Secretary of State, and President Truman shared the mistake. But do the facts justify McCarthy's charge that "Acheson placed guns, etc., in the hands of (Poland's) Communists"?

They do not. McCarthy's words constitute the kind of "smear" that McCarthy claims is directed at him.

For Soviet Russia was in 1946, as she is today, quite capable of arming Poland's Communists without our assistance. The loan which Acheson approved was intended to reduce Soviet-Communist power in Poland, not to extend it.

TO ACCUSE A MAN OF doing the opposite of what he intended is to "befoul, obscure, obliterate and defame."

McCarthy might have said that in 1946 Acheson had been mistaken, and was deceived. But McCarthy used typical Communist-Fascist smear tactics.

Fascists and Communists always whine that they are victims of the methods they regularly employ against others. So, apparently, does Sen. McCarthy.

Postcard Electioneering

IF YOU HAVE THE IDEA that Municipal Judge John Gutknecht is not campaigning actively as the Democratic nominee for probate judge in Cook County just because he is on a European tour, dismiss the thought.

The judge is continually postcarding precinct captains back home in Cook, and it's all according to plan. From Rome, the captains who are of Italian extraction or operate in Italian-American population centers hear from the judge.

From Israel, the cards go winging to the captains of the Jewish faith. And so it goes. It would be hard to find a spot on or near the continent where some Chicago race group would not have a homeland tie. And the judge knows his Chicago.

THE COOK COUNTY PROGRESSIVES will meet to nominate candidates on June 19. Shortly thereafter they will launch a drive for the necessary 115,000 signatures on petitions for a place on the ballot for county offices.

Normally, the job of judging whether the petitions are acceptable is up to an electoral board composed of the state's attorney, county clerk and county judge. But County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and Clerk Richard J. Daley are candidates for re-election and so the law says they cannot serve. They must give way to the two senior Circuit Court Judges.

From the Progressive point of view, this doesn't afford any great relief. The two judges would also be Democrats. The oldest Circuit judge in point of service is Democrat Kickham Scanlon. Tied for second in seniority are Harry Fisher and Thomas J. Lynch. Fisher has served on electoral boards before.

IMPORTANCE OF THIS party affiliation, of course, has to do with the general belief among politicians that Democrats would rather the Progressives were not on the ballot and that Republicans would rather they were. Presumably the citizen who would vote for a Progressive candidate would be inclined to vote Democratic if he had no other place to go on the ballot.

EXECUTIVE BRANCH, U. S. GOVERNMENT
(Names identified by Senator McCarthy)
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

PURPOSE:

To recommend that the attached memorandum concerning the individuals identified by Senator McCarthy before the Tydings Subcommittee be forwarded to Mr. Peyton Ford pursuant to his request to be advised regarding the dissemination of information in the Bureau's files and the results of investigations regarding these persons to the Department of State.

BACKGROUND:

You will recall that in my memorandum of May 9, 1950, which is attached, I pointed out that Clive Palmer had called at my office on the evening of May 9, 1950, and left a memorandum listing the names of the 81 individuals named in the subpoena of the Senate Subcommittee. Mr. Palmer advised that Peyton Ford had been in conference all afternoon with Senator Tydings; that Senator Tydings insists that he wants a letter signed by the Attorney General listing the dates of reports on loyalty cases sent to the Civil Service Commission, as well as information on the individuals who were the subjects of preliminary inquiry loyalty investigations, but which were discontinued upon receipt of information that the employees had left the government service. Palmer further indicated Tydings also desired any cases where no investigation was conducted because no derogatory information was available be listed. According to Palmer, Senator Tydings suggested that a cutoff date of February 20, 1950, be set and that nothing be listed thereafter. Palmer was advised by me that the Bureau would not prepare any such list until we received a memorandum from the Department in writing listing exactly what it was that the Department wanted. It was also suggested that the Bureau not use a cutoff date, but include everything up to the present time. You noted on my memorandum, "I concur

The attached memorandum dated May 10, 1950, from Peyton Ford requests the following specific information concerning the names included on the "subpoena" list received from the Senate Subcommittee: The Attorney General wishes to prepare a letter to Senator Tydings listing first those individuals in the group on whom loyalty investigations were conducted, attaching copies of the Bureau's transmittal letters or memoranda to the Civil Service Commission; further, in cases where a loyalty investigation was never instituted because of the absence of derogatory information in the Bureau's files or because it was learned prior to the institution of the investigation that the individual had left the service, or where investigations were instituted but later discontinued because the individuals left the service, information is desired regarding what transpired in this respect. Ford further pointed out that there may have been, with regard to some of these individuals, memoranda forwarded to the State Department prior to, during, or following the loyalty investigation, or in cases in which no loyalty investigation has been made. He stated it is desired that the Bureau make appropriate identifying reference to any such memoranda. Peyton Ford, as indicated above, stated it is not necessary to include any material submitted subsequent to February 20, 1950.

All references in the Bureau's files have been reviewed concerning the names set forth on the "subpoena" list furnished by Clive Palmer, together with other individuals who have been identified by Senator McCarthy, and the information requested by the Department has been set forth in the attached memorandum dated May 15, 1950, to Mr. Peyton Ford.

You will observe that the material being furnished to the Department is divided into Parts I, II, and III. Part I pertains to the individuals identified on the "subpoena" list. In Part II, there is furnished for the Department's information material relating to additional individuals not identified on the "subpoena" list, but who were identified previously by Seth W. Richardson in a letter to the Bureau dated April 5, 1950. Part III consists of photostatic copies of transmittal letters requested by the Department.

In connection with the review of our files, in addition to reports and memoranda specifically relating to the individuals identified on the subpoena list, it was found that collateral references to these individuals were located in other reports and communications transmitted to the Department of State in some instances. As a general rule, these incidental references have not been included in the memorandum to the Department. In this same connection, you will recall that in the past confidential memoranda have been supplied to the Department of State in connection with the Gregory case, as well as investigation concerning underground Communist activities of government employees. In these memoranda in many instances, numerous individuals were involved and information from highly confidential sources was included. In such memoranda, where one of the persons named by McCarthy is mentioned collaterally, we have not listed the Gregory summary or the summary on the underground Communist activities of government employees, since it is felt that to do so would undoubtedly cause the Subcommittee to request copies of the confidential memoranda which at the time were not specifically given to the State Department regarding the individuals concerned with this request.

The review of the references on the individuals in question also revealed in various instances oral information had been furnished to the Department of State. This oral dissemination of information has been noted in the memorandum to Peyton Ford inasmuch as it may have been made a matter of record in the files of the State Department. For us to delete such information might create an erroneous impression that the Bureau is withholding material.

ACTION

That the attached memorandum be forwarded to Mr. Peyton Ford.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. TOLSON
MR. LADD
MR. NICHOLS

I called Peyton Ford and told him the State Department had identified one of the three persons previously mentioned; that of course this was speculation but they believed he was Clarence J. Nelson. I stated I had not heard of him; that he was a teletype operator and is on the rolls of the State Department at the present time. I also informed Mr. Ford that it was possible that the second individual could be David Zablowsky who is no longer on the rolls of the State Department. I further advised that they had no idea who the third individual was and that this was the best information they had at the present time. However, I stated the State Department does admit there is a chart of the character McCarthy is talking about.

Very truly yours,

FOR RELEASE AT 7:00 P.M., E.D.T., SATURDAY, MAY 20, 1950.
NOT TO BE PREVIOUSLY PUBLISHED, QUOTED FROM OR USED IN ANY WAY.

The Department of State today made public the following analysis of the speech delivered by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy in Chicago, May 6, 1950, on "Communism in Government":

1. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: Senator McCarthy referred to the Department of State's files being examined by the Tydings Subcommittee as "skinny-ribbed bones of the files", "skeleton files"; "These purged files"; "phony files"; "1947 and '48 files instead of 1949 and '50".

The Facts. The files transmitted to the Tydings Subcommittee are the full and complete State Department files current as of the date transmitted. They contain all information relevant to the determination of employee loyalty or security. Under the Federal Employees Loyalty Program, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is the agency charged with responsibility for conducting investigations into the loyalty of State Department personnel.

A representative of the Department of Justice has been present at the meetings of the Tydings Subcommittee. The files were viewed by a representative of the Department of Justice before they were turned over to the Subcommittee. The files made available to the Subcommittee contain the material collected by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and transmitted to the State Department.

2. Senator McCarthy said in Chicago: "Now from page 37 of the House Report I quote the following: '...almost anyone and everyone in the State Department had access to the files'"

The Facts. The report to which Senator McCarthy referred is a report of the House Appropriations Committee investigators, dated January 27, 1948, which accompanied the list of 108 cases which were the basis of Senator McCarthy's speech of February 20, 1950. Senator McCarthy misquoted this report.

The report said: "... most everyone and anyone in the Division has access to the files ..."

The Division that the House investigators were talking about was the Division of Security. That is the division charged with the physical and personnel security program of the Department and the Foreign Service, and it is therefore essential that its staff have access to the files when needed.

Senator

Senator McCarthy, by substituting "the State Department" for "the Division of Security", crudely misquotes the language of the report in order to give an entirely false impression: namely, that any and everyone in the Department has access to the files; whereas as a matter of fact such access is strictly limited to employees of the Division when required and to a very small number of employees outside the Security Division, such as the members of the Loyalty Security Board. Senator McCarthy substituted the entire State Department for the Division of Security, a crude misquotation for the purpose of giving an entirely false impression. It is not only a misquotation, it is a quotation out of context, a quotation over two years old made without reference to the facts as they exist at the present time.

- 3. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: "Tell them to take the list of names which I have given ... the Secretary of State ..."

The Facts. Despite Under Secretary of State Peurifoy's reiterated requests since February 11, 1950 that Senator McCarthy furnish the Department with a list of names of the "205" or "57" accused State Department employees, Senator McCarthy has never furnished the Department or the Secretary of State such a list of names.

- 4. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: Describing the Federal Loyalty Program, Senator McCarthy said, "First of all, it permits each Department to investigate its own people. Those doing the investigating know little or nothing of communist techniques, even less of about how to conduct an investigation..."

The Facts. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is the agency charged under Executive Order 9835, issued over three years ago, with responsibility for conducting loyalty investigations under the Federal Loyalty Program.

- 5. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: Describing loyalty investigations, Senator McCarthy said, "In dozens of cases, in dozens of cases -- for instance, recommendation from Agent Hiss on State Department employees was all that was needed to completely clear them -- like accepting a recommendation from Dillinger in hiring a bank clerk."

The Facts. There is not a single instance of this.

- 6. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: "You will recall a former State Department employee by the name of George Wheeler recently retired behind the Iron Curtain after making typical communist name calling statements damning and cursing the United States. This man, George Wheeler, who had been assigned tremendously important work by the State Department had first been given a completely clean bill of health by the Loyalty Board even though his file would have convinced anyone who could add two and two that he was a full fledged communist."

The Facts: At no time has the case of George Wheeler ever been considered by a security or loyalty board of the Department of State. Mr. Wheeler was one of a group of former FEA employees in Germany who, in September 1945 were transferred temporarily to the rolls of the State Department. In February 1946 the whole group was transferred to the War Department.

RECEIVED-NICHOLS FBI
U S DEPT OF JUSTICE
JUN 2 1 10 PM '50

and in fact Mr. Wheeler's transfer to the War Department was even earlier -- in December 1945. During his brief time on the State Department pay roll, Mr. Wheeler's case was under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission. All these facts were set out in a departmental press release a month before Senator McCarthy made his misstatements.

These facts were also contained in the Department's analysis of Senator McCarthy's April 20th speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, in which the Department pointed out twelve glaring McCarthy inaccuracies. Senator McCarthy on May 15 replied to the Department's statement by citing two alleged inaccuracies in the Department's analysis of his speech. He was silent as to the remaining ten. Of the two so-called inaccuracies he cited, one pertains to the case of George Wheeler. As to George Wheeler, Senator McCarthy said that the Department should "admit that Wheeler was on the pay roll and given an absolutely clean bill of health by whatever Government Loyalty Board cleared personnel for the State Department." Two comments may be made thereon: first, as of the date of Mr. Wheeler's brief employment with the Department the present loyalty program, under which the Department's loyalty board was established, was not in existence; second, Senator McCarthy's implication was that the Department's Loyalty Board was at fault. Even Senator McCarthy should see the irrelevancy of his attributing to the State Department matters under the jurisdiction of the Civil Service Commission.

7. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: <sup>Table</sup> "Mr. Service, you will recall, was picked up by the FBI in connection with the Amerasia case... The papers carried the story that J. Edgar Hoover, who is not noted for over-statements, that J. Edgar Hoover stated that this is a 100 per cent air-tight case of espionage."

The Facts. On May 1, 1950, Deputy Under Secretary of State Peurifoy in a letter to Mr. Peyton Ford, The Assistant to the Attorney General, asked whether Mr. Hoover, in fact, made any similar statement. Mr. Ford, on May 8, 1950, replied: "You are advised that Mr. Hoover did not make the statement which has been attributed to him."

The exchange of correspondence is attached. (See pp. 8, 9)

8. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: "...the State Department which is about to hear the case of Service is now busily giving Mr. Service's lawyer the secret documents which the President has denied the Senate, this so that he can properly defend Mr. Service."

The Facts. The Department has categorically denied this. Mr. Service has been furnished copies of documents which he himself had prepared for the Department in the course of his duties as a foreign service officer.

Relevant excerpts from a letter of May 4, 1950 by General Conrad E. Snow, Chairman of the Department's Loyalty Security Board, to Mr. Whitelaw Reid, editor of the New York Herald Tribune, are attached. (See page 9)

9. Senator

9. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: "First take the case of Philip Jessup, the State Department's Ambassador at Large. Now, here was really a great joiner, especially Communist front organizations...organizations which the President's own Attorney General and Congressional committee have labeled as agents of the Communist Party."

The Facts. In view of Senator McCarthy's repeated assertions the Department wrote to Mr. Morgan, Counsel of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, investigating Senator McCarthy's charges, to see if Senator McCarthy had supplied them with any information to back up these charges. Mr. Morgan replied that Senator McCarthy has not supplied any such material. The only documentary material supplied to the committee concerning the organizational affiliations or associations of Ambassador Jessup was provided by Senator Hickenlooper, a photostat of one letterhead of the American Law Students Association listing Professor Philip Jessup of Columbia University on the Association's "Faculty Advisory Board." The American Law Students Association is not listed by the Attorney General and does not appear on the list of "Citations by Official Government Agencies" issued in 1948 by the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities.

The correspondence with Mr. Morgan is attached. (See pp. 10 and 11.)

Dr. Jessup testified, before the Subcommittee, that he had joined no Communist-front organizations, whereas the organizations to which he did belong included the following:

- The American Legion (He is a former commander of Utica Post #229)
- The American Philosophical Society
- The Foreign Policy Association
- The American Bar Association

On April 6, 1950 the Utica Post #229 passed a resolution condemning Senator McCarthy's attack upon their past commander, Philip C. Jessup. A copy of this resolution is attached. It will be noted that a copy of it was sent to Senator McCarthy with the admonition that "his reckless and despicable conduct in this instance cannot be condoned by any right-thinking American and should never be repeated if he hopes to retain a shred of public respect." (For copy of resolution, see pp. 11 and 12)

10. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: "Jessup... was largely in charge of a publication known as the Far Eastern Survey, the publication of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations; that he was in charge while it was spewing forth the perfumed Communist Party line sewage...."

The Facts. Senator McCarthy grossly exaggerated Dr. Jessup's relationship with "Far Eastern Survey" based on the single fact that in 1944 Dr. Jessup served on the Research Advisory Committee of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Senator McCarthy's allegation that "Far Eastern Survey" followed the Communist Party originates in discredited contentions made by one Alfred Kohlberg in 1944. The American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations investigated Kohlberg's charges. In a document circulated to its members, it was demonstrated that Kohlberg had ignored the overwhelming number of facts that did not support his contention. The document showed, among other things, that Kohlberg had quoted, in connection with "Far Eastern Survey, and other publications, from less than 2 per cent of the articles published and from less than .002 per cent of the books published. In April 1947, the membership of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations in a vote of 1163 to 66 overwhelmingly repudiated Kohlberg's charges as "inaccurate and irresponsible."

11. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: "I have brought with me photostatic copies of checks representing thousands of dollars of Communist money paid to Jessup's organization." As documentation he provided photostats of two checks signed by Frederick Vanderbilt Field totalling $3,500.

The Facts. This is another repetition of a refuted charge made by Senator McCarthy many times before. Senator McCarthy repeats it although it has already been refuted. The inference is that the Institute of Pacific Relations had been "bought" with Communist money. At that time, Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, President of the University of California, was Chairman of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations; Mr. Francis Harmon, Vice President of the Motion Picture Export Association, was Treasurer; and Mr. William R. Herod, now President of the International General Electric Company, was Chairman of the Finance Committee.

Mr. Juan Trippe, President of Pan American Airways, and Mr. Henry Luce, of Time and Life, were sponsors of a drive during that period for funds on behalf of the American Council of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Mr. Field's contributions, according to Senator McCarthy's own figures, totalled only $3,500, as compared with a total expense for the two-year period of approximately $200,000. About half of the amount was met by contributions from the Rockefeller Foundation and Carnegie Corporation. Generous donations by large industrial concerns made up a large portion of the remainder.

12. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: "Mr. Lattimore, as the nation knows, has long been referred to as the architect of the State Department's Far Eastern policy, the architect whose shadow lingers over the corpse of China."

The Facts. Senator Tydings asked Secretaries Hull, Byrnes, Marshall and Acheson whether this description was true or false. They all replied that it was false. These letters were made public by Senator Tydings on April 29, 1950. The person responsible for long and repeated use of the term "architect of the Far Eastern Policy" is Senator McCarthy who employed the term in his testimony before the Subcommittee.

13. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: "...so that you will have a full picture of the extent to which Lattimore shaped our dismal policy of failure in the Far East, I call to your attention a secret document which he furnished to the State Department in August of 1949, a document which the State Department itself labeled as a guide for Ambassador at Large Jessup..."

The Facts. This is another repetition of a refuted McCarthy charge.

The

The Department publicly and fully explained in press conferences on March 31, that Owen Lattimore was one of a group of 31 persons who submitted written memoranda in response to requests made in August, 1949, by Ambassador Jessup. These memoranda were used as background material by a consultants' committee consisting of Mr. Raymond B. Fosdick, Mr. Everett Case, and Ambassador Jessup in their study of United States foreign policy in the Far East. (Mr. Lattimore's memorandum was never singled out, or labeled as a guide for Ambassador Jessup.) Mr. Lattimore as director of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations at Johns Hopkins, was also one of 25 private individuals participating in a round-table discussion on October 6, 7, and 8, 1949 arranged by the Office of Public Affairs for the purpose of exchanging views with informed private citizens on United States foreign policy toward China. The 31 who submitted memoranda were:

Former Consul General Joseph W. Ballantine, now at Brookings Institution
Professor Hugh Borton, Columbia University
Former President Isaiah Bowman, Johns Hopkins University
Dr. A. J. Brumbaugh, American Council on Education,
Washington.
Former Ambassador William Bullitt
Former Under Secretary Castle
Former Consul John A. Embry
Professor Rupert Emberson, Harvard University
Dr. Charles B. Fahs, New York City
Professor John K. Fairbank, Harvard University
Dr. Huntington Gilchrist, New York City
Professor Carrington Goodrich, Columbia University
Former Under Secretary Grew
Colonel Robert A. Griffin, former Deputy Administrator, ECA China
Former Ambassador Stanley K. Hornbeck
Roger Lapham, Former Administrator, ECA China
Professor Kenneth S. Latourette, Yale University
Professor Owen Lattimore, Director of the Walter Hines
Page School of International Relations, John Hopkins University
Oliver C. Lockhart, Export-Import Bank of Washington
Walter H. Mallory, Council on Foreign Relations
Professor Wallace Moore, Occidental College, Los Angeles
Professor Edwin O. Reischauer, Harvard University
C. A. Richards, Economic Cooperation Administration
Former Minister Walter S. Robertson, Richmond, Virginia
Dr. Lawrence K. Rosinger, New York, New York
Mr. James Rowe, Washington
Mrs. Virginia Thompson (Adloff), New York City
Professor Amry Vandenbosch, University of Kentucky
Professor Karl A. Wittfogel, Columbia University Professor Mary Wright, Stanford University
Admiral Yarnell

The following, including Mr. Lattimore and some others of the 31, attended the Round Table at the Department October 6, 7, and 8 to discuss Far East Policy:

Joseph W. Ballantine, The Brookings Institution,
Washington, D. C.
Bernard Brodie, Department of International Relations,
Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut
Claude A. Buss, Director of Studies, Army War College,
Washington, D. C.

- Kenneth Colgrove, Department of Political Science, Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois.
- Arthur G. Coons, President, Occidental College, Los Angeles, California.
- John W. Decker, International Missionary Council, New York, New York.
- John A. Fairbank, Committee on International and Regional Studies, Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts.
- William R. Herod, President, International General Electric Company, New York, New York.
- Arthur N. Holcombe, Department of Government, Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts.
- Benjamin H. Kizer, Graves, Kizer, and Graves, Spokane, Washington.
- Owen Lattimore, Director, Walter Hines Page School of International Relations, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Maryland.
- Ernest B. MacNaughton, Chairman of the Board, First National Bank, Portland, Oregon.
- George C. Marshall, President, American Red Cross, Washington, D. C.
- J. Morden Murphy, Assistant Vice President, Bankers Trust Company, New York, New York.
- Nathaniel Peffer, Department of Public Law and Government, Columbia University, New York, New York.
- Harold S. Quigley, Department of Political Science, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minnesota.
- Edwin O. Reischauer, Department of Far Eastern Languages, Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts.
- William S. Robertson, President, American and Foreign Power Company, New York, New York.
- John D. Rockefeller, III, President, Rockefeller Brothers' Fund, New York, New York.
- Lawrence K. Rosinger, American Institute of Pacific Relations, New York, New York.
- Eugene Staley, Executive Director, World Affairs Council of Northern California, San Francisco, California.
- Harold Stassen, President, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.
- Phillips Talbot, University of Chicago, Chicago, Illinois.
- George E. Taylor, University of Washington, Seattle, Washington.
- Harold M. Vinacke, Department of Political Science, University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio.

All of the memoranda and all of the views above referred to were of course submitted in confidence by their authors, and the Department could not expect these people to be frank unless it respected that confidence. The Department would not and did not, however, in any way interfere with publication of any memorandum by its author. In fact, the substance of Mr. Lattimore's article was published in an article which he wrote for the January 1950 issue of The Atlantic magazine.

14. Senator McCarthy said at Chicago: "But let me give a brief resume of the official Communist Party program for Asia -- there is no secret about that. Number 1, destroy the armies of Chiang Kai-shek. Number 2, get the United States out of Korea. Number 3, force the withdrawal of United States forces from Japan; and number 4, prevent the formation of a Pacific Pact against Communist aggression.

"Now

"Now, what does Lattimore tell Jessup our policy in Asia should be? Listen to this if you will: Number 1, Abandon Chiang Kai-shek; number 2, get out of Korea; number 3, withdraw United States forces from Japan; and 4, deny the need of a Pacific Pact."

The Facts. This is another repetition of a refuted McCarthy charge.

The United States' record and policy in the Far East, as it relates to the points made by Senator McCarthy may be summarized as follows:

(1) The United States poured tremendous amounts of aid into China in efforts to bolster the government of Chiang Kai-shek.

(2) The United States has led the fight for a free, democratic Korea; has taken its case to the United Nations; and, since the establishment of this government, has contributed substantial economic and military support.

(3) The United States as the principal occupying power in Japan will not enter into any peace treaty which makes impossible adequate protection of United States' security interests in the Western Pacific.

(4) The United States has publicly indicated that it would look with sympathy upon a regional alliance of Pacific nations, provided the impetus for such an association came from the nations themselves.

Following is the material referred to on pages 3 and 4:

Exchange of correspondence between Mr. John E. Peurifoy, Deputy Under Secretary of State, and Mr. Peyton Ford, Assistant to the Attorney General, (referred to on page 3):

May 1, 1950

Dear Mr. Ford:

In his address on April 20, 1950 to the American Society of Newspaper Editors at the Hotel Statler in Washington, Senator McCarthy said:

"One of those arrested was John S. Service. He was never convicted; he was never tried; he was never indicted.

"J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the FBI, publicly stated at the time of the arrests that this case was a 100-per-cent air-tight case of espionage. At the time the case broke John S. Service was picked up by the FBI, Mr. Hoover made that statement, and he seldom errs on the side of overstatement, as you well know."

The Department of State is naturally interested in whether or not this statement of Senator McCarthy is an accurate one. As a result, I would appreciate it if you would inform the Department as soon as possible whether the Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation made any statement similar to that attributed to him by Senator McCarthy.

Sincerely yours

JOHN E. PEURIFOY
Deputy Under Secretary

The Honorable

Peyton Ford,

The Assistant to the Attorney General.

John E. Peurifoy, Esquire
Deputy Under Secretary
Department of State
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Peurifoy:

This is in reply to your letter dated May 1, 1950, inquiring as to the accuracy of a statement alleged to have been made by J. Edgar Hoover, Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation, at the time of the arrest of John S. Service and other suspects involved in the so-called "Amerasia" case. You are advised that Mr. Hoover did not make the statement which has been attributed to him.

Yours Sincerely,

PEYTON FORD

The Assistant to the Attorney General

EXCERPTS FROM GENERAL SNOW'S LETTER TO THE NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

Because of the reputation of the New York Herald Tribune for fair and objective reporting, I am taking the liberty of calling your attention to the headings of two articles which appeared in your issues of May 3 and 4, respectively, regarding the conduct of the John S. Service case by the Loyalty Security Board of the Department of State, of which I am Chairman . . . .

Nor is it true that Mr. Service is being given any illegitimate advantage in the matter of access to papers. Mr. Service has not been given and will not be given access to the loyalty or personnel files which were gathered by the FBI and other investigatory bodies and which were refused by the President to the Senate Committee. Mr. Service is entitled, however, as a matter of elementary fairness to see and put in evidence, any reports or other papers in the files of the State Department which were prepared by him or in connection with the missions on which he served, which may be material to his defense. Action by the Department of State is necessary to permit him to show them to counsel. To date, the only confidential documents on which this action has been taken are documents actually written by Mr. Service himself. This is all there is to that part of the story.

The Loyalty Security Board of the Department of State is a judicial body set up for the purpose of giving to an employee accused of disloyalty, or of being a security risk, a fair hearing. While under the regulations he has no opportunity to confront and cross-examine witnesses who have given confidential information to the Board, or even to see a transcript of their statements, he is advised of the substance of the accusations, and must be given a fair opportunity to defend himself, not only by his own testimony, but also by the production of any witnesses or of any documentary evidence that may tend to establish his innocence of the accusations. The Board has an obligation to give him the fullest opportunity to prepare and present his defense.

Exchange

Exchange of correspondence between Mr. John E. Peurifoy, Deputy Under Secretary of State, and Mr. Edward P. Morgan, Chief Counsel, Foreign Relations Subcommittee Investigating the State Department:
(Referred to on page 4)

Dear Mr. Morgan:

In connection with the analysis of Senator McCarthy's speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors forwarded on May 12, 1950 to the Society by Assistant Secretary Barrett, Senator McCarthy has stated, as quoted on May 15 by the Associated Press:

"The State Department also states that Jessup belonged to no Communist front organizations. I gave photostatic proof to the committee that he was affiliated with five organizations listed by the Attorney General or congressional committees as fronts for the Communist Party.

"He was a director of one of the worst of such organizations named by the Attorney General, namely the China Aid Council of the American League for Peace and Democracy."

At Atlantic City on the same day he said:

"... Now, the thing they forget is that I have presented to the Committee photostats showing that he belonged, that he was affiliated with not one, but with five Communist front organizations; and that he not only belonged to, but was a Director of one of the worst of the lot, named as such by the Attorney General..."

In view of these assertions of Senator McCarthy, it would be very much appreciated if you could make available to this Department copies of the photostats which the Committee has received from him.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN E. PEURIFOY

Mr. Edward P. Morgan,
Chief Counsel,
Foreign Relations Subcommittee,
The Capitol.

May 17, 1950

Mr. John E. Peurifoy
Deputy Undersecretary
U.S. State Department
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Peurifoy:

Reference is made to your letter of May 16, 1950, referring in turn to the remarks, as quoted by the Associated Press, of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy relative to Dr. Philip Jessup, as follows:

"The State Department also states that Jessup belonged to Communist front organizations. I gave photostatic proof to the committee that he was affiliated with five organizations listed by the Attorney General or congressional committees as fronts for the Communist Party.

"He was a director of one of the worst of such organizations named by the Attorney General, namely the China Aid Council of the American League for Peace and Democracy."

". . . Now, the thing they forget is that I have presented to the Committee photostats showing that he belonged, that he was affiliated with not one, but with five Communist front organizations; and that he not only belonged to, but was a Director of one of the worst of the lot, named as such by the Attorney General. . . ."

Relative to your request for photostatic copies of the material stated to have been turned over to the subcommittee by Senator McCarthy, you are advised that after a careful and diligent search of our files, we find no record of any material having been turned over to the subcommittee by Senator McCarthy indicating that Dr. Jessup has been associated with Communist front organizations.

For your information, however, in the course of Senator Hickenlooper's examination of Dr. Jessup, he offered in evidence, at page 530 of the transcript, a photostat of a letterhead of an organization known as the American Law Student's Association on which "Prof. Philip Jessup" of Columbia University is listed on the "Faculty Advisory Board", along with other named individuals. The Subcommittee has been supplied no other documentary material concerning organizational affiliations or associations of Dr. Jessup.

After hearing of Senator McCarthy's statements referred to above, I immediately called his office requesting the photostatic material to which he referred. Again on May 16, 1950, I called Senator McCarthy personally, advising that the subcommittee had not been supplied the photostatic material concerning Dr. Jessup to which he had referred and requested that he supply the same for our record. As yet, I have not been supplied the photostats in question.

Should they be received by me, I shall be glad to make copies thereof available to your office.

Sincerely yours,

EDWARD P. MORGAN
Chief Counsel
Subcommittee Investigating the State Department.

RESOLUTION CONDEMNING ATTACK UPON PAST COMMANDER PHILIP C. JESSUP ADOPTED AT A REGULAR MEETING OF UTICA POST #229 AMERICAN LEGION, HELD ON APRIL 6TH, 1950 (Referred to on page 4)

WHEREAS, Utica Post #229 American Legion is proud to number among the list of its Past Commanders a distinguished comrade, charter member, Ambassador Philip C. Jessup, whose public devotion and continued helpfulness to our period of many years is a source of great satisfaction to Utica Post and to its entire member-

WHEREAS.

WHEREAS, the sterling character, splendid reputation, and unquestionable loyalty and patriotism of Past Commander Philip C. Jessup, both privately and in his public capacity as U.S. Ambassador-at-Large, have recently been subjected to scurrilous, unprincipled, and wholly unjustifiable attack by one Joseph McCarthy, who in so doing has sullied the office of U.S. Senator which he presently holds,

NOW THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that Utica Post $229 American Legion and its entire membership shall and do strongly resent, condemn and decry the unprincipled, unjustified, unsportsmanlike, un-American and intolerable conduct of Senator Joseph McCarthy in his wanton attempt without proof or reason to smear and destroy the good reputation and high standing of so devoted and patriotic a citizen as our esteemed and valued friend and comrade, the Honorable Philip C. Jessup, U.S. Ambassador-at-Large; and be it further

RESOLVED, that Utica Post $229 American Legion and its members in meeting duly assembled feel privileged at this time to reaffirm their continued trust and confidence in, their esteem and devotion to, and their lasting friendship for a distinguished public servant, a loyal patriot, and a great citizen, the Hon. Philip C. Jessup, a Past Commander of this Post; and be it further

RESOLVED that this resolution be inscribed upon the Minutes of this meeting, that a copy thereof be delivered to our comrade, Ambassador Jessup; that a second copy be delivered to the public press; and that a third copy be mailed to Senator McCarthy with the admonition that his reckless and despicable conduct in this instance cannot be condoned by any right thinking American and should never be repeated if he hopes to retain a shred of public respect.

COMMUNISTS IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT
(ALLEGATIONS BY SENATOR McCARTHY)
LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

PURPOSE: To furnish you summaries of information contained in Bureau files concerning Clarence John Nelson, David Zablodowsky and Serban Vallimarescu whom the State Department has named as being possibly identical with three individuals mentioned by Senator McCarthy in his speech in the Senate on June 6, 1950.

BACKGROUND: You will recall that Senator Joseph R. McCarthy made a speech in the Senate on June 6, 1950, in which he referred to a chart alleged to have been prepared by the Bureau purportedly showing the number of "agents," "Communists," "sympathizers" and "suspects" in the State Department as of May 15, 1947. Senator McCarthy made the statement that three persons listed in the chart are still on the rolls of the State Department. In your memorandum dated June 6, 1950, to Mr. Tolson, Mr. Nichols and myself you pointed out that you had advised Mr. Peyton Ford of the Department that the State Department had tentatively identified two of the three persons mentioned by Senator McCarthy as Clarence J. Nelson and David Zablodowsky but had no idea as to who the third individual was. In your memorandum you penned the notation: "What do our files show on Nelson and Zablodowsky?"

You will also recall that on June 7, 1950, as reflected in my memorandum to you, State Department officials advised Mr. Roach of the Liaison Section that they have been able to identify two of the individuals named by Senator McCarthy, namely, Clarence Nelson and Serban Vallimarescu. The same officials stated that David Zablodowsky may or may not be the third person.

With regard to Clarence J. Nelson, who has been employed by the State Department since 1938 as a telegrapher, this individual has been investigated on three separate occasions by the Bureau. Nelson was first investigated at the request of the State Department during May and June, 1940, and a copy of the report reflecting the results of the investigation was forwarded to the State Department on July 26, 1940. Nelson was again investigated by the Bureau during the period from March to June, 1942, and copies of the reports covering that investigation were likewise forwarded to the State Department at that time for consideration under the Hatch Act. By letter dated October 24, 1944, the State Department recommended that the case concerning Nelson be closed. A full field loyalty investigation was conducted regarding Nelson from June through August, 1948. Copies of the loyalty reports were furnished to the Civil Service Commission on August 26, 1948, and by letter dated January 9, 1949, the Commission advised that Nelson was being retained.

David Zablodowsky, mentioned by the State Department, is undoubtedly identical with David Zablodowsky, a former employee of the Office of Strategic Services. On December 2, 1942, a Hatch Act investigation was instituted concerning David Zablodowsky, then a Senior Economics Editor, Research and Analysis Branch, Presentation Division, Editorial Section, Office of Strategic Services, Washington, D. C. Copies of reports containing the results of the investigation were transmitted to the Interdepartmental Committee on Employee Investigations on March 16, 1944. By letter dated March 6, 1945, to Honorable Herbert E. Gaston, Chairman, Interdepartmental Committee on Employee Investigations, Lieutenant Colonel O. C. Doering, Jr., Office of Strategic Services, advised that David Zablodowsky was being retained. A preliminary loyalty inquiry was instituted on March 21, 1950, to determine whether Zablodowsky is currently employed by the Federal Government. It was ascertained from the Civil Service Commission that he is not an employee, having left his employment with the Department of State in 1945.

Based upon a request from the State Department, the Bureau initiated a Security investigation regarding Serban Vallimarescu on May 29, 1946. The investigation was discontinued when Vallimarescu resigned from his position on September 23, 1946. Copies of reports containing pertinent information were furnished the State Department on October 4, 1946, and December 11, 1946. On May 14, 1948, at the request of the State Department, an investigation of Vallimarescu was initiated under the provisions of Public Law 402, 80th Congress (Voice of America) and copies of reports reflecting the results of the completed investigation were transmitted to the State Department by letter dated July 16, 1948.

ACTION: None. Summaries on Clarence J. Nelson, David Zablodowsky and  are attached for your information.

DAVID ZABLODOWSKY

Background

David Zablodowsky was born in New York City on February 1, 1903, and attended Columbia University, New York City, from September, 1921 until June, 1927, and from September, 1938 until June, 1940, receiving A.B. and M.A. degrees. He also attended the International School (League of Nations) Geneva, Switzerland, from June, 1925 until September, 1925. Zablodowsky was employed as Editor of the Viking Press, Inc., New York City, from March, 1928 until May 20, 1940 and as general manager and editor of Modern Age Books, Inc., NYC, from May 20, 1940, until September, 1942. He entered on duty as a Sr. Economics Editor, Research and Analysis Branch, Presentation Division, Editorial Section, Office of Strategic Services, Washington, D. C., on September 21, 1942. In 1942 he was residing at Park Street and Trowbridge Road, Vienna, Virginia, having previously lived at Mount Airy Road, Croton-on-Hudson, New York. In January, 1944, he was residing at 418 S. Lee Street, Alexandria, Virginia. (101-5828)

A list of persons notified to the Secretary of State under the International Organization Immunities Act (approved December 29, 1945) as of November 1, 1946 carried the name of David Zablodowsky, Deputy Special Services Officer, Hotel Taft, New York. (62-77787-1816, pg. 62)

The name "David Zablodowsky (American) Presentation Officer, Hotel Taft, New York, New York" is contained in a list of United Nations Organization personnel as of May 1, 1947. (62-77787-2532, pg. 179)

Investigation by Bureau

On December 2, 1942, a Hatch Act investigation concerning David Zablodowsky, an employee of the Office of Strategic Services, was instituted based upon information received from New York T-1 (former Confidential Informant Robert M.) to the effect that Zablodowsky was "a fanatical and important Communist" who had been extremely clever in hiding his Communist affiliations in recent years. The informant claimed to have received information that Zablodowsky was working "sub rosa" for the Communist Party and also had several dealings with Robert Wohlforth, then chief investigator for the La Follette Civil Liberties Committee. During the investigation New York T-2 [redacted] advised that he had known Zablodowsky personally for many years and had known him to be a member of the Communist Party and to be "a Communist of the vicious type," based upon a statement he overheard Zablodowsky make in 1936 to another person indicating he would meet him at the Party Fraction Meetings. The informant stated it was common knowledge at that time that Zablodowsky was a member of the Communist Party. It was his recollection that Zablodowsky was known as the "Communist Party whip in the Book and Magazine Guild." New York T-3 [redacted] and a former member of the Communist Party, stated he was personally acquainted with Zablodowsky as both were members of the Book and Magazine Guild and that Zablodowsky had looked after Communist Party interests in the Guild. He advised that he had taken it for granted that Zablodowsky was a Party member although he had never seen his Communist Party membership book. Mr. Eugene Lyons, Editor of the American Mercury, and Mr. Benjamin Stolberg, writer, advised that Zablodowsky had the reputation among editors, authors and newspapermen of being a member of the Communist Party. Mr. Lyons and Mr. Stolberg had previously characterized Zablodowsky as "a member of the Communist Party" in articles they had published. New York T-4 [redacted] stated he was aware of a story to the effect that Zablodowsky was used as a mail drop for one A. Rubins, an admitted OGPU Agent although he had no information to prove this. According to New York T-18 (technical surveillance on [redacted]) Zablodowsky was well acquainted with [redacted] member of the National Committee of the Communist Party and head of International Publishers, Communist Party publishing house. A number of other informants stated they believed Zablodowsky was a Communist sympathizer. (101-5828-5, 6)

Investigation at Washington, D. C., disclosed that the records of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, House of Representatives, indicate David Zablodowsky was a member of the Editorial Committee of the American League Against War and Fascism and had contributed to the "Daily Worker" on August 19, 1933. These files reflect that one Genevieve Lisitzky, 243 West 11th Street, Manhattan, New York, signed a Communist Party election petition for 1939 - 1940. Genevieve Lisitzky is the maiden name of Zablodowsky's wife. It was determined that the CSC had previously conducted an investigation of Zablodowsky, during the course of which he was variously described as "liberal," "pro-Communist," and "a person who refused to publish anti-Communist books." Zablodowsky was interviewed by a representative of the CSC and admitted he was acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Minor whom he described as Communist leaders. He stated that he, Zablodowsky, was probably a member of the American League Against War and Fascism and was a member of the American League for Peace and Democracy. When interviewed on January 5, 1944, at the Washington Field Office, Zablodowsky denied membership or activity in the Communist Party. He advised that he had been a member of the Committee for Struggle Against War and its successor, the American League Against War and Fascism. Zablodowsky stated he had served in an editorial capacity on the magazine "Fight", published by the American League Against War and Fascism. He advised that he believed his membership had terminated prior to the time the organization became known as the American League for Peace and Democracy. (101-5828-12, 15) U

On March 16, 1944, copies of reports reflecting the results of the Hatch Act investigation were transmitted to the Interdepartmental Committee on Employee Investigations. By letter dated March 6, 1945, to Honorable Herbert E. Gaston, Chairman, Interdepartmental Committee on Employee Investigations, Lt. Colonel O. C. Doering, Jr., of the Office of Strategic Services advised that David Zablodowsky was being retained in his position with the Office of Strategic Services. (101-5828-19) U

Other Subversive Information in Bureau Files

The "Guild News" for January, 1940 attacked an article in the New York Herald Tribune of November 29, 1939, written by Benjamin Stolberg, former Communist, who said that the Communists had captured the Book and Magazine Guild along with the American Federation of Teachers and the American Newspaper Guild. Stolberg went on to say that the Book and Magazine Guild had delayed publication of his book, "Inside the CIO" because David Zablodowsky, a Communist Party member of the Guild, was employed as an Assistant Editor by the Viking Press. In answer to the charge by Stolberg, the "Guild News" quoted Harold Guinsburg, President of the Viking Press, as stating that Zablodowsky had said he was never a Communist. (61-10490-146) U

On December 2, 1940, Mr. Harvey Wolf, 3938½ South Grand Avenue, Los Angeles, California, an admitted former member of the Communist Party, advised that one David Zablodowsky, was among a number of individuals who were engaged in Communist activities. He advised that they occupied positions on the "intellectual front" and rendered a most valuable service as propagandists. Wolf stated that these individuals traveled back and forth across the continent, supporting and taking part in Communist front meetings and the program of the Party politically. (39-915-684) U

A memorandum dated January 5, 1942, set forth information concerning conversations between Alexander Trachtenberg, Secretary and Treasurer of International Publishers, New York City and Edward I. Aronow, a New York City attorney, concerning the campaign then being U conducted by the Communist Party to free Earl Browder, as obtained by the New York Office. In these conversations, references were made to "the old man" and his interest in the campaign to free Browder and that "the old man" was to carry the matter to the "chief executive". It was subsequently ascertained that "the old man" was Senator Elbert D. Thomas of Utah. It was also pointed out that one David Zablajosky (phonetic), possibly identical with David Zablodowsky, editor of the Viking Press was reported to have had a conference with "the old man" allegedly with reference to the freedom of Earl Browder. In August, 1942 the Office of Censorship furnished information to the effect that in a letter dated August 4, 1942 signed "David Zablodowsky" from Modern Age Books, Inc., 245 5th Ave., New York, New York, to Bodo Uhse, Cerrada De Londres 15 Dep. 15, Mexico, D. F., it was stated that the last of Uhse's manuscripts had been sent and that the stories had been handed to Maxim Lieber. The Office of Censorship advised that its records indicated that Uhse was formerly a Fascist and was at that time a "Communazi," associated with Margarita Nelken, an agent gaining admission for German Fifth Columnists to Mexico. (62-62736-2-12147) U

On December 11, 1942, former Confidential Informant Robert M. advised that Vera Brailowsky had admitted to him in 1936 that she was a member of the Communist Party and had told him that David Zablodowsky was also a Party member. (100-198347-3) U

In September, 1944 MID advised the NY Office that David Zablodowsky was well known as a Communist, gave free support to the Soviets during the Moscow trials, and had been a scrupulously adherent fellow traveler for over 10 years. (121-51-19) U

Alexander Gregory-Graff Barmine, New York City, a former Red Army officer and Communist Party member, while employed by the Office of Strategic Services prior to December 1, 1944, reportedly advised his superior, a Mr. Ullman, that David Zablodowsky, OSS employee, was a member of the Communist Party and was formerly a mail drop for the OGPU. In this connection, it is to be noted that, when interviewed during the course of the Hatch Act investigation regarding Zablodowsky, Barmine stated he did not know Zablodowsky personally but knew him by reputation and advised that from his knowledge and experience in the Soviet Union it was his firm conviction that Zablodowsky, as Vice President and General Manager of Modern Age Books, Inc., had to be a member of the Communist Party. He stated he had once seen a directive or circular promulgated by the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Moscow to the effect that executives of Communist Party publishing houses, wherever located throughout the world, had to be members of the Communist Party. He furnished no information at that time to indicate that Zablodowsky had been a mail drop for the OGPU. (74-1333-3221, pg. 276) U

An article in the Washington Times Herald on August 22, 1945, concerning the Office of Strategic Services stated in part: "David Zablodowsky, contributor to the Daily Worker, official Communist daily, and member of the Editorial Board of 'Flight', official organ of the American League Against War and Fascism, is Senior Economic Director. Zablodowsky was cited by former Attorney General Biddle as subversive." (62-64427-A) U

In a letter to the Bureau dated February 25, 1946, Mrs. Margaret Dunne, 62 First Street, New York, New York, described David Zablodowsky, Office of Strategic Services, as a Communist. (100-0-21264) U

On June 12, 1946, the Department of State advised that Presentation Associates, Inc., was composed largely of officers of the Department of State and that practically every person concerned with it was identified as being either a Communist or a Communist sympathizer. The Department of State advised that David Zablodowsky was reported to be spending considerable time at Presentation Associates Inc., during official government hours and that he had consistently been reported as a member of the Communist Party. It was later learned that the Certificate of Incorporation for Presentation, Inc. listed David Zablodowsky as a stockholder. (100-345490-1, 2)

Confidential Informant Z advised that in a letter mailed to Mary Jane Keeney, suspected Russian espionage agent, on August 9, 1946, Daniel Melcher, 476 N Street, S. W., Washington, D. C., mentioned that David Zablodowsky was with the United Nations in NYC. (65-56402-1638X, pg. 72) S

On January 31, 1947, and April 24, 1947, the Military District of Washington furnished information to the effect that an informant had advised that David Zablodowsky was among former OSS officers who were members of the Veterans of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade. (100-7060-370, 378; 100-7660-4314X) U

A document prepared by Mr. Benjamin Stolberg, 222 West 23rd Street, NYC, for the National Industrial Conference Board, NYC, and made available on March 1, 1947, reflects that David Zablowsky was an assistant to Alger Hiss at the San Francisco Conference which organized the United Nations. This document states in part, "Zablowsky has a long Party line record. During the Hoover administration he was Editor of the Bulletin of the American Committee for Struggle Against War which became the American League Against War and Fascism and still later the American League for Peace and Democracy. In 1933 and 1934 he was Editor of 'Fight', the official organ of this Communist front which was cited as subversive by Attorney General Francis Biddle. Throughout the thirties he was as busy as a bee in various Communist dominated enterprises. He was on the Editorial Board of the Office Worker, official organ of the UOPWA, the Communist dominated CIO Office Workers Union. He was also the moving spirit in the Book and Magazine Guild, another Communist dominated union in the publishing field. Later he became the Editor of Modern Age Books, a decidedly left wing publishing firm. During the war Zablowsky was with the OSS, where he was an active member of the Communist 'fraction' - - General 'Wild Bill' Donovan, head of the OSS, had the wild idea that he needed both Communists and Fascists in his outfit and that he knew how to handle them. For a time in between, Zablowsky was with the Office of Intelligence Collection and Dissemination of the State Department. When interviewed in March, 1949, regarding Alger Hiss, Ralph Toledano, anti-Communist author, advised that he was informed that David Zablodowsky was placed into the United Nations and into the State Department upon the recommendation of Alger Hiss. (74-1333-2998)

A summary prosecutive report dated March 30, 1949, prepared by the New York Office regarding Alger Hiss contains personal history and background data regarding Jay David Whittaker Chambers as related by him. He stated that while attending college he used to eat his lunch with a group including one David Zablodowsky. Chambers related that from these individuals he had his first exposure to Marxist ideas. He advised that they had long and violent arguments in which they had tried to convert him to Marxism. Chambers noted, however, that all of the members of this group were not "Socialists" to the same degree. (74-1333-3221, pg. 229)

CLARENCE JOHN NELSON

Background:

Clarence John Nelson was born June 10, 1897, at Ludington, Michigan. He served in the United States Navy from January 1918, until honorably discharged in September, 1921. From 1921 to 1938, he was employed as a telegrapher at Detroit, Michigan, Washington, D. C., New Orleans, Louisiana, Chicago, Illinois, Lincoln, Nebraska and Grand Rapids, Michigan. From September, 1924 to March, 1927, he also attended the National College of Chiropractic at Chicago receiving a PH.C. degree on March 30, 1927. Nelson practiced Chiropractic in the vicinity of Ludington, Michigan, in the early 1930's.

Nelson has been employed by the Department of State, Washington, D. C., since August 22, 1938, and served for about ten months commencing in January, 1945, with the State Department in London, England. He is currently employed as a telegrapher in the Division of Communications and Records at the State Department, Washington, D. C., and resides with his wife at 4023 Kansas Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C. (State Department records and Loyalty Form, 121-11044-1,5)

Investigations by Bureau:

The Bureau commenced an investigation concerning Clarence John Nelson at the request of the State Department on May 25, 1940. The State Department reported that Nelson, who was then employed as a telegrapher in the State Department, had attempted to distribute the "Daily Worker" on two or three occasions. This investigation was discontinued on June 8, 1940, upon the request of the State Department. A report prepared on the investigation completed prior to the request for discontinuance, a copy of which was furnished to the State Department on July 26, 1940, reflects that H. C. McMakin, a telegrapher employed by the U. S. Navy at Washington, D. C., said that he had observed "Bolshevistic literature" in a trunk owned by Nelson and stored in the attic of McMakin's home. McMakin stated that in his opinion, Nelson was a radical and did not believe in the American flag. John L. Bishop, an employee of the Navy Department, Washington, D. C., also stated that he felt that Nelson was inclined to be radical. Bishop was unable to furnish specific information in this regard. (65-12813-1,34)

Nelson was again investigated by the Bureau during March-June, 1942. This investigation was instituted under the character "State Department - Special Inquiry," but was converted into a Hatch Act investigation.

Hofman stated that Nelson did not indicate any radical tendencies as of 1917, but that during the course of the next thirteen years, when he and Nelson were engaged in similar jobs as telegraph operators, he noted that Nelson developed a strong radical Communist attitude. He characterized Nelson as a "soap box" type of agitator for Communist principles. (77-18892-12 pg 1, 2)

Source of Information B of the Grand Rapids Office [redacted]

[redacted] stated that he had known Nelson since 1932, when the latter lived in Ludington, Michigan. According to Swarthout, Nelson was a known Communist while living in Ludington and was a ring leader and organizer for the local young Communists. (77-18892-12 pg 2)

Source of Information C of the Grand Rapids Office [redacted]

[redacted] described Nelson as one who preached disgruntled, dissatisfied, anti-democratic doctrines. In Barber's opinion, Nelson's statements could be described as either Socialistic or Communistic. He stated that Nelson was active in Ludington during the early 1930's as an organizer of local young Communists who were seeking higher wages on the WPA and holding meetings to secure volunteers to fight for Loyalist Spain. (77-18892-12 pg2)

Sources of Information A, B and C stated they did not know whether or not Nelson was actually a member of the Communist Party while residing at Ludington, Michigan.

Confidential Informant T-1 [redacted]

[redacted] stated that he met Nelson in 1937, while both were employed by J. C. Satch and Company, stock brokers at Battle Creek, Michigan. He said that he had spent numerous evenings in the company of Nelson and his wife and had heard Nelson discuss social and political problems. This informant stated that Nelson admitted having made many "soap box" speeches in his youth prior to 1937. The informant added, however, that he had no present knowledge indicating Nelson's association with any radical group or organization. (77-18892-11)

Confidential Informant T-1 of the Denver Office [redacted]

[redacted] also characterized Nelson as a "soap box" orator. He stated that Nelson had books on Karl Marx and Communism in his library and that on one occasion Nelson had tried to talk the informant into going to Russia with him to work as a telegrapher, stating that they would get $400 a month in Russia and would be ranked next to professional men. Informant said that Nelson gave the general impression "Russia is a little bit better place to go than the United States." Confidential Informant T-2 of the Denver Office [redacted] stated that Nelson had told her in 1936, that he intended to vote for Earl Browder for president. This informant stated that on one occasion Nelson gave her a book to read on Russia. She was unable to recall the name of the book but remembered that it pictured Russia as an ideal country. (77-18892-6)

Confidential Informant T-2 of the Washington Field Office [redacted]

[redacted] of Nelson, stated that he received the publication "In Fact" (cited by HCUA as "Communist front") as of March, 1942. She added that Nelson believed in Russia and that Communism was not as bad as some people painted it. (77-18892-4 pg 2)

Nelson was interviewed by Bureau Agents on August 3, 1942. He executed a signed statement in which he denied membership in or activity on behalf of the Communist Party, the Young Communist League or any other organization advocating the overthrow of the Federal Government. (77-18892-13)

Copies of the reports prepared during the investigation conducted during March-June, 1942, were furnished to the Department of State. In a letter dated October 24, 1944, the Department of State recommended that the case be closed without further action and added that Nelson's superiors in the State Department "have no reason whatever to be suspicious of the man or his work."

The Bureau conducted a loyalty investigation concerning Nelson during June-August, 1948. The loyalty investigation was predicated upon information furnished by Confidential Informant Washington T-1 [redacted]

[redacted] to the effect that Nelson "liked Communist people better than Americans" and that he had observed a number of books in Nelson's trunk which appeared to be "Communist propaganda." Substantive information developed in the earlier investigations was incorporated in the loyalty reports. In addition, the loyalty investigation developed information to the effect that Nelson had been active in the Workers Alliance in Michigan and was generally described by fellow employees, neighbors and friends as a person who often expressed anti-capitalist views and one who liked to argue in order to show his knowledge and to make himself appear important.

Mr. T. J. Barber, Chief of Police at Ludington, Michigan, stated during the course of the loyalty investigation, that Nelson was one of the original WPA workers in the Ludington area. He said that Nelson was generally reputed to be one of the active members of the Workers Alliance (cited by the Attorney General as Communist), an organization which grew up within the WPA and which had the reputation of being a Socialistic organization. Chief Barber added that he was well-acquainted with Nelson and said that Nelson had never advocated any disloyal policies in his presence and that he personally had no proof that Nelson was a member of the Workers Alliance. Mr. Edward Larson, City Manager, Ludington, Michigan, stated that he was Assistant Engineer on local WPA projects while Nelson was employed on the WPA. Larson recalled that Nelson was a close associate of Oscar Peterson who headed the Workers Alliance at Ludington. Mr. Desiree Smith, a pool room proprietor at Ludington, recalled that in the early 1930's Nelson and his friends were in the habit of visiting his establishment for coffee after meetings of their organization which Mr. Smith believed was the Workers Alliance. On these occasions, according to Smith, Nelson carried a brief case and it was Mr. Smith's belief that Nelson was Secretary of the organization. Smith added that he had never heard Nelson advocate any policies which he considered to be disloyal. (121-11044-35)

Frederick Falkenberg, Jr., an employee of the Public Buildings Administration, San Francisco, California, executed a signed statement in which he said that he had been acquainted with Nelson while he, Falkenberg, was employed as a member of the Guard Force at the State Department, Washington, D. C., in 1940. Falkenberg said it was common talk among the Guard Force as well as the employees of the State Department that Nelson was a Communist. Falkenberg was unable to recall specific information in this regard, except a conversation which he had had with Nelson in which the latter had stated he thought we needed a change in Government. Falkenberg said he asked Nelson if he meant a Communist government and according to Falkenberg, Nelson replied in the affirmative. (121-11044-27 pg 1).

A number of fellow employees of Nelson at Washington, D. C., stated that he had often expressed anti-capitalist views saying that wealthy people kept the middle class down. A number of these associates were of the opinion that Nelson held Communist leanings and based their opinions on his anti-capitalist statements. None of these individuals furnished any information indicating Nelson's activity in the Communist Party or related organizations. (121-11044-5)

State Department files contained a copy of a report on a hearing afforded Nelson by the State Department on June 12, 1947, in which Nelson said that he abhorred Communism and considered it more dangerous to our way of life than Nazism. During the State Department hearing, Nelson said that he had seen the "New Masses" and the "Daily Worker" on occasion but that he was not a subscriber or regular reader of these publications. (121-11044-5)

Copies of the reports prepared during the loyalty investigation were furnished to the Civil Service Commission on August 26, 1948. In a letter dated January 9, 1949, the Loyalty Review Board advised that Nelson was being "Retained."

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~Basis for Lyon's Request

Mr. Lyon furnished the Bureau an intra State Department memorandum dated May 6, 1946 which related in substance the following information in the nature of a series of circumstances he believed might be indicative of disloyalty on the part of [redacted]

[redacted] was handling all secret and confidential information concerning Rumania in his section and had access to top secret material which came into his branch in the State Department. In December, 1945, [redacted] attended a cocktail party at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, accompanied by a female employee of the State Department whom he had invited. [redacted] carried a manila envelope with him to the party which was being held in the suite of Lieutenant General Vladimar Stoichev, Bulgarian Military Representative in the United States. [redacted] reportedly laid the manila envelope on a chair at the party and it was subsequently retrieved by General Stoichev. The female employee subsequently heard [redacted] say to General Stoichev: "What do you think of my home work?"

[redacted] guest reported to State Department officials that she had met one Boyan Chukanov, Bulgarian Press representative in the United States, who was most gracious to her and was inquisitive as to her employment.

In January, 1946, the Strategic Services Unit was making plans to send two undercover representatives to Bucharest. One of the persons to be sent was [redacted]. In February or March, 1946 [redacted] was successful in obtaining admittance, utilizing his State Department pass, to the section of the Strategic Services Unit building reserved for X-2 staff members. The female employee previously mentioned worked there as did [redacted]. [redacted] was not entitled to enter this restricted section of the building. He had a luncheon engagement with the female employee and insisted that [redacted] accompany them. He also insisted that they eat at a particular restaurant, a request which Mr. Lyon said appeared unusual.

The two employees who were to go in undercover capacity to Rumania subsequently were granted admittance permits by the Soviet Military authorities there with unusual speed. The reversal of prevailing Soviet policy of delay in issuing such permits was taken by the State Department officials as a possible indication that the two agents might have been identified. The issuance of these permits apparently occurred the latter part of April or early May, 1946. About the middle of May, 1946, [redacted] at 6:15 P.M., a rather odd hour, tried to reach [redacted] by telephone at the Strategic Services Unit Office. He was advised [redacted] was no longer with that organization. The State Department memorandum indicated that [redacted] had not seen [redacted] at any time after the luncheon mentioned above and did not subsequently endeavor to contact him, although [redacted] was still in Washington.

It appeared to the State Department that [redacted] may have been making the call to [redacted] as an agent for someone else to determine whether [redacted] was still an employee of the Strategic Services Unit. The State Department memorandum asserted that there might have been some connection between this telephone call and the rapid extension by Soviet Military authorities of the admittance permits to [redacted] and the other Strategic Services Unit undercover agent. It pointed out that [redacted] has a reputation at the State Department for not being security conscious and that he is regarded somewhat of a "play boy," spending only a bare minimum of time at his desk. (100-345176-2)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Results of Internal Security Investigation

As a result of Mr. Lyon's request, the Washington Field Office by letter dated May 29, 1946, was ordered to institute an immediate Internal Security R investigation concerning [redacted]. This investigation is reported in file 100-345176.

It was determined that the female employee of the State Department, who was the source of the information relating to [redacted] contact with Lieutenant General Vladimir Stoichev, was [redacted] an employee of the Strategic Services Unit at the State Department. She said upon interview that [redacted] had escorted her to the Shoreham Hotel during December, 1945, where they had attended a cocktail party in the lounge. Upon arrival, [redacted] discovered that General Stoichev was in the group, as was Bayon Chukanov, the Bulgarian Press representative in the United States. She said that [redacted] had given her the impression that he was anti-Soviet and that during the course of the party at the Shoreham Hotel he took her aside and told her he suspected that Bayon Chukanov was a "Red."

During the party, [redacted] explained to [redacted] that he had to leave for a short time and go home and get some papers for General Stoichev. [redacted] who lived only a short distance from the hotel, returned in a very short time with the papers, which were contained in a manila envelope. He left the envelope on a chair and asked [redacted] to dance. When the party broke up those in attendance repaired to General Stoichev's suite at the Shoreham. Upon arrival there [redacted] remembered the envelope had been left on a chair in the cocktail lounge. She reminded [redacted] who returned to the lounge and brought the envelope to General Stoichev's suite.

[redacted] asserted that there was not the slightest attempt at secrecy on the part of [redacted] and General Stoichev. As for Bayon Chukanov, [redacted] said that he seemed to take a fancy to her and shortly after this cocktail party he invited her to lunch. She accepted his invitation and lunched with him at the Madrilion Restaurant. She said he called her several times after this but owing to her position in the State Department she felt she should not be consorting with such a man as Chukanov and therefore declined his invitations.

[redacted] related that she had become acquainted with [redacted] at Bucharest where she was stationed from November, 1944, to June, 1945. During this time [redacted] consorted chiefly with the French diplomatic group. She saw him and conversed with him occasionally and she added he did not give her the impression that he was pro-Soviet. She recalled that she had first met [redacted] in Bucharest. This was about Christmas time in 1944. She believed that [redacted] had come to Bucharest from Istanbul where her father held some position of influence on behalf of the Rumanian Government.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

The Washington Field Office reports set forth the allegations received from [redacted] background information concerning [redacted] and the results of surveillances and auxiliary investigation concerning the subject. According to the reports of Special Agent [redacted] dated August 22, 1946, and November 13, 1946, no suspicious activities on the part of Vallimarescu were noted. The investigation included an examination of [redacted] personal effects. From these personal effects it was determined that [redacted] address book contained a number of entries, among them being the name [redacted] and the name Free World, 55 West 42nd Street, New York, New York.

Concerning the name [redacted], it is noted information was received in an anonymous letter during 1941 that on [redacted] was one of three international Communists who was reportedly coming to the United States from France in 1941. (100-22951-1)

A search of the files of the Boston Office during the Internal Security - R investigation of [redacted] revealed that in May, 1943, [redacted] an agent for the John Hancock Life Insurance Company, Somerville, Massachusetts, Branch Office, advised that [redacted] a student at Tufts Medical College was the son of the famous [redacted] of the French Army. Information was received from a highly confidential source that [redacted] had signed his name to a scroll of greeting to the Soviet Army, which scroll emanated from Tufts College. The date this information was received is not set out in the Boston report. (100-345176-6)

In connection with "Free World," [redacted] an official of "Free World Association," advised in 1943 that this organization, an affiliate of "Free World, Incorporated," and the "Free World Association," as "viewed from the outside, seems to be dedicated to the destruction of the Axis and the construction of international cooperation," but that "its double goal is directed toward putting this Association in the service of Russia, if not here in the United States, then in Europe during its period of reconstruction." [redacted] further stated that these organizations were dominated by [redacted] (123-3010-4)

The Internal Security investigation of [redacted] was discontinued upon receipt of a State Department memorandum dated December 19, 1946, which advised that [redacted] had resigned from the State Department effective September 23, 1946, and which stated that further investigation was not desired by the Department of State. It is noted that a copy of the report of Special Agent [redacted] dated August 22, 1946, was furnished to the State Department on October 4, 1946, and that Special Agent [redacted] report dated November 13, 1946, was furnished to the State Department on December 11, 1946.

II. Voice of America Investigation

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

On May 14, 1948, at the request of the State Department, we initiated a Voice of America investigation concerning [redacted]. This investigation did not develop any derogatory information relating to the loyalty of [redacted] but on the contrary a number of persons who were interviewed described him as being anti-Communist. Copies of reports reflecting the completed investigation were transmitted to the State Department by letter dated July 16, 1948, and this letter called the State Department's attention to the data contained in the reports of Special Agent [redacted] which had been furnished to the State Department during 1946. Other References to [redacted] in Bureau Files

On November 26, 1948, [redacted] and her attorney appeared at the New York Office and related the following information. [redacted] a citizen of Rumania, from October, 1946, to January, 1948, had been employed in the Rumanian Embassy at Washington. In January, 1948, after a change of government in Rumania, she was recalled but refused to return to Rumania and applied for status as a political refugee. On September 28, 1948, [redacted] and on the same day she was married she received a telephone call from an unidentified man asking her for fifty dollars and telling her that if she refused the money he would reveal certain information about her past to her husband. Her husband also received telephone calls from an unidentified man who told her husband the same thing. Later she received a series of letters in a similar vein.

Following this series of events a man unknown to her husband but later identified as [redacted] appeared at her husband's office and told him about an affair that [redacted] had had prior to her marriage.

b7C

[redacted] said that she had known [redacted] through mutual friends and that she knew he was employed by the United States State Department assigned to the Rumanian desk in its New York office. She said that [redacted] was doing everything he could to break up her marriage and had told her: "I will see that you are deported."

[redacted] said she turned over all of the letters to Inspector Broderick of the Post Office Department in New York City, who had interviewed [redacted] and had secured handwriting specimens from him. She said Inspector Broderick then advised her that [redacted] did not write the letters. 4

It is noted that [redacted] is identical with [redacted] a member of the Rumanian Delegation who had been for a time an espionage suspect. The information concerning her is set forth in the case entitled "Rumanian Mission, Internal Security - R - Rumanian." This investigation was negative as to espionage activity on the part of [redacted] (9-16654-1)

It is noted that the allegations that [redacted] endeavored to Constantin Vallimarescu, [redacted] subsequent to resigning his position as Rumanian Minister to Argentina, was the leader of the Free Rumanian Movement in the Argentine. In 1947 Constantin Vallimarescu resigned as Rumanian Minister to Norway and in 1949 he and Marie, his wife, left New York City for Uruguay. It is noted that Bureau files contain no information that Constantin Vallimarescu has been engaged in subversive activities and allegations have been made that he is anti-Communist. (40-4893; 102-119-327) u

Mr. Samuel S. Boykin, State Department, contacted Mr. Roach this morning and stated that he had talked to the Director last night concerning a proposed State Department release at 12:00 noon today. He stated that the Director approved in substance a release which would state that the charts were not prepared by the FBI and that the State Department had verified this with the FBI and the Department of Justice. The release further stated that the FBI did not evaluate the material as it did not prepare it.

Mr. Boykin stated he wanted to call this to Mr. Roach's attention, but stated he had previously cleared it with the Director.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

JUNE 9, 1950
No. 614

The Department of State has already characterized as absolutely false the statement by Senator McCarthy that a photostat which he produced on the Senate floor June 6 constituted proof that three men individually listed by the FBI as Communist agents in 1946 are still working for the Department.

It has pointed out that the Senator's charge was based upon the completely erroneous belief that a 1946 chart referred to in the photostated document, a chart purportedly evaluating Departmental personnel in terms of Communist "agents", "Communists", "sympathizers", and "suspects", was prepared by the FBI.

Furthermore, the Department has stated that the chart in question was not prepared by or received from the FBI, but was merely a working document prepared in the Department's Security Office as a basis of further personnel investigations in 1946.

The Department has also stated that no persons purportedly identified on that chart as Communist "agents", "Communists" and the like are now employed by the Department except those whose loyalty has since been thoroughly checked, evaluated, and reviewed under the President's Loyalty Program.

Since the issuance of this statement to the press by the Department, on June 6, 1950, a thorough review of the chart and report in question, together with a careful inquiry into the circumstances of their preparation and the status of personnel involved, has been made by the Department.

The following analysis of Senator McCarthy's speech is based upon the facts developed by that study:

1. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "The Bureau (FBI) sent to the State Department on that date (May 15, 1946) a detailed statement listing what they considered as No. 1, Soviet agents; No. 2, Communists; No. 3, Communist sympathizers; and No. 4, suspects."

The facts: As previously stated by the Department, neither the chart itself nor the report of August 3, 1946 in which Senator McCarthy has cited a reference to the chart, was prepared by, or sent to the State Department by, the FBI, and this has been verified to the Department of State both by the Department of Justice and by the FBI. On the contrary, the chart and the report were prepared within the Department of State itself. The chart was prepared on May 15, 1946 and the report on August 3, 1946.

The Department of State itself, after consultation with the writer of the report, with the former Security Officer under whose direction and in whose office the chart was prepared, with certain of his then subordinates familiar with the chart, and with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and after reviewing working papers which are still in our file, has conclusively determined that the chart was not prepared or furnished by the FBI, but was prepared as an investigator's working document in the Department of State in 1946 and by employees of the Department of State. Interview with the writer of the report, who is still in the Department, and the Security Officer with whom he had a conversation about the chart established that the writer of the report drew from his conversation with the Security Officer the unintentionally erroneous conclusion that the chart was prepared in the FBI.

2. Senator

2. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "The function of the FBI is merely that of a fact-finding body ... This is the only time it has been brought to my attention that the FBI has departed from its function and said, 'We will evaluate our own evidence in our files and give it to the Department'. Apparently, the reason was that they must have been seriously disturbed by what they had in their files..."

The Facts: This statement is patently false. In the first place, as previously stated, the chart in question was not prepared or submitted by the FBI to begin with. Information from the FBI was included with information from other agencies -- OSS, Civil Service, etc., in the files which the State Department personnel consulted in drawing up the chart; but there was no FBI evaluation of the State Department employees.

In the second place, since the FBI had nothing to do with the preparation of the chart, it obviously could not have talked to itself in the manner described by Senator McCarthy about the "evaluation" of "evidence" concerned. Since the issuance of the State Department's first statement in this connection, the FBI has verified to the Department the fact that it not only had nothing to do with the preparation of the chart but that it also had nothing to do with evaluating the personnel indicated on the chart as purported "Agents", "Communists", etc., or in any other way. Thus, Senator McCarthy's assertion that the FBI took unprecedented action in the matter is utterly unfounded, and his inference that the FBI took such action because it was "seriously disturbed" by the contents of its files is pure fantasy.

3. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "The submission of the list of Soviet Agents, Communists, and so forth, to the State Department by the FBI met with such little favorable activity on the part of the State Department that, so far as I know, the Bureau has never submitted a like chart since that date."

The Facts: Though the chart in question had not been submitted to the Department by the FBI back in 1946 or at any other time it was, as a matter of fact, a working list of Departmental personnel on whom the Department's Security Officer at that time (May 15, 1946) had received allegations which, in the opinion of the Security Officers by whom the chart was prepared, warranted further investigation. Virtually the entire activity of the Security Officer and his top men at that time was directed toward the utilization and full development of the leads and information received from the FBI, from departmental investigation and other sources, particularly relating to the people listed on the 1946 chart. Moreover, on the basis of the findings and recommendations contained in the "Secret" report in which the chart was referred to, energetic steps were taken toward an improved Security set-up of the Department, including the successful direction of such investigations as that leading in 1946 to the firing, followed by trial and conviction, of Carl Marzani.

4. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "This (the language of the report) is not the language of McCarthy; it is the language of the State Department's top investigators."

The Facts: The language was not the language of any one of the Department's "investigators"; it was the language of an administrative officer of the Department, assigned by Assistant Secretary Russell, in charge of the Department's security program, to undertake, on a highly confidential basis, a study in Washington of the operations of the Department's organization in 1946 for dealing with problems of personnel security.

Senator

5. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "The man who makes this report says in effect, 'The only way we are going to get rid of the other Communists is accidentally by a reduction in the force.' ... From all the information we have been able to obtain, none of the men who were labeled by the FBI have been fired, but were allowed to resign..."

The Facts: The writer of the report said no such thing directly or by implication. His report dated August 3, 1946 in fact was intended to, and did, explore the means for making existing security procedures more effective, especially against the penetration of foreign intelligence agencies into the Department of State. His reference to reduction in force as a factor in eliminating persons named on the chart was factual - but it did not exclude other methods. Such other methods, including resignation - which the Senator himself contradictorily names as the only method - and firing, where investigation supported this action, were effectively employed. No case today remains unresolved.

6. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "The FBI wisely refused to submit top secret information to the State Department on these dangerous individuals ... apparently not trusting the State Department to that extent ..."

The Facts: The FBI has never refused to make available to appropriate officers of the State Department through established liaison channels information concerning State Department personnel.

7. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "At least three of those listed as Communist agents by the FBI three years ago are still holding high positions in the State Department. Those names are included among the 106 names that I gave to the (Tydings) committee ... Those names I have checked and I know the persons are working in the State Department ... I ... have the proof that those men are working in the State Department as of this very moment."

The Facts: This statement is absolutely false. The Department of State has in its possession the working chart itself dated May 15, 1946. Of the 20 persons hypothesized on the chart as "agents", there is only one who - after thorough reinvestigation including a full FBI investigation, and clearance under the Department's Loyalty and Security procedures - is still in the employ of the Department. That one does not hold a "high position"; his grade is GS-9. Furthermore, that one is not on the list of 106 Senator McCarthy gave the Tydings Subcommittee.

8. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "You will note that I am ... only referring today to those who are listed as Communist agents. I hope to be able to give the Senate a complete picture of how many of the total of 106 agents, Communist sympathizers, and so forth, are still on the State Department's payroll..."

The Facts: Any person among those listed on the old 1946 working chart referred to by Senator McCarthy who is still employed in the Department of State has been the subject of careful investigation and has been cleared for security after thorough study of his case either by the Division of Security, acting with the benefit of the FBI's information, or by the Loyalty Security Board of the Department. Each loyalty decision by the Department's Loyalty Board has been post-audited by the Loyalty Review Board, and in no case was the recommendation of the Department's Board changed.

9. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "Take, for example, case No. 1, which I presented on the Senate floor, the name has not yet been made public, so we shall not use it now. The committee has the name. In that case the Loyalty Review Board made what is known as a post-audit, and, after looking at the post-audit, they said, 'We are not satisfied with the finding.' They sent it back to the State Department Loyalty Board, and that Board said 'The case is closed.' That man is still on the State Department payroll."

The facts: Once again, Senator McCarthy's alleged quotations are not quotations -- they are typical misstatements. The Loyalty Review Board did not advise the Department of State that they were "not satisfied with the finding" in this case; they did make a procedural recommendation, and thereafter the case was not "closed". On the contrary, appropriate action was taken by the State Department Loyalty Security Board, and clearance in this case was again post-audited by the President's Loyalty Review Board. The Loyalty Review Board has in no way criticized or changed the final action and findings of the Department's Loyalty Security Board.

10. Senator McCarthy told the Senate on June 6: "... In the Office of War Information, Mr. Owen Lattimore ... went to bat for one Communist ... who had been officially turned down by the Loyalty Board ... and another Chinese who had been rejected by one member of the board..."

The facts: As the Department pointed out in its analysis of the Senator's Rochester, New York, speech on May 25, he now appears to be reduced to an attempt to divert attention with 1943 Civil Service Commission clearances for Office of War Information employment of two Chinese.

As for Mr. Owen Lattimore, both Mr. Lattimore himself and the Department of State have repeatedly reiterated that he is not an employee of the Department.

At Wheeling, West Virginia, on February 9, 1950, Senator McCarthy asserted in a speech:

"... While I cannot take the time to name all the men in the State Department who have been named as active members of the Communist Party and members of a spy ring, I have here in my hand a list of 205 - a list of names that were made known to the Secretary of State as being members of the Communist Party and who nevertheless are still working and shaping policy in the State Department."

The next day, he said he had the names of "57 card-carrying members of the Communist Party" allegedly working in the Department. Later he talked in terms of a "big three" and of 81 security risks of various sorts. He told the Tydings Committee to investigate 106 cases. Eventually, he said he would stand or fall on his ability to prove that there was one "top Soviet espionage agent" in the State Department.

And then, on June 6, we hear of 106 names on a four-year-old working chart and three "agents" purportedly still at large in the Department of State.

But the record - the facts - speak for themselves: Senator McCarthy has utterly failed to show that there is a single Communist or pro-Communist in the State Department. His numbers change; his credibility does not.

New Charges By McCarthy Called 'False'

Senator Says State
Dept. Has 3 Branded
Soviet Agents in '46

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) told his Senate colleagues yesterday that a minimum of three persons tagged as Soviet "agents" by the FBI four years ago are still in the State Department.

He said he knew their names and that the individuals were still holding high position.

Last night the State Department said McCarthy's statement was "absolutely false."

McCarthy's new information, he indicated, came from a 1946 document prepared by a State Department investigator who made reference to an FBI "chart" of categories of "Communist agents, Communists, Communist sympathizers and suspects" in the State Department as of May 15, 1946.

Photostats Released

McCarthy made public photostats of two pages of the report, which summarized the alleged FBI tabulation as showing that on that date the totals were:

Agents	20
Communists	13
Sympathizers	14
Suspects	77

The State Department's comment on McCarthy's newest deluge of numbers of alleged subversives in its ranks read in part:

"The Senator based his charge upon the completely erroneous belief that the FBI prepared a chart referred to in the photostatic document which purportedly evaluated departmental personnel in terms of 'agents,' 'Communists,' 'sympathizers' and 'suspects.'

"1. No such chart was ever received by the State Department from the FBI.

"2. The Department of Justice has informed us that no such chart was ever prepared by the FBI.

"3. The chart in question was merely a preliminary document prepared by one of the State Department's security officers as a basis for further investigation.

"4. No persons purportedly identified on that chart as Communist agents, Communists and the like are now employed by the State Department except those whose loyalty has since been thoroughly checked, evaluated and reviewed under the President's Loyalty Review Board."

The department promised it would issue a further statement on the subject. In the meantime, officials indicated that the document was a working paper of an investigator, comprising listings of all people under suspicion, or against whom charges had been leveled.

The photostat that McCarthy circulated, however, included a passage in which the State Department investigator and author of the document said, "FBI has prepared a chart, now in the possession of (name deleted) which purports to show a number of 'agents' . . ."

The investigator, however, apparently seriously questioned the FBI classifications, for he said:

"It turned out that the FBI had produced no convincing proof that any persons was an actual agent. In other words, FBI had made no case to show espionage or a violation of the Foreign Agents Registration Act or similar legislation, in any case. The word 'agent' was therefore being used by the FBI . . . to mean simply a suspect in espionage activities.

"No proof of actual Communist Party membership had been produced by the FBI. The word 'Communist,' therefore, was used merely to describe cases of such close affiliations as to lend credence to a hypothesis that the person in question was a member—a fact still to be proved."

McCarthy added that the word "sympathizer" was also subject to further of such qualifications and the word "suspect" was apparently an all-inclusive one and "it might or might not include anything significant."

Nevertheless, McCarthy told the Senate, if the FBI classed a man as an agent or Communist, he was willing to accept its judgment.

"That to me is proof," he said. "In my book that is proof despite all the screaming and squealing of those who say, 'McCarthy, you should not expose them because you are injuring those poor people; you are smearing them.'

Senator Knowland (R., Calif.), commenting on the disclosure, said the material was "by far the most significant direct evidence" so far presented in the controversy over McCarthy's charges of "Communist infestation" of the Government in general and the State Department in particular.

Knowland said the special Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee investigating McCarthy's accusations would be "derelict" in its duty if it did not at once use its subpoena powers to obtain the original documents, including the FBI chart referred to.

He added that unless the persons named by the FBI were discharged, "it seems to me there may be a case for impeachment somewhere along the line."

Senator Ives (R., N. Y.) rose to compliment McCarthy for his "effective presentation" and "constructive approach" in connection with his new material. It was much more effective, Ives said, than "coming here and naming names."

He chided McCarthy gently for not having enough faith in the desire of the other 95 Senators to root out subversives, Ives insisted they were as eager to do so as was McCarthy.

But he went on to compliment McCarthy highly for his "new approach" and to wish him good luck in it.

Last Thursday Ives joined six other Republican Senators in a vehement blast, clearly directed at McCarthy, against smear tactics and irresponsible accusations while protected by congressional immunity for libel action.

Two days later, however, in Ives' presence, the Young Republicans of his State unanimously indorsed McCarthy's campaign and "the spirit in which it was brought."

Earlier yesterday, even before Ives complimented McCarthy on the Senate floor, he declared that there was "accumulating evidence that the Administration is trying to whitewash the State Department" on the Communist charges.

The White House, meantime, deferred action yesterday on a reported plan to name a non-partisan citizens commission of three outstanding persons to review the files of some or all of the persons McCarthy has accused.

The plan, anticipated in press reports, came up for debate yesterday in connection with McCarthy's speech. McCarthy himself referred to the idea disdainfully, calling it a "trumped up" device, which would simply render "another whitewash."

Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.) took a more hopeful view, but insisted such a commission could not return a report that would win the confidence of the American people and of Congress unless it was bipartisan in nature and unless the Republicans were selected by the Republican members of Congress, and not by the President.

And all Republicans who spoke insisted that the full files on all the cases must be made available to it, and that they should have been made available long since to the special Senate investigating subcommittee.

Reference is made to the attached newspaper article which appeared in the Washington Post on June 7, 1950 setting forth criticisms by the State Department of FBI investigations as quoted from a State Department document in the possession of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy. You commented on this by stating: "We ought to run this down. Find out who in State Dept. wrote this criticism of FBI & what it is based on. H."

This matter was covered in my memorandum to you of June 7, 1950 from information obtained by Mr. Roach in the State Department that the newspaper article reflects the direct quotations by Senator McCarthy from the State Department report prepared by Mr. Samuel Klaus of that Department on August 3, 1946. This report of 'Klaus' (a copy of which the Bureau has now obtained) was in the form of a survey he made of the Security and Investigative Branch of the State Department in which he criticized their operation and also that of the FBI. As previously pointed out, numerous statements of fact were totally erroneous in this report, particularly those in which Klaus states that the FBI prepared a chart.

In view of the total unreliability of Klaus, plus his antagonistic attitude toward the Bureau over a number of years, it is not believed advisable that we should interview him at this time. If you feel however that some action should be taken in this matter, it is believed that it would be more effective, as far as the Bureau is concerned, to prepare a letter to either Under Secretary Webb or Deputy Under Secretary Peurifoy protesting the statements made by Klaus in his report which has resulted in the erroneous newspaper comment.

DECLASSIFIED BY 2909

ON 4/12/78 DLR/PC

Dear Mr. Webb:

Recent newspaper articles have come to my attention containing statements made by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, wherein he quoted excerpts from the State Department report prepared by Mr. Samuel Klaus of your Department which referred particularly to an alleged "FBI Chart."

The comments made by Mr. Klaus in his report concerning this alleged "FBI Chart", as they appeared in the newspapers, were completely erroneous. This Bureau did not send any such chart to the State Department, and, of course, made no evaluation of information as was indicated in the report. The author of the report took occasion to criticize the FBI in this report. This Bureau does not claim to be infallible; however, it appears that, if the State Department had any questions concerning the report, the matter should have been discussed with us at that time. I want to point out that the erroneous statements made by Mr. Klaus were highly embarrassing and prejudicial to the FBI.

As you are aware, this Bureau cooperates fully with your Department through established liaison channels. I thought you would be interested in knowing the true facts in this matter, and they are being furnished to you for whatever action you may deem desirable.

Sincerely yours,

J. Edgar Hoover

About one week ago, a letter was addressed to Undersecretary of State James E. Webb, marked Personal and Confidential, concerning the alleged FBI chart which was mentioned by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy. This chart was mentioned by the Senator as coming from a State Department report.

The Bureau letter to Undersecretary Webb advised him that the alleged "FBI chart" was contained in a report prepared by Mr. Samuel Klaus of the State Department and that the comments made by Mr. Klaus were completely erroneous. Mr. Webb was advised that the Bureau did not send a chart to the State Department.

Special Agent R. W. Lawrence of the Liaison Section telephoned from the State Department at 4:10 p.m., this afternoon, and advised that Assistant Secretary of State Peurifoy has requested the use of this letter at his appearance before the Tydings Committee tomorrow morning, June 21, 1950. Special Agent Lawrence is awaiting a telephonic answer so that Mr. Peurifoy can be advised concerning this matter.

ADDENDUM: A tickler copy of the letter in question is attached. Inasmuch as this represents the position of the FBI, it is recommended that clearance be given for Peurifoy to use it as he sees fit. AHB:tlc

ADD 2 AMERASIA (1241P)

3. TYDINGS SOUGHT TO SPEED UP CONCLUSION OF THE COMMUNIST INVESTIGATION BY ORDERING A SUNDAY NIGHT CUT-OFF DATE ON SENATORS' EXAMINATIONS OF THE 81 LOYALTY FILES. THE COMMITTEE HAS HAD ACCESS TO THE FILES, LOCATED IN THE WHITE HOUSE CABINET ROOM, FOR ABOUT TWO MONTHS.

TYDINGS REVEALED THAT HE HAD REQUESTED THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT AND THE FBI TO INVESTIGATE MCCARTHY'S OFF-REPEATED ALLEGATIONS OF FILE TAMPERING. THE WISCONSIN SENATOR HAD TERMED THE RECORDS "DENUDED LOOSE LEAF FILES" FROM WHICH DAMAGING INFORMATION HAD BEEN REMOVED. TYDINGS SAID THAT THE RESULTS OF A FILE-BY-FILE EXAMINATION WERE MADE AVAILABLE TO HIM BY THE DEPARTMENT TODAY AND THAT THE REPORT SHOWED:

- "1. THE FILES ARE INTACT;
- "2. THE FILES HAVE NOT BEEN RAPED;
- "3. THE FILES HAVE NOT BEEN SKELETONIZED OR TAMPERED WITH."

THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT'S LETTER, TYDINGS SAID, WAS SIGNED BY PEYTON FORD, ASSISTANT TO THE ATTORNEY GENERAL. TYDINGS DECLINED TO MAKE THE TEXT PUBLIC ON GROUNDS THAT IT CARRIED THE NAMES OF THE THUSFAR PUBLICLY UNIDENTIFIED INDIVIDUALS COVERED BY MCCARTHY'S "81 CASES," LAID BEFORE THE SENATE IN FEBRUARY.

TYDINGS REPORTED THAT IN MORE THAN ONE-HALF OF THE CASES "FULL FIELD INVESTIGATIONS" HAD BEEN CONDUCTED AT THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S REQUEST BY THE FBI.

"I HAVE BEEN ADVISED BY FBI AGENTS THAT ALL OF THE MATERIAL GATHERED BY THE FBI TOUCHING ON THE LOYALTY OF THE EMPLOYEES IN QUESTION HAS BEEN SENT TO THE STATE DEPARTMENT AND ARE PART OF THE FILES WHICH OUR COMMITTEE HAS EXAMINED," TYDINGS SAID.

PURPOSE

To advise you regarding check of Bureau files relative to dissemination of information to State Department on the cases mentioned by McCarthy and to inform you that we have made no examination of the State Department files to ascertain whether they have been tampered with as alleged by Senator McCarthy nor have we advised Senator Tydings that all of the material gathered by the Bureau touching on the loyalty of the 81 individuals in question has been sent to the State Department and is a part of the files which the Tydings Subcommittee examined.

BACKGROUND

The United Press news tickler yesterday carried a statement that Senator Tydings had revealed he had requested the Justice Department and the FBI to investigate Senator McCarthy's allegations of State Department file tampering and that the results of a file-by-file examination were made available to Tydings by the Justice Department and showed that the files were intact, had not been raped and had not been skeletonized or tampered with. The press release reports Senator Tydings as referring to Justice Department letter signed by Peyton Ford, the text of which Senator Tydings declined to make public on grounds that it carried the names of the thus far publicly unidentified individuals covered by Senator McCarthy's 81 cases. Senator Tydings is also quoted as stating, "I have been advised by FBI Agents that all of the material gathered by the FBI touching on the loyalty of the employees in question has been sent to the State Department and are part of the files which our Committee has examined."

With respect to the comment by Tydings concerning a request of the Justice Department and the FBI to investigate Senator McCarthy's allegations of State Department file tampering and Senator Tydings comment that the result of a file-by-file examination had been made available to him by the Justice Department, you noted, "Did we make any such check?"

11 You may recall that by memorandum of May 10, 1950, Peyton Ford furnished us with a list of the 81 individuals whose names were included on a "subpoena" list received from the Tydings Subcommittee. In this memorandum Peyton Ford advised us that the Attorney General wished to prepare at the earliest possible moment a letter to Senator Tydings listing, first, those individuals in the group on whom loyalty investigations were conducted and attaching copies of the Bureau's transmittal letters or memoranda to the Civil Service Commission. It was also pointed out in Mr. Ford's memorandum that in the group of 81 cases there undoubtedly would be cases in which a loyalty investigation was never instituted or cases in which investigations were instituted but later discontinued because the individuals had left the Government service; that it was desired the Bureau list these individuals with an indication of what transpired in this respect and that we also make identifying reference to any memoranda forwarded to the State Department prior to, during or following the loyalty investigation in those instances where a loyalty investigation had been conducted and also in those instances where no loyalty investigation had been made.

In accordance with this request of Mr. Peyton Ford, we prepared a brief setting forth the material he had requested and furnished it to him under date of May 15, 1950.

This brief which was furnished to the Department to assist the Attorney General in preparing a letter to Senator Tydings is probably the basis for Senator Tydings' comment since it is noted he alludes to a letter received by him signed by Peyton Ford. However, it is noted that Tydings is reported as stating that the results of a file-by-file examination were made available to him by the Department and that this report showed that the files were intact, had not been raped, had not been skeletonized or tampered with. The only files that we have examined are the Bureau files and we have made no file-by-file examination of the State Department's files in connection with this matter for the purpose of determining whether they contained all the material which has been furnished to the State Department by the Bureau concerning the 81 individuals in question.

With further reference to this particular matter, you may recall that by memorandum of May 9, 1950, I advised you that Mr. Peyton Ford had advised Mr. Nichols and me that he was going to assign Mike Horan from his office to review all of the State Department files which the President was making available to the Tydings Subcommittee prior to the time they were made available to the Committee for the purpose of blocking out the names of any confidential informants or sources which should be protected in Bureau reports. Mr. Ford requested the Bureau to make an Agent available to work with Mike Horan on this project. Both Mr. Nichols and I advised him that we could not do this; that the FBI should not be a party to reviewing the State Department files prior to the time they were made available to a Senate Committee by the President. Mr. Ford then suggested the Bureau might go through its own files, checking the material which has been sent to the State Department to see if there are any names which the Bureau desired blocked out as undesirable for the Committee to see and we again pointed out that this also would be impractical and unwise. It was suggested that in the event Mike Horan was going to make this review that if, during the review of the reports, he had any questions regarding any particular reports, he then contact the Bureau. You noted on my memorandum of May 9, 1950, "Right. I want no part to review of such files or the blocking out of information."

With respect to the comment attributed to Senator Tydings that he had been advised by FBI Agents that all of the material gathered by the FBI touching on the loyalty of the employees in question had been sent to the State Department and was a part of the files which the Tydings Subcommittee examined, you noted, "Is this correct?". We have never made any such comment to Senator Tydings.

SUBJECT: SUB-COMMITTEE OF SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE
 ALLEGATIONS OF SENATOR JOSEPH McCARTHY
 LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Communist In The State Department

Reference is made to my previous letter of this date concerning captioned matter. u

At the conclusion of the questioning by Chief Counsel MORGAN, Senator HICKENLOOPER took up the questioning of Mr. BROWDER. He first inquired as to whether BROWDER had ever been a member of the International Workers Order. The witness stated he had not but admitted having attended meetings and to have been very familiar with the organization. Senator HICKENLOOPER then brought up again the matter of Mr. BROWDER's contact with SUMNER WELLES at the time the latter was Undersecretary of State, regarding Chinese foreign policy. He was specifically asked why he had transmitted the information furnished to him by Mr. WELLES to Madame SUN YAT SEN. BROWDER stated that the understanding between him and Mr. WELLES was that he was to be permitted to publish the information and that he furnished it to Madame SEN with the hope she would publish it in China. u

Senator HICKENLOOPER then questioned the witness regarding the change in American foreign policy toward China, asking him if it were not so that the Communist Party had succeeded in having the American foreign policy changed to fit in with their own ideas. Mr. BROWDER stated that this was not so but that the State Department had changed it because of the necessity in the carrying on of the war and that the Communist Party apparently recognized the need for this line of action prior to the State Department. He did admit that the Communist Party policy as advocated was substantially incorporated into the policy of the United States. u

Senator HICKENLOOPER then questioned the witness as to whether or not he had ever conspired with anyone or attempted to secure the transmittal of confidential information from American Government sources to the Soviet Government or agents of that government. Mr. BROWDER denied that he ever had. He then asked him specifically if he had ever delivered any information or caused to be delivered any information to the Soviet Government or its agents to which question Mr. BROWDER issued a definite denial. u

Senator HICKENLOOPER then questioned him concerning his visit to Russia in 1946 but no new information regarding his trip was developed. He then questioned him about International World Communism and his views and the views of the Party regarding that situation, but BROWDER evaded the question by stating that the discussion would consume too much time, possibly running into years. u

He was then asked concerning the advocacy of the Communist form of government in this country and was questioned as to whether such a directive had ever been received from the Soviet Government. BROWDER claimed that he did not advocate or believe in the Communist form of government for the United States and that it was contrary to STALIN's policy, stating that STALIN had only contempt for leaders of another country who would take orders directly from Moscow. Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked him how he reconciled that with the MARSHAL TITO situation in Yugoslavia. Mr. BROWDER did not make any observation in regard to this.

Going back to his previous testimony that while in Russia in 1946, BROWDER had made an agreement with Soviet publishers to promote the sale of their books in this country, he stated upon questioning from Senator HICKENLOOPER that he had severed this connection with the Soviet publishers in July, 1949. He also denied upon questioning that he had ever received any instructions from Moscow on how to proceed in accordance with Communist Party doctrine and he denied that he had ever communicated with Russia as to what position Communists in the United States should take on certain issues. He stated he had sought consultation with the Communist Party of Russia relative to problems of the world and of America but that he had had no such contact with the Russian Government. BROWDER also stated these consultations did not amount to a conspiracy but only concerned political views and the furtherance of a program for progress. At this point BROWDER pointed out to the committee at the present time he is not a spokesman for any organization and therefore, did not feel he was in a position to speak concerning the official policies of the Communist Party.

He was then asked if during his tenure of office in the Communist Party, they had conspired to overthrow the Government of the United States and he denied that such was the case while he was a member or office holder in the Communist Party.

He was then questioned concerning his acquaintance with ALGER HISS and he claimed he had never heard of HISS until FBI Agents contacted him and requested him to identify a photograph which he later learned was that of ALGER HISS. He claimed prior to this contact, he never saw nor heard of ALGER HISS before. He, upon questioning, also denied that he knew WHITTAKER CHAMBERS but admitted that he did know CHAMBERS was a Communist Party member in the early 1920s. He stated that CHAMBERS had disappeared as far as he knew and he, therefore, surmised he was out of the Party. BROWDER then was questioned concerning the receipt of funds, or equivalent thereof, from the Communist Party of Russia, Russian Government or agents of either of these two groups. BROWDER stated that in connection with the Spanish Civil War, he received funds from sources abroad to help in the organization of the International Brigade; however, he refused to divulge the identity of the sources of these funds since he felt it would possibly involve someone in trouble in the year 1940 over something that had happened in 1937. He categorically denied he had ever received any funds from sources abroad for promoting the Communist Party program in the United States. When asked specifically if he had ever attended any conferences in the Russian Embassy in Washington, D. C., or in any of the Russian Consulates, with regard to Communist Party activities in this country, he claimed that he never had. He admitted upon questioning that he was acquainted with FREDERICK VANDERBILT FIELD and stated that he first met him in 1941. He denied that he had ever seen him in the Communist Party Headquarters in New York City and denied that he ever assigned him to any mission for the Communist Party or for the purpose of engaging in espionage activities. In this connection he also stated he had never requested any one to perform espionage activities on behalf of the Communist Party or the Russian Government.

Handwritten: "Crowd?", "Heads", "Massing?"

He was then asked if he had ever been in contact with one ~~CHUNG P. WOO (ph)~~. BROWDER admitted that he had been in contact with this individual, the last time being when the Chinese Delegation was en route to the United Nations Conferences in San Francisco, California. He refused to state what had been discussed at this meeting, stating the nature of the discussion was highly confidential. He refused to state whether ~~JOHN SERVICE~~ and ~~JOHN CARTER VINCENT~~ were present at this meeting. He also refused to admit knowing ~~PHILIP JAFFE~~ and would not state whether or not he was at the meeting above referred to. BROWDER claimed he felt he should have the permission of the man involved since the discussion concerned problems of a confidential nature dealing with the United States and that it was impossible to obtain the permission of the person involved, namely Mr. WOO. Was.

At this point BROWDER engaged in a tirade against "fishing expeditions" and "smear campaigns" and stated he would refuse to answer as to whether or not he knew individuals because if he admitted being acquainted, it would jeopardize their careers in public life.

In furtherance of this line of questioning, BROWDER also refused to state whether or not OWEN LATTIMORE was in attendance at the meeting previously referred to. With regard to JAFFE, however, he finally did admit under questioning that he had met JAFFE at a Communist Party meeting in New York City.

Brent / With regard to ~~J. PETERS~~, BROWDER characterized him as a minor functionary in the Party and stated he had not seen him in the Party circles for the past few years. He denied that he had ever requested PETERS to obtain espionage information for him and also denied he had received information from PETERS to engage in espionage activities. He denied he had ever received instructions from anyone to engage in the gathering of confidential information contrary to the best interests of the United States.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then referred to the previous testimony of BROWDER concerning his visit to China in 1927 and 1928. In answer to questioning, BROWDER stated that at the time he was Secretary of the Kansas City Trade Union and that while in China during that period he worked very closely with the Chinese Communists. He also stated in response to questioning that during the period from 1921 to present, he had made about eighteen or twenty trips out of the United States. When asked if he had ever declared his official connection with the Communist Party when re-entering this country from these various trips abroad, BROWDER stated he had not and he was not aware of any such requirement.

Brent / When questioned concerning ~~ELIZABETH TERRELL BENTLEY~~, BROWDER stated that he knew her but did not know her as a Communist, only as a secretary and employee. He claimed not to have any knowledge that she attended any policy meetings of the Communist Party and that to the best of his knowledge, she had never received any espionage assignments or furnished to him any information of a security nature. He further admitted that he knew ~~JACOB GOLOS~~, now deceased, and denied that he had been present at any meeting where Soviet representatives conferred with GOLOS or Miss BENTLEY.

Regarding his trip to Russia in 1946 after his expulsion from the Communist Party, USA, BROWDER stated in answer to a question by Senator HICKENLOOPER that he had had a conference with ~~MOLOTOV~~ during his stay in Moscow. He denied that he had been in contact, however, with any leaders of the Communist Party in Moscow as such, claiming that he had only seen MOLOTOV and another individual whose name sounded like ~~VLESOWSKI~~. He claimed he did not wish to name any of the other individuals with whom he had been in contact during his visit to Moscow at that time.

When asked if he were acquainted with ABE FLAKER, he stated he recognized the name as being that of a union leader but would not elaborate further. He refused to state whether or not he knew FLAKER as a Communist. When asked if he knew DOROTHY KENYON and a Mr. HANSEN, he refused to answer, again lashing out at the Committee, labeling their inquiry a "smear". He also would not answer the question as to whether he knew these individuals to be Communists. He was then asked if he knew the following individuals:

NATHAN GREGORY SILVERMASTER
LUDWIG WILLMAN
JOHN ABT
NATHAN WITT
ALBERT RYCE WILLIAMS

BROWDER refused to answer. He was then asked if he had attended any meetings at the "Daily Worker" or any other place where BUDENZ was present. He claimed that he could recall two or three meetings which were held at BROWDER's office where BUDENZ was in attendance. He claimed that staff members of the Communist Party were also present at these meetings and that the discussion concerned the work of Communists among members of the Catholic faith, which was a project that BUDENZ felt he could engage in with profit. BROWDER claimed he could not recall whether WILLIAM FOSTER or JACK STACHEL were present at these meetings. He was then asked if STACHEL had ever directed him to obtain secret information to which he replied in the negative. He also denied he had ever received any directive from Moscow instructing him to engage in the obtaining of secret information. With regard to BUDENZ's position as Managing Editor of the "Daily Worker", BROWDER claimed that in this position BUDENZ had nothing to do with policy but that his sole function was to act as a technical man.

Senator TYDINGS then began questioning the witness regarding his refusal to answer as to whether he had knowledge that HANSEN or KENYON were members of the Communist Party and he reluctantly stated as far as he knew, neither individual had any organizational connections as members or friends of the Communist Party.

April 27, 1950

He was then further questioned about his meetings with individuals in the State Department and he stated that he had met with SUMNER WELLES who was then Undersecretary of State, once in 1942 and again in 1943. He stated the meeting in 1942 was in connection with a speech he, BROWDER, had made concerning the U. S. Foreign Policy in China and that it was at the request of Mr. WELLES that he contacted him, at which time, according to his story, Mr. WELLES had pointed out that he was in error in his complaints about personnel in the State Department and that he was not aware of the true situation. He further claimed that in 1943 he had contacted Mr. WELLES concerning a proposed trip to Mexico since he felt that in fairness to the State Department he should give them notice in advance. He further said at this time Mr. WELLES requested him not to make the trip to Mexico and that he did not go. He subsequently determined that the reason for the request was the fact that President ROOSEVELT was meeting with the President of Mexico in Monterrey at that time and had BROWDER pursued his planned itinerary, he would have passed through Monterrey at the time of the meeting. He further stated ROBERT MINOR, an official of the Communist Party was with him at the meetings with WELLES. When asked if he had ever cooperated with the Office of Strategic Services, he stated he did not cooperate personally but that he knew there were members of the Communist Party in this organization. BROWDER stated LAURLIN CURRIE was with SUMNER WELLES at the meetings. first meeting.

See 100-24628-2049
He was then questioned by Senator TYDINGS regarding membership on the part of CARTER or SERVICE in the Communist Party and BROWDER, after much persuasion said that they, to his knowledge, never had any direct or indirect connection with the Communist Party.

The hearing was adjourned at 1:05 P. M. until further notice.

Mr. Roach has been informed in confidence by various officials of the State Department that the hearing of Senator McCarthy's charges against the State Department will be brought to a conclusion by Senator Tydings on or about July 15. The present plan is that Senator Tydings will take the floor of the Senate in a four-hour speech outlining the charges of McCarthy giving a summary of the results of the hearing, followed by recommendations. The recommendations, which Senator Tydings will allegedly make, will be in the form of a "whitewash" of the State Department and the charges placed against it by Senator McCarthy.

TO : DIRECTOR, FBI

FROM : SAC, WASHINGTON FIELD

DATE: April 20, 1950

SUBJECT: SUBCOMMITTEE OF SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE
 ALLEGATIONS OF SENATOR JOSEPH MC CARTHY
 LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Mr. BUDENZ, in his testimony at 3:25pm, stated that he was appointed Editor of the Chicago "Daily Record" in 1937. He described this as an organ of the Communist Party in the midwest. He stated that this paper "folded up" after the STALIN - HITLER Pact. He stated further that BROWDER warned him at that time that he, BUDENZ, was to be made Editor of the "Daily Worker" in New York. He said that BROWDER mentioned that "you have no technical difficulties." In explaining this, he mentioned that BROWDER informed him that he was the only member whose record was clear and who did not have some question concerning his immigration status. U

In response to a question from Senator HICKENLOOPER, Mr. BUDENZ then mentioned that he met WILLIAM Z. FOSTER just prior to the time FOSTER left for Moscow to become a CP member. In response to another question as to when he met other big Communist functionaries, he replied that he had met BRIDGES in 1936, FIELD in 1937; that he had met STACHEL immediately after he joined the Party in 1935. U

Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked if during his associations with the CP he had ever observed any of the functionaries telling untruths or lies. Mr. BUDENZ said that he had never observed any functionary ever lying to another functionary. U

Senator GREEN then asked Mr. BUDENZ if he had made his information available to the FBI. Mr. BUDENZ stated that he had and then remarked the FBI is one of the finest agencies in the US Government, I tell them everything, I am proud to have worked with them, and I give them as much time as I can. He then remarked that there were certain limitations to his time, that he had a teaching position at Fordham University, and that he had other private work which necessitated him spending considerable amount of his time and that accordingly, he had been unable to make available to the FBI the entire information which he had at his disposal. U

Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked if Mr. BUDENZ could evaluate the worth of Mr. LATTIMORE to the CP, and Mr. BUDENZ stated that he would leave such an evaluation in the hands of the Senators and remarked - I have told my story to you. He was then asked if LATTIMORE was considered a valuable adjunct to the Communist cause in Asia. Mr. BUDENZ replied that LATTIMORE was so considered and that STACHEL and BROWDER had so indicated to him. U

Mr. BUDENZ was next asked the significance of the letters L and XL, which he had previously referred to in his testimony, and he explained that these initials were customary, that they were used by the Party in designating the identity of the person concerned if that particular person was in public life and his identity was not desired to be disclosed. Mr. BUDENZ was next asked if he knew of any occasions when LATTIMORE might have been used as a conduit for information from Asia to the CP, and he replied that he knew of no occasions, other than those that he had mentioned, namely, the times that he was informed by STACHEL and FIELD.

Mr. BUDENZ was asked if China was considered the vital spot as far as the CP was concerned, and he replied that it was and added that in the CP it was considered that American acquiescence of a Red China and a Red Poland must be obtained.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked if Mr. BUDENZ would say that the efforts in China on the part of the Communists were of the highest priority and he answered that that was true, and he remarked STALIN has said that wars aren't declared, they are made, and Mr. BUDENZ then stated that World War III was begun in 1945. Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked if, in Mr. BUDENZ' opinion, did the Communists assign their most important men to the Chinese problem. Mr. BUDENZ stated that that was true, that GERHART EISLER had had that assignment before he went to Germany, where he today is attacking the US. Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked if the US was a target for Communism, and Mr. BUDENZ answered that it was and that it had been since 1945 and then he added, in fact, since 1934, when the Communists formulated their policy - the plan then to drive the US out of the Philippines and out of the Pacific. Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked if Mr. BUDENZ knew that LATTIMORE was assigned to handle Communist activities on the West Coast. Mr. BUDENZ answered "that was where he worked" and then he said he was also Editor of "Pacific Affairs" during that time.

Mr. BUDENZ was asked if the Communist apparatus was divided into two classes and he said that he could best answer that question by comparing the Communist apparatus to a tree, for example, he said the roots could be compared to the underground and to such members as EISLER and PETERS, who sent WHITTAKER CHAMBERS to Washington to steal State Department documents. Mr. BUDENZ said the open Party could be compared to the trunk of the tree, and he mentioned that names like BROWDER and his own, who were open Party members, could be so classified in this regard. He stated that the men and women members of the CP could be compared to the branches, that through the branches their information was obtained and instructions issued from the roots.

Mr. BUDENZ was then asked if he knew of any instances where members of the CP had gone underground. He mentioned Dr. NORMAN BETHUNE (ph) from

WASH FIELD LETTER TO DIRECTOR

RE: SUBCOMMITTEE OF SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE

Canada, who he stated died in China during the Chinese civil wars. He said that after BETHUNE's death that BROWDER, in a meeting, stood up and announced that Dr. BETHUNE asked that upon his death he be counted as one in the Army of STALIN although during his whole lifetime his Communist affiliation had been purposely hidden. BUDENZ then named BELLA DODD as another example of an underground Communist worker, as well as FIELD.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked Mr. BUDENZ to explain who, in his opinion, was the most effective in the CP, the open member or the secret member. Mr. BUDENZ answered that both categories work for the great conspiracy, that both are equally effective, that they need the open membership to give semblance of a Party and that the underground is effective in espionage operations. He was then asked if it was a fair assertion to say that the American people had little knowledge of Communism, and he replied that that was true and then remarked, BROWDER always said that we are a small Party, nevertheless we exercise great influence.

BUDENZ was asked what his capacity was and he said he was an Assistant Professor at Fordham. He was then asked if he had told Fordham officials of his background and he replied that, although he had not told them in great detail of his background, he knew that the Fordham officials knew who he was and knew his background. Senator HICKENLOOPER then said that if BUDENZ were associated with Fordham, it gave a certain weight to his testimony but BUDENZ quickly replied that he would not connect Fordham with his testimony here and did not wish that Fordham University should be involved in this matter in any way. He said that he desired to stand on his own testimony. Senator HICKENLOOPER then said that BUDENZ has been a Government witness on a number of occasions and he presumed that the Federal authorities had vouched for BUDENZ. BUDENZ replied that perhaps this was true but that again he did not wish to stand upon this reputation but wanted his testimony on this day to be judged on its own merits. He was then asked if he could return Monday (presumably April 24th), but he replied it would be better if he could come back Tuesday, so an Executive Session was scheduled for 10:00 on Tuesday, presumably April 25th. At 4:10 pm, BUDENZ was excused and thanked by Senator TYDINGS for his testimony.

TESTIMONY OF BRIGADIER GENERAL ELLIOTT R. THORPE, US ARMY - RETIRED

At this point, over the vigorous objections of Senator LODGE, FORTAS, Counsel for LATTIMORE, was able to have Brigadier General THORPE sworn as a witness. Senator LODGE advised that he was told that if THORPE were sworn, Senator McCARTHY had a witness whom he wished to offer but this aspect was not developed. FORTAS brought out that THORPE had to be heard today inasmuch as he had to leave town tonight. The testimony of THORPE was contained with in the form of a press release given by THORPE.

WASH FIELD LETTER TO DIRECTOR

THORPE advised that he had been in the US Army for some 32 years; about one half of this time was spent in military intelligence and that he had served in military intelligence in the Pacific Ocean Area, the Philippine Islands, Netherlands East Indies and from 1942 until 1946 had been Chief of Counter-Intelligence Corps under General of the Army, DOUGLAS A. MacARTHUR in MacARTHUR's Pacific Command. A copy of this press release has been furnished to the Bureau.

Briefly, the release sets out that THORPE on three occasions caused an investigation to be made into LATTIMORE's loyalty and that he, THORPE, as a result of these investigations believed LATTIMORE to be a thoroughly loyal US citizen. THORPE, after the war, was Military Attache at Bangkok, Siam and served for a time at the Army Language School, probably in Monterey, California.

After THORPE finished his statement, he was interrogated chiefly by Senator HICKENLOOPER. THORPE said that he thought the investigations made under his direction were sufficiently thorough to clear LATTIMORE and he allowed LATTIMORE to see confidential documents in LATTIMORE's capacity as Adviser to General THORPE. In response to a question, THORPE said that LATTIMORE did not show partisanship for any country, other than the US. (At 4:25pm, Senator TYDINGS left, mentioning a previous engagement and gave his proxy to Senator GREEN.)

THORPE was then asked if he had found any personnel of the IPR to be subversive. In answer to this question, THORPE said not so much subversive in the sense that subversive means undermining the US but that there were a lot of people with IPR, "making a living." The rest of his answers to this question trailed off and was unintelligible.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked when LATTIMORE came out to the Orient, and General THORPE said in 1944 and in 1946, and that on these occasions, LATTIMORE was included in the general investigation made by General THORPE's section of the IPR and that he was also investigated as a general security matter.

THORPE was asked by Senator HICKENLOOPER if he, THORPE, had access to FBI files, and he said that he did not, nor did he turn over the results of his investigation to the FBI. General THORPE then said that he had a representative of his CIC Section with "HOOVER" and that the FBI had representatives with the General's CIC Section.

WASH FIELD LETTER TO DIRECTOR

RE: SUBCOMMITTEE OF SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE

General THORPE was then asked by Senator HICKENLOOPER if the General had access, while investigating LATTIMORE, to the files of other US Government agencies. General THORPE was unable to give a complete answer to this question but said that he was not sure whether or not he did have access to other Government agency files but believed that he did not have access to such files.

Senator HICKENLOOPER then asked what sort of confidential documents LATTIMORE saw. General THORPE was unable to answer specifically but said that, in general, documents were classified all the way from "~~top secret~~" to "restricted." Senator HICKENLOOPER persisted and said that he presumed that LATTIMORE must have had confidential documents when he was advising the General and the General admitted that this was probably true that LATTIMORE did see confidential documents.

General THORPE said then that he did not favor recognition of Communist China and said that he considered Communism a great threat and that he had volunteered to appear at this hearing because he was concerned that innocent people were being labelled as Communists. General THORPE was then asked if he recalled a report that had been prepared by one E. HERBERT ~~NORMAN~~ (ph), which report was presumably sent to General WILLOUGHBY (General WILLOUGHBY was an AC of S, [ ] to General MacARTHUR). It was brought out that E. HERBERT NORMAN was a Canadian representative. General THORPE was unable to recall such a report and said that, to his knowledge, NORMAN did not file that report with him and further that he was not within the scope of WILLOUGHBY's command but reported to the Chief of Staff of General MacARTHUR. (It is noted that MacARTHUR's Chief of Staff was General RICHARD SUTHERLAND, and that General WILLOUGHBY, as [ ] was concerned with combat intelligence). b7D

General THORPE then advised that he had begun military intelligence work shortly after World War I. In response to a question, General THORPE said that LATTIMORE was an adviser of his during World War II and in part of the CIC Section. LATTIMORE's role as adviser to General THORPE was never entirely clarified. The General then said that he did not know very much about China and his interests were chiefly in Japan and Russia. The General said he would need a release from the Secretary of War before going into greater detail and Senator HICKENLOOPER then said that he wanted the whole relationship between LATTIMORE and CIC brought out.

It is noted that General THORPE lives in Minnesota but has a house in Rhode Island about which he is now concerned, and that he had flown in- to Washington, D. C. yesterday to appear today. He said that he felt it his public duty to appear.

WASH FIELD LETTER TO DIRECTOR

RE: SUBCOMMITTEE OF SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE

FORTAS then said that he had assurance that after BUDENZ had finished, he would be able to present General THORPE and Senator LODGE asked him who had given him this assurance. FORTAS was unable to state with any clarity where this assurance came from but said he knew of no reason in law why he could not present his witness. Senator LODGE then said that he was no lawyer, that this was not a legal proceeding and that FORTAS was not in a court room. FORTAS finally admitted, after several questions, that on Wednesday, April 19th, he had spoken with Senator TYDINGS and FORTAS implied that Senator TYDINGS had told him that his witness, General THORPE, would be allowed to appear today. FORTAS then said that he wanted to subpoena FREDERICK V. FIELD, because a few days ago a commentator, unnamed, had said that BUDENZ in his testimony would link FIELD and LATTIMORE (FORTAS' statements were difficult to follow because he had no microphone).

FORTAS then tried to get into evidence an affidavit which he said was made by BELLA DODD, whom he described as a CP member and a member of the CP National Committee from 1944 until 1948. He also said that BELLA DODD was expelled from the CP in June, 1949. When asked why DODD did not appear, FORTAS said that he could not subpoena her. The affidavit was not allowed in evidence and FORTAS was not permitted to read it. The hearing adjourned at about 5:05 pm.

Mr. J. Edgar Hoover
 Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation
 Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Hoover:

Some time ago it was publicly announced via a letter from Mr. Peyton Ford, Assistant U. S. Attorney General, that: (1) The F. B. I. had examined the 81 State Department loyalty files which the members of the Tydings Committee have been scrutinizing; and (2) that this examination by the F. B. I. disclosed that the files were complete and that nothing had been removed therefrom.

Last night Fulton Lewis, Jr., in a radio program, stated that this was not true; that the F. B. I. had not made an examination of the files in question.

I would, therefore, greatly appreciate knowing whether or not the F. B. I. actually has conducted any type of examination of the files in question and if so, whether your Department has actually found the files to be complete with nothing having been removed therefrom.

I very much dislike doing anything which may even remotely involve the F. B. I. in what has been developing into a rather unpleasant situation insofar as the present loyalty investigation is concerned. However, I very strongly feel there has been too much of an attempt on the part of some to hide behind the very excellent and well earned reputation of the F. B. I. For that reason, I believe the request for this information is a reasonable one.

Sincerely yours,

Joe McCarthy

STATE DEPARTMENT REPORT ENTITLED "SURVEY OF DEPARTMENTAL PERSONNEL SECURITY INVESTIGATIONS" BY S. KLAUS, AUGUST 3, 1946

PURPOSE:

Communist in the State Department

To summarize the attached summary of the above-captioned document.

PERTINENT ALLEGATIONS IN THE REPORT:

In commenting on the interpretation of the Security Committee functions, it was stated that the Security Committee considered that security questions were raised by such items as credit risks, sexual aberrations of character or conduct, and truthfulness in replies to questionnaires. This was considered an impingement on the personnel policy. It was noted that the Department was practically exclusively dependent on the FBI for the type of information emanating from surveillance, wide coverage, and use of unusual methods of interrogation and investigation. The Department did not have the facilities for that type of work; consequently, the FBI was the sole repository of such information as the identity of Communist Party members, foreign agents, etc.

It was indicated that checks made by the FBI were a matter of accommodation and not of duty, and no control was exercised by the Department over the investigation. It was also stated that the FBI had prepared a chart which purported to show a number of "agents", "Communists", "sympathizers", and "suspects" in the State Department as of May 15, 1947. These were tabulated in the report. It was stated that the FBI had produced no proof that any person was an actual agent nor made a case to show espionage or violation of Federal legislation. It was concluded that the cases comprised the total of questionable employees in every security category in the Department; that is, "questionable, in the opinion of the FBI." It was pointed out, in connection with information received by the Department, that "The only organization which does conduct surveillances and active investigation in the security field, and whose production we are entirely dependant upon, is one which we do not control and which does not act in accordance with our needs or requirements."

The Security Committee had a tendency to assert security risks in matters which have only relatively remote security implications. Such aspects included homosexuality, psychopathological and past financial difficulties. These items, according to the report, were of security interest only in the sense that numerous other factors may, in a crisis, give rise to an opportunity for pressure or blackmail.

In commenting on "loyalty", it was stated that, if a person uttered certain views, this evidence may suggest further investigation as to his loyalty. However, there should be no confusion between the fact of those views and the ultimate fact of disloyalty. Consideration of American history should demonstrate that persons who seek to change the existing form of our Government may still be intensely loyal to the Government and traditions of the United States on accepted subjective standards, and they are not necessarily disloyal when they hold unpopular views. It was remarked in connection with violent overthrow of the Government that in the Schneiderman Case the Supreme Court indicated that members of the Communist Party who seek to accomplish their aims by Constitutional means cannot, perhaps, be deemed to be seeking to overthrow the Government by violence, and, furthermore, the Communist Party is, in most States, a legal Party. It was stated that the Civil Service Commission ruled that the provisions of the Hatch Act, which did not mention any Party by name, were to be interpreted as applying to the Communist, Nazi, and Fascist Parties. The courts had not passed on the validity of the interpretation and it was doubted whether the interpretation would be sustained.

Foreign agents were considered as persons acting under instructions and presumably reporting to their principals. Consequently, they could be detected if sufficient manpower and ingenuity were available. The conclusion was drawn that "It must, therefore, be only the inadequacy of the Department's Security Personnel and of the FBI or legal obstacles to surveillances that account for our failure to discover such agents, to dismiss them, to bring them to trial, and to convict them, where crimes have been committed." The failure of trial and conviction was ascribed in part to lack of adequate information.

"However, where actual agents were not dealt with, but only persons likely to be used as such, the standards should be known as of 'reasonable danger', for we are dealing here with the opinion and belief of a citizen."

In regard to the Department's ability to handle the investigative problem, it was concluded that the acid test of the investigative facilities used by the Department, which meant means used primarily by the FBI, must be the discovery of actual penetration by foreign agents as demonstrated by sound evidence which would expose the intelligence system of a foreign power in this country. Such evidence the FBI had not yet produced. Moreover, each employee dismissed as an agent or probable agent must become the subject of an intensive security investigation to justify the dismissal.

The FBI acts for the Department by way of accommodation, and it cannot afford to be meticulous in its work in view of the wholesale demands made upon it by other Government agencies. Furthermore, the FBI established priorities of investigation and transmitted to the Department only such information as, in the opinion of FBI officials, may be properly known to the Department. The information obtained from the FBI was not necessarily evaluated or subjected to the same standards of proof as those applied to information collected for the use of the Attorney General and courts. The request made by the Department of the FBI was not incapable of proof, and whether a man is a member of the Communist Party is not improvable since the FBI has or can penetrate the Party. Therefore, the failure of the FBI to provide proof which would stand up was simply the evidence of the FBI's own administrative limitations with respect to the work it does without the statutory duty. It was pointed out that the FBI investigators were not subject to direction and control of the Department and their sources could not be evaluated. The alternative was to strengthen the Department's investigative service or utilizing more extensively the services of other agencies.

It was considered desirable that there be a thorough coordination of the Government's intelligence and counter-intelligence investigations in order to provide the information needed for the direction of the Department's foreign and personnel policies. This would require an understanding with Mr. Hoover, the Attorney General, and the Director of CIG. It was indicated that the FBI Appropriations Act carried a provision that investigations should be conducted on behalf of the Attorney General and Secretary of State. It was conceded that there may be practical difficulties in effecting closer direction by the Department over the investigative work of the FBI. The accommodation character of the FBI's service to the Department was intolerable and the FBI must perform as a direct service of obligation to the Department or the Department could not fulfill its obligations. The Department should explore the possibilities of a closer arrangement with CIG. Various cases were included in the survey and it was noted that certain individuals were disproved as security risks for such reasons as alcoholism, homosexuality, and indiscretion.

At the conclusion of the report, recommendations were made, among which was one that more discriminate use should be made of the investigations conducted by such agencies as the FBI and the possibility be explored of using additional agencies such as the Treasury Department and CIG. Every case of a rejection or termination on evidence of foreign agency should be a cause for counter-intelligence consideration and report to the Department. For this reason, careful reexamination should be made of the role of the FBI as an intelligence agency serving the Department and proper use of the facilities of CIG and other agencies for the same purpose.

It is noted that a copy of the Klaus report was recently obtained by the Bureau from the State Department through liaison. However, on April 2, 1947, there were obtained through liaison with the State Department photostatic copies of a memorandum prepared by Mr. Dennis Flinn, former Bureau Agent with the State Department, entitled "The Story of Sammy", which was prepared to refute the Klaus report. In a memorandum to you from Mr. E. G. Fitch on April 14, 1947, a summary was made of the charges made by Klaus concerning the Bureau, followed by comments of the true facts in each instance. At that time the Klaus report was not available but the memorandum by Mr. Flinn quoted pertinent portions of the Klaus report.

A check is being made to determine whether any of the individuals named in the "Case Studies" Section of the Klaus report are presently employed in the Federal Government. If it is determined that they are still employed, appropriate action will be taken under Executive Order Number 9835.

STATE DEPARTMENT REPORT ENTITLED
"SURVEY OF DEPARTMENTAL PERSONNEL SECURITY INVESTIGATIONS" BY S. KLAUS
AUGUST 3, 1946

PURPOSE:

To summarize the above-captioned report pursuant to your request.

BACKGROUND:

On June 6, 1950, Senator Joseph R. McCarthy on the Senate floor stated in substance that three or four years ago the FBI supplied the State Department with charts and diagrams purportedly showing pre-Soviet individuals in the State Department. It was determined that the material used by Senator McCarthy emanated from the State Department in a report prepared by Mr. Samuel Klaus dated August 3, 1946, for Joseph Panuch, former Deputy to the Assistant Secretary for Administration. A copy of this report has been obtained by the Bureau. The alleged charts prepared by the FBI appear on page 29 of the report wherein it is stated in part, "FBI has prepared a chart, now in the possession of Mr. Bannerman, which purports to show a number of 'agents', 'Communists', 'sympathizers', and 'suspects' in the State Department as of May 15, 1947." There followed a tabulation in each category.

On page 30 of the report there is set forth the verbatim text of material critical to the Bureau which appeared in the press subsequently. It has also been determined that the chart in question was in fact prepared in the Reproduction Branch of the State Department and bears the title "~~Top Secret~~, U. S. Department of State, Preliminary Survey of the Communist Infiltration, prepared May 15, 1946." The following is a summary of the report prepared by Mr. Klaus set out in sections as the report actually appears.

PERSONNEL SECURITY REPORT PREPARED BY S. KLAUS:

Introduction

The first part of this report is the authority on which the survey was made and its limitations. Conclusions set forth in the introduction were:

- (1) The organization was effective in applicant screening according to relatively crude and normal standards of ordinary employment.
- (2) The organization did not secure the Department from penetration by professional foreign agents.
- (3) The implied and sometimes explicit standards of ideology and opinion which were applied to security raised questions of Government policy and of their effect on the character and personality of personnel to be admitted to the Department.
- (4) The standards of proof were dubious.

Findings

The personnel investigations were divided into two groups. The first consisted of applications for original employment or transfer to Departmental rolls. The second comprised investigations of employees already on the rolls. The initiation of these investigations was described. Special cases of investigations conducted by the FBI were mentioned, however, these were not surveyed. The Division of Investigations (CSA) was then described as to functions, organization and scope of the investigation. The functions of CSA were to investigate applicants for security reasons, make investigations in connection with passports and visas and greeting newly arrived diplomats and distinguished foreign visitors. As to the organization of CSA, it was stated that the miscellaneous character of the Special Agents' work probably explains their lack of special training and the methods of CSA procedure. It was noted that the methods and traditions of the Post Office Inspectors' Service seemed to predominate inasmuch as the officers of CSA were formerly affiliated with that Service.

In connection with the scope of the investigation, it was stated that there is no manual of instructions or any standards of proof to guide the investigations. In the usual case the function of CSA is to verify statements made by applicants on the application form. Further, the "derogatory" information reported is usually obtained by consulting routine sources, police records, House Committee files, etc.

It was also noted in the report that no investigation of a financial character is conducted and no attempt is made to check income tax records. A criticism was made of the type of review set up in CSA and also of the CSA personnel. It was stated that the field agents probably have sufficient training to conduct ordinary investigations efficiently, however, few of the agents had prior training in personnel policies in the Department, in ideologies, in court decisions and legislation with respect to the Civil Service employment. It was stated that a doubt existed whether the average agent knows the differences among various schools of so-called liberal and radical thought.

The Office of Security Officer--CON

This organization functioned almost entirely as a liaison office between other investigative agencies, particularly the FBI and CSA. Ostensibly, the set-up to review CSA investigations and request additional investigations is not adequate. Furthermore, this office had access on a "personal" basis to current FBI investigations and information flowing into this office which was not given to CSA. According to the report, the FBI sent to CON security reports which in the judgement of the FBI were of interest to the State Department. It was alleged that the information was made available only on a basis of personal trust to certain members of CON. It was also stated that this office lacked a proper filing system and relied on personal recollections of the staff. The scope of CON was presumably to protect the personnel security of the Department by collating CSA reports with information from other sources and coordinate personnel security with other security aspects. Where there are elements of doubt with respect to security, the cases are referred to CON to the Security Committee for disposition. However, if the case is one of an applicant for Foreign Service, the case is then referred by CON to the FBI for further investigation. In such cases the FBI received the benefit of all CSA and other information. It was noted that CON was not restricted to review alone but operates as a fact-finding body in respect to CSA and it was doubted that this was sanctioned by Departmental authority. It was further indicated that additional information asked of CSA by CON was routine in character, usually on the basis of some confidential information from the FBI, personal knowledge of the staff concerning the applicant or a gap in employment information.

Security Committee

The Committee is concerned primarily with passing on cases presented by CON and other offices. This Committee meets irregularly, depending on the number of cases for consideration. The secretary at the meetings orally presented the facts in each case to the Committee after reading the CSA reports and digesting derogatory information. No minutes were kept during the meetings. The files were not seen or read by the Committee. It was indicated that the Committee was essentially a part of CON and decisions in individual cases were largely predetermined by the views of officers of CON. The Committee has no directive or standards from any superior authority and acts in accordance with the views of individual members as to security considerations. The conclusion was that the Committee was not judicial but in effect an administrative screening Committee. The Committee tended to proceed on the principle that an adverse recommendation be made in every case where a "doubt" was entertained even though further investigation might dispel or explain the doubt. It was also indicated that an officer of CON stated that the Department should not employ anyone where an element of doubt was indicated because there were other persons eligible for positions regarding whom no doubt existed. The doubt was derived from such factors as membership list or purchasers at the Washington Book Shop, petition signers of various kinds or membership in organizations which the Dies Committee designated as Communist dominated.

It was concluded that there was a question as to the validity of the premise that such doubts of loyalty to the United States were "reasonable". Moreover, the Committee made no distinction between professional and clerical applicants in the application of their standards. The Committee based its decisions of disapproval on the "existence of derogatory inference from what are really ambiguous facts". It was conceded that the Committee requested supplementary investigation in some cases such as neighborhood and Civil Service Commission checks but beyond such routine additional investigation the Committee was content to base recommendations on inferences. Furthermore, the Committee disregarded eligibility ratings by the Civil Service Commission and considered that security questions were raised by such items as "credit risk, sexual aberrations of character or conduct, and truthfulness in replies to questionnaires." This was considered an impingement on personnel policy.

Role of the FBI

The FBI furnishes the Department information in the form of routine checks for CSA, or for CON, or in the form of unsolicited reports of interest to the Department. Mention was made that at the request of officers of CON the FBI conducted investigations of foreign career personnel applicants where an element of doubt had been produced. It was noted that the Department relied upon the FBI and the checks were made as a matter of accommodation, not of duty, and no control was exercised by the Department over the investigation. Furthermore, the Department was dependent on the FBI for information which emanated from "surveillance, wide coverage, and the use of unusual methods of interrogation and investigation."

The FBI prepared a chart which purported to show a number of agents, Communists, sympathizers and suspects in the State Department as of May 15, 1947. It was learned several months later that the number had been considerably reduced.

"It turned out that FBI had produced no convincing proof that any person was an actual agent. In other words, FBI had made no case to show espionage or a violation of the Foreign Agents' Registration Act, or similar legislation, in any case. The word 'agent' was, therefore, being used - by FBI or by CON - to mean simply a suspect in espionage investigation, etc.

"No proof of actual Communist Party membership had been produced by FBI. The word Communist, therefore, was used merely to describe cases of such close affiliation as to lend credence to a hypothesis that the person in question was a member---a fact still to be proved."

It was concluded that these cases comprised the total of questionable employees of every security category in the Department, that is, "questionable in the opinion of the FBI". It was observed that when CSA applied to FBI for checks, it received information based on "index searchers"; however, CON received additional information not afforded to CSA. It was explained that this information was of a current nature and not indexed or so confidential that CSA would not receive it. The conclusion was that it was embarrassing and involved duplication and inefficiency of operation since CSA was not informed by the FBI in cases where confidential information was available and that information was furnished to CON and withheld from CSA. It was presumed that there were standing orders in the FBI to the distribution personnel regarding the types of reports sent to the State Department. It was conceded that information was not being deliberately withheld with knowledge that it would be valuable to the Department. However the opinion was expressed "that" the only organization which does conduct surveillance and active investigation in the security field and whose product we are entirely dependent upon is one which we do not control and which does not act in accordance with our needs or requirements."

It was pointed out that CON appeared to be influenced by the FBI in other ways. Mr. Flinn, former FBI employee, was active in the Security Committee as an additional liaison with FBI officers and the FBI gave valuable information on a personal basis to the Department under admonitions of secrecy.

According to information in the report, FBI Congressional appropriations provided that the FBI should act for the Attorney General and the Secretary of State. It was doubted that the Department could exercise more control over the detail of FBI service and concluded that "in practice it would certainly be improbable."

II

Section II of the report dealt with the conclusions which were allegedly justified by the survey.

Objectives of Personnel Security Control

It was disclosed in the report that there were dangers to security which do not derive from foreign agents. These were the dangers of infiltration in the Department by representatives of business corporations and special interests should the "well-placed" employee favorably influence policy or obtain influence over his fellow employees.

It was indicated that foreign governments may attempt to obtain information which was not the policy and interest of the United States to disclose and the effect of the activities of the foreign government was to frustrate that policy and interest.

Also included in security were attempts to destroy the disciplinary control of officials of the State Department over information of interest to other governments. It was indicated that the press at times jeopardized policy by disclosure of information prematurely. The conclusion was that personnel security controls were much broader in scope and significance than the type of investigation and review previously discussed could handle.

Standards of Personnel Investigation

It was stated that there was an absence of expressed standards of investigation and the CSA investigations were not governed by statute or by any departmental policy. The investigators have no written instructions nor clear idea of the Department's employment standards.

The Security Committee showed a tendency to assert security risks in matters which have only relatively remote security implications. Included were homosexuality, psychopathological and financial difficulties. These matters according to the report were primarily in the province of the personnel authorities and were of security interest only when given rise to an opportunity for pressure or blackmail. In regard to pressure and blackmail, certain countervailing characteristics should be considered, such as character, length of service, etc. These matters are the responsibility of the Personnel Department. The Security Committee and CON should be concerned with elements of security closer to the aspects of penetration by foreign governments. Furthermore, of importance in the survey was a confusion in the distinction between standards of purpose or policy and standards of proof. For example, it was assumed that a person who was associated with "leftists" or "Communists" should be debarred from employment. A standard of policy or purpose could be promulgated by the Department that no employee associate with "suspects". This policy was not formulated. It indicated, however, that if an applicant did associate with suspects it becomes a matter of proof and must be based on standards of logic and fact.

Standards of Purpose or Policy

There were set out in the report special legislative standards, such as the Hatch Act, which were laid down by Congress.

It was stated that "loyalty" was commonly used for a standard of eligibility for employment and the meaning of the word is assumed. However, it was noted that in the CSA reports such words as "liberal", "Socialist" and "Communist" were assumed to be interchangeable terms and all were inconsistent with "loyalty".

Vague language, it was indicated, may be desirable in certain instances but it should not be permitted to result in the dismissal of employees where the findings were drawn from opinions and beliefs which could not be held up by the courts.

Evidence that a person uttered certain views may suggest further investigation but there should be no confusion between those views and ultimate disloyalty. It was stated that a reflection of American history should demonstrate that persons who seek to change the existing form of our government may still be intensely loyal, on accepted subjective standards, to the government and traditions of the United States and they are not necessarily disloyal when they hold unpopular views.

Furthermore, this consideration was important, according to the survey, since even Communists frequently argue that they seek, out of their loyalty to the United States, a form of government which they consider superior. "That these protestations may be sincere is indicated by the not infrequent cases of Communists who have left the Party and abjured the faith because of disillusionment." It was concluded that any standard which does not consider the liberty of the American citizen to hold and discuss unpopular views and by peaceful and lawful means to convince others cannot be applied as an acid test for loyalty to the United States.

Guilt by Association---Overt Acts

According to the report, it was commonly contended that persons should be disapproved for employment because of their associates, which standard was referred to as "guilt by association". The Security Committee used association as a ground for a finding of guilt. It was stated that such standards of guilt, completely unauthorized by law or by policy of government, may be imposed with consequences that appear to be arbitrary, if not tyrannical.

The standard of "overt acts" was dismissed with the statement that it should be applied with objectivity, reanalyzed and restated.

Overthrow of the Government by Violence

This, a Hatch Act Standard, was usually applied to Anarchists and Communists. The Schneiderman case was discussed and it was stated that the Supreme Court indicated that members of the Communist Party who were seeking to accomplish their aims by Constitutional means cannot perhaps be deemed to be seeking to overthrow the government by violence. It was further stated that the Marxists and Communists would probably overthrow the government by violence if they thought there was a possibility of success. However, in view of the Supreme Court's decision the standard is too vague for the usual case. The Communist Party in most states is a legal political party. The Civil Service Commission ruled that the provisions of the Hatch Act, which do not name any party, were to be interpreted to apply to the Communist, Nazi and Fascist parties. The courts have not ruled on this interpretation and a doubt existed whether the interpretations would be sustained.

Danger of Penetration by Foreign Governments

A clearer standard of purpose, according to the survey, should be that the Department not employ any person acting directly or indirectly for a foreign government. It was also considered improper to employ a person who was overpoweringly sympathetic to a foreign government and who would consider his loyalty to the Department and the United States less than his sympathy for the other government.

The Communist Party is an instrument of Soviet policy, makes fanatic devotees and appeals to the more intelligent classes from whom the government is likely to recruit its personnel. Members or sympathizers of the Communist Party may provide a source of agents of propagandists within the Department.

Agents acting under instructions and presumably reporting to their principals can be detected if sufficient manpower and ingenuity are available. The conclusion drawn was, "It must therefore be only the inadequacy of the Department's security personnel and of the FBI or legal obstacles to surveillance that account for our failure to discover such agents, to dismiss them, to bring them to trial and to convict them, where crimes have been committed." If this was not done, the failure must be ascribed in part to lack of adequate information.

However, where actual agents were not dealt with but only persons likely to be used as such, the standard should be one of "reasonable danger, for we are dealing here with the opinion and belief of a citizen."

Standards of Proof

It was pointed out that what is sufficient proof is determined by many factors and that frequently the failure to comply with rules of sufficiency of evidence is caused by administrative necessity. It was conceded that the ideological convictions of a person may be difficult to prove especially when there is a desire to conceal them. Furthermore, the CSA investigators do not interview the applicant and report only such routine items as background information, etc. The reviewers, like the investigators, base their determination on the strength of the inference concerning approval or disapproval for employment.

CON and the Security Committee have attempted to assume in cases an inference of Communist Party membership, or its equivalent, from facts which are clearly subject in experience to an equal or stronger inference of innocence. True foreign agents would naturally avoid opinion and not associate with organizations under fire and consequently penetrate the Department as a result of diversion created by the application of this test.

If the hypothesis suggested by the ambiguous evidence is one of actual agency on behalf of a foreign government, the hypothesis should be capable of proof if sufficient investigative effort was applied. The detection problem is difficult but not insoluble.

The standard of proof must be higher where the individual is an employee than where he is merely an applicant. There may be additional considerations of personnel policy which call for a greater investigative effort and competence in certain types of applicants than others.

Administration Concentration of Effort

The same standard of proof was applied to high and low salaried individuals where items of ideology and affiliations with "front" organizations were involved. In many cases the problem seemed to be one of personnel policy rather than departmental security. The lack of sufficient personnel, etc., call for a practical distinction between types of cases and, therefore, between standards of proof. It may be desired, in order to achieve a maximum concentration of effort on important cases, to reject "out of hand" applicants in certain categories where the record contained unsolved issues bearing on security. This type of case would consist of new applicants for employment in positions that could easily be filled by other applicants of equal ability without raising questions of public policy, such as messengers, clerical help, etc.

It was further indicated that Foreign Service officers and professional experts should be subjected to the most thorough investigation and to higher standards of proof. The Department could not be permitted, from a policy standpoint, to reduce to the employment of insipid, colorless individuals without intellectual curiosity or idealism, merely because it was administratively difficult to make the investigation necessary to prove or disprove ambiguous evidence, such as membership in the Washington Book Shop.

Guilt by Association—Standard of Proof

Association with persons under suspicion must not be casual friendship but must be close and intimate. It must be concluded that the two are engaged in the same conspiracy or share the same loyalty. This was true of membership in "front" organizations which are designed to attract innocents. Innocents are not unintelligent people but merely of good faith and good will, manipulated in subtle ways by professional persons. To say that the Department should not employ such persons raised the question of personnel policy.

Future Importance of Standards of Proof

It was indicated that continued attempts to penetrate the Department would be made by persons who did not belong to "front" organizations and whose records as far as routine checks were clear. The standards of proof in special investigations must be different. The security officers of the Department must bear in mind the distinction between foreign agents and mere "joiners" and formulate a planned program of investigation to deal with this problem. The current standards of investigation are calculated to deal only with routine requirements and the investigative service of the Department is not adequate.

Relations to FBI and Other Agencies

The investigating unit of the Department was not able to cope with attempts to penetrate the Department by planting agents of foreign intelligence organizations in the Department. The CSA investigation cannot discover such agents of foreign intelligence organizations and the investigation was limited to information from other agencies that did not have the Department's security needs as their purpose. It is indicated to cope with this problem the Department must utilize other agencies or expand their own facilities. The problem was to know the intelligence organizations and personnel of other governments operating in this country, so that the employees who would be used by such governments could be recognized. U

The situation at that time, according to the report, was ludicrous and the Department organized precautionary security measures without knowledge of the matters, which could only be partially effective. The limited investigative facilities must be concentrated to avoid unproductive investment of personnel and time, and conserve the appropriations.

It was concluded that the intelligence system of foreign powers and their agents must be exposed by sound evidence. The investigative facilities used by the Department, primarily the FBI, has not produced such evidence. Moreover, each employee dismissed as an agent or probable agent must become the subject of an intensive security investigation to justify the dismissal.

Nature of FBI's Cooperation

The FBI acts for the Department by way of accomodation and it cannot afford to be meticulous in its work in view of the demands by other agencies, etc. Furthermore, the FBI established its own priority on investigations and transmitted only such information as in the opinion of the FBI officials, would be properly known to the Department.

The information obtained from the FBI was not subjected by the FBI to the standards of proof, such as those applied to information collected for use of the Attorney General and courts. That which was requested of the FBI was not incapable of proof. Whether a man was a member of the Communist Party was not unprovable since the FBI has penetrated or can penetrate the Party. Therefore, the FBI failed to provide proof that would stand up in court, which is simply evidence of the FBI's administrative limitation with respect to the work it does without statutory duty.

When FBI investigations served the needs of the Department, the fact still remained that the investigators were not subject to Departmental direction and control. Consequently, there was no means of evaluating the source. The alternative was to strengthen their own investigative services and utilize the services of other agencies such as Treasury and the Post Office Department. It was deemed imperative that there must be a thorough coordination of the government's intelligence and counter-intelligence investigations in order to provide information necessary for guidance of the Department's foreign and personnel policies. It is required, therefore, that an understanding must be made with the FBI, Department of Justice and CIC.

It was indicated that the FBI Appropriations Act carried a provision that investigations should be made on behalf of the Secretary of State as well as the Attorney General. It was conceded that there were difficulties in effecting closer direction by the Department over the work of the FBI. The accommodation character of the FBI's service to the Department was not tolerable. The FBI must perform as a direct service of obligation to the Department or the Department could not fulfill its obligations.

Reorganization of the Present Departmental Facilities

The investigative personnel of the Department must be adequately trained in their work and also in such special fields as ideology. The staff of CON should be reorganized and trained in personnel policies, standards of security and in background information from sources in addition to the FBI.

The Security Committee methods were not those of a judicial body and was essentially a Committee of CON. Some of the members were lawyers, but not practicing lawyers and they did not act as judges. Most of them acted as investigators and prosecutors in the same cases which they judged. The Committee did not request additional information in cases where an element of doubt existed.

III.

This portion of the report is concerned with case studies. The period selected was from June to July, 1946, during which 136 cases were closed by CSA. There were several examples cited in this section concerning applicants, for example, in one case a former editor of Amerasia was approved on the basis of general character study without any investigation of the applicant's knowledge of the internal policies and management of Amerasia.

Another applicant on transfer was reported as a risk because a former university instructor seemed reserved with respect to the applicant's loyalty.

In another case which involved a transferee of CIAA, the FBI at first reported that the applicant was a member of a group known as the Sacco-Vanzetti Club, but then reported that he merely received an invitation to attend a meeting and there was no evidence that he responded. Apparently, no further investigation was made in this case.

Applicants were disapproved for such reasons as overdressing, heavy drinking, indiscretion, and homo-sexuality.

The applicant investigation of Ida Wallack was discussed in the survey and the sources of information in the investigation were criticized and no effort was made by the investigators to check the authenticity of allegations against Wallack. For example, there appeared in the Wallack report a statement that Ida Wallack "apparently is a member of the Communist Party. She is a signer of the 1940 Communist nominating petition in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania." No source was given for that allegation.

Another case discussed was that of William Chaiken, whose case was based on the fact that the CSA digest of the Civil Service records disclosed that ten references given by Chaiken "were listed in the subversive files of a government agency and a number of these have been prominently identified with Communist front activities". There is also criticism of the characterization of some of the references as Communist. It was indicated that there had been considerable dispute as to the accuracy of the characterization. This applied also to organizations.

The next case discussed was that of Dorothy Cheney Goodwin, who had written a memorandum which gave the history of the investigation of her character by the Civil Service Commission in 1942, also her membership in the Cooperative Bookshop in Washington and her association with "an alleged Communist", which were in her investigative file. It is stated in the report that the conclusion that she was a member of a Communist front organization appeared to relate entirely to her membership in the Bookshop. It was noted that the disapproval was appealed by Miss Goodwin.

The next case was that of Penn Townsend Kimball, an applicant for the foreign service. It was noted that no FBI report had been received concerning him and when requested for the report, the FBI reported by telephone that in 1941, the PM unit of the New York Newspaper Guild had distributed a circular which defended a strike of the North American Aviation Company in California and that the name of Penn Townsend Kimball appeared on the circular. It was noted by the FBI that this strike prompted the President to furnish troops to protect the workers. Further request was made of the FBI for investigation, however, the report was not in the file at the time of the survey. Criticism was made of the vague language in the report concerning Kimball, who was rejected as a security risk. Furthermore, no investigation was made of the situation in PM or among his recent associates.

The Clarence John Nelson Case was also discussed and persons interviewed during the investigation of Nelson stated he was a "conscientious objector type", that while Nelson was in the Navy he once had a trunk which contained Communist and radical literature. It appeared that an official of CON had concluded the man was a Communist. It was not demonstrated that Nelson was an agent or a Communist Party member and the investigation did not establish either proposition on any standard of proof. This case, according to the report, raised the question whether an employee of the State Department should be permitted to remain if it was discovered that he showed an intellectual interest on problems of Socialism or Communism where it was not proved that he was affiliated or adhered to the programs of any groups.

General Comments

It was indicated in this portion of the survey that the foregoing cases were believed fair examples of the method and scope of investigation, review and decision of the standards of proof and of purpose applied in CSA, CON and the Security Committee.

Mr. Klaus stated that he concurred in the disapproval in the Chaiken case, not on the adequacy of the proof, but on the basis of administrative convenience to the Department.

IV.

This section contained the recommendations as a result of the survey. The recommendations were as follows:

A. The quality and scope of the investigation should be improved. Investigators and review officials should be schooled and reindoctrinated in the Department's standards of employment, foreign intelligence, Civil Service regulations, etc. The investigators should undertake imaginative, critical and more difficult investigation rather than compel the Department to rely upon other agencies such as the FBI. More discriminate use should be made of investigations conducted by other agencies such as the FBI and the possibility should be explored of using additional agencies such as Treasury and CIG.

B. Intelligence coordination should be enlarged and improved. The evaluators in CON should be trained in evidence and the application of standards to fact. Report writing in personnel cases should be improved in respect to the presentation of facts and conclusions.

C. Standards of employment and security should be frequently reformulated for the guidance of personnel and security officers.

D. The Security Committee should be abolished. The functions of adjudication should be divided between Personnel and CON. A new quasi-judicial body should be formed with established procedures.

E. The place of the Department in the entire counter intelligence field should be reexamined. Every case of rejection on evidence of foreign agencies should be a cause for counter intelligence consideration and report to the Department. Careful reexamination should be made of the FBI as an intelligence agency serving the Department and proper use of the facilities of CIG and other governmental agencies for the same purpose.

REPLY TO THE SURVEY OF KLAUS BY STATE DEPARTMENT OFFICER:

In April, 1947, the Bureau received a copy of a memorandum, entitled "The Story of Sammy", which was prepared by Mr. Dennis Flinn of the State Department, which repudiated the report prepared by Klaus. In this document the report of Klaus is analyzed in sections and the report of Klaus is described as "an amazing document of half-truths, ineunos, fussy thinking and downright mis-statement". For example, in the Klaus report there was a statement as to the investigation of financial connections. Mr. Flinn indicated in his reply that it was the first time he had ever seen "financial disability" as a qualifying factor in the field of security.

As to the criticism in Klaus' survey regarding the availability of FBI reports on a personal basis, it is stated that these reports were furnished on a liaison basis for limited distribution because they pertained to current cases under investigation by the FBI. Bias toward the F.B.I. was apparent in the report and the author regretted the dependence on the F.B.I. by the Department and that no control was exercised over the F.B.I. investigations. It was pointed out that the special inquiries made by the FBI were a matter of accommodation and not a duty and no control was exercised by the Department.

Mr. Flinn stated that the Attorney General, War and other departments, depended heavily upon the FBI in the security intelligence field and access to reports. It was indicated that Klaus desired to embarrass the Department's relation with the FBI and compromise their sources. Klaus referred to a chart prepared by the FBI ostensibly showing Soviet agents, Party members, etc. in the Department, which Mr. Flinn stated was actually prepared by the Department on the basis of information available from all sources.

The document compiled by Mr. Flinn refuted the Klaus report practically in its entirety.

ANALYSIS BY THE BUREAU:

In a memorandum to you from Mr. E. G. Fitch dated April 2, 1947, concerning the Klaus report it was stated that many portions of the report dealt in misstatements and half truths concerning the Bureau, specifically when it dealt with the Bureau not being in position to back up the information supplied to the State Department.

An analysis was made of the Klaus report by memorandum to you from Mr. Fitch, dated April 14, 1947, from information contained in the reply by Mr. Flinn. The original report compiled by Klaus was not available at that time. The charges made by Klaus concerning the Bureau were set forth and comments were made of the true facts concerning the charges. Communists In The State Department

While I was out to lunch, the Attorney General called. I returned the call immediately upon returning.

He stated that Miss Fanebust had told him we had a letter to Senator McCarthy and he wondered if that was something he had to personally pass upon. I told him obviously Mr. Hoover would want to do him the courtesy of letting him see such a letter in view of the public interest and the public statements of McCarthy.

He then stated: "Do I have to say it is all right to send the letter?" Then, in a joking manner, he said: "That is exactly what I am trying to avoid."

I told him if he interposed no objection to the letter, it would be satisfactory to us as our letter was a direct answer to McCarthy, it was innocuous, non-committal, and only went as far as absolutely necessary.

He then asked if it was our understanding that Ford wrote a letter to Tydings stating the FBI had examined State Department files. I told him all we knew about this was what we read in the paper.

He then referred again to the letter and asked if this was the thing we were in a controversy with Ford on. I told him the controversy with Ford had to do with John Stewart Service.

He said obviously the Bureau had to answer McCarthy and had to give a factual answer to McCarthy and wondered if he should call Ford and ask Ford for a copy of the letter Ford sent to Tydings. I told him this, of course, was a matter for him.

He stated that he personally didn't want to get in any controversy. I told him we weren't trying to involve him in any controversy and wouldn't do that, that we merely brought the letter around to him as a matter of courtesy and so he could interpose an objection if he desired.

He stated he would call for the letter Ford wrote and he would clear the letter this afternoon.

My dear Senator:

I have received your letter dated June 27, 1950 inquiring whether this Bureau has examined the 81 loyalty files which the members of the Tydings Committee have been scrutinizing and whether such an examination by the FBI has disclosed that the files are complete and that nothing has been removed therefrom.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation has made no such examination and therefore is not in a position to make any statement concerning the completeness or completeness of the State Department files.

For your information, the Federal Bureau of Investigation furnished Mr. Ford, at his request, record of all loyalty material furnished the State Department in the 81 cases referred to. For your further information, I am enclosing a copy of Mr. Ford letter to Senator Tydings which I have secured from the Attorney General.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. Peyton Ford called and stated that the Attorney General had directed that he write a letter to Senator Tydings based upon our memorandum reporting the results of a check we made on State Department files; that the Attorney General, of course, wanted to help Tydings as much as possible and had outlined how the letter should be prepared; namely, limiting it to that material which we had furnished to the State Department; that Clive Palmer was with him and he wanted us to look at the letter. I told him that we had our memorandum and any letter they wanted to write was up to them. He stated he had a form he wanted to show to us and accordingly, Mr. Palmer brought the letter up which was reviewed by Messrs. Laughlin, Johnson, Ladd and Nichols.

The letter was brief, and points out that the Attorney General has requested the FBI to make an investigation to determine if the State Department files were complete; that the FBI had made such an investigation; that the files were complete except in three instances. The letter also referred to Peyton Ford's letter to the inventory of material we had furnished the Department and to Ford's report that the files were complete. The three exceptions were as follows:

[REDACTED]

The exception noted that the file was complete except that no record appeared therein of data furnished orally on January 17, 1946, and October 24, 1946.

Case 51 - ROWENA ROMMEL

The file was complete except summary data furnished May 13, 1947, was not in the file although the substance of the summary data was set forth in State Department, investigative reports.

Case 16 - ROBERT TALBOT MILLER, III

There was a question mark on the letter between cases 14 and 51 and Palmer advised that they had missed Case 16, which they would put in when the letter was retyped. This refers to Robert Talbot Miller, III. The file was complete except that there was no record of information furnished orally on July 8, 1944.

Objection was made to Mr. Palmer as to the correctness of the reference "FBI Investigation".

It was pointed out that had an investigation been made, it would have been necessary to check each report in the Bureau's files against the State Department, page by page, paragraph by paragraph. This couldn't be called an investigation. He stated he would change this to "examination".

We told him that the matter of the letter was up to him and we would defer it to them.

The letter is factually accurate. It confines itself to those memoranda and reports furnished to the State Department and disregards those sent to other agencies which were not of course in the State Department's files.

MEMORANDUM FOR MR. J. EDGAR HOOVER, DIRECTOR, FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

In view of Senator McCarthy's public charge in a letter which he sent to President Truman that the State Department personnel files in the so-called 81 cases which were reviewed by the Tydings Committee were deliberately stripped of derogatory data in 1946, I request that the Bureau immediately cause an examination of these 81 files to be made and report to me whether or not it finds any material furnished by the Bureau to be missing therefrom, and whether the Department is in possession of any information indicating that State Department personnel files were deliberately stripped of derogatory data at any time.

I would appreciate being advised by Friday, July 14, 1950.

REVIEW OF STATE DEPARTMENT FILES
IN CONNECTION WITH ALLEGATIONS BY SENATOR JOSEPH R. McCARTHY

DECLASSIFIED BY 2909
ON 4/13/78 DPJ/DLC

RECORDED - 72 121-25277-194

In accordance with the request contained in your memorandum of July 12, 1950, representatives of this Bureau, in the presence of Mr. Clive Palmer of the Department, and Messrs. Donald L. Nicholson and Joseph Amshay of the Department of State, today at the White House reviewed State Department files on persons against whom allegations have been made by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy.

For your information, only seventy files of the eighty-one mentioned by Senator McCarthy were actually available for examination. Mr. Nicholson of the State Department explained that Senator McCarthy's Case No. 72 had never been identified by him and that ten of the remaining 80 case files were not made available by the President to the members of the Tydings Subcommittee for examination. According to Mr. Nicholson, these ten cases were not among the 108 cases originally examined by investigators of the Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee in connection with the State Department Appropriation Bill for 1949; and President Truman only made available to members of the Tydings Subcommittee those cases which were included in the 108 cases previously examined. Mr. Nicholson identified the above-mentioned ten cases as: Nelson Chipchin, Lowell Melcher Glueas, Mucio Fernandez Delgado, Tegner Conrad Grendahl, Philip Caryl Jessup, Ivan Katusich, Esther Kopelewich, nee Less, Edward George Posniak, Alexander J. Rapoport, and William Walter Remington.

Bureau representatives used as the basis of their review of the seventy files the information contained in my memorandum dated May 15, 1950, to Mr. Peyton Ford, which reflected a summary of the material furnished by this Bureau to the State Department, Civil Service Commission, and the Loyalty Review Board. In thirteen cases material transmitted by the Bureau to the Loyalty Review Board and the Civil Service Commission in recent months was not in the files. The State Department representatives explained that their files on these individuals were impounded by the President "around February 20, 1950." For a time after that date, according to the State Department representatives, these files were in the possession of the Loyalty Review Board and while some of the material addressed to the Loyalty Review Board from the Bureau and received subsequent to February 20, 1950, has been filed, all of it has not been.

There were six instances among these seventy cases in which the Bureau conducted Loyalty investigations on the individuals involved who at one time were State Department employees but at the time of the investigation were employed in some other Governmental agency. In these cases, copies of the Bureau's Loyalty reports were not in the State Department files.

In five of the seventy cases, according to the Bureau's records, Special Inquiry type investigations were conducted by the Bureau for the Office of Coordinator of Information, predecessor organization to the Office of War Information. These employees apparently were transferred to the State Department although copies of the Bureau's reports reflecting these investigations are not in the State Department files.

Our examination of these files was limited, of course, to checking the material provided by this Bureau since we have no knowledge of what other information should be contained in these files.

Attached for your information is a case by case analysis of the seventy files examined.

With regard to your inquiry as to whether the Bureau is in possession of any information indicating that the State Department personnel files were deliberately stripped of derogatory data at any time, the only information available to this Bureau concerning this is that reflected in the statement dated July 11, 1950, furnished to Senator McCarthy by [redacted], [redacted] in the State Department and now a Special Agent of the FBI. A photostatic copy of this statement is appended for your information.

PURPOSE

To submit for your information the results of a review of the proposed report of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee concerning information appearing therein which directly relates to the FBI or FBI personnel, and to also highlight comments of the Subcommittee.

BACKGROUND

At 4:50 PM on July 10, 1950, a copy of the proposed report of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was made available to the Bureau on a highly confidential basis, it being stipulated that no copies should be made nor any notations made thereon.

This proposed report and the attached appendices (consisting of 337 pages in all) have been reviewed for information which directly relates to the FBI or FBI personnel, special emphasis having been placed on such information as reflects adversely on the Bureau. In this connection, however, it is noted that page sixty-two of the proposed report, as submitted to the Bureau, was missing and therefore could not be reviewed.

In making this review, no attempt has been made to compare the conclusions set forth in the proposed report with the facts as contained in Bureau files, and other than those which directly concern the Bureau no attempt has been made to establish the accuracy or inaccuracy of statements appearing therein.

Generally, throughout the proposed report, references made to the FBI or FBI personnel are commendatory. The findings and conclusions of the Subcommittee are generally favorable to the individuals charged by Senator McCarthy, and no recommendations for dismissal are made.

ACTION

The attached memorandum is submitted for your information.

I think Morgan should be straightened out on this Done 11:15 am 7-11

On page 16 of the attached memorandum, it is pointed out that the Department of Justice has advised the Department of State that Mr. Hoover never made the widely publicized statement that it was a one hundred per cent airtight case against the Amerasia defendants. This of course is an incorrect statement and while the Department has been advised of the inaccuracy of this, the Committee has not.

On page 26 of this memorandum, it is noted that the letter from the Director to the State Department with reference to the chart prepared by Sam Klaus was set forth in full.

With reference to the Amerasia Case on page 30 of the attached memorandum, it is set forth that representatives of the Criminal Division conferred with FBI officials on the morning of September 28, 1945, and it was generally agreed that the case was in serious jeopardy. A number of suggestions were made and discarded. This leaves the erroneous impression that the Bureau might have concurred in the Department's handling of the prosecution.

It is pointed out that the full testimony of the Bureau's representatives is not set forth in the report. Excerpts from the testimony are mentioned in the footnotes.

This is the way we wanted it.

It is noted that the question, which was 7B in the testimony, was changed. This question is quoted and reads "Was evidence sought and obtained by entering the apartment and premises of the accused without legal process and without the knowledge of the accused." Mr. Nichols' answer was then quoted.

The next question is worded "Were these entries of the premises before arrests made by the Agents without legal process and without the knowledge of the subjects." The words "surreptitiously" and "stealthily" are not used.

INTRODUCTION

Under the introduction of this report, it is pointed out that on February 22, 1950, the Senate adopted Resolution 231, authorizing and directing the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, or any subcommittee thereof, to conduct a full and complete study and investigation as to whether persons who are disloyal to the United States are or have been employed by the Department of State. The Committee was directed to report to the Senate at earliest practicable date results of investigation and recommendations. If recommendations included formal charges of disloyalty, the Committee, before making recommendation was directed to give the individual open hearings for purpose of taking evidence or testimony. In the conduct of this study and investigation, the Resolution directed the Committee to procure by subpoena and examine complete loyalty and employment files and records of employees of State Department and such other agencies against whom charges have been heard.

Pursuant to Res. 231, a subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, comprised of Senators Tydings (Chairman), Green, McMahon, Hickenlooper and Lodge, was appointed to conduct the investigation. Beginning with public hearings on March 8, 1950, public or executive hearings were held on 31 subsequent days, ending on July 7, 1950, during the course of which 35 witnesses appeared. Additionally, a special subcommittee consisting of Senators Green and Lodge interrogated a total of 34 witnesses both in the United States and abroad.

The report called attention to the circumstances behind the Resolution, referring to Senator McCarthy's speech on February 9, 1950, at Wheeling, West Virginia, when he allegedly stated that although he could not take the time to name all the men in the State Department who had been named as active members of the Communist Party and members of a spy ring, he had in his hand a list of 205 names that were made known to the Secretary of State as being members of the Communist Party and who nevertheless were still working and shaping policy in the State Department; further, that in an interview over a radio station at Salt Lake City, Utah, on February 10, 1950, McCarthy said, "Last night I discussed the Communists in the State Department. I stated I had the names of 57 card carrying members of the Communist Party." Considerable attention is directed to the fact that the number and characterization of Communists in the State Department had dropped over night from 205 "named as active members of the Communist Party and members of a spy ring" to "57 card carrying members of the Communist Party." The report relates that since Senator McCarthy had left the unmistakable inference he had recently obtained from unrevealed sources in the State Department the information he was presenting, despite the inconsistencies apparent from the outset, an immediate and thorough investigation was necessary. Accordingly, Senate Resolution 231 introduced by Senator Scott W. Lucas was adopted.

CONCEPTION OF THE SUBCOMMITTEE'S DUTY
(Pages 4 - 5)

It is pointed out that Res. 231 was the result of McCarthy's charges and the inquiry contemplated utilization of and development of information which McCarthy had assured he had recently obtained; that the Committee had not conceived its function to be that of superceding the Federal Bureau of Investigation in its investigations of the loyalty of Federal employees or of the House Committee on un-American Activities.

INITIAL PHASE OF THE INQUIRY
(Pages 5-6)

According to the report, the first witness to appear before the subcommittee was Senator McCarthy who, according to the report, had no evidence whatever to submit concerning the individuals discussed by him previously but insisted the evidence to support the charges would be found in the loyalty files maintained in the Executive Branch of the Government. The report points out this was both interesting and significant since it was well known that under the President's Directive of March 13, 1948, the release of information developed concerning employees incident to the Loyalty Program was prohibited. The report stated from the very outset the subcommittee was subjected by Senator McCarthy and certain segments of the press and radio to a campaign of villification probably unparalleled in the history of Congressional investigations; that the unwarranted cry "whitewash" was raised even before the hearing started and equally unfair and malicious allegations were made throughout the proceedings.

THE STORY OF THE "81 CASES"
(Pages 6-9)

This section of the report refers to the investigation of 108 loyalty files of the State Department conducted in 1947 by investigators for a subcommittee of the House Committee on Appropriations in connection with the State Department's Appropriation Bill for 1948. It points out that a case by case analysis by the Tydings Subcommittee of the 81 Cases referred to by Senator McCarthy on February 20, 1950, revealed that all 81 cases were included in the "108 list"; that language employed by Senator McCarthy in his "81 Cases" is similar textually to the language used in the counterpart cases appearing in the "108 list"; that where variations in the case descriptions used by Senator McCarthy occur, the language had been changed by Senator McCarthy to create a more sinister impression and where he changed the facts in the case descriptions he had changed them to create worse impressions. The report further points out that a review of the 108 memoranda prepared by the House investigators in 1947 shows that they were limited to derogatory information appearing in the files without reference to information tending to disprove allegations and did not appear to be concerned with the merits of the cases but dealt merely with the basis for or inadequacy of the investigations.

The report comments that Senator McCarthy's speech before the Senate on February 20, 1950, constituted a perversion compounded of the State Department's loyalty files in terms of the situation that prevailed not in 1950 but back in 1947 and that Senator McCarthy had received no under-cover information from "loyal" or "disturbed" State Department employees as he led the Senate to believe but his information was beyond all reasonable doubt a "dressed up" version of material developed by the 80th Congress.

The Tydings Committee report brings out that it was confronted with the annoying spectacle of four different committees of the 80th Congress, which was controlled by Senator McCarthy's own Party, having considered the very same files and information which provided the predicate for the McCarthy charges, with none of these committees so much as regarding the situation as one meriting a report for citing a single State Department employee as disloyal. The four committees of the 80th Congress referred to are specified as being the subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, 80th Congress which originally considered the list of "108 cases," a subcommittee of the House Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments which held hearings in March, 1948, regarding handling of loyalty cases by the State Department, a "Committee of One" (Representative Bartel J. Jonkman, Republican, Michigan) who made a probe into State Department security and reported thereon to the House on August 2, 1948, and a subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee, 80th Congress which, being cognizant of the memoranda of the "108 Cases" had examined Secretary of State George C. Marshall regarding the State Department's loyalty program.

Mention is made of the fact that Mr. John E. Peurifoy of the State Department, in testifying regarding the "108 Cases" before the subcommittee of the House Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments, 80th Congress, pointed out that only 57 of the 108 individuals were then employed in the State Department. From this the Tydings Subcommittee states that it is clear Senator McCarthy's reference to "57 card-carrying members of the Communist Party" was actually a reference to the 57 State Department employees mentioned by Mr. Peurifoy.

REVIEW OF LOYALTY FILES
(Pages 9 to 12)

In this section of the report, mention is made of the review of the files concerning the individuals charged by Senator McCarthy in his speech before the Senate on February 20, 1950, made by members of the Tydings Subcommittee at the White House. It is pointed out that in reviewing the files the Committee members recognized that they sat in judgment on the work of the FBI, the State Department Security Staff, the State Department Loyalty and Security Board and in some instances the President's Loyalty Review Board, representatives of which agencies had previously appeared before the Committee and impressed the Committee with their background, character, integrity, and manifest patriotism; that to assume any one of these representatives would have been a part to or have countenanced in any way harboring in the State Department of persons disloyal to the United States would not only have been absurd but unwarranted. However, the Committee was also mindful of the charge implicit in Senator McCarthy's allegations that an individual or individuals responsible for ferreting out disloyal employees, deliberately or otherwise, failed to perform his or their official duties. The Committee also realized that the officials responsible for making a determination of an employee's loyalty were in a much more favorable position to make such a determination and the function of the Committee was properly that of passing judgment on an administrative finding not unlike the function of an appellate court. A third consideration of the Committee in reviewing these files was the standards and criteria laid down under the Loyalty Program.

The following quoted comments of the Committee as they appear in its report illustrate the general findings of the Committee as a result of its review of the files in question and also illustrate comments of interest made by the Committee and pertinent references to the FBI:

"With the foregoing considerations in mind, we have carefully and conscientiously reviewed each and every one of the loyalty files relative to the individuals charged by Senator McCarthy. In no instance was any one of them now employed in the State Department found to be a 'card carrying Communist,' a member of the Communist Party or 'loyal to the Communist Party.' Furthermore, in no instance have we found

"in our considered judgment that the decision to grant loyalty or/and security clearance has been erroneously or improperly made in the light of existing loyalty standards."

"What we have found have been meticulous and comprehensive investigations conducted by the FBI. These investigations have been exhaustive and provide, in so far as humanly possible, a thorough going exploration of every avenue through which an employee's background and loyalty may be pursued and determined. The files reflect a similar thoroughness on the part of the State Department's Security Staff. Where loyalty hearings have been involved, the proceedings have been pertinent and comprehensive in contemplation of the issues involved."

.....

"We are fully satisfied, therefore, on the basis of our study of the loyalty files, that the State Department has not knowingly retained, in its employ, individuals who have been disloyal."

.....

"What the State Department knows concerning an employee's loyalty is to be found in its loyalty and security files. These files contain all information bearing on loyalty, obtained from any and all sources, including, of course, the reports of full field investigation by the FBI. Interestingly, in this regard, no sooner had the President indicated that the files would be available for review by the Subcommittee than Senator McCarthy charged they were being 'raped,' altered, or otherwise subjected to a 'housecleaning.' This charge was found to be utterly without foundation in fact. The files were reviewed by Agents of the FBI and the Department of Justice has testified that all information bearing on the employee's loyalty, as developed by the FBI, appears in the files which were reviewed by the Subcommittee." (The underlining has been added to highlight this particular comment as it appears in the Tydings Report, since the comment implies that Bureau Agents actually reviewed the files of the State Department on the individuals involved for the purpose of ascertaining whether they were complete. We, of course, did not review the State Department files for this purpose but did make a review of the Bureau's files for the purpose of furnishing to the Attorney General a brief specifying Bureau correspondence whereby information concerning these individuals had been furnished to the State Department and the Civil Service Commission. This brief was requested by Mr. Peyton Ford to assist the Attorney General in preparing a letter addressed to the Tydings Subcommittee, concerning the cases named on a "Subpoena List" received by the Justice Department from the Tydings Subcommittee. It is interesting to note that the Tydings report footnotes the comment underlined above by referring to a letter from the Department of Justice dated June 16, 1950, "printed in the record.")

"The most amazing thing in connection with our review of the loyalty files made available to us by the President is the fact that Senator Hickenlooper read only 9 of the files and Senator Lodge 12. Despite, therefore, the clamor and demand that was raised by Senator McCarthy, along with his associates, and the assertion that the loyalty files would 'prove his case,' we find the most unbelievable situation of the members of Senator McCarthy's own Party on our Subcommittee taking the trouble to read only a very small percentage of the files made available for these examinations by the President."

"Our review of the files reveals to us the value and necessity of the Loyalty Program.... We fully endorse the Program and feel that the necessity for perennial vigilance to prevent the penetration of our Government by those who would subvert and destroy it is of paramount importance.... The job is one to be performed in a quiet, sober, intelligent manner by those trained and competent for the task. We believe that in the FBI our Government has the finest investigative organization in the world under one of the most eminent and capable career public servants in this or any other generation, Mr. J. Edgar Hoover. They possess the ability in a quiet and unobtrusive manner to gather the facts concerning the loyalty of Federal employees and to keep abreast of and forestall the constant efforts of our enemies to place their minions in the Government service. Of this we are fully satisfied. Additionally, we have found, as heretofore suggested, no instance where officials in the State Department, charged with responsibility for taking action on the basis of disloyalty, have failed to do so where the facts as developed by the FBI have revealed evidence of a type and character warranting a finding of disloyalty or security risk under the standards which have been laid down for their guidance."

PROBLEM CONFRONTING THE STATE DEPARTMENT IN 1945 - 1946
(Pages 12 - 18)

This section of the report refers to the fact that in order to appreciate the problem of security in the State Department and the true source of the charges that have been made, it is necessary to consider the situation with which the State Department was confronted in late 1945 and early 1946 following the end of hostilities. Briefly, it is pointed out that various emergency agencies were established during the war which employed some individuals whose connection in a Communist sense would bar them from employment today; that there was a shortage of civilian personnel during the war and it was impossible to conduct adequate investigation of a great number of employees; that the Soviet Union was our ally during the war but at the end of hostilities it became apparent the Soviet Union did not contemplate co-operation and friendly relations with democratic countries and that employees having Communist complexions who were tolerated where necessity required during the war had to be removed from Federal Service. It is pointed out that by various executive orders in late 1945 and early 1946, 12,797 employees of emergency war agencies (OSS, OWI, FEA) were transferred to the State Department and a screening committee established by the State Department to cull out the "rotten apples." The report quotes a statement on this entire problem submitted by the State Department showing the action taken with respect thereto. The Tydings Subcommittee comments that it is fully satisfied the State Department handled the inordinate personnel problem incident to the transfer of over 12,000 employees of other agencies in a capable manner and that every effort had been made to weed out disloyal employees.

HANDLING OF THE LOYALTY PROGRAM

This section of the report is a discussion of the organization, personnel and procedures of the State Department, the Loyalty Security Board of the State Department, and the President's Loyalty Review Board. The procedures for handling of applicants and incumbents under the Loyalty Program and the summary dismissal power of the State Department provided by the McCarran Rider are discussed together with the standards applicable to each of these authorities. It is the conclusion of the Tydings Subcommittee that the Loyalty and Security Program of the State Department is being administered efficiently, fairly, and in the best interests of the government. The Subcommittee comments that in one respect the handling of applicants may be improved in that an applicant is actually sworn in as an employee prior to a preliminary check with the Federal Bureau of Investigation. If this check reveals disloyal information the State Department must then resort to the full procedure under the Loyalty Program, whereas if made prior to employment and derogatory data is developed the State Department could then deny the application outright. A comment is also made by the Subcommittee that it feels the Loyalty Program in its entirety warrants study to determine whether it is deficient in that it recognizes only the disloyal standard.

PROBLEM OF STATE DEPARTMENT SECURITY

This section of the report merely refers to a study made by Senators Green and Lodge, regarding the State Department's peculiar problem of security in view of the global disposition of its employee's activities and installations.

THE CASES OF THE INDIVIDUALS PUBLICLY CHARGED

This section of the report is devoted to a discussion of individuals charged publicly by Senator McCarthy which will be dealt with individually hereafter. In addition, mention is made of the "Three Big Communists" mentioned by Senator McCarthy on February 20, 1950, as being cases No. 1 (Herbert Abner Fierst), No. 2 (John Carter Vincent), and No. 81 (Ruby Parson). The Committee points out it has reviewed the loyalty files on these three cases and found nothing to sustain Senator McCarthy's assertion they are "big Communists," or of "tremendous importance and of great value to Russia," or are a part of an "espionage ring in the State Department." It is pointed out that the individual involved in case No. 81 (Ruby Parson) resigned from the State Department on April 2, 1948.

Reference is also made to case No. 53 (Richard Howell Post) described by Senator McCarthy as one of the most dangerous Communists in the State Department and case No. 57 (Fred Warner Neal) concerning whom Senator McCarthy urged immediate action. The Committee points out that No. 53 resigned from the State Department on December 30, 1948, and No. 57 resigned March 12, 1948. The Committee thereafter cites the above as illustrative of the reckless and irresponsible treatment of the facts by Senator McCarthy.

Set forth hereafter are the individual cases described in the Subcommittee report:

MRS. ESTHER CAUKIN BRUNAUER
(Pages 26-29)

The Subcommittee found that Mrs. Brunauer was a member of one organization cited as a Communist front "and that in 1934 and 1936, over 14 years ago, she participated in two meetings sponsored by a pro-Soviet organization of which she was not a member." The conclusion was reached that there is no evidence that Mrs. Brunauer is disloyal, a Communist sympathizer or a security risk.

Senator McCarthy charged that Duran was well known for his rabid Communist beliefs and activities and was active in secret Soviet operations in the Spanish Republican Army. The Committee did not discuss Duran in the body of its report because of the fact that his employment with the State Department ceased before the Loyalty Program was instituted.

The charges against Duran and his replies were set forth in Appendix 9:

APPENDIX 9
CASE OF GUSTAVO DURAN
(Pages 182-187)

Duran submitted a "Memorandum to Senator Tydings," dated March 30, 1950, setting forth his answers to Senator McCarthy's charges. Referring to the Spanish newspaper ARIBBA, which he claims was the indirect source of some of the Senator's allegations, he notes that it erroneously reported that he came to Madrid "for the first time in the 1920's from the Canary Islands." Duran notes he was born in Barcelona, Spain, and resided continuously with his family in Madrid from 1910 until 1929. Duran writes:

"The Federal Bureau of Investigation has in its files a list of the various domiciles of my family. This information which was provided by me, can be easily checked."

The foregoing is substantially correct. When interviewed by Mr. Ladd on April 29, 1946, he furnished biographical data concerning his parents and himself, and set forth their domiciles as well as those of his own which he could recall.

His attorneys, Baldwin, Todd & Lefferts, also forwarded the Director, under date of April 17, 1950, a complete biographical sketch.

With reference to Senator McCarthy's charges that Indalecio Prieto, former Minister of Defense for the Spanish Republican Cabinet, in his pamphlet, "Why and How I Left the Ministry," described Duran as an agent of the Secret Russian Police or a member of the Comintern, Duran writes:

"Subsequently, Mr. Prieto stated to Messrs. Robert Wilson Wall, Jr. and Robert Godfrey, Attaches to the American Embassy at Mexico City, that he had appointed me as head of the Madrid Zone of the Military Intelligence Service (SIM) at the proposal of General Miaja, then Commander of the Army of Madrid; he then reiterated that he (Prieto), like others in the Government who were equally hostile to Communism, had been subjected to Communist pressures."

Actually, Prieto said considerably more than Duran noted. When interviewed by Special Agents Wall and Godfrey, he stated that he did not know him prior to the appointment but that because Miaja, who was himself closely associated with the Communist Party and Soviet interests in Spain, had recommended him, he assumed that Duran was a Communist. Prieto said he had no proof of this nor of any allegation that Duran was or had been an agent of the Soviet Union. He believed Duran had been subjected to considerable Communist pressure, as were all members of the Spanish Government.

HALDORE HANSON

Hanson is the individual whom Senator McCarthy described as having a mission to communize the world. Louis Budenz testified he knew Hanson from official records to be a member of the Communist Party. Budenz' information was based, according to his testimony, on oral information received in 1940 and 1941. Budenz thought Jack Stachel gave him Hanson's name. Budenz testified that the first time he had indicated to anyone that Hanson had ever been reported to him as a Communist was a week prior to his testimony on April 25, 1950, when he gave Hanson's name, among others, to the FBI. Hanson declared he was given a complete clearance by the Department of State following a comprehensive investigation by the FBI under the Loyalty Program. He testified on March 28, 1950, he thought subversives could be ferreted out by the quiet, sober, thorough methods now used by the FBI.

The Committee stated it was clear that (1) Hanson was not, as claimed by Senator McCarthy, "one of the most strategically important officers in the entire State Department"; (2) that Hanson would not, as alleged by Senator McCarthy, head a program charged with expending hundreds of millions of dollars; and, (3) that information used by Senator McCarthy to uphold his allegations of pro-Communism against Hanson failed in credibility, relevancy, and competency. The testimony of Budenz left the Committee "to a degree, in wonderment." In the face of the results of the FBI investigation, action of the Loyalty Board and the evidence presented, the Committee could not accept Budenz' testimony as controlling.

PHILIP C. JESSUP
(Pages 37 - 43)

The Committee sets forth the allegations made against Dr. Jessup by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy in support of his general charge that Dr. Jessup possessed "an unusual affinity for Communist causes," and then proceed to show how Senator McCarthy had failed to substantiate the allegations.

It is noted that the Committee's report states that "we have seen the loyalty file concerning Dr. Jessup which reflects no basis for considering him disloyal or a security risk." Actually, the Bureau's reports reflect the following concerning Dr. Jessup:

1. He was one of the Sponsors for a dinner held by the American Russian Institute in New York in 1946.

2. Information from a reliable informant to the effect that in 1941 Jessup's name appeared on a list of names maintained in the Headquarters of the National Federation For Constitutional Liberties.
3. That Dr. Jessup was a signer of a call for a "National Emergency Conference" in Washington, D. C. in 1939.
4. That he was a member of the Board of Sponsors of the "National Emergency Conference for Democratic Rights" in 1940.
5. That he was Faculty Advisor of the "American Law Students Association," while at Columbia University.
6. That his wife was a member of the China Aid Council.
7. That he was a member and an officer of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Senator McCarthy's charges included the above points, and the Committee's report takes up each, concluding that "the true facts, therefore, are that Dr. Jessup was shown to have been associated with only two organizations, in both cases prior to the date they were cited as Communist fronts." The Committee concluded that "the facts before us fail completely to establish that Philip C. Jessup has 'an unusual affinity for Communist causes' and that the Subcommittee felt that the accusations made against Dr. Philip C. Jessup are completely unfounded and unjustified, and have done irreparable harm to the prestige of the United States."

DOROTHY KENYON
(Pages 43 - 48)

With reference to Kenyon, the report set forth the admitted affiliations of Miss Kenyon, the affiliations of Miss Kenyon not denied, other alleged connections of Miss Kenyon, other evidence, and concluded with the statement that the evidence before the Subcommittee failed to establish that Dorothy Kenyon is a Communist or an otherwise disloyal person.

OWEN LATTIMORE

(Pages 48-75)

The Committee predicates this section of the report (pages 48 to 74) with the statement that although Owen Lattimore was not an employee of the State Department in real or proper sense, inquiry was made on the basis of the charge that he was the "architect of our Far Eastern policy." Thereafter, Senator Joseph McCarthy's charges against Lattimore are reviewed and portions of the testimony tending to substantiate or refute those statements are commented upon. In their consideration of such testimony, the Committee finds generally that the charges of Senator McCarthy against Mr. Lattimore are unsupported in fact and winds up with the comment, "We believe that the Lattimore case vividly illustrates the danger of promiscuous and specious attacks upon private citizens and their views, and the imperative necessity that inquiries relating to matters of such character, where deemed relevant to our national security, should be handled by the duly constituted agencies of our government that are equipped to handle such matters by intelligent and proven methods designed to obtain the truth without injustice, character assassination, and a prostitution of the American concept of fair play...."

* * * * *

Page 50-----"McCarthy insisted that information concerning Lattimore in the FBI files would show 'in detail not the case merely of a man who appears to favor Russia, not the case of a man who might disagree with what we think about Russia, but a man who is definitely an espionage agent...'

"The foregoing assertion had to be taken by us at the outset with the proverbial 'grain of salt'; for if the FBI had evidence that Lattimore was a top Russian spy, either the FBI was derelict (which we do not believe) in not prosecuting him, or Senator McCarthy was compromising an FBI investigation which might result in prosecution."

With reference to possible dereliction by the Bureau for not prosecuting Lattimore, this is erroneous inasmuch as the question of prosecution is not one within the Bureau's province.

* * * * *

Page 54-----"Father Kearney was interviewed by the FBI and advised that he had no direct knowledge of Mr. Lattimore's activities and that the principal source of his information had been Alfred Kohlberg of the American-China Policy Association of New York City. (Footnote---A letter from the Department of Justice confirming this statement will be found in the subcommittee's record.)"

This is an accurate though partial statement of the information given by Father James F. Kearney when interviewed by Bureau Agents on January 20, 1950.

Pages 56-57---In commenting on the testimony of Louis Budenz, the report contains the statement, "The subcommittee also notes that only since this investigation and the publicity concerning Lattimore in connection therewith has Budenz given information to the FBI concerning Lattimore, even though Budenz has been reporting for several years to the FBI on various Communist activities and personalities....Similarly in the case of Haldore Hanson, Budenz admitted that Hanson was named by him as a Communist for the first time during the course of our proceedings."

This is an accurate statement, on April 15, 1950, Louis Budenz advising that he had never mentioned to the Bureau what he knew about Lattimore prior to March 27, 1950, because his information was "flimsy" and "not legal" and he had devoted most of his time to furnishing legal evidence.

Pages 66-67---"A summary of the files of the FBI pertaining to Owen Lattimore, prepared by that organization, was made available to members of the subcommittee for review. Whereas this summary indicated Lattimore's association and contact with some individuals of known and alleged Communist and pro-Communist views, there was no evidence therein proving Lattimore himself to be a man of willful pro-Communist actions or views. The evidence did not show him to be 'a top Soviet espionage agent' or a member of the Communist Party or Communist underground. The information concerning Lattimore, testified to by Louis Budenz, was not in the possession of the FBI, according to Budenz' own testimony, at the time members of this subcommittee reviewed the summary...."

"The foregoing discussion of the information available to us (this phrase apparently includes information set forth in the FBI summary) is quite devoid of any proof that Mr. Lattimore was 'one of the top Communist agents.'"

This statement is misleading in that it does not properly reflect the information made available to members of the subcommittee. On March 23, 1950, there was delivered to Mr. Clive Palmer, of the Criminal Division, a memorandum to Mr. Peyton Ford, dated March 22, 1950, with which was transmitted an eleven-page summary memorandum on Owen Lattimore. This memorandum was displayed to members of the subcommittee. It contained biographical information concerning Owen Lattimore, as well as information concerning his association with the State Department and the United Nations. The memorandum also referred to reports from various sources indicating Lattimore's alleged implication in Soviet intelligence activities. In this connection, however, it was noted that although an extensive investigation had been conducted between March 1949 and the date of the memorandum, no tangible evidence had been uncovered to corroborate the allegations or to indicate that he was involved in Soviet espionage activity. The memorandum made reference to a number of allegations concerning Lattimore, indicating his reported affiliation with Communist-front groups, participation in Communist-sponsored activity, and association with known or suspected Communist Party members and individuals suspected of having acted as Soviet agents.

Edgar Hoover at the time said this was a "100-percent airtight case against Service, Roth, and their co-defendants."'. ....The Department of Justice has advised the Department of State that Mr. Hoover never made the widely publicized statement that there was a '100-percent airtight case' against the Amerasia defendants. 7" In this connection, by memorandum dated May 23, 1950, you protested against such use of your name, particularly when that use did not accurately reflect your views. For the information of the Attorney General, you pointed out that on April 12, 1950, John Stewart Service, one of the subjects in that investigation, had asked if you had made a public statement to the effect that the case against him was a hundred per cent airtight. Under date of April 18, 1950, you advised Mr. Service that you had made no public statement on the Amerasia case since the period wherein the arrests occurred, and pointed out to him that the FBI did not pass on the evidence it collected during its investigations but that such evidence was turned over to the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice. You advised Mr. Service, "I presume that they (meaning the Criminal Division of the Department) must have been satisfied with the evidence presented to them by the FBI as they authorized the arrests to be made in this case."

You also pointed out to the Attorney General that on May 4, 1950, you had informed Mr. Peyton Ford that you could not approve his proposed answer (subsequently released by the Department of State) to an inquiry on May 1, 1950, from Mr. John E. Peurifoy, of the Department of State, as to whether you had publicly stated that the case was a hundred per cent airtight. You advised the Attorney General that in your communication of May 4, 1950, to Mr. Peyton Ford, you pointed out that in the event you had been asked at the time the arrests were made whether you thought we had an airtight case, you would have stated that you thought we had, and that if asked today you would have to so state.

Pages 68-69---"Senator McCarthy also said this:

"I have another statement which I had a great deal of difficulty getting. I had no difficulty obtaining the information from this man, but he was extremely reluctant to sign a statement, fearing that his job might be endangered if he did so.....

"He gave his consent to his name and this statement being given to the FBI. We had to promise him, however, that his name would not be given to this committee.....

"Then I have another statement gotten under almost the same circumstances, which is being turned over to the Bureau....."

"The Department of Justice furnished the following information concerning the June 2, 1945 meeting at Lattimore's home to which Senator McCarthy referred." (Thereafter the report set forth information obtained from the Department of Justice concerning the two statements).

In referring to the meeting at Lattimore's home on June 2, 1945, the report states:

"The FBI found no evidence during its most thorough investigation of the Amerasia case to indicate that any Government documents were involved in this incident."

On March 30, 1950, Senator McCarthy furnished to the Bureau a two-page, handwritten, signed statement dated March 26, 1950, unattested, of Alberta R. Carter and a one-page, handwritten, signed statement, undated and unattested, of her husband, George F. Carter, a Professor at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Maryland. The statement of George F. Carter appears to be an addendum to the statement of Alberta R. Carter and both statements set forth information concerning the visit of the Carters at the home of Owen Lattimore in "June, 1945" when John S. Service and Lieutenant Andrew Roth were also present. The remarks of Senator McCarthy concerning the acquisition of these statements tended to convey the erroneous impression that the information embodied therein was first acquired by him at that time. In fact, on February 9, 1950, George F. Carter was interviewed by Bureau representatives, at which time he furnished information in considerable detail concerning Owen Lattimore as well as detailed information concerning the Carters' Sunday afternoon visit in "June, 1945" at the home of Lattimore when John S. Service and Lieutenant Andrew Roth were also present. On the occasion of this interview, George F. Carter exhibited a willingness to assist in any way that he could though he made the request that his identity be kept confidential. (100-24628-155)

On April 6, 1950, Mrs. George F. Carter was interviewed by Bureau representatives, at which time she could add no information of value concerning the "June, 1945" visit at the Lattimore home to that which had been furnished by her husband on February 9, 1950. (100-24628-522)

Page 70-----"Senator McCarthy also referred to an affidavit covering testimony which could be given by a former general in the Red Army..... The affidavit was turned over to the FBI by Senator McCarthy. The Department of Justice has advised, with reference to this, in the following terms:....." (Thereafter was set forth information "purported" to have been given by the former general in the Red Army to an investigator for Senator McCarthy).

On March 30, 1950, Senator McCarthy furnished to the Bureau a document entitled, "Expected Testimony from Alexander Barmine" reflecting that while he was a general in the Red Army and in Moscow, he learned from "General Berzin," a high official in Soviet Intelligence, that excellent success had been obtained through the Institute of Pacific Relations which the Soviet Intelligence, through Communists in the United States, had taken over. During this conversation which occurred in the middle 1930's, "General Berzin" mentioned in particular Owen Lattimore and one Joseph Barnes as Soviet men connected with the Institute. A handwritten notation on this document reflects that the information therein was related to Donald A. Surine by Alexander Barmine on March 29, 1950.

Alexander Gregory-Graff Barmine, a former Soviet diplomatic official who defected from the Soviets in 1937 and entered the United States in 1940, upon interview by Bureau representatives on December 14, 1948, furnished information to the effect that General I. Berzine had, while Barmine was in Moscow, mentioned that the Soviets had some Americans working for them in China. Barmine named Owen Lattimore as one of the individuals. Barmine was reinterviewed by Bureau representatives on March 27, 1950, at which time, he enlarged upon the previous information he had furnished concerning Lattimore and placed Lattimore in a Soviet Military Intelligence network in China, which used as a cover for its operation, the Institute of Pacific Relations. Page 71-----"Senator McCarthy further stated on the Senate floor:

"I have before me another affidavit, the original of which is being handed to the FBI.....He states that Lattimore was a leader in several pro-Russian student uprisings in China!"
(The report then quoted information concerning this allegation, noting that it had been received in a communication from the Department of Justice which is printed in the record).

On March 30, 1950, Senator McCarthy furnished the Bureau a five-page, handwritten, signed statement of Upton Close, dated "Mar. 1950" in which it appears that Lattimore, in the early 1920's, was involved in several student uprisings in China along with other Chinese students. It was also indicated in the statement that Lattimore enjoyed a kind of leadership in the group.

On April 1, 1950, Upton Close, McLean, Virginia, was interviewed by Bureau representatives concerning Owen Lattimore. Close advised that he first knew Lattimore around 1920 in China, at which time Lattimore was associated with Young Chinese students who became more and more taken over with Communist activity. Lattimore was considered somewhat of a leader and was an inspiring factor in these Chinese students uprisings. Mr. Close also advised that he had no knowledge reflecting that Lattimore was engaged in espionage for the Soviets, but felt that he was a Communist and that he had been a member of, and in contact with "Communist cells."

Page 72-----In its conclusion concerning Owen Lattimore, the Committee reported that they found that Lattimore was not now and never had been in any proper sense an employee of our State Department; that he had no controlling or effective influence whatever on our Far Eastern policy; and that they found no evidence that he was the "top Russian spy" or any other sort of spy. In this connection, the report contained the statement:

"We have every confidence that were Mr. Lattimore an espionage agent the efficient FBI would long since have taken action against him. The fact that it has not done so and the further fact that we have seen a summary of the FBI's information concerning Mr. Lattimore confirms our opinion in this respect."

These latter conclusions, in so far as they concern the FBI, are, of course, unwarranted. As mentioned above, it is not within the province of the FBI to institute prosecutive action against a subject of investigation, nor can the FBI summary of March 22, 1950 (since supplemented by additional investigation) be properly construed as a clearance of Lattimore in connection with the charges made against him.

* * * * *

Page 73-----"Owen Lattimore is a writer and a scholar who has been charged with a record of pro-Communism going back many years. There is no legal evidence before us whatever (this apparently includes information set forth in the FBI summary) to support this charge....

"....we are compelled to comment that in no instance has Mr. Lattimore on the evidence before us been shown to have knowingly associated with Communists."

The nature of the FBI summary of March 22, 1950, has been set forth previously in this memorandum. It is true, however, that the memorandum in itself does not constitute "legal evidence."

FREDERICK L. SCHUMAN

The Subcommittee found that Frederick L. Schuman has never been an employee of the State Department and that his only connection with the Department was to deliver a one hour lecture at the Foreign Service Institute on June 19, 1946.

JOHN STEWART SERVICE

(Pages 75-94)

The report of the Subcommittee stated that the charges against John Stewart Service have a dual character: (1) that he is pro-Communist as indicated by (a) his reports from China during the period 1943 to April, 1945, in which he allegedly advocated the cause of the Chinese Communists, and (b) his associations during the same period; (2) that he was involved in the abstraction of Government documents in connection with the Amerasia case.

During the discussion of Service's connection with the Amerasia case, it was stated that Senator McCarthy made the allegation, both as a witness and on the floor of the Senate, that "The FBI then took over and reported that in the course of its quest it was found that John Stewart Service was in communication from China with Jaffe." In this connection, the following similar statement is attributed to Emanuel S. Larsen in his article in Plain Talk: "The FBI then took charge of the affair. As established by Congressmen Dondero, the Government agents spent several months on the case. In the course of their quest, it was found that John S. Service was in communication from China with Mr. Jaffe." We, of course, did not show that Service was in communication from China with Jaffe. In later referring to this statement attributed to both Senator McCarthy and Larsen, the Subcommittee report states, "The evidence reveals that Mr. Service did not contact Jaffe from China. The allegation to the contrary is based on Larsen's Plain Talk article, which was repudiated by him."

On Pages 84 and 85 of the Subcommittee report are set out brief statements of Service's activities on some of the days he was covered by physical surveillance. Then follows an explanation by Service of meetings shown by the surveillance. The Subcommittee report states: "This explanation by Mr. Service before us of his contacts with the other subjects in the Amerasia case is almost an exact duplicate of that given by him before the grand jury. It is significant to us that, at the time Service appeared before the grand jury, he had no knowledge of the physical surveillance, or at least no knowledge of what it revealed. Yet his explanation accounted for every meeting reported by the FBI. When this is coupled with the fact that his explanation was verified by the FBI and found to be correct, no other conclusion can be made but that we, like the grand jury, must find that the explanation is consistent with complete innocence." Prior to his appearance before the grand jury, Service, of course, did give a lengthy statement to Agents during which he furnished much of the material covering his meetings and contacts.

On Pages 87 and 88, under the caption "Technical Surveillance," is set out a partial transcript of conversation between Service and Jaffe in Jaffe's hotel room on May 8, 1945, and this transcript is referred to as a "verbatim quotation" by the Subcommittee in its report. It is noted that on Page 87, one statement is attributed to Service when actually our transcript reflects that the statement was made by Jaffe; this statement is, "I guess these are the only things," and it is made during a discussion of what the Chinese were doing at San Francisco. Then too, throughout the reporting of this transcript in the Subcommittee report there appear some changes in punctuation, but not to the extent that it appears that the meaning of the text is changed. On Page 88, in reporting a statement of Service, following a space left blank to indicate an unintelligible word or words, the words "something skipped" have been inserted and may be interpreted as words spoken by Service.

Following the "verbatim" account of the recording, there is set out "several statements prepared by the FBI" which, in summary form relate additional conversation between Service and Jaffe.

On Page 91, it is reported that Mr. Brookes Atkinson appeared before the State Department Loyalty and Security Board as a witness and verified statements made by Service concerning an article prepared by Atkinson regarding General Stilwell's recall. Service had explained that Atkinson had written a story in the New York Times for October 31, 1944, which contained the gist and the only important part of the story regarding General Stilwell's recall; that he (Service) had returned to the United States with Atkinson and had read the draft of his article while traveling. Following Service's apprehension by Bureau Agents, it should be noted, Atkinson had been quite critical of the Bureau.

On Page 91, the following is also set out: "It is most significant to note that Mr. Service arrived in Washington -- April 12, 1945 -- and the date the FBI first found him in contact with a subject in the Amerasia case -- April 19, 1945. On March 11, 1945, the OSS raided the offices of Amerasia and found there were numerous Government documents therein. Service pointed out that, manifestly, Jaffe's source of Government documents had been fully developed by that time, which was prior to Mr. Service's return to the United States. We note in this regard that on April 18, 1945, the FBI had a conference with General Holmes of the State Department and Major Correa of the Navy Department. At that time, the Bureau indicated that it was ready to present it for such prosecutive action as the Department of Justice might think proper. On this date, Service had not yet met Jaffe, Mitchell, or Larsen and had met Mark Gayne for the first time on that day...."

In concluding its report of the case of John Stewart Service, the Subcommittee stated, "We have carefully considered the evidence and conclude that John Stewart Service is neither a disloyal person, a pro-Communist nor a security risk. We have been particularly impressed with the frankness and cooperativeness of Mr. Service in his appearance before us. Many questions with hidden implications have been asked him about events that transpired many years ago. Never did he seek to avoid answering on the ground he could not remember but always gave this subcommittee the benefit of any recollection he might have. In addition, he waived his immunity and voluntarily appeared before the grand jury in August of 1945. After hearing all the facts, the grand jury unanimously voted not to indict Mr. Service. We could not fail to be impressed also by the almost continuous scrutiny to which he has been subjected during the last five years. He has been cleared four times by either the State Department Personnel Board of the State Department Security and Loyalty Board." Continuing, the Subcommittee reported, "We have also found significant the fact that Emmanuel S. Larsen admitted to the FBI that he had furnished Jaffe with the eight ozalid copies of the Service reports found in Jaffe's brief case when he was arrested." In a signed statement given to Bureau Agents on June 7, 1945, Larsen stated that he last saw Jaffe on Monday, May 28th, 1945, at the Statler Hotel and at that time he did not give him any documents. That evening, Jaffe visited him at his home and he showed him two State Department reports by Jack Service. Jaffe expressly asked for Service's last reports, according to Larsen, which he apparently knew. Larsen admitted that in addition to these two reports, he had in the past given Jaffe a number of classified documents to read and they may have numbered six to ten documents in all.

HARLOW SHAPLEY

Inquiry by the Subcommittee established that Dr. Harlow Shapley is not an employee of the Department of State in any real and proper sense. He was appointed a member of the United States delegation to the Preparatory Conference for UNESCO at London in 1945. On May 20, 1947, and June 27, 1947, Shapley was designated by the Executive Committee of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and was appointed by the Secretary of State to serve as a representative of that association on the United States National Commission for UNESCO. His term expired April 15, 1950. The Subcommittee stated that within the proper purview of its inquiry, no consideration need be given the charges made against Dr. Shapley.

JOHN CARTER VINCENT

The Subcommittee disposed of McCarthy's allegations concerning Vincent in two paragraphs, stating that "we have carefully reviewed the loyalty file concerning Mr. Vincent and the McCarthy charges are absurd on the basis thereof. The investigation of Mr. Vincent does not show him to be disloyal or a security risk."

In stating that the loyalty file concerning Vincent had been reviewed, it is believed that the report has reference to the State Department security file pertaining to him. You will recall that the Bureau is conducting a loyalty investigation of Vincent following submission of available data to the Department for an opinion as to whether such an investigation should be conducted. After consulting the State Department, the Department advised that we should proceed with a loyalty investigation.

CHARGES WITH RESPECT TO "FBI CHART"
(Pages 95 and 96)

The Subcommittee here refers to the speech by Senator McCarthy before the Senate on June 6, 1950, where he presented a photostatic copy of a page of a report stated to be based on an FBI chart, allegedly indicating "Agents," "Communists," "Sympathizers," and "Suspects," as employed in the State Department. The Subcommittee states that while these charges are not before the Committee, a great deal of publicity has been accorded the so-called FBI Chart and in view of this situation it is believed that the facts of the matter should be set forth. Thereafter, there is quoted a portion of a letter dated June 28, 1950, from Mr. John E. Peurifoy, Deputy Undersecretary of State, identifying the report in question as having been prepared by Mr. Klaus, then assigned to the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Administration, in connection with a survey of Departmental security investigations. It is observed that on Pages 29 and 30 of the Klaus report, reference is made to a chart alleged to have been prepared by the FBI. Mr. Peurifoy thereafter states no such chart was ever received by the Department of State from the FBI, nor was such a chart ever prepared by the FBI; that it had been conclusively determined that the chart was not prepared by the FBI but was prepared as an investigator's working document in the Department of State in 1946 and by employees of the Department of State; that the writer of the report drew the unintentional erroneous conclusion that the chart was prepared by the FBI. Mr. Peurifoy makes reference to a letter dated June 14, 1950, addressed by the Director to the State Department advising that the FBI did not send any such chart to the State Department and made no evaluation of information as was indicated in the Klaus report. This letter dated June 14, 1950, addressed by the Director to Mr. James E. Webb, Undersecretary of State, is quoted verbatim in the Subcommittee's report. It is also noted that Mr. Peurifoy's letter to the Subcommittee of June 28, 1950, assures the members that none of the employees named on the chart in question are presently employed by the State Department except those who have since been investigated and who have been checked and evaluated under the Loyalty Program.

Additional details concerning the State Department's repudiation of Senator McCarthy's comments concerning the chart in question are contained in State Department releases of June 6, and June 9, 1950, reproduced in Appendix 17 of the Subcommittee's report.

AMERASIA CASE
(Pages 96-144)

The Amerasia Case is covered in the report made available by the Tydings Committee beginning on page 96 and ending on page 144.

A review has been made of these pages for any items which are critical of the Bureau, any inaccuracies as to the facts of the case as they are known to the Bureau, and for any other matters which are of interest to the Bureau. The following have been noted:

Page 101

Mr. McInerney's testimony under footnote #324 shows that the Bureau took over the investigation on a twenty-four hour basis beginning March 12, 1945. This statement is inaccurate because the Bureau did not receive the case until March 14, 1945, and the investigation was commenced on the following day, March 15, 1945.

This part of the report covers the Bureau's answers to questions asked by Senator Tydings in connection with this case.

"QUESTION: Were any employees of the State Department seen giving documents to other persons on the outside?

"ANSWER: While actual physical delivery of documents was not observed, the fact remains that hundreds of classified documents were recovered from unauthorized persons on June 6, 1945. Larsen and Service were observed in frequent contact with Jaffe and Roth. Service also met with Mark Gayn and has stayed in his New York apartment. Both Larsen and Service have admitted giving documents to Jaffe. Larsen and Service were also observed carrying envelopes or a zipper case out of the State Department. As a further illustration of the operations of this group, Service met with Jaffe in a hotel room on May 8, 1945. Service discussed military, political, and policy matters with Jaffe and cautioned him by saying: 'Well, what I said about the military plans is, of course, very secret.'"

It is noted that the answer to the above question is the same as the answer to question #5 contained in the statement furnished to the Tydings Committee by Messrs. Nichols and Ladd on May 31, 1950; however, the following was omitted "(as we are advised by departmental attorneys.)"

It is also noted that footnote #328 on page 103 states that the statement attributed to Service was not available to the Department of Justice for utilization before the Grand Jury inasmuch as the report concerning the conversation between Jaffe and Service was received by the Department of Justice with the following caveat from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, "Most of the foregoing information regarding the contacts made by the various principles and documents which were exchanged were obtained through highly confidential means and sources of information which cannot be used in evidence."

The report covering the conversation between Service and Jaffe at the Statler Hotel on May 8, 1945 (report of Special Agent Logan J. Lane, Washington Field Office, dated 5-26-45), did not contain any statement as set forth above; however, Bureau letter to Mr. Tom Clark of the Department, dated May 29, 1945, which outlined the facts in this case as of that date, did contain such a statement verbatim on page 8, paragraph 2, under the heading "Evidence." (100-267360-237, 260 p.8)

*****

Mr. McInerney, according to his testimony as shown in footnote #331, page 103, stated as follows:

"When the case came to me on May the 29th, I was aware, of course, of its inception and the nature of the manner in which it started, and as we had done in other cases during the wartime, we authorized prosecution even though we knew that the evidence was tainted, and we authorized prosecution because the Bureau had been very successful in obtaining concessions and admissions which obviated the necessity of having to tender this evidence or offer it in court, and those were the two conclusions I came to on May the 29th, or three conclusions.

"One, that the case was vulnerable because of its inception on the part of OSS; Two, that in evaluating the legal evidence, which largely consisted of physical surveillance only, that we did not then have sufficient evidence to authorize prosecution.

"The third conclusion was that since the Bureau has obtained concessions and admissions in over 80 per cent of its cases, that with the usual break in the prosecution here, we would get incriminating admissions and concessions which would obviate a trial, and show the need for presenting or tendering this evidence....."

The report then goes on to state that Mr. McInerney in explaining his authorization of prosecution stated that he did so "since our experience has already been that we can make a case on an apprehension and search." The report further states that it appears, therefore, that, while realizing insufficient legal evidence was at hand, Mr. McInerney authorized prosecution on the theory that a search conducted incident to the arrest of the six subjects would produce the required evidence, taken with the possibility of securing confessions following the arrests. The report also says that Mr. McInerney authorized prosecution despite his feeling that the case might be vulnerable and the evidence developed also would be held inadmissible in a Court proceeding by reason of the investigative techniques that had been employed by OSS and FBI.

Mr. McInerney testified that as early as June 27, 1945 "We were being inundated with threatened motions to suppress the evidence, bills of particulars and return of the property, etc."

This is the first knowledge the Bureau has received that any of the attorneys for the subjects had considered filing a motion to suppress the evidence at a date as early as June 27, 1945. It will be recalled that Larsen filed such a motion on September 28, 1945.

*****

Pages 118 to 122

The committee report states the Department did not prosecute Jaffe, Larsen and Roth after the other three subjects had been no-billed by the Grand Jury for the following three reasons:

1. Larsen filed a motion to suppress the evidence on September 28, 1945 claiming the FBI had entered his apartment illegally prior to the date of his arrest.
2. The Department had the belief that Jaffe's attorney might file a similar motion as to the Amerasia Offices, thereby destroying the evidence against Jaffe and the other subjects. Having this belief, the Department decided to enter into an immediate agreement with Jaffe's attorney to plead him guilty on September 29, 1945, before Jaffe's attorney had a chance to change his mind.

3. The Department attorneys had interviewed Larsen and Jaffe and neither of them offered any information to strengthen the case against Roth and, therefore, the Department entered a nolle prosequere as to Roth.

*****

The report stated as follows:

"On September 28, 1945 the Criminal Division was informed that Larsen's attorney was about to file a demurrer, motion to quash the indictment and an application to suppress the evidence obtained from the search of Larsen's apartment."

"Representatives of the Criminal Division conferred with FBI officials on the morning of September 28, 1945, and it was generally agreed that the case was in serious jeopardy. A number of suggestions were made and discarded."

The above statement as to a conference between representatives of the Criminal Division and FBI officials on the morning of September 28, 1945, is false. The statement as made here would lead one to believe that the Bureau and Departmental Representatives had conferred as to what steps should be taken with respect to Larsen's motion. However, if any conferring was done and suggestions made, the Bureau had no part. The true facts are as follows:

By memorandum dated September 26, 1945 the Bureau notified the Attorney General that Mr. E. R. Sager, Manager of Larsen's apartment told an Agent of the Washington Field Office on September 25, 1945 that he had admitted to Larsen on the previous date that he had afforded Agents of the FBI access to Larsen's apartment. This information was furnished to the Attorney General with the suggestion that if a Departmental Representative would talk to Sager, that Sager would be instructed to call at the Department of Justice. No further action was taken by the Bureau at that time.

Disposition of Case Against Larsen

The report stated, "With the case of Jaffe safely disposed of in what was considered a manner satisfactory under the circumstances, the Department was still confronted with a motion to suppress filed by Larsen. A number of conferences were held with the attorneys for Larsen and Roth in an effort to obtain pleas of guilty but without success. Larsen's attorney at first took the position he would not consider a plea until his motion to suppress was decided.

"The time for filing the Government's response to the motion to suppress was deferred. In response to the motion, the Government would have been obliged to admit the illegality of the search and seizure. However, the necessity for making this admission was averted when Larsen's counsel finally offered to plead his client nolo contendere if he could receive some assurance that only a moderate fine would be imposed. He pointed out that Larsen had been imposed upon by Jaffe, that he had lost his Government position which he had held for 10 years, that he was unemployed and penniless, and that he had a wife and family dependent upon him.

"The Government was aware of these facts and finally agreed, if consulted by the Court to recommend a fine of $500. This position was taken largely because of the above factors and also because we realized that Jaffe was the main culprit, that he had corrupted Larsen and was responsible for his plight, and that it would be manifestly unjust for Larsen to receive a sentence greater or even equal to that imposed upon Jaffe. Larsen entered a plea of nolo contendere on November 2, 1945 and was fined $500, as recommended by the Government."

*****

Disposition of Case Against Roth

The report stated, "Only the case against Roth now remained. This case was very weak and depended on several pages of handwriting and typewriting (identified as Roth's) of what appeared to be official documents. On September 27, 1945, Roth had filed a demurrer attacking the indictment and a motion for a bill of particulars. Argument on these motions had been postponed from time to time.

"At the time the Department offered to accept pleas of guilty from Jaffe and Larsen the Government's attorneys informed their counsel that Jaffe and Larsen would be examined by the Government counsel in an attempt to try to strengthen the case against Roth. This was done and both men were interviewed in November and December, 1945.

"Larsen, interviewed with respect to Roth's complicity, was unable to make any contribution except that Roth arranged the introduction between him and Jaffe early in 1944 while both he and Roth were employed by ONI. He could not implicate Roth in the conspiracy and as a matter of fact his statement tended to exculpate Roth, a result for which he had no known motive. After relating the facts as to how he was introduced to Jaffe and Roth in March, 1944. Larson stated that at no time did Roth and he ever discuss Larsen's transactions with Jaffe, nor did he and Jaffe discuss them in the presence of Roth. Larsen stated that he had no facts whatsoever that would indicate that Roth knew that he, Larsen, was supplying documents to Jaffe. Larsen said that Roth never saw him give Jaffe any material nor saw Jaffe give any material to him (Larsen). Larsen further stated that he never saw Roth deliver anything to Jaffe, and that Jaffe never told him that he, Jaffe, was getting any material from Roth; nor did Roth ever tell Larsen that he, Roth, was giving any material to Jaffe. Larsen did mention one incident which occurred early in 1945. He said that he saw Roth leave the Navy Department, with a large envelope filled with something; that Roth stated he was having lunch with Jaffe and that on the return of Roth he had nothing in his hand. Larsen asserted that whether Roth gave the contents of the envelope to Jaffe or what was in the envelope he, Larsen, does not know. Later Larsen corrected the date of this incident and said that it must have been late in 1944 rather than in 1945.

"Jaffe, a long-time friend and associate of Roth completely absolved Roth of any knowledge or participation in the matter and explained how Roth happened to copy several documents for him. This the Department expected since it was not naive enough to expect Jaffe to implicate Roth.

"While the physical surveillances showed meetings between Roth and some of the others, he was never observed transmitting or receiving Government documents. Several of these meetings were of a social nature. There was no evidence that Roth unlawfully removed any Government documents. Moreover, since the defendants were charged with conspiring to embezzle and remove Government documents, essential elements of the offense were the entering of each defendant into the agreement to commit those unlawful objects of the conspiracy, with knowledge of the existence thereof and intent to further its purposes in some manner. The prosecution would have had to prove these essential elements to secure convictions. As regards Roth, there was no proof that he entered into such an agreement with others, or that he had the knowledge and criminal intent to make a person a member of a conspiracy.

"In view of the state of the evidence above outlined, the decision was reached that the case against Roth could not be successfully prosecuted. After several postponements of hearings on motions brought by Roth's attorneys, and after an unsuccessful effort was made to place it on the pending inactive docket, the Government was forced to nolle prosequere the case against him on February 15, 1946."

Commendatory Statement Concerning FBI's Action in This Case.

On Page 133 the following paragraph appears in the Report:

"This report is not intended to qualify the seriousness or gravity of this case. The FBI's prompt and vigorous action in face of a situation already tainted with illegality was of inestimable service to this country. This report only deals with the difficulties of successful prosecution and the bases for the decisions made."

Summation by the Committee

The Committee summarized its investigation of the Amerasia Case in the following five points as set out hereafter:

"1. It has been asserted that an effort was made to delay the investigation. The FBI has denied that there was any delay whatever in its investigation and that no efforts were made to "fix" the case insofar as the FBI is concerned.

"2. Similarly, charges have been made that efforts were made to delay prosecution. These charges now appear to have stemmed from advice given the FBI on May 31, 1945, by the Department of Justice that prosecution should be held in abeyance pending the outcome of the United Nations Conference at San Francisco. This fact has precipitated a floodtide of speculation and unwarranted innuendos, culminating in the question of whether Alger Hiss' hand may have been in the picture. It is now crystal clear that the advice received by the FBI to hold the prosecution in abeyance originated in a desire of the late Mr. James Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, that the full implications of the proposed arrests in the Amerasia case be conveyed to the President in consideration of the delicate character of our conversation with the Soviet Union at the time and the treatment which the press would accord the case by reason of the Communist connections of some of the subjects. Upon learning of the matter, the President on June 2, 1945, personally ordered the FBI to proceed at once with the case and not to be deterred by instructions from anyone. The State Department was equally insistent upon prosecuting the case to the fullest. The facts clearly reveal there was no "delay" in handling the case in any real or substantial sense.

"3. It has been asserted that the Department of Justice failed to prosecute the case to the fullest and compromised it to the prejudice of the ends of justice. The officials directly responsible for prosecuting the case have testified under oath that they had absolutely a free rein in handling the case at all stages of the prosecution and were under no compulsion or restraint from any source whatever. There is not even a shred of evidence before us suggesting the contrary. It appears that the case was handled to the very best of their ability in the light of the legal and factual problems confronting them and their understanding of the law. Certainly common sense and fairness entitle Federal officials to the assumption that they have conscientiously done their duty, at least until facts to the contrary, not here present, are shown. The fact that some of the defendants did not receive the punishment which we today feel they deserved or which we would like to have seen them receive is the result of certain incidents of the case which have been heretofore discussed and not the result of dereliction on the part of the prosecuting officials. Under all of the circumstances of the case, we are constrained to suggest that the Department was fortunate in securing the punishment that was meted out.

"4. One of the most snide and disgusting charges in this case has been the suggestion that the handling of the Amerasia prosecution by Mr. Robert M. Hitchcock may have had a relationship to his subsequently becoming associated with a Buffalo, N. Y., law firm in which an uncle of one of the Amerasia defendants, Kate Mitchell, was a partner. There is absolutely no basis whatever for such a suggestion. The facts are that, many months after the Amerasia case was disposed of, Mr. Hitchcock was approached for the first time by a member of the law firm with a view to his becoming an associate thereof to handle a special field of litigation for which he was peculiarly well equipped by reason of his trial experience. Significantly, this member of the firm had no knowledge of the relationship between his partner and Miss Mitchell.

"5. There have also been allegations that the appearance of Philip Jacob Jaffe for sentencing on Saturday morning, September 29, 1945, was an unusual and unprecedented procedure, with the inference that something improper was involved. The persons who lend themselves to such a vicious fabrication do a grave injustice to the presiding judge, the Honorable James M. Proctor, in implying that he would permit any improper procedure.

"The fact of the matter is that in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, a judge is always assigned to duty on Saturday mornings. This judge is available for emergency cases and will also, at his discretion, handle brief matters for the convenience of counsel. It is not at all unusual for a case to be heard on Saturday morning if the plea is changed from "not guilty" to "guilty" and a speedy disposition is desired by all parties. Moreover, it is customary for counsel to determine in advance that the judge is free and set a time to appear. Therefore, the Jaffe case was handled in the same routine manner as many other cases.

"There has also been criticism of the fact that the judge was not advised of the "Communist connections" of Philip Jacob Jaffe. Such a criticism is the direct result of a misunderstanding of the case. It must be remembered that Jaffe was charged with conspiracy to obtain unlawfully Government documents. The Government had no evidence of the transmission of these documents by Jaffe to others. The only conceivable purpose justifying the use of information about Jaffe's Communist connections would be on a theory that it would indicate the possibility of a transmission of the information to the Soviet Union. To submit such allegations would in effect be an attempt to show that espionage had been committed when a lesser crime was charged and pleaded to, despite the fact that no evidence was available to support a charge of espionage.

"The Government attorneys handling the case were convinced that, unless they obtained a plea immediately, no conviction whatever of Jaffe could ever be obtained. They had first received word on Friday, September 28, 1945, that Larsen planned to file a motion to quash. They believed that once Jaffe learned of the unauthorized entries into Larsen's apartment, he would immediately follow the same procedure. Since illegal entries had been made in the Amerasia offices also, they were convinced that legally such a motion would be granted and the entire case lost. Therefore, only one alternative remained. They communicated, as heretofore discussed, with Jaffe's attorney and entered into a binding agreement to accept a plea of guilty in return for a Government recommendation of a substantial fine as the punishment, this agreement being made before Jaffe's attorney could learn of the news about Larsen's motion to quash.

"The Government also considered it necessary to have the plea formally entered as soon as possible in order to eliminate any possibility that Jaffe's attorney would back out on his commitment. In addition, Jaffe desired that the case be settled immediately. Once the Government attorneys were before the Court with an agreement to recommend a fine, it was manifestly impossible for them to argue that the offense was so heinous, because of the subject's alleged Communist connections, that a greater sentence should be imposed. If they attempted to do this, it would obviously release Jaffe from his commitment and he would be free to withdraw his plea and file his own motion to quash.

"A further consideration bearing on this question is that the Government in 1945 did not have proof that Jaffe was a member of the Communist Party. The most they had was that Jaffe had some Communist connections, which were not per se illegal or reprehensible, especially in 1945 when the Soviet Union, at least for all practical purposes of public moment, was an ally and friend of the United States. The allegations of Communist connections would not have been legally admissible evidence and thus had no probative significance.

"The matter of Jaffe's plea, therefore, resolves itself into a question of legal judgment and tactics. If the Department of Justice attorneys were correct in their conclusion that the evidence was legally inadmissible and that any delay in acting would allow Jaffe to escape without punishment, they were obviously right in their action. If, on the other hand, they made an error in legal judgment, their procedure was wrong. Since they choose the former, it follows that once committed to this course, they could not present the allegations of Jaffe's Communist connections, assuming they should have done so, without defeating their own objective. Therefore, any criticism of the handling of the case before the Court is solely a question of the validity of the judgment of the Department of Justice attorneys. We do not feel it incumbent upon us to attempt to resolve this legal question, since we find that the Jaffe case was presented to the Court with the sole intention of furthering the best interests of the United States as the attorneys handling the matter in their best judgment and honest belief appraised the situation."

Testimony of Messrs. Ladd and Nichols

The testimony of Assistant to the Director D. M. Ladd and Assistant Director L. B. Nichols, furnished to the subcommittee on May 31, 1950, is not set out in the report in its entirety. However, from time to time, excerpts of their testimony are mentioned in footnotes. It is further noted that in Appendix I, which is a statement concerning the investigation by the subcommittee, under 10 (c), it is stated that one of the matters gone into by the subcommittee was the interrogation of Associate Director D. M. Ladd and Assistant Director L. D. Nichols of the FBI concerning the investigation of the Amerasia case. It is stated that these gentlemen advised they were in a position to supply the full story of the case from the FBI's standpoint and that their testimony before the Subcommittee, along with the Hobbs Committee record, constituted the complete story. (Appendix I, pages 155, 156)

THE SOURCES OF THE CHARGES
(Pages 144-148)

The Committee reported that after an extensive investigation it felt in a position to indicate the primary sources of the charges which have been made in this case.

Charge of Large Number of Communists in the State Department

The Committee stated that investigators of the House subcommittee, considering the State Department appropriation during the Eightieth Congress, prepared memoranda concerning 108 individuals based on information contained in State Department security files. These memoranda, continued the report, did not represent or purport to be a full analysis of the files involved and in some instances related to applicants never employed and to cases of mistaken identity; four committees of the Eightieth Congress did not regard the memoranda as significant or indicative of disloyalty in the State Department and they did not even submit a report concerning them.

Selections from these 108 memoranda, dressed up to appear more sinister and alarming, it was charged, were used by Senator McCarthy as the basis for his February 20, 1950, speech on the Senate floor which precipitated the investigation and which were presented as information only recently given him covertly by "loyal" employees in the State Department.

Charge That Communists and Other Disloyal Forces in the State Department Sabotaged American China Policy

Three well-defined sources were said by the Committee to have been responsible for the charge that disloyal individuals have been responsible for the "failure of America's China policy." These were listed as perversion of the testimony of Patrick J. Hurley, former Ambassador to China, before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in December, 1945; Alfred Kohlberg, New York City importer; and an article purportedly written by Emmanuel S. Larsen, one of the defendants in the Amerasia case, for the October, 1946, issue of Plain Talk. Larsen repudiated the latter article in all essential respects, submitting to the Committee his draft—which bore "little or no resemblance to the articles which was published." The action attributed to Isaac Don Levine, editor of Plain Talk, and his associates in connection with the article was condemned by the Committee as beneath contempt.

THE FACTS BEHIND THE CHARGE OF "WHITEWASH"
(Pages 149-151)

The Committee bitterly assails the charge that it had "whitewashed" the investigation into McCarthy's allegations concerning Communists in the Government, stating that such charges were an "organized campaign of vilification and abuse." The report then gives an analysis of the campaign, stating that the factors responsible for such a campaign were:

1. The necessity of creating the impression that the inquiry was not thorough and sincere in order to camouflage the fact that the charges made by Senator McCarthy were false and that the Senate and the American people had been deceived. The report states that from the beginning, Senator McCarthy had sought to leave the impression that the Committee was investigating him, instead of the "Disloyalty in the State Department," because it is now known that he had no facts to support his "wild and baseless charges," and lived in mortal fear that this situation would be exposed.

2. An effort to force upon the Committee the adoption of unfair methods and procedures which would permit the "conviction" of individuals on the basis of unwarranted considerations. The report stated that the Committee had tried to apply the principles of fair play, and when a charge against an individual was publicly made, to give that person a chance to make a public reply. The report claims that an attempt was made to force upon the Committee the "rankest sort of hearsay testimony, and then when such testimony was not allowed, cries of "whitewash" were heightened.

3. A third factor in the campaign to create the "whitewash" idea was the desire to leave the thought that the Committee was engaged in a cover-up of something dark and sinister in the administration. The report states that this tactic was a political maneuver designed to obfuscate the fact that the proponents of the charge of disloyalty in the State Department were without facts, and was thwarted when the President opened the loyalty files to the Committee.

4. The fourth factor in the "whitewash" campaign was the fact that a prominent newspaper chain (unnamed) was being sued for libel by one of the defendants in the Amerasia case with the result that, by seeking to force procedures and findings of a certain character, it was felt the suit would be unsuccessful.

The Committee's report states that the campaign of vilification and "whitewash" had been partially successful due to the following considerations:

1. The fact that until now the Committee has not been in a position to tell the truth (about the "whitewash" charges) to the American people.

2. "Another consideration is the oft-repeated and natural reaction of many good people that goes something like this - 'Well, there must be something to the charges, or a United States Senator would never have made them.'"

3. The third consideration has been the readiness of many people to believe charges of disloyalty in the State Department by reason of the Alger Hiss case.

4. The fourth and final consideration has been the vague uneasiness of many Americans concerning the ascendancy of the Communists in China and the decline of the Nationalist Government. The Committee feels that such a setting makes a fertile ground for the people to believe that someone, perhaps in our own State Department, may have been responsible for this situation. The Committee recommends the State Department "White Paper" to anyone desiring to know the real facts concerning American diplomacy in China during 1944-1949.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS
(Pages 151-152)

The report states that in concluding the report of its investigation, it was constrained to make several observations which were regarded as fundamental. The first was that "It is, of course, clearly apparent that the charges of Communist infiltration of and influence upon the State Department are false." The Committee states that "we have seen the technique of the 'Big Lie,' employed by the totalitarian dictators with devastating success, utilized for the first time on a sustained basis in our history." The Committee states that it is its sincere opinion that the charges of the character made in this case seriously impair the efforts of the agencies of the Government in combatting the problem of subversion. The report states that the charges made by McCarthy had succeeded to a great degree in doing what the Communists themselves had been trying and were unable to do - divide our people here at home and our allies abroad.

"We have seen how, through repetition and shifting untruths," states the report, "it is possible to delude great numbers of people." It was noted that an analysis of this technique was contained in Appendix 24, a review of which follows.

ANALYSIS OF THE CHARGES MADE BY SENATOR
JOSEPH R. McCARTHY
(Appendix 24, Pages 296-337)

The Committee notes that on February 9, 1950, Senator McCarthy opened a campaign against the Department of State which of its kind was perhaps the most sensational in the history of the United States. "Unparalleled in cynical character assassination," reports the Committee, "ranging in its application from the President of the United States to minor Washington clerks, professionally and expertly keyed to lurid sensationalism, viciously unscrupulous in falsely heightening the fears of the public in a time of international crisis, versatile, opportunistic, and, at times, desperate, Senator McCarthy gave birth to and steadily nurtured a phenomenon designated, by common consent, as 'McCarthyism'".

Appendix 24 is a Memorandum analyzing Senator McCarthy's charges in four parts: 1. The McCarthy Charges in General. 2. The McCarthy Techniques and Methods. 3. The Effects of McCarthyism. 4. The Contradictions and Conflicts in the McCarthy Charges.

1. The McCarthy Charges in General

Various charges made by Senator McCarthy commencing with his speech at Wheeling, West Virginia, on February 9, 1950, are recounted, followed by the Committee's comments regarding refutation of such charges. It is noted that in a speech at Chicago on May 6, 1950, Senator McCarthy included an alleged statement by J. Edgar Hoover that the Amerasia case "is a 100-percent airtight case of espionage." The Department of Justice denied, adds the Committee, that Mr. Hoover ever made such a statement. Before the Senate on June 6, 1950, Senator McCarthy charged that the FBI had sent to the State Department a chart listing "agents," "Communists," "sympathizers" and "suspects," according to the report, which adds that no such chart had been prepared by the FBI but had been compiled by the State Department on May 15, 1946.

2. The McCarthy Techniques and Methods

Under this heading the Committee describes Senator McCarthy's most important and shocking technique as the sweeping accusation unwarranted by evidence. Listed thereafter are the multiple untruth, manufactured evidence, repetition, deliberate perpetuation of confusion, headline production and the "Yahoo" (anti-intellectual) appeal. The Committee sets forth considerable information in support of these appellations.

3. The Effects of McCarthyism

The effects of any given technique, reports the Committee, may not in itself be serious and even the use of a number of them—with some restraint—may be considered a normal phenomenon in the world of practical affairs. When, however, these techniques are used by a United States Senator under the circumstances of world crisis, and for the purpose of attacking the spokesman for the United States in the field of foreign affairs, the effects can be expected to be extremely serious. The Committee then declares Senator McCarthy's methods and techniques have undoubtedly confused our friends and heartened our enemies; diverted the energies of the public and public officials; undermined the procedures of the U. S. Senate and democracy by fraudulent inducement of appointment of a special investigating committee; demoralized public servants; and deprived individuals of legal redress by making unwarranted charges under cover of Congressional immunity.

4. Contradictions and Conflicts in the McCarthy Charges

Under this caption the Committee lists a large number of charges by Senator McCarthy and points out what it terms contradictions and conflicts.

PURPOSE

To submit for your information the results of a review of the proposed report of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee concerning information appearing therein which directly relates to the FBI or FBI personnel, and to also highlight comments of the Subcommittee.

BACKGROUND

At 4:50 PM on July 10, 1950, a copy of the proposed report of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was made available to the Bureau on a highly confidential basis, it being stipulated that no copies should be made nor any notations made thereon.

This proposed report and the attached appendices (consisting of 337 pages in all) have been reviewed for information which directly relates to the FBI or FBI personnel, special emphasis having been placed on such information as reflects adversely on the Bureau. In this connection, however, it is noted that page sixty-two of the proposed report, as submitted to the Bureau, was missing and therefore could not be reviewed.

In making this review, no attempt has been made to compare the conclusions set forth in the proposed report with the facts as contained in Bureau files, and other than those which directly concern the Bureau no attempt has been made to establish the accuracy or inaccuracy of statements appearing therein.

Generally, throughout the proposed report, references made to the FBI or FBI personnel are commendatory. The findings and conclusions of the Subcommittee are generally favorable to the individuals charged by Senator McCarthy, and no recommendations for dismissal are made.

ACTION

The attached memorandum is submitted for your information.

EMG:EFF ADDENDUM - July 11, 1950

Your attention is particularly called to page 6 of the attached memorandum wherein is set forth a statement with reference to McCarthy's charge about the stripping of the State Department's files indicating that "the files were reviewed by Agents of the FBI and the Department of Justice ....". This, of course, is incorrect.

On page 16 of the attached memorandum, it is pointed out that the Department of Justice has advised the Department of State that Mr. Hoover never made the widely publicized statement that it was a one hundred per cent airtight case against the Amerasia defendants. This of course is an incorrect statement and while the Department has been advised of the inaccuracy of this, the Committee has not.

On page 26 of this memorandum, it is noted that the letter from the Director to the State Department with reference to the chart prepared by Sam Klaus was set forth in full.

With reference to the Amerasia Case on page 30 of the attached memorandum, it is set forth that representatives of the Criminal Division conferred with FBI officials on the morning of September 28, 1945, and it was generally agreed that the case was in serious jeopardy. A number of suggestions were made and discarded. This leaves the erroneous impression that the Bureau might have concurred in the Department's handling of the prosecution.

It is pointed out that the full testimony of the Bureau's representatives is not set forth in the report. Excerpts from the testimony are mentioned in the footnotes.

It is noted that the question, which was 7B in the testimony, was changed. This question is quoted and reads "Was evidence sought and obtained by entering the apartment and premises of the accused without legal process and without the knowledge of the accused." Mr. Nichols' answer was then quoted.

The next question is worded "Were these entries of the premises before arrests made by the Agents without legal process and without the knowledge of the subjects?" The words "surreptitiously" and "stealthily" are not used.

INTRODUCTION

Under the introduction of this report, it is pointed out that on February 22, 1950, the Senate adopted Resolution 231, authorizing and directing the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, or any subcommittee thereof, to conduct a full and complete study and investigation as to whether persons who are disloyal to the United States are or have been employed by the Department of State. The Committee was directed to report to the Senate at earliest practicable date results of investigation and recommendations. If recommendations included formal charges of disloyalty, the Committee, before making recommendation was directed to give the individual open hearings for purpose of taking evidence or testimony. In the conduct of this study and investigation, the Resolution directed the Committee to procure by subpoena and examine complete loyalty and employment files and records of employees of State Department and such other agencies against whom charges have been heard.

Pursuant to Res. 231, a subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, comprised of Senators Tydings (Chairman), Green, McMahon, Hickenlooper and Lodge, was appointed to conduct the investigation. Beginning with public hearings on March 8, 1950, public or executive hearings were held on 31 subsequent days, ending on July 7, 1950, during the course of which 35 witnesses appeared. Additionally, a special subcommittee consisting of Senators Green and Lodge interrogated a total of 34 witnesses both in the United States and abroad.

The report called attention to the circumstances behind the Resolution, referring to Senator McCarthy's speech on February 9, 1950, at Wheeling, West Virginia, when he allegedly stated that although he could not take the time to name all the men in the State Department who had been named as active members of the Communist Party and members of a spy ring, he had in his hand a list of 205 names that were made known to the Secretary of State as being members of the Communist Party and who nevertheless were still working and shaping policy in the State Department; further, that in an interview over a radio station at Salt Lake City, Utah, on February 10, 1950, McCarthy said, "Last night I discussed the Communists in the State Department. I stated I had the names of 57 card carrying members of the Communist Party." Considerable attention is directed to the fact that the number and characterization of Communists in the State Department had dropped over night from 205 "named as active members of the Communist Party and members of a spy ring" to "57 card carrying members of the Communist Party." The report relates that since Senator McCarthy had left the unmistakable inference he had recently obtained from unrevealed sources in the State Department the information he was presenting, despite the inconsistencies apparent from the outset, an immediate and thorough investigation was necessary. Accordingly, Senate Resolution 231 introduced by Senator Scott W. Lucas was adopted.

CONCEPTION OF THE SUBCOMMITTEE'S DUTY

(Pages 4 - 5)

It is pointed out that Res. 231 was the result of McCarthy's charges and the inquiry contemplated utilization of and development of information which McCarthy had assured he had recently obtained; that the Committee had not conceived its function to be that of superseding the Federal Bureau of Investigation in its investigations of the loyalty of Federal employees or of the House Committee on un-American Activities.

INITIAL PHASE OF THE INQUIRY
(Pages 5-6)

According to the report, the first witness to appear before the subcommittee was Senator McCarthy who, according to the report, had no evidence whatever to submit concerning the individuals discussed by him previously but insisted the evidence to support the charges would be found in the loyalty files maintained in the Executive Branch of the Government. The report points out this was both interesting and significant since it was well known that under the President's Directive of March 13, 1948, the release of information developed concerning employees incident to the Loyalty Program was prohibited. The report stated from the very outset the subcommittee was subjected by Senator McCarthy and certain segments of the press and radio to a campaign of vilification probably unparalleled in the history of Congressional investigations; that the unwarranted cry "whitewash" was raised even before the hearing started and equally unfair and malicious allegations were made throughout the proceedings.

THE STORY OF THE "81 CASES"
(Pages 6-9)

This section of the report refers to the investigation of 108 loyalty files of the State Department conducted in 1947 by investigators for a subcommittee of the House Committee on Appropriations in connection with the State Department's Appropriation Bill for 1948. It points out that a case by case analysis by the Tydings Subcommittee of the 81 Cases referred to by Senator McCarthy on February 20, 1950, revealed that all 81 cases were included in the "108 list"; that language employed by Senator McCarthy in his "81 Cases" is similar textually to the language used in the counterpart cases appearing in the "108 list"; that where variations in the case descriptions used by Senator McCarthy occur, the language had been changed by Senator McCarthy to create a more sinister impression and where he changed the facts in the case descriptions he had changed them to create worse impressions. The report further points out that a review of the 108 memoranda prepared by the House investigators in 1947 shows that they were limited to derogatory information appearing in the files without reference to information tending to disprove allegations and did not appear to be concerned with the merits of the cases but dealt merely with the basis for or inadequacy of the investigations.

The report comments that Senator McCarthy's speech before the Senate on February 20, 1950, constituted a perversion compounded of the State Department's loyalty files in terms of the situation that prevailed not in 1950 but back in 1947 and that Senator McCarthy had received no under-cover information from "loyal" or "disturbed" State Department employees as he led the Senate to believe but his information was beyond all reasonable doubt a "dressed up" version of material developed by the 80th Congress.

The Tydings Committee report brings out that it was confronted with the annoying spectacle of four different committees of the 80th Congress, which was controlled by Senator McCarthy's own Party, having considered the very same files and information which provided the predicate for the McCarthy charges, with none of these committees so much as regarding the situation as one meriting a report for citing a single State Department employee as disloyal. The four committees of the 80th Congress referred to are specified as being the subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, 80th Congress which originally considered the list of "108 cases," a subcommittee of the House Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments which held hearings in March, 1948, regarding handling of loyalty cases by the State Department, a "Committee of One" (Representative Bartel J. Jonkman, Republican, Michigan) who made a probe into State Department security and reported thereon to the House on August 2, 1948, and a subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee, 80th Congress which, being cognizant of the memoranda of the "108 Cases" had examined Secretary of State George C. Marshall regarding the State Department's loyalty program.

Mention is made of the fact that Mr. John E. Peurifoy of the State Department, in testifying regarding the "108 Cases" before the subcommittee of the House Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments, 80th Congress, pointed out that only 57 of the 108 individuals were then employed in the State Department. From this the Tydings Subcommittee states that it is clear Senator McCarthy's reference to "57 card-carrying members of the Communist Party" was actually a reference to the 57 State Department employees mentioned by Mr. Peurifoy.

REVIEW OF LOYALTY FILES

(Pages 9 to 12)

In this section of the report, mention is made of the review of the files concerning the individuals charged by Senator McCarthy in his speech before the Senate on February 20, 1950, made by members of the Tydings Subcommittee at the White House. It is pointed out that in reviewing the files the Committee members recognized that they sat in judgment on the work of the FBI, the State Department Security Staff, the State Department Loyalty and Security Board and in some instances the President's Loyalty Review Board, representatives of which agencies had previously appeared before the Committee and impressed the Committee with their background, character, integrity, and manifest patriotism; that to assume any one of these representatives would have been a part to or have countenanced in any way harboring in the State Department of persons disloyal to the United States would not only have been absurd but unwarranted. However, the Committee was also mindful of the charge implicit in Senator McCarthy's allegations that an individual or individuals responsible for ferreting out disloyal employees, deliberately or otherwise, failed to perform his or their official duties. The Committee also realized that the officials responsible for making a determination of an employee's loyalty were in a much more favorable position to make such a determination and the function of the Committee was properly that of passing judgment on an administrative finding not unlike the function of an appellate court. A third consideration of the Committee in reviewing these files was the standards and criteria laid down under the Loyalty Program.

The following quoted comments of the Committee as they appear in its report illustrate the general findings of the Committee as a result of its review of the files in question and also illustrate comments of interest made by the Committee and pertinent references to the FBI:

"With the foregoing considerations in mind, we have carefully and conscientiously reviewed each and every one of the loyalty files relative to the individuals charged by Senator McCarthy. In no instance was any one of them now employed in the State Department found to be a 'card carrying Communist,' a member of the Communist Party or 'loyal to the Communist Party.' Furthermore, in no instance have we found

"In our considered judgment that the decision to grant loyalty or/and security clearance has been erroneously or improperly made in the light of existing loyalty standards."

"What we have found have been meticulous and comprehensive investigations conducted by the FBI. These investigations have been exhaustive and provide, in so far as humanly possible, a thorough going exploration of every avenue through which an employee's background and loyalty may be pursued and determined. The files reflect a similar thoroughness on the part of the State Department's Security Staff. Where loyalty hearings have been involved, the proceedings have been pertinent and comprehensive in contemplation of the issues involved."

.....

"We are fully satisfied, therefore, on the basis of our study of the loyalty files, that the State Department has not knowingly retained, in its employ, individuals who have been disloyal."

.....

"What the State Department knows concerning an employee's loyalty is to be found in its loyalty and security files. These files contain all information bearing on loyalty, obtained from any and all sources, including, of course, the reports of full field investigation by the FBI. Interestingly, in this regard, no sooner had the President indicated that the files would be available for review by the Subcommittee than Senator McCarthy charged they were being 'raped,' altered, or otherwise subjected to a 'housecleaning.' This charge was found to be utterly without foundation in fact. The files were reviewed by Agents of the FBI and the Department of Justice has testified that all information bearing on the employee's loyalty, as developed by the FBI, appears in the files which were reviewed by the Subcommittee." (The underlining has been added to highlight this particular comment as it appears in the Tydings Report, since the comment implies that Bureau Agents actually reviewed the files of the State Department on the individuals involved for the purpose of ascertaining whether they were complete. We, of course, did not review the State Department files for this purpose but did make a review of the Bureau's files for the purpose of furnishing to the Attorney General a brief specifying Bureau correspondence whereby information concerning these individuals had been furnished to the State Department and the Civil Service Commission. This brief was requested by Mr. Peyton Ford to assist the Attorney General in preparing a letter addressed to the Tydings Subcommittee, concerning the cases named on a "Subpoena List" received by the Justice Department from the Tydings Subcommittee. It is interesting to note that the Tydings report footnotes the comment underlined above by referring to a letter from the Department of Justice dated June 16, 1950, "printed in the record.")

"The most amazing thing in connection with our review of the loyalty files made available to us by the President is the fact that Senator Hickenlooper read only 9 of the files and Senator Lodge 12. Despite, therefore, the clamor and demand that was raised by Senator McCarthy, along with his associates, and the assertion that the loyalty files would 'prove his case,' we find the most unbelievable situation of the members of Senator McCarthy's own Party on our Subcommittee taking the trouble to read only a very small percentage of the files made available for these examinations by the President."

"Our review of the files reveals to us the value and necessity of the Loyalty Program.... We fully endorse the Program and feel that the necessity for perennial vigilance to prevent the penetration of our Government by those who would subvert and destroy it is of paramount importance.... The job is one to be performed in a quiet, sober, intelligent manner by those trained and competent for the task. We believe that in the FBI our Government has the finest investigative organization in the world under one of the most eminent and capable career public servants in this or any other generation, Mr. J. Edgar Hoover. They possess the ability in a quiet and unobtrusive manner to gather the facts concerning the loyalty of Federal employees and to keep abreast of and forestall the constant efforts of our enemies to place their minions in the Government service. Of this we are fully satisfied. Additionally, we have found, as heretofore suggested, no instance where officials in the State Department, charged with responsibility for taking action on the basis of disloyalty, have failed to do so where the facts as developed by the FBI have revealed evidence of a type and character warranting a finding of disloyalty or security risk under the standards which have been laid down for their guidance."

(Pages 12 - 18)

This section of the report refers to the fact that in order to appreciate the problem of security in the State Department and the true source of the charges that have been made, it is necessary to consider the situation with which the State Department was confronted in late 1945 and early 1946 following the end of hostilities. Briefly, it is pointed out that various emergency agencies were established during the war which employed some individuals whose connection in a Communist sense would bar them from employment today; that there was a shortage of civilian personnel during the war and it was impossible to conduct adequate investigation of a great number of employees; that the Soviet Union was our ally during the war but at the end of hostilities it became apparent the Soviet Union did not contemplate co-operation and friendly relations with democratic countries and that employees having Communist complexions who were tolerated where necessity required during the war had to be removed from Federal Service. It is pointed out that by various executive orders in late 1945 and early 1946, 12,797 employees of emergency war agencies (OSS, OWI, FEA) were transferred to the State Department and a screening committee established by the State Department to cull out the "rotten apples." The report quotes a statement on this entire problem submitted by the State Department showing the action taken with respect thereto. The Tydings Subcommittee comments that it is fully satisfied the State Department handled the inordinate personnel problem incident to the transfer of over 12,000 employees of other agencies in a capable manner and that every effort had been made to weed out disloyal employees.

HANDLING OF THE LOYALTY PROGRAM

This section of the report is a discussion of the organization, personnel and procedures of the State Department, the Loyalty Security Board of the State Department, and the President's Loyalty Review Board. The procedures for handling of applicants and incumbents under the Loyalty Program and the summary dismissal power of the State Department provided by the McCarran Rider are discussed together with the standards applicable to each of these authorities. It is the conclusion of the Tydings Subcommittee that the Loyalty and Security Program of the State Department is being administered efficiently, fairly, and in the best interests of the government. The Subcommittee comments that in one respect the handling of applicants may be improved in that an applicant is actually sworn in as an employee prior to a preliminary check with the Federal Bureau of Investigation. If this check reveals disloyal information the State Department must then resort to the full procedure under the Loyalty Program, whereas if made prior to employment and derogatory data is developed the State Department could then deny the application outright. A comment is also made by the Subcommittee that it feels the Loyalty Program in its entirety warrants study to determine whether it is deficient in that it recognizes only the disloyal standard.

PROBLEM OF STATE DEPARTMENT SECURITY

This section of the report merely refers to a study made by Senators Green and Lodge, regarding the State Department's peculiar problem of security in view of the global disposition of its employee's activities and installations.

THE CASES OF THE INDIVIDUALS PUBLICLY CHARGED

This section of the report is devoted to a discussion of individuals charged publicly by Senator McCarthy which will be dealt with individually hereafter. In addition, mention is made of the "Three Big Communists" mentioned by Senator McCarthy on February 20, 1950, as being cases No. 1 (Herbert Abner Fierst), No. 2 (John Carter Vincent), and No. 81 (Ruby Parson). The Committee points out it has reviewed the loyalty files on these three cases and found nothing to sustain Senator McCarthy's assertion they are "big Communists," or of "tremendous importance and of great value to Russia," or are a part of an "espionage ring in the State Department." It is pointed out that the individual involved in case No. 81 (Ruby Parson) resigned from the State Department on April 2, 1948.

Reference is also made to case No. 53 (Richard Howell Post) described by Senator McCarthy as one of the most dangerous Communists in the State Department and case No. 57 (Fred Warner Neal) concerning whom Senator McCarthy urged immediate action. The Committee points out that No. 53 resigned from the State Department on December 30, 1948, and No. 57 resigned March 12, 1948. The Committee thereafter cites the above as illustrative of the reckless and irresponsible treatment of the facts by Senator McCarthy.

Set forth hereafter are the individual cases described in the Subcommittee report:

MRS. ESTHER CAUKIN BRUNAUER
(Pages 26-29)

The Subcommittee found that Mrs. Brunauer was a member of one organization cited as a Communist front "and that in 1934 and 1936, over 14 years ago, she participated in two meetings sponsored by a pro-Soviet organization of which she was not a member." The conclusion was reached that there is no evidence that Mrs. Brunauer is disloyal, a Communist sympathizer or a security risk.

Senator McCarthy charged that Duran was well known for his rabid Communist beliefs and activities and was active in secret Soviet operations in the Spanish Republican Army. The Committee did not discuss Duran in the body of its report because of the fact that his employment with the State Department ceased before the Loyalty Program was instituted.

The charges against Duran and his replies were set forth in Appendix 9:

APPENDIX 9
CASE OF GUSTAVO DURAN
(Pages 182-187)

Duran submitted a "Memorandum to Senator Tydings," dated March 30, 1950, setting forth his answers to Senator McCarthy's charges. Referring to the Spanish newspaper ARIBBA, which he claims was the indirect source of some of the Senator's allegations, he notes that it erroneously reported that he came to Madrid "for the first time in the 1920's from the Canary Islands." Duran notes he was born in Barcelona, Spain, and resided continuously with his family in Madrid from 1910 until 1929. Duran writes:

"The Federal Bureau of Investigation has in its files a list of the various domiciles of my family. This information which was provided by me, can be easily checked."

The foregoing is substantially correct. When interviewed by Mr. Ladd on April 29, 1946, he furnished biographical data concerning his parents and himself, and set forth their domiciles as well as those of his own which he could recall.

His attorneys, Baldwin, Todd & Lefferts, also forwarded the Director, under date of April 17, 1950, a complete biographical sketch.

With reference to Senator McCarthy's charges that Indalecio Prieto, former Minister of Defense for the Spanish Republican Cabinet, in his pamphlet, "Why and How I Left the Ministry," described Duran as an agent of the Secret Russian Police or a member of the Comintern, Duran writes:

"Subsequently, Mr. Prieto stated to Messrs. Robert Wilson Wall, Jr. and Robert Godfrey, Attaches to the American Embassy at Mexico City, that he had appointed me as head of the Madrid Zone of the Military Intelligence Service (SIM) at the proposal of General Miaja, then Commander of the Army of Madrid; he then reiterated that he (Prieto), like others in the Government who were equally hostile to Communism, had been subjected to Communist pressures."

Actually, Prieto said considerably more than Duran noted. When interviewed by Special Agents Wall and Godfrey, he stated that he did not know him prior to the appointment but that because Miaja, who was himself closely associated with the Communist Party and Soviet interests in Spain, had recommended him, he assumed that Duran was a Communist. Prieto said he had no proof of this nor of any allegation that Duran was or had been an agent of the Soviet Union. He believed Duran had been subjected to considerable Communist pressure, as were all members of the Spanish Government.

HALDORE HANSON

Hanson is the individual whom Senator McCarthy described as having a mission to communize the world. Louis Budenz testified he knew Hanson from official records to be a member of the Communist Party. Budenz' information was based, according to his testimony, on oral information received in 1940 and 1941. Budenz thought Jack Stachel gave him Hanson's name. Budenz testified that the first time he had indicated to anyone that Hanson had ever been reported to him as a Communist was a week prior to his testimony on April 25, 1950, when he gave Hanson's name, among others, to the FBI. Hanson declared he was given a complete clearance by the Department of State following a comprehensive investigation by the FBI under the Loyalty Program. He testified on March 28, 1950, he thought subversives could be ferreted out by the quiet, sober, thorough methods now used by the FBI.

The Committee stated it was clear that (1) Hanson was not, as claimed by Senator McCarthy, "one of the most strategically important officers in the entire State Department"; (2) that Hanson would not, as alleged by Senator McCarthy, head a program charged with expending hundreds of millions of dollars; and, (3) that information used by Senator McCarthy to uphold his allegations of pro-Communism against Hanson failed in credibility, relevancy, and competency. The testimony of Budenz left the Committee "to a degree, in wonderment." In the face of the results of the FBI investigation, action of the Loyalty Board and the evidence presented, the Committee could not accept Budenz' testimony as controlling.

PHILIP C. JESSUP
(Pages 37 - 43)

The Committee sets forth the allegations made against Dr. Jessup by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy in support of his general charge that Dr. Jessup possessed "an unusual affinity for Communist causes," and then proceed to show how Senator McCarthy had failed to substantiate the allegations.

It is noted that the Committee's report states that "we have seen the loyalty file concerning Dr. Jessup which reflects no basis for considering him disloyal or a security risk." Actually, the Bureau's reports reflect the following concerning Dr. Jessup:

1. He was one of the Sponsors for a dinner held by the American Russian Institute in NewYork in 1946.

2. Information from a reliable informant to the effect that in 1941 Jessup's name appeared on a list of names maintained in the Headquarters of the National Federation For Constitutional Liberties.
3. That Dr. Jessup was a signer of a call for a "National Emergency Conference" in Washington, D. C. in 1939.
4. That he was a member of the Board of Sponsors of the "National Emergency Conference for Democratic Rights" in 1940.
5. That he was Faculty Advisor of the "American Law Students Association," while at Columbia University.
6. That his wife was a member of the China Aid Council.
7. That he was a member and an officer of the Institute of Pacific Relations.

Senator McCarthy's charges included the above points, and the Committee's report takes up each, concluding that "the true facts, therefore, are that Dr. Jessup was shown to have been associated with only two organizations, in both cases prior to the date they were cited as Communist fronts." The Committee concluded that "the facts before us fail completely to establish that Philip C. Jessup has 'an unusual affinity for Communist causes' and that the Subcommittee felt that the accusations made against Dr. Philip C. Jessup are completely unfounded and unjustified, and have done irreparable harm to the prestige of the United States."

DOROTHY KENYON
(Pages 43 - 48)

With reference to Kenyon, the report set forth the admitted affiliations of Miss Kenyon, the affiliations of Miss Kenyon not denied, other alleged connections of Miss Kenyon, other evidence, and concluded with the statement that the evidence before the Subcommittee failed to establish that Dorothy Kenyon is a Communist or an otherwise disloyal person.

OWEN LATTIMORE
(Pages 48-75)

The Committee predicates this section of the report (pages 48 to 74) with the statement that although Owen Lattimore was not an employee of the State Department in real or proper sense, inquiry was made on the basis of the charge that he was the "architect of our Far Eastern policy." Thereafter, Senator Joseph McCarthy's charges against Lattimore are reviewed and portions of the testimony tending to substantiate or refute those statements are commented upon. In their consideration of such testimony, the Committee finds generally that the charges of Senator McCarthy against Mr. Lattimore are unsupported in fact and winds up with the comment, "We believe that the Lattimore case vividly illustrates the danger of promiscuous and specious attacks upon private citizens and their views, and the imperative necessity that inquiries relating to matters of such character, where deemed relevant to our national security, should be handled by the duly constituted agencies of our government that are equipped to handle such matters by intelligent and proven methods designed to obtain the truth without injustice, character assassination, and a prostitution of the American concept of fair play...."

* * * * *

Page 50-----"McCarthy insisted that information concerning Lattimore in the FBI files would show 'in detail not the case merely of a man who appears to favor Russia, not the case of a man who might disagree with what we think about Russia, but a man who is definitely an espionage agent...'

"The foregoing assertion had to be taken by us at the outset with the proverbial 'grain of salt'; for if the FBI had evidence that Lattimore was a top Russian spy, either the FBI was derelict (which we do not believe) in not prosecuting him, or Senator McCarthy was compromising an FBI investigation which might result in prosecution."

With reference to possible dereliction by the Bureau for not prosecuting Lattimore, this is erroneous inasmuch as the question of prosecution is not one within the Bureau's province.

* * * * *

Page 54-----"Father Kearney was interviewed by the FBI and advised that he had no direct knowledge of Mr. Lattimore's activities and that the principal source of his information had been Alfred Kohlberg of the American-China Policy Association of New York City. (Footnote---A letter from the Department of Justice confirming this statement will be found in the subcommittee's record.)"

This is an accurate though partial statement of the information given by Father James F. Kearney when interviewed by Bureau Agents on January 20, 1950.

Pages 56-57---In commenting on the testimony of Louis Budenz, the report contains the statement, "The subcommittee also notes that only since this investigation and the publicity concerning Lattimore in connection therewith has Budenz given information to the FBI concerning Lattimore, even though Budenz has been reporting for several years to the FBI on various Communist activities and personalities....Similarly in the case of Haldore Hanson, Budenz admitted that Hanson was named by him as a Communist for the first time during the course of our proceedings."

This is an accurate statement, on April 15, 1950, Louis Budenz advising that he had never mentioned to the Bureau what he knew about Lattimore prior to March 27, 1950, because his information was "flimsy" and "not legal" and he had devoted most of his time to furnishing legal evidence.

* * * * *

Pages 66-67---"A summary of the files of the FBI pertaining to Owen Lattimore, prepared by that organization, was made available to members of the subcommittee for review. Whereas this summary indicated Lattimore's association and contact with some individuals of known and alleged Communist and pro-Communist views, there was no evidence therein proving Lattimore himself to be a man of willful pro-Communist actions or views. The evidence did not show him to be 'a top Soviet espionage agent' or a member of the Communist Party or Communist underground. The information concerning Lattimore, testified to by Louis Budenz, was not in the possession of the FBI, according to Budenz' own testimony, at the time members of this subcommittee reviewed the summary...."

"The foregoing discussion of the information available to us (this phrase apparently includes information set forth in the FBI summary) is quite devoid of any proof that Mr. Lattimore was 'one of the top Communist agents.'"

This statement is misleading in that it does not properly reflect the information made available to members of the subcommittee. On March 23, 1950, there was delivered to Mr. Clive Palmer, of the Criminal Division, a memorandum to Mr. Peyton Ford, dated March 22, 1950, with which was transmitted an eleven-page summary memorandum on Owen Lattimore. This memorandum was displayed to members of the subcommittee. It contained biographical information concerning Owen Lattimore, as well as information concerning his association with the State Department and the United Nations. The memorandum also referred to reports from various sources indicating Lattimore's alleged implication in Soviet intelligence activities. In this connection, however, it was noted that although an extensive investigation had been conducted between March 1949 and the date of the memorandum, no tangible evidence had been uncovered to corroborate the allegations or to indicate that he was involved in Soviet espionage activity. The memorandum made reference to a number of allegations concerning Lattimore, indicating his reported affiliation with Communist-front groups, participation in Communist-sponsored activity, and association with known or suspected Communist Party members and individuals suspected of having acted as Soviet agents.

Page 68-----"Senator McCarthy also said this:....'It will be recalled that J. Edgar Hoover at the time said this was a "100-percent airtight case against Service, Roth, and their co-defendants."....The Department of Justice has advised the Department of State that Mr. Hoover never made the widely publicized statement that there was a '100-percent airtight case' against the Amerasia defendants. (Footnote-- This letter will be found printed in the subcommittee record.)"

In this connection, by memorandum dated May 23, 1950, you protested against such use of your name, particularly when that use did not accurately reflect your views. For the information of the Attorney General, you pointed out that on April 12, 1950, John Stewart Service, one of the subjects in that investigation, had asked if you had made a public statement to the effect that the case against him was a hundred per cent airtight. Under date of April 18, 1950, you advised Mr. Service that you had made no public statement on the Amerasia case since the period wherein the arrests occurred, and pointed out to him that the FBI did not pass on the evidence it collected during its investigations but that such evidence was turned over to the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice. You advised Mr. Service, "I presume that they (meaning the Criminal Division of the Department) must have been satisfied with the evidence presented to them by the FBI as they authorized the arrests to be made in this case."

You also pointed out to the Attorney General that on May 4, 1950, you had informed Mr. Peyton Ford that you could not approve his proposed answer (subsequently released by the Department of State) to an inquiry on May 1, 1950, from Mr. John E. Pewlfoey, of the Department of State, as to whether you had publicly stated that the case was a hundred per cent airtight. You advised the Attorney General that in your communication of May 4, 1950, to Mr. Peyton Ford, you pointed out that in the event you had been asked at the time the arrests were made whether you thought we had an airtight case, you would have stated that you thought we had, and that if asked today you would have to so state.

Pages 68-69---"Senator McCarthy also said this:

"I have another statement which I had a great deal of difficulty getting. I had no difficulty obtaining the information from this man, but he was extremely reluctant to sign a statement, fearing that his job might be endangered if he did so.....

"He gave his consent to his name and this statement being given to the FBI. We had to promise him, however, that his name would not be given to this committee.....

"Then I have another statement gotten under almost the same circumstances, which is being turned over to the Bureau....."

"The Department of Justice furnished the following information concerning the June 2, 1945 meeting at Lattimore's home to which Senator McCarthy referred." (Thereafter the report set forth information obtained from the Department of Justice concerning the two statements).

In referring to the meeting at Lattimore's home on June 2, 1945, the report states:

"The FBI found no evidence during its most thorough investigation of the Amerasia case to indicate that any Government documents were involved in this incident."

On March 30, 1950, Senator McCarthy furnished to the Bureau a two-page, handwritten, signed statement dated March 28, 1950, unattested, of Alberta R. Carter and a one-page, handwritten, signed statement, undated and unattested, of her husband, George F. Carter, a Professor at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Maryland. The statement of George F. Carter appears to be an addendum to the statement of Alberta R. Carter and both statements set forth information concerning the visit of the Carters at the home of Owen Lattimore in "June, 1945" when John S. Service and Lieutenant Andrew Koth were also present. The remarks of Senator McCarthy concerning the acquisition of these statements tended to convey the erroneous impression that the information embodied therein was first acquired by him at that time. In fact, on February 9, 1950, George F. Carter was interviewed by Bureau representatives, at which time he furnished information in considerable detail concerning Owen Lattimore as well as detailed information concerning the Carters' Sunday afternoon visit in "June, 1945" at the home of Lattimore when John S. Service and Lieutenant Andrew Roth were also present. On the occasion of this interview, George F. Carter exhibited a willingness to assist in any way that he could though he made the request that his identity be kept confidential. (100-24628-155)

On April 6, 1950, Mrs. George F. Carter was interviewed by Bureau representatives, at which time she could add no information of value concerning the "June, 1945" visit at the Lattimore home to that which had been furnished by her husband on February 9, 1950. (100-24628-522)

The affidavit was turned over to the FBI by Senator McCarthy. The Department of Justice has advised, with reference to this, in the following terms:....." (Thereafter was set forth information "purported" to have been given by the former general in the Red Army to an investigator for Senator McCarthy).

On March 30, 1950, Senator McCarthy furnished to the Bureau a document entitled, "Expected Testimony from Alexander Barmine" reflecting that while he was a general in the Red Army and in Moscow, he learned from "General Bersin," a high official in Soviet Intelligence, that excellent success had been obtained through the Institute of Pacific Relations which the Soviet Intelligence, through Communists in the United States, had taken over. During this conversation which occurred in the middle 1930's, "General Bersin" mentioned in particular Owen Lattimore and one Joseph Barnes as Soviet men connected with the Institute. A handwritten notation on this document reflects that the information therein was related to Donald A. Surine by Alexander Barmine on March 29, 1950.

Alexander Gregory-Graff Barmine, a former Soviet diplomatic official who defected from the Soviets in 1937 and entered the United States in 1940, upon interview by Bureau representatives on December 14, 1948, furnished information to the effect that General I. Bersine had, while Barmine was in Moscow, mentioned that the Soviets had some Americans working for them in China. Barmine named Owen Lattimore as one of the individuals. Barmine was reinterviewed by Bureau representatives on March 27, 1950, at which time, he enlarged upon the previous information he had furnished concerning Lattimore and placed Lattimore in a Soviet Military Intelligence network in China, which used as a cover for its operation, the Institute of Pacific Relations. Page 71-----"Senator McCarthy further stated on the Senate floor:

"I have before me another affidavit, the original of which is being handed to the FBI.....He states that Lattimore was a leader in several pro-Russian student uprisings in China." (The report then quoted information concerning this allegation, noting that it had been received in a communication from the Department of Justice which is printed in the record).

On March 30, 1950, Senator McCarthy furnished the Bureau a five-page, handwritten, signed statement of Upton Close, dated "Mar. 1950" in which it appears that Lattimore, in the early 1920's, was involved in several student uprisings in China along with other Chinese students. It was also indicated in the statement that Lattimore enjoyed a kind of leadership in the group.

On April 1, 1950, Upton Close, McLean, Virginia, was interviewed by Bureau representatives concerning Owen Lattimore. Close advised that he first knew Lattimore around 1920 in China, at which time Lattimore was associated with Young Chinese students who became more and more taken over with Communist activity. Lattimore was considered somewhat of a leader and was an inspiring factor in these Chinese students uprisings. Mr. Close also advised that he had no knowledge reflecting that Lattimore was engaged in espionage for the Soviets, but felt that he was a Communist and that he had been a member of, and in contact with "Communist cells."

Page 72-----In its conclusion concerning Owen Lattimore, the Committee reported that they found that Lattimore was not now and never had been in any proper sense an employee of our State Department; that he had no controlling or effective influence whatever on our Far Eastern policy; and that they found no evidence that he was the "top Russian spy" or any other sort of spy. In this connection, the report contained the statement:

"We have every confidence that were Mr. Lattimore an espionage agent the efficient FBI would long since have taken action against him. The fact that it has not done so and the further fact that we have seen a summary of the FBI's information concerning Mr. Lattimore confirms our opinion in this respect."

These latter conclusions, in so far as they concern the FBI, are, of course, unwarranted. As mentioned above, it is not within the province of the FBI to institute prosecutive action against a subject of investigation, nor can the FBI summary of March 22, 1950 (since supplemented by additional investigation) be properly construed as a clearance of Lattimore in connection with the charges made against him.

* * * * *

Page 73-----"Owen Lattimore is a writer and a scholar who has been charged with a record of pro-Communism going back many years. There is no legal evidence before us whatever (this apparently includes information set forth in the FBI summary) to support this charge....

"....we are compelled to comment that in no instance has Mr. Lattimore on the evidence before us been shown to have knowingly associated with Communists."

The nature of the FBI summary of March 22, 1950, has been set forth previously in this memorandum. It is true, however, that the memorandum in itself does not constitute "legal evidence."

NOTE:-----Page 62, of the copy of the report as submitted to the Bureau, is missing and consequently has not been reviewed.

The Subcommittee found that Frederick L. Schuman has never been an employee of the State Department and that his only connection with the Department was to deliver a one hour lecture at the Foreign Service Institute on June 19, 1946.

JOHN STEWART SERVICE
(Pages 75-94)

The report of the Subcommittee stated that the charges against John Stewart Service have a dual character: (1) that he is pro-Communist as indicated by (a) his reports from China during the period 1943 to April, 1945, in which he allegedly advocated the cause of the Chinese Communists, and (b) his associations during the same period; (2) that he was involved in the abstraction of Government documents in connection with the Amerasia case.

During the discussion of Service's connection with the Amerasia case, it was stated that Senator McCarthy made the allegation, both as a witness and on the floor of the Senate, that "The FBI then took over and reported that in the course of its quest it was found that John Stewart Service was in communication from China with Jaffe." In this connection, the following similar statement is attributed to Emanuel S. Larsen in his article in Plain Talk: "The FBI then took charge of the affair. As established by Congressman Dondoro, the Government agents spent several months on the case. In the course of their quest, it was found that John S. Service was in communication from China with Mr. Jaffe." We, of course, did not show that Service was in communication from China with Jaffe. In later referring to this statement attributed to both Senator McCarthy and Larsen, the Subcommittee report states, "The evidence reveals that Mr. Service did not contact Jaffe from China. The allegation to the contrary is based on Larsen's Plain Talk article, which was repudiated by him."

On Pages 84 and 85 of the Subcommittee report are set out brief statements of Service's activities on some of the days he was covered by physical surveillance. Then follows an explanation by Service of meetings shown by the surveillance. The Subcommittee report states: "This explanation by Mr. Service before us of his contacts with the other subjects in the Amerasia case is almost an exact duplicate of that given by him before the grand jury. It is significant to us that, at the time Service appeared before the grand jury, he had no knowledge of the physical surveillance, or at least no knowledge of what it revealed. Yet his explanation accounted for every meeting reported by the FBI. When this is coupled with the fact that his explanation was verified by the FBI and found to be correct, no other conclusion can be made but that we, like the grand jury, must find that the explanation is consistent with complete innocence." Prior to his appearance before the grand jury, Service, of course, did give a lengthy statement to Agents during which he furnished much of the material covering his meetings and contacts.

On Pages 87 and 88, under the caption "Technical Surveillance," is set out a partial transcript of conversation between Service and Jaffe in Jaffe's hotel room on May 8, 1945, and this transcript is referred to as a "verbatim quotation" by the Subcommittee in its report. It is noted that on Page 87, one statement is attributed to Service when actually our transcript reflects that the statement was made by Jaffe; this statement is, "I guess these are the only things," and it is made during a discussion of what the Chinese were doing at San Francisco. Then too, throughout the reporting of this transcript in the Subcommittee report there appear some changes in punctuation, but not to the extent that it appears that the meaning of the text is changed. On Page 88, in reporting a statement of Service, following a space left blank to indicate an unintelligible word or words, the words "something skipped" have been inserted and may be interpreted as words spoken by Service.

Following the "verbatim" account of the recording, there is set out "several statements prepared by the FBI" which, in summary form relate additional conversation between Service and Jaffe.

On Page 91, it is reported that Mr. Brookes Atkinson appeared before the State Department Loyalty and Security Board as a witness and verified statements made by Service concerning an article prepared by Atkinson regarding General Stilwell's recall. Service had explained that Atkinson had written a story in the New York Times for October 31, 1944, which contained the gist and the only important part of the story regarding General Stilwell's recall; that he (Service) had returned to the United States with Atkinson and had read the draft of his article while traveling. Following Service's apprehension by Bureau Agents, it should be noted, Atkinson had been quite critical of the Bureau.

On Page 91, the following is also set out: "It is most significant to note that Mr. Service arrived in Washington -- April 12, 1945 -- and the date the FBI first found him in contact with a subject in the Amerasia case -- April 19, 1945. On March 11, 1945, the OSS raided the offices of Amerasia and found there were numerous Government documents therein. Service pointed out that, manifestly, Jaffe's source of Government documents had been fully developed by that time, which was prior to Mr. Service's return to the United States. We note in this regard that on April 18, 1945, the FBI had a conference with General Holmes of the State Department and Major Correa of the Navy Department. At that time, the Bureau indicated that it was ready to present it for such prosecutive action as the Department of Justice might think proper. On this date, Service had not yet met Jaffe, Mitchell, or Larsen and had met Mark Gavn for the first time on that day...."

In concluding its report of the case of John Stewart Service, the Subcommittee stated, "We have carefully considered the evidence and conclude that John Stewart Service is neither a disloyal person, a pre-Communist nor a security risk. We have been particularly impressed with the frankness and cooperativeness of Mr. Service in his appearance before us. Many questions with hidden implications have been asked him about events that transpired many years ago. Never did he seek to avoid answering on the ground he could not remember but always gave this subcommittee the benefit of any recollection he might have. In addition, he waived his immunity and voluntarily appeared before the grand jury in August of 1945. After hearing all the facts, the grand jury unanimously voted not to indict Mr. Service. We could not fail to be impressed also by the almost continuous scrutiny to which he has been subjected during the last five years. He has been cleared four times by either the State Department Personnel Board of the State Department Security and Loyalty Board." Continuing, the Subcommittee reported, "We have also found significant the fact that Emmanuel S. Larsen admitted to the FBI that he had furnished Jaffe with the eight solid copies of the Service reports found in Jaffe's brief case when he was arrested." In a signed statement given to Bureau Agents on June 7, 1945, Larsen stated that he last saw Jaffe on Monday, May 28th, 1945, at the Statler Hotel and at that time he did not give him any documents. That evening, Jaffe visited him at his home and he showed him two State Department reports by Jack Service. Jaffe expressly asked for Service's last reports, according to Larsen, which he apparently knew. Larsen admitted that in addition to these two reports, he had in the past given Jaffe a number of classified documents to read and they may have numbered six to ten documents in all.

Inquiry by the Subcommittee established that Dr. Harlow Shapley is not an employee of the Department of State in any real and proper sense. He was appointed a member of the United States delegation to the Preparatory Conference for UNESCO at London in 1945. On May 20, 1947, and June 27, 1947, Shapley was designated by the Executive Committee of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and was appointed by the Secretary of State to serve as a representative of that association on the United States National Commission for UNESCO. His term expired April 15, 1950. The Subcommittee stated that within the proper purview of its inquiry, no consideration need be given the charges made against Dr. Shapley.

The Subcommittee disposed of McCarthy's allegations concerning Vincent in two paragraphs, stating that "we have carefully reviewed the loyalty file concerning Mr. Vincent and the McCarthy charges are absurd on the basis thereof. The investigation of Mr. Vincent does not show him to be disloyal or a security risk."

In stating that the loyalty file concerning Vincent had been reviewed, it is believed that the report has reference to the State Department security file pertaining to him. You will recall that the Bureau is conducting a loyalty investigation of Vincent following submission of available data to the Department for an opinion as to whether such an investigation should be conducted. After consulting the State Department, the Department advised that we should proceed with a loyalty investigation.

CHARGES WITH RESPECT TO "FBI CHART"

(Pages 95 and 96)

The Subcommittee here refers to the speech by Senator McCarthy before the Senate on June 6, 1950, where he presented a photostatic copy of a page of a report stated to be based on an FBI chart, allegedly indicating "Agents," "Communists," "Sympathizers" and "Suspects," as employed in the State Department. The Subcommittee states that while these charges are not before the Committee, a great deal of publicity has been accorded the so-called FBI Chart and in view of this situation it is believed that the facts of the matter should be set forth. Thereafter, there is quoted a portion of a letter dated June 28, 1950, from Mr. John E. Peurifoy, Deputy Undersecretary of State, identifying the report in question as having been prepared by Mr. Klaus, then assigned to the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Administration, in connection with a survey of Departmental security investigations. It is observed that on Pages 29 and 30 of the Klaus report, reference is made to a chart alleged to have been prepared by the FBI. Mr. Peurifoy thereafter states no such chart was ever received by the Department of State from the FBI, nor was such a chart ever prepared by the FBI; that it had been conclusively determined that the chart was not prepared by the FBI but was prepared as an investigator's working document in the Department of State in 1946 and by employees of the Department of State; that the writer of the report drew the unintentional erroneous conclusion that the chart was prepared by the FBI. Mr. Pourifoy makes reference to a letter dated June 14, 1950, addressed by the Director to the State Department advising that the FBI did not send any such chart to the State Department and made no evaluation of information as was indicated in the Klaus report. This letter dated June 14, 1950, addressed by the Director to Mr. James E. Webb, Undersecretary of State, is quoted verbatim in the Subcommittee's report. It is also noted that Mr. Pourifoy's letter to the Subcommittee of June 28, 1950, assures the members that none of the employees named on the chart in question are presently employed by the State Department except those who have since been investigated and who have been checked and evaluated under the Loyalty Program.

Additional details concerning the State Department's repudiation of Senator McCarthy's comments concerning the chart in question are contained in State Department releases of June 6, and June 9, 1950, reproduced in Appendix 17 of the Subcommittee's report.

AMEFASIA CASE
(Pages 96-144)

The Amerasia Case is covered in the report made available by the Tydings Committee beginning on page 96 and ending on page 144.

A review has been made of these pages for any items which are critical of the Bureau, any inaccuracies as to the facts of the case as they are known to the Bureau, and for any other matters which are of interest to the Bureau. The following have been noted:

Page 101

Mr. McInerney's testimony under footnote #324 shows that the Bureau took over the investigation on a twenty-four hour basis beginning March 12, 1945. This statement is inaccurate because the Bureau did not receive the case until March 14, 1945, and the investigation was commenced on the following day, March 15, 1945.

This part of the report covers the Bureau's answers to questions asked by Senator Tydings in connection with this case.

"QUESTION: Were any employees of the State Department seen giving documents to other persons on the outside?

"ANSWER: While actual physical delivery of documents was not observed, the fact remains that hundreds of classified documents were recovered from unauthorized persons on June 6, 1945. Larsen and Service were observed in frequent contact with Jaffe and Roth. Service also met with Mark Gayn and has stayed in his New York apartment. Both Larsen and Service have admitted giving documents to Jaffe. Larsen and Service were also observed carrying envelopes or a zipper case out of the State Department. As a further illustration of the operations of this group, Service met with Jaffe in a hotel room on May 8, 1945. Service discussed military, political, and policy matters with Jaffe and cautioned him by saying: 'Well, what I said about the military plans is, of course, very secret.'"

It is noted that the answer to the above question is the same as the answer to question #5 contained in the statement furnished to the Tydings Committee by Messrs. Nichols and Ladd on May 31, 1950; however, the following was omitted "(as we are advised by departmental attorneys.)"

- Tolson _____
- Ladd _____
- Clegg _____

It is also noted that footnote #326 on page 103 states that the statement attributed to Service was not available to the Department of Justice for utilization before the Grand Jury inasmuch as the report concerning the conversation between Jaffe and Service was received by the Department of Justice with the following information caveat from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, "Most of the foregoing information regarding the contacts made by the various principals and documents which were exchanged were obtained through highly confidential means and sources of information which cannot be used in evidence."

The report covering the conversation between Service and Jaffe at the Statler Hotel on May 8, 1945 (report of Special Agent Logan J. Lane, Washington Field Office, dated 5-26-45), did not contain any statement as set forth above; however, Bureau letter to Mr. Tom Clark of the Department, dated May 29, 1945, which outlined the facts in this case as of that date, did contain such a statement verbatim on page 8, paragraph 2, under the heading "Evidence." (100-267360-237, 260 p. 8)

*****

Mr. McInerney, according to his testimony as shown in footnote #331, page 103, stated as follows:

"When the case came to me on May the 29th, I was aware, of course, of its inception and the nature of the manner in which it started, and as we had done in other cases during the wartime, we authorized prosecution even though we knew that the evidence was tattered, and we authorized prosecution because the Bureau had been very successful in obtaining concessions and admissions which obviated the necessity of having to tender this evidence or offer it in court, and those were the two conclusions I came to on May the 29th, or three conclusions.

"One, that the case was vulnerable because of its inception on the part of OSS; Two, that in evaluating the legal evidence, which largely consisted of physical surveillance only, that we did not then have sufficient evidence to authorize prosecution.

"The third conclusion was that since the Bureau has obtained concessions and admissions in over 80 per cent of its cases, that with the usual break in the prosecution here, we would get incriminating admissions and concessions which would obviate a trial, and show the need for presenting or tendering this evidence....."

The report then goes on to state that Mr. McInerney in explaining his authorization of prosecution stated that he did so "since our experience has already been that we can make a case on an apprehension and search." The report further states that it appears, therefore, that, while realizing insufficient legal evidence was at hand, Mr. McInerney authorized prosecution on the theory that a search conducted incident to the arrest of the six subjects would produce the required evidence, taken with the possibility of securing confessions following the arrests. The report also says that Mr. McInerney authorized prosecution despite his feeling that the case might be vulnerable and the evidence developed also would be held inadmissible in a Court proceeding by reason of the investigative techniques that had been employed by OSS and FBI.

Mr. McInerney testified that as early as June 27, 1945 "We were being inundated with threatened motions to suppress the evidence, bills of particulars and return of the property, etc."

This is the first knowledge the Bureau has received that any of the attorneys for the subjects had considered filing a motion to suppress the evidence at a date as early as June 27, 1945. It will be recalled that Larsen filed such a motion on September 28, 1945.

*****

The committee report states the Department did not prosecute Jaffe, Larsen and Roth after the other three subjects had been no billed by the Grand Jury for the following three reasons:

1. Larsen filed a motion to suppress the evidence on September 28, 1945 claiming the FBI had entered his apartment illegally prior to the date of his arrest.
2. The Department had the belief that Jaffe's attorney might file a similar motion as to the Amerasia Offices, thereby destroying the evidence against Jaffe and the other subjects. Having this belief, the Department decided to enter into an immediate agreement with Jaffe's attorney to plead him guilty on September 29, 1945, before Jaffe's attorney had a chance to change his mind.

3. The Department attorneys had interviewed Larsen and Jaffe and neither of them offered any information to strengthen the case against Roth and, therefore, the Department entered a nolle proesse as to Roth.

The report stated as follows:

"On September 28, 1945 the Criminal Division was informed that Larsen's attorney was about to file a demurrer, motion to quash the indictment and an application to suppress the evidence obtained from the search of Larsen's apartment."

"Representatives of the Criminal Division conferred with FBI officials on the morning of September 28, 1945, and it was generally agreed that the case was in serious jeopardy. A number of suggestions were made and discarded."

The above statement as to a conference between representatives of the Criminal Division and FBI officials on the morning of September 28, 1945, is false. The statement as made here would lead one to believe that the Bureau and Departmental Representatives had conferred as to what steps should be taken with respect to Larsen's motion. However, if any conferring was done and suggestions made, the Bureau had no part. The true facts are as follows:

By memorandum dated September 26, 1945 the Bureau notified the Attorney General that Mr. E. R. Sager, Manager of Larsen's apartment told an Agent of the Washington Field Office on September 25, 1945 that he had admitted to Larsen on the previous date that he had afforded Agents of the FBI access to Larsen's apartment. This information was furnished to the Attorney General with the suggestion that if a Departmental Representative would talk to Sager, that Sager would be instructed to call at the Department of Justice. No further action was taken by the Bureau at that time.

conferences were held with the attorneys for Larsen and Roth in an effort to obtain pleas of guilty but without success. Larsen's attorney at first took the position he would not consider a plea until his motion to suppress was decided.

"The time for filing the Government's response to the motion to suppress was deferred. In response to the motion, the Government would have been obliged to admit the illegality of the search and seizure. However, the necessity for making this admission was averted when Larsen's counsel finally offered to plead his client nolo contendere if he could receive some assurance that only a moderate fine would be imposed. He pointed out that Larsen had been imposed upon by Jaffe, that he had lost his Government position which he had held for 10 years, that he was unemployed and penniless, and that he had a wife and family dependent upon him.

"The Government was aware of these facts and finally agreed, if consulted by the Court to recommend a fine of $500. This position was taken largely because of the above factors and also because we realized that Jaffe was the main culprit, that he had corrupted Larsen and was responsible for his plight, and that it would be manifestly unjust for Larsen to receive a sentence greater or even equal to that imposed upon Jaffe. Larsen entered a plea of nolo contendere on November 2, 1945 and was fined $500, as recommended by the Government."

Disposition of Case Against Roth

The report stated, "Only the case against Roth now remained. This case was very weak and depended on several pages of handwriting and typewriting (identified as Roth's) of what appeared to be official documents. On September 27, 1945, Roth had filed a demurrer attacking the indictment and a motion for a bill of particulars. Argument on these motions had been postponed from time to time.

"At the time the Department offered to accept pleas of guilty from Jaffe and Larsen the Government's attorneys informed their counsel that Jaffe and Larsen would be examined by the Government counsel in an attempt to try to strengthen the case against Roth. This was done and both men were interviewed in November and December, 1945.

"Larsen, interviewed with respect to Roth's complicity, was unable to make any contribution except that Roth arranged the introduction between him and Jaffe early in 1944 while both he and Roth were employed by OEL. He could not implicate Roth in the conspiracy and as a matter of fact his statement tended to exculpate Roth, a result for which he had no known motive. After relating the facts as to how he was introduced to Jaffe and Roth in March, 1944, Larson stated that at no time did Roth and he ever discuss Larsen's transactions with Jaffe, nor did he and Jaffe discuss them in the presence of Roth. Larsen stated that he had no facts whatsoever that would indicate that Roth knew that he, Larsen, was supplying documents to Jaffe. Larsen said that Roth never saw him give Jaffe any material nor saw Jaffe give any material to him (Larsen). Larsen further stated that he never saw Roth deliver anything to Jaffe, and that Jaffe never told him that he, Jaffe, was getting any material from Roth; nor did Roth ever tell Larsen that he, Roth, was giving any material to Jaffe. Larsen did mention one incident which occurred early in 1945. He said that he saw Roth leave the Navy Department, with a large envelope filled with something; that Roth stated he was having lunch with Jaffe and that on the return of Roth he had nothing in his hand. Larsen asserted that whether Roth gave the contents of the envelope to Jaffe or what was in the envelope he, Larsen, does not know. Later Larsen corrected the date of this incident and said that it must have been late in 1944 rather than in 1945.

"Jaffe, a long-time friend and associate of Roth completely absolved Roth of any knowledge or participation in the matter and explained how Roth happened to copy several documents for him. This the Department expected since it was not naive enough to expect Jaffe to implicate Roth.

"While the physical surveillances showed meetings between Roth and some of the others, he was never observed transmitting or receiving Government documents. Several of these meetings were of a social nature. There was no evidence that Roth unlawfully removed any Government documents. Moreover, since the defendants were charged with conspiring to embezzle and remove Government documents, essential elements of the offense were the entering of each defendant into the agreement to commit those unlawful objects of the conspiracy, with knowledge of the existence thereof and intent to further its purposes in some manner. The prosecution would have had to prove those essential elements to secure convictions. As regards Roth, there was no proof that he entered into such an agreement with others, or that he had the knowledge and criminal intent to make a person a member of a conspiracy.

"In view of the state of the evidence above outlined, the decision was reached that the case against Roth could not be successfully prosecuted. After several postponements of hearings on motions brought by Roth's attorneys, and after an unsuccessful effort was made to place it on the pending inactive docket, the Government was forced to nolle prosequere the case against him on February 15, 1946."

Commendatory Statement Concerning FBI's Action in This Case.

On Page 133 the following paragraph appears in the Report:

"This report is not intended to qualify the seriousness or gravity of this case. The FBI's prompt and vigorous action in face of a situation already tainted with illegality was of inestimable service to this country. This report only deals with the difficulties of successful prosecution and the bases for the decisions made."

Summation by the Committee

The Committee summarized its investigation of the Amerasia Case in the following five points as set out hereafter:

"1. It has been asserted that an effort was made to delay the investigation. The FBI has denied that there was any delay whatever in its investigation and that no efforts were made to "fix" the case insofar as the FBI is concerned.

"2. Similarly, charges have been made that efforts were made to delay prosecution. These charges now appear to have stemmed from advice given the FBI on May 31, 1945, by the Department of Justice that prosecution should be held in abeyance pending the outcome of the United Nations Conference at San Francisco. This fact has precipitated a floodtide of speculation and unwarranted innuendos, culminating in the question of whether Alger Hiss' hand may have been in the picture. It is now crystal clear that the advice received by the FBI to hold the prosecution in abeyance originated in a desire of the late Mr. James Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, that the full implications of the proposed arrests in the Amerasia case be conveyed to the President in consideration of the delicate character of our conversation with the Soviet Union at the time and the treatment which the press would accord the case by reason of the Communist connections of some of the subjects. Upon learning of the matter, the President on June 2, 1945, personally ordered the FBI to proceed at once with the case and not to be deterred by instructions from anyone. The State Department was equally insistent upon prosecuting the case to the fullest. The facts clearly reveal there was no "delay" in handling the case in any real or substantial sense.

3. It has been asserted that the Department of Justice failed to prosecute the case to the fullest and compromised it to the prejudice of the ends of justice. The officials directly responsible for prosecuting the case have testified under oath that they had absolutely a free rein in handling the case at all stages of the prosecution and were under no compulsion or restraint from any source whatever. There is not even a shred of evidence before us suggesting the contrary. It appears that the case was handled to the very best of their ability in the light of the legal and factual problems confronting them and their understanding of the law. Certainly common sense and fairness entitle Federal officials to the assumption that they have conscientiously done their duty, at least until facts to the contrary, not here present, are shown. The fact that some of the defendants did not receive the punishment which we today feel they deserved or which we would like to have seen them receive is the result of certain incidents of the case which have been heretofore discussed and not the result of dereliction on the part of the prosecuting officials. Under all of the circumstances of the case, we are constrained to suggest that the Department was fortunate in securing the punishment that was meted out.

4. One of the most snide and disgusting charges in this case has been the suggestion that the handling of the Amerasia prosecution by Mr. Robert M. Hitchcock may have had a relationship to his subsequently becoming associated with a Buffalo, N. Y., law firm in which an uncle of one of the Amerasia defendants, Kate Mitchell, was a partner. There is absolutely no basis whatever for such a suggestion. The facts are that, many months after the Amerasia case was disposed of, Mr. Hitchcock was approached for the first time by a member of the law firm with a view to his becoming an associate thereof to handle a special field of litigation for which he was peculiarly well equipped by reason of his trial experience. Significantly, this member of the firm had no knowledge of the relationship between his partner and Miss Mitchell.

5. There have also been allegations that the appearance of Philip Jacob Jaffe for sentencing on Saturday morning, September 29, 1945, was an unusual and unprecedented procedure, with the inference that something improper was involved. The persons who lend themselves to such a vicious fabrication do a grave injustice to the presiding judge, the Honorable James M. Proctor, in implying that he would permit any improper procedure.

"The fact of the matter is that in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, a judge is always assigned to duty on Saturday mornings. This judge is available for emergency cases and will also, at his discretion, handle brief matters for the convenience of counsel. It is not at all unusual for a case to be heard on Saturday morning if the plea is changed from "not guilty" to "guilty" and a speedy disposition is desired by all parties. Moreover, it is customary for counsel to determine in advance that the judge is free and set a time to appear. Therefore, the Jaffe case was handled in the same routine manner as many other cases.

" There has also been criticism of the fact that the judge was not advised of the "Communist connections" of Philip Jacob Jaffe. Such a criticism is the direct result of a misunderstanding of the case. It must be remembered that Jaffe was charged with conspiracy to obtain unlawfully Government documents. The Government had no evidence of the transmission of these documents by Jaffe to others. The only conceivable purpose justifying the use of information about Jaffe's Communist connections would be on a theory that it would indicate the possibility of a transmission of the information to the Soviet Union. To submit such allegations would in effect be an attempt to show that espionage had been committed when a lesser crime was charged and pleaded to, despite the fact that no evidence was available to support a charge of espionage.

" The Government attorneys handling the case were convinced that, unless they obtained a plea immediately, no conviction whatever of Jaffe could ever be obtained. They had first received word on Friday, September 28, 1945, that Larsen planned to file a motion to quash. They believed that once Jaffe learned of the unauthorized entries into Larsen's apartment, he would immediately follow the same procedure. Since illegal entries had been made in the Amerasia offices also, they were convinced that legally such a motion would be granted and the entire case lost. Therefore, only one alternative remained. They communicated, as heretofore discussed, with Jaffe's attorney and entered into a binding agreement to accept a plea of guilty in return for a Government recommendation of a substantial fine as the punishment, this agreement being made before Jaffe's attorney could learn of the news about Larsen's motion to quash.

" The Government also considered it necessary to have the plea formally entered as soon as possible in order to eliminate any possibility that Jaffe's attorney would back out on his commitment. In addition, Jaffe desired that the case be settled immediately. Once the Government attorneys were before the Court with an agreement to recommend a fine, it was manifestly impossible for them to argue that the offense was so heinous, because of the subject's alleged Communist connections, that a greater sentence should be imposed. If they attempted to do this, it would obviously release Jaffe from his commitment and he would be free to withdraw his plea and file his own motion to quash.

" A further consideration bearing on this question is that the Government in 1945 did not have proof that Jaffe was a member of the Communist Party. The most they had was that Jaffe had some Communist connections, which were not per se illegal or reprehensible, especially in 1945 when the Soviet Union, at least for all practical purposes of public moment, was an ally and friend of the United States. The allegations of Communist connections would not have been legally admissible evidence and thus had no probative significance.

"The matter of Jaffe's plea, therefore, resolves itself into a question of legal judgment and tactics. If the Department of Justice attorneys were correct in their conclusion that the evidence was legally inadmissible and that any delay in acting would allow Jaffe to escape without punishment, they were obviously right in their action. If, on the other hand, they made an error in legal judgment, their procedure was wrong. Since they choose the former, it follows that once committed to this course, they could not present the allegations of Jaffe's Communist connections, assuming they should have done so, without defeating their own objective. Therefore, any criticism of the handling of the case before the Court is solely a question of the validity of the judgment of the Department of Justice attorneys. We do not feel it incumbent upon us to attempt to resolve this legal question, since we find that the Jaffe case was presented to the Court with the sole intention of furthering the best interests of the United States as the attorneys handling the matter in their best judgment and honest belief appraised the situation."

Testimony of Messrs. Ladd and Nichols

The testimony of Assistant to the Director D. M. Ladd and Assistant Director L. B. Nichols, furnished to the subcommittee on May 31, 1950, is not set out in the report in its entirety. However, from time to time, excerpts of their testimony are mentioned in footnotes. It is further noted that in Appendix I, which is a statement concerning the investigation by the subcommittee, under 10 (c), it is stated that one of the matters gone into by the subcommittee was the interrogation of Associate Director D. M. Ladd and Assistant Director L. B. Nichols of the FBI concerning the investigation of the Amerasia case. It is stated that these gentlemen advised they were in a position to supply the full story of the case from the FBI's standpoint and that their testimony before the Subcommittee, along with the Hobbs Committee record, constituted the complete story. THE SOURCES OF THE CHARGES
(Pages 144-148)

The Committee reported that after an extensive investigation it felt in a position to indicate the primary sources of the charges which have been made in this case.

Charge of Large Number of Communists in the State Department

The Committee stated that investigators of the House subcommittee, considering the State Department appropriation during the Eightieth Congress, prepared memoranda concerning 108 individuals based on information contained in State Department security files. These memoranda, continued the report, did not represent or purport to be a full analysis of the files involved and in some instances related to applicants never employed and to cases of mistaken identity; four committees of the Eightieth Congress did not regard the memoranda as significant or indicative of disloyalty in the State Department and they did not even submit a report concerning them.

Selections from these 108 memoranda, dressed up to appear more sinister and alarming, it was charged, were used by Senator McCarthy as the basis for his February 20, 1950, speech on the Senate floor which precipitated the investigation and which were presented as information only recently given him covertly by "loyal" employees in the State Department.

Charge That Communists and Other Disloyal Forces in the State Department Sabotaged American China Policy

Three well-defined sources were said by the Committee to have been responsible for the charge that disloyal individuals have been responsible for the "failure of America's China policy." These were listed as perversion of the testimony of Patrick J. Hurley, former Ambassador to China, before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in December, 1945; Alfred Kohlberg, New York City importer; and an article purportedly written by Emmanuel S. Larsen, one of the defendants in the Amerasia case, for the October, 1946, issue of Plain Talk. Larsen repudiated the latter article in all essential respects, submitting to the Committee his draft—which bore "little or no resemblance to the articles which was published." The action attributed to Isaac Don Levine, editor of Plain Talk, and his associates in connection with the article was condemned by the Committee as beneath contempt.

THE FACTS BEHIND THE CHARGE OF "WHITEWASH"
(Pages 149-151)

The Committee bitterly assails the charge that it had "whitewashed" the investigation into McCarthy's allegations concerning Communists in the Government, stating that such charges were an "organized campaign of vilification and abuse." The report then gives an analysis of the campaign, stating that the factors responsible for such a campaign were:

1. The necessity of creating the impression that the inquiry was not thorough and sincere in order to camouflage the fact that the charges made by Senator McCarthy were false and that the Senate and the American people had been deceived. The report states that from the beginning, Senator McCarthy had sought to leave the impression that the Committee was investigating him, instead of the "Disloyalty in the State Department," because it is now known that he had no facts to support his "wild and baseless charges," and lived in mortal fear that this situation would be exposed.

2. An effort to force upon the Committee the adoption of unfair methods and procedures which would permit the "conviction" of individuals on the basis of unwarranted considerations. The report stated that the Committee had tried to apply the principles of fair play, and when a charge against an individual was publicly made, to give that person a chance to make a public reply. The report claims that an attempt was made to force upon the Committee the "rankest sort of hearsay testimony, and then when such testimony was not allowed, cries of "whitewash" were heightened.

3. A third factor in the campaign to create the "whitewash" idea was the desire to leave the thought that the Committee was engaged in a cover-up of something dark and sinister in the administration. The report states that this tactic was a political maneuver designed to obfuscate the fact that the proponents of the charge of disloyalty in the State Department were without facts, and was thwarted when the President opened the loyalty files to the Committee.

4. The fourth factor in the "whitewash" campaign was the fact that a prominent newspaper chain (unnamed) was being sued for libel by one of the defendants in the Amerasia case with the result that, by seeking to force procedures and findings of a certain character, it was felt the suit would be unsuccessful.

The Committee's report states that the campaign of vilification and "whitewash" had been partially successful due to the following considerations:

1. The fact that until now the Committee has not been in a position to tell the truth (about the "whitewash" charges) to the American people.
2. "Another consideration is the oft-repeated and natural reaction of many good people that goes something like this - 'Well, there must be something to the charges, or a United States Senator would never have made them.'"
3. The third consideration has been the readiness of many people to believe charges of disloyalty in the State Department by reason of the Alger Hiss case.
4. The fourth and final consideration has been the vague uneasiness of many Americans concerning the ascendancy of the Communists in China and the decline of the Nationalist Government. The Committee feels that such a setting makes a fertile ground for the people to believe that someone, perhaps in our own State Department, may have been responsible for this situation. The Committee recommends the State Department "White Paper" to anyone desiring to know the real facts concerning American diplomacy in China during 1944-1949.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS

The report states that in concluding the report of its investigation, it was constrained to make several observations which were regarded as fundamental. The first was that "It is, of course, clearly apparent that the charges of Communist infiltration of and influence upon the State Department are false." The Committee states that "we have seen the technique of the 'Big Lie,' employed by the totalitarian dictators with devastating success, utilized for the first time on a sustained basis in our history." The Committee states that it is its sincere opinion that the charges of the character made in this case seriously impair the efforts of the agencies of the Government in combatting the problem of subversion. The report states that the charges made by McCarthy had succeeded to a great degree in doing what the Communists themselves had been trying and were unable to do - divide our people here at home and our allies abroad.

"We have seen how, through repetition and shifting untruths," states the report, "it is possible to delude great numbers of people." It was noted that an analysis of this technique was contained in Appendix 24, a review of which follows.

ANALYSIS OF THE CHARGES MADE BY SENATOR
JOSEPH R. McCARTHY
(Appendix 24, Pages 296-337)

The Committee notes that on February 9, 1950, Senator McCarthy opened a campaign against the Department of State which of its kind was perhaps the most sensational in the history of the United States. "Unparalleled in cynical character assassination," reports the Committee, "ranging in its application from the President of the United States to minor Washington clerks, professionally and expertly keyed to lurid sensationalism, viciously unscrupulous in falsely heightening the fears of the public in a time of international crisis, versatile, opportunistic, and, at times, desperate, Senator McCarthy gave birth to and steadily nurtured a phenomenon designated, by common consent, as 'McCarthyism'".

Appendix 24 is a Memorandum analyzing Senator McCarthy's charges in four parts: 1. The McCarthy Charges in General. 2. The McCarthy Techniques and Methods. 3. The Effects of McCarthyism. 4. The Contradictions and Conflicts in the McCarthy Charges.

1. The McCarthy Charges in General

Various charges made by Senator McCarthy commencing with his speech at Wheeling, West Virginia, on February 9, 1950, are recounted, followed by the Committee's comments regarding refutation of such charges. It is noted that in a speech at Chicago on May 6, 1950, Senator McCarthy included an alleged statement by J. Edgar Hoover that the Amerasia case "is a 100-percent airtight case of espionage." The Department of Justice denied, adds the Committee, that Mr. Hoover ever made such a statement. Before the Senate on June 6, 1950, Senator McCarthy charged that the FBI had sent to the State Department a chart listing "agents," "Communists," "sympathizers" and "suspects," according to the report, which adds that no such chart had been prepared by the FBI but had been compiled by the State Department on May 15, 1946.

2. The McCarthy Techniques and Methods

Under this heading the Committee describes Senator McCarthy's most important and shocking technique as the sweeping accusation unwarranted by evidence. Listed thereafter are the multiple untruth, manufactured evidence, repetition, deliberate perpetuation of confusion, headline production and the "Yahoo" (anti-intellectual) appeal. The Committee sets forth considerable information in support of these appellations.

3. The Effects of McCarthyism

The effects of any given technique, reports the Committee, may not in itself be serious and even the use of a number of them—with some restraint—may be considered a normal phenomenon in the world of practical affairs. When, however, these techniques are used by a United States Senator under the circumstances of world crisis, and for the purpose of attacking the spokesman for the United States in the field of foreign affairs, the effects can be expected to be extremely serious. The Committee then declares Senator McCarthy's methods and techniques have undoubtedly confused our friends and heartened our enemies; diverted the energies of the public and public officials; undermined the procedures of the U. S. Senate and democracy by fraudulent inducement of appointment of a special investigating committee; demoralized public servants; and deprived individuals of legal redress by making unwarranted charges under cover of Congressional immunity.

4. Contradictions and Conflicts in the McCarthy Charges

Under this caption the Committee lists a large number of charges by Senator McCarthy and points out what it terms contradictions and conflicts.

This volume contains a discussion of the procedure to be followed before the Committee and also contains the testimony of Louis Budenz concerning Owen Lattimore, pages 112 - 145.

Volume 14 dated 4-25-50 (P. M.)

This volume contains a continuation of the testimony of Louis Budenz concerning Owen Lattimore. In his testimony Budenz also mentions such people as Ella Winter, Joseph Barnes, Victor Yakhonteff, Harriet L. Moore, Gunther Stein, Haldore Hanson, Philip C. Jessup and others.

Volume 15 dated 4-27-50.

This volume contains the testimony of Earl Russell Browder, pages 1335 - 1430. All of this testimony principally concerns Owen Lattimore. A number of other individuals of interest to the Bureau are also mentioned.

Volume 16 dated 4-28-50.

This volume contains the testimony of Frederick Vanderbilt Field, pages 1431 - 1495.

Volume 17 dated 5-1-50.

This volume contains the testimony of the following individuals concerning Owen Lattimore:

Freda Utley, pages 1497 - 1646

Demaree Bess, pages 1647 - 1651.

Volume 18 dated 5-2-50.

This volume contains the testimony of Dr. Owen Lattimore, pages 1652 - 1837.

Volume 19 dated 5-3-50.

This volume contains a continuation of the testimony of Owen Lattimore, pages 1839 - 1948.

Volume 20 dated 5-4-50 (A.M.)

This volume contains the testimony of Frank Brooks Beilaski concerning the Amerasia case, pages 257 - 317.

OBSERVATIONS

The above table of contents is set forth as the result of a quick scanning of the transcripts presently in the possession of the Bureau. In keeping with the Director's instructions that, "As soon as copy (of the transcript) is obtained, we should go over it carefully for leads and information.", these volumes are currently being reviewed thoroughly for any information or leads that may be developed in connection with the case entitled "Owen Lattimore, Espionage - R," (Bureau file 100-24628). Incidental to that review, photostatic copies of pertinent portions concerning Lattimore will be prepared for transmittal to the Baltimore Office.

RECOMMENDATION:

It is suggested that copies of this preliminary memorandum be forwarded to the Internal Security and Loyalty Sections for their information and that a copy also be forwarded to Special Agent [redacted] who is charged with the supervision of the Amerasia case. Temporarily, these documents will be retained in a filing cabinet labeled as is this memorandum (key number Z-600 in Room 7614), the office of Special Agent [redacted] where they will be immediately available to Bureau personnel having an interest in their content.

PURPOSE

To submit for your information the results of a review of the proposed "Findings and Conclusions" of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee concerning information appearing therein which directly relates to the FBI or FBI personnel, and to also highlight pertinent comments of the Subcommittee.

BACKGROUND

At 4:50 PM on July 10, 1950, a copy of the proposed "Findings and Conclusions" of the Subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was made available to the Bureau on a highly confidential basis, it being stipulated that no copies should be made nor any notations made thereon.

These proposed findings and conclusions have been reviewed for information which directly relates to the FBI or FBI personnel, special emphasis being placed on such information as reflects adversely on the Bureau. No attempt has been made to compare the conclusions set forth with the facts as contained in Bureau files and other than those which directly concern the Bureau, no attempt has been made to establish the accuracy or inaccuracy of statements appearing therein.

Generally, throughout the report of the findings and conclusions of the Subcommittee, references made to the FBI or FBI personnel are commendatory. The findings and conclusions of the Subcommittee are generally favorable to the individuals charged by Senator McCarthy, and no recommendations for dismissal are made.

ACTION

The attached memorandum is submitted for your information.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED
HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED
EXCEPT WHERE SHOWN
OTHERWISE

The "Findings and Conclusions" of the subcommittee contain a condemnation of Senator Joseph McCarthy. Therein are quoted statements Senator McCarthy is reported to have made as to the number of Communists in the State Department, and a statement is made that there is not one member of the Communist Party or of a "spy ring" employed in the State Department known to the Secretary of State or other responsible officials of the Department. The report accuses Senator McCarthy of misrepresentation of fact and of misleading and deceiving the Senate, as well as of failure to cooperate with the subcommittee.

In their "Findings and Conclusions," the subcommittee reports that their review of the loyalty files concerning the "81" individuals charged by Senator McCarthy revealed that they did not contain truth to support these charges. The subcommittee reported that their investigation revealed that the Loyalty Program is of indispensable value and was being efficiently administered. In this connection, they found (page 7) "That the FBI's loyalty investigations are comprehensive and conclusive with respect to the facts."

The committee then announced their conclusions with respect to individuals publicly charged by Senator McCarthy. Inasmuch as these conclusions are specifically set forth in the subcommittee's report, which is being made the subject of a separate memorandum in this matter of even date herewith, they are not being repeated herein.

In connection with the conclusion that Haldore Hanson was not to be considered disloyal, or a man with proclivities on a mission to Communize the world, among other things, the conclusion was stated that the only testimony before the Committee indicating Hanson may have had any Communist convictions, is that of Louis Budenz, which leaves the Committee "to a degree, in wonderment;" that in the face of the results of the FBI investigation and the Loyalty Board's review of the Hanson case, and in consideration of the evidence before the Committee, the Committee could not accept Mr. Budenz' testimony as controlling.

With reference to Dorothy Kenyon, the conclusion was that the evidence before the Subcommittee failed to establish Kenyon as a Communist or an otherwise disloyal person. It was pointed out that it is apparent Kenyon was less than judicious in joining certain organizations during the late 30's and early 40's, but that significantly though her name has been associated in one manner or another with 20 different cited organizations, she was found to be connected on but one occasion with an organization after it was cited as subversive. The report further concludes that many of the alleged associations were denied or explained and in other cases, "she had a great deal of distinguished company."

The Committee further related that "where used for the purpose of attaching a stigma of disloyalty upon an individual, membership in Communist-front organizations assumes significance in direct proportion to the knowledge of the nature of the organization, the character and the extent of the participation therein, and the number of affiliations, after knowledge."

In connection with their conclusions concerning Owen Lattimore, the subcommittee reported (page 15) that they had found "no evidence to support the charge that Owen Lattimore is the 'top Russian spy' or, for that matter, any other sort of spy.....We have every confidence that were Mr. Lattimore an espionage agent the efficient FBI would long since have taken action against him. The fact that it has not done so and the further fact that we have seen a summary of the FBI's information concerning Mr. Lattimore confirms our opinion in this respect."

These latter conclusions, in so far as they concern the FBI, are, of course, unwarranted. It is not within the province of the FBI to institute prosecutive action against a subject of investigation, nor can the FBI summary of March 22, 1950 (since supplemented by additional investigation) be properly construed as a clearance of Lattimore in connection with the charges made against him.

The subcommittee reported (pages 15 and 16) that "Owen Lattimore is a writer and a scholar who has been charged with a record of pro-Communism going back many years. There is no legal evidence before us whatever to support this charge.....we are impelled to comment that in no instance has Mr. Lattimore on the evidence before us been shown to have knowingly associated with Communists."

In this connection, it is true that the FBI summary of March 22, 1950, containing information concerning Owen Lattimore which was displayed to members of the subcommittee, does not in itself constitute "legal evidence" of the information therein contained.

The committee makes the comment (page 17) that "We believe that the Lattimore case vividly illustrates...the imperative necessity that inquiries relating to matters of such character, where deemed relevant to our national security, should be handled by the duly constituted agencies of our government that are equipped to handle such matters by intelligent and proven methods designed to obtain the truth without injustice, character assassination, and a prostitution of the American concept of fair play."

Concerning the conclusions reached regarding John Stewart Service, the Subcommittee stated that after carefully considering the evidence, it concluded that Service is neither a disloyal person, a pro-Communist, nor a security risk. The Subcommittee indicated it was impressed with Service's frankness and cooperativeness; the fact that he appeared before the Grand Jury in August of 1945 where, by unanimous vote, he was not indicted; and the fact that he has been subjected to almost continuous scrutiny during the last five years, being cleared four times by either the State Department personnel board or the State Department Security and Loyalty Board. It is of interest to note the comment regarding "an accepted practice" for State Department officers to impart classified information to writers in order to give them background information for their articles. The Subcommittee stated that both Mark Gayn and Philip Jaffe were considered reputable newsmen and writers by the public in the Spring of 1945, and because of the limited number of writers specializing on China, it was natural that Service would expect experts in that field, like Gayn and Jaffe to show a greater interest in his material by the average writer. The Subcommittee concluded that "Service was extremely indiscreet in his dealings with Gayn and Jaffe, a fact which he readily admits; that perhaps the State Department's administration process was at fault in failing to brief its employees coming into Washington on short consultations on how they should treat the press during their stay; but that the Committee could not and would not conclude that his indiscretions in the Amerasia matter is sufficient to brand an otherwise competent and loyal employee of seventeen years service as disloyal, pro-Communist or a security risk.

AMERASIA CASE

The subcommittee in its findings and conclusions concerning this case made certain commendatory statements regarding the Bureau as follows:

o "(B) We find that, after the case was referred to it, the FBI conducted the investigation with dispatch and thoroughness and developed the identities of all individuals involved as could be revealed by an exhaustive investigation extending over a three-months period; that the FBI utilized techniques and methods in its investigation which the exigencies of the situation appeared to require, bearing in mind its dual and somewhat incompatible (under existing law) responsibility for counter-espionage in wartime on the one hand and the development of legally admissible evidence on the other. The FBI discharged its responsibility with an efficiency and thoroughness in keeping with the best traditions of that agency."

Despite the fact that such credit was given to the Bureau by the subcommittee, it is suggested that the words "and somewhat incompatible (under existing law)" be deleted from the above paragraph.

"(C) We find that all responsible officials were properly concerned relative to the serious implications of the Amerasia case, as it could be gauged at the outset, and that the President of the United States personally called an FBI official, instructing that the case should be handled with all possible dispatch."

"(H) We find that three bodies have now investigated the Amerasia case-- (1) a committee of the House of Representatives in 1946, (2) a special Grand Jury in New York City in 1950, and (3) this subcommittee--and that each inquiry has established that the case was not improperly handled either by the FBI in the investigation or the Department of Justice in the prosecution."

Regarding the general charges of disloyalty in the State Department, the Committee stated it found that the sources were essentially: (1) material developed by investigators of a House Committee in 1947 from loyalty files, which material was considered by four separate committees of the Republican-controlled 80th Congress and was not regarded as justifying a report concerning the matter. (2) Information from a letter dated July 26, 1946, of Secretary James F. Byrnes giving a contemporaneous report concerning the screening and weeding out of questionable individuals transferred to the State Department from emergency wartime agencies. (3) A perversion of the testimony of General Patrick J. Hurley before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in December, 1945. (4) Alfred Kohlberg, New York importer and financial backer, "Plain Talk" magazine. (5) An article concerning the Amerasia case appearing in the October, 1946 edition of "Plain Talk" magazine, indicated to have been written by Emmanuel S. Larsen and subsequently repudiated by him.

In the list of conclusions, a statement is included regarding the Committee having been subjected to an organized campaign of unwarranted and unfair villification, which included repeated charges that the Committee was attempting to "whitewash" the State and Justice Departments.

In the conclusions set forth, the statement is made, "We are fully satisfied that the FBI and the security staff of the State Department are eminently qualified to ferret out individuals who may be disloyal in the State Department"; furthermore, that public Congressional inquiries on the question of disloyalty, particularly in view of the fact that the standard for judgment is necessarily highly subjective, tend inevitably to prejudice unfairly and with complete immunity and impunity the reputations, careers, and very livelihood of many innocent people; that the development of facts concerning charges of disloyalty, even where ample evidence exists in the initial instance to indicate its verity, should be done in an efficient, intelligent, and unobstrusive manner by the FBI with its thousands of trained investigators and nation-wide facilities.

In conclusion, the Committee stated that inquiries of the character impressed upon us are justified only where evidence exists that our duly constituted agencies of Government have failed to discharge their duty; that despite irresponsible representations to the contrary, the Committee found that absolutely no such evidence existed as a predicate for its inquiry in that after an intensive investigation, there is still no such evidence. The Committee went on to state that it felt that one of the most reprehensible aspects and unfortunate result of unwarranted charges of the type made in this matter is the actual injury done to the true fight against Communism; that such charges, being unproved and not subject to proof, have the effect of dulling the awareness of our people to the menace of Communism necessarily embarrass and expose the methods and techniques of our intelligence agencies charged with protecting our security, interfere with and compromise their confidential investigations, destroy the effectiveness of confidential informants, and inevitably gives basis for ridicule of those who fight Communism with Truth, the only weapon with which it can be destroyed.

It is of particular interest to note the strong language used in the final conclusion of the Subcommittee, which states:

"At a time when American blood is again being shed to preserve our dream of freedom, we are constrained fearlessly and frankly to call the charges and the methods employed to give them ostensible validity what they truly are:— a fraud and a hoax perpetrated on the Senate of the United States and the American people. They represent perhaps the most nefarious campaign of half-truths and untruth in the history of this Republic. For the first time in our history, we have seen the totalitarian technique of the 'Big Lie' employed on a sustained basis. The result has been to confuse and divide the American people, at a time when they should be strong in their unity, to a degree far beyond the hopes of the Communists themselves whose stock-in-trade is confusion and division. In such a disillusioning setting, we appreciate as never before our bill of rights, a free press, and the heritage of freedom that has made this nation great."

ACTION

The conclusion of the Subcommittee concerning the Amerasia case which referred to the FBI's "dual and somewhat incompatible responsibility" is wholly incorrect. The reference to incompatible responsibility appears to be a gratuitous statement which it is recommended should be deleted from the findings and conclusions.

The report accuses Senator McCarthy of misrepresentation of fact and of misleading and deceiving the Senate, as well as of failure to cooperate with the subcommittee.

In their "Findings and Conclusions," the subcommittee reports that their review of the Loyalty files concerning the "81" individuals charged by Senator McCarthy revealed that they did not contain truth to support these charges. The subcommittee reported that their investigation revealed that the Loyalty Program is of indispensable value and was being efficiently administered. In this connection, they found (page 7) "That the FBI's loyalty investigations are comprehensive and conclusive with respect to the facts."

The committee then announced their conclusions with respect to individuals publicly charged by Senator McCarthy. Inasmuch as these conclusions are specifically set forth in the subcommittee's report, which is being made the subject of a separate memorandum in this matter of even date herewith, they are not being repeated herein.

In connection with the conclusion that Haldore Hanson was not to be considered disloyal, or a man with proclivities on a mission to Communize the world, among other things, the conclusion was stated that the only testimony before the Committee indicating Hanson may have had any Communist convictions, is that of Louis Budenz, which leaves the Committee "to a degree, in wonderment;" that in the face of the results of the FBI investigation and the Loyalty Board's review of the Hanson case, and in consideration of the evidence before the Committee, the Committee could not accept Mr. Budenz' testimony as controlling.

With reference to Dorothy Kenyon, the conclusion was that the evidence before the Subcommittee failed to establish Kenyon as a Communist or an otherwise disloyal person. It was pointed out that it is apparent Kenyon was less than judicious in joining certain organizations during the late 30's and early 40's, but that significantly though her name has been associated in one manner or another with 20 different cited organizations, she was found to be connected on but one occasion with an organization after it was cited as subversive. The report further concludes that many of the alleged associations were denied or explained and in other cases, "she had a great deal of distinguished company."

The Committee further related that "where used for the purpose of attaching a stigma of disloyalty upon an individual, membership in Communist-front organizations assumes significance in direct proportion to the knowledge of the nature of the organization, the character and the extent of the participation therein, and the number of affiliations, after knowledge."

In connection with their conclusions concerning Owen Lattimore, the subcommittee reported (page 15) that they had found "no evidence to support the charge that Owen Lattimore is the 'top Russian spy' or, for that matter, any other sort of spy....We have every confidence that were Mr. Lattimore an espionage agent the efficient FBI would long since have taken action against him. The fact that it has not done so and the further fact that we have seen a summary of the FBI's information concerning Mr. Lattimore confirms our opinion in this respect."

These latter conclusions, in so far as they concern the FBI, are, of course, unwarranted. It is not within the province of the FBI to institute prosecutive action against a subject of investigation, nor can the FBI summary of March 22, 1950 (since supplemented by additional investigation) be properly construed as a clearance of Lattimore in connection with the charges made against him.

The subcommittee reported (pages 15 and 16) that "Owen Lattimore is a writer and a scholar who has been charged with a record of pro-Communism going back many years. There is no legal evidence before us whatever to support this charge.....We are impelled to comment that in no instance has Mr. Lattimore on the evidence before us been shown to have knowingly associated with Communists."

In this connection, it is true that the FBI summary of March 22, 1950, containing information concerning Owen Lattimore which was displayed to members of the subcommittee, does not in itself constitute "legal evidence" of the information therein contained.

The committee makes the comment (page 17) that "We believe that the Lattimore case vividly illustrates....the imperative necessity that inquiries relating to matters of such character, where deemed relevant to our national security, should be handled by the duly constituted agencies of our government that are equipped to handle such matters by intelligent and proven methods designed to obtain the truth without injustice, character assassination, and a prostitution of the American concept of fair play."

Concerning the conclusions reached regarding John Stewart Service, the Subcommittee stated that after carefully considering the evidence, it concluded that Service is neither a disloyal person, a pro-Communist, nor a security risk. The Subcommittee indicated it was impressed with Service's frankness and cooperativeness; the fact that he appeared before the Grand Jury in August of 1945 where, by unanimous vote, he was not indicted; and the fact that he has been subjected to almost continuous scrutiny during the last five years, being cleared four times by either the State Department personnel board or the State Department Security and Loyalty Board. It is of interest to note the comment regarding "an accepted practice" for State Department officers to impart classified information to writers in order to give them background information for their articles. The Subcommittee stated that both Mark Gayn and Philip Jaffe were considered reputable newsmen and writers by the public in the Spring of 1945, and because of the limited number of writers specializing on China, it was natural that Service would expect experts in that field, like Gayn and Jaffe to show a greater interest in his material by the average writer. The Subcommittee concluded that "Service was extremely indiscreet in his dealings with Gayn and Jaffe, a fact which he readily admits; that perhaps the State Department's administration process was at fault in failing to brief its employees coming into Washington on short consultations on how they should treat the press during their stay; but that the Committee could not and would not conclude that his indiscretions in the Amerasia matter is sufficient to brand an otherwise competent and loyal employee of seventeen years service as disloyal, pro-Communist or a security risk.

AMERASIA CASE

The subcommittee in its findings and conclusions concerning this case made certain commendatory statements regarding the Bureau as follows:

"(B) We find that, after the case was referred to it, the FBI conducted the investigation with dispatch and thoroughness and developed the identities of all individuals involved as could be revealed by an exhaustive investigation extending over a three-months period; that the FBI utilized techniques and methods in its investigation which the exigencies of the situation appeared to require, bearing in mind its dual and somewhat incompatible (under existing law) responsibility for counter-espionage in wartime on the one hand and the development of legally admissible evidence on the other. The FBI discharged its responsibility with an efficiency and thoroughness in keeping with the best traditions of that agency."

Despite the fact that such credit was given to the Bureau by the subcommittee, it is suggested that the words "and somewhat incompatible (under existing law)" be deleted from the above paragraph.

"(C) We find that all responsible officials were properly concerned relative to the serious implications of the Amerasia case, as it could be gauged at the outset, and that the President of the United States personally called an FBI official, instructing that the case should be handled with all possible dispatch."

"(H) We find that three bodies have now investigated the Amerasia case-- (1) a committee of the House of Representatives in 1946, (2) a special Grand Jury in New York City in 1950, and (3) this subcommittee--and that each inquiry has established that the case was not improperly handled either by the FBI in the investigation or the Department of Justice in the prosecution."

Regarding the general charges of disloyalty in the State Department, the Committee stated it found that the sources were essentially: (1) material developed by investigators of a House Committee in 1947 from loyalty files, which material was considered by four separate committees of the Republican-controlled 80th Congress and was not regarded as justifying a report concerning the matter. (2) Information from a letter dated July 26, 1946, of Secretary James F. Byrnes giving a contemporaneous report concerning the screening and weeding out of questionable individuals transferred to the State Department from emergency wartime agencies. (3) A perversion of the testimony of General Patrick J. Hurley before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in December, 1945. (4) Alfred Kohlberg, New York importer and financial backer, "Plain Talk" magazine. (5) An article concerning the Amerasia case appearing in the October, 1946 edition of "Plain Talk" magazine, indicated to have been written by Emmanuel S. Larsen and subsequently repudiated by him.

In the list of conclusions, a statement is included regarding the Committee having been subjected to an organized campaign of unwarranted and unfair villification, which included repeated charges that the Committee was attempting to "whitewash" the State and Justice Departments.

In the conclusions set forth, the statement is made, "We are fully satisfied that the FBI and the security staff of the State Department are eminently qualified to ferret out individuals who may be disloyal in the State Department"; furthermore, that public Congressional inquiries on the question of disloyalty, particularly in view of the fact that the standard for judgment is necessarily highly subjective, tend inevitably to prejudice unfairly and with complete immunity and impunity the reputations, careers, and very livelihood of many innocent people; that the development of facts concerning charges of disloyalty, even where ample evidence exists in the initial instance to indicate its verity, should be done in an efficient, intelligent, and unobtrusive manner by the FBI with its thousands of trained investigators and nation-wide facilities.

In conclusion, the Committee stated that inquiries of the character impressed upon us are justified only where evidence exists that our duly constituted agencies of Government have failed to discharge their duty; that despite irresponsible representations to the contrary, the Committee found that absolutely no such evidence existed as a predicate for its inquiry in that after an intensive investigation, there is still no such evidence. The Committee went on to state that it felt that one of the most reprehensible aspects and unfortunate result of unwarranted charges of the type made in this matter is the actual injury done to the true fight against Communism; that such charges, being unproved and not subject to proof, have the effect of dulling the awareness of our people to the menace of Communism necessarily embarrass and expose the methods and techniques of our intelligence agencies charged with protecting our security, interfere with and compromise their confidential investigations, destroy the effectiveness of confidential informants, and inevitably gives basis for ridicule of those who fight Communism with Truth, the only weapon with which it can be destroyed.

It is of particular interest to note the strong language used in the final conclusion of the Subcommittee, which states:

"At a time when American blood is again being shed to preserve our dream of freedom, we are constrained fearlessly and frankly to call the charges and the methods employed to give them ostensible validity what they truly are:- a fraud and a hoax perpetrated on the Senate of the United States and the American people. They represent perhaps the most nefarious campaign of half-truths and untruth in the history of this Republic. For the first time in our history, we have seen the totalitarian technique of the 'Big Lie' employed on a sustained basis. The result has been to confuse and divide the American people, at a time when they should be strong in their unity, to a degree far beyond the hopes of the Communists themselves whose stock-in-trade is confusion and division. In such a disillusioning setting, we appreciate as never before our bill of rights, a free press, and the heritage of freedom that has made this nation great."

ACTION

The conclusion of the Subcommittee concerning the Amerasia case which referred to the FBI's "dual and somewhat incompatible responsibility" is wholly incorrect. The reference to incompatible responsibility appears to be a gratuitous statement which it is recommended should be deleted from the findings and conclusions.

OFFICE MEMORANDUM - UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : Mr. A. H. Belmont

FROM: C. H. Stanley

SUBJECT: LOYALTY OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

DATE: June 30, 1950

ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED
HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED
OTHERWISE

PURPOSE

To comment on a document entitled "Photostats of Excerpts From Chief Investigator's Report of State Department Loyalty Files" found by the New York Office in going through the files of Dr. J. B. Matthews.

BACKGROUND

Dr. J. B. Matthews recently made available to the Bureau certain files maintained by him for examination for information of possible pertinence to the loyalty investigations of Philip Jessup, John Stewart Service, Richard Service and Haldore Hanson and the espionage investigation of Owen C. Lattimore. In connection with this examination the Agents came across a photostatic document entitled "Photostats of Excerpts From Chief Investigator's Report of State Department Loyalty Files." They asked Dr. Matthews where he had obtained it and, although he gave a rather evasive answer, he very readily offered to give the Agents a photostatic copy of the document. Furthermore, he did not seem concerned that this document was in his files nor did he make any effort to conceal its presence there.

An examination of the document in question reveals that it is obviously incomplete. It is labelled "Observations and Findings" and contains paragraphs numbered 8, 9, 10 and 17. From the nature of the document it apparently is the observations and findings of someone who conducted a survey of the security files of the State Department. Generally, the observations and findings indicate that the Security Division of the State Department has no records to clearly show who have or who have not been investigated and who is and who is not presently employed. A comment is made that instances were noted where the Division had pending investigations on applicants although neither D.P. (Domestic Personnel) nor F.P. (Foreign Personnel) had a record indicating they were considering these applicants. The document makes a further comment concerning the distribution of the caseload of Agents conducting investigations for the State Department in the Washington and New York areas and in this connection it is mentioned that a number of alleged Communist Party petition signers had never been checked out and cites as examples cases Nos. 28, 29, 30, 31 and 32. The document in question also refers to the inadequacy of the State Department system of charging out files and the over-all laxness in the handling of documents, citing as examples file jackets for which there were no cases in the files and jackets being out of file without charge-out, papers missing from files obviously belonging there and no charge-out slips to indicate whereabouts of missing papers.

In furnishing a copy of this document to the Bureau by letter dated June 8, 1950, the New York Office pointed out that the cases referred to by number in the document possibly might be identical with the numbers used by Senator McCarthy in connection with his recent allegations concerning the State Department. New York pointed out that the document, although not marked confidential, appeared to contain information which probably was not of the type to be disseminated outside the State Department and the Bureau might desire to confidentially advise the State Department that there are copies outside of that Department.

There is no way, of course, by which we can positively identify this document. However, it is my belief that it is a portion of the report made by former SA Robert E. Lee in connection with the hearings before the Subcommittee of the House Committee on Appropriations on the State Department appropriation bill for 1949. This belief is particularly borne out by the reference to cases Nos. 28, 29, 30, 31 and 32, which are case numbers used in Lee's report. Furthermore, the document in question refers to investigations to be conducted, presumably by State Department investigators, concerning employees who have signed Communist Party petitions and obviously this investigative jurisdiction now lies with the Bureau under Executive Order 9835. This factor further leads to the belief that this is a portion of the Lee report which was, of course, prepared at just about the time the Loyalty Program was getting under way. We, of course, have a copy of the Lee report insofar as it pertains to individuals but we do not have this complete report and it is believed that the document submitted by the New York Office probably is a portion of the summary of his observations and findings concerning the general condition of the State Department files at the time he made a survey of them for the Subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations, House of Representatives. How this material came into the possession of Dr. J. B. Matthews, of course, is unknown.

RECOMMENDATION

Since the document is believed to be a portion of the Lee report, there would appear to be no reason for advising the State Department of the fact that copies are in the possession of individuals outside the Department of State. From the recent allegations of Senator McCarthy, it is quite obvious that other copies of this material are in the possession of individuals outside the Executive Branch of the Government. It is, accordingly, recommended that no further action be taken with respect to this particular matter.

PURPOSE:

To advise you the attached material, found at the Sherman Hotel, Chicago, on August 16, 1950, pertaining to allegations by Senator McCarthy concerning Communists in the State Department, contains no data not previously known to the Bureau; and to recommend that the attached material be returned to Senator McCarthy.

BACKGROUND:

By memorandum dated August 24, 1950, the Chicago Office forwarded to the Bureau seven documents which had been furnished by Mr. George Karpovich, aka George Karp, 9827 South Carpenter Street, Chicago, Illinois. At the time Mr. Karpovich turned this material over to the Chicago Office he advised that he had found the documents in the Crystal Ballroom of the Sherman Hotel, Chicago, at about 9:30 P.M., on August 16, 1950.

The Chicago Office has advised that Mr. Dan Murphy, House Detective, Sherman Hotel, had informed them on August 18, 1950, that the National Food Distributors had held a conference in the Crystal Ballroom of the Hotel Sherman on August 16, 1950, at which conference Senator Joseph R. McCarthy was a speaker. An examination of the documents reflects that all the material contained therein has previously come to the attention of the Bureau in connection with the allegations by Senator McCarthy concerning Communists in the State Department and has previously been appropriately handled. The documents furnished by Mr. Karpovich appear to be material used by Senator McCarthy in connection with his speech before the National Food Distributors conference on August 16, 1950.

Specifically, the documents found by Mr. Karpovich are as follows:

1. The case presented to the Senate as a typical file covering individuals whose cases were given to the Senate and Senator McCarthy.
2. Information concerning the Ambassador Jessup case.
3. Photostats of two documents appearing in newspapers stapled with a letter to Honorable Joseph R. McCarthy dated July 10, 1950, from J. Edgar Hoover.
4. A file on Chew Hong and Dr. Chi.

5. Page 30 of a 106 page secret report prepared by a State Department Security Officer for the head of the Security Division.
6. A report dated June 10, 1947, from the Sub-Committee of the Senate Appropriations Committee.
7. A statement received from a State Department employee who worked on a project of removing all evidence of Communistic activities, etc., from the files of the State Department employees.

With regard to Document No. 1 listed above, it is noted that this document is identical with the "exhibit" which served as the basis for the Bureau's investigation in the case entitled "Unknown Subject, Source of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy's Information Regarding Government Employees, Removal of Government Property, Loyalty of Government Employees." (121-23278)

Document No. 2 consists of ten pages of miscellaneous material concerning Ambassador Philip C. Jessup showing his purported relation with various Communist front organizations and containing copies of four checks reflecting contributions to the Institute of Pacific Relations by Frederick V. Field during the time Ambassador Jessup was supposedly connected with the Institute of Pacific Relations. It is noted that a very thorough Loyalty of Government Employees investigation has been conducted concerning Jessup and the allegations of association with all Communist front organizations listed in the attached material, as well as the contributions of Frederick Vanderbilt Field to the Institute of Pacific Relations, have been fully explored during the Bureau's loyalty investigation of Dr. Jessup. (121-9893)

Document No. 3 consists of two pages of material. The first page reflects an article from the New York Herald Tribune dated June 22, 1950, and on the same page appears a reproduction of an article from the New York Times dated June 22, 1950, concerning the Tydings Committee's investigation of Senator McCarthy's charges of Communists in the State Department. The second page of the document is a reproduction of a letter from you to Senator McCarthy dated July 10, 1950, informing him that the FBI had not as of that date made an examination of the 81 State Department loyalty files and advising him that the Bureau was not in a position to make any statement concerning the completeness or incompleteness of the State Department files.

Document No. 4 consists of fourteen pages of material concerning one Chew Hong and Dr. Kung Chuan Chi in relation to the Owen Lattimore case. It is noted that this identical information was previously furnished to the Bureau. Efforts to prove or disprove the allegation that Owen Lattimore "loaded" the Office of War Information with pro-Communists and anti-Chiang Kai-shek personnel are at the present time being made in the Lattimore case. (100-24628) The data concerning Chew Sih Hong and Dr. Chi, as well as the attached picture, is duplication of material already in possession of the Bureau and is therefore considered of no interest in so far as the Owen Lattimore case is concerned.

Document No. 5, which purports to be page thirty of a secret report prepared by the State Department Security Officer for the head of the Security Division, contains the charts previously alleged by Senator McCarthy to have been prepared by the FBI showing the number of "agents," "Communists," "sympathizers" and "suspects" in the State Department as of May 15, 1947. This material has long since been in possession of the Bureau and has been appropriately handled.

Document No. 6 is a copy of a report dated June 10, 1947, from the Subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee to Secretary of State George C. Marshall calling his attention to conditions which had reportedly developed and still flourish in the State Department under the administration of Dean Acheson. The report alleges that there was a deliberate, calculated program being carried out not only to protect Communist personnel in high places but to reduce security and intelligence protection to a nullity. This report appears to refer to Hamilton Robinson since he was at one time head of the Office of Controls Section of the State Department and was a cousin of Robert T. Miller, III, a former State Department employee and a subject in the Gregory case.

Document No. 7 is a reproduction of a signed statement of Paul E. Sullivan, former employee of the State Department, dated July 6, 1950, concerning his employment with the State Department and alleged "stripping" of derogatory material from the State Department personnel files. This signed statement has previously been made available to the Bureau and appears to be of no additional interest.

ACTION:

Photostatic copies of the seven documents mentioned above have been made for the completion of the Bureau's files. Inasmuch as all the material contained herein has previously been made available to the Bureau and appropriate action taken there appears to be no further action necessary concerning this material. Inasmuch as the material was without doubt left in the Crystal Ballroom of the Sherman Hotel by Senator McCarthy on the occasion of his speech on August 16, 1950, it is recommended that a representative of the Bureau contact Senator McCarthy and advise him of the manner in which this material came into the possession of the Bureau. If it is definitely determined at that time that the material belongs to Senator McCarthy it is further recommended that the material be returned to him.

ADDENDUM:

Subsequent to the typing of the above memorandum a letter was received from the Chicago Office forwarding another complete set of seven documents identical with those listed above. No explanation was given by Chicago as to how they came into possession of this second set of documents. However, the existence of more than one set of such documents indicates that the documents furnished by Mr. Karpovich were not personal documents inadvertently left in the Sherman Hotel by Senator McCarthy, but probably documents which he had prepared for distribution to the audience at the time of his speech there on August 16th.

In view of this fact, and since the documents contain no material not previously known to the Bureau, it is suggested that the above recommendation be reconsidered and the material not be returned to Senator McCarthy, and that no further action be taken.

OPEN LETTER

for release A.M. editions - July 3, 1950

Honorable Frank Buchanan
House Select Committee on Lobbying Activities
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Buchanan:

At your request we furnished your Committee on June 8th with all the information you requested.

Our Government has certain documents which I, as an interested citizen, would like to see. These have been kept secret from me, and from you, yet they must be known to our sworn enemies, the servants of the Soviet Union. I hope you will agree I am as entitled to these as was Mr. Jaiffe of AMERASIA to the documents from John S. Service. The State Department approved Mr. Service's actions. I wrote Senator McCarthy asking him to request them of Senator Tydings. Copy of letter enclosed. So far I have no answer.

It occurs to me that if your Committee is authorized to ask sweeping and confidential information of taxpayers, you might also be authorized to ask specific data from our servants, the Executive departments. Hence I am forwarding to you this letter to Senator McCarthy with a request for the documents enumerated. I can assure you that each of the 17 enumerated actually exists.

If public opinion is to have confidence in our President in this present crisis, it must know who disarmed the free nations, who betrayed Poland and China, etc., etc. If the same people, or their proteges, are still guiding our destinies, we want to know. These 17 documents will make it clear to us and to the Governments of the rest of the world, who now fear the worst.

Hoping you will have these documents ready when you call me before your Committee, I am,

Most respectfully yours,

Alfred Kohlberg

My dear Senator:

Senator Tydings (Dem.) recently said that the Communist Magazine AMERASIA had only been given 1700 classified Government documents--mostly "teacup gossip." Only 1% were top secret, he said.

As publisher of PLAIN TALK for the past four years, I haven't received a single classified government document. It isn't fair.

Could you ask Senator Tydings to ship me 1700 such documents. I don't care if 99% are "teacup gossip," if that's the kind of stuff Secretary Acheson deals in 99% of the time. I always suspected as much. His statement in 1945 that Russia was entitled to a "friendly government" in China may be "teacup" too. 400 million Chinese "teacups."

What I am most interested in is the 1% of top secret documents. I would like my 17 to be:

- (1) The secret report that Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada brought in person to President Truman in 1945 naming 150 of the Soviet atom spies in the U.S.A.; of whom not one has been arrested.
- (2) The secret agreement of Teheran, dated December 1945, turning over Poland to the U.S.S.R.
- (3) The full Henry Wallace report on China, written by Lattimore (about 70 pages) and the two telegrams by Wallace from New Delhi dated June 28, 1944.
- (4) The telegram from Roosevelt to Chiang Kai-shek dated Quebec about Sept. 19, 1944, demanding the turning over of the civil government to Stilwell and the Commies on pain of breaking our alliance and throwing China out of the U. N.
- (5) The secret instructions to General Marshall when he left for China about Dec. 15, 1945.

121-23278-27
SURE

June 6, 1950

- (6) The orders to General Eisenhower to stop General Patton's advance in Czechoslovakia and his own advance on Berlin, so the Russians could have both.
- (7) The White House order, signed by Lauchlin Currie, about June 1945, countermanding the Joint Chiefs of Staff order to General Eisenhower assigning surrendered German arms to China. It ordered all destroyed, instead.
- (8) The secret order to General Sultan in India, about July 1945, ordering all arms, ammunition and planes, en route to China (both American and Chinese Lend-lease) destroyed.
- (9) The secret G2 report on the Katyn Massacre, where the Russians, in 1941, slaughtered 10,000 surrendered Polish officers.
- (10) The secret Potsdam Agreement, July 1945, recognizing Soviet supremacy in all the undeveloped, backward areas of Asia.
- (11) General Douglas MacArthur's report of 1948 to the Secretary recommending policy for the Far East.
- (12) The full list of assets, of all kinds, of former Prime Ministers H. H. K'ung and T. V. Soong of China, which Assistant Secretary of State Hickerson claims total $850 million. Senator Knowland informed the Senate that Messrs. K'ung and Soong authorize its publication.
- (13) The secret Memo of conversation with Prime Minister Nehru of India last Fall, advising that he recognize Communist China, to be followed by Britain and then by us.
- (14) The secret Memos from Lattimore, to Jessup, to Trygve Lie, to Abraham Feller, advising that Nationalist China be replaced on the Security Council of U. N., even without recognition, and that the United States would approve.
- (15) The secret White House order for the postwar destruction of American arms and planes in Europe, accounting for the full equipment of more than 60 divisions, according to the Hoover Report. Secretary Acheson now wants you to vote new billions to replace these arms for our European allies (?).
- (16) The 30 other secret reports by so-called Far Eastern experts, which the State Department says were requested by Ambassador Jessup at the same time as the Lattimore Report of last August.
- (17) The secret agreement on China, dated Moscow about Dec. 27, 1945.

June 6, 1950

If I get these 17, I won't be fussy about the other 1683 pink "teacup gossip" secret documents. Tell Senator Tydings to just bundle them up and send them along--express collect.

Possibly Senator Tydings might like to consult former Senator Wheeler of Montana (Dem), now living in retirement in Washington. Senator Wheeler sprung the Teapot (not teacup) Dome scandals in 1924 and demanded the files be opened. When Attorney General Daugherty (Rep.) refused, Republican President Coolidge fired Daugherty and opened the files. The press applauded.

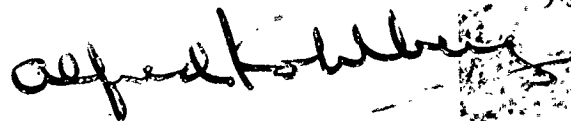

Those who know that Louis Budenz realized that unsavory items in his past would be exposed if he dared to speak out against Communism admire his courage and wonder what threats are silencing others.

Although I know you are a Wisconsin farm boy, I hope there is enough Irish in you to enjoy a good fight. With the mountain of evidence you have, and the stuff that Asst. Sec. of State Peurrifoy, Asst. Att.-Gen. McInerney, Senator Chavez and the Whitewash crew are spilling, you can't lose.

Some day before the Far East is lost and Washington, Oregon and California have become our front line, I hope we'll get responsibility out of the hands of the pink "teacup" boys into the hands of an American like Douglas MacArthur. General MacArthur will have the responsibility, anyway, when the chips, or bombs, are down. Why not give him the authority and responsibility now?

Congratulations on the job you are doing.

Sincerely,

Alfred Kohlberg

In response to your inquiry as to whether the FBI reviewed the State Department personnel files that were under consideration by your Committee for the purpose of ascertaining whether reports submitted by the FBI to the State Department were incorporated therein, this is to advise you that at the request of the Attorney General, we did make such a check on July 13, 1950 and found that the State Department files were intact, as indicated in the letter from the Attorney General to you dated July 17, 1950.

With best wishes and kind regards,

Sincerely yours,

For record purposes, the Attorney General called me during the last week in August and inquired as to whether the Director could be reached by phone. I told him that I doubted it.

Millard E.

J. Laughlin

The Attorney General then stated that Senator Tydings desired to talk to the Director regarding the letter the Attorney General sent to the Senator reporting the Bureau's investigation of the contents of State Department files which Senator McCarthy charged had been raped.

Stark

I told him that I was certain the Director was in a travel status but at the earliest opportunity I would pass the word on.

The Attorney General then suggested he have Tydings call me.

I told the Attorney General I knew the Director would personally resent the fact that apparently Tydings was questioning the Attorney General's word and that I thought it amazing when the head of the Department, who was the spokesman for the Department as far as the Senator was concerned, had to have his word verified and that obviously the Director's position would be the same as the Attorney General's position.

The AG said that he was certain that this was not the problem and that Tydings did not mean any offense. He stated that he thought he would call Tydings and tell him that the Director was out of town and his return was indefinite.

By reference from the Director's Office, I talked to Tydings on September 5. The Senator wanted to talk to the Director sometime today and did not give any indication as to what he wanted to talk about.

Mr. D. M. Ladd,
Federal Bureau of Investigation
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Ladd:

Just after the last war I worked for a short time under Assistant Secretary of State, William Benton, in the division that had taken over the Office of War Information. I was secretary to Mr. Robert Ward, now Consul General in Switzerland. Mr. Ward suggested to Mr. Benton that they go ahead and hire employees and then screen them later in order to save time, because if Mr. Benton really wanted them they would be hired regardless of what their investigation showed. Later on we received a letter asking if Mr. Benton was a Communist. Mr. Ward said he didn't know how to answer that because he believed that he was. I was the only person present when these statements were made.

I am a former employee of yours. My maiden name was E. Kathleen Brinkmeyer.

Sincerely yours

/s/ Mrs. John Murray

~~████████████████████~~
Dorothy Cheney Goodwin
Clarence John Nelson

You will immediately recognize that some of the individuals named above are not presently employed with the U. S. Government, such as Alger Hiss, Mary Jane Keoney and Carl Marzani. However, the Bureau is furnishing you with the complete list of names and desires that you take the following action. In each case where the files of your office indicates the person is not presently employed no further action need be taken. In each case where the files of your office does not indicate the present employment of the individual, the records of the State Department and the Civil Service Commission should be checked to determine if the individual is presently employed with the U. S. Government. When it is determined that an individual is presently employed with the federal government, sufficient information should be furnished the Bureau so an adequate check can be made of the indices of the Bureau.

Upon completion of this survey, the Bureau should be furnished with a complete summary of the action taken by your office regarding each individual which summary should be included in one communication captioned as above.

Bureau deadline July 13, 1950.

McCarthy Has New Census of State Dept. Reds

Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) gave the Senate today a photostat of a page of a "secret" report stating that in May, 1947, the FBI found 124 Communist agents, sympathizers and suspects in the State Department. Only 18 were discharged in the following two months, the report said.

Sen. McCarthy told the Senate three persons listed by the FBI as "agents" still are in the State Department and that their names are available to the Senate or its Communist investigating subcommittee. (Earlier story on Page 6.)

PURPOSE:

To point out that the Loyalty Section is taking no action regarding the attached material furnished by Senator McCarthy and to recommend that it be reviewed by the Accounting, Fraud, Selective Service and Civil Section of the Investigative Division.

BACKGROUND:

The Washington Field Office has furnished the Bureau with photostatic copies of the following documents received from Senator McCarthy, (1) Letter dated 4-26-50 from [redacted] together with copies of a letter he forwarded to President Truman on 1-5-50, (2) A letter to him from C. L. Chennault dated 1-23-50, and (3) A biographical summary concerning [redacted] the name of [redacted] (100-24628-2255) U

In his letter to Senator McCarthy, [redacted] points out that a Chinese employee of the State Department in Hong Kong, China, has acquired tremendous wealth during the past six months. This resulted, according to [redacted] from a scheme worked by State Department employees in Hong Kong of gaining unlawful entry for Chinese nationals into the United States for $10,000 or $20,000. U

[redacted] also alleged that a Mr. Strong, Vice Consul of Taipei, has been everything but helpful to the Nationalist Government of China and has made statements to the effect that the Communist Government would be better for the Chinese people. U

There is no disloyal information in the files of the Bureau that can be identified as pertaining to Mr. Strong. U

RECOMMENDATION:

Due to the non-specific nature of the allegations regarding Mr. Strong, it recommended that no further action be taken by the Loyalty Section. It is suggested that this memorandum be forwarded to the Accounting, Fraud, Selective Service and Civil Section of the Investigative Division for any action necessary regarding possible violation of the passport and visa laws.

Memo

Senator Tydings called me today and advised that every now and then he gets a letter from somebody stating that it is funny that the FBI hasn't said that they have checked over the CI files. He said, of course, that Attorney General McGrath had advised him I had checked them over but he would like to have a letter from me to this effect, the reason for this being that Senator McCarthy has a letter that we didn't go over them. I advised Senator Tydings that this letter was written prior to the time Tydings made his request that they be gone over. I inquired what he wanted me to do. He stated he had talked to Attorney General McGrath about it and he had no objections and he would like me to write him a letter as follows: 'In response to your request for a reply as to whether or not the FBI went over the CI files made available to the President to see whether the FBI data in them on loyalty was in fact, this is to advise you that at the request of the Attorney General, we did make such an investigation on such and such a date with the report that they were in fact as contained in the Attorney General's letter.' I told Senator Tydings I would be very glad to do this. He asked that it be made comprehensive enough so that the 'average dumbbell' will know what they are talking about. Senator Tydings inquired how soon he could get the proposed letter and I advised him it would be taken care of immediately, that I was going out of town but would try to get it to him before I left.

Very truly yours,

SUBJECT: Booklets handed out at meeting before which Senator McCarthy spoke.

The attached booklets were left at the Directors office for his information by a person who attended a Republican Rally meeting which was held in Hyattsville Maryland, on September 22, 1950.

Senator McCarthy's group distributed the pamphlet entitled "WHERE THERE'S A SMELL".

The other pamphlet, "THE REAL FACTS", was distributed on the street outside of Belmont the meeting place, obviously by the opposition to Senator McCarthy.

Communists in the State Department

Russ Turner of Fulton Lewis' office advised Mr. McGuire that he understands the letter the Director sent to Senator Tydings on September 8, 1950, regarding the Bureau's having made a check of State Department files and finding them intact is being widely used in Maryland by Tydings in his campaign.

Turner wondered what the interpretation of that letter meant as he felt the Bureau was speaking only for having checked on FBI information in the State Department files and that the Bureau was not in a position to have checked the State Department files for any other information except data previously furnished by the FBI.

Mr. Turner was advised that his interpretation was correct as the Bureau had found the State Department files intact insofar as FBI information was concerned.

Mr. Lewis devoted his entire fifteen minutes to a discussion of a pamphlet published under the auspices of Senator Tydings on the subject "The Truth About The Senate Sub-Committee's Investigation of Communists in the State Department". Lewis explained that this pamphlet is designed to off-set charges that the Senate Sub-Committee headed by Tydings, had given the State Department a "white wash" and was issued by Tydings strictly for political purposes in the interest of his re-election. Lewis claimed that Tydings engaged in gross misrepresentation in the pamphlet by quoting out of context and giving only partial quotes of statements by Senator Lodge and others interested in this investigation. U

Near the conclusion of his broadcast, Lewis stated that the following night he would discuss a letter written by the Director which was quoted in the pamphlet. He did not identify the letter further. It is to be noted that this broadcast may be heard in Washington over Radio Station WEAM at 7 P.M., October 13, 1950. U

This matter was discussed with Inspector J. M. McGuire and it is believed that Lewis is making reference to a letter written by the Director to Senator Tydings under date of September 8, 1950, in which it was stated that the FBI had made a check of State Department files on July 13, 1950, at the request of the Attorney General, and it was found that the State Department files were intact, "as indicated in the letter from the Attorney General to you dated July 17, 1950." (Bureau File No. 121-23278-251) U

RECOMMENDATION: It is recommended that Lewis' October 13, 1950, broadcast be closely followed in connection with his discussion of the Director's letter. U

I took a call from Don Surine in Senator McCarthy's Office. He wanted to know if we could have an Agent contact him in Room 5-A of the Senate Office Building this morning.

He stated that he had some information on what looked like a very good informant in Europe, which he wanted to turn over to the Bureau.

If approved, I will arrange to have an Agent contact Surine.

PURPOSE

(1) To advise you that when Don Surine told us if we gave him a copy of the summary report on Lattimore, it would be handled in the same manner as was done in the Posniak case, he was undoubtedly unthinkingly referring to the document distributed by Senator McCarthy on July 25, 1950, which purported to be a Civil Service Commission summary of the investigation of Edward G. Posniak.

(2) To suggest we do not interview Surine concerning the above.

(3) To advise you that Donald Surine called the Bureau on October 2, 1950, not August 2, 1950.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

You will recall on September 15, 1950, Don Surine advised an Agent of the Washington Field Office he would like to get a copy of the Bureau's summary report on Lattimore, and in this regard Surine volunteered if he had the Lattimore summary report, it would be handled in the same fashion as was done in the Posniak case. You noted, "Just what does he mean by this?"

You will recall that Senator McCarthy on July 25, 1950, made a statement on the floor of the Senate concerning "Mr. X" in the State Department, who was subsequently identified as Edward G. Posniak, subject of a full field loyalty investigation by the Bureau. In making his statement, Senator McCarthy distributed copies of a document which purported to be a Civil Service Commission summary of the investigation of Posniak. On July 25, 1950, the Attorney General asked us to conduct an investigation to determine the source from which Senator McCarthy obtained his document. The investigation disclosed that Senator McCarthy's document is apparently not an authentic copy of any document prepared by the CSC, the State Department or the Loyalty Review Board, according to representatives of these three Agencies. In addition, the document distributed by Senator McCarthy contains inaccuracies, and it was prepared in such a way as to indicate it could not have been prepared as a CSC summary of the investigation of Posniak. In addition, you will recall that on March 23, 1950, the Baltimore Office advised us that Don Surine had advised an Agent of that office that Senator McCarthy was going to expose Walter N. Posniak, a State Department employee. At that time, Surine had in his possession a memorandum, apparently from Senator McCarthy's office, which included quoted material, apparently from Bureau investigative reports. The possibility exists that the document which Senator McCarthy used on July 25, 1950, is the same document which Surine had in his possession on March 20, 1950, and the possibility further exists that this is the document that Surine was referring to on September 15, 1950, as noted above. It would further appear from the above that Surine was not thinking when he said what he did on September 15, 1950.

At the suggestion of the Attorney General, I interviewed Senator McCarthy on August 4, 1950, as to the source of the document which accompanied his press release regarding Edward G. Posniak. Senator McCarthy refused to disclose his source, and he further said he had instructed the employees in his office not to disclose the source of any of his material, since he felt it his duty to protect his sources.
(121-23278-223)

In view of the above, it is respectfully suggested that we do not interview Don Surine concerning his statement given to us on September 15, 1950.

For your information, the investigation requested by the Attorney General concerning Senator McCarthy's document, which is captioned, "Unknown Subject; (Source of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy's Information Re. Government Employees) Removal of Government Property; Loyalty of Government Employees" is continuing.

With reference to your inquiry concerning the correctness of the date on which Don Surine called the Bureau you are advised that the correct date is October 2, 1950, and not August 2, 1950, which date appeared in the memorandum from Mr. Belmont to me dated October 4, 1950. We regret that this inaccuracy occurred and we have corrected it.

In connection with the above case, there is transmitted herewith to the Bureau a copy of a document bearing the caption of the "U.S. Civil Service Commission, Report of Investigation", which is stamped "Secret" and which bears a sticker with the name of JOHN L. NORMOYLE and the notation "Personal File Copy." This document is a resume of the various FBI reports submitted in connection with the above investigation but has the names obliterated.

This document was found on the street on Ashland Avenue between Beech and Blackhawk Streets, Chicago, by Mrs. HELEN JASIAK, 1629 W. Julian Street, Chicago, on October 2, 1950, and was turned over to this office by Mrs. JASIAK on October 4, 1950.

According to Mrs. JASIAK, she checked the telephone directory and finding a listing for JOHN L. NORMOYLE, 1619 Beech Avenue, Chicago, telephoned Mr. NORMOYLE concerning the above material and was advised by him "Just destroy them. I can get another copy."

A pretext telephone call to Mr. NORMOYLE's residence reflects that he is employed by the Military Order of the Purple Heart, 179 W. Washington Street, Chicago. The Chicago files are negative concerning Mr. NORMOYLE and no investigation is being conducted in this matter unless instructed by the Bureau.

When you hear the charge that the investigating committee "white-washed" or "covered up" disloyal employees in the State Department, tell them THE TRUTH! Here it is:

1. TELL THEM That the official record shows that these same persons were investigated not by one, but by four separate committees of Congress during the years 1947 and 1948, at a time when Congress was overwhelmingly controlled in the House and Senate by the REPUBLICAN PARTY.

How come these 4 Republican committees did not turn up any Communists from the same charges? Were the Republicans "whitewashing" a Democratic administration?

2. TELL THEM That in a speech made on the floor of Congress by Representative Jonkman, Republican of Michigan, (of a sub-committee of the Committee on Foreign Affairs investigating these same charges) page 9793 of the Congressional Record of August 2, 1948, said:

"But before the 80th Congress adjourns, I want the Members to know that there is one Department in which the known or reasonably suspected subversives, Communists, fellow travelers, sympathizers and persons whose services are not for the best interests of the United States, have been swept out. That is the Department of State."

3. TELL THEM What Senator Lodge, Republican member of the investigating sub-committee, had to say, as quoted from the Congressional Record of July 21, 1950:

"... I did not find any Communists in the State Department but I went to all lengths to which I think any man could go, in that I personally interviewed the State Department agents and special agents covering a large part of the United States, Europe, Africa and the Middle East, and I asked every one of them whether they knew of any Communists in the State Department. All of them said they did not."

MILITARY RECORD of SENATOR TYDINGS

Enlisted with Company D, Maryland National Guard, June 1916, and saw service on the Mexican Border. Upon returning from this duty, while discharge from service was still in the mail, war with Germany broke out and again was called out April 6, 1917, and thus served continuously until May 30, 1919, being promoted through the ranks from enlisted man to Lieutenant Colonel.

Upon completion of studies at Ft. Sill, Okla., graduated first in class and was awarded Division Instructor's Certificate in Musketry. Upon completion of studies in Second Corps Machine Gun School at Chatillon-sur-Seine, France, graduated first in class and was awarded Corps Machine Gun Instructor's Certificate from said school.

While with the 29th Division in Olsace, commanded the machine gun units covering raids on German trenches and also had charge of the harassing machine gun fire program which called for shooting up enemy targets with machine guns six times each 24 hours.

Participated in Meuse-Argonne Offensive and while in this engagement, worked out a flanking machine gun attack on German positions which was successful and which is set forth in one chapter of an Army publication called "Infantry in Battle," one of the text books used at the West Point Military Academy.

Cited by Generals Pershing, Morton, and Upton; awarded Distinguished Service Medal and Distinguished Service Cross.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR

Federal Bureau of Investigation
United States Department of Justice
Washington 25, D. C.

September 8, 1950

Honorable Willard E. Tydings
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

My dear Senator:

In response to your inquiry as to whether the FBI reviewed the State Department personnel files that were under consideration by your Committee for the purpose of ascertaining whether reports submitted by the FBI to the State Department were incorporated therein, this is to advise you that at the request of the Attorney General, we did make such a check on July 13, 1950 and found that the State Department files were intact, as indicated in the letter from the Attorney General to you dated July 17, 1950.

With best wishes and kind regards,

Sincerely yours,

Senator McCarthy has repeatedly attacked Secretary of State Dean Acheson, but the Congressional Record, page 469, shows that on January 18, 1949, he voted along with the vast majority of Democratic and Republican Senators to confirm Acheson's appointment.

Don't be fooled by politicians in an election year by falsehoods, mud-slinging and political propaganda designed to incite the voters to defeat tried and true public officials who painstakingly went over Senator McCarthy's charges and found them unsupported by any evidence Senator McCarthy had to offer.

RE-ELECT MILLARD E. TYDINGS

A man of international stature

Keep a patriot with a fine record in office, where he has helped and is continuing to help keep America strong. Millard Tydings is known and respected from Maine to California. He has put Maryland on the political map.

By authority of Thomas J. Henry

NOTE: The original printed hearings of the 4 committees and the Congressional Records containing the Jonkman speech and Senator Lodge's remarks are available for your inspection at the Tydings Headquarters in the Emerson Hotel, Baltimore, Maryland.

The F.B.I. will be glad to get any information from McCarthy or anyone else concerning Communists in Government. It's their job to ferret them out—and they do just that when they have evidence to support the charges.

The Investigating Committee turned over ALL the evidence it received to the F.B.I.

Senator McCarthy specifically charged that an investigation and examination of certain specified eighty-one loyalty files and records would prove his charges were true. The Investigating Committee consisting of three Democrats and two Republicans obtained the eighty-one files and records and examined them. When the Committee stated it had not found evidence in the files to support Senator McCarthy's charges, Senator McCarthy then said that the files were "raped, rifled, or incomplete."

The Investigating Committee asked the F.B.I. to run down this new Senator McCarthy charge.

So—if you hear that the files and records examined by the Investigating Committee were "raped, rifled or incomplete," tell them the F.B.I. says "No."

The official printed hearings containing all the evidence show that Senator McCarthy before the investigating committee never called a single person a Communist. Following from the printed hearings on Page 29:

Senator Tydings: Senator McCarthy, you are making charges?

Senator McCarthy: I am not making charges, I am giving the committee information . . ."

Thus, when called up to make good the Senator made a complete retreat.

It is noted you enumerate in your letter six statements. For your information, the six statements which you listed reflect an accurate statement of the FBI action in connection with these files.

My dear Mr. Hoover:

Some confusion seems to have arisen as a result of a letter which you wrote to Senator Willard Tydings of Maryland under date of September 8, 1950. In order to clarify the exact facts of the matter, may I ask if the following is a full and accurate statement of your position:

1. That the F.B.I. prior to the investigation by Senator Tydings' subcommittee had provided from time to time certain information for inclusion in these State Department personnel files.

2. That the F.B.I. has kept a full and accurate record of the material thus furnished to the State Department.

3. That on July 13, at the request of the Attorney General, the F.B.I. made an examination of certain State Department personnel files, then under examination by the Tydings' committee to determine whether the F.B.I. material was still contained in these files.

4. That this investigation showed that all F.B.I. records furnished to the State Department were (with one minor exception) still in the State Department personnel files and insofar as the F.B.I. contributions were concerned the files were intact.

5. That the F.B.I. investigators did not then nor have at any other time, before or since, examined the State Department personnel files to find out whether they were intact in their entirety. In other words, the F.B.I. investigation did not concern itself with material that might be included in the State Department files from sources other than the F.B.I.

6. That the F.B.I. has at no time stated or intended to convey the thought that the State Department personnel files are "intact" in their entirety, or indeed, "intact" beyond the extent of the F.B.I.'s own material contained therein.

Cordially yours,

When advised of Mr. Hoover's absence from the office, he consented to speak to the Acting Director. After checking, he was referred to Mr. Ladd.

Mr. Ladd advises that the Senator was calling about the Tydings' Committee. He desired to know, ~~that~~ at the time the FBI reviewed the State Department files whether or not the Bureau checked for FBI material only, or if the files were checked for material from all agencies and outside sources. Mr. Ladd advised him the Bureau checked only for FBI material in the files.

RECORDED - 84/21-23278-201

Senator Brewster stated he would send a letter to the Bureau concerning this matter.

State Department

I took a call from Senator ~~Brewster~~ of Maine, by reference from your office, on Saturday, October 21. He was calling from Maine. He stated that he has had a number of inquiries on the State Department files which were supposedly checked by the Bureau for the Tydings Committee. He stated that with reference to the letter from the Bureau to Tydings indicating that the FBI had examined the State Department files, he, Senator Brewster, wanted to know whether the Bureau had checked the State Department files only as to the FBI material or whether the files had been checked as to material from any and all sources. I told him that the files had been checked only as to the FBI material.

Senator Brewster stated that he was going to submit a letter to the Bureau and he would appreciate receiving a letter concerning this matter.

When the letter is received, it is believed that it can be answered by furnishing a copy of the Bureau's letter to Senator Tydings and a copy of the letter from the Attorney General or Peyton Ford to the Tydings Committee.

Reference is made to my memorandum dated October 16, 1950, concerning the Fulton Lewis, Jr., broadcast.

COMMUNIST IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT
Senator Millard Tydings' broadcast was heard over the Fulton Lewis, Jr., broadcast and devoted his full time to a refutation of charges made by Fulton Lewis, Jr. At no time was the FBI mentioned.
It is to be noted that the broadcast did not commence until 7:05 P.M. and the announcement was made that technical errors were experienced by the broadcasting company and it was impossible to bring the opening statements of Senator Tydings. During the period in which he was heard Senator Tydings reviewed point-by-point allegations made by Fulton Lewis, Jr., and the conclusion of his remarks was that at no time did his Committee "whitewash" anything.

He pointed out that in 1948 four committees studied and investigated the same individuals who were alleged to be disloyal in 1950. He indicated that assuming all four committees did a good job and removed all the ones found to be disloyal, how could there be a "whitewash" of these individuals in 1950. He made the point that assuming the same employees did not merit citation as being disloyal in 1948, then the four committees of a Republican-controlled Congress was actually "whitewashing" the Administration. The Senator then mentioned the case of Carl Marzani who was removed from his position with the State Department and convicted for false swearing and the dismissal of fifteen other employees which followed. He pointed out that the Senate Appropriations Committee had nothing to do with the Marzani case since he was removed in 1946. Senator Tydings then took up a second point of Lewis' charges concerning the dismissal of 134 individuals from Government employment. According to Lewis the investigation was conducted by a one-man committee headed by Representative Jonkman (phonetic) of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. Senator Tydings stated that Representative Jonkman merely observed that 134 individuals were separated from the Government, many for reasons not involving security.

The next point covered by Senator Tydings was an investigation by the House Appropriations Committee and resulted in the compiling of a list of individuals who were previously investigated. Senator Tydings pointed out the inaccuracies and distortions of Fulton Lewis, Jr. statements.

Memo to Mr. Nichols

October 19, 1950

The Senator in his closing remarks pointed out that Fulton Lewis did not challenge Representative Jonkman's statement before the 80th Congress that the State Department had been swept clean and Senator Tydings concluded that if the State Department had been swept clean in August 1948 how could his Committee whitewash it in 1950. He then mentioned that he, Senator Tydings, had read all 81 files whereas Senator Hickenlooper and Senator Lodge had read a combined total of 17. Senator Tydings closed on that note.

I have received your letter of October 21, 1950, referring to an examination made by this Bureau of certain files of the State Department which had been under examination by the Tydings Committee.

It is noted you enumerate in your letter six statements. For your information, the six statements which you listed reflect an accurate statement of the FDI action in connection with these files.

With expressions of my highest esteem and best regards,

Sincerely yours,
J. Edgar Hoover

Honorable J. Edgar Hoover
 Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation
 Department of Justice
 Ninth and Pennsylvania
 Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Hoover:

Some confusion seems to have arisen as a result of a letter which you wrote to Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland under date of September 8, 1950. In order to clarify the exact facts of the matter, may I ask if the following is a full and accurate statement of your position:

1. That the F. B. I. prior to the investigation by Senator Tyding's subcommittee had provided from time to time certain information for inclusion in these State Department personnel files.

2. That the F. B. I. has kept a full and accurate record of the material thus furnished to the State Department.

3. That on July 13, at the request of the Attorney General, the F. B. I. made an examination of certain State Department personnel files, then under examination by the Tydings' committee to determine whether the F. B. I. material was still contained in those files.

4. That this investigation showed that all F. B. I. records furnished to the State Department were (with one minor exception) still in the State Department personnel files and insofar as the F. B. I. contributions were concerned the files were intact.

5. That the F. B. I. investigators did not then nor have at any other time before or since, examined the State Department personnel files to find out whether they were intact in their entirety. In other words, the F. B. I. investigation did not concern itself with material that might be included in the State Department files from sources other than the F. B. I.

6. That the F. B. I. has at no time stated or intended to convey the thought that the State Department personnel files are "intact" in their entirety, or indeed, "intact" beyond the extent of the F. B. I.'s own material contained therein.

Cordially yours,

Owen Brewster

Lewis' program was devoted to a continuation of the controversy involved in an attempt by Senator Millard Tydings to refute charges by Lewis that Tydings and his committee "whitewashed" the State Department with regard to its infiltration by Communists.

At the beginning of the program Lewis played recordings of remarks made by Tydings in broadcasts on October 19 and 20, 1950. These remarks of Tydings were to the effect that the list of names of alleged Communists in the State Department was the same group which had been investigated by four different committees of the Republican 80th Congress. Tydings also contradicted the charge by Lewis concerning the House Appropriations Committee.

Lewis then stated that the simple question regarding investigation of persons named on the lists could best be settled by the former chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Representative Taber of New York, and by Senator Joseph McCarthy.

Representative Taber was then heard from Auburn, New York. He said that late in 1947 and early in 1948 investigators from the House Appropriations Committee went to the State Department and copied data regarding employees considered to be of questionable loyalty. Mr. Taber said he has kept records regarding this and he knows that there were still 16 of these questionable individuals on the State Department rolls as of April 1, 1949, and of these there were still 13 on the rolls as of February 1, 1950. Mr. Taber said he has checked the McCarthy list of alleged Communists and has found that it contains 30 names which were not on Mr. Taber's original list. Mr. Taber stated flatly that he knows of no complete investigation conducted by the House or Senate concerning the infiltration of the State Department by Communists. He refuted Senator Tydings' claim that such an investigation was conducted by four committees of the 80th Congress, Mr. Taber asserting that there were no open hearings and that there were no reports written by these committees.

Mr. Taber declared his list was as positive as the same as Senator McCarthy's list. He further declared that the Tydings committee was requested to investigate the alleged Communists in the State Department, but it did not do so.

Senator McCarthy then spoke by transcription from Chicago, and the substance of his remarks follows. The Tydings committee were given details regarding 81 cases of Communists in the State Department. Nine of these cases were made public prior to the time when the Tydings committee ruled that the remainder of the cases would be heard in closed session. Only one of these nine cases has been investigated, the Brunauer (phonetic) case. The remaining eight cases involved Lattimore, Jessup, Duran, et al and were not investigated by the Tydings committee. In the case of Gustavo Duran the Tydings committee received an Army Intelligence report stating that Duran had been head of the European branch of the SIM, reputedly the counterpart of the Russian Secret Police. The Tydings committee and the State Department immediately claimed that this was a reference to another person having the same name.

McCarthy sent an investigator to Europe who obtained a photograph of Duran in the uniform of the "Secret Police" and the photograph was given by McCarthy to Senator Tydings. Nevertheless, the Tydings committee did not call Duran to testify, and at the time Duran was screening Displaced Persons seeking entry into the United States. (This causes Senator McCarthy to wonder how many more members of the "Secret Police" are in this country under the Displaced Persons program.) When Senator McCarthy urged the State Department and the Tydings committee to place Duran on the witness stand, Tydings refused, saying that Duran had been cleared by the State Department Loyalty Board.

McCarthy closed with a flat contradiction of the claims of Senator Tydings and challenged the latter to produce evidence that any investigation was conducted by the Tydings committee in eight of the nine cases mentioned above.

After the last drastic tax cuts, unemployment in Canada dropped to less than 2 percent. At a time when the jobless in our country, where there has been no tax reductions, rose to triple that percentage.

Sounds like a miracle, doesn't it? But it isn't. It's just proof of what can be done through ability and imagination.

Ability, on the part of Canadian leaders, to realize that the prosperity of a country does not lie in the money taken out of the pockets of its citizens, but in how much money is left in their pockets.

Canadian Finance Minister Douglas Abbott is one economist I can understand.

Taxes, he said, should cause as little harm and irritation as possible. Amen. He said he wanted his people, the taxpayers, to have more money to spend, so that they would be able to buy more of the goods raised by the farmers, made by the manufacturers. Makes a great amount of sense to me.

But stop a minute and recall what another leader said recently about taxes. Just the reverse as I remember it. I quote now from President Truman. He argued:

"Events of the last few years have proved that our economy can grow and prosper . . . at the same time that individuals and businesses are paying taxes high by prewar standards."

But what about our budget? It's not balanced.

What about our deficit spending—to the tune of some five billion?

Is that a prosperous economy?

Canada is putting her money back to work. She's on a mounting spiral of increased national income. Less taxes; more money to spend. More spending; more production.

The more I found out about what our good neighbor is doing the more I wondered if anybody in Washington was thinking along these lines. So I made a few phone calls. I had two particularly interesting conversations.

One was with Senator PAT MCCARRAN, Democrat, from Nevada, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, and a high-ranking member of the Appropriations Committee. I thought you might like to hear what he had to say so we made a recording. Here he is now. Come in Senator MCCARRAN.

"Well, Mr. Montgomery, I am certainly for any sound program for reducing all taxes, income and excise. Since before World War II, the Federal budget has been pyramiding and the burden on the American taxpayer has been increasing to the point where this burden can no longer be borne. As more services are performed for the people, a greater share of the people's income goes for taxes and they are less able to perform these services for themselves. If the economy is to grow, it must be encouraged, and what better way than to leave the people enough money so they will be able to buy the goods they make.

"The figures you mention, Mr. Montgomery, indicate that the Canadian people have prospered as a result of the sweeping tax-reduction program."

Thank you very much, Senator.

Now, what about those excise-tax cuts we've been hearing about. Cuts already made by Canada. What's Congress going to do about them. Let's hear a word from Representative JOSEPH W. MARTIN, Republican, House minority leader, as recorded during my talk with him. Come in Congressman MARTIN.

"Bob, I believe Canada is on the right track. The history of previous tax reductions is that every tax cut is followed by an increase in revenues. However, our immediate problem is the elimination of the wartime "discouragement" taxes—the taxes that discourage you from buying, from traveling, from telephoning, and actually take your jobs away. Those taxes were enumerated in the American Weekly articles.

"The wartime taxes should be repealed now. There is a feeling throughout the country that long overdue action to reduce these excessive rates is coming in this session of Congress. Consequently, buyers are adopting a "wait and see" attitude. We must not wait for tax revision 6 months hence."

Thank you. I hope we don't have to wait much longer. President Truman has talked of a trillion-dollar national income by the year 2000. I'll swap my share of the Truman trillions for sound, honest tax cuts tomorrow morning.

A $50,000,000 Bubble

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

HON. LAWRENCE H. SMITH

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, February 20, 1950

Mr. SMITH of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, here we have further evidence that our American foreign policy is the American dollar. We are trying to buy our way all over the world and without appreciable success.

Mr. Henry Hazlitt, writing in Newsweek for February 20, 1950, calls the turn on Senator McMAHON's proposal of last week. He suggests that it is a wholly absurd proposition and millions of Americans agree. At this point I include a copy of Mr. Hazlitt's article:

FIFTY MILLIONS FOR TRIBUTE?

(By Henry Hazlitt)

Senator BRIEN McMAHON's proposal that our Government contribute $50,000,000 over 5 years for a global Marshall plan is the culmination, the reductio ad absurdum, of the befuddlement on foreign economic policy in which Washington has wandered for the last 5 years.

Senator McMAHON's proposal is, to put it baldly, a proposal to pay unparalleled tribute. No other word fits. "Tribute" is defined in the dictionary as "a stated sum . . . paid by one sovereign or state to another in acknowledgment of submission or as the price of peace, security, protection, or the like."

When we were small and considered weak, our minister Charles Pinckney, on being told by Talleyrand that a gift to the directory might avert war with France, made his famous reply: "Millions for defense, sir, but not 1 cent for tribute." Yet today Senator McMAHON, at a time when we are by far the strongest Nation in the world, proposes that we pay up to $50,000,000 as the price of Stalin's promise to stop threatening us with atomic or hydrogen bombs.

This mere proposal, by the chairman of the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, is certain to be taken by the leaders behind the iron curtain as a sign of fear and weakness. The leaders of the iron-curtain countries have already found that they can with impunity plant spies in our midst, blockade us at Berlin, beat or imprison our envoys, and insult and vilify us every day. What further move may they not be encouraged to take by this timorous offer of ransom? Even Secretary Acheson's emphatic rejection cannot fully offset this blow to our prestige.

The McMAHON proposal obviously lacks sense. Would we make ourselves safer by pouring billions of our dollars into Russia, by reducing our economic and military strength to increase hers, by intensifying the problems of our free-enterprise system to mitigate the problems of her Communist system? And if for 4 years Stalin has unwaveringly refused to call off the atomic-bomb race, even when we were far ahead of him, and even at the risk of the annihilation of millions of Russians and of his own regime, does it make sense to suppose that he will reverse his stand now for a mere monetary bribe?

It is time we asked ourselves frankly, in fact, whether an atom-bomb agreement might not actually be more dangerous than the present known lack of agreement, by binding us and not the leaders of Russia. These are the same leaders who have broken promise after promise, who believe that the end justifies any means, who live by systematic perjury. The proposals for international inspection of the vast depths of a totalitarian Russia are not realistic. Even if our inspectors finally did catch up with a plant in Russia that had been working on the bomb—after we had poured in our $50,000,000,000 to help finance it—what recourse then?

But the real point of this article is economic. Senator McMAHON himself calls his proposal a "global Marshall plan," and casually drops point 4 inside it. It is a super-give-away program. It is not only politically preposterous, but it rests on the same fundamentally false economic assumptions as the Marshall plan and point 4. It wrongly assumes that the American capital thrown into such schemes is a net addition to the world's capital. It is in fact a mere diversion of such capital. And it is a diversion, in the main, from productive private enterprises into far less productive collectivist projects.

Such schemes do not encourage private lending abroad; they discourage such lending. They do not speed up recovery and development of world resources; they retard that recovery and development. For as long as foreign countries can get easy money, seized from our taxpayers, out of the United States Government, they will neither give the assurances nor make the economic reforms that they would have to make to attract private investment.

It is time we called a halt to the give-away mania.

Two From St. Louis

EXTENSION OF REMARKS

OF

HON. RICHARD BOLLING

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, February 16, 1950

Mr. BOLLING. Mr. Speaker, it gives me real pleasure to include under unanimous consent an editorial from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch of Tuesday, February 14, 1950, which gives well-deserved recognition to two of my distinguished colleagues from Missouri:

TWO FROM ST. LOUIS

A perfect attendance record may not be the supreme test of a Representative's devotion to duty. There are times when he may be of much greater service at a congressional committee meeting than by being on the floor to answer a relatively unimportant roll call.

Still, it was something of an achievement to have been on hand each of the 121 times during the 1949 session that the House of Representatives was asked to vote "yea" or "nay." Only 16 of the 435 Members managed to achieve this record. And two of the 16 were from St. Louis.

For this, a bow to Representative JOHN B. SULLIVAN and Representative FRANK M. KARSTEN.

HERBERT ALBERT PIERST
AKA (1913, 1917) PIERST

2/24/50

Allegation by Senator McCarthy

Case No. 1. The man involved in case No. 1 is employed in the office of an Assistant Secretary of State. The Intelligence unit shadowed him and found him contacting members of an espionage group. A memorandum of December 13, 1946, indicates that he succeeded in having a well-known General intervene with an Assistant Secretary in behalf of one man who is an active Communist with a long record of Communist Party connections. There is another individual who is very closely tied up with a Soviet espionage agency. There is nothing in the file to indicate that the general referred to knew those two individuals were Communists.

"That is a part of the usualmodus operandi. If there is one Communist in the Department, he will get some other individual to recommend another Communist so that the breed can be increased.

"This individual was successful in obtaining important positions for other Communists. They were finally ordered removed from the Department not later than November 15 of the following year. Subsequent to that time, however, both of them still had access to secret material.

"A memorandum of November 29, 1946, pointed out that this individual and the previously mentioned Communists whom he succeeded in having placed were connected with an alleged Russian espionage agency. Nevertheless, this individual still occupies an important position in the State Department. I should like to point out at this time, however, that the security groups which was then operating in the State Department, was apparently doing a good job. It presented the entire picture to the Secretary of State. This individual who, the investigating agency of the State Department says, is a Communist, got a general innocently to bring two other Communists into the State Department, and he is today in the State Department and has access to the secret material. As I say, his name is certainly available to my Senate committee that wants it."

Possible Identification

This individual is apparently Herbert Almer Pierst. Bureau records reflect that a Loyalty investigation was conducted concerning Herbert Almer Pierst, who as of October, 1949, was adviser to Assistant Secretary for Occupied Areas, Department of State, Washington, D. C. This investigation developed that during 1946, 1947 and January, 1948, the employee had frequent contacts with David R. Noble (Nabl), had casual contacts with Max Lowenthal, had associated with Henry Hill Collins, Jr., was in frequent association with Maurice Halperin in 1946, 1947 and 1948, and was a friend and close associate of Demetri Lee during 1946 and 1947.

David R. Wahl was reliably reported to have been a member of the Communist Party underground in the late 1930's and the early 1940's, a member of the Board of Directors of the Washington Bookshop Association, a member of the Washington Committee for Democratic Action and the American Peace Mobilization. Max Lowenthal was General Counsel for the International Juridical Association. Henry Hill Collins was reliably reported to have been a member of the Communist Party underground in Washington, D. C., in the late 1930's and early 1940's. Maurice Halperin was reliably reported to have been involved in a Soviet espionage conspiracy in New York City in the late 1930's and early 1940's. Duncan Lee was reliably reported to have been a member of a conspiracy involving Soviet espionage in the latter 1930's and early 1940's.

Herbert Pierst admitted having been a member of the National Lawyers Guild.

At the State Department Herbert Pierst formerly worked under Major General John H. Hildring.

The Washington Bookshop Association, Washington Committee for Democratic Action and the American Peace Mobilization appear on the list of organizations named by the Attorney General as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835. The International Juridical Association and the National Lawyers Guild were cited as Communist fronts by the Special Committee on un-American Activities, March 29, 1944.

The loyalty reports were sent to the Civil Service Commission on September 15, 1948.

The Loyalty Review Board by letter dated October 7, 1949, advised that Herbert Abner Pierst had been declared "eligible on loyalty."

JOHN CARTER VINCENT

Case No. 2

"This is a case to which I particularly invite the Senate's attention. The files show two very interesting facts. A major portion of the file was removed. Papers refer to information in the file which is nonexistent. Upon contact with the keeper of the records, he stated that, to the best of his knowledge, the major portion of the file had been removed. He did not mention any name, but he said, 'He was put in some high-brass job about 2 years ago.'

"I am inclined to think that this individual's name may be known from the information which I shall give here.

"The file shows two things. It shows, first, that this individual had some of his clothing picked up, with unusual material in it, and, second—and this is important—it shows that the State Department and the President had prepared material which was to be sent to a foreign government. The file shows that before the material left the State Department it was in the hands of the Kremlin in Moscow. Do Senators follow me? The State Department's own investigative file shows that some secret material, which was being transmitted to another nation, before it even left this country for the other country, showed up in Moscow. So far, that is not too significant. However, the file shows that this particular individual, who has held one of the most important positions at one of the listening posts in Europe, was shadowed, that he was found to have contacted a Soviet agent, and that the Soviet agent was then followed to the Soviet Embassy, where the agent turned the material over to the Soviet Embassy. Do Senators follow me? This is what the secret State Department file shows: First, the papers get to Moscow in some mysterious manner, and, second, this individual, who is now one of our foreign ministers, contacts a Russian espionage agent, and that agent is followed to the Russian Embassy, where the material is handed over. This is no secret to the State Department.

"Incidentally, I might say that I promised the press I would have copies of this material for their use. However, in view of the fact that I have nothing completely ready at this time, and must refer to the documents before me, which I cannot turn over to the press, I do not have anything to give them. I am sorry. I shall try, however, to give them now the material I have, and shall try to make the dates and places as clear as I can."

Possible Identification

This individual apparently is John Carter Vincent. The Bureau files reflect that we have not conducted any investigation of Vincent. The Bureau files do, however, contain the following pertinent information relating to Vincent:

Vincent has served in various positions with the Department of State since 1924. Bureau files reflect, in brief, that Vincent was selected by former Vice President Henry Wallace to accompany him, Wallace, to China and Siberia in the Spring of 1944. Vincent is reported to be a close friend of Lauchlin Currie, subject in the Silvermaster espionage case. An informant of the Boston Office has advised that Vincent's name had been on every contact list furnished by Communist authors to the publishing firm of Little, Brown, and Company, Boston, Massachusetts. Major General Patrick J. Hurley, former Ambassador to China, is quoted as having testified before a Congressional Committee in December, 1945, that State Department career men were trying to destroy the Chinese National Government by having American Lend-Lease equipment given to Chinese Communists. Hurley blamed John Carter Vincent, then Chief of the Far Eastern Division of the State Department, with actions which were contributory factors toward Hurley's retirement as Ambassador. (121-11900-8)

On October 16, 1946, the State Department furnished the following information concerning Vincent:

On September 28, 1946, a State Department building guard found a raincoat in the men's room on the first floor of the State Department. A search of the pockets revealed papers written in Russian. An examination of the papers showed they were the work of a Russian language student and no significance was attached to the papers. On October 4, 1946, John Carter Vincent telephoned the Guards Office to inquire what had been done with the raincoat. He indicated he knew what had been contained in the pockets of the raincoat. He denied owning the coat but claimed someone had left it in his office. He stated he had borrowed it and inadvertently left it in the men's room. He instructed that the coat be returned to his office so that he might return it to the rightful owner if and when it was called for. The memorandum from the State Department pointed out that it was believed the coat belonged to Vincent although the reason he denied owning it was not known. (62-80659-2)

An article appeared in the Washington Daily News on February 27, 1948, under the heading of "Top U. S. Diplomat a Red Spy?" This article reported that the House Appropriations Committee had developed information during a hearing on State Department appropriations which indicated that a confidential White House telegram to Chungking, China, reached Moscow before ever leaving Washington. It was alleged that Moscow obtained the telegram through a top United States diplomatic official identified only as "No. 52." It was further indicated that investigations had disclosed that the diplomatic official referred to as No. 52 was seen contacting a man in Washington and was trailed to the Soviet Embassy. The Bureau received information that the individual referred to as No. 52 was John Carter Vincent.

In view of Vincent's position, the information appearing in Bureau files concerning him was furnished the Attorney General by memorandum dated May 17, 1948, with a request that the Bureau be advised whether a Loyalty investigation should be conducted. Mr. Peyton Ford, the Assistant to the Attorney General, in turn furnished this information to Assistant Secretary of State, John E. Peurifoy, with the request that Mr. Peurifoy advise Mr. Ford whether he wished the Bureau to conduct a Loyalty investigation of Vincent.

By memorandum dated June 9, 1948, Mr. Ford furnished a copy of Mr. Peurifoy's reply wherein it is stated that virtually all the information regarding Vincent was in the possession of the State Department at the time of Vincent's appointment; that a review of Vincent's full record convinced the Department of State of his loyalty to the United States. With regard to the information set out above indicating that Vincent was responsible for a confidential White House telegram to Chungking, China, reaching Moscow before ever leaving Washington, Mr. Peurifoy advised that this information was originally reported to the State Department, Division of Security and Investigations, by an informant who, it was subsequently learned, was either grossly mistaken or misinformed. Mr. Peurifoy further advised that the alleged original source of this information, described as a person of unquestioned reliability, subsequently stated to a Special Investigator of the State Department, that he did not know anything about a telegram prepared in Washington which reached Moscow before its official release nor did he know anything about Mr. Vincent having been observed contacting a man who was later followed to the Soviet Embassy.

Mr. Ford suggested that the Bureau review such information concerning Vincent as was available in the Security files of the State Department. He further stated, "unless, however, the information thus secured, coupled with the information now available, produces a lead which would seem to require additional investigation, I do not believe that it is necessary to undertake a full field Loyalty investigation in this case at the present time." The State Department Security file was reviewed and it contained no pertinent information not already in the possession of the Bureau.

The Attorney General was advised by memorandum dated July 13, 1948, that no Loyalty investigation of Vincent would be conducted and the State Department was advised by the Liaison Section on July 16, 1948, that no Loyalty investigation would be conducted.

Vincent's Loyalty Form was returned to the Civil Service Commission on April 18, 1949, with the notation on the reverse side that information available concerning him in the files of this Bureau had been furnished to the State Department, and that in the absence of a special request, no Loyalty investigation would be instituted. (121-11900-8)

FEVERIL MEIGS

Allegation by Senator McCarthy:

"Case No. 3. This individual was born in Flushing, N. Y., in 1905. He was employed with OSS in 1942. In 1945 he was transferred to the State Department and assigned to Research and Intelligence. The State Department's file shows that he is a member of a number of Communist-front organizations, and that his pals are known Communists. The file further shows that this fact is admitted by him. The original report in which this information is contained is dated July 3, 1942. The security report of April 18, 1946, indicates that numerous witnesses, including college professors and police officers in California, testified he was a radical and a fellow traveler. He was very friendly and sympathetic toward Harry Bridges, and strongly opposed any move to deport Bridges. The report also shows that he was also a close friend of Ralph Friedman, secretary of the Communist Party in California. Another security report, dated November 13, 1946, quotes his associates as saying that he favored the Chinese Communists in China and favored Russia in most respects.

"The State Department officials themselves, according to this report, describe him as being overly sympathetic to Russia and the Communist experiment. This is all a part of the report. Another Government official said the individual frequently blamed the capitalists for all the trouble in Russia, and constantly praised Russia as the ideal. So far as I know, everything in this individual's file indicates that he is actively working with and for the Communists."

Possible Identification:

This individual apparently is Feveril Meigs. The Bureau's files reflect that he was investigated by the Bureau in May and June of 1942 as an applicant for the position of geographer with the Office of the Coordinator of Information. Inquiry at Baton Rouge where he had been employed as an instructor in geography at Louisiana State University during the school year 1938-1939, disclosed that he was considered radical in his views although sincere, indiscreet in the expression of his views, socialistically inclined, very active in California politics and married to a confirmed socialist. Inquiry at San Francisco, California developed that references considered Meigs a competent and excellent teacher but liberal to "pink" in his political views. Neighbors and confidential informants declared that Meigs held radical political views and was a Communist. Several other confidential informants stated that Meigs was a member of several Communist fronts and openly associated with Communists. Copies of the four reports written on this investigation were furnished the OCI in May, June and July, 1942.

In June, 1947, the Department of State requested that the Bureau place Kelgs under physical and technical surveillance as soon as practicable, advising at the same time that he was reported to be president of the State Department Local of the United Public Workers of America. However, it was determined by the Liaison Section that the State Department had been investigating Kelgs since April, 1946, and had developed information to the effect that he had been associated with known Communists on the West Coast and Washington, D. C. Since it appeared that the State Department was apparently trying to develop cases on their own personnel as was done in the Harman case, the Bureau declined to undertake the surveillance requested and Assistant Secretary of State John K. Fowles, by memorandum dated July 18, 1947, was so advised. The Bureau's proper jurisdiction in loyalty matters was also pointed out to him at that time. (65-20165)

On January 5, 1948, the War Department requested a loyalty investigation of Kelgs because of information reportedly available in the Department of State's files, which related to Kelgs' membership in various Communist front organizations. Such an investigation was instituted on January 13, 1948. This investigation disclosed among other information the following:

Kelgs entered Government service on June 1, 1942 pursuant to a war service appointment as a geographer with the Office of the Coordinator of Information, later known as the Office of Strategic Services. In 1944 he was detailed as an associate board member and editor of the Joint Intelligence Study Publishing Board, later being designated as Editor in Chief of this Board. Kelgs remained in his capacity when the functions of the OSS were assumed by the Department of State. When the Board was dissolved in 1947 and Kelgs' name was submitted along with others for transfer to the CIA the latter refused to accept his transfer on security grounds. As no other positions were available in the State Department to which he could be transferred, he was dismissed on November 25, 1947, the reason given being "reduction in force." At the time of his departure from the Department of State, Kelgs was employed as a research analyst in the Office of Intelligence Research. (121-342-45)

A former associate described him as a man of high principles and excellent character who would, if put to the test, be completely loyal to the United States but who was rather naive and believed the Russian system to be democratic. Another associate described Kelgs as honest and sincere and sympathetic to the "under" man. This source stated Kelgs does not advocate revolutionary or violent changes of method but that Kelgs has stated his friends do believe in revolutionary changes. Another associate said Kelgs became engaged in political activities of a socialist nature and made many speeches in behalf of Upton Sinclair during the latter's campaign for the Governorship of California. Most of Meigs' socialism dealt with public control of utilities, being actively opposed to the "Power Trust." (Ibid. Ser. 9)

Another associate referred to Meigs as being an extreme liberal who had an academic interest in social reform and was a strong advocate of municipal ownership of power, racial equality and organized labor. This source referred to Meigs as having defended the Russian point of view during World War II but as having denied membership in the Communist Party. He declared Meigs, while sympathetic to the economic and social aspects of the Russian system, was opposed to its political structure. He said Meigs was critical of the United States Government but loyal to the United States. (Ibid. Ser. 17)

Meigs was depicted as "liberal" and "left of center" by former OSS associates who defined these terms as meaning Meigs believed in the kind of social thought which resulted in legislation during the "New Deal." Meigs was quoted as saying that the activities of the Council of American-Soviet friendship were worthy of support. (Ibid. Ser. 20)

Investigation in Washington disclosed that Meigs was a member of the Washington Bookshop Association in 1944 and 1946. Former neighbors characterized him as extremely pro-Russian but believed him to be a fundamental loyal American. It was also determined that he denied Communist affiliations at a Civil Service Commission here in October, 1943 and in a statement to the Office of Controls in the State Department in November, 1947. Professional associates in Washington characterized him variously as a "champion of oppressed peoples," loyal to the United States but also as an individual of such strong pro-Russian sympathies as to make him a security risk in the handling of confidential Government matters.

Inquiry at Los Angeles disclosed that Meigs had been listed as a sponsor on the 1941 letterhead of the American Beacon Ship Mission which was reportedly a fund raising campaign under Communist sponsorship. (Ibid. Ser. 28)

The San Francisco Office determined that Meigs, while an instructor at Chico State College in California from 1929 until 1942 (except 1938-1939), was known to have fostered "socialistic ideas." He had the reputation also of supporting Communist ideals and was a close associate of Ralph Friedman, later identified as a Communist Party organizer. One individual advised he could identify Meigs as having been in attendance at a meeting in Chico of the Communist Party. (Ibid. Ser. 31)

Copies of reports on the loyalty investigation of Meigs were furnished to the Civil Service Commission by letter dated April 19, 1948 and by letter dated February 23, 1949 to Assistant Attorney General Alexander M. Campbell.

On April 15, 1949 the Civil Service Commission, with respect to the disposition made of Meigs' loyalty case, advised that Meigs had been retained as an employee of the Department of the Army in the capacity of economist and educational specialist. At the request of Assistant Attorney General Campbell copies of the charge and answer thereto, interrogatories and answers thereto and a transcript of the record of proceedings before the Loyalty Board were furnished to him on June 13, 1949. (Ibid. 121 Ser. 41)

On June 17, 1949, Assistant Attorney General Campbell advised that the Bureau reports in the Meigs case failed to disclose any available evidence of a violation of title 18, section 1001, or of any other federal statute. (Ibid. Ser. 38)

GIZELLA ILLYEFALVI-VITZ

Allegation by Senator McCarthy

Case number - 4: "The individual came to the United States from Hungary in 1944. He was employed as a translator and script writer for OAI, and later by the Office of International Information and Cultural Affairs. The report of January 3, 1947, indicates that he is an active member of a Communist front organization, and that he lost his former job because of his constant arguments in favor of communism. A former employer, according to the file, stated that this individual boasted of being a member of the Communist Party. A third informant also stated that this individual boasted of his Communist connections and argued that communism was superior to democracy. The fourth informant said that he constantly argued politics, and that communism was the ideal system for this country. Two of the references on his application for citizenship were members of at least one Communist-front organization and contributors to Communist periodicals. Another reference refused to recommend him, questioning his loyalty, and saying that he was a Communist. Another reference, of April 24, 1947, showed that this employee's supervisor in the State Department felt he was a fellow-traveler. This individual has been contributing to the Hungarian Communist magazine, N. C. S.

"Various memoranda and reports by the State Department Security Agency in the file indicate that no one was found to question this employee's communistic connection and beliefs."

Possible Identification

This individual apparently is Gizella Ilyefalvi-Vitez. According to the files of the Bureau inquiries concerning this individual were conducted in connection with the case entitled "Nicholas Torzs, Special Inquiry - State Department, Public Law 402, 80th Congress (Voice of America)." This individual was identified as the sister-in-law of Torzs. Inquiries revealed that Vitez was employed in the Hungarian Language Section, International Broadcasting Station, United States Department of State, 224 West 57th Street, New York City, as a Hungarian translator. She was transferred to the Department of State from the Office of War Information. She was described by former employers and associates as an active member of the International Workers Order and contributed articles to "Magyar Jero" a Hungarian language paper sponsored by the IWO. Associates also stated that in the event of war between United States and Russia she would undoubtedly follow the Russian line. She allegedly openly criticized the United States Government and advocated the ideals of Communism and the Russian Government.

Vitez resigned her position with the Department of State on March 5, 1948. According to the files of the Bureau she has not been re-employed by the Department of State since that time. (123-43-15 and 18)

Vitez was investigated by the Civil Service Commission in 1944 and 1945, for a translator position with the Office of War Information. She was declared eligible on March 8, 1946, by the Civil Service Commission Loyalty Rating Board. (62-17890-607 page 5181)

In April 1946, the Department of State was advised that the files of the Bureau contained no information concerning Vitez. This was a routine record check made at the time all OWI employees were transferred to the Department of State. (62-80335-34)

The investigation of Torss was completed in May of 1948. It was during this investigation that the above information concerning Vitez was obtained. Vitez has not been the subject of a Bureau investigation. (123-43)

Investigative reports containing the above information concerning Vitez were furnished to the Department of State on June 1, 1948, and to the Civil Service Commission on September 20, 1948. (123-43-15 and 18)

JAY ROBINSON

Allegations by Senator McCarthy

"He was born in North Carolina in 1900. He was employed by the Foreign Economic Administration from August 1942, to August 1945, and was then transferred to the State Department and placed on Research and Intelligence....

"The report dated May 4, 1946, in this man's file shows that eight persons, including six college professors at Harvard University and the University of California, agreed that this individual has strong communistic leanings, and that in their opinion he was either a card-carrying member of the Communist Party or a fellow-traveler. That is the opinion of six professors at Harvard University and the University of California. Some of the opinions expressed by his associates might well be read.

"A professor at the University of California stated that he was acquainted with this individual since September 1937; that he did not trust him; he considered him in the class of Harry Bridges; that under no circumstances would he hire him, and also that there was something about him that aroused his intuition, and caused him to be afraid of his outside connections, and under no circumstances would he recommend him to the Government.

"A fellow student stated that he had known him since 1939 and that he knew him definitely as a Communist; that he felt that this individual was getting money from the Communist Party, and the other students did also, because they would say that this individual was not preaching communism for his health, but that it was a business with him; that he would not recommend this individual to the Government because he feels that he is a Communist.

"This individual was discharged from a Navy school during the war for bad grades and for Communist activities. A memorandum, dated May 15, 1946, from CSA to the Office of Controls, states that an 'investigation discloses evidence of a material nature tending to affect adversely the loyalty to the United States and its institutions.' This report reveals that this individual is unmistakably identified with communistic activities. While the records of the Bureau of Naval Personnel show that he was given a special order discharge in March 27, 1942, under honorable conditions, evidence in his file, all of which is, of course, available to the Secretary of State, reveals that he was discharged because it was found that he was an ardent student of and advocate of communism.

"A report, dated March 25, 1947, indicates that this individual had been receiving mail from the Soviet Embassy, as well as communistic publications. An official of a Washington, D. C. university stated that he had hired this individual to conduct a class in Chinese, but later learned that he was closely connected with communistic groups on the west coast. Four members of the faculty at the University of California confirmed this individual's communistic leanings. All of the above information was brought to the attention of the top officials in the State Department in a memorandum summarizing the case in 1947, with the recommendation that he be immediately discharged. The State Department refused to discharge him because it was not proven that he had committed any overt act. Subsequent to this time, this individual argued often and heatedly in favor of a Communist regime in China. He admitted having been a subscriber to the Daily Worker....

"The State Department's own Security Board then submitted four subsequent reports, the first one dated September 12, 1947, in an attempt to convince the Department that this man was dangerous and should be discharged. Subsequently this man's position was abolished. However, he was not discharged....He was transferred to the Division of Research...."

Possible Identification

This individual apparently is Jay Robinson, also known as Jakob Rabinowitz, Jacob Rabinowitz, Jakob Robins, Jack Robins, Liu Yu-Ts'ai.

The Bureau files reflect we conducted the following investigations of this individual:

Internal Security - Hatch Act; April 16, 1943 to April 22, 1944

Loyalty of Government Employee; May 28, 1948 to June 11, 1948

Espionage - R; March 9, 1949 to the present

The Bureau files disclose that Robinson was born in New York City of Russian-Rumanian parents in 1900, under the name Jacob Rabinowitz, which he legally changed to Jay Robinson in 1938. He was educated in colleges in China in 1921-1936, receiving a B.A. Degree. Thereafter, he took graduate work at the University of California, Columbia University and Harvard University. From 1942 to 1946 he was employed by the Board of Economic Warfare, Washington, D. C., as an authority on Far Eastern Affairs. From 1946 to April 16, 1948, he was employed as a Research Analyst by the State Department. In May 1949, following his resignation, he departed with his wife for China, where he was

Last reported in November, 1949, as within Communist territory, representing Chicago and New York business firms. (100-69218; 121-9036; 100-366324.)

Robinson was the subject of a State Department investigation of alleged alteration of his United States passport in 1921-1922. (100-69218-12 and.)

While in China in 1921-1936, Robinson was known to associates as a Communist and claimed to have made a trip to Russia. He was for Chinese agrarian reform and very Socialist-minded. At the University of California and at Harvard, he was noted for his outspoken admiration of Communism and the Soviet Government, and his tactless arguments antagonized many persons. The rumor that his education at the University of California was paid for by Communists was not substantiated. It is noted he was discharged from the Navy School at Harvard in 1942 for poor grades and suspected Communist activity.

Robinson's membership in the Communist Party, USA, was never directly alleged or indicated. References to persons of the same or similar names, who had signed Communist Party petitions in the New York vicinity in 1939-1940, could not be identified with Robinson. Fellow ex-LYGOs and superiors at the Foreign Economic Administration and in the State Department regarded him generally as tolerant, broad-minded, and liberal in his views, and loyal to the United States. Last reports from China indicate Robinson and his wife as being favorable to the Communist regime. Investigation in the Richard Sorge espionage case has revealed that Robinson is not identifiable as the unknown American newspaperman named "Jacob" mentioned in that investigation. (100-124 (2-67, 93, 109))

The results of the Hatch Act investigation were referred to the Foreign Economic Administration, but no administrative action resulted. The loyalty investigation was never completed nor the results disseminated, it being revealed that Robinson had resigned from the State Department at that time. The State Department has been advised that a number of documents, some of which were classified, believed to be the property of the State Department were found at a former Washington residence of Robinson in August, 1949. Present investigation seems to determine if subject is engaged in espionage.

According to the Bureau files, this man was employed by the Department of State from 1946 to April 16, 1948, and his employment was terminated by resignation for the purpose of returning to private business.

FRANCES MYRLE TUCHSCHER

Allegation by Senator McCarthy

Case No. 6. "This individual is with the Division of Central Services. A security report dated December 31, 1946, describes her as being 'pink' and as advocating that we substitute conditions in Russia for those in the United States. She takes a very active part in the conferences of the UPWA, which has been picked up by the CIO, actively opposed the President's loyalty order, but has been given top secret clearance. This individual has a right to see all the top secret documents."

Possible Identification

The individual is apparently Frances Myrle Tuchscher, who as of February 4, 1949, was employed as Editor - Writer Employee, U. S. Department of State, Washington, D. C.

Bureau records reflect that a loyalty investigation was conducted concerning Frances Myrle Tuchscher under the provisions of Executive Order 9835 and the results of this investigation, which was conducted during February and March, 1948, were transmitted to the Civil Service Commission by letter dated March 13, 1948.

The loyalty investigation reflects the following pertinent information:

That Frances Tuchscher had made remarks that she finds many things objectionable in the Capitalist system followed in this country and has pointed out the superiorities in the form of government existing in Russia, particularly the absence of racial prejudices and freedom from the influence of wealth;

That on one occasion she stated that in her opinion Russia had borne the brunt of the war against Germany and that England and this country were now seeking to prevent Russia's recovery by ganging up on her;

That she is presently Chairman of Local #3, State Department Branch, United Public Workers of America Union;

That she was against the President's Executive Order concerning the loyalty of government personnel;

That she admitted that she was a member of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare during 1946;

That she is believed to be a close follower of the Communist Party line and supported a motion during a meeting of the UPWA to send a delegate to a concert featuring Paul Robeson, and on another occasion, supported sending a delegate to a convention of the National Negro Congress;

That she is listed as a stockholder of the corporation called "Presentation Associations Incorporated";

That she formerly roomed with Katherine Shryver, a member of the Communist Party.

The Communist Party, USA, and the National Negro Congress were cited by the Attorney General as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

The Southern Conference for Human Welfare was cited as a Communist front by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, United States House of Representatives, 79th Congress, on March 29, 1944.

It was reported that members of the Presentation Unit of the State Department formed a corporation called "Presentation Associations Incorporated" and it was believed that this corporation was being used as a means to develop official information of the State Department and to disseminate it to outside unauthorized sources. It was further reported that members of this corporation were Communists or Communist sympathizers.

The Loyalty Review Board advised by letter dated February 4, 1949, that the employee had been "retained." (121-2117)

MARCIA RUTH HARRISON

Allegation by Senator McCarthy:

"Case number seven. This individual was an associate business economist to August 1944; with FEA from August 1944 to August 1945, and then transferred to the State Department as an economist. This individual is a member of the Young Communist League. He was affiliated with four other organizations which are named by the Attorney General as having been Communist fronts. This individual admits membership in the Young Communists, and in the other Communist-front organizations, but claims to have changed his view since that time, and therefore was given top secret clearance by the State Department. I may say incidentally I am using the pronoun "he" in all these cases, although some of the individuals are not of the male sex."

Possible Identification:

The individual apparently is Marcia Ruth Harrison. Bureau records reflect that a loyalty investigation was conducted by this Bureau under the provisions of Executive Order 9835 regarding Miss Harrison, who, as of June 7, 1949, was employed as a Divisional Assistant, Division of Commercial Policy, Department of State, Washington, D. C.

Miss Harrison, during the course of a Hatch Act investigation in 1942, admitted to Bureau agents in a sworn signed statement that she was a member of the Young Communist League for two or three months in 1938 while she was attending Vassar College. Miss Harrison stated that she stopped paying dues as soon as she left college and her opinion has changed since that date. Miss Harrison also admitted former membership in the American Student Union and the Washington Committee for Democratic Action in the referenced sworn signed statement.

Miss Harrison admitted to a representative of the Security Investigations Division of the State Department in 1946 that she was a former member of the Washington Bookshop, the American Student Union, the Washington Committee for Democratic Action, and the Young Communist League.

A reliable informant advised that Marcia Harrison was in the Young Communist League at Vassar College and was one of the most active members of the Library of Congress unit of the Communist Party in 1939. According to this informant, Miss Harrison was also very active in the Communist Party generally and was closely associated with David Wahl, Philip O. and Mary Jane Keeney, Paul Boswell and Ogden Kelly, all of whom have been reliably reported as being members of the Communist Party underground group which operated in Washington, D. C. in the late 1930's and early 1940's.

Informants further advised that employee's name appeared on the active indices of the American Peace Mobilization in 1940 and on the indices of the United American Spanish Aid Committee in 1942.

Employee endeavored to justify membership in the various mentioned organizations by stating that she has always been interested in social planning and methods of solving social and economic problems; therefore, she had participated in various organizations in order to understand their respective points of view.

The Communist Party, the Young Communist League, the Washington Bookshop Association, the Washington Committee for Democratic Action, the American Peace Mobilization, and the United American Spanish Aid Committee have been cited by the Attorney General as organizations coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

The American Student Union was cited as a Communist front by the Special Committee on Un-American Activities, U. S. House of Representatives, March 29, 1944.

The reports reflecting the results of a loyalty investigation were transmitted to the Civil Service Commission on April 20, 1948 and by memorandum dated June 7, 1949 the Loyalty Review Board advised that the employee was "eligible on loyalty." (121-1163)

STANLEY CRAZE

Allegation by Senator McCarthy

Case No. 8,11

This individual was born in New York City in 1918. He was employed as an accountant and analyst with the OSS in the State Department from June 1945. Previous to that time he worked for the War Production Board. He was assigned again to research and intelligence in the State Department. This man, according to the State Department files, was an active member of a number of Communist-front organizations; was a very close friend of several men who are under suspicion by the FBI of being connected with Russian espionage cases and has two brothers who have been openly working for the Communist Party.*

Possible Identity/Classification

This individual apparently is Stanley Craze, born in 1918, who was the subject of a Loyalty Investigation completed in March, 1948, (Bureau file 121-638), and of a Security Matter - C Investigation, opened June 20, 1948, which is presently in a closed status, (Bureau file 100-363993).

The following information is contained in the Loyalty file:

This investigation was opened at the request of the State Department which was dated January 8, 1948, and which advised that the subject was a member of the American Student Union while a student at the College of the City of New York, and had signed a petition which appeared in the "Daily Worker" on August 6, 1940. As a further basis for requesting an investigation, the State Department advised the FBI had previously reported the subject to have been in frequent association with Mary Jane Kearney, Victor Fazio, and Harry S. Magdoff, and that the subject's brothers, Cyril and Gerald Craze were reported Communist Party members.

The results of the Loyalty Investigation are as follows:

The subject listed Harry Magdoff as a reference in completing his application for employment by the State Department. The subject went to work for the State Department in October, 1945. Magdoff was also observed by Bureau Agents in the subject's company at a party on November 30, 1946, at the home of the subject's brother, Gerald Craze in Arlington, Virginia.

The subject and his wife were also determined to be friendly with Mary Jane Keeney and Philip Keeney, who have been identified as Communist Party members in the late 1930's and early 1940's in Washington, D. C. Mary Jane Keeney was observed to visit the apartment of subject and his wife, Mildred, at Arlington, Virginia on October 26, 1945, December 14, 1946 and April 27, 1947. (121-638-15, p. 2)

Gerald Graze and his wife Ruth Gordon Graze, brother and sister-in-law of the subject, have been reported as members of the Communist Party underground group in Washington, D. C. during 1933 and 1934. (121-638-15, p. 3)
