[redacted] Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA), DOS, telephone number [redacted] was advised that the following investigation was to resolve allegations that the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER, while U.S. Ambassador to the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency negotiations in Geneva, Switzerland, from March, 1985 to April, 1986, engaged in a sexual liaison with a foreign national, thereby possibly exposing him to coercion or blackmail. [redacted] provided the following information:

b6 per DOS
b7C

[redacted] made available the security file, which is a combined security and Inspector General file, regarding JOHN G. TOWER. The file included a letter, signed by the Secretary of State, on January 30, 1985, which waived a pre-appointment investigation for TOWER's appointment as a U.S. Negotiator for the START negotiation program. The file also included ACDA's granting of a Top Secret clearance to TOWER on February 12, 1985. The file included no information regarding the above stated allegations.

[redacted] searched the ACDA files, to include past investigations, for any information regarding TOWER. [redacted] produced a file involving a former Air Force Colonel and a former staff member of JOHN TOWER. A review of that file included no identifiable information regarding allegations made against TOWER.

[redacted] advised that information of the nature stated above, would routinely be addressed to the Regional Security Officer (RSO) for his information. At that point, the RSO would send information, at his discretion, through the appropriate channels, usually to the Director of Security's office at the U.S. Department of State. [redacted] provided the name of the current RSO, assigned to the U.S. Mission in Geneva, Switzerland, who was also present at the mission during the time of this incident. [redacted] also advised that information of this nature may have been provided directly to the Secretary of State's office, in view of its sensitivity.

A search of major newspaper morgues in the State of Texas disclosed approximately 4,000 articles relating to Senator Tower. Numerous articles related to allegations of sexual indiscretions, alcohol abuse, and conflict of interest against Senator Tower. Several articles also criticized his use of campaign contributions which remained after he retired from the Senate in 1985. As contained in the Interviews, Issues, and Agency Checks portions of this summary memorandum, these issues were addressed during the course of this investigation.

During the course of a routine interview of Senator Tower in Dallas, Texas on December 3, 1988, the results of which are incorporated in this summary memorandum, Senator Tower advised that he was aware of various newspaper articles, relating to the above mentioned allegations. He denied any current or previous alcohol abuse. Senator Tower added that articles alluding to marital infidelity on his part were based upon interrogatories submitted during the course of his divorce from Lilla Cummings Tower, and were totally false. Concerning his use of campaign contributions after he chose not to run for reelection, Senator Tower advised that he has made an accounting to the Federal Election Commission and the Internal Revenue Service regarding the expending of these funds. Senator Tower's interview (Page 20, INFRA) references a letter dated January 25, 1985 from the Senate Ethics Committee, which sets forth two tests to avoid the violation of "personal use"

The loan was to be paid back within ten years and was for the purchase of optical equipment. In accordance with the loan agreement, [redacted] stated that the loan was repaid, and he did so approximately two years early.

[redacted] categorically stated that no part of these funds, or any of his personal funds, were loaned to Senator Tower or his campaign fund. [redacted] also commented that he has been active in politics since the 1950's and, during that time, he has raised and solicited monies for the Republican party, as well as for Senator Tower.

[redacted] SBA, El Paso, Texas advised a review of his records revealed Dr. Shirley Abbott obtained an SBA loan on June 9, 1972, in the amount of $350,000 under the business name of Pan-American Optical Company. The loan, which was paid off in 1980, was partially (10%) funded by the Coronado Bank, El Paso, Texas. [redacted] advised that, after two years, records are transferred to the Federal Records Center in Fort Worth, Texas, where they are maintained for five years and are then destroyed. b6 b7C

[redacted] Minority Small Business, Capital Ownership Development, SBA, San Antonio, Texas, advised that, due to the passage of time and the number of loans that he processed, he was unable to recall details or persons involved in this loan.

[redacted] Department of State, Abidjan Embassy, Ivory Coast, was advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and that he was being interviewed regarding the background investigation of Senator JOHN GOODWIN TOWER. [redacted] was interviewed at the Clarendon Hotel, 3824 Wilson Blvd., Room 151, Arlington, Virginia. [redacted] provided the following information: b6 b7C

From May, 1985 to May 1987, he was the [redacted] in Washington, D.C., at the State Department. During that time he was in charge of certifying security clearances for those who were detailed to [redacted] Sometime in December of 1985 or January of 1986, [redacted] came into his office and reported several issues to him regarding [redacted] These included several security breeches by [redacted] as well as sexual indiscretions. The information was recorded by the interviewee in a two page memorandum and forwarded to [redacted] of the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD). Before [redacted] had already filed an EEO complaint against [redacted] regarding his sexual advances and other particulars, while [redacted] during that time. b6 b7C b6 per DOS b7C

Sometime shortly afterwards, the interviewee could not recall the time frame, the Air Force Office of Special Investigations (OSI) District Commander from Bolling Air Force Base as well as a Special Agent came to the State Department to meet with JAMES LANNON, Chief of the Counter Intelligence Unit at the State Department (LANNON is now detailed with the Federal Bureau of Investigation). The purpose of this meeting was to discuss the allegations that [redacted] had made against [redacted] At that time the individuals from OSI were looking for advice on how to handle the situation. They had with them the statements made by [redacted] as well as information from OSD regarding the issue. b6 per DOS b7C b6 b7C

by SA [redacted] SA MFG:bw Date dictated 1/18/89 b6 per FBI b7C

This document contains neither recommendations nor conclusions of the FBI. It is the property of the FBI and is loaned to your agency; it and its contents are not to be distributed outside your agency.

The dilemma at this time was to determine where [redacted] actually was assigned and who should handle the investigation. [redacted] was [redacted] who was [redacted] during the negotiations in Geneva. It was determined through the meeting, that [redacted] "belonged to the State Department, not to ACDA, on paper." It was very difficult to determine who belonged to whom, because so many different agencies were involved and so many individuals were detailed from other agencies. b6 b7C

It was further determined that JAMES LANNON wanted someone from the State Department to follow the investigation on [redacted] because it had been decided that he belonged to the State Department. b6 b7C

At the time, the security measures at the State Department, especially on the 7th Floor, where the Geneva Delegation was staying while in Washington, were very lax. There was no real security direction or enforcement provided to the Delegation while in Washington. That responsibility eventually fell on the interviewee. As a result, [redacted] was appointed by LANNON to go to Geneva to follow the investigation because it took place on "ACDA turf". LANNON also sent the individual, previously mentioned, from the Department of State, Counter Intelligence Division, to Geneva to follow the investigation. The interviewee could not remember the name of this individual. b6 b7C Referral/Consult

In approximately February (possible the 14) 1986, [redacted] went to Geneva and began to read through all the violations reported by the Marine guards in Geneva. There were approximately 440 written notices of security violations. At this time [redacted] advised that he was focusing strictly on [redacted] and could not recall if TOWER was mentioned in any of these violations. b6 b7C

[redacted] went on to advise that [redacted] in Geneva. [redacted] was [redacted] the talks in Geneva. When [redacted] arrived the security consciousness of those on the Delegation was very lax. [redacted] did not process the security violations reported by the Marine guards. The responsibility then fell on [redacted] Many of the violations regarding [redacted] were not followed up because [redacted] refused to sign the written citations. The interviewee went on to indicate that the security program had no "teeth", and as a result was not effective.

SEXUAL INDISCRETIONS

When [redacted] was queried as to whether any investigations had ever taken place regarding Senator TOWER and sexual indiscretions with any American or foreign national women, he advised in the negative. He indicated that they were never asked to look into Senator TOWER or any other member of the delegation, but were there strictly to investigate [redacted] He indicated that while investigating the situation regarding [redacted] some information regarding Senator TOWER was uncovered.

b6 per DOS
b7C

TOWER's wife, LILLA BURT CUMMINGS TOWER, arrived unexpectedly in Geneva during the last round of the talks and charged him with infidelity, demanding a divorce from him. During that same time an article appeared in the Washington Post again charging him with infidelity. When she came over, she demanded that he, as well as any other individuals that were staying with him or partying with him, get out of the apartment. [redacted] advised that this information came out of the many interviews that were conducted with the staff and other personnel, that were on the Delegation in Geneva, as well as from [redacted] He could not remember any direct sources relating specifically to information about TOWER.

Many individuals were interviewed regarding [redacted] as well as regarding the atmosphere that surrounded the Talks. Individuals when questioned would often "blurt everything out" when they were questioned regarding [redacted] That is how some information came out regarding TOWER. [redacted] told [redacted] that he thought that [redacted] were retained as his mistresses. [redacted] did not reveal the source of his information to [redacted]

b6 per DOS
b7C

b6

In a letter to OSI, [redacted] regarding his ongoing investigation, he states that "sleeping around" was common in Geneva during the talks. He mentions that he had knowledge of 14 other situations where individuals were having sexual affairs. [redacted] asked if they, that is the investigators, should look into these allegations, and was told no by [redacted] stated that it was an Inspector General matter and that they would look into it. b6 b7C

The interviewee went on to advise that the reason the State Department was so concerned about individuals having affairs or sexual liasons with others, was in that they were required to have Sensitive Compartmented Information (SCI) access, which required Code Word Clearances. These required a different adjudication process than Top Secret clearances. Everyone who took part in the Talks was required to have this level of clearance and as a result they could not have a relationship with anyone who had contact with individuals from the Eastern Block. At no time did the interviewee have any information indicating that TOWER was one of the 14 individuals having an affair, reported by [redacted] The allegations made by [redacted] were turned over to the Inspector General, but to the best of the interviewee's knowledge were never looked into. He indicated the the situation was "very political" at the time and the State Department did not have an independent Inspector General. [redacted] did call the Inspector General to report these situations as well as the other security violations. [redacted] the investigator at the Inspector General's Office, for the State Department, indicated that the information would embarrassing and as a result, the investigation was "just dropped". b6 per DOS b7C

When queried as to his knowledge of any sexual relations between TOWER and [redacted] the interviewee indicated that [redacted] advised that the appointee was having an affair with [redacted] However in a recent phone call from the General Counsel of the Senate Armed Services Committee, the interviewee was told that [redacted] denied making such a statement. When queried as to whether he had any other knowledge of a relationship between TOWER and [redacted] the interviewee indicated that he was not aware of any information regarding an affair between TOWER [redacted] or any one else. b6 b7C b6 per DOS. b7C

He did indicate that through the interviews of the staff personnel, he learned that some of [redacted] mail was addressed in care of Ambassador TOWER in Geneva and went to his apartment. He stated that there could have been several reasons for this, one being that many times the apartments of the Ambassadors are vacant [redacted] may have been staying there in his absence. He went on to state that any mail sent to the State Department would go through the Diplomatic pouch. As a result, the mail for the individuals in Geneva would be sent to the State Department and then arrive in Geneva and be disseminated from there. This was a cheaper means than sending it through international mail. Often times periodicals could be obtained in a more more expeditious manner using the international mail, but personal letters usually took "about the same time period". The mail going through international mail, that is going directly to an apartment, would obviously cost more.

b7C

The interviewee was asked as to what inference he was making when he reported that the mail [redacted] was going to the appointee's apartment. He commented that he was not making a judgment, rather stating the facts. [redacted] may have wanted periodicals on a more timely basis or may have been using his apartment while the appointee was not there. To the best of his knowledge, there was no indiscretion on the part of Senator TOWER and [redacted].

b6 per DOS
b7C

[redacted] went on to comment that the general atmosphere at Geneva was such that individuals often took their wedding rings off when they got on the plane to Geneva and put them on as soon as the plane touched ground as they were returning home. He went on to mention that [redacted] and was infatuated sexually with Senator TOWER. When queried as to how he determined this, [redacted] advised that he had concluded this from the interviews of many of the staff personnel. He had no specific information as to who could corroborate this allegation. [redacted] Once again he advised that he heard this from [redacted] or just people in general, who were interviewed.

Regarding the statement made by the interviewee in the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) investigation, case number 87-000547, regarding his "independent corroboration" that Ambassador TOWER maintained [redacted] in Geneva,

The interviewee advised that he had information showing that the [redacted] procured sex partners for [redacted] and several others including himself [redacted] was accused of seeing a young prostitute, from the train station in Geneva. Once again this allegation was not investigated. At no time did the interviewee have any information that Senator TOWER was the recipient of sex partners procured by [redacted] also advised that he had no information that TOWER was involved in any kind of sexual indiscretions or the procurement of sex partners for either himself, any other American delegates, or any delegates on the Russian delegation.

CHARACTER REFERENCES

When queried as to his knowledge regarding letters written on behalf of [redacted] from individuals on the delegation, the interviewee stated that [redacted] came in to talk to the OSI investigators, regarding [redacted] indicated that he was displeased with [redacted] during this time and "wanted him out". He was shown some material that included "his own personal items, such as letters and other documents". [redacted] was advised that these were taken from the safe that [redacted] had kept in Geneva. [redacted] was visibly upset by this and began to distance himself from [redacted] came slowly to the conclusion that [redacted] "had to go", but once he made up his mind he "dropped his support from [redacted] rather quickly". He began to disassociate himself from [redacted] during the interview. At no time during the interview did TOWER become a subject of conversation. He has no knowledge of any distancing from [redacted] TOWER during the [redacted] investigation.

A short time afterwards, possibly three or four weeks, [redacted] could not recall the time frame, [redacted] went on to write a letter of support for [redacted]

b6

A friend of [redacted] possibly one of [redacted] shortly after a meeting between [redacted] and [redacted] heard [redacted] making calls to other individuals on the delegation, asking them to support [redacted] advised that he felt that the letter to OSI from [redacted] regarding the fourteen people having sexual affairs was "the shot across the bow". [redacted] indicated that this definitely had an effect on some of the individuals writing letters of recommendation for [redacted] could not provide any proof regarding this allegation. [redacted] advised that this is what he meant in his cable to the State Department, from Abidjan, dated February 16, when he indicated that these letters were written "for other than honest reasons."

He went on to advise that he felt all the letters were written by one individual. It appeared to him that [redacted] went to a lawyer, and was given the specifics as to what was needed for a good character reference, considering the allegations against him. It appeared that he then wrote the letters and asked the individuals to sign them. [redacted] went on to advise that he has a [redacted] With that background and the results of other investigations that he conducted, he concluded that all the letters had the same author. Once again he had no proof as to this allegation. When queried as to whether he had any information indicating that TOWER was coerced to provide a letter of recommendation for [redacted] the interviewee responded in the negative. He went on to say that he had no specific information that indicated that TOWER originally refused to write a letter and then changed his mind .

SECRETIVE FILES

When queried as to whether he had information regarding the maintenance of secret of files of [redacted] regarding information on other delegates he indicated that during the interview of [redacted] she indicated that he had a safe on the seventh floor where he stored personal documents. [redacted] was not allowed to go into certain parts of the staff, but on several occasions [redacted] saw it open. During that time, [redacted] saw named files, of individuals rather than subjects. When queried as to whether [redacted] provided the names to [redacted] he responded in the negative. [redacted] concluded that since [redacted] was not allowed to see these files and that they contained the names of individuals, they may have been on individuals on the start delegation.

The interviewee also advised that once [redacted] was told to clean out his area at the State Department, he was seen by several individuals shredding a large number of documents, which were classified Top Secret. [redacted] was seen with [redacted] taking files to the fifth floor where he began to shred them. [redacted]

[redacted] observed him destroying these documents. He was seen to have been shredding for almost 1.5 hours, on the fifth floor in the ACDA area. Many of these documents were "uncontrolled" top secret documents. They were "boot-leg stuff". [redacted] have given sworn statements as to the fact that [redacted] was destroying Top Secret documents. All this information was "boot-leg", because any Top Secret documents in [redacted] possession would have had to have come through [redacted] had no record of [redacted] having these top secret files out.

When queried as to his knowledge of any of the contents of the documents, he responded that he was not familiar with any of them. When queried as to whether the documents contained any information regarding Senator TOWER, he once again advised that he had no knowledge of the documents' contents. He went on to mention that at no time during his conversation with [redacted] did TOWER's become a subject of conversation. He had no knowledge of whether TOWER himself, began to distance himself from [redacted] during the investigation.

LEAKS TO THE PRESS

When asked about his knowledge of [redacted] leaking information regarding the Talks to the press, the interviewee advised that [redacted] indicated during [redacted] interview that [redacted] told [redacted] that he was "the unofficial press leaker". [redacted] indicated that [redacted] met with an individual named [redacted] who was writing for the Washington Post, and that [redacted] had several appointments with him written on his calendar. [redacted] that [redacted] at one point, had even borrowed her car to meet with [redacted] During these meetings, [redacted] leaked information as "trial balloons" regarding the Talks. [redacted] had access to the material and at the same time [redacted] who was the National Security Advisor, was cracking down on disclosures, to preclude information from being leaked to the press. As a result, the interviewee concluded that "they" used [redacted] to leak information out to the press. He stated that "they", were the Ambassador's, as well as others on the delegation. The interviewee concluded that [redacted] then used this information, his role as a press leaker for them, to coerce these individuals to write character references for him. Once again [redacted] had no direct proof regarding this except for [redacted] statements. When queried as to whether TOWER had any knowledge of this, [redacted] answered that he had no knowledge either way. He did not know if TOWER was involved, or if he directed [redacted] to leak any information whatsoever. He does not have any information directly linking TOWER to the press leaks and further stated that he does not have any information indicating that [redacted] used any information regarding the press leaks against TOWER.

Finally, [redacted] was asked whether he had any direct firsthand knowledge of Senator TOWER abusing alcohol, having unauthorized contact with foreigners or foreign nationals, having sex with [redacted] foreign nationals, or any other American on the Delegation, being involved in the procurement of sex partners for either himself, members of his delegation or the members of the Russian delegation, or being involved in the leaking of information to [redacted] or any other derogatory information regarding TOWER, and the interviewee responded in the negative. b6 per DOS b7C

When queried as to whether he recalls [redacted] ever mentioning TOWER specifically during her debriefing, he responded that he has no clear recollection of TOWER'S name appearing in [redacted] statement in a derogatory setting. b6 per DOS b7C

Springfield, Missouri
October 3, 1974

Senator Edward Kennedy,
U.S. Senate Office Building,
Washington, D.C. 20001

Honorable Senator Kennedy:

I hope this letter will find you well and enjoying the very best.

I am writing you under very unusual circumstances, but I felt there was an occasion and need for me to do so. I will endeavor to explain in a manner I am sure you will understand.

I am presently serving a federal sentence at the U.S. Medical Center, Springfield, Missouri housed among approximately a thousand other men in similar circumstances. Needless to say they are people of widely diversified personalities and backgrounds.

I was interviewed about two weeks ago by a [redacted] Special Agent of the U.S. Secret Service, Springfield, Missouri. [redacted] showed me a copy of a hand printed note, which contained a threat, and was presumably mailed to your office in Washington. It was apparently screened out of your mail by some member of your staff and turned over to the Secret Service for investigation. The letter bore my name as just [redacted] and institution number of [redacted]

I was shocked when [redacted] showed me the note. It took me some time to really digest the fantastic meanirg of the note. I had nothing to do with writing such a thing and I was staggered to comprehend who might dislike me enough to do such a vile, diabolical, malignant sort of thing. The obvious intent was that someone really wanted to cause trouble for me, but who was the question?

An institution such as the Medical Center is an abnormal environment to say the least and a place where it is difficult

D-74103107

to be friendly to everyone. I am a reserved person by nature; I have preferred not to become involved in the complex problems of the average person around me here. In the psychopathology of some of the people I have found in this type of institution even that sort of attitude is sometimes resented and can be taken as an affront. It is amazing how small things can become a major stimuli to resentment and anger in such an environment. An injured ego can become dangerous.

The institution permits uncensored and sealed letters to be mailed out by the inmates to Senators, Congressmen, and etc. The note was apparently mailed from this institution in the period of from September 7th to the 12th. I have had to go back and think out who I could have offended in even the most minor way since I have been here. It is a can of worms to try and figure out the motivations of some of these people. After a great deal of serious thought I pinned it down to one individual who was transferred to the U.S. Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pennsylvania in the immediate time interval coinciding with the mailing of the note. I am more than 90% certain as to his responsibility for writing the note and printing my name on it. It would be his way of doing evil.

I have cooperated with [redacted] to the very best of my ability in tracking the thing down. I have given him specimens of my own printing and offered to take a polygraph or any other test to absolve myself of any responsibility for the matter. I am absolutely certain of the intent of the person who put my name to the note which was mailed to you; it was to cause trouble and worry for me. He certainly picked the most vulnerable way to harm me.

I have a deep empathy for your anxieties and worries; I would certainly not wish to add one iota to your personal burdens. I know that you and members of your family have gone out of your way many times to assist and help the unfortunate. I personally hope that you will enjoy a long, happy, and successful tenure in the Senate.

I know that this is a strange letter under the circumstances, but I felt you deserved an explanation. I hope it will allay any anxiety on your part. It was a bad thing to happen to me at this particular time, because I am trying to do my utmost to put the pieces of my own life back together so I can do something constructive in the future. It has been an uphill battle for me to put my own house in order and it has really hurt to know that someone would do such a weird thing to hurt me.

b6

I want to thank you for your indulgence. I hope that it will provide you information and understanding. With my best personal regards for the health and happiness of your family, I remain.

Q13 One-page handwritten letter dated 11/6/74, beginning "Dear Sir; I'm writing to ..." and signed [redacted]

Q14 Envelope bearing hand printed address "FedeRAL BuREAU OF iNVegATioN SpRiNgFieLD, MissouRI 65802"

Result of examination:

It was determined that the handwritten name and accompanying address on specimen Q1, previously submitted, were written by the writer of Q13. The hand printing on Q14 was compared with the hand printing on Q2 through Q10. Since the hand printing on Q14 is somewhat limited a detailed comparison could not be made with the voluminous amount of hand printing on Q2 through Q10. Consequently, on the basis of the available material, it could not be definitely determined whether the writer of Q14 did or did not prepare any of the hand printing in question on Q2 through Q10. However, as a matter of information, some characteristics in common in this material indicate the possibility that the writer of Q14 may have prepared the hand printing on Q2 through Q10.

The submitted items have been photographed and are returned herewith to the addressee.

Remymemo dated 12/30/83.

On the morning of 12/30/83, the writer interviewed Senator Tower at his residence, 20 Kaloramo Circle, N.W., WDC. At that time Tower advised there have been no additional telephone calls of the nature received on the previous day. Tower reiterated that no direct threats were made during the calls and it is now his opinion that the calls were no more than harrassment and the caller may not of known whose residence he was calling.

Senator Tower was advised of the Bureau's jurisdiction and investigative steps (consensual monitoring and trap and trace) that would be taken if threats were made. Tower advised he did not feel such steps would be necessary at this time. He was provided with the home telephone number and beeper number of the writer should additional calls be received during the holiday weekend. Tower also requested of U.S. Capitol Police Sgt. [redacted] [redacted] present during interview, that the USCP protective detail assigned to him be removed. b6 per b7C FBI

On 4/13/84, [redacted] again contacted [redacted] to advise that CUMMINGS was still experiencing problems with her telephone. CUMMINGS was allegedly suffering:

1. Beeping and other static on the line.

2. Cross conversations.

3. Improperly functioning call-waiting.

4. Telephone ringing and no caller being there.

5. A problem in calling telephone number [redacted] (listed to a [redacted]

6. "Obscene" telephone calls.

CUMMINGS was contacted and stated that, in addition to the above, she picked up her telephone once and heard someone she claims had earlier called, in what CUMMINGS described an an obscene telephone call, talking to a child. CUMMINGS hung up. CUMMINGS stated she had received an obscene telephone call on Tuesday, 4/10/84, and Wednesday, 4/11/84, between 10:00 and 11:00 p.m. CUMMINGS did not describe what these obscene calls consisted of.

[redacted] advised, at CUMMINGS' verbal request, a trap was set up on her telephone line on 4/13/84, at 4:33 p.m. (verbal permission was received at 4:23 p.m.). CUMMINGS was instructed to keep a record of the obscene or questionable telephone calls she received, as well as a record of the mechanical problems she was having with the line.

CUMMINGS did this, and from 4/15/84 through 4/21/84, numerous occurrences of noises on the line, cross conversations, malfunctioning in the call-waiting system, and questionable calls or wrong numbers were recorded by CUMMINGS.

[redacted] explained that the trap will record the following information concerning telephone calls: The trap will record the date and time of an incoming call and will record the telephone number as well, if it is in the same exchange as the number being called. If the exchange is not the same, the different exchange will be recorded, as well as the trunk group the call came from.

[redacted] stated that CUMMINGS made numerous entries of the telephone ringing and no one being on the line, and of unknown callers asking for locations such as the PITTS HOTEL. [redacted] explained that, in some cases, no calls were recorded on the trap. Additionally, the "wrong number" telephone calls reflected no pattern, as the calls originated from several different locations.

[redacted] advised C & P was approaching CUMMINGS' complaints from a mechanical standpoint as a first step, attempting to discover if her complaints have a basis in equipment malfunctioning. But [redacted] related that, after extensive checking, no mechanical problem had yet been located.

[redacted] then stated CUMMINGS' problems might be caused by an electronic surveillance device which had been poorly installed. This would account for no records being made of some of the telephone calls CUMMINGS claimed she received. This might also account for some of the noises and malfunctions CUMMINGS claimed occurred on the line.

[redacted] advised C & P Telephone Company would maintain the trap and attempt to locate any subjects or suspects who might be making harassing telephone calls to CUMMINGS' residence. Additionally, [redacted] intends to switch CUMMINGS' lines so as to eliminate the possibility of a mechanical problem.

On 5/4/84, a "sweep" was conducted of CUMMINGS' residence, and no electronic surveillance devices were located. (Sweep conducted by USCP.) During this process, CUMMINGS stated she habitually washes her telephones by submerging them in hot water. The sweep proved negative.

The writer will maintain contact with USCP and C & P Security concerning this matter. Until such time as investigative leads develop in this matter, it will remain in a closed status.

Result of examination:

The questioned handwriting and the typewriting on the specimens described above were compared with the appropriate sections of the Anonymous Letter File without effecting an identification. Representative copies are being added to the file for future reference.

The typewriting on the original from which the copy, Q2, was prepared corresponds to the standard for Underwood Pica style of type spaced ten letters to the inch. The typewriting on Q2 is too limited to permit definite determination of the name of the manufacturer. However, this typewriting resembles Underwood Pica style of type, spaced ten letters to the inch.

The typewriting on Q3 and Q4 is different from the typewriting on Q1 and Q2. The typewriting on Q3 and Q4 corresponds to the standard for L C Smith Pica style of type, spaced ten letters to the inch.

Q2 has fragments of the watermark "HAMMERMILL MIMEO-BOND, MADE IN U. S. A." This watermark is used by the Hammermill Paper Company, Erie, Pennsylvania. Q4 has the watermark "Highland Linen" which is used by Eaton, Crane and Pike Division of Milroy Envelopes and Stationery, Ltd., 250 Dovle Avenue, Toronto 10, Ontario, Canada. No watermarks were found in Q1 and Q3. Q1 is a white envelope measuring approximately 7.5 x 3.5 inches. Q2 is a sheet of white paper measuring approximately 11 x 8.5 inches. Q3 is a white envelope measuring approximately 6.0 x 3.2 inches. Q4 is a sheet of white paper measuring approximately 10 x 6.7 inches.

Due to variations, it was not possible to determine whether the signature on Q4 and the questioned writing on Q3 were written by one person.

Q1 through Q5 are retained in the Bureau's files.

Who is this Young Punk - John Tower?

He flunked out of law school at SMU - where he had a well known reputation for drinking and gambling and liberal politics. Ask his classmates. They are ardent [redacted] supporters because they know John T. for what he is.

He studied at the ultra liberal London School of Economics, not to learn about socialism so he could better serve the conservative cause, but to further liberalism. This is evidenced by the fact that he supported Harry Truman in 1948 (quote from Tower interview in The Texas Observer Feb. 11, 1961). Most real conservatives were voting for J. Strom Thurmond.

When he married the daughter of a wealthy Wichita Falls Republican, he immediately became a brass collar Republican, dropping Harry by the wayside.

Take a look at sets of notes taken by Professor Tower's students. His favorite recommended reading - "Death of a Salesman."

Tower has been endorsed by [redacted] of Houston and The Texas Observer, the liberal voice of Texas. Quote from April 29 issue b6 b7C
"But a vote for [redacted] would be a vote for the worst enemies of Liberalism in Texas - the fanatical right wingers who have wrapped themselves in the stolen banners of Democrats."

They go on to say that Tower's election would help [redacted] position in Washington - this because Senator [redacted] WOULD CONTROL EVERY FEDERAL APPOINTMENT IN TEXAS FOR THE NEXT 5½ years. Mr. Tower would not have a voice in such matters.

Further they say "Electing [redacted] is like sending the bottom side of a sandwich to Washington - - [redacted] the barbecue to go between. [redacted] could cancel out [redacted]s authority on patronage - - [redacted] would tear up [redacted] at every turn."

Since Professor Tower has had to call in outside help, we are looking forward, with great pleasure, to the arrival of [redacted] and Mr. Rockefeller to campaign on Tower's behalf. No doubt they could set the record straight on John T's liberalism.

Mr. Tower was on the Platform Committee last year at the Republican Convention and he and Rocky smoothed things out behind closed doors and came out "arm in arm" with a piece of paper so full of liberalism that it stunk. Even [redacted] "went along to get along" for the sake of furthering the Republican "cause" not conservatism.

We are facing critical situations in every nook and cranny of the world today. DON'T SEND A BOY TO DO A MAN'S JOB.

Dear [redacted]

Please again accept my admiration and thanks for your efforts in helping defeat that McCarthyite [redacted]. As it proved few decent liberals and few of our Negro brothers could find the stomach to vote for him after the way he abused [redacted].

Forgive me for having misjudged you. I never thought you'd be on the side of the Texas Observer, and the Washington Post. I hope Senator Yarborough holds a victory dinner to express his gratitude for ever having elected him then now in strengthening his power.

Mr. Johnson and Mr. Rayburn must be very pleased, as I am, that at last the Dixiecrat element has been put in its proper place.

Yours most sincerely,

Senate in the Special Texas Election on May 27, 1961. [redacted] stated that she promptly turned this circular over to [redacted] of the Dallas County Republican Executive Committee. [redacted] stated she knew of only one other individual who had received a similar circular. [redacted] stated she had no idea as to who could have sent this circular to her; however, she and the other individual who received this circular were both formerly active Democratic Party workers, working for the conservative section of the Democratic Party. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated she had been an active campaign worker for [redacted] in 1957, however, in 1961, she transferred to the Republican Party and was an active campaign worker for Senator JOHN TOWER. [redacted] made available a handwritten post card, postmarked May 24, 1961, signed by a [redacted]. This card allegedly praised [redacted] for helping [redacted] and she stated it was obviously an attempt to ridicule her support for Senator TOWER. This card read as follows:

The following is submitted for record purposes:

On 7/13/61 Governmental Attorney [redacted] telephoned Supervisor [redacted] and politely inquired as to when he could expect a report in the John Tower case above. [redacted] b6 b7C when advised a report was forwarded to him by memorandum dated 7/7/61, said he would cause a search to be made at the Department and would notify [redacted] of the results. He subsequently advised he had found the report in question and apparently the Department's mail room was having problems.

On 7/13/61 Governmental Attorney [redacted] telephoned Supervisor [redacted] to advise he would be in Monroe, Louisiana, on 7/16 or 7/17/61 in connection with the Government's suit against [redacted] Registrar of Voters, East Carroll Parish. He said he believed the Jackson Parish investigation would be completed by then and requested the Department's copy of the report be furnished to him at Monroe. [redacted] advised [redacted] this report had been forwarded to the Civil Rights Division on 7/7/61 and [redacted] should have it. [redacted] expressed amazement that he didn't have it and volunteered he had a special stop in his mail room on this report. He said he would have this report located and [redacted] b6 b7C would only call [redacted] if it could not be found. [redacted] received no additional calls from [redacted] regarding this matter.

It should be noted that both [redacted] and [redacted] were polite, were not demanding and apparently initiated inquiries on their own.

"Q3 Envelope postmarked 'DALLAS, TEX. 3 May 20 1961 5-PM' bearing typewritten address [redacted] Dallas 5, Texas'

"Q4 Accompanying one-page typewritten letter dated May 20, 1961 signed [redacted]

"Q5 Postal card postmarked 'DALLAS, TEX 6 May 24 1961 10-PM' bearing handwritten address [redacted] Dallas 5, Texas' and message on reverse side signed [redacted]

"Results of examination:

"The questioned handwriting and the typewriting on the specimens described above were compared with the appropriate sections of the Anonymous Letter File without effecting an identification.

"The typewriting on the original from which the copy, Q2, was prepared corresponds to the standard for Underwood Pica style of type spaced ten letters to the inch. The typewriting on Q1 is too limited to permit definite determination of the name of the manufacturer. However, this typewriting resembles Underwood Pica style of type, spaced ten letters to the inch.

"The typewriting on Q3 and Q4 is different from the typewriting on Q1 and Q2. The typewriting on Q3 and Q4 corresponds to the standard for L C Smith Pica style of type, spaced ten letters to the inch.

'Highland Linen' which is used by Eaton, Crane and Pike Division of Hilroy Envelopes and Stationery, Ltd., 250 Dowie Avenue, Toronto 10, Ontario, Canada. No watermarks were found in Q1 and Q3.. Q1 is a white envelope measuring approximately 9.5 x 4.1 inches. Q2 is a sheet of white paper measuring approximately 11 x 8.5 inches. Q3 is a white envelope measuring approximately 6.9 x 3.9 inches. Q4 is a sheet of white paper measuring approximately 10 x 6.7 inches.

"Due to variations, it was not possible to determine whether the signature on Q4 and the questioned writing on Q5 were written by one person."

WHERE DO THE U.S. SENATE CANDIDATES STAND?

JOHN TOWER

BAREFOOT SANDERS
DEMOCRAT

ON ETHICS:

John Tower voted against full financial disclosure by Senators and their staffs (March 20, 1968) and against limiting campaign spending (Sept. 23, 1970). During three years he admitted collecting $63,600 in speaking fees and other monies from special interest groups.

BAREFOOT SANDERS FAVORS all legislation to promote high ethics among governmental officials. He has promised to introduce measures limiting outside fees which can be collected by elected officials.

ON THE ENVIRONMENT:

Tower voted against the Wilderness Act (April 3, 1963) against grants to states and local governments to improve water quality (January 28, 1965), for federal funding of the SST (March 24, 1971) and for extending the deadline for production of pollution-free automobiles (Sept. 22, 1970). He has consistently opposed creation of a Big Thicket National Park.

SANDERS SUPPORTS governmental efforts to require polluters to pay the major cost of cleaning up the environment. He also favors the proposed Clean Air Act which would set rigorous standards for auto emissions and is a proponent of a Big Thicket Park.

ON CONSUMER LEGISLATION:

Tower voted against creation of a Food, Drug and Consumer Product Agency to protect consumers (June 21, 1972), against funds for development of a model safe car (Dec. 17, 1969) and was absent on votes to curb abuse of credit cards (April 15, 1970) and to pass the Flammable Fabrics Act (June 16, 1972).

SANDERS SAYS: "We must restore the consumer's confidence in American goods. Concern for the consumer should rank with concern for new materials, new ideas, new means of production and new methods of marketing as an industry goal."

ON LEGISLATION TO BENEFIT THE ELDERLY:

Tower voted against Medicare (Sept. 8, 1964) against increasing Social Security benefits (April 18, 1967) and was absent on votes increasing Social Security benefits in 1970 and 1971.

SANDERS HAS continually supported programs to improve living conditions for elderly Americans, and for increase and improvement of Social Security and Medicare programs.

ON HUMAN RIGHTS:

Tower voted against the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (June 19, 1964), against the National Voter Registration Act of 1972 (March 15, 1972) against the Equal Opportunities Enforcement Act of 1972 (February 22, 1972) and voted to delay allowing 18-year-olds the right to vote until 1976.

BAREFOOT SANDERS as President Lyndon Johnson's legislative assistant was primarily responsible for the preparation and passage of major legislation in the area of human rights.

ON FEDERAL EMPLOYEES:

Tower voted against including federal and other governmental employees under the minimum wage law (July 19, 1972) and voted against federal pay raises (Oct. 6, 1971 and July 2, 1964).

SANDERS SUPPORTS a professional corps of federal employees able to compete job for job and salary for salary with the private sector.

ON HEALTH CARE:

Tower voted against funding the Hill-Burton program for hospital construction (June 30, 1970), against providing loans to medical, dental and osteopathy students (Sept. 12, 1963) and was absent on the vote for a $9.5 million appropriation for the University of Texas Dental School at San Antonio.

SANDERS CONSIDERS the right to quality health care a basic human right in our affluent age. He favors proposals to improve both quality and availability of health care.

ON EDUCATION:

Tower voted against an increase in higher education funds (June 25, 1970), against a five year program for construction of higher education facilities (Dec. 10, 1968) and against an increase in student loan funds (Aug. 12, 1969) and was absent but announced support for reduction in funds for orphans and other children lacking parental support (Nov. 6, 1970).

SANDERS IS FOR quality education and for programs to maintain educational institutions at all levels.

SANDERS IS FOR increased federal support for vocational and technical training.

ON THE JOB OF SENATOR:

Tower has posted a Senate absentee record as high as 47 percent in a single year and recorded "below average" attendance in nine of his eleven years in office.

TOWER SPECIAL

This special investigation arises out of the potential nomination of JOHN TOWER as the Secretary of Defense. During the course of the ILLWIND investigation certain information has been obtained containing allegations of impropriety on the part of TOWER. These are only allegations at this point and were generally made second hand. As a result of the SPIN investigation being conducted on TOWER the FBI is going to try to resolve the questions and issues which have arisen out of the ILLWIND investigation.

Toward this end ILLWIND agents (with help as necessary from other WMFO agents) will be conducting a series of interviews to resolve these questions. These assignments will be made by SA [redacted] who will be in charge of the command post during this investigation. The command post will be in the main conference room at the Atrium. During the course of this special inquiry all agents should be on one hour availability. In addition Each agent should advise [redacted] of their whereabouts.

The results of this investigation will be disseminated to FBIHQ, DOJ and possibly the White House. In addition there may be publicity surrounding this investigation and TOWER's possible nomination. Investigation should be conducted accordingly. If there are any media inquiries to any agent the answer should be that we have no comment and any additional inquiries should be addressed to [redacted], WMFO media representative (phone number [redacted]) b6 b7C

SCOPE OF INTERVIEWS

This special investigation is focused on the narrow issues regarding TOWER that have come up during the ILLWIND investigation. The interviews should focus only on those issues and not encompass broader ILLWIND issues that may relate to the individual being interviewed. (For Example--The ILLWIND investigation has uncovered numerous allegations concerning [redacted] one of which includes his relationship with TOWER. During his interview in connection with this TOWER investigation [redacted] will only be asked about his relationship with TOWER and not any of the other allegations or information concerning [redacted]) An interview outline will be prepared for each interview. In addition, any other general background information on the interviewee will be provided. However, this information is being provided for the use of the agents only and is not to be used during the interview.

If at any time during the interviews, the individual being interviewed requests an attorney, or otherwise indicates that he doesn't want to answer questions, the interview should be immediate terminated.

This investigation has to be completed and reported to FBIHO no later than Monday morning, 12/5/88. THEREFORE ALL LEADS MUST BE COVERED AND WRITTEN UP ON AN EXPEDITE BASES. ALL LEADS MUST BE REPORTED INCLUDING NEGATIVE RESULTS.

TITLE III INFORMATION

A portion of the information regarding TOWER comes from TITLE III intercepts. TITLE 18 precludes this use of these intercepts for other than a law enforcement purpose. Therefore, we will not play any TITLE III intercepts during the interviews. In addition we should not allude to any TITLE III intercepts or indicate that any of the information we have came from TITLE III intercepts.

You will be provided a background memo regarding the information concerning TOWER. As with all ILLWIND documents, this is a sensitive document and should not be discussed except on a need to know basis.

John Tower

I. Introduction

Mr. Tower was born 9/29/25. Running as a Texas Republican, Tower was elected to the US Senate in a special election 5/27/61. He was subsequently reelected in 1966, 1972, and 1978. In 1978, Tower was the ranking minority member of the Senate Armed Services Committee and was also on the SASC Subcommittee on General Procurement.

In 1983 Tower was Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee (without a directory, I am not sure, but I assume that Tower became Chairman in 1980, when I believe Republicans gained control of the Senate). At the time he was also a member of the Subcommittees on Strategic and Theater Nuclear Forces and on Sea Power and Force Projection.

Tower left the Senate at the end of the 1984 term; he was then appointed a US Negotiator on strategic arms in Geneva.

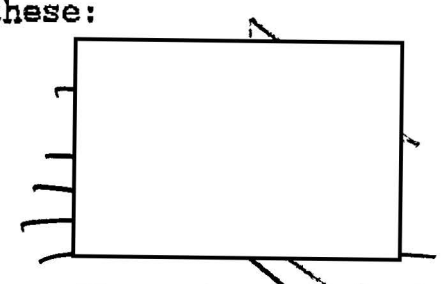
Tower was named by President Reagan to head a commission (dubbed the Tower Commission) regarding the Iran/contra affair.

Recently he has been named as President-Elect Bush's likely choice for Secretary of Defense.

II. Illwind investigation

Mr. Tower's name has come up in several contexts during the ILLWIND investigation. Because former Senator Tower's involvement with subjects of ILLWIND arose during his term in the Senate, the interceptions which deal with Tower are of historical interest. For the most part, Tower did not appear to be involved with ILLWIND subjects or their DOD programs contemporaneous with ILLWIND T-III's.

The ILLWIND subjects who have claimed some involvement with Mr. Tower, or who at one time worked directly with him include these:



b6

The primary role in which Tower allegedly was involved to the benefit of ILLWIND subjects was on behalf of Sperry. It is known through documents obtained by search and subpoena that Tower, while heading the SASC, supported the funding of the MK 92 fire control upgrade.

During this time period, [redacted] to Sperry. [redacted] and others have referred to close connections to Tower. [redacted] also dealt during the T-III with [redacted]. [redacted] allegedly was able to have Tower affect the funding to a program of importance to Sperry. It seems likely that this was the CORT program, but there is only scant evidence upon which to base that speculation.

In addition, Tower was the recipient of campaign contributions made with money from Sperry, and given in violation of FEC rules; however, there is currently no evidence that Tower knew that the contributions were illegally obtained. Sperry employees may also have assisted with at least one of his campaigns in some other fashion.

Finally, [redacted] an individual from Texas who is thought to [redacted] boasted to [redacted] of his personal connections to Tower and of favors Tower had done for him.

The following sections set out in greater detail the alleged involvement of Tower in matters which have arisen in the ILLWIND case, or with subjects of that case.

III. Sperry-Unisys related matters

A. [redacted]

These three individuals were all staff to the SASC when Tower was the ranking minority member of SASC (in 1978). In addition, [redacted] to the SASC subcommittee [redacted] of which Tower was a member.

b6

[redacted] to Sperry Unisys and were all involved in [redacted] scheme for using corporate funds to generate campaign contributions in violation of the FEC rules. [redacted] in particular gave contributions to Tower through the [redacted] operation.

No other information has been identified to date which connects these 3 individuals to activities by Tower while Tower was in the Senate.

B. [redacted]

Analytically, [redacted] information about [redacted] probably comes through [redacted] assertions rather than through first-hand knowledge.

However, the following items support the possibility that [redacted] was involved in some fashion with both Sperry and Tower: b6 b7C

--[redacted] received a total of [redacted] from Sperry through [redacted] Most of that money was received in [redacted]

b3

--[redacted] was intercepted in conversation with [redacted]

--In a conversation with [redacted] on [redacted]

C. Connections to Sperry

Aside from the Sperry connections of [redacted] records reflect [redacted] designated for Tower, and a folder found in [redacted] was labelled [redacted] for Tower's 1984 Campaign."[3] b6 b7C

In addition, a letter from Tower to [redacted] dated 1/26/82, was found in [redacted] office.

Conclusion

There is some circumstantial evidence that Tower, like [redacted] may have been the recipient of generous campaign contributions through Sperry and may have [redacted] b6 b7C from the Navy.

Tower would have been an obvious target for attempted influence by Sperry, partly because of his position on SASC, and partly because he apparently had close ties to [redacted] In addition, [redacted] worked for Tower. In addition, in 1983 at least he was a member of the SASC Subcommittee on Seapower, where legislation concerning MK 92 and CORT would need to originate. b6 b7C

V. Other Matters

An article in the 2/1/88 Legal Times focused on the C-FIN procurement. The article quoted 2 Senate sources as saying that Retired Senator John Tower called the Air Force Undersecretary James McGovern[7], and SASC Staff Director Arnold Punaro, on behalf of British Aerospace and its subcontractor LTV, in an effort to influence the C-FIN procurement. The article said that Tower was on the board of British Aerospace and was a consultant to LTV.

The article also said that "Tower, who is not registered as a British Aerospace lobbyist or agent, declined repeated requests for comment."

ADMINISTRATIVE SECTION

Both the ILLWIND investigation and this special TOWER investigation are sensitive matters and are not to be discussed except on a strict need to know basis.

You will be provided a background memo regarding the information concerning TOWER. As with all ILLWIND documents, this is a sensitive document and should not be discussed except on a need to know basis.

The Following individuals names were obtained either through search and subpoena records, or through Title III intercepts in FBI Illwind investigation (Major Case 14). Persons listed are either confirmed or proposed contributors to Senator John Tower, primarily while he acted as Chairmen for the Senate Armed Services Committee in the early 1980's.

How was the contribution delivered (ie, did he personally deliver the contribution, or was his check delivered by another party)? If the latter was the case, describe the mechanism. b6 b7C

The Illwind investigation has identified an extensive money laundering network, primarily emanating from Sperry/Unisys and Kane Paper in Great Neck and Long Island, N.Y. [redacted] networks are comprised of numerous individuals who receive large sums of money through Purchase Order agreements, many of which were set up to reimburse them for certain directed political contributions. Tower is referenced, in certain investigative data obtained to date, as a recipient of some of these funds; however no information developed has revealed that Tower was aware of these contributions, or took any specific action to benefit the contributors.

These individuals should be asked the circumstances surrounding the contribution: why did they give the contribution to Tower; did anyone ask them to or recommend that they do so? If so, who and under what circumstances? was the contribution made in return for a actions done or to be done by Senator Tower? IE, was it their understanding that the contributions were related to Tower's support of any Sperry programs--and if so, explain. Were they reimbursed for their contribution? If so, how and at whose instruction? How was the contribution delivered--ie, did they each deliver their contributions directly to Tower, or were the checks given to a third person for delivery to Tower? Tower's Lucrative Oil Investment in 1981 Raises Questions on Role in U.S. Judge's Nomination

By David Rogers
Staff Reporter of The Wall Street Journal

WASHINGTON—As a Texas senator, John Tower profited from a lucrative oil investment arranged in 1981 with the help of a Corpus Christi lawyer whose son Mr. Tower had named for nomination to the federal bench only weeks before.

Financial disclosure forms filed by Mr. Tower indicate he put up no capital of his own and financed his entire investment with a five-year $108,000 promissory note from a now-defunct San Antonio bank. The money served to purchase machinery, which was then leased to a Corpus Christi drilling firm under terms that allowed the senator to pay off the note while profiting from the rental payments and resale of the equipment in 1986.

John Tower

Though a precise total isn't available of Mr. Tower's earnings, the resale price was approximately $25,000 and Mr. Tower himself estimated in 1986 that he was netting $600 a month, or $7,200 annually, after making payments on the loan.

The late Hayden Head Sr., then a prominent conservative lawyer in Corpus Christi, was instrumental in arranging the transaction, according to people familiar with the former senator's finances. The transaction closely coincided with the appointment of the lawyer's son, Hayden Head Jr., to the federal bench, with Mr. Tower playing an active role on his behalf before and after the execution of the note in May 1981.

Denies 'Quid Pro Quo'

A spokesman for Mr. Tower "absolutely" denied there had been any "quid pro quo" between the oil investment and judicial nomination. But the sequence of events raises more questions of the type that has troubled the Senate Armed Services Committee in reviewing Mr. Tower's nomination to be defense secretary.

In recent years, the former senator has earned an estimated $750,000 as a consultant to major Pentagon contractors, and committee members have expressed concern about both the sums involved and his ability to make decisions that will affect his former clients.

Amid the continued controversy around Mr. Tower, the oil transaction has gone almost unnoticed. White House counsel C. Boyden Gray said yesterday that he was unfamiliar with the matter or whether the Federal Bureau of Investigation had questioned any of those involved.

The latest FBI report on its checks into Mr. Tower was forwarded to the Senate committee late yesterday, and the administration hopes to use this vehicle to pressure for a vote on the nomination before the end of the week.

Meeting With Gray

Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn (D., Ga.) said yesterday that he hopes to have a vote this week. Mr. Gray came to Capitol Hill last night to meet with Mr. Nunn and the committee's ranking Republican, Sen. John Warner of Virginia, regarding the latest FBI report.

President Bush met earlier in the day with Mr. Gray on the 140-page FBI report, according to White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, who said: "The report shows no reason why Sen. Tower should not be confirmed, in our judgment." He added, "The president urges that Sen. Tower be confirmed as soon as possible."

At the time of his nomination in 1981, the younger Mr. Head, then 36 years old, had the support of distinguished members of the Texas bar. But none was more important politically than Mr. Tower. As the state's senior Republican, Mr. Tower had virtual control over federal judgeships in Texas. In the first years of the Reagan administration, says one Democrat familiar with the Senate and Texas politics, "Anyone who was named to the bench—he was named by Tower."

Mr. Tower recommended the nomination in March 1981 to President Reagan, who forwarded Mr. Head's name to Congress in September. Mr. Tower later appeared on Mr. Head's behalf before the Senate Judiciary Committee but never mentioned any relationship with the nominee's father, according to committee records of the October 1981 hearing. Sen. Charles Grassley (R., Iowa), a committee member, cited the young nominee's "relative lack of trial experience," but the younger Mr. Head was confirmed two weeks later by the full Senate on Oct. 21.

'Deeply Respected'

As a federal district court judge in Corpus Christi, he continues to serve on the bench and denied any knowledge of what his father's role was in the transaction. "That may mean something on the face of it to you," he said. "It doesn't mean anything to me. The whole state of Texas deeply respected my father, and I've done a damn fine job as a judge."

Though his exact role is unclear, the elder Mr. Head—who was killed in a plane crash in July 1987—was well situated to assist the senator. He and Mr. Tower were mutual friends of James Storm, whose firm, Marine Drilling, leased the equipment. The lawyer also was close personally to a senior director at Mercantile Bank in San Antonio, which wrote the loan.

"Hayden Head was the one who brought the deal to him," said a Tower associate last week. Yesterday, the same associate, who is helping the senator in his confirmation fight, said he may have overstated Mr. Head's role. But a second person familiar with Mr. Tower's finances identified Mr. Head as the person who "set up" the deal, and notations in Mr. Tower's papers allude to Mr. Head in connection with the investment.

ing to Mr. Tower's financial disorms, the machinery, known as a out preventer," was purchased May 81, and financed by a $108,000 note n the Mercantile Bank. The terms ap- ear unusually favorable, with interest set at only one point above the federal discount rate during the life of the loan. Security was provided by the lease arrangement. In the heyday of oil exploration, simply acquiring the equipment was something of a coup, according to people familiar with the industry.

'There's No End'

Mr. Storm, who confirmed that Marine Drilling had a "deal" with Mr. Tower, declined to release the terms of the lease. "We're digging into something where there's no end," he said. A prominent figure in Corpus Christi, he was friendly himself with the senator and said he couldn't recall what role Mr. Head might have had in the transaction.

"I was very glad to get it," the driller said of the equipment, which is a system of valves that serves to protect against blowouts when a rig hits a pocket of high pressure—in this case offshore. "I hope he made some money on it."

Apart from charges of conflict-of-interest, Mr. Tower remains dogged by allegations regarding his drinking and relations with women. Senior staff members of the Armed Services panel met yesterday with Berne Indahl, a State Department security officer who investigated allegations of security breaches in a U.S. arms control delegation of which Mr. Tower was a member after leaving the Senate.

Mr. Indahl is likely to testify in executive session before the House Energy and Commerce Committee tomorrow on a related matter, and his presence in the Capitol has fanned allegations of Mr. Tower having personal relations with women staff at the arms talks in Geneva.

Number of Charges

As early as last week, law enforcement officials said the FBI report would clear Mr. Tower of allegations regarding illegal campaign contributions and free transportation provided by an arms contractor. But the committee remains troubled by the sheer number of charges—less easily refuted—that require senators to make personal and often subjective judgments about Mr. Tower's behavior.

There is concern about his drinking, particularly about a period in the 1970s. Much of the FBI reports received to date by the panel have been more a compilation of statements by individuals and make no firm conclusions. "We're up to our hip boots," said Mr. Warner, who remained closeted with Mr. Nunn even after Mr. Gray had returned to the White House.

The long confirmation process has aggravated both sides, and Mr. Nunn has resented suggestions that he is pursuing his own agenda of weakening the secretary or holding up other Pentagon business.

"There's no 50-car pileup," said one Democratic staff member of Armed Services, denying a report that other nominations for civilian defense posts have been put on hold by the committee. "We don't act on nominations until we receive them,

On December 9, 1988, [redacted] provided Special Agent [redacted] with three bank checks pertaining to consulting activities between former U.S. Senator JOHN TOWER and himself. A review of the checks revealed the following information:

(1) Check number 1193, drawn on the account of [redacted] & ASSOCIATES INC., account number [redacted] at the BURKE & HERBERT BANK & TRUST CO., Alexandria, Va., dated 10/2/86, made payable to JOHN G. TOWER, in the amount of $ 2577.00, and referenced "consulting services" ;

(2) Check number 1275, drawn on the account of [redacted] & ASSOCIATES INC., account number [redacted] at the BURKE & HERBERT BANK & TRUST CO., Alexandria, Va., dated 3/16/87, made payable to JOHN G. TOWER, in the amount of $ 2500.00, and referenced "consulting services" ;

(3) Check number 1363, drawn on the account of [redacted] & ASSOCIATES INC., account number [redacted] at the BURKE & HERBERT BANK & TRUST CO., Alexandria, Va., dated 9/10/87, made payable to JOHN G. TOWER, in the amount of $ 2500.00, and referenced "consulting fee" .

[redacted] advised that checks (1) and (2) represented his payment to TOWER of one-half of the $ 10,000.00 consulting fee [redacted] charged [redacted] for arranging a meeting with TOWER so that [redacted] and TOWER could discuss a problem [redacted] was having in [redacted] split the fee with TOWER 50%-50% as was customary in referrals such as this. The fee was paid in two installments because [redacted] did not have sufficient funds to pay the entire fee at once. The extra $77.00 on the first check to TOWER represented expenses of some nature, although [redacted] could not remember any details. [redacted] still could not remember the exact date of the meeting, but he received the first payment from [redacted] shortly after the meeting occurred and sent TOWER his portion of the fee soon thereafter.

Receiving fees in installments was not unusual in [redacted] consulting business since many of his clients were small businesses that had to be concerned with their cash flow. [redacted] had no other written documentation regarding this transaction, and reiterated that he was not certain if the payment actually came from [redacted] or [redacted] was certain, however, that this transaction occurred after both he and TOWER had left the government.

Check number (3) represented a split between [redacted] and TOWER of another consulting fee from one of [redacted] clients. [redacted] could not remember the specific transaction that this fee resulted from, but he was positive that it did not involve the [redacted]/TOWER matter discussed above. These three checks represent all of the consulting matters in which [redacted] and TOWER have been involved in together.

Copies (front and back) of the three checks are attached hereto.

WEBER explained that he is a member of the LONG ISLAND AEROPAC POLITICAL ACTION COMMITTEE which is run by [redacted] of the [redacted] WEBER has been a member of AEROPAC since its beginning in the early 1980's and has made numerous political contributions through this organization over the years. He assumes that the $1000 check for Senator TOWER was as a result of a solicitation from AEROPAC but he has no recollection of who called him to make the contribution. Most of his contact with AEROPAC has been primarily with [redacted] and occasionally with [redacted] and both of these individuals have asked him to make political contributions. [redacted] never solicited money from WEBER. WEBER would contribute $5,000 per year to various candidates who were specified by AEROPAC. He has recently cut his annual contributions down to $3,500 per year particularly with the closing of one of his customers, the FAIRCHILD CORPORATION and the subsequent loss of business. In the past his usual political contribution amounts averaged between $200 and $500 per contribution and WEBER commented that the $1000 to Senator TOWER constituted one of his larger contributions. He has no idea why TOWER was selected to receive contributions by AEROPAC. He said that the objectives of AEROPAC were to educate Congressman about Long Island and it's businesses. WEBER said he knows very little about Senator TOWER, except for what he reads in the papers and has never met the Senator.

WEBA, INC. is a manufacturer of airplane components. One of its customers is the GRUMMAN CORPORATION.

[redacted] was interviewed by Special Agents [redacted] and [redacted] at the United States Attorney's office for the Eastern District of Virginia, Alexandria Virginia. Gardner advised as follows:

Prior to 1980 the Democrats controlled Congress. In 1980 the Republicans became the majority party in the Senate and Senator John Tower assumed the position of the Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. At the time [redacted] for the Sperry Corporation, Great Neck, New York, was attempting to gain congressional support for the FFG7 MK 92 radar program. [redacted] said that Sperry was pursuing funding for the MK 92 which was a program that the Navy didn't want. During this period in early 1980 the House of Representatives was supportive of the program. However, [redacted] was advised by [redacted] and [redacted] that the Senate was not supporting the program. [redacted] stated that he began looking for help in the Senate and began asking around Washington to see if anyone had any contacts that could be helpful on the Senate side regarding the program.

[redacted] contacted [redacted] and gave him the name of [redacted] as someone who could help. [redacted] described [redacted] as someone who knew John Tower and who had previously been on Tower's staff. During this time period, [redacted] was a paid consultant for Sperry who was engaged in [redacted] agreed to pay [redacted] through a purchase order arrangement and understood that [redacted] would in turn compensate [redacted] for [redacted] efforts on behalf of Sperry. [redacted] advised that he recalled the name of [redacted] (or something similar) as an individual on Tower's staff that [redacted] mentioned. Although [redacted] did not remember who brought it up, it was his understanding, at this meeting, that if Sperry could arrange campaign contributions for Tower, it would be helpful in obtaining support for the program. [redacted] recalled committing between 10 - 20 thousand dollars in contributions. [redacted] indicated that these contributions would have been made by various consultants who were receiving reimbursement through purchase orders with Sperry. [redacted] further stated that these contributions would have been made in the names of the consultants and their families. [redacted] stated that the consultants used by Sperry for these campaign contributions were probably: [redacted] and [redacted] believed that the contributions were collected by [redacted] and forwarded to [redacted] at [redacted] apartment.

[redacted] advised that during the period from 1981 through 1983 [redacted] arranged a series of meetings between [redacted] and [redacted] said that [redacted] girlfriend was also present during these meetings. These meetings were held at [redacted] apartment because it was only [redacted] from Sperry's Washington office. The purpose of the meetings was to explain the MK 92 program to [redacted] so that [redacted] could then present it to Tower's staff. The meetings generally were held during the months of January through March, prior to the passage of the Defense budget. [redacted] believes that [redacted] became very familiar with the program through these meetings.

[redacted] stated that he periodically received feedback from [redacted] indicating that Tower's staff would support the program. [redacted] told [redacted] that he wanted to insure that [redacted] "was taken care of" and [redacted] told [redacted] that [redacted] was being taken care of.

[redacted] stated that he believes the 1981 House defense budget bill, which supported the MK 92 program, was adopted by the Senate before going to full conference. He believes this occurred during a meeting in which Tower, Chairmen of the Senate Armed Services Committee (SASC) was present, along with the ranking minority and senior majority leaders.

During this interview [redacted] stated that [redacted] had told him that [redacted] had given twenty thousand dollars to Tower as a campaign contribution and that [redacted] became furious with Tower, because Tower retired shortly after the contribution was made and [redacted] would not reimburse [redacted] the twenty thousand dollars.

[redacted] responded to this information by stating that [redacted] was always trying to get money from Sperry and that [redacted] was unaware or any specific conversation that [redacted] had with [redacted] about [redacted] being reimbursed for a contribution to Tower. [redacted] said that [redacted] often talked to [redacted] in an attempt to have [redacted] speed up the purchase order payment process. In talking to [redacted] would tell [redacted] that [redacted] approved the payments to [redacted] and [redacted] wanted them paid expeditiously. [redacted] stated that [redacted] was misleading [redacted] in an effort to get paid quicker. At the time [redacted] could facilitate payments to consultants and would sign [redacted] signature to the required Sperry documents approving payments if he thought that [redacted] approved the payments.

During this interview [redacted] advised that sometime during 1983 [redacted] had loaned [redacted] $15,000. [redacted] further advised that in 1984 he received a phone call from [redacted] during which [redacted] asked him to recontact Tower's office regarding a radar package and determine the status of the package and whether or not Tower's office was supporting the package. [redacted] reported back to [redacted] that the program was being supported. Subsequently, [redacted] received $25,000 from [redacted] also told [redacted] that [redacted] didn't need to repay the $15,000 loan.

[redacted] responded to this information by stating that he knew that [redacted] was paying [redacted] for [redacted] help on the MK 92 program but did not know the specific arrangements. [redacted] did recall that [redacted] had mentioned to him something about a balloon payment that [redacted] had on a loan, but does not remember the context of the conversation that this comment came up in. [redacted] further added that he was not aware of a loan from [redacted] to [redacted] additionally stated that he recalls [redacted] doing a considerable amount of travelling in whatever job he had at the time of these meetings, and specifically recalls at least one occasion where [redacted] mentioned having to travel to Alaska. [redacted] further stated that he is not sure if [redacted] was with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission specifically, but does recall some mention of a "regulatory agency".

In addition to payment directed to [redacted] through [redacted] recalls at least one occasion in which [redacted] and his family vacationed in Florida at a condominium owned by [redacted] does not specifically recall how this trip was paid for, but believes that the cost would have ultimately been born by Sperry.

[redacted] stated that [redacted] "didn't have a history of working the Hill". [redacted] was always directing his marketing efforts toward military systems commands such as NAVSEA. [redacted] stated that he did not think that [redacted] was paying any money to Tower directly and that [redacted] would have been uncomfortable doing that. [redacted] stated that he did not know whether [redacted] was paying Tower or not and has no information regarding whether or not [redacted] paid any money to Tower.

[redacted] stated that he recalled only one other instance in which there was an organized effort to collect funds for Tower's campaign, that being a dinner in Texas in Tower's honor. [redacted] advised that he believed this fund raiser was approximately $1,000.00 per plate, and that Sperry probably committed to ten thousand dollars, or ten plates. [redacted] further advised that he does not believe that they (Sperry) actually sent anyone to this dinner, but offered the tickets to local constituents of Tower's in Texas.

[redacted] additionally advised that former Congressman Joseph Addabbo (deceased) N.Y, offered on one occasion to contact Tower on Sperry's behalf. [redacted] stated that he never accepted Addabbo's offer.

[redacted] agreed to further discuss this matter upon request. [redacted] provided the following administrative information:

TOWER ASSOCIATES owns 100% of CRYSTAL TOWERS, an apartment complex, located at 1600 South Eads, Arlington, VA, 22202.

When queried as to why [redacted] a previous resident of apartment [redacted] CRYSTAL TOWERS, would have received an IRS Form 1099-Int, which reported interest paid to [redacted] in 1987, [redacted] advised that he did not know. DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY
WASHINGTON, D.C 20350

27 July 1984

The Honorable John G. Tower
Chairman
Committee on Armed Services
United States Senate
Washington, D. C. 20515

Dear Mr. Chairman:

The Navy has concluded a review of several ongoing programs with the goal of improving surface ship antiair warfare capability and increasing competition as rapidly as possible. Based on the results of this review, I recommend the following:

a. Cancel the MK 92 Fire Control System Phase III Upgrade (phased array radar) in order to provide funds for higher priority programs.

b. Accelerate the FFG-7 class AAW improvement program by early introduction of engagement system (MK 92 FCS Phase II coherent receiver transmitter upgrade) and detection system (AN/SPS-49(V)5 and AN/SYS(FFG)) modifications.

c. Increase competition by establishing a second source for the AEGIS SPY-1B/D radar.

The Navy will need to request a reprogramming of money authorized in FY 83-85 for the MK 92 FCS phased array radar upgrade into various fiscal year accounts to partially fund these high priority initiatives and the Navy will identify offsets to fund the balance. Some of this reprogramming is required to provide the MK 92 FCS contractor increased funding in FY 84 and FY 85 to accelerate coherent receiver transmitter development. The remainder of the reprogramming is required to accelerate development of the FFG-7 class detection system modification and to fund the AEGIS SPY-1B/D second source initiative.

This approach is well balanced, consistent with the priorities and needs of the Navy, and in keeping with the desires of Congress. I seek your support.

This letter has also been forwarded to the Chairmen, Subcommittee on Defense, Committee on Appropriations, United States Senate and House of Representatives, and the Chairman, Committee on Armed Services, House of Representatives.

Sincerely,

27 March 1984

The Honorable John Tower
Chairman, Committee on Armed Services
U. S. Senate
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Over the past years, there have been numerous exchanges regarding the development and installation of a phased array radar for backfit on the FFG. In July 1982, I expressed the Navy's reluctant agreement to implement Congressional direction to proceed with the development program on a sole source basis to the Sperry Corporation. Subsequently, the Congress required by law that this development be incorporated into an FFG added by the Congress in FY84. Appropriations for this project totaled $340 million including $40 million for the phased array radar procurement, $183.6 million transferred from prior year funds and $116.4 million new appropriations.

In an attempt to execute the program legislated by Congress, Navy requested two shipbuilders to provide cost estimates for the ship with the new radar system as contractor furnished equipment. We pursued this unusual approach in order to remove any bias which might be attributed to Navy. The price of this ship, on a fixed price incentive fee basis, would be $473 million or $133 million above the funds appropriated. Clearly, the direction of the Congress is not executable with the funds appropriated for the purpose. Further, this differential raises the wisdom of continuing to pursue the project as a backfit for the existing FFG ships because it portends approximately a $70 million per ship backfit program which, given current budget constraints, is very unlikely to be affordable.

The installation of the phased array radar on the FY84 FFG would also not be consistent with recent Congressional direction regarding operational testing of equipment prior to installation.

We believe the radar capabilities of the FFG ships should be improved using transmitter and receiver modifications currently in development. A good way to proceed with an orderly development and installation plan would be to install this equipment on the FY 1984 FFG as a prototype for eventual backfit of the other ships. This ship would cost $376 million of which $340 million has been appropriated. I am prepared to submit a reprogramming request for the remaining funds should this be an acceptable approach. Current budget constraints and expected performance clearly support this program.

Your assistance in resolving this dilemma is requested. Similar letters have been sent to the Chairmen of the House and Senate Appropriations Defense Subcommittees and the House Armed Services Committee.

Sincerely,

FFG/MK-92 ORAL

- MR. CHAIRMAN AND MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE, IT IS AN HONOR FOR ME TO APPEAR BEFORE YOU TO DISCUSS THE FY 1984 FFG-7 AND THE MK-92 FIRE CONTROL SYSTEM.
- THE MISSION OF THE FFG-7 IS TO PROVIDE SELF DEFENSE AND EFFECTIVELY SUPPLEMENT PLANNED AND EXISTING ESCORTS IN THE PROTECTION OF UNDERWAY REPLENISHMENT GROUPS, AMPHIBIOUS FORCES AND MILITARY SHIPPING AGAINST SUBMARINE, AIR AND SURFACE THREATS.
- THEY ARE "DESIGN-TO-COST" SHIPS AND DO NOT INCLUDE THE MOST SOPHISTICATED ANTI-SURFACE OR ANTI-AIR WARFARE SYSTEMS AVAILABLE. THE REASON FOR THIS IS THAT WE DO NOT ENVISION THAT THESE SHIPS WOULD NORMALLY BE OPERATED IN HIGH THREAT AREAS UNLESS THEY WERE IN COMPANY WITH MORE CAPABLE UNITS. HOWEVER, THE ADDITION OF THE TACTAS TACTICAL TOWED ARRAY SONAR SYSTEM TO THE FFG PROVIDES, A HIGHLY CAPABLE ASW SYSTEM WHEN USED IN CONCERT WITH LAMPS I OR LAMPS III AIRCRAFT.
- PRIOR TO FISCAL YEAR 1984, THE CONGRESS HAD APPROPRIATED FIFTY OF THE FFG-7 CLASS. TO DATE, THIRTY-SIX OF THESE SHIPS HAVE DELIVERED TO THE NAVY AND ANOTHER FIVE WILL DELIVER DURING 1984. BATH IRON WORKS HAS BUILT OR IS BUILDING 24 OF THESE

WHILE TODD LOS ANGLES IS RESPONSIBLE FOR 17 AND TODD SEATTLE 9. TODD SEATTLE HAS ALSO BUILT FOUR FOR THE ROYAL AUSTRALIAN NAVY.

- WITHIN THE CONTEXT OF THE SIX HUNDRED SHIP NAVY, WE HAVE IDENTIFIED A REQUIREMENT FOR ONE HUNDRED ONE FRIGATES OF ALL TYPES. IN ADDITION TO THE FIFTY FFG-7S WHICH HAVE BEEN APPROPRIATED, WE HAVE FORTY-SIX OF THE FF-1052 KNOX CLASS, TEN OF THE FF-1040 GARCIA CLASS, TWO OF THE FF-1037 BRONSTEIN CLASS, AND SIX OF THE FFG-1 BROOKE CLASS. EVENTUALLY EIGHT FF-1052 AND EIGHTEEN FFG-7 CLASS SHIPS WILL BE ASSIGNED TO THE NAVAL RESERVE FORCE.
- IN FISCAL YEAR 1984 THE CONGRESS AUTHORIZED AND APPROPRIATED ONE FFG-7 WHICH WAS NOT INCLUDED IN THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET. THE APPROPRIATION OF $300 MILLION WAS ACCOMPANIED BY LANGUAGE WHICH REQUIRED THAT THE SHIP BE BUILT WITH A MK-92 X-BAND PHASED ARRAY RADAR.
- IN AN EFFORT TO COMPLY WITH THE FY 1984 APPROPRIATIONS BILL THE CONSTRUCTION YARDS WERE REQUESTED TO INTERFACE WITH THE MK-92 VENDOR, SPERRY DEFENSE ELECTRONICS CORPORATION, TO DETERMINE THE COST AND FEASIBILITY OF CONSTRUCTING THE SHIP WITH A

MK-92 X-BAND PHASED ARRAY SYSTEM. THE RESULTING ESTIMATE FOR THE SHIP IS $473 MILLION.

- I WILL NOW DISCUSS THE FFG-7 AAW COMBAT SYSTEM AND THE PHASE II AND III UPGRADES TO THE MK-92 FIRE CONTROL SYSTEM.

- IN DISCUSSING AAW CAPABILITY FOR THE FFG-7 CLASS, IT IS IMPORTANT TO VIEW THE SHIP AS A COMBAT SYSTEM RATHER THAN CONCENTRATING SOLELY ON THE MK 92 FCS.

- SHOWN HERE ARE RELATIVE AAW DETECTION RANGES FOR THE SPS-49 LONG RANGE AIR SEARCH RADAR AND THE PHASE II AND PHASE III UPGRADES TO THE MK 92 FCS. IN EACH OF THE THREE ENVIRONMENTS DEPICTED, THE SPS-49 DETECTION RANGE FOR THAT ENVIRONMENT IS USED AS THE BASELINE AND ITS DETECTION RANGE IS ASSIGNED THE VALUE OF 1.0.

- IN BOTH CLEAR AND CLUTTER (RAIN) ENVIRONMENTS, INITIAL DETECTION IS MADE BY THE SPS-49. IN AN ECM ENVIRONMENT FIRST DETECTION IS STILL MADE BY THE SPS-49 IF THE MK 92 FCS IS PHASE II CONFIGURED.

- THE ONLY IMPROVEMENT PHASE III BRINGS TO THE AAW COMBAT SYSTEM IS AN 18 PERCENT IMPROVEMENT IN DETECTION RANGE IN AN ECM ENVIRONMENT.

- THIS CHART COMPARES SELF-DEFENSE RELATIVE FIREPOWER EFFECTIVENESS, IN OTHER WORDS, HOW MANY ASCMs HOMING ON THE SHIP CAN BE KILLED BY THE FFG-7 COMBAT SYSTEM.

- COMPARED ARE PHASE II AND PHASE III PERFORMANCE AGAINST LOW, MEDIUM, AND HIGH ALTITUDE THREATS. THE NUMBER OF PHASE III KILLS IS THE BASELINE AND IS ASSIGNED A VALUE OF 1.0.

- IN A CLEAR ENVIRONMENT PHASE III OFFERS NO IMPROVEMENT OVER PHASE II.

- IN ECM AND CLUTTER ENVIRONMENTS, PHASE III OFFERS MARGINAL IMPROVEMENT OVER PHASE II.

- THIS CHART IS SIMILAR TO THE PREVIOUS ONE. DEPICTED IS RELATIVE FIREPOWER EFFECTIVENESS FOR ASCMs CROSSING AT 10 NAUTICAL MILES FROM THE FFG-7.

- AS IN THE SELF-DEFENSE CASE, PHASE III OFFERS NO IMPROVEMENT IN A CLEAR ENVIRONMENT AND ONLY MARGINAL IMPROVEMENT IN ECM AND CLUTTER ENVIRONMENTS.

- YOU HAVE SEEN THE CAPABILITY - WE NEED TO LOOK AT AFFORDABILITY. SHOWN HERE IS A RELATIVE COMPARISON OF FFG-7 AAW COMBAT SYSTEM CAPABILITY WITH THE PHASE I, II, AND III MK 92 UPGRADES.

- PHASE II IS THE BASELINE. PHASE I CAPABILITY IS 16 PERCENT LESS THAN PHASE II; PHASE III CAPABILITY IS 15 PERCENT BETTER THAN PHASE II USING NAVY ANALYSIS PARAMETERS AND 50 PERCENT BETTER USING SPERRY ANALYSIS PARAMETERS.

- OVERLAID IS THE COST ASSOCIATED WITH THESE IMPROVEMENTS FOR THE 50 SHIPS IN THE FFG-7 CLASS. $4.5 BILLION DOLLARS IS CLEARLY A STEEP PRICE TO PAY FOR A 15 PERCENT CAPABILITY IMPROVEMENT IN THIS CLASS OF SHIP.

- IN CLOSING, I WANT TO EMPHASIZE THAT THE FFG-7 AAW COMBAT SYSTEM MUST BE LOOKED AT AS A WHOLE. UPON COMPLETION OF THE PHASE II UPGRADE TO THE MK 92, THE DETECTION SUITE, THE FIRE CONTROL SYSTEM, AND THE CAPABILITY OF THE SHIP'S SM-1 (MR) MISSILE WILL BE IN BALANCE. TOGETHER THEY WILL BE FULLY CAPABLE OF DEFEATING THE THREAT WE PROJECT FOR THESE SHIPS WHILE EXECUTING THE MISSION THEY WERE DESIGNED FOR. I URGE YOUR SUPPORT FOR SECRETARY LEHMAN'S 27 MARCH 1984 INITIATIVE TO EQUIP THE FY 1984 FFG WITH THE PHASE II UPGRADE TO SERVE AS A PROTOTYPE FOR EVENTUAL BACKFIT OF THIS NEEDED IMPROVEMENT IN THE FFG-7 CLASS.

WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

January 26, 1982

The Pentagon
Washington, D.C.

Dear [redacted]

This is to call your attention to the continuing interest of this committee with respect to the Mark 92 Fire Control System Upgrade Program.

In 1981, the Congress authorized and appropriated $20 million "to begin development of an upgrade to the fire control system on FFG frigates." In addition, this committee recommended that the Navy assign a "high priority" to the effort. More recently, the committee has expressed concern that there have been unacceptable delays in the prosecution of this program.

Significantly, the Navy has presented no convincing arguments to indicate that an update is either technically infeasible or would fail to enhance the combat capabilities of this large, important class of naval warships. Nor has the Navy demonstrated that the program, even if pursued only through the RDT&E phase, would not be of significant benefit to their understanding of the massive AAW problem that faces the fleet.

In this connection, I know you are aware of the substantial interest which members of this committee and other committees of the Congress have registered in this program. To this end, I look forward to reviewing a definitive plan that will serve to optimize the growth potential of the Mark 92 system as is clearly warranted by the AAW requirements of the surface fleet.

Sincerely,

John

SUBJECT: JOHN G. TOWER
SENATOR-ELECT (R-TEXAS)

The "Washington Post and Times Herald" of June 1, 1961, contains a photograph showing Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois welcoming Senator-elect John G. Tower of Texas on Tower's arrival 5-31-61 at National Airport. Tower is the 35-year-old history professor who defeated William A. Blakely in a run-off election 5-27 to become the state's first Republican Senator since Reconstruction days. According to the news item, Tower won by some 10,000 votes. His election is expected to be certified on June 13, and he will probably take the oath of office two days later.

INFORMATION IN BUFILES

A search of Bureau indices reflects only one reference possibly identifiable with the Senator-elect. By letter 2-4-42 the SAC at Houston received a letter from [redacted] Beaumont Senior High School, Beaumont, Texas, requesting a speaker for 3-27-42. This letter was signed by [redacted] as head of the history department and was also signed by one [redacted] and one John Tower. Inasmuch as the Senator-elect's age is given as 35 and he would have been approximately 16 in 1942 and since the letter came from the history department, the John Tower who signed the letter could be identical. SUBJECT: SENATOR JOHN G. TOWER
INFORMATION CONCERNING

I called upon Senator Tower by appointment at 5:45 PM, 2/26/62. The Senator is serving his first term in office having been elected in a run-off election May 27, 1961, to become the first Republican Senator from Texas since Civil War days.

The Senator is a staunch conservative. In fact, he prides himself as being a "Goldwater Republican." He obviously is very sincere in his admiration for the Director and the FBI and I believe can be depended upon to be of assistance at any time. He mentioned twice during our conversation "J. Edgar Hoover has been my hero for many years."

The Senator and I discussed the John Birch Society in an informal manner and the activities of Robert Welch, its president. At the Senator's request, I reviewed briefly with him the Director's statements, speeches and articles concerning right-wing fanatics. The Senator has a very healthy outlook against extremists on either side and has publicly on a number of occasions indicated the necessity for a calm rational approach to the fight against communism.

Files contain no derogatory information concerning Senator Tower.

The Senator introduced a number of his office staff to me and I reviewed briefly with them the jurisdiction of the FBI and how we could be of assistance to them.

Senator Tower does not have a copy of the Director's book "Masters of Deceit." It is thought perhaps the Director may desire to autograph a copy to the Senator and I will deliver it on the occasion of my next trip to the Hill. A suggested copy is attached.

ACTION: The Director may desire to autograph the attached copy of his book to Senator Tower. After autographing, the book should be returned to my office, 5640.

Senator Tower called and asked that I come to his office at 4:30 p. m. today if at all possible. I told him I would be glad to do this.

On seeing the Senator, he explained he had to be on a television program tonight in New York moderated by David Susskind. He stated that Senator Javits will represent the liberal viewpoint on this program and a discussion will be concerning extremist organizations of the right-wing.

He asked that we engage in discussions concerning the Director's viewpoints. He added he, of course, would not quote the FBI or the Director in any manner. I briefed the Senator for quite some time regarding this matter and, additionally, furnished him a copy of the Director's article which appeared in the American Bar Association Journal, February, 1962 issue.

The Senator indicated his appreciation and stated he planned to give the FBI a big build-up in his remarks on this program.

SUBJECT: INQUIRY FROM OFFICE OF SENATOR JOHN G. TOWER (REPUBLICAN - TEXAS) RE FBI NATIONAL ACADEMY

At 2:56 p.m. today, 4/4/62, a call was received at the Training and Inspection Division from [redacted] an employee in the office of Senator John G. Tower (Republican - Texas). The call was handled by SA [redacted] of this Division. She inquired as to whether or not a Senator, presumably Senator Tower, could nominate a candidate for the FBI National Academy. She was informed that a nomination for a police officer to attend is usually made by the head of the local police agency. If the head of the local police agency desires to attend, he may nominate himself or may be nominated by the mayor or city manager.

She said the Senator was in receipt of 2 letters, both of which concerned the same person, and apparently was an effort on the part of the writers to determine if Tower would have any influence in getting this person into the Academy. [redacted] did not disclose the name of the Senator's constitutents making the inquiry nor did she identify the person who desires to attend the Academy. She did say, however, that one of the writers was a county court judge and that the person interested in attendance was from San Antonio, Texas. In addition to the information furnished to her as to the nominating procedures, she was also informed that all applications for the National Academy in the San Antonio area should be submitted through the Bureau office in that city and that the person interested in attending may desire to contact the SAC at San Antonio for additional information.

SUBJECT: SENATOR JOHN G. TOWER (R-TEXAS)

On 5-18-62 an individual who identified himself as [redacted] to Senator Tower, called and talked to Kemper in my office. He said that he had heard considerable talk and concern by reliable individuals as to the possibility the Director may retire. He said that the Senator was wondering whether there should be some legislation which would prevent the Attorney General from making an appointment of a new Director from outside of the Bureau. The Senator feels that a new Director should come from the ranks.

Kemper told [redacted] that the Director had no intention of leaving his present position and he desired to continue to serve his country in the capacity of Director; [redacted] said he was glad to hear this and in that there was nothing imminent, he would so advise the Senator.

On September 6, I called on Senator John G. Tower (R-Texas) to meet the Senator since I had not met him since his election and due to the fact that he is from my home state of Texas. He was very cordial and mentioned that a bill had been placed in the hopper in the Senate to require Senate confirmation for the Director and Associate Director of the FBI. He stated this was done so that the positions would be kept out of politics and would insure that a competent, experienced individual would receive such appointments in the future.

Senator Tower also commented about the fact that you had been of assistance to him in the past and he enjoyed his relations with the Bureau.

We discussed Texas for some time and he mentioned that he would be making a tour around the world this Fall, going to the Far East first and ending up in London in December. He stated he would call me when he arrived in London.

The above is submitted for information.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT TO

[redacted] called from Senator Tower's Office and wanted to come down 9-20-62. Upon arriving, he stated he wanted to talk about a personal matter.

He told me that he had recently obtained a Mexican divorce from his wife. He currently plans to marry a very wealthy young lady from Texas. Her parents object very strenuously. He stated they have learned that he has run around considerably with other girls and that they believe his reputation is none too good. [redacted] then pointed out that he would appreciate my writing a personal letter to his fiance's parents telling them that "he is a good guy."

I told [redacted] that while we appreciate his very close cooperation with the FBI, at the same time it would be completely out of policy for us to write such a letter. He stated he can understand this fact, however, wanted to try anyway.

Senator Tower was first elected to the Senate in a run-off election in 1961 to become the state's first Republican Senator since re-construction days.

We have had considerable contact with Senator Tower since he has been in office and you have called on him. He has been described as a staunch conservative and prides himself as being a "Goldwater Republican." From your contact with him in February, 1962, you indicated that he is obviously very sincere in his admiration of the Director and the FBI and during your conversation with him he mentioned "that J. Edgar Hoover has been my hero for some years." Tower has contacted the Director regarding speaking invitations which it has been necessary for the Director to decline. Senator Tower received an autographed copy of the Director's book, "Masters of Deceit," in February, 1962.

Inasmuch as our relations with Senator Tower have been favorable, and he has already received an autographed copy of "Masters of Deceit," it is felt it would be a splendid gesture to present him with an autographed copy of the Director's new book, "A Study of Communism."

RECOMMENDATION:

That the Director autograph a copy of his new book to Senator Tower and that it be returned to your office for personal presentation to him.

Springfield Office has requested authority to furnish public source information on the communist background of Frank Wilkinson, Executive Director of the National Committee to Abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee, to Charles Morrow, Editor of the "Galesburg Register-Mail" to enable Morrow to prepare an editorial or news story pointing out Wilkinson's subversive affiliations. Wilkinson is on a speaking tour throughout the Midwest urging the abolition of the House Committee on Un-American Activities (HCUA) and is scheduled to speak at Knox College, Galesburg, Illinois, on October 17, 1962. Springfield has also requested Chicago Office to advise the Bureau if a reliable established newspaper source exists in the "Chicago Tribune" to whom public source data on Wilkinson can be furnished for publication of articles about Wilkinson's appearance at Knox College.

By teletype October 10, 1962, Los Angeles, the office of origin on the Wilkinson case, forwarded public source data to Springfield and Chicago.

NOT RECORDED
11 OCT 16 1962

Springfield advised Morrow has expressed concern over Wilkinson's appearance at Knox College. The SAC states excellent relations exist between Morrow and the Springfield Office. A check of Bureau files disclosed no information identifiable with him.

Springfield later advised that Fulton Lewis, Jr., devoted most of his evening news program on October 10, 1962, to Wilkinson's scheduled appearance at Knox College. Lewis reported he was urged by several campus groups to appear and present the other side of the story. Lewis condemned the dean for allowing communists to speak and appealed to the students not to be mislead quoting from the Director's speech at Denver on October 9, 1962, concerning the danger of communism.

Springfield also advised that during the Winter of 1961 a "Chicago Tribune" reporter debated at Knox College against doing away with the HCUA and this newspaper ran a series of articles attacking the liberal view of Knox College. Chicago has advised that articles about Knox College were written by Chesley Manly and appeared in the June 10, 1962, issue of the newspaper. Chicago Office also advised that it does not have any available sources at the "Chicago Tribune" and suggests that Bureau sources may be available to handle this matter.

The Springfield Office has suggested that public source material concerning the communist background of Wilkinson be furnished to United States Senator John G. Tower (R-Texas) who is scheduled to speak at Knox College, Galesburg, Illinois, on October 17, 1962, the same day as Wilkinson.

We have handled a considerable number of constituent inquiries from Senator Tower. In February, 1962, when contacted by Mr. DeLoach he was very favorably disposed to the Director and the FBI. He considers the Director to be his hero. He was given an autographed copy of "Masters of Deceit" by Mr. DeLoach. Our contacts with him have been generally cordial.

OBSERVATIONS:

Inspector [redacted] Crime Records Division, advised [redacted] is not known to his Division. It does not appear that we have sufficient control over the dissemination of any information on Wilkinson by a Resident Agent to this local newspaper editor in the situation which involves a public appearance of a communist on the College campus.

The articles of Chesley Manly would provide a logical basis for the "Chicago Tribune" to be critical of Wilkinson's appearance at this College. Considering the widespread attention which Communist Party speakers derive from publicity about their appearances on college campuses, it will be preferable to handle any contacts with the "Chicago Tribune" at the Bureau rather than through the Chicago Office.

By providing pertinent information about Wilkinson's background and the purposes of his speaking tour, Senator Tower will be in a position to speak out against Wilkinson and establish the communist motives for Wilkinson's appearance at Knox College.

MONEYMAKING G-MEN

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, many persons are aware of the very fine job the Federal Bureau of Investigation does in apprehending criminals, recovering stolen property, and gathering evidence with which criminals are successfuly prosecuted. Many persons appreciate the dedicated service of the gallant men of the FBI and the very fine leadership which has been afforded that organization by J. Edgar Hoover. But probably very few persons realize that the FBI more than pays its own way. Actually, in the last fiscal year the FBI produced approximately $200 million from fines, savings, and recoveries, which amounted to approximately $70 million more than its annual budget.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD, as part of my remarks, an editorial entitled "Moneymaking G-Men," from the Washington Star of February 5, 1963.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MONEYMAKING G-MEN

Senator DIRKSEN was not overstating the case when he said, "the record of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for 1962, under the diligent and expert leadership of J. Edgar Hoover, is truly spectacular."

Everything in the record comfortably supports that description, including the conviction of 12,700 persons in FBI cases, the capture of 11,400 fugitives, and the recovery of 19,000 autos. Yet even these achievements pale alongside another item Senator DIRKSEN might justifiably have described as supercolossal. This is simply that, in these days of sky's-the-limit Government spending, the FBI more than paid its own way.

Of course, the FBI has revenuemaking opportunities not found in every Government agency. But only by its efficiency was it able to produce more than $200 million from fines, savings, and recoveries. This amounted to some $70 million more than its annual budget. So among all the other reasons for being appreciative of Mr. Hoover's operatives, one must also not forget their spectacular solvency.

TRIBUTE TO J. EDGAR HOOVER

Mr. TOWER. Mr. President, the Texas chapter of the FBI National Academy Associates now is completing a very successful retraining session in Fort Worth, Tex.

I ask unanimous consent that there be printed in the RECORD a resolution passed at that session commenting upon the leadership of J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. As all Americans know, Mr. Hoover has been the guiding light of the FBI through many trying years. He has suffered in silence the wrath of the left-wing fringe in this country, so I think it is highly appropriate that we consider these few words of commendation for both Mr. Hoover and for Assistant Director Joseph J. Casper, who attended the retraining session as a personal representative of Mr. Hoover.

There being no objection, the resolution was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Whereas the members of the Texas chapter of the FBI National Academy Associates are concluding their 12th annual retraining session in Fort Worth, Tex., which has been exceptionally successful through the presentation of a most informative program and a renewal of their past associations and discussions of their mutual problems; and

Whereas the Honorable J. Edgar Hoover, Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, has, through his creation of the FBI National Academy, made it possible for selected law enforcement officers to receive the finest training available today in the performance of their duties as law enforcement officers and has, thereby, made a contribution of inestimable value in elevating the ethics and standards of law enforcement to where, as a profession, it has risen to new heights, achieving the respect, confidence, and admiration of the citizenry of this Nation; and

Whereas the Honorable J. Edgar Hoover has signally honored the members of this association by making it possible for Assistant Director Joseph J. Casper to attend as his personal representative and participate in this training session; and

Whereas Assistant Director Joseph J. Casper has, as a principal speaker on our program, so effectively analyzed the problems confronting law enforcement today and our individual responsibilities as the leaders in that profession through his inspiring address: Therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the Texas chapter of the FBI National Academy Associates in session assembled this 24th day of August 1963, at Fort Worth, Tex., pledge our complete confidence and wholehearted assistance to Mr. Hoover and his associates of the FBI in furthering the advancement of the profession of law enforcement; and therefore be it further

Resolved, That its members unanimously go on record, this the 24th day of August 1963, in Fort Worth, Tex., as expressing their sincere appreciation to the Honorable J. Edgar Hoover and Assistant Director Joseph J. Casper for the outstanding contribution made by them to the success of this, their 12th Annual Retraining Session; and therefore be it further Resolved, That copies of this resolution be forwarded to His Excellency the Honorable John F. Kennedy, President of the United States; the Honorable Robert F. Kennedy, Attorney General of the United States; and to the Honorable Senators Ralph W. Yarborough and John Tower of the State of Texas.

N. I. FISHER,
President.

J. HERBERT SAWYER,
Seretary.

Mr. TOWER. I thank the Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. PROXMIRE. I congratulate the Senator from Texas for his rapidity.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may yield to the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. HUMPHREY] for 2 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBJECT: ASSASSINATION OF THE PRESIDENT

[redacted] called me from the White House at 9:00 P.M., last night, 12/9/63. He stated the President would like to see, this morning, a copy of any correspondence possessed by the FBI in which Lee Harvey Oswald wrote to Senator John Tower of Texas. I told [redacted] there was such correspondence and that I would get it over to him on the morning of 12/10/63.

The correspondence is attached. It has no evidentiary value and as a result has not been included as a part of our report on the assassination. It merely concerns a letter from Oswald to Senator Tower written from the Soviet Union begging the Senator to intercede in getting him out of the Soviet Union. Tower referred the matter to the Department of State after his secretary wrote him a note that he should not get mixed up in this matter. Following the assassination of the President, Senator Tower's office called me and made this correspondence available to us.

I will deliver this correspondence to [redacted] this morning if there are no objections.

[redacted] also asked me last night if our report had been delivered to the Chief Justice. I told him, as he well knew, the report had left the FBI several days ago. I told him also that the Deputy Attorney General had delivered the report to the Chief Justice that afternoon, 12/9/63. I also mentioned to [redacted] that apparently members of the Commission were already leaking the contents of the report inasmuch as I had heard several radio news programs mention items which had not been released to the press before.

[redacted] asked me if a press release had been released by the Department concerning the delivery of the report to the Chief Justice. I told him there had been no release because of a disagreement on policy between Abe Fortas and Ted Sorenson of the White House. [redacted] stated the President did not know this. [redacted] asked for our view point on a press release. I told him confidentially that the Director strongly

At the invitation of [redacted] Special Assistant to Senator John G Tower (R-Texas), I had SA [redacted] personally contact the Senator's office to rev the file the Senator has on captioned individual. Photostat copies of the complete file are attached. The file was personally reviewed to insure that the attached was the entire content of the file inasmuch as there are very obvious gaps in the information. For the most part, the file consists of letters exchanged between Oswald and the State Department during 1961 and 1962 when he was making efforts to get out of the Soviet Union with his Russian wife. There is only one letter to Senator Tower which was written to him by Oswald from Minsk, USSR, in which he requests the Senator's assistance in returning to the United States. Although this letter is undated, the Senator's office believed it was received in January, 1962.

It is of interest to note that there is a memorandum in the file dated 2-1-62 signed [redacted] is an assistant in Senator Tower's office. This memorandum indicates that she had received a call from [redacted] in the Department of State regarding Oswald's request to return to the United States. The memorandum states that on 11-2-59, Mr. Oswald swore to the following affidavit:

> "I affirm that my allegiance is to the Soviet Socialist Republic."

Oswald requested that his American citizenship be revoked. The memorandum indicated that he now wished to return to the United States but his mother was unable to finance his return trip and that the State Department would probably furnish him a loan. The memorandum concludes that the Senator should not become involved in this case.

Senator Tower's office said it is obvious that the State Department never kept them advised as to the final disposition of this case.

(R - TEXAS)

The Washington Field Office (WFO) telephonically advised that a suspicious package was discovered in the office of Senator John Tower, Room B-29 of the old Senate Office Building this afternoon. This information was received by the Washington Field Office from the Metropolitan Police Department which advised that officers had been dispatched to examine the package.

WFO subsequently advised of the receipt of information that the package had been examined by representatives of the 67th Ordinance group. The package was found to contain nothing of an explosive nature.

SUBJECT: SENATOR JOHN G. TOWER (R-TEXAS)
ASSASSINATION OF THE PRESIDENT
RUMOR

[redacted] who is the press secretary to Senator Tower, called and stated that he had heard some rumors concerning Oswald and his relationship to the FBI and wanted to talk to someone about it.

Kemper in my office called on [redacted] on 2-4-64 and he said that last week, he got a long-distance call from a reporter of the "Dallas News." The reporter, whose name he could not recall, advised that there was a rumor going around to the effect that Oswald was receiving $200 a month from the FBI as a confidential informant and that he had a symbol number of 139. [redacted] said that he told the reporter he had never heard of such an outlandish thing and frankly he felt it was just a rumor.

[redacted] said that he told the Senator about it but made no further move because they have been bombarded with rumors on all phases of the assassination. The day following the call from the "Dallas News," a reporter from the "Washington Post," whose name [redacted] thinks is [redacted] or [redacted] called in person in the Senator's office and said he understood that the Senator had information that Oswald was a confidential informant of the FBI, had received $200 a month and had the symbol number of 139. [redacted] told the "Post" reporter that this was not true, that they had no such information and as far as he, [redacted] was concerned, it was just a vicious rumor.

This rumor, of course, has previously been brought to our attention by the Dallas Office and is strictly a rumor.

RECOMMENDATION:

XEROX

It is recommended we tell [redacted] and Senator Tower in confidence that this is nothing but a vicious rumor, that it has previously been brought to our attention and there is not one bit of truth about it.

Dear Senator Tower:

Thank you for your letter of January 16, and the enclosed copy of J. Edgar Hoover's January 15th letter to you.

As you recall this was in answer to my letter regarding the possibilty of the Jack Rubenstein who murdered Lee Harvey Oswald being the same Jack Rubenstein mentioned in the Dies Committee Hearings of 1929-30.

Your help is appreciated, however it looks like the "whitewash" has begun. J. Edgar Hoover's letter only told us that he would turn all findings over to the Warren Commission. This is not what we asked for. We asked for a specific asnser Senator Tower. I should think that we could get a simple yes or no answer without waiting for the Warren Commission.

This could be very importand to you, I and the future of our country. I think it is important enough for you to demand an answer and even to make a public issue of. If they withhold this information no telling what else they are hiding from us.

Please see if you can get a definite answer about Jack Rubenstein.

Sincerely yours,

BACKGROUND:

The March 19, 1964, issue of Congressional Record contained two articles concerning the assassination of President John F. Kennedy which were introduced by Senator John G. Tower, Republican, Texas. The above-captioned article by Larry Grove, who is described as an award-winning reporter with the "Dallas Morning News," was accepted for publication in the "Quill," the official publication of Sigma Delta Chi. In explaining some of the facts surrounding the killing of President Kennedy, Mr. Grove makes the following statements concerning the FBI:

Statement: "The FBI was aware that Lee Harvey Oswald--defector, potential assassin, Marxist--was working in a building along the President's motorcade route, It had not notified the Dallas Police Department, nor the Secret Service."

Facts: The FBI was conducting an investigation concerning Lee Harvey Oswald on the basis of his attempted defection to the Soviets. We were interested in whether or not he was being used by the USSR in any espionage undertaking in this country, since he had indicated through his actions and statements that he advocated principles contrary to the best interest of the United States. His background and activities fully justified our action concerning him but the data we had regarding Oswald gave absolutely no clue indicating he was a potential assassin. In the absence of justifiable information, it would be highly inappropriate to furnish information on persons to local authorities or the Secret Service which might result in the detention or questioning of such persons. A careful line must be drawn between what information may properly be disseminated and unwarranted dissemination in violation of the rights of the individual.

Statement: "What was the name of an FBI Agent- [redacted] --doing in Oswald's notebook?"

Facts: [redacted] had been interviewed on November 1 and 5, 1963, concerning any information she might have had concerning Oswald. On November 1st, she advised us that he was working at the Texas Book Depository, but she said she did not know where he was residing. On November 5th, she gave us his residence address.

RE: "DID PRESS PRESSURE KILL OSWALD?"

[redacted] had never talked to Oswald; however, Oswald got the name because [redacted] told him of [redacted] visit and gave him the name of the Agent, which he wrote down in his notebook. Further, Oswald instructed [redacted] to note the license plate of any suspected FBI Agent who came to [redacted] residence. [redacted] did this and Oswald also had [redacted] license plate number in his notebook.

Our files reveal you, Mr. DeLoach, have contacted Senator John G. Tower, Republican-Texas, regarding erroneous information he has had concerning the FBI's role in this assassin case. Senator Tower was sent an autographed copy of "Masters of Deceit" on 2-27-62, and an autographed copy of "A Study of Communism" on 1-29-63.

Our files contain no information identifiable with [redacted] reporter with the "Dallas Morning News." Our relationship with the "Dallas Morning News" has been very friendly and favorable over the years.

By communication dated 2-3-64, Senator Tower referred a letter he received from [redacted] Bellaire, Texas. This letter thanks the Senator for sending him a copy of the Director's letter of January 15th but states that his question is still not answered as to whether the Jack Rubenstein who murdered Lee Harvey Oswald is identical with the Jack Rubenstein mentioned in Dies Committee Hearings. He states that the Director's letter only indicated that findings were being sent to the Warren Commission and it "looks like the 'whitewash' has begun." [redacted] wants to know if the Senator can obtain a definite answer.

In response to an inquiry from Senator Tower, the Director wrote him on January 15th pointing out that the results of the FBI's investigation were being furnished the Presidential Commission in accordance with instructions of President Johnson. He was assured that the investigation was directed at developing all pertinent facts.

It is noted that we have made no public disclosure of the results of our investigation and related inquiries. As a matter of fact, the question concerning Jack Rubenstein has been raised and resolved. Jack Ruby, the murderer of Oswald was born in 1911. The Jack Rubenstein of the "Textiles Workers Union of America" was born in 1904. They are not identical.

Bufiles contain no derogatory information concerning [redacted] A news clipping indicated that he was one of the individuals who opposed a visit of Yugoslavs to Bellaire, Texas. We have had cordial relations with Senator Tower.

OBSERVATION:

Any written reply to Senator Tower would be repetitious. We still should not be placed in the position of furnishing him a communication to send to his constituent relative to any investigation we have conducted in connection with Jack Ruby.

SUBJECT: JOHN G. TOWER
UNITED STATES SENATOR, TEXAS

By letter dated April 22, 1964, captioned individual stated he had reports that foreign requests for copies of birth certificates of American citizens who have died abroad are increasing, with the implication that false passports are made, utilizing this information, for use by Soviet agents in infiltrating this country. The letter requested the Director's comments on this situation, and how such an operation might work.

The Domestic Intelligence Division advised, while this Bureau is not aware of any increases, false documentation was obtained in this manner in the [redacted] case enabling [redacted] to utilize the birth certificate of a United States citizen as a cover for his operations. In addition, because this has been known to be a means of obtaining cover for entry into the United States, this Bureau initiated a program wherein the Bureau of Vital Statistics in individual states throughout the country have been alerted to advise the FBI, in any case where the individual is known to be deceased, of any requests emanating from abroad with regard to birth data.

The Domestic Intelligence Division states that while we do not know of any increases, we should not advise the Senator of that fact, but merely state that we are aware that such a means has been utilized by foreign agents and that we have taken necessary precautions to guard against such occurrences. It should be determined from the Senator, however, the source of his reports and elicit from him any information of pertinence to this Bureau.

We have enjoyed cordial relations and correspondence with the Senator.

Dear Senator:

For your information many people do not Approve:

The fulness of the Great Society and its political endeavor,
Constant spending of millions of dollars with no thought of the National Debt,
Sit-ins, lie-ins, demonstrations-protests-marches,
Federal dictation as to school text books,
Federal superiority over a governor's veto,
Medicare,
Demoralization of the armed forces by college kids through rejection of draft due to Viet Nam,
Rent subsidities,
Repeal of 14 b,
The National Council of Churches - its political role,
One world court - one world government - one world church.

Generally most people do agree:

To our stand in Southeast Asia - Viet Nam,
The situation as handled in South America,
A more definite stand against Communism in this country,
To get rid of internal disorders so that we will not become as other countries.

The back bone people of this nation has a worried outlook on the future. Our government appears to many becoming dismantled and our ultimate goal is failure and communism.

Your record is excellent and I shall endeavour to support your re-election where possible.

Dear Senator Tower:

The latest reports reaching my desk tell me that the " GOLDWATER BACKSTABBERS " are already pushing their man (Traitor) Romney. Rockerfeller, Scranton and other that have sold-out their party during the last Presidential election are now coming out of their holes to do some more "backstabbing" that they are famous for. It would seem to me that your party leaders would kick out these traitors. If they would sell out their party as they have done, what would prevent them from selling out our country? Would you trust a traitor Senator?
Senator Tower, I would appreciate very much if you would be so kind as to convey my feelings to your Party Leaders, Committee Heads and other interested members. Perhaps it will have some effect. After all, I'm a registered Democrat that believes in the GOLDWATER PRINCIPLES and would work for the election of men such as Gov Reagan, Senator Tower, Senator Mundt, Gen Curtis Lemay, Gen Mark Clark, Mr. J. E. Hoover and other men who believe in LAW and ORDER. Men who believe that America should WIN THE WAR. Men who have GOD in their hearts at all times.

Senator Tower, again I want to thank you for the wonderful job you are doing and I pray that God will bless you and keep you strong for the protection of our country.

Tower Tells of Threats, Hits Dallas City-of-Hate Label

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., said today he moved his family from their Bethesda home for their own safety because of threatening telephone calls in the aftermath of the assassination of President Kennedy in Dallas.

Tower also said his office received what at first appeared to be a live bomb through the mails. It turned out to be a package with the wiring and timing device of a bomb but no dynamite charge.

Tower mentioned these matters in a statement assailing William Manchester's book, "The Death of a President," for portraying Dallas as a city of hate which contributed to the assassination.

Threatening Calls

Mr. Manchester's contention that the city of Dallas helped cause the assassination of President Kennedy is as false, unsupportable and intellectually dishonest today as it was when first proclaimed in 1963," Tower said.

One of the senator's assistants said that Tower's Capitol Hill office and home were swamped with threatening telephone calls after Kennedy was killed and the impression was given that the ultra right-wing, usually strong in Dallas, was responsible for the assassination.

The aide said such calls and hundreds of letters that were received immediately after the assassination said such things as, "You've killed our President and we are going to get you," and, "I hope you're satisfied."

The aide said Tower moved his family from the Bethesda home and stayed with friends until the hysteria subsided. The senator and Mrs. Tower and their three daughters, now 10, 11 and 12, moved back into the home at 5103 Moreland St. and are still there.

People 'Anti-New Frontier'

At the request of police, no mention had been made before by Tower or his staff of the bomb threat.

Tower said he commented on the book publicly only because of the references to Dallas and the way the city was portrayed by the author.

"The majority of the people of Dallas could be truthfully said to have been in 1963 anti-New Frontier," Tower commented, "but they certainly were not, as this author claims, opposed to diversity, tolerance and nonconformity."

Its people, Tower added, are nonconformists "only in that they believe in doing things through local and individual initiative rather than always supinely depending on others to solve their problems for them."

Called Ridiculous

"It is simply ridiculous to claim — as Manchester blithely does — that those 50 days of late 1963 in Dallas influenced Lee Harvey Oswald more than 18 months in New York City or 33 months in the Soviet Union," he said.

Touching on some of the possible political implications that many see in the book, Tower, a conservative, said:

"Whether Mr. Manchester himself, desires to promote an inaccurate view of history, or whether he is simply a puppet controlled by others for their own motives, I cannot say.

"I am a political opponent of President Johnson. I can say without equivocation that as an American I am proud of the way Mr. Johnson acted with dignity and dispatch to assume and operate the office of the presidency in those drastic circumstances. I think President Johnson acted with absolute correctness.

"I trust that the American people will take the Manchester version of history with the mini-grains of salt it deserves."

SUBJECT: SENATOR JOHN TOWER (R-TEXAS) REQUEST FOR FBI TO PARTICIPATE IN MEETING ON AIRLINE HIJACKING

On 6/22/70 [redacted] an employee in the office of Senator John Tower (R-Tex.), with whom relations have been satisfactory, telephonically advised Bishop that the Senator has been working closely with an organization in Dallas, Texas, known as the "Airline Passengers Association," which is deeply concerned with the problem of airline hijacking. [redacted] said that Senator Tower desires to set up a meeting in the near future of representatives of the Federal Aviation Administration, airline executives, airline pilots, representatives of passenger groups, and a representative of the FBI for the purpose of discussing airline hijackings and what can be done about them from a legislative standpoint. [redacted] wished to know if the FBI would be willing to participate in such a meeting.

It will be recalled that approximately 2 weeks ago the office of Senator James B. Pearson (R-Kans.) requested the FBI to participate in a similar meeting. With the Director's approval Senator Pearson's office was advised that the FBI could not participate in such a meeting and it was suggested that a representative of the Department of Justice be secured to attend the meeting since legislative matters would be discussed.

UNRECORDED COPY FILED IN ACTION TAKEN

REC-40 62-106998-26

In line with the above, Bishop advised [redacted] that the FBI would not be able to participate in such a meeting since the matter of possible legislation is not within the purview of the FBI, and it was suggested that he might wish to contact someone in the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice to see if they would be willing to attend the meeting.

DATE: 3/18/71

FROM : G. E. Malmfeldt

SUBJECT: HONORABLE JOHN G. TOWER
UNITED STATES SENATE
WASHINGTON, D. C.

62- [redacted]

The purpose of this memorandum is to recommend a personal contact with Senator Tower's office in acknowledgment of his communication of 3/12/71 concerning [redacted] and [redacted] of Schulenburg, Texas. b6 b7C

Senator Tower's office referred letters from [redacted] to the FBI and no reply was requested. [redacted] refers to a letter he sent the Director which he learned had never been received. This apparently referred to the FBI's investigation of the East Coast Conspiracy to Save Lives. A careful review of Bufiles fails to reveal any record of [redacted] The letter from [redacted] refers to documentary evidence of a communist plan to take over the United States through the Catholic Church.

Bufiles reveal that the FBI has received nonspecific complaints and nonsensical correspondence from [redacted] since 1942. We have maintained a mental card on her since 1949. It would appear that an acknowledgment to Senator Tower would serve no useful purpose; however, a personal contact with his office in order that he may be confidentially advised of information concerning correspondents appears warranted.

RECOMMENDATION:

If approved, a representative from Crime Records Division will contact Senator Tower's office concerning the letters he referred to the FBI on 3/12/71.

JOHN G. TOWER

(b) JOHN TOWER, PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE FOR SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

ACTION MEMORANDUM

During a major FBI investigation, code-named "Illwind," of allegations of bribery and fraud upon the Department of Defense (DOD) procurement process, information has been developed relating to John Tower, the nominee for Secretary of Defense. The data accumulated to date indicates that although no credible evidence has been developed to indicate criminal culpability on his part, Mr. Tower has had business and personal relationships with subjects of "Illwind" and may have been in contact with these subjects during the course of their alleged criminal activity. These past relationships may produce allegations of actual or perceived Conflict of Interest violations.

As you are aware, the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) provides standards concerning ethics and responsibilities of executive branch employees and also addresses specific requirements of DOD personnel. Some of these regulations can be located in Title 5, CFR, Chapter 1, Subpart B, and other requirements concerning DOD personnel can be found in Title 32, CFR, Chapter 1, Section 40, et seq.

Accordingly, it is requested that the Department of Justice take steps to ensure that Mr. Tower, if confirmed, be apprised of the appropriate CFR standards by the DOD General Counsel, thereby effecting steps to preclude possible misinterpretation of Mr. Tower's dealings with the private sector.

Enclosed for the Latent Fingerprint Section is a pick believed by Washington Field Office (WFO) to have been used to pry open the window to the TOWER home.

On 2/14/80, the home of Senator [redacted] JOHN TOWER was burglarized. Taken were several thousand dollars worth of silver dishes, cups and bowls, small antique items and jewelry. Metropolitan Police Department (MPD), Washington, D. C. (WDC), responded on 2/14/80, did the preliminary investigation and the crime scene search. They apparently missed the pick. It was lying on the patio approximately twelve feet from the window the burglars used to gain entry. [redacted] stated the pick had been in the garage for a long time and had not been placed there by anyone to her knowledge. The garage door had been left open.

The complainant stated that she may have additional property to add, since she hasn't finished inventorying the whole house. [redacted] who lives at [redacted] phoned Mrs. Towers after being advised of the burglary, and stated that during the time the complainants were out of town, she had observed an unidentified N/M park a maroon station wagon on Lowell St. and then run through the alley to the rear of the Towers home. She couldn't see what the subject was doing, but saw him run right back to the car shortly thereafter. The subject was carrying a manila envelope. Neither Mr. Or Mrs. Towers know of anyone who would be deliverying anything to them during this time period. Mrs. Towers did state, however that she felt the burglars knew where to look for property. She mentioned Taylor's catering service on Macomb St. as having catered a couple of parties for her. They always used the same two Spanish females as waitresses. [redacted] - who goes to St. Alban's School - has also worked in the house as a bartender at parties.

Whoever committed the burglary, took all the prescription drugs from the medicine chest. They also appear to have been interrupted, since a lot of silver was left behind. The burglars hadn't even gone into the dining room.

Bush happy with results of FBI probe

By Jerome R. Watson
Chief, Washington Bureau
Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON—President-elect George Bush, declaring himself "totally satisfied" with the results of a long FBI investigation into the private life of John G. Tower, said Friday he would nominate the former senator to be defense secretary.

Rumors about Tower's supposed "womanizing" and drinking habits had swirled about the former chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee for weeks, and Bush held up the long-expected appointment until the FBI had run down each of the allegations.

The conservative Texan, long an advocate of increased military spending, immediately signaled his recognition of the budgetary constraints the next administration will face when he said he hoped to get "as much, if not more, defense for less money."

He indicated that some planned weapons systems might be canceled once the new administration formulates its over-all defense and arms control strategy. Tower reportedly is prepared to accept spending cuts in exchange for more flexibility in deciding how to spend funds that are approved.

Asked how Tower, who recently has been a consultant to five military contractors, could credibly ride herd on Pentagon spending, Bush observed that the anti-communist Richard M. Nixon "went to China."

In introducing Tower, 63, at a press conference, Bush brushed aside the rumors about Tower's private conduct, saying, "This matter is totally concluded. . . . He has not only my full confidence, but it is strengthened, if anything, by the process that he has gone through."

Asked how he felt about the widespread negative reports concerning his private life and the detailed investigation that resulted, Tower said questions about his character were "not comfortable, but I understand the process . . . there were a number of rumors and innuendos, allegations. And it was incumbent on the vice president to order the FBI to check out each one of these very carefully, regardless of how off-the-wall they might have been."

Despite Tower's reputation as an aggressive advocate of the Reagan administration's military buildup, Bush said Tower understands that "tough choices have to be made." Those choices include deciding whether to build a costly, mobile Midgetman missile and how fast to proceed with construction of the Stealth bomber and development of the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Despite indications that he has reservations about SDI, Tower echoed Bush's claim that he is firmly committed to the research program and to early deployment of anti-missile defenses.

Referring to the still unfolding defense procurement scandal, Bush said Tower is committed to reform, "and I have great confidence that he will make sure that each taxpayer's dollar delivers as much as possible to our collective security."

Bush denied reports that he had planned to force a tough management team on Tower. He said that while as president he would have a voice in choosing senior Pentagon officials, Tower would have the final say.

However, several corporate executives reportedly have turned down offers to work in senior Pentagon posts under Tower.

Tower served in the Senate from 1961 to 1985. His election to the seat vacated by Lyndon B. Johnson when Johnson became vice president broke a Democratic stranglehold on statewide offices in Texas.

In the Senate, Tower developed a reputation as a smart and effective legislator. As head of the Armed Services panel he supported military spending increases, but at one point he blocked funds for development of the MX missile because the Reagan administration was slow in coming up with a basing plan for the 10-warhead rocket.

WASHINGTON—The question on many minds in Washington is not how John G. Tower will do as the new defense secretary, but why he would even want the job.

The hawkish Texan, who championed the Pentagon as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, immediately will be confronted by these prospects when he joins George Bush's Cabinet next month:

- No-growth or even shrinking military budgets, with hard choices among nuclear and conventional weapons systems already planned or being built.
- The probability that some U.S. forces will be brought home from abroad, perhaps provoking confrontations with NATO allies over who will pick up defense gaps.
- Closing military bases at home over the objections of Congress and telling the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines to bite their bullets and accept reductions in pet programs.

"The bottom line is we must provide at least as much, if not more, defense for less money," Tower said Friday as he stood at Bush's side.

Barry Blechman, an analyst at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, commented: "He has one hell of a task ahead. I know there are good things about being defense secretary, but I'm not sure it's a great prize now."

Former Defense Secretary Harold S. Brown, who served under President Jimmy Carter, said: "He is going to have very, very difficult problems. At best, defense budgets will be flat in real terms and they could actually shrink."

Tower probably will preside over delays in weapons systems such as Air Force B-2 Stealth bombers, expected to cost more than $500 million each, until the mid-1990s; the "star wars" anti-missile defense program; the Air Force advanced tactical fighter, and the Navy's advanced tactical aircraft.

Pentagon budget cuts could bring further reductions in the 2.1 million-member armed forces, already reduced by more than 40,000 in the last year, and in steaming time for ships and flight time for military aircraft.

The outgoing defense secretary, Frank C. Carlucci, has asked for a real 2 percent increase in military spending for fiscal 1990 over the current $299.5 billion budget. That means adding funds for inflation—currently running at around 5 percent—before the 2 percent is tacked on.

"Nobody believes that it is going to be possible to have 2 percent growth. I'm sure the Bush administration will agree to reduce that to cut the deficit," said Helmut Sonnenfeldt of the Brookings Institution.

"One or 2 percent doesn't sound like much until you realize you're talking about that percent of $300 billion. That translates in arms cuts, reducing troops and raises the question of burden-sharing fights with the allies," he said.

Analysts said questions about Tower's personal life—rumors abound of drinking and womanizing—could make for rough confirmation hearings in the Senate despite clearing FBI background checks.

They also said that charges by many who oppose high Pentagon spending—that Tower never met a weapons system he didn't like—could make it tough for him at the Defense Department itself.

Bush chooses Tower as his defense chief

By Janet Cawley
Chicago Tribune

WASHINGTON—President-elect George Bush on Friday selected former Sen. John Tower of Texas as the next defense secretary, declaring he had full confidence in the man whose public and private life had generated speculation in the news media and political circles.

In making the announcement, Bush told reporters his fellow Republican from Texas was "as knowledgeable as anyone in America about defense and national security issues, and he's a true expert on defense policy and he understands the challenges ahead."

The diminutive Tower, 63, who stood just behind Bush, thanked the president-elect and said, "The bottom line is that we must provide at least as much, if not more, defense for less money." He pledged close cooperation with Congress and Secretary of State-designate James Baker.

As has become his style at Cabinet announcements, Bush then took reporters' questions, many of which dealt with an FBI investigation into the personal life of the twice-divorced Tower. For weeks there had been allegations of drinking problems and of womanizing, as well as questions about some of Tower's business dealings when he was involved in a consulting firm that advised contractors seeking to obtain Pentagon contracts.

Fueling the personal speculation was the divorce petition filed by Tower's second wife, whom he divorced last year. In it, Lila Burt Cummings Tower accused her husband of "marital misconduct" and requested depositions from three women: a Texas socialite, a Dallas television personality and a maid hired by the couple in Switzerland. At one point, Lila Tower's lawyers also served notice they would seek from Tower the names of women he allegedly socialized with outside his marriage "and the women with whom you spent the night or any portion thereof."

Tower had been mentioned by transition sources immediately after the November election as a likely choice for defense secretary, and the fact that it took the FBI so long to complete its investigation had fueled speculation that there were obstacles to his appointment.

Asked if he were satisfied that Tower was "beyond reproach," Bush replied: "I am totally satisfied in that regard, because the [FBI] investigation was extensive. ... I believe this matter is now totally concluded. ... Yes, he has not only my full confidence, but it is strengthened, if anything, by the process that he has gone through."

Tower, when asked how he had felt during the investigation, said: "It was not comfortable, but I understand the process. And I understand the process had to work its way. In my particular instance, there were a number of rumors and innuendos, allegations. And it was incumbent on the vice president to order the FBI to check out each one of these very carefully, regardless of how off-the-wall they might have been. And in most instances, there wasn't even anything in the way of circumstantial evidence to support these things."

On Capitol Hill, reaction to Tower's expected nomination was generally positive.

"The day after the Senate confirms him, he'll move into harness and step out," said Sen. John Warner of Virginia, senior Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"He'll require no on-the-job training."

But Rep. Patricia Schroeder (D., Colo.) attacked Tower's "coziness" with the defense industry.

"You have a new secretary who never saw a weapons system he didn't like," said Schroeder, a member of the House Armed Services Committee. "He is tainted in being able to run a tough, aggressive Pentagon."

Senate Armed Services chairman Sam Nunn (D., Ga.) said that the confirmation hearing, which probably would take place the week of Jan. 20, would focus on Tower's plans for meeting defense challenges over the next four years, including who will be appointed to senior Pentagon jobs, how congressionally mandated reforms will be put in place and how security will be maintained in a time of tight budgets.

With Tower's nomination, Bush now has appointed half his 14-member Cabinet. He is expected to name the rest before Christmas.

A source close to the transition said Thursday that Bush had chosen retiring New York congressman and onetime Republican presidential contender Jack Kemp to be secretary of housing and urban development.

Front-runners for other positions are reported to be Illinois Regional Transportation Authority chief Samuel Skinner, as secretary of transportation; Louis Sullivan, president of Morehouse College School of Medicine in Atlanta, as secretary of health and human services; and Julius Becton Jr., a retired three-star Army general, as secretary of veterans affairs.

Sullivan and Becton are black, and Bush repeatedly has promised to name blacks to senior-level posts.

Asked Friday about Kemp, Bush did not deny that he planned to appoint his onetime rival, saying, "I will simply say, stay tuned in and we're doing all right."

Tower was a senator from 1961 to 1985 and chaired the Armed Services Committee during the final four years. He was a staunch supporter of President Reagan's weapons buildup in the early 1980s.

Since leaving Congress, Tower, who described himself Friday as "something of a public service junkie," has been a negotiator in arms-control talks with the Soviet Union and headed the Tower Commission, a three-member review board appointed by Reagan to investigate the Iran-contra affair immediately after it was disclosed that the United States had sought to trade arms for hostages in the Middle East.

The Tower Commission, while critical of Reagan and those in his administration who carried out the operation, also said the President "did not seem to be aware" of how the deal was implemented.

With Tower's appointment, two members of the commission have received key jobs in the Bush administration—Tower as defense secretary and retired Air Force Gen. Brent Scowcroft as national security adviser.

The third commission member was retired Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, a Democrat.

Tower said he had no reservations about Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, also known as "Star Wars."

"I understand the value of SDI," Tower said, "not just from its deterrent potential, but also as a very, very valuable negotiating tool. . . . I embrace the president-elect's position that we should begin deployment of an SDI system as soon as it is feasible."

Tower also said that in order to meet the challenge of providing more defense for less money, the government must "rationalize our force structure, we must refine and reform our management and procurement procedures, we must have biennial budgeting. All of this is going to require very close cooperation with Congress."

The Pentagon's budget now runs about $300 billion a year.

While ruling out any immediate troop reductions in Europe, Tower said he favored a process of "rationalizing our force structure" with an eye to saving money.

The voters' mature attitude about the vices of politicians

Somewhere, Gary Hart and Douglas Ginsberg are smiling. John Tower may turn out to be a good secretary of defense or a lousy one, but his appointment represents a useful achievement by itself. It shows that personal scandals are not necessarily a disqualification from high office, refuting the theory that American people are naive bluenoses.

In the weeks since the election, Tower has been the subject of lots of juicy reports about his history of drinking and womanizing. No man is a hero to his valet—or to his ex-wife. Last year, Tower went through a nasty divorce, and the former Mrs. Tower gave the FBI an earful about his proclivities, which were no secret in Washington. During the divorce proceedings, she accused him of having affairs with three different women, one of them a Filipino maid in Geneva named Darla.

The result was that after the FBI investigated and the President-elect grilled Tower, he was chosen anyway, and the public reacted with about as much emotion as it did when Frank Carlucci got the job.

True, there were no damning National Enquirer photos of Tower cuddling Darla on his lap, nor any jilted Dallas belles spilling lurid tales. (Not yet, anyway.) But it was still surprising that the only criticism of this appointment concerned Tower's susceptibility to men in crisp uniforms, not his weakness for women in tight skirts.

If they fortify him for cutting the defense budget, the thinking seems to be, the booze and broads can be overlooked. If not, they'll be the least of his failings. In other words, Tower will be judged on how he does his job, just as he should be.

The point here is not the usual one: that the public doesn't have a right to know about these things because they're irrelevant to a person's fitness for office. The point is that the public does have a right to know—so it can judge the relevance for itself—but is perfectly capable of putting such faults in perspective.

If the person involved is suspect to start with (like Hart) or totally unknown (like Ginsberg), and if the behavior is flagrant enough or serious enough, then personal vices may spell oblivion. In Ginsberg's case, though, it was administration officials and senators who got squeamish, not the public. At the time, most Americans told pollsters that an acquaintance with marijuana was forgivable in a Supreme Court justice.

Apparently they also think it's okay in a president. Bruce Babbitt and Al Gore didn't make it to the White House, but they lost on political merits. Their confessions of youthful pot-smoking had zero effect with the voters.

The Hart debacle was generally lamented as proof that Americans demand perfect morality from their leaders, which would have disqualified any number of presidents, including Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Kennedy. In fact, it only proved that chasing bimbos in public is more than voters will tolerate. A little taste and discretion are expected.

The model here might be San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, whose long-time affair with a married woman came to light a few months ago. (What is it with these Texans?) Cisneros, probably the nation's best-known Hispanic politician, has confessed all, aired the details of his miserable marriage, and at last report was considering a divorce.

How did the voters react? The scandal was so damaging to Cisneros that he's only the most popular politician in the state. He had pondered a 1990 race for Republican Phil Gramm's Senate seat, and one poll shows him leading his most likely rivals by 18 and 23 percentage points. There is even a move to get him to reverse his earlier decision not to run for re-election.

This episode doesn't suggest that voters will ignore just anything, no matter how outrageous. But it does prove that a politician of known ability isn't going to be tarred and feathered just because he succumbs to the temptations of the flesh. Apparently all the people who had always thought Cisneros was a great mayor considered the revelations and decided you can be a great mayor without being Husband of the Year.

The press has traditionally shied away from reporting information like this because it assumes the electorate is too immature to handle it intelligently. The paradox is that by refusing to cover up for politicians, the press will probably foster a climate of greater tolerance.

Personal vices may not be attractive, but they usually don't prevent a leader from doing his job well. The voters, knowing that, seem content to let God decide who goes to heaven and to base their own political decisions on who's likely to improve things here on Earth.

WASHINGTON—The Senate Armed Services Committee asked the FBI on Thursday to investigate new allegations about John Tower's personal life. The panel postponed a vote on the former senator's nomination as secretary of defense.

The committee acted after its chairman, Sen. Sam Nunn (D., Ga.), said the White House and his office received the information late Wednesday after a hearing on Tower's fitness for the defense job. He termed the reports "serious enough for us to want to check."

"Allegations that come in when people give names, times, places and so forth have to be checked out," Nunn said. He said the reports included "credible allegations" that go beyond the "hearsay" of testimony before the panel earlier in the week. The new information has been turned over to the FBI.

Though there were many rumors in Washington Thursday night about the sources of the new allegations, none could be confirmed.

Tower's confirmation appeared all but certain Wednesday after he assured committee members that he has no drinking problem, will not tolerate harassment of women in the military and is not beholden to the defense industry.

But Nunn interrupted a hearing on an unrelated matter Thursday morning to announce that the committee still was not ready to act.

The panel's ranking Republican, Sen. John Warner of Virginia, agreed to delay the vote, but he appeared angry at the 11th-hour reopening of the investigation into Tower's personal life and allegations of links to defense contractors.

"I don't think you should read anything alarming into this development," Warner said, expressing a desire to vote next Monday on Tower's confirmation. "It is my hope this is the very last chapter, in terms of analysis of new information."

At the same time, two other nominees for President Bush's Cabinet were running into trouble on issues of ethics:

● White House officials said Dr. Louis Sullivan, nominated to become secretary of health and human services, recently asked if he could accept a paid sabbatical from his position as dean of the Morehouse College School of Medicine in Atlanta while he serves on the federal payroll in the Bush Cabinet. Bush's statement on ethics would appear to bar such an arrangement.

● Clayton Yeutter, who has been nominated as secretary of agriculture, was questioned about a lavish reception thrown for him several weeks ago by the tobacco giant, Philip Morris Inc., which had dealings with Yeutter when he was the Reagan administration's U.S. trade representative.

Nunn and Warner met Thursday with the FBI and with a White House attorney. Asked if the new inquiry dealt with Tower's personal life or his professional role as a defense consultant, committee member Trent Lott (R., Miss.) replied: "Possibilities in both areas."

Tower, 63, now unmarried, has been divorced twice. Even before his nomination as defense secretary, he had been the subject of persistent rumors of drunkenness and womanizing during a government career that included 24 years in the Senate—four as chairman of the Armed Services Committee—and a 14-month tenure as chief of the U.S. arms-control team in Geneva.

For the last 2½ years, Tower was a Washington-based consultant, netting more than $1 million in fees from some of America's largest defense contractors.

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bush maintains steadfast support for his Defense Department nominee. "Obviously the President has confidence in Sen. Tower," Fitzwater said. "He urges prompt consideration of his nomination."

However, some members of the Armed Services Committee have voiced fears during Tower's four-day hearing that a quick confirmation of their controversial former colleague would look unseemly.

The controversy over Tower comes after Bush chose to make ethics in government an early theme of his presidency and during a continuing debate of ways to improve the Pentagon's procurement process to end abuses involving defense consultants and military contractors.

In the Sullivan matter, the college president's request seems to fly in the face of a pledge made by Bush during his campaign; he had said no administration appointee could accept outside income while serving in government.

The request raised immediate questions about whether Sullivan, 55, who is a personal friend of Bush's, might use the salary issue to decline the job and avoid embarrassing the new administration.

The only black nominated for a Cabinet post, Sullivan also has been involved in a running controversy over his stand on abortion. Bush opposes legalized abortion and wants the U.S. Supreme Court to reverse its earlier decision on abortion. But Sullivan, a physician, has expressed support for the court's abortion decision.

New charges put heat on Tower to withdraw

By Jerome R. Watson
Chief, Washington Bureau
Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON—Pressure grew Friday for John G. Tower to withdraw as President Bush's nominee for defense secretary as the FBI investigated specific new allegations of questionable personal conduct by the former senator.

Two widely circulated defense industry publications, Defense News and Army Times, called on Tower to remove his name from consideration for the Pentagon post.

The editorials, to be published Monday, follow calls by witnesses on Capitol Hill for the nomination to be rejected.

However, a senior White House official said Bush remained solidly behind Tower's nomination and was not considering alternates.

And the top Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, John Warner of Virginia, predicted the panel would vote to recommend confirmation of Tower by the middle of next week.

Amid the embarrassing uproar, Tower met at a Washington hotel with prospective Pentagon deputies.

A senior government source confirmed a CBS report that the FBI was investigating new charges of heavy drinking by Tower within the last year, as well as an alleged liaison between Tower and a woman from an Eastern bloc country in Houston.

But the source said that numerous checks made on Friday by federal investigators had failed to substantiate either of the fresh charges. The source said the investigation was continuing.

On Thursday, CBS also aired a claim by a woman who was identified only as a former member of Tower's team when he was a top U.S. arms control official in Geneva that she had witnessed Tower's alleged womanizing.

Administration officials insisted that this charge had been previously looked into and was unfounded.

Earlier this week, Tower assured the Senate Armed Services Committee that he did not have a drinking problem, apparently triggering new allegations that he does.

The next day, committee Chairman Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) said a planned vote on the nomination was being delayed because of new accusations against Tower.

The Defense News, an independent publication, said in its editorial that Tower's links to defense consultants were the most troubling concern about his nomination.

"There is ample reason to doubt whether Mr. Tower is the man for these times," the publication said.

Tower, a former chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, has been criticized for accepting more than $750,000 in consulting fees from U.S. defense contractors. Critics questioned whether he could be objective in presiding over the Pentagon's immense procurement operation, the object of federal bribery investigations.

Army Times said Tower's public position had been "so compromised by the agonizing process by which he was nominated and is being confirmed ... that he cannot be the strong spokesman the Defense Department needs."

Bush delayed tapping Tower, nominated in December, to give the FBI time to check out allegations of heavy drinking and womanizing. At the time, Bush said the FBI inquiry had cleared Tower.

WASHINGTON—The Senate Armed Services Committee Thursday postponed voting on the nomination of John G. Tower as defense secretary so the FBI could check out new allegations about the former senator's personal life.

The new inquiry was ordered by the White House after committee Chairman Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) notified it of the allegations.

Sen. Alan J. Dixon (D-Ill.), a member of the panel, said the allegations against Tower surfaced after a hearing earlier this week in which a conservative activist, Paul Weyrich, said Tower's lifestyle made him unfit for the defense post.

Sources said most of the allegations relate to Tower's drinking habits, and the committee has asked the FBI to check them out, to see whether Tower has a serious alcohol problem. At Wednesday's hearing, Tower insisted he is not a problem drinker. Sources said some of the allegations are false but that others require checking.

CBS News said the new allegations involved drinking and womanizing. CBS broadcast an interview with a woman the network identified as a secretary in Geneva when Tower was the chief U.S. strategic arms negotiator. The woman said, "I personally saw him chase a secretary around his desk."

Tower's nomination also has been questioned by critics who have cited his acceptance of more than $750,000 in consulting fees from U.S. defense contractors.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said President Bush still "has confidence in Mr. Tower."

However, Sen. James Exon (D-Neb.) said the Tower nomination was "in question."

The action by the committee was one of several developments this week that have cast shadows on Bush's campaign for ethics and propriety in government, which he has been pursuing since his Jan. 20 inauguration. Bush, said by associates to have been unhappy over ethical lapses by various appointees of former President Ronald Reagan, repeatedly has insisted he will demand strict adherence to tight ethical standards.

But three Bush Cabinet nominees in addition to Tower have received negative publicity in recent days. All four are expected to win confirmation, however.

The White House confirmed that Dr. Louis W. Sullivan, Bush's choice for secretary of health and human services, has asked whether he can continue to be paid by the Morehouse School of Medicine while serving in the Cabinet.

Fitzwater said the unusual request was being explored by the White House legal counsel's office. Such arrangements customarily are banned, to avoid conflicts of interest.

Another nominee, Jack F. Kemp, a former House member who was confirmed Thursday as secretary of housing and urban development, accepted or agreed to accept $67,350 more in speaking fees than House rules allow, his financial disclosure statement showed.

Kemp this week agreed to return $16,000 in speaking fees and forgo another $39,400 in fees not yet received. He also deferred until this year receiving an additional $12,500 in fees earned in 1988. A Kemp aide said the football player-turned-politician mistakenly thought that funds received after he left Congress did not apply to House limits.

In the fourth case, the Washington Post reported that former Chicagoan Clayton K. Yeutter, outgoing U.S. trade representative and Bush's choice to be agriculture secretary, was honored at a lavish reception sponsored by Philip Morris Inc., a food, alcohol and tobacco conglomerate.

Executive branch ethics rules prohibit an official from accepting anything of value from anyone whose interests could be affected by the official's actions. Yeutter on Thursday told the Senate committee considering his nomination that he had agreed to attend the reception—honoring him for his work on international trade issues relating to the company's interests—after announcing his resignation as trade representative and before being nominated to the agriculture post. The reception actually was held after his nomination was announced.

"We probably should have reconsidered that because of my expected continuation in government," Yeutter said. But he said that because he was so busy, he overlooked the question of a potential conflict.

WASHINGTON—The private financial affairs of President Bush's legal counsel came under scrutiny this weekend, while at the same time FBI agents, on the basis of new allegations, were rechecking the personal life of former Sen. John Tower, Bush's nominee for secretary of defense.

The questions about C. Boyden Gray, Bush's White House lawyer and his ● President's nominees give ethics vow an early tryout. In Perspective.

chief ethics adviser, centered on Gray's investments and his acceptance of outside income as chairman of the board of a multimillion-dollar communications company.

The questions arose at an awkward time for Bush, who has been emphasizing strict ethics in government during his first two weeks in office and is trying to shepherd his Cabinet appointments through the Senate confirmation process.

Because of those problems, Dr. Louis Sullivan, Bush's nominee for secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, suddenly withdrew his unusual request to receive outside pay from the Morehouse College School of Medicine.

Sullivan had asked for permission to take a paid leave of absence from his job as dean of the school while serving in the Cabinet. But on Saturday, Sullivan said in a statement released by the White House: "I intend to preclude even the remotest possibility of any appearance that my actions as secretary might be influenced due to any outside income."

The eagerness to avoid even the appearance of conflict of interest, an attitude Bush has made the hallmark of his administration, made the inquiries about Gray's finances even more pointed.

Gray, who has been serving as Bush's chief ethics officer, said in an article published in Saturday's Washington Post that he saw no reason to use a blind trust while serving in government, but that he would no longer accept fees from the family-owned communications company.

Gray also was quoted as saying he had discussed his business dealings with Bush Friday and that neither man saw anything wrong in his financial arrangements. Since the transition period after Bush's election, Gray has been in charge of screening all presidential appointments.

Meanwhile, the most troubled appointment seemed to be Tower's, and one key source said significant allegations against Tower may mean his confirmation as defense secretary is "no longer assured."

According to the source, who requested anonymity, it will take agents several days to delve into a series of allegations about drunkenness and relationships Tower has had with women.

This timetable suggested that the Senate Armed Services Committee may not receive a full report on the charges until late Monday or Tuesday and that a vote on the Texas Republican's confirmation may be delayed well into the week.

"I think it's really snowballing now," one Senate aide said. "These are far more serious than the gossip we had before, and they have to be followed up."

The aide said a perception that Tower now is in trouble may be contributing to a "bandwagon effect," prompting calls for the former senator to withdraw his nomination.

"Perhaps there is a rush to get Tower now that he is viewed as wounded," said another Senate source with ties to the Armed Services Committee.

The ranking Republican on the committee, Sen. John Warner of Virginia, acknowledged the panel may not vote until the middle of the week on whether to recommend that the Senate confirm Tower.

Sources close to the committee, which on Thursday postponed an expected confirmation vote, said the FBI has been told to investigate charges brought the previous day to the panel and the White House.

Another source said the information received by the committee came from new sources and had not been known when the FBI did an extensive background check on Tower late last year. He said agents are concentrating on whether the incidents raise questions about the ex-senator's professional ability or disclose situations where he was "out of control."

During four days of confirmation hearings, members of the committee questioned Tower about possible conflicts of interest from his 2½ years as a defense consultant.

Tower netted more than $1 million in fees from April, 1986, when he resigned as chief U.S. negotiator at the Geneva arms talks, until last Dec. 1, when he severed his consulting contracts.

Senate aides said the current FBI investigation does not involve financial dealings.

In a separate matter, an Air Force investigative file says that widespread drinking, frequent sexual encounters and possible security breaches took place at the U.S. arms-control mission in Geneva while Tower served as a top negotiator there in 1985 and 1986.

The file, obtained from government sources by Knight-Ridder Newspapers, said that Col. Robert Moser, an Air Force officer who served as a key mission staff member, committed "a number of serious security violations." Moser worked closely with Tower, who was heading up strategic arms limitation talks with the Soviets.

Though the investigation was limited to Moser—and did not accuse Tower of national security violations—there were specific references to Tower's behavior with women. The investigation, concluded in 1987, details an arms negotiating team whose off-duty drinking, poker-playing and extramarital flings contrasted sharply with the pin-striped image of seasoned diplomats.

In the probe of Moser, government agents investigated "numerous possible espionage indicators, including financial insolvency, unauthorized contacts with citizens of communist-controlled countries and adulterous sexual relationships with several women (including a foreign national)."

Moser was never formally charged with violation of any law. Instead, according to the file, he was fired by the Pentagon from his post at the Geneva mission and subsequently allowed to retire from the Air Force.

Newsday

WASHINGTON—The FBI's background investigation of Defense Secretary-designate John Tower has uncovered extensive government files showing repeated security violations at a sensitive U.S. diplomatic mission in Geneva during Tower's tenure there as a chief arms reduction negotiator.

In the midst of an extensive Pentagon investigation of Geneva security breaches, the files show, Tower and other U.S. negotiators wrote memos in 1986 strongly defending an Air Force colonel who was a chief target of the security investigation.

A State Department security official later suggested that the officials' support for the colonel, who subsequently was reprimanded for sexual misconduct, "may have been influenced" by assistance he gave them "in personal and professional matters . . . some of which bordered on improper conduct."

John Tower

While the files are sprinkled with references to Tower, they appear to contain no substantiated evidence that he personally was involved in security lapses.

However, they paint a startling picture of questionable conduct by U.S. diplomatic, military and intelligence personnel assigned to conduct critical negotiations with the Soviet Union on such issues as the Strategic Defense Initiative and nuclear arms cuts.

The disclosures about the Geneva mission could be a serious setback for the already embattled nominee because they tend to raise fresh questions about his management style and personal conduct. The files include, for instance, an assertion by one witness that Tower once chased a secretary around his Geneva office.

Earlier disclosures prompted two widely circulated publications, the Defense News and the Army Times, to urge in editorials to be published tomorrow that Tower withdraw his nomination.

Tower could not be reached for comment Saturday.

The thousands of pages of documents, some stamped "secret," focus on the statements of retired Air Force Col. Robert L. Moser Jr. The documents also cover broader security problems. They cite, for example:

- Moser's recitation of sexual liaisons involving at least a dozen unidentified U.S. personnel assigned to the Geneva mission, sometimes with foreign nationals.
- Repeated instances of heavy drinking and unauthorized contacts with Soviet representatives by U.S. personnel in Geneva at such "KGB hangouts" as the Pickwick Pub and Jimmy's Bar. Moser told investigators of instances where Geneva mission secretaries, including Tower's secretary, "had been approached by the Soviets."
- Sloppy handling of classified documents, including sensitive documents that Moser allegedly kept in his car trunk.

The government files, retrieved from a half dozen federal agencies, have been turned over to the Senate Armed Forces Committee, which last week postponed a vote on President Bush's nomination of Tower to the top Pentagon post, citing new information and allegations about Tower's personal life. It could not be learned if the Geneva files were related to the delay.

Moser, accused by a secretary of sexual harassment, indicated in a 1987 interview with other government investigators that Tower had come to his defense.

The transcript of Moser's recorded interview said, "John Tower, when I talked to him, thought that [it] was a mistake" for Moser not to continue to fight the sexual harassment complaint. "He said, 'We can clear this up. We should have kept you on board where we would have had control. This thing has gotten out of hand. You know, whatever I could do to help, I will.' "

Tower, who has been dogged by allegations of womanizing, told the Senate committee confirmation hearings that he would have "zero tolerance" for sexual harassment in the Defense Department.

The harassment complaint against Moser, who was then executive secretary to one of the Geneva negotiating teams, was upheld, and the secretary received a $6,663 financial settlement from the Pentagon. Moser received a letter of reprimand from the Air Force and later retired. He now lives near Washington but could not be reached for comment.

Moser's statement did not mention Tower by name. It was dated April 1, 1986, six days after Tower, in a "to whom it may concern" memo, called Moser "a dedicated, hard-working man" and also said, "On the face of it, I do not believe that the allegations against Col. Moser are warranted. I regard his service as outstanding and his devotion to his country and his personal patriotism to be above reproach."

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—John Tower's payments from defense contractors raised more serious questions about his ability to be Pentagon chief than charges of excessive drinking and womanizing, a Republican senator said Sunday.

Sen. Alan Simpson of Wyoming, a close friend of President Bush, said the $750,000 Tower received in less than three years as a consultant to the defense industry gave rise to appearances of conflict of interest.

"I think that's more a conflict than anything with regard to his personality. ... That is more of an element to me than the other aspects," Simpson said on NBC's "Meet The Press."

Asked what advice he would give Tower, he said: "I would try to know that he would really be able to recuse himself from these people who paid him so handsomely in the past. I think that's hard to do."

Tower's nomination has been the subject of confirmation hearings by the Senate Armed Services Committee over the past two weeks.

He seemed all but certain to gain confirmation last Wednesday after assuring the committee that he had no alcohol problem, would not tolerate sexual harassment in the military and would not show preferences to companies that paid him.

But the committee delayed a vote on Tower's approval Thursday after new charges surfaced about his personal life, and the FBI was directed to renew its background investigation.

The committee has not revealed details about the new allegations against Tower.

On another matter, Simpson said that despite widespread criticism of a proposed depositors' fee to help bail out ailing savings and loan institutions, not all legislators have ruled out the levy.

"I think you've got to put all sorts of things on the table," and the possibility of a depositors' fee "can't be left out," said Simpson, the Senate's minority whip.

Administration officials have refused to publicly disavow the controversial suggestion, but, White House aides, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Friday they do not expect it to be in the administration's final package.

"That was a non-starter and I don't think you'll see that idea again," Senate Banking Committee chairman Donald Riegle (D., Mich.) said Sunday on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Instead, the insurance premiums paid by the institutions—currently 83 cents per $1,000 for banks and $2.08 for savings and loanss—probably will be increased, he said.

George Bush almost certainly could save himself a lot of grief if he'd just lean down and whisper something subtle in John Tower's ear. Like get lost.

One thing no President needs, especially a newly sworn one, is a Cabinet member with a black cloud shadowing him wherever he goes. And that's exactly what the defense secretary-designate seems to have.

No question, John Tower has a lot of enemies. But sometimes people deserve their enemies. And even his friends seem to be having a lot of trouble these days working up much enthusiasm for his appointment.

What makes the delay over Senate confirmation particularly embarrassing is the memory of the weeks Tower was left twisting in the wind during the transition period before he was even nominated.

At that time, a lot of Bush watchers guessed that the former Texas senator and chairman of the Armed Services Committee was being sent a message to withdraw from consideration for the job he had unabashedly aspired to for so long. But after a really indecent interval, Tower was named to the post. And the Bush camp assured the world it had simply wanted the Federal Bureau of Investigation to have ample time to lay to rest all the allegations against him of heavy drinking, womanizing and possible conflicts as a highly paid consultant for defense contractors.

So now, with hearings underway before the committee he once chaired, more charges have surfaced and the Democratic chairman, Sam Nunn, was joined by John Warner, the ranking Republican, in sending the FBI back to work to check them out.

Tower has testified he doesn't have an alcohol problem and that as defense secretary he would recuse himself from decisions involving former clients. But despite his protests, those are the questions, along with womanizing, that continue to be raised.

If John Tower were running for election, the voters could sort out the allegations and his responses and decide what to believe. Certainly, a taste for liquor and an eye for the opposite sex have seldom been disqualifiers for public office, but even in those areas there are degrees of acceptability. And if there were a question of impropriety in using clout on behalf of clients, again the electorate could decide how much it would tolerate short of an indictable offense.

But when it comes to the Cabinet, a President must decide just how fine a distinction he's willing to make between what's tolerable and what's not. He, after all, is going to take the heat.

There's not much question that if knowledge of the defense establishment, military and industrial, is the principal measure, John Tower is qualified to be secretary of defense. But George Bush has promised more than that. He has vowed, in an apparent effort to offset any hangover from the Reagan administration's problems, that he would hold his appointees to the highest of ethical standards.

Of course, John Tower would qualify under the Ed Meese Rule of Sufficient Propriety for Holding Appointive Public Office. He certainly hasn't been convicted of anything, or even indicted. But George Bush has told us that is not nearly enough. Now it's time he told John Tower. Just before he says goodbye.

Chicago Tribune

WASHINGTON—A new allegation of possible wrongdoing by associates of John Tower caused the FBI to expand its investigation of the former Texas senator Tuesday as Senate Democrats warned that support has eroded for his nomination to be secretary of defense.

According to government sources, the new allegation could prove an obstacle to his confirmation. They said the allegation relates to the FBI's investigation of alleged fraud in the Pentagon procurement process and could delay a Senate vote on Tower, who spent the last 2½ years managing a lucrative defense consulting firm in Washington.

The sources cautioned that it is too early to evaluate the substance of the allegation. One source said the link to Tower is "very tenuous."

The sources said it could take FBI agents several days to determine if the allegation raises new questions about Tower's role in the consulting business, which last week prompted senators to quiz Tower about potential conflicts of interest.

On Capitol Hill, the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee said he has lingering concerns about Tower's nomination, and other Senate Democrats who must confirm the controversial appointment to the Bush Cabinet said support for Tower has eroded.

Even a day's delay in voting on Tower may complicate the confirmation process and could leave the Pentagon without senior leadership until late this month. The FBI report on the new allegation is not expected before Monday, sources said. Congress is scheduled to recess Thursday and will not return until Feb. 20.

Late Tuesday night, a White House official said the administration had no comment.

John Tower

In a day marked by escalating tensions and barely contained tempers over the nomination, Sen. James Exon (D., Neb.) gave the toughest critique of Tower's personal life to date from an Armed Services Committee member. Exon said some committee members remain deeply concerned about the nominee's drinking habits.

"I am convinced that at one time, some months or years ago, John Tower had a serious problem with alcohol," Exon said. "All during this investigation, the question has been on many of our minds—whether that is still the case or has it been corrected?"

Republican members of the Armed Services Committee received an early oral summary of what—until the new allegation surfaced Tuesday afternoon—was assumed would be the FBI's completed investigation of Tower.

They emerged from the meeting with White House lawyers to say there is nothing in the former Texas senator's past to prevent his confirmation.

That, however, prompted one Senate Democrat to charge the White House with selling the Republicans a "sanitized version" of the FBI report. It was viewed as a slap at Sen. Sam Nunn (D., Ga.), the Armed Services Committee chairman, who demanded and received a 45-minute meeting with President Bush.

"I have concerns," Nunn said. "My concerns are not limited to these recent allegations."

Nunn unexpectedly postponed last Thursday's committee vote after the committee and the White House received new reports alleging that Tower had a history of womanizing and excessive drinking.

Those allegations were forwarded to the FBI, which reopened an investigation into Tower's background; the FBI previously had cleared the 63-year-old Texan for the Pentagon post.

"I can't say when we are going to have a vote until we have a report," Nunn said Tuesday.

The committee's ranking Republican, Sen. John Warner of Virginia, said he received a call late Tuesday from White House Counsel C. Boyden Gray "informing me that the FBI requires more time." Warner spoke of "a new lead which developed subsequent to our meeting with the President which has come to the attention of the bureau."

Warner said he was not informed of the specifics of the allegation. But sources said the FBI inquiry is to determine whether associates of Tower may be linked to the "Ill Wind" investigation of wrongful trading of classified documents to aid defense contractors.

During four days of testimony before the Armed Services Committee, Tower repeatedly said he never traded in classified information and had no knowledge of the Ill Wind investigation other than media reports.

FBI/DOJ

Tower and his consulting firm netted more than $1 million in the past 2½ years providing advice to some of America's largest defense contractors. The company, Tower, Eggers & Greene, has a staff of five.

The sources said FBI agents briefed White House officials on the allegation Tuesday afternoon.

The sources would not identify the Tower associates whose activity is being questioned or identify the source of the allegation.

Federal officials said late last year that the FBI, in its initial background investigation of Tower, checked into several references to the former senator on recordings of wiretapped conversations made during the two-year inquiry into Pentagon contracting practices.

The officials said then that the comments included statements by other Pentagon consultants who said that Tower might be able to help them win lucrative Pentagon contracts. But the FBI did not find any evidence of wrongdoing by Tower in connection with these matters, the officials said.

After a tumultuous week that produced no new evidence against John Tower's confirmation as defense secretary, his staunchest supporters returned Monday privately fearful that he was finished if the Senate Armed Services Committee did not vote to confirm him this week and damaged even if it did.

Renewed charges of womanizing and boozing had no more substance than earlier ones. But mere repetition of calumny prompted insiders to declare his nomination in deep trouble. Liberal Democrats, neutral at best about the pro-defense Texan, solemnly averred that Tower had become too crippled to be effective in the Pentagon.

"The more a secretary of defense is damaged," Republican Sen. John McCain, an Armed Services member bitter over Tower's treatment, told us, "the more the vacuum is filled by the relevant congressional committees." McCain is not claiming a conspiracy and absolves his Democratic chairman, Sen. Sam Nunn, of exploiting the situation. But he is not alone in suspecting that others, including committee staffers, were exploiters.

George Bush would not yield here in the third week of his presidency even if Tower were not a longtime Texas political comrade. Nevertheless, accumulated innuendo might have destroyed Tower by now if many of his judges were not former Senate colleagues who put their personal observation of Tower ahead of salacious hearsay. Thus, the committee is expected to vote favorably this week.

Tower's nomination was first delayed for weeks until the FBI investigated sex-and-alcohol charges. Then, when apparently speeding toward confirmation last week, new accusations came in closed-door testminony. The senators were not impressed. One claimed female liaison dated back to 1973, suggesting no sexual statute of limitations.

This inevitably encouraged copycats to unfurl three new charges deemed of sufficient gravity by Chairman Nunn to hold up proceedings for an FBI check. To the consternation of Republican committee members, ranking GOP Sen. John Warner OKd the delay.

The caliber of these new accusations is shown by the one most widely distributed: that Tower several years ago installed a Russian ballerina in a Houston mansion he owned and used as an orgiastic site. Apart from Tower's thin financial resources, there was neither witness nor evidence.

Just at that point an eavesdropper overheard the unmarried, irreverent Tower, lunching at the Jefferson Hotel with his lady friend, foolishly unleash his wicked sense of the ridiculous by humorously threatening to "fondle" her. It was reported by Chuck Conconi in his widely read Washington Post column and featured on the CBS news that night. Washington was titillated—and aghast.

Seasoned journalists speculated that just "one more thing"—that is, another unsubstantiated accusation—would finally undo Tower. His former colleague, Republican Sen. Larry Pressler, needed no additional phantom charge; he went on CNN's "Larry King Live" program to ask that the nomination be withdrawn. Defense publications joined the lynch mob.

Yet a senator who had known Tower well recited facts: In years of cocktail parties, meals and meetings from Seoul to Berlin, he never saw him drink anything stronger than wine and never saw him drunk.

Russian ballerinas and gropings under the tablecloth are not enough for respectable insiders. Foggy conflict-of-interest charges, based on Tower earning his living as a defense consultant after he left the Senate, had been shrugged aside in committee weeks ago. Now they suddenly aroused attention. Yet, Tower's $250,000 a year as a consultant comes to less than monetary gleanings of many Armed Services Committee members when augmented by contributions from political action committees of the defense industry.

WASHINGTON—Republicans led by President Bush rallied Tuesday behind John G. Tower, but the defense secretary-designate's prospects for winning Senate confirmation remained clouded by deepening Democratic concerns over his past.

An unconfirmed CBS report said Senate Armed Services Chairman Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) was leaning against the Tower nomination.

And the panel's ranking Republican, John Warner of Virginia—who had been pushing quick approval of Tower—said at a late press conference that the White House had informed him of another fresh allegation against the nominee.

Warner said the FBI should look into the new charge "in an orderly way." He said he was "not advised" of the details of that charge.

He said White House Counsel C. Boyden Gray told him the new charge was reported to the FBI after Warner and Nunn had met for 45 minutes with Bush to discuss the nomination, and that Bush had reiterated his support for Tower.

Prior to Warner's disclosure, Nunn met briefly with reporters. He said only that he had "general concerns" about the range of allegations swirling around Tower. Nunn testily added that there should be no rush to approve the nomination until the facts have been assessed.

"As much pressure as there is, we ought to do something that is unusual in Washington, we ought to let the facts support the conclusions," Nunn said.

In a subsequent statement, Nunn said he still had not received a written report from the FBI on its renewed investigation of Tower. Contrary to some Republican statements, he said, the report had not been completed.

Bush's press secretary, Marlin Fitzwater, reported that at the White House meeting, "The president told [Nunn that] Tower was an excellent nominee and hoped there'd be a vote soon. He [Nunn] did not speak out against it or ask that it be withdrawn."

Fitzwater said, before Warner spoke of a new charge against Tower: "It's our understanding that the FBI report was near completion, that they had not found any problems as far as we are concerned, and we expect a vote relatively soon."

A planned vote on Tower was put off last Thursday when, following public hearings, new accusations of womanizing and excessive drinking were made against the former chairman of the Armed Services Committee. White House officials said that the FBI looked into those charges and that they appeared unfounded.

But Democrats were reluctant to rush to approve Tower, and partisan strains surfaced when Nunn reportedly declined a White House offer of an oral briefing on the FBI investigation Tuesday morning.

Republican members of the committee agreed to the briefing, and some later said the new allegations against Tower were without merit.

Sen. J. James Exon (D-Neb.) said that if there was no "smoking gun" in the FBI report, the committee probably would approve Tower but some members might vote against him. The full Senate still must act on the nomination.

Exon said most of the allegations against Tower had been "garbage," but he said he was convinced that "at one time, John Tower had a serious problem with alcohol."

Springfield Bureau / Chicago Sun-Times

SPRINGFIELD—Vice President Dan Quayle praised Defense Secretary-designate John G. Tower Monday, saying it would be "most unfortunate" if the Senate rejected his nomination because of unfounded allegations.

"There's absolutely no reason in the world John Tower shouldn't be the next secretary of defense," Quayle told some 1,700 party faithful at a Sangamon County Republican Lincoln Day Luncheon.

"He was a good chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and I think he should, and I anticipate that he will, be secretary of defense and he'll do a good job," said the vice president, making his first political foray since his inauguration three weeks ago.

Before the luncheon, Quayle laid a wreath at Lincoln's tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery and visited the nearby Vietnam Veterans Memorial, where, he said, he was "struck by the beauty" of the site.

At the luncheon, Quayle called GOP the "party of the future," and said President Bush is determined to rein in the federal budget deficit without a tax increase.

He also repeated the administration's commitment to the "human capital side of the ledger," and declared that the Pentagon must "get more bang for the buck" to maintain a strong national defense in the face of budget constraints.

Quayle's continuing defense of the beleaguered Tower came after the current Armed Services chairman, Sam Nunn (D-Ga.), last week said "serious" personal and financial questions remain unanswered about the former Texas senator.

Nunn "is approaching this nomination as he approaches other issues. He's doing it very seriously, very cautiously," Quayle told reporters. "He is a person that wants to get all the facts on the table."

Concern about Tower's suitability for the defense post has been based both on questions about his personal life, including reports of womanizing and alcohol abuse, and on business matters, including his work as a consultant to defense contractors.

Acknowledging that many charges have surfaced, Quayle stressed that all so far "have been proven to be groundless" since Tower has gone through "the most exhaustive FBI investigation in American history."

"We had heard many of these allegations before the nomination was sent up," he said. "That's one reason President Bush didn't send it up as early as he wanted."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House chief of staff John Sununu reaffirmed presidential support Sunday for Defense Secretary-designate John Tower and insisted every inquiry into alleged unethical behavior by the embattled nominee "has produced a dry hole."

After a week that saw the White House drawn into a tense series of crisis meetings on the nomination, Sununu said Tower retains the full backing of President Bush and predicted the nominee will weather the political storm over his personal and professional affairs.

"The Senate has to work its course," Sununu said. "We understand that. That's the right thing to do. But the president is convinced that ... those allegations will be proven to not have any basis and, when they do vote, John Tower will be confirmed."

Action on the Tower nomination by the Senate Armed Services Committee was postponed again last week after the emergence of yet another allegation about his past, said to focus on his receipt of campaign contributions during his tenure in the Senate, which ended in 1985.

Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., took the action with support from the White House after a private meeting with Bush in which the senator said he would not be able to support the Tower nomination unless assured that allegations of drinking problems, womanizing and other problems were found to be baseless.

"Every single allegation that is of significance that has been checked has produced a dry hole," Sununu told the ABC News program "This Week with David Brinkley."

At the same time, Sununu took deliberate steps not to offend Nunn, who informed Bush of his anger last week at not being included when Sen. John Warner, R-Va., the senior Republican on his committee, received an interim report on the FBI probe of Tower.

Refusing to ascribe partisan motives to the criticism Nunn leveled last week at Tower and the handling of his nomination by the White House, Sununu said the influential Armed Services Committee chairman has "a sincere set of concerns."

Sununu sought to put to rest the "little controversy" over the Warner briefing by adding that Nunn and other members of the committee would have the right to request similar updates.

The Tower nomination was one of several ethical problems that have emerged to confront a president who has made higher standards of behavior for government officials a hallmark of his new administration.

WASHINGTON—FBI investigations of Defense Secretary-designate John Tower have produced a "dry hole" and he eventually will win Senate confirmation despite allegations of financial and personal misconduct, White House chief of staff John Sununu said Sunday.

"Every single allegation that is of significance that has been checked has produced a dry hole," Sununu said in a television interview.

Tower appeared headed for easy confirmation until conservative lobbyist Paul Weyrich testified Jan. 31 before the Senate Armed Services Committee that he had seen the nominee intoxicated and accompanied by women other than his wife.

Since then, allegations have mushroomed, and Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) has held up a vote on Tower's confirmation to investigate further his personal finances as well as allegations of excessive drinking and womanizing.

Committee members raised concerns that Tower could be subject to a conflict of interest because he was paid more than $760,000 in consultant's fees by major defense contractors in the last three years.

The Senate is in recess this week, meaning no confirmation vote on Tower can be held until next week at the earliest. That has left the new Bush administration without a secretary to manage the $300 billion-a-year Defense Department.

"The Senate is in the process of doing about the same thing that we did before the name went up," Sununu said. "We chased down through the FBI all those allegations. The Senate has to work its course. We understand that. It's the right thing to do.

"But the president is convinced that the same thing will happen as they go through this: that those allegations will be proven not to have any basis and that when they do vote, John Tower will be confirmed."

Sununu did not address reports that said Tower has given contradictory testimony on his work as a consultant for British Aerospace, a weapons and aircraft builder.

Tower told a Senate panel last week that he had represented the company's U.S. subsidiary on civil matters, not on military systems.

But in a June, 1987, deposition during divorce proceedings, Tower said he helped the company try to sell its Hawk training jet, Tornado fighter and Rapier anti-aircraft missile to the Pentagon.

The discrepancy could prompt concern about the truthfulness and completeness of Tower's written and oral testimony last week before the Senate Armed Services Committee, which has been considering his nomination.

WASHINGTON—Questions about Defense Secretary-designate John Tower's personal behavior stem partly from internal Pentagon reports detailing heavy drinking, extramarital affairs and alleged sexual harassment by arms control negotiators who served with Tower in Geneva.

The reports, a key focus of the controversy last week that delayed a Senate vote on Tower's nomination, do not accuse the former Texas senator of participating in such high jinks and draw no conclusions about his conduct as a top U.S. arms control negotiator in 1985 and 1986.

But they show that Tower continued to defend one negotiator after other officials had transferred the man back to Washington and the government had agreed to pay a $6,000 settlement to a secretary who had accused the man of making "sexually suggestive remarks."

Tower wrote a memorandum, addressed to "whom it may concern," praising the man, former Air Force Col. Robert Moser, as "dedicated" and "hard working."

Moser, who denied harassing the woman, later recalled to government investigators that Tower had disagreed with the reassignment and told Moser: "We can clear this up. We should have kept you on board where we would have had control. This thing has gotten out of hand. You know, whatever I could do to help, I will."

The files also contain an assertion by the same woman that Tower himself showed "special attention to his secretaries."

"I have, on one occasion, watched Ambassador Tower chase [a secretary] around the office," the woman told Air Force investigators. She said the secretary in question "was classified as a secretary but could never pull duty in Geneva because she could not type."

The material in the Moser files is part of a welter of information about Tower's judgment and behavior that will be on the minds of members of the Senate Armed Services Committee during the congressional recess that began Friday.

Tower pledged to the committee recently that, if confirmed as President Bush's choice to command the Pentagon, he would not tolerate sexual harassment at any level of the military.

The Senate committee also is awaiting an FBI report on an allegation that individuals now under investigation for possible defense-contract fraud made illegal campaign contributions to benefit Tower before he retired from the Senate in 1984.

Government sources said the FBI hopes to determine whether there is any substance to that allegation before Congress returns from the recess next week. The Senate committee will then resume deliberations on whether to confirm Tower's nomination.

The 63-year-old Tower has refused to comment to reporters about his actions in Geneva, the allegation concerning the campaign contribution and questions raised in divorce proceedings about whether he has had relationships with women other than his two former wives. The senators have not asked Tower about any of these matters at public hearings on his nomination.

But a spokesman for Tower said Friday that the senator has told committee members that he was unaware of the sexual harassment and other charges against Moser at the time he wrote the memo supporting him.

The files also show that Moser received an official reprimand from his superiors and was asked to retire from the Air Force after he admitted "responsibility for several security violations" in Geneva, acknowledged that he had had an extramarital affair there and accused 14 other delegation members of having similar flings. Other witnesses interviewed in the Moser case said delegation members engaged in substantial social drinking and in frequent poker games.

Tower's spokesman, who asked anonymity, said the assertion that Tower chased the secretary around the desk "has been completely investigated by the FBI." He said Tower also feels "very confident that he will check out very cleanly" on the question about the possibly illicit campaign contribution.

Government sources said other former employees at the arms control office in Geneva corroborated the woman's assertion that Tower once attempted to "grab" his secretary. But, according to the sources, some employees downplayed the significance of the incident, which they said occurred during an office party.

Sen. Sam Nunn (D., Ga.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, complained last week that the White House had not provided the committee with full copies of the Pentagon's files on Moser. But he also said it was his impression that any allegations of wrongdoing by Tower in Geneva had "not checked out."

Other lawmakers said, however, that lingering questions about Tower's behavior could play a major role in committee members' efforts to determine whether they have enough confidence in his judgment to allow him to take charge of one of the government's largest, most important agencies.

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu said Sunday that investigations of allegations against Tower have produced a "dry hole" and added that President Bush remains confident the Senate eventually will confirm Tower.

The information in the files on the Moser case surfaced publicly last week after Rep. John Dingell (D., Mich.), chairman of the House Committee on Energy and Commerce, urged Nunn and the FBI to examine the materials. Aides said Dingell had obtained the Pentagon reports during an investigation of a consulting company that Moser became associated with after leaving the Air Force.

The Armed Services Committee also has heard testimony from Paul Weyrich, a conservative activist, who said that he had encountered Tower numerous times "in a condition—lack of sobriety—and in the company of women other than his wife." Tower insisted before the committee, however, that he has no drinking problem.

Tower also has fended off repeated questions from senators concerned about his earnings of more than $1 million as a consultant to defense companies over the past several years.

Sen. Alan Dixon (D., Ill.), a member of the Armed Services Committee, said last week that he and other committee members have deep concerns that Tower accepted such large fees but has "no documentation to show what he did for it."

They said Tower's ties to some of the nation's largest defense contractors also could pose potential conflicts of interest if he takes over the Pentagon. However, Tower said this would not be a problem because he would excuse himself from any actions involving his former clients.

Lawmakers also are waiting to see whether the FBI can resolve the allegation about possibly illegal contributions to Tower's Senate campaign.

According to government sources, an individual now under scrutiny in a massive Pentagon fraud investigation has alleged that officials of a company that became part of Unisys Corp. illegally funneled contributions to Tower when he was chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. Federal laws forbid corporations to make campaign donations.

The allegation focuses on possible impropriety by associates of Tower, the sources said. But the FBI has not determined if Tower was aware of the source of the contribution.

What also makes it hard to evaluate the allegation, the sources said, is that the individual who made it is attempting to trade his information about Tower's associates for an agreement that would allow him to plead guilty to reduced charges in the broader Pentagon investigation.

Bush caught in a no-win predicament with Tower

Terrible presidential appointments pop up often in Washington, but I have never seen anything like the reaction to the nomination of John Tower to be secretary of defense.

Imagine Sen. Sam Nunn, the gentle, never-flamboyant chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, publicly expressing his worries about Tower's self-control and the possible perils of having the Texan in charge of America's nuclear arsenal!

Imagine Sen. James Exon, the far-from-liberal Nebraska Democrat, saying on national television that he isn't sure Tower will stay sober enough to deal with crises that pop up 24 hours a day.

Carl T. Rowan

Tower is no alien political foe of Nunn's or Exon's. He is their former Senate colleague, the man who once chaired the very committee that is trying to pass judgment on his fitness. By all the rules of courtesy in "the world's most exclusive club" of 100 senators, Tower was supposed to get an easy pass.

It says something about their integrity, their concerns for national security, that Nunn, Exon and others won't play the "old buddy" game and ignore charges that Tower has been a heavy drinker, a sexual tomcat and indiscreet enough to have a drunken encounter with a Soviet woman.

I still say that the more serious problem is Tower's relationship to the arms providers who gave him close to a million dollars for "consulting" information that Tower now says they could have gotten at the public library. The FBI now is checking whether Tower or his aides were seriously implicated in the military procurement scandals.

Like all the presidents I've known in 42 years of journalism, Bush has gotten into trouble because of cronyism—a foolish loyalty to an old buddy. And, like other proud and stubborn presidents, Bush is loath to admit he erred, or to accept a humiliating defeat on such an important appointment.

But Bush is going to lose with Tower, one way or the other. The odds are that Nunn and others will refuse to vote to confirm. A worse possibility is that somehow Tower will be confirmed, in which case both Bush and the nation will be the losers.

Title: Gap found in Tower testimony about aiding British

By John M. Broder and Ronald J. Ostrow
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON—The Senate committee weighing John Tower's nomination as secretary of defense has found a substantial discrepancy in Tower's account of dealings with a British aircraft and weapons manufacturer, congressional sources said.

Tower testified last week that he had represented British Aerospace Inc. only on civil aviation matters, not as a consultant on military systems.

But in his divorce deposition, taken in June, 1987, Tower stated that he gave the company advice on "selling certain systems to the Defense Department."

The discrepancy, sources said Friday, has prompted concerns about the veracity and completeness of Tower's testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee, the panel holding hearings on his confirmation.

It also raises the question of whether Tower was required to register as a lobbyist for foreign interests under the Foreign Agents Registration Act, they said. In the deposition, Tower said he represented the company on a range of military programs and was paid $8,000 a month from June, 1986, until December, 1988. He also served on the board of directors of the company, the U.S. subsidiary of British Aerospace PLC.

Lawmakers from both parties have expressed concern that there would be a continuing appearance of conflict of interest because of Tower's employment by weapons makers, which brought him at least $760,000 in 2½ years, not including the more than $200,000 British Aerospace paid him.

Tower has testified about his lobbying and consulting work for a half dozen U.S. defense companies that do business with the Pentagon. The British corporation would be the first foreign-based concern whose interests could pose a potential conflict.

Sources said the apparent discrepancy in testimony raises the prospect that Tower could be recalled to testify under oath about his work for the company.

Tower aides said they had no comment on the matter.

An FBI investigation into Tower's business dealings and personal behavior has stalled a vote by the committee on his confirmation. The FBI is looking into new charges about Tower's alleged drinking, womanizing and receipt of campaign contributions and says it won't complete the inquiry for another 10 days.

The deposition regarding Tower's business dealings was never filed in court because Tower chose not to contest the divorce from his second wife, Lilla Burt Cummings. But the document was obtained by the FBI as part of its background investigation of the nominee.

Tower told the committee he was employed only by the American unit of British Aerospace and that he worked chiefly on selling the company's commercial jets to U.S. airlines. He said he advised the corporation on U.S. trade legislation and gave opinions on currency fluctuations.

Tower told the committee he could "recall no actions in connection with any defense activities" and did not include his income from British Aerospace among his earnings from defense contractors.

In the divorce papers, however, Tower said he advised British Aerospace on its chances of selling its training jets, fighter planes and missile systems to the Pentagon.

The main reason Chairman Sam Nunn has delayed a Senate Armed Services Committee vote on John Tower as secretary of defense is not the financial allegations being investigated by the FBI but the reported heavy drinking that brings back unpleasant memories of Nunn's former Georgia colleague, Sen. Herman Talmadge.

Nunn personally observed Talmadge's final years in the Senate tainted by drinking, which finally helped defeat him for re-election. But whereas Talmadge's alcohol problems were open and undisputed, Tower denies he has a drinking problem. That denial is supported by senators who knew him well as a senator from Texas.

Tower bid suffers setback

WASHINGTON — Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the committee weighing John Tower's nomination as defense secretary, said Wednesday he would reject the nominee if asked to vote "at this point" because the FBI has not finished investigating new allegations of misconduct.

At the same time, Nunn emphasized he had told President Bush he would reserve final judgment until all evidence is presented, which could postpone a vote by his Armed Services Committee for two weeks, after the Senate returns from its recess next week.

New Tower evidence examined

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary-designate John Tower's foundering bid to win confirmation will have to wait at least another week while lawmakers investigate lingering questions about his finances and drinking habits.

Tower's nomination — on the verge last week of a Senate Armed Services Committee vote — has lurched to a halt, and Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said Wednesday a new probe of financial matters during Tower's Senate tenure will take a week to 10 days.

After meeting for 2 ½ hours with a senior White House official, Nunn also said an FBI report on Tower that examines allegations raised last week of drinking and womanizing still needs some finishing touches.

WASHINGTON—Former Sen. John Tower made an extraordinary attempt to save his nomination as secretary of defense during a 90-minute meeting Wednesday night behind closed doors with key senators who may hold his political fate.

Despite a vigorous personal defense by President Bush on a day when more allegations surfaced, support for Tower has continued to erode on Capitol Hill.

Tower requested the unusual meeting with Sen. Sam Nunn (D., Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Sen. John Warner (R., Va.), the ranking Republican member of the committee, which must decide whether to recommend that the full Senate approve Tower's nomination.

As Tower left Nunn's office he refused to answer reporters' questions and walked briskly into an elevator held open by Capitol police.

About 15 minutes later, Nunn and Warner walked out of the office with little more to say. Nunn said the three "had a good meeting ... a good discussion." He declined to elaborate. Warner would only comment: "To me, that's a positive statement."

Earlier Wednesday, Bush broke his own rule not to answer reporters' questions during photo sessions and launched into an emphatic defense of Tower, saying he had not seen "one substantive fact that makes me change my mind" about Tower's ability to serve as secretary.

But while the White House hung tough, urging that Tower's confirmation vote be held as soon as possible, troubles steadily mounted on Capitol Hill. The nominee has had to face charges about his personal behavior, in light of a new allegation that surfaced Tuesday night and forced the FBI to expand its investigation.

Government sources said the new allegation focuses on a campaign contribution to one of Tower's re-election committees when he served as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee from 1980 to 1984. The contribution allegedly was made by one or more individuals involved in the defense contracting business.

The FBI is trying to determine whether the Tower associates, who may have included a member of the committee's staff, did anything wrong. There is no indication at this point that Tower knew about the contribution or did anything improper himself.

Meanwhile, Rep. John Dingell (D., Mich.), chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, disclosed that he wrote to the FBI and Nunn this

WASHINGTON—A Senate confirmation vote on Defense Secretary-designate John G. Tower was put on long-term hold Wednesday as the FBI investigated the latest accusation against him, and a key Democratic senator voiced strong reservations about the nomination.

At the White House, President Bush fretted about the delay, which leaves the Defense Department leaderless at a time when Bush is trying to formulate a national security strategy.

Leaping to Tower's defense, Bush told reporters that he had not seen anything in the continuing FBI investigation that would cause him to worry whether Tower would be sober on the job or that would make him want to pull back the nomination.

But on Capitol Hill, Sam Nunn (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said "serious" personal and financial questions remained unanswered about Tower and he added that he was concerned about putting Tower in the nuclear chain of command if he has a serious drinking problem.

"The secretary of defense has to, in my view, have clarity of thought at all times. There's no such thing as an eight-hour day in that job. The young men and women who defend our nation have to have people all the way up the chain of command that have entirely clear thought at all times," Nunn said.

Nunn said the latest charge leveled against Tower was serious and "of a financial nature."

Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.) said the new allegation links Tower to the defense procurement investigation labeled "Ill Wind," which has zeroed in on alleged payments by military contractors for classified information on military contracts.

Other reports said the matter involved possibly illegal contributions to former Tower aides, not to Tower himself.

Tower, who received more than $1 million as a defense consultant after leaving the Senate four years ago, has denied any impropriety.

Nunn, clearly irked at the White House handling of the Tower matter, said he would not call for a committee vote on the nomination until the FBI investigation is complete. And he said that if he had to vote immediately, he would oppose Tower.

Given Nunn's influence on Capitol Hill, his opposition to the nomination could be fatal.

Late in the day, Tower was dispatched to Capitol Hill to meet with Nunn and the Armed Services Committee's ranking Republican, John W. Warner of Virginia. But afterward, Nunn said he still had serious concerns about the nomination.

Vice President Dan Quayle pitched in to shore up support for Tower with telephone calls to both Democrats and Republicans on the Armed Services Committee.

Committee member James J. Exon (D-Neb.) said he was leaning against Tower, and Carl Levin (D-Mich.) said there was "a growing cloud" over the nomination.

However, another member of the panel, Alan J. Dixon (D-Ill.), said the evidence against Tower he had seen so far "doesn't amount to much. . . . It's pretty thin stuff." Dixon said he would not make up his mind about Tower until he had seen the final FBI reports on Tower's private affairs.

Nunn's insistence on a deliberate review of the evidence against Tower means the committee is unlikely to vote on the matter this week and the full Senate, which will be in recess next week, probably won't be able to consider it for nearly two weeks.

"I don't see how it is possible to bring the matter to a vote this week," Senate Majority Leader George J. Mitchell (D-Maine) said.

At the White House, press secretary Marlin Fitzwater insisted that no "short list" of alternative nominees was under consideration. However, there have been rumors that three former defense secretaries—Donald M. Rumsfeld of Illinois, James R. Schlesinger, and President Ronald Reagan's last defense chief, Frank C. Carlucci, are considered prospective replacements.

At the daily White House briefing, Fitzwater was thrown on the defensive, as reporters hurled questions on the Tower matter.

Fitzwater apologized for inadvertently giving reporters a misleading account of a meeting Nunn had on Tuesday with Bush. Fitzwater, who had not attended the meeting, confessed he had been given an incomplete account of it by chief of staff John H. Sununu.

He also said the White House blundered in offering an oral briefing on the FBI investigation to Republican members of the Armed Services Committee, but not to Nunn. It was unclear whether Sununu scheduled the briefing, which offended Nunn.

Fitzwater also blamed sloppy staff work for the failure to provide a file to the committee dealing with Tower's period of service as an arms control negotiator in Geneva. The White House initially had denied the existence of the file, then produced it after senators read about it in the paper.

The confessional spirit also gripped Bush during his exchange with reporters. He regretted remarks he made in a Monday press conference that he said may have contributed to "this frenzied era of speculation." At the time, Bush was cautious in endorsing Tower, saying any substantive charges would concern him.

week saying a House subcommittee has "extensive information" that raises questions about Tower's alleged womanizing and his support for an Air Force colonel who was reprimanded for making sexually suggestive remarks to his secretary.

FBI agents spent the day at a subcommittee office reviewing boxes of documents relating to the allegedly questionable activities, which involved the U.S. arms control mission in Geneva while Tower served as a top negotiator there in 1985 and 1986.

Just before Wednesday night's meeting with Tower, Nunn said, White House Counsel C. Boyden Gray delivered "a substantial amount of information" on allegations of drinking and womanizing by Tower. However, Nunn said, the FBI's portion of that investigation is "still not complete."

With the Senate planning to recess Thursday night and not return until Feb. 20, Nunn said earlier Wednesday that it appeared Tower's confirmation vote would be delayed at least 10 days.

Senate sources said such a delay could be fatal for Tower if legislators encounter mounting opposition to his nomination while in their home districts during the legislative break. In addition, senators from both parties said privately that to leave Tower twisting in the wind for 10 days could damage his ability to perform effectively as secretary of defense, should he eventually be approved.

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas said he spoke with Tower early Wednesday and found him "upbeat about the nomination. He is aware of the new allegation." Dole added that Tower "thinks his nomination should be confirmed and he is hanging in there."

Bush, who spoke with reporters during a photo opportunity at the White House, described Tower as a "decent man" and said, "If somebody has some hard information [about any wrongdoings], if somebody has something other than rumor and frenzied speculation, please get it to the FBI, or get it to the White House staff, or, certainly, get it to the committee in the Senate. But let us be fair enough that we do not deal in rumor after rumor.

"... If your question is to me," Bush said, "have I seen any facts, or has anything in the FBI report made me want to change my mind as one who would be concerned about insobriety or about failure to be ready for duty 24 hours a day, the answer is no, I have not."

AP Laserphoto

Defense Secretary-designate John Tower leaves the Capitol Hill office of Sen. Sam Nunn after a meeting Wednesday night with Nunn and Sen. John Warner. Pentagon spokesman Dan Howard (left) joins him.

Bush, who said he was not angered by the Tower uproar but instead was "calm and contained," added, "I don't think it helps to, for us to sit here discussing allegations in any detail, where none of the American people have had access to the facts. And I have had access to the facts."

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, in a press briefing dominated by the Tower situation, said Wednesday morning that there had been no conversation between Bush and Tower in recent days. He also said Tower had made no move to withdraw his name from consideration and that the White House had no list of possible candidates to replace him should he do so.

Nunn told an early-morning Capitol Hill news conference he was angered by reports that he has flatly decided to vote against Tower's nomination and said he even told Bush that he would "not make a final decision until I had had a chance to review all the evidence."

A "no" vote from Nunn in committee could end Tower's hopes for Senate confirmation because Nunn has earned a reputation for bipartisan thoroughness—and even grudging compliments for his handling of the nomination controversy from Republican members of the committee.

The allegation involving the contribution to Tower's re-election campaign was made by an individual under scrutiny in the FBI's massive investigation into alleged fraud in the awarding of billions of dollars of Pentagon contracts, sources said. They would not identify the person.

The individual made the allegation to federal prosecutors during delicate negotiations over whether he would agree to plead guilty to crimes in connection with his work for the Pentagon and cooperate with investigators, the sources said.

They said these circumstances have made it difficult to evaluate the substance of the allegation. They said there is a possibility that the individual may refuse to speak to FBI agents working on the Tower inquiry until he completes the plea-bargain negotiations.

Tower gets a 'no' vote

11-9 committee rejection dims chances in Senate

By Basil Talbott

Washington Bureau / Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON—The Senate Armed Services Committee voted 11-9 along party lines Thursday night to reject the nomination of John G. Tower to be defense secretary and to recommend that the full Senate also turn him down.

John Tower

The rejection of the former senator from Texas was the first shattering political defeat for President Bush, who still stood by his friend, although the committee's verdict is expected to be ratified by the Senate next week.

"The president will ask for a successful vote on Sen. Tower in the Senate," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said in Toyko.

"The president has not lost one iota of confidence in Sen. Tower or in his ability to be defense secretary."

Tower, in a statement, said he was "obviously disappointed" with the committee vote but would

"await the vote of the full Senate."

The committee's rejection came at the end of a tense two-hour public meeting that capped 10 weeks of testimony and many private sessions in which members sifted through seven FBI reports on Tower.

The panel's 11 Democrats found Tower unfit to head the Pentagon, citing concerns about reports of excessive drinking and womanizing and Tower's cozy relationship with the defense industry.

And one Republican who supported Tower, Sen. Slate Gorton (Wash.), acknowledged that when he started in Congress he found Tower to be abrupt and discourteous—reinforcing speculation that one of the reasons for Tower's rejection was a dislike he had fostered in his 24 years in the Senate.

If Tower's nomination is killed next week, he will be only the ninth Cabinet nominee turned down by the Senate in the nation's history and the first in 30 years.

While it was Democrats, lead by the highly respected committee chairman, Sam Nunn of Georgia, who buried the nomination, the first assault against Tower was launched weeks ago by Paul Weyrich, a Republican conservative activist who publicly questioned the nominee's moral fiber in sworn testimony.

The committee rejected Tower, its former chairman, over the urgings of Senate Minority Leader Robert J. Dole (R-Kan.), who twice went to the Senate floor to implore his colleagues to respect history and tradition and confirm Bush's choice.

Dole urged the Senate to reverse the committee's recommendation next week, but speculation already was sweeping the hallways about who would get the next shot at the defense post.

Among prospects on most lists are Chicago businessman Donald M. Rumsfeld, James R. Schlesinger and Frank C. Carlucci, all former defense secretaries. Also mentioned is Army Secretary Jack Marsh.

Most of the Democrats on the Armed Services panel followed Nunn's lead and stressed the reports of Tower's drinking bouts as worrisome.

"The committee's own review shows a clear pattern of excessive drinking and alcohol abuse by the nominee during the 1970s," said Nunn, who succeeded Tower as panel chairman. Tower made it clear he never has sought medical assistance, Nunn said, and there have been reports of recent incidents "serious in nature."

Nunn discredited several charges of womanizing by Tower but said, "There are some examples of conduct which I found indiscreet and which call into question both judgment and example."

Turning to the third collection of charges, Nunn said the large sums of money Tower received from defense contractors after leaving the Senate in 1985 leave "a perception of a conflict of interest."

Sen. James J. Exon (D-Neb.) also singled out the reports of problem drinking and said the alleged womanizing was "at best unbecoming of a senator."

The charges of woman-chasing were foremost on the list of abuses cited by Sen. Timothy Wirth (D-Colo.), who pointed out that U.S. military forces "have been asked to fully integrate women."

A defense secretary "sets an example ... and must be beyond reproach," Wirth said.

Among Democrats who cited other reasons for their negative votes were Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), who stressed allegations of conflict of interest, and Sen. Alan J. Dixon (D-Ill.), who cited the glut of accusations.

United Press International

Sen. Sam Nunn (left), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, confers with Sen. John Warner as the committee met Thursday to reject the nomination of John G. Tower.

"There may not be a smoking gun, but there is an abundance of smoke," said Dixon, who had been seen as a swing vote on the committee. "I am concerned the continuing nature of the allegations [has] damaged Mr. Tower's ability to serve and would haunt his tenure as secretary of defense."

The Democrats' assault was angrily rejected by the Republican committee members, who praised Tower's performance in the Senate and stabbed at the press for relaying anonymous reports.

Sen. John Warner (R-Va.), the committee's ranking Republican, backed Tower but praised the committee for its review. He expressed chagrin at the leaking of the FBI reports, which he said were full of charges that made up "a web of fact, fiction and fantasy."

Sen. Malcolm Wallop (R-Wyo.) assailed what he said had been a "trial by transom."

"It's a very sad day when friends turn against a [former] member . . . he's a good man," said Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.), who made one of the most passionate defenses of his onetime colleague.

Sen. Dixon finds 'cause for alarm'

Following are excerpts from Sen. Alan J. Dixon's statement explaining his vote against the confirmation of John G. Tower as defense secretary:

"Despite the lengthy investigation, questions remain about whether the candidate, once in office, could effectively lead his department while disassociating himself from the defense industry he has represented in the private sector. To avoid a conflict of interest or the appearance of impropriety, Sen. Tower . . . in too many cases would have to recuse himself, or remove himself completely, from the decision-making process.

"Many of the allegations in the FBI files are rumor and innuendo. Other allegations offer cause for considerable alarm. Of particular concern to this senator is that for 10 weeks the firestorm of allegations against Sen. Tower has not subsided. There may not be a smoking gun, but there is an abundance of smoke.

". . . I am concerned the continuing nature of the allegations [has] damaged Mr. Tower's ability to serve and would haunt his tenure as secretary of defense."

Senate panel rejects Tower

WASHINGTON—In a dramatic rejection of President Bush's choice for secretary of defense, the Senate Armed Services Committee recommended late Thursday that the full Senate not confirm John Tower's nomination to the crucial Cabinet post.

The 11-9 vote was divided along party lines, with the majority Democrats dealing a damaging defeat to the new Bush presidency. It set up a partisan fight in the Senate, where the Democrats have a 55-45 majority.

The agonizing battle over Tower's nomination has already interrupted Bush's expressed desire to establish a bipartisan relationship with Congress and has delayed him from making crucial decisions on national security.

In Tokyo, where President Bush is attending the funeral of Japanese Emperor Hirohito, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater made it clear that Bush is not backing down on his choice.

"Sen. Tower is in for the duration, and so is the President," Fitzwater said. "There is no consideration of an alternate candidate. The President has not lost one iota of confidence in Sen. Tower and his ability to be defense secretary."

The Senate committee debated Tower's nomination late into the evening in what Sen. John Warner of Virginia, the committee's ranking Republican, described as a "historic moment."

In lofty, often moralistic rhetoric delivered at times in booming voices, the senators discussed Tower's sex life, his drinking and his coziness with defense contractors and whether any member of Congress was so pure as to pass judgment on another person's private life.

Sen. Sam Nunn (D., Ga.), the committee chairman, said he was persuaded to vote against Tower's nomination because "the record of alcohol abuse by the nominee cannot be ignored."

Nunn, whose "no" vote carries enormous weight in the Senate, where he is respected as an expert on military affairs and receives high marks from both parties for even-handedness, said his decision to reject Tower's nomination resulted from the cumulative weight of evidence.

It was Bush who chose to make ethics a hallmark of his administration, Nunn noted. He also said his concerns over Tower's controversial personal life were compounded by the fact that the secretary of defense "must carry out his military command responsibilities 24 hours a day."

"I believe John Tower is a loyal, patriotic American with a solid record of public service," Nunn said. "For me, however, this is not enough. I am skeptical as to the nominee's ability to restore public trust in Pentagon management. I am concerned as to his ability to command the confidence and respect of his subordinates and to set the moral standards of the men and women in uniform."

Nunn said Tower's history of alcohol abuse would keep him from receiving a clearance "to command a missile wing, a SAC bomber squadron or a Trident missile submarine."

At the same time, Nunn said, allegations that Tower had been romantically linked to foreign women who might have represented a security risk were found to be false. The FBI also uncovered no examples of Tower sexually harassing his female employees.

Warner said the FBI report did not disqualify Tower for the job. "Much of this evidence represents but a cobweb of fact, fiction and fantasy," Warner said.

He reminded his colleagues that Tower, 63, served 24 years in the Senate, including four years "as chairman of the very committee that tonight is sitting in judgment of his qualifications to be secretary of defense."

His voice rising to fill the Budget Committee hearing room reserved for the overflow crowd of spectators, Warner said: "Not one single United States senator—not one—who has served with John Tower can ever recall a single instance when any of his personal habits interfered with his duties. Not one."

Arguing for Bush's right to surround himself with Cabinet members of his choice, Warner reminded the committee members that in the history of the United States, "the Senate, a mere 11 times, has rejected those nominations. Eleven out of thousands."

The last time that a Senate committee rejected a presidential Cabinet nomination occurred on Jan. 26, 1945, when the Commerce Committee turned down President Franklin D. Roosevelt's nomination of Henry Wallace as commerce secretary.

Sen. James Exon (D., Neb.), one of the most outspoken critics of Tower's nomination, said Tower's drinking habits mean that he "most likely could not even qualify for duty at a Strategic Air Command control center in Omaha."

Exon also accused the White House of "spin control" in its handling of the results of the seven-part FBI investigation into Tower's personal and professional life.

Sen. Edward Kennedy (D., Mass.) voted against Tower as being unqualified for the sensitive job, but he did not mention allegations involving drinking or womanizing.

Sen. Strom Thurmond (R., S.C.), a leading conservative, described Tower as "one of the best-informed men in this nation on military matters."

"In my opinion," Thurmond said, "he will make an excellent secretary of defense. Are we going to turn this man down on innuendo, hearsay, unfounded charges?"

Sen. Carl Levin (D., Mich.) gave a softspoken, legalistic explanation of his decision to reject Tower's nomination. Focusing on the large fees Tower received from defense contractors while working as a Washington consultant from 1986 to 1988, Levin said he "falls short in the area of sensitivity to appearances created by the revolving door through which he himself passed."

Levin recalled the 14 months that Tower served as chief U.S. strategic arms negotiator, and criticized him for then going on to advise military industrialists who are building the exact systems affected by the eventual outcome of negotiations in Geneva.

"The President is entitled to someone in whom he has confidence, of course," Levin said. "But the nation is also entitled to someone in whom it has confidence. The requirement that the Senate vote on whether to confirm the President's choice helps assure that confidence."

One Armed Services Committee member predicted that, when the full Senate takes up the nomination, Tower will be defeated in a vote mirroring the partisan lines of the committee decision.

"My feeling is the Senate will follow the recommendation of the committee," said Sen. Alan Dixon (D., Ill.). "The confirmation process will fall short in the Senate and ... [Tower] will not be confirmed as secretary of defense."

The Senate committee vote came after long closed-door hearings and extensive lobbying by the White House. Vice President Quayle and White House chief of staff John Sununu spent much of the day on the telephone with senators, and the President spoke by phone with Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole (R., Kan.) shortly before the committee voted.

Sen. Robert Byrd (D., W. Va.), former majority leader, urged Bush to withdraw the nomination before a full Senate decision: "It doesn't do the nominee any good. It doesn't do the President any good," Byrd said. "It's a tremendous burden for any nominee to go to the floor with a vote of no confidence."

WASHINGTON—The White House and the Republican leadership of the Senate are mounting a counteroffensive in the aftermath of the Senate Armed Services Committee's recommendation that the full Senate reject the nomination of John Tower to be defense secretary.

"The nomination is very much alive," Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole (R., Kan.) said Friday. "I had a lengthy meeting at the White House today with John Tower and the White House staff. Vice President [Dan] Quayle was there for a time.

"Sen. Tower is obviously disappointed. He expected some Democrat support on the committee and he still believes a number of Democrats will support him on the floor of the Senate."

President Bush, preparing to leave Tokyo for China after the funeral of Emperor Hirohito, reiterated his support for his nominee.

"I'm going to win this battle," Bush said. "I stand strongly with John Tower. . . . He is my choice, my only choice, and I am standing with him."

In response to questions after he visited new Emperor Akihito on Saturday, Bush said, "There is no fallback, there is no option." He said he would talk "as personally and forcefully as I can ... to anybody with an open mind" in the Senate after he returns to Washington Monday.

The mere perception of wrongdoing by Tower "is not a fair enough or high enough standard" to defeat the nomination, Bush said. Tower's critics have accused him of excessive drinking, of womanizing and of having cozy relationships with defense contractors.

Can Bush win the battle? "I wouldn't be in a fight if I thought I would lose," he said.

He called it "a matter of principle," suggesting he would rather lose the vote in the full Senate than withdraw the nomination.

Of White House staffers suggesting anonymously that Tower should withdraw, Bush said: "Let me at the staffers who say that. They will be history. I'd like to kick some serious ... um, um, hide."

Bush tried to keep domestic problems and the Tower matter separate from his diplomatic efforts in Tokyo. He completed his visits with 18 foreign leaders Saturday before heading to Beijing.

The Senate Armed Services Committee voted 11-9 against the Tower nomination Thursday night, splitting strictly on party lines. The full Senate, where Democrats hold a 55-45 majority, is tentatively scheduled to vote Wednesday.

Dole lashed out Friday at the committee's Democratic majority and its chairman, Sen. Sam Nunn (D., Ga.), for orchestrating the party-line vote.

"I had hoped to see some profiles in courage in that committee vote," Dole said. "But all I saw was profiles in politics."

Meeting with reporters Friday, Nunn played down the partisan issue, characterizing the Republican charges as "bunk."

"I've noticed that when I agree with Republicans I'm called a statesman," Nunn said. "When I disagree with them, I'm partisan."

Bush did not criticize Nunn. "I don't see any point in making this personal," he said. "I want to talk on the merits here."

Dole began the Republican offensive Friday by distributing a raft of laudatory quotes concerning Tower from Nunn and several other committee members. The comments had been made around 1984.

The White House, in concert with Senate Republicans, was preparing an edited or "sanitized" version of the FBI report on Tower's conduct for use in the debate. The report was cited by most of the 11 Democrats who voted against Tower on Thursday night.

Bush called release of such a report a problem, saying people had been assured that their comments about Tower would be confidential. "Confidentiality is vital here," he said.

Looking toward a vote, Dole went so far as to float a number of Democratic names he considered possible supporters of Tower. If all 45 Republican senators support Tower, the nomination would still need the votes of five Democrats.

Dole mentioned Howell Heflin of Alabama, Chuck Robb of Virginia, Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii, Bob Graham of Florida and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas as possible Democratic defectors.

Bentsen said Bush called him from Tokyo on Friday and asked him to delay his decision until the President could meet with him.

Heflin said Friday that he had not made a decision and was waiting to read the Armed Services Committee report and the FBI report.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell (D., Me.) indicated Friday that he believed withdrawal of the nomination remained possible.

"I think the action of the committee will have significant weight with many senators," Mitchell said, adding that a number of Republican senators had told him they were "uneasy" about the nomination.

WASHINGTON—Embattled Cabinet nominee John Tower pledged on national television Sunday that if he is confirmed as secretary of defense he will not drink alcoholic beverages while he holds that office.

"I hereby swear and undertake that, if confirmed, during the course of my tenure as secretary of defense, I will not consume beverage alcohol of any type or form, including wine, beer or spirits of any kind," Tower said, reading from an prepared statement during appearances on ABC-TV's "This Week" and CNN's "Newsmaker Sunday" programs.

Tower said if he broke the pledge to give up drinking, he would resign as secretary of defense, adding, "I have never broken a pledge in my life."

Tower ended his silence on the churning controversy over his nomination with the extraordinary pledge and tried to address the most damaging of the allegations against him: that he drinks too much and too often to be entrusted with the job of heading the Pentagon and making quick, crucial national security decisions.

mend that the full Senate reject Tower. Senate debate on the nomination begins this week. Democrats on the Armed Services Committee, including its chairman, Sen. Sam Nunn (D., Ga.), cited reports by the FBI that Tower had been alleged to have been drunk on several occasions both in the 1970s, which he admitted to, and in the 1980s, which Tower has denied.

Tower said Sunday he gave up drinking "spirits" 12 years ago.

"I used to be a pretty good Scotch drinker," he said. "I haven't tasted Scotch in 12 years. After that I had only wine and perhaps an occasional martini, occasionally a little vodka with smoked salmon or caviar or something like that. But that was just occasionally. I really, essentially, have been a wine drinker. Now my only consumption is wine with meals."

Later, during the CNN program, Tower said that while "I did drink too much" during the 1970s, "I wasn't dependent on it."

"Nowadays," he said, "my drinking habits are largely confined to wine with meals. But I'm perfectly prepared to give that up."

Nunn had no comment Sunday on Tower's pledge, according to a spokesman. Nor did Sen. James Exon (D., Neb.), the first member of the Armed Services Committee to say he would vote against Tower because of concerns about the former Texas senator's drinking.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole (R., Kan.) called Tower's pledge to not drink "very significant" and said it should prompt a new look at the nomination by Democrats.

"My view is it ought to be a new ball game," he said. "We ought to sit down and try to work it out and spare any hard feelings."

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell (D., Me.), said Tower's pledge "is another factor to be considered" and he agreed to a meeting with Dole on Monday.

Tower previously had told Nunn and Sen. John Warner (R., Va.), the Armed Services Committee's ranking Republican, that he limits himself to two glasses of wine a day with dinner, according to another senator on the committee. During a Feb. 1 public hearing on his nomination, Tower was asked directly by Nunn whether he has an alcohol problem. "I have none, senator," Tower said. "I am a man of some discipline."

Before Tower made his promise Sunday, Nunn said on the NBC program "Meet the Press" that he would have problems with the nominee even without the drinking issue.

Nunn said there is at least an appearance of conflict-of-interest because Tower, who had been the United States' chief strategic arms control negotiator in Geneva in 1985 and 1986, then immediately went to work for defense contractors seeking to win strategic weapons contracts. Tower earned at least $1 million as a defense consultant.

President Bush, who is on a trip to the Far East, has said he will fight hard for Tower in the Senate, and will try to sway Democrats, who control the chamber 55-45, to his side. Bush returns to Washington Tuesday, and Secretary of State James Baker said Sunday there are no plans to withdraw Tower's nomination.

Tower had kept silent on his nomination during the committee hearings and vote last week, saying the White House had "embargoed" him. He has been working at the Pentagon every day since Bush took office, but the delay in his confirmation has frustrated military leaders, some of whom say that important decisions are being delayed.

The Tower debate also has taken Bush's attention away from the trip to Japan, China and South Korea and is threatening to put an early end to his "honeymoon" with Congress, if it hasn't already.

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu, also with the President in Beijing, said, "a lot of Democrats are leaning nicely," toward the Tower nomination, but he refused to name them in a CNN interview. A protracted fight would, at the very least, use up a lot of the political good will Bush has developed with the Democratic-led Congress.

The White House also may have some problems holding all of the Republicans in the Senate, although Dole predicted Sunday they would stick with Bush.

Nunn accused the White House Sunday of "selectively" making available portions of the FBI report in an effort to show Tower in a better light. Nunn threatened to reopen Armed Services Committee hearings into the Tower nomination and subpoena witnesses who were promised anonymity by the FBI.

Dole, a Tower defender, said reopening the hearings is "a little like having a trial after the hanging, but maybe we could go back and have another committee vote." He accused Democrats of playing politics with the Tower nomination.

Nunn denied his opposition was politically motivated.

"I don't know if Tower crossed the line in terms of giving contactors confidential information. It's the appearance that's so bad," Nunn said. "It looks like he might have and what kind of example does this set for the military?"

But Tower said he rejects "the charge, totally," adding: "I am not in the defense industry's pocket."

On the television programs, Tower also was asked about allegations that he is a "womanizer."

"I'm a single man," Tower replied. "I do date women. What is your definition of womanizing?" The interviewers said they couldn't define it.

On the CNN program Tower denied that he had had improper relationships with his secretaries during the 14 months he was chief strategic arms control negotiator in Geneva.

"My secretaries were very professionally competent—very, very decent, and they don't deserve that kind of treatment," Tower said. "And that allegation is totally false."

With a little help from friends, Tower takes pledge

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON—At 10 p.m. on Saturday, his nomination for secretary of defense hanging by a thread, John Tower asked two fellow residents of the Jefferson Hotel to meet him in one of the hotel's suites.

The two who joined him at this unusual, impromptu meeting were Samuel K. Skinner, the new transportation secretary, and Dr. William M. Narva, an admiral in the Navy who serves as the attending physician for Congress and lives at the hotel.

Earlier in the evening Tower had met with three political advisers, and despite their warnings that his plan might backfire, he had decided to take a public oath of abstinence in an effort to prove his fitness to be in the Cabinet.

The former senator from Texas presented Skinner, a former U.S. attorney in Chicago, and Narva with a two-paragraph document that looked like a legal form. In it, Tower promised he would "not consume beverage alcohol of any type or form" if he were confirmed for the Pentagon job.

He told them he would be on national television the next morning and planned to read this pledge aloud. In preparation for that appearance, Tower said, he wanted to sign the paper, and he asked the two men to witness his signature.

Tower did not invite any discussion about his decision or say why he thought it necesssary to put it in written form or to have his signature witnessed as if he were executing a legal document.

"We live here and we were the only two guys he knows in the building," Narva said in a telephone interview.

When he went on television Sunday, Tower made it clear his goal was as much political salvation as personal reform. Having been through as searching a personal examination as any Cabinet nominee, Tower even embraced the part of public life most politicians say they disdain.

"I will live in a goldfish bowl," Tower said. "There will be plenty of enforcers out there."

Tower vows to go on wagon

WASHINGTON—Taking the offensive in an effort to salvage his nomination for secretary of defense, former Sen. John Tower (R-Texas) pledged Sunday that if confirmed he would not touch a drop of alcohol during his service at the Pentagon.

"I have never been an alcoholic, nor dependent on alcohol," Tower said, dramatically reading a written pledge in a television interview.

"However, to allay any fears or doubts on this matter, I hereby swear and undertake that if confirmed, during the course of my tenure as secretary of defense, I will not consume beverage alcohol of any type or form, including wine, beer or spirits of any kind."

Tower said he would be "obliged to resign if I broke [the] pledge. I've never broken a pledge in my life."

Tower made the promise after Senate Armed Services Chairman Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) complained that the White House was leaking pro-Tower information selectively and said that if the leaks did not stop, "we would have no alternative" but to reopen the hearings into Tower and subpoena witnesses quoted anonymously or confidentially in the FBI report.

Tower said the leaks from the FBI report were an effort to balance negative leaks that had gone on for weeks.

Led by Nunn, the Armed Services Committee voted 11-9 along party lines last Thursday to recommend that the full Senate reject Tower's nomination. The Senate is scheduled to take up the nomination Wednesday.

Nunn, appearing on another talk show before Tower's appearance, had indicated a no-drinking pledge might not be enough to change his opposition.

"I cannot supervise the secretary of defense," Nunn said. "The military, when someone has an excessive drinking problem or an alcohol abuse problem, they require an admission, and also a rehabilitation program. So, it depends on what he wants to do, and what he says he wants to do."

Later, a spokesman said Nunn would have no comment on Tower's pledge.

ing a defense secretary with a possible alcohol problem, Nunn said, "He's got his finger on the button, right next to the president's. He's in the chain of command."

Tower conceded that he drank too much in the 1970s, but said he "gave up spirits" 12 years ago.

"I used to be a pretty good scotch drinker. And I gave up; I haven't tasted scotch in 12 years," he said. "After that, I had only wine. Had perhaps an occasional martini, occasionally a little vodka with smoked salmon or caviar or something like that. But that was just occasionally. I really essentially have been a wine drinker. And now, my only consumption is wine at meals. I don't drink wine even, unless I'm eating."

To back up his claim that he does not have an alcohol problem, Tower read part of a letter from a physician who removed a polyp from his colon in December.

According to Tower, the physician, Dr. Warren Lichliter, said Tower "had a normal liver at the time of surgery, and exhibited no evidence of alcohol withdrawal postoperatively. On the contrary, he was at work continuously, almost from the time he left the recovery room. Based on these facts, it can be stated with relative certainty that Senator Tower shows no evidence at all of alcoholic impairment or alcoholism."

Nunn said it would be helpful if Tower submitted to examination by independent doctors.

Tower said he would be willing to have his doctors interviewed by physicians chosen by the Armed Services Committee, but would not submit to any psychiatric exam because "no other Cabinet nominee has ever been required to do that."

Tower also attempted to confront concerns about his recent lucrative ties to the defense industry.

In his TV appearance, Nunn noted that Tower had been head negotiator at the strategic arms talks in Geneva.

"He knew the information," Nunn said. "He knew the confidential negotiating positions. He knew the fallback positions of the administration on key weapon systems, like the MX and the Midgetman. Right after he got through, he immediately went to work for defense contractors [and] provided them information on the implications of our arms control negotiations on future product development."

Nunn said Tower's relationship with the contractors created the appearance of a conflict of interest.

"We're trying to clean up a procurement scandal which is the worst we've had in years," Nunn said. "Can [Tower] set an example and restore confidence in the Pentagon procurement system? I think that would be very difficult."

Tower repeated his pledge to disqualify himself from participating in Pentagon decisions on possible suspension or disbarment from contracts of his former employers.

But he insisted that reports he received $750,000 in less than two years from defense contractors were misleading. In fact, Tower said, about half that sum went to pay overhead costs, including the staff he had hired.

He said that while he had given contractors the benefit of his informed judgment he never had divulged classified information.

Asked about allegations of womanizing, Tower said, "I'm a single man. I do date women. ... I've been a single man for 3½ years."

He challenged his interviewers to define womanizing, but they declined to do so.

He characterized as "off the wall" a report that he had kept a Soviet ballerina in an apartment in Houston and said such false reports had been extremely upsetting to his three daughters.

ABC said a weekend survey suggested three Republicans and 10 Democrats were on the fence on Tower's nomination. With Democrats enjoying a 55-45 edge in the Senate, Tower must pick up at least five Democrats if he is to win. A 50-50 vote would allow Vice President Dan Quayle to break the deadlock.

Democrats thought to be wavering include Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, like Tower a Texan; Sen. Howell Heflin of Alabama, and Sen. Christopher J. Dodd of Connecticut. Republicans in the doubtful category reportedly include Sen. Nancy Landon Kassebaum of Kansas, Sen. Larry Pressler of South Dakota and Sen. David F. Durenberger of Minnesota.

Sen. Robert J. Dole of Kansas, the Senate minority leader, predicted that personal lobbying by President Bush would result in solid GOP support for Tower.

WASHINGTON—President Bush plunged into the toughest battle of his presidency Tuesday, but there were no signs that his personal lobbying of senators had won over any of the Democratic votes he needs to secure confirmation of John G. Tower as defense secretary.

After a Cabinet meeting, with Tower sitting expressionless at his side, Bush told reporters he remained committed to his nominee because he is the person best qualified to run the Pentagon, and because Tower has been "pilloried on the basis of unfounded rumor."

As Bush met through the day with about a dozen Democratic and Republican senators, GOP leaders on Capitol Hill geared up for an all-out floor fight in which they planned to air all of the allegations against Tower and argue that he has been the victim of smears.

Senate Minority Leader Robert J. Dole (R-Kan.) said after an evening strategy session at the White House that Republicans were prepared for a lengthy debate that could extend into next week and might require a closed session and the calling of more witnesses.

Dole said he wanted the lengthy debate to prove how shabbily Tower had been treated. As an example, he accused Sen. Sam Nunn (D-Ga.), who is leading the opposition to Tower, of making available to fellow Democrats a distorted summary of the FBI report on the nominee. He branded the summary "a hatchet job."

"Generally you have the trial before the sentence, and we're going to have a trial," Dole said.

Democrats have indicated they would like to vote on the nomination tomorrow, but Republicans want to delay it because they believe public opinion is shifting in Tower's favor.

Dole heatedly accused Nunn of leading an unfair partisan effort to sink Tower and said sarcastically that he suspected Nunn was making "one-on-one house calls" to uncertain senators.

Dole appeared with Sen. John W. Warner (Va.), the ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee, who also attended the strategy session with Bush, John H. Sununu, White House chief of staff, counsel C. Boyden Gray and Tower.

With the Senate controlled 55-45 by Democrats, Bush must pull at least five opposition party members into the Tower column even if he holds all Republicans in line.

While the White House worked feverishly for Tower, lawmakers rotated through a guarded Capitol room to read the confidential, seven-volume FBI report on Tower's controversial past.

Several Republicans were still seen as lukewarm on Tower, and Sen. Larry Pressler (R-S.D.) dealt a blow to Tower's hopes when he said he was "very much leaning against" the nomination.

In addition to Pressler, Republicans who have been named as possible defectors from the Tower cause include Nancy Landon Kassebaum (Kan.), Charles E. Grassley (Iowa) and Jesse Helms (N.C.).

The president moves this week from the sublime to the ridiculous.

The president's trip to the Far East was grand, if not sublime. The battle over the nomination of John Tower as secretary of defense is ridiculous.

Tower did not make it less ridiculous last weekend. He uttered one of those statements commonly associated with plea bargains arranged for manufacturers charged with false advertising or stock brokers accused of insider trading. They say they haven't done it and promise never to do it again.

"I have never been an alcoholic nor dependent on alcohol. However, to allay any fear or doubts on this matter, I hereby swear and undertake that if confirmed, during the course of my tenure as secretary of defense, I will not consume beverage alcohol of any type or form," said Tower.

Otis Pike

It was made more ridiculous by Tower's simultaneous declaration that the instant he became convinced that he had become an embarrassment to the administration, he would withdraw his name. The administration is already embarrassed. It embarrassed itself when it was publicly asking the Senate Armed Services Committee to expedite its vote while privately asking Chairman Sam Nunn (D-Ga.) to delay it for further FBI investigation.

Nunn is threatening to hold more hearings and this, too, makes him a party to the ridiculous. Nunn accused the White House of leaking only those parts of the FBI investigation that are favorable to Tower. He said he is restrained "by the rules" from releasing those parts of the investigation that are unfavorable. He threatened to have those who said unfavorable things about Tower to the FBI brought before the Armed Services Committee and forced to testify about the unfavorable things. That's ridiculous.

If our FBI is to have any usefulness it must be able to investigate. In order to get people to talk it must be able to assure those people that both their words and, if they request it, their identities are held confidential. This is a tricky business, for it does make it possible for unwarranted, unproven and even malicious charges to be made against any person being investigated. The FBI knows this and tries to get objective information from unbiased informants.

Nunn cannot drag people who talked to the FBI before his committee and make them talk. If that precedent ever got established we might as well abolish the FBI. Nunn will have to take his lumps as the White House leaks those parts of the report that are favorable and take comfort in the knowledge that someone less honorable than he will most assuredly leak the unfavorable parts.

The length to which the white-collared bluenoses of both the Congress and the media are going to re-establish the Puritan ethic in Washington is ridiculous, too.

Tower is suspected of three frailties: booze, women and coziness with the defense establishment. If the senators who are to vote on his nomination were required to swear abstinence from all three in order to vote on his qualifications, they wouldn't have enough warm bodies to hear the invocation, let alone raise a quorum.

In a city that last year featured a murder a day and in which crack, cocaine and other hard drugs are easily available on the streets, a preoccupation with how much scotch John Tower drank in the 1970s or how many martinis he had in 1988 borders on fantasy.

Finally, it is ridiculous because it doesn't matter much. The office of secretary of defense is big, but it isn't that big. He does not hold his thumb over the nuclear trigger. He doesn't have one-tenth the power of the chairman of the Federal Reserve, Alan Greenspan, to hurt America or to help America or transfer wealth and power from one group of citizens to another.

Did anyone bother to ask Greenspan, in his confirmation hearing, whether he ever had a three-martini lunch, caressed a lady with whom he was not united in holy matrimony, or was too cozy with banks and brokers? Does anyone remember any confirmation hearing?

Washington Bureau / Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON—Senators began a full-scale floor debate on the life and times of beleaguered Cabinet nominee John G. Tower on Thursday but were blocked when they got down to the nitty-gritty.

Republicans said they wanted a lengthy examination of the pros and cons of the allegations against Tower but cried foul when a Democrat began quoting uncomplimentary descriptions of the defense secretary-designate from an FBI report.

Meanwhile, the White House admitted that President Bush hasn't been able to win any Democratic support for Tower in two days of lobbying, and Republicans have failed to lock up their minority bloc.

"The Republicans were lined up to talk to the weak sisters," reported Sen. Trent Lott (R-Miss.), referring to Nancy Landon Kassebaum of Kansas, who has said she is undecided, and Larry Pressler of South Dakota, who is leaning toward a vote against Tower.

Though Tower's confirmation looks like a lost cause, Senate Republicans want to go through with the debate in hope of clearing up his reputation.

So it was no surprise when Minority Leader Robert J. Dole (Kan.) tried to stop more anonymous dirt from being dumped on the table by the Democrats.

Dole forced Sen. John Glenn (D-Ohio) to take back the words he claimed were used by people complaining to the FBI about Tower's drunkenness. Glenn agreed to expunge the descriptions from the Congressional Record.

In a hot exchange, Dole said a senator who quotes from a confidential report can be expelled from Congress.

"I was predisposed to vote for John Tower," Glenn began, "but the farther we went ... the more doubts were created."

To make his case, Glenn quoted from anonymous sources in the FBI report. Among descriptions of Tower he recited were: "severely drunk, put him to bed ...; extremely inebriated, bizarre talking, staggering, walking out of a restaurant colliding with chairs."

Dole said both sides in the Tower controversy are restricted because of a prohibition against quoting from any of the volumes of the FBI background check on Tower. Sen. Sam Nunn (D-Ga.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, which voted to reject Tower, agreed that quoting from FBI reports would be a bad precedent.

The debate turned to whether the senators could even properly discuss information leaked from the report once it has been published in newspapers. Nunn said allowing the discussion of newspaper leaks could lead to more leaks.

The parliamentary minuet over what could be discussed, what could not and how far the Senate could go ended inconclusively.

Sen. John Warner (R-Va.) urged that senators stick to expressing only their opinions for the moment. Warner, ranking Republican on Nunn's committee, said party leaders are trying to find a way of releasing a "sanitized version" of the FBI report, which so far has been kept in a secure room.

The main allegations against Tower were laid out coldly by Nunn in an hour presentation of his committee's majority report. They were "excessive drinking" into the 1980s, indiscreet conduct toward women and cozy relations with defense contractors as a consultant that "created the appearance of using public office for private gain."

The Republican rebuttals were more emotional, with one senator, Phil Gramm of Texas, holding back tears as he read a letter from a commandant of the Alamo crying out for reinforcements as he refused to give up.

Warner began the defense by noting that not one of the 70 current senators who served with Tower has reported witnessing a single incident that showed Tower is unfit to run the Pentagon.

Tower the accused and a self-righteous Senate

Raymond R. Coffey

John Tower is being hanged from the wrong tree, it seems to me.

And if hypocrisy came in a bottle, some of the people doing the hanging would be worse drunks than they accuse Tower of being.

For my money, Tower was a bum choice for secretary of defense in the first place. And the best thing he can do now—for himself, for the Bush presidency and (in my view) for the country—is withdraw before the Senate votes on him.

The long and nasty battle over the Tower nomination seems now to be focused almost exclusively on the man's drinking habits, or at least his drinking past.

That's all they're talking about. They've had FBI agents out interviewing something like 500 people, most of whom apparently claim to have seen Tower drunk at one time or another.

We've had Sen. Ernest Hollings (D-S.C.) telling reporters that the FBI report on Tower includes such words, presumably from people interviewed, as "crocked, bombed, excessive drinking, sloshing, stoned and comatose."

It would seem safe to say that Tower has not stuck to Perrier all his life, though his doctor says he finds no sign of physical damage from alcohol and that the former Texas senator's liver is in fine working order.

And, obviously, no one wants a drunk calling the shots on matters of war and peace.

But some of those who are dragging Tower through the mud are in no position to play holier-than-thou. Washington is a heavy-drinking kind of town; it boasts the highest per capita alcohol consumption rate in the country.

And, as retired Sen. Barry Goldwater observed apropos the fuss over Tower's intake, "You start counting noses on that and we're all dead. You can say that about anyone, starting with me."

Or, as our own Rep. Dan Rostenkowski had the grace to acknowledge, "If you're going to scrutinize everybody for sainthood, you are not going to get anybody in government. I've got a lot of glass, so I don't throw stones."

The far more serious rap on Tower, it seems to me, and the one no one seems to want to talk about, is his relationship with big defense contractors, several of whom paid him about $750,000 as a consultant after he left the Senate.

That's a hefty sum, and certainly it poses the possibility of a conflict of interest should Tower take over at the Pentagon. It's also a pretty obvious and unedifying example of the "revolving door" situation in Washington in which government officials go to work for the same outfits in private business that they were dealing with while in office.

The apparent reluctance to deal with this sort of thing involves the same sort of hypocrisy that attaches to the uproar over Tower's drinking.

As Tower himself observed sardonically last week, the secretary of defense must adhere to a higher standard than members of the Senate but "... how much lower an acceptable standard is there for members of the Senate?"

"Is it an acceptable standard," he asked, "for senators to accept honoraria, PAC [political action committee] contributions and paid vacations from special interests who have a vested interest in the legislative process?"

Good question.

Also, Tower said, "I think, in formulating a standard for the secretary of defense, or indeed for any other cabinet officer, that it is time that the Congress articulated what its own standards are."

Good idea.

In making his case the hangee is making at least as much sense as the hangers.

WHOM DO YOU believe? Democratic senators appearing on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" on Sunday reported the FBI reports on John Tower are too damaging to get their vote for confirmation. Republican senators on the same show maintained the FBI reports contain only allegations, with no verification. That makes it difficult for the public to get a handle on Tower's alleged indiscretions. The FBI findings won't be made public.

Chicago Tribune

WASHINGTON—A second Democratic senator Tuesday said he will support John Tower for defense secretary as Democratic leaders pressed for a final vote on Tower this week to put an end to the increasingly testy atmosphere enveloping Senate debate on the nomination.

With the two Democratic defections, President Bush now needs to persuade only three more and to hold all 45 Republican senators to succeed in getting Tower confirmed. Democratic leaders remained confident they can hold the line against Tower, however.

Sen. Christopher Dodd (D., Conn.), who had been undecided, said Tuesday that Tower is qualified to be secretary of defense despite numerous allegations, mostly contained in FBI reports, of excessive drinking, improper relationships with women and possible conflicts of interest arising from his work for weapons manufacturers. On Monday, Sen. Howell Heflin (D., Ala.)] became the first Democrat to support Tower.

"From my reading of the FBI and committee materials, I find the proof is simply not there to deny John Tower this nomination on charges relating to his personal conduct," Dodd said.

Dodd stressed he had made his decision based on the reports on Tower but noted he does have a personal reason to be favorably disposed toward the former Texas senator. On June 23, 1967, Tower was one of only five senators to oppose the censure of Dodd's father, Sen. Thomas Dodd, on charges he used political contributions to pay personal bills.

"I owe John Tower. I owe John Tower the same fairness and careful judgment he used 22 years ago," Dodd said. "I do not owe John Tower my vote."

During the day, senators got into a war of words over Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn's decision to send congressional investigators to check out another allegation of excessive drinking by Tower.

In addition, Sen. Dennis DeConcini (D., Ariz.) became the first senator to acknowledge he saw Tower under the influence of alcohol during his 24 years of service as a senator from Texas.

"This senator has seen Sen. Tower under the influence of alcohol on this floor, as he has seen other senators," DeConcini said. "I have not seen him inebriated to the point where he could not perform his duties."

DeConcini's remarks came after Bush earlier Tuesday repeated his claim that no senators had first-hand evidence that Tower abused alcohol. "I haven't had one single senator—not one—[who] served with him over the years, say, 'I have seen him,'" Bush said at a news conference.

Tower denied DeConcini's allegation saying in a statement, "I have never been inebriated on the Senate floor."

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell (D., Me.) said voting on the nomination is one way to put an end to the wrangling.

"Enough is enough," said Mitchell. "This is the fourth full day of debate. I've attempted to be fair. I and every senator ought to have the opportunity to express himself or herself on the matter fully.

Mitchell expressed confidence that the Democrats, who outnumber Republicans in the Senate 55-45, will prevail and that Tower will be turned down, despite the two Democratic defections.

"I've felt all along that if and when this comes to a vote [former] Sen. Tower will be rejected. It is my hope that the vote will occur soon—in any event sometime this week," Mitchell said.

Four Democratic senators remain publicly undecided on the Tower nomination: Joseph Lieberman of Connecticut, Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Bennett Johnston of Louisiana and Charles Robb of Virginia.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas bitterly criticized Nunn for his weekend decision to send investigators from the Senate subcommittee on investigations to Dallas to check out allegations involving Tower's drinking at an airport VIP lounge in the 1970s and more recently.

Tower has admitted he drank to excess during the 1970s, but says that has ended and has promised to quit altogether if confirmed as defense secretary.

Nunn said that he had decided to let the staff investigators check out the allegation because he believed that the FBI had finished its work on Tower and had been "taken off the case" by the White House.

By the end of the day, Nunn said he had reached agreement with the White House that any further allegations against Tower made while the Senate debate is still going on will be forwarded to the FBI for review.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date of transcription 2/14/89

On February 14, 1989, an anonymous caller contacted the writer and advised that apparently within the past two years, or at least after JOHN TOWER was no longer a United States Senator, TOWER was scheduled to make a speech at a GOP function or fundraiser in Longview, Texas. Immediately prior to TOWER's scheduled appearance in Longview, TOWER contacted one of the individuals in charge of the event and stated "Make sure you have the women ready when I get there." The caller could not provide any names of the GOP officials who were involved with the event nor provide a better time frame for the event. Many individuals in the Longview area apparently found out about the comment and some found it to be amusing and others were upset about it.

Caller advised this information was not firsthand information and he does not know if in fact any women were made available for TOWER.

Tower denies interest clash in defense post

By Kathy Kiely
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — Convinced that the nearly three-quarters of a million dollars in consulting fees he got from various military contractors will not influence him as secretary of defense, John Tower nonetheless promised Thursday to stay out of certain decisions involving his former employers.

On his second day of confirmation hearings before the Senate Armed Services Committee, President Bush's nominee to head the Department of Defense commented on a wide range of military matters as well as his own financial situation.

Among other things, Tower declared that the United States, while trying to negotiate a ban on chemical warfare, should modernize its own arsenal of chemical weapons in the interests of "deterrence."

He also indicated the Bush administration will likely go ahead with research on the Strategic Defense Initiative even though it's "unrealistic" to expect that the so-called "Star Wars" system will provide an "umbrella that can protect the entire American population from nuclear incineration."

But Tower spent most of the day-long session confronting what he called "a perception of an appearance of conflict" arising from his consulting work over the past several years.

Under a barrage of probing but not hostile questions about potential conflicts of interest, Tower insisted he has no incentives, financial or otherwise, to advance the interest of any private defense contractor.

JOHN TOWER:
Loyalty to country

"My loyalty is to my country. It transcends any other loyalties," declared Tower, who said he felt his record proves him worthy of trust.

"I would have to stand primarily on my reputation as an honest public servant," he said.

That reputation appeared to satisfy the concerns of committee members. Most indicated that their questions were motivated more by a desire to set the record straight than by any serious doubts about the integrity of their former colleague, who represented Texas in the Senate for more than two decades.

"I know you're an honest person. But I do worry about the perception," committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told Tower.

Tower offered letters showing that he ended all contracts with military firms Dec. 1, a day or two after members of the Bush transition team told him he was under serious consideration for the Pentagon post.

Lawyers for both the U.S. Office of Government Ethics and the defense department reviewed Tower's business arrangements and pronounced him free of conflicts of interest.

But Tower said he would not participate in certain decisions involving the companies he once served "out of what I consider to be an excess of caution."

Tower said the defense-related companies he worked for are: Astrotech International, British Aerospace, Inc., Hicks & Associates; Jeford-McManus International, Inc., LTV Aerospace & Defense Co., Martin-Marietta Information Systems, Maxwell Commuincations, Micronyx, Rockwell International Inc., and Textron Inc.

Tower also assured the committee he would not make any decisions with an eye to winning future consulting contracts after his term of office.

"And I'm not going to be associated, never intend to be associated, — with any defense industry."

Tower, who is spending the weekend in Europe at a military conference, returns Tuesday when the committee expects to hear from several opponents of his nomination.

A number of published accounts quote one of the opponents, conservative activist Paul Weyrich, as saying he opposes Tower on "moral" grounds, complaining of the former senator's alleged drinking and womanizing.

Tower — either himself or through close associates — has acknowledged overindulging his tastes for liquor and female companionship in the past, but insists he has changed his behavior.

Editorials urge Tower withdrawal

Position compromised, military newspapers say

POST NEWS SERVICES

WASHINGTON — The Army Times and the Defense News, two independent newspapers read by the military and Congress, are calling on John Tower to withdraw from consideration as defense secretary, citing recent allegations about his personal life and past ties to defense contractors.

Meanwhile, the top Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee said the panel will vote next week on Tower's confirmation. The committee had been expected to vote Thursday to recommend Senate confirmation, but that was postponed after the new allegations emerged and the FBI started an investigation.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., declined to say what the information dealt with. But sources indicated it concerned Tower's personal life, specifically alcohol and women.

According to ABC News, the new allegations include a report from an Air Force colonel which said Tower had 14 separate liaisons with women while he headed the U.S. negotiating team in Geneva after leaving the Senate.

Another report, by CBS News, was that the allegations involve an alleged liaison in Houston between Tower and a woman from an Eastern bloc nation, along with an allegation of excessive drinking.

In an editorial to be published in its Monday edition, the Army Times says: "Out of concern for the military, which the former Texas senator clearly loves, he should step aside."

The 49-year-old, independent publication has a worldwide circulation of about 125,000, including many in the uniformed military.

"Tower's public position has been so compromised by the agonizing process by which he was nominated and is being confirmed ... that he cannot be the strong spokesman the Defense Department needs," the editorial said.

"More troubling and more at issue is Tower's position as a consultant to defense contractors ... the speed and greed with which Tower spun through the revolving door is appalling."

The editorial suggests that either President Bush, who is concerned about ethics in government, reconsider Tower's appointment, or that the former senator "summon personal courage of his own ... it might be the best help he can give to his friends in the military."

Defense News, in an editorial for Monday, says Tower's withdrawal "would be the act of a seasoned politician who understands that the best interests of the nation sometimes require personal sacrifice by those who would help lead it."

Defense News is a three-year-old independent publication with a circulation of about 30,000, including the top level of the Pentagon and defense industry, and members of Congress.

Defense News suggests that Tower's links to defense consultants is the most troubling aspect of the confirmation process.

"The principal task of the next defense secretary is to build public confidence that the Pentagon is being well-managed and that defense dollars are being carefully spent," it said. "The defense secretary must be an independent voice of force, authority and reason.

"There is ample reason to doubt whether Mr. Tower is the man for these times," the editorial said.

Tower, in testimony before the Senate panel, said he received more than $1 million in fees for defense consulting in a 2½ year period. He said he severed all consulting ties as of Dec. 1, 1988.

Senator says Tower faces new charge

By Kathy Kiely
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense-designate John Tower remained in legislative limbo Tuesday as a key Republican senator announced that the FBI is investigating yet another allegation against him and a key Democrat publicly suggested he may be an alcoholic.

"I am convinced that John Tower at one time — months or years ago — had a serious problem with alcohol," Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., said at a news conference.

"All during this investigation the question has been on many of our minds whether or not that is still the case or whether he has corrected that problem," said Exon, a member of the committee considering Tower's nomination.

Tower denied having a drinking problem during hearings last week before the Senate Armed Services Committee, but Exon indicated that denial did not settle his own doubts.

"I am not convinced one way or another at this time," he said.

Exon's remarks came as partisan acrimony began surfacing on the Armed Services Committee for the first time since deliberations on the Tower nomination began.

After an oral briefing by officials of the White House counsel's office on the findings of the latest FBI investigation on charges of excessive drinking and womanizing, Republican members of the panel began agitating for a quick vote on the former Texas senator's confirmation.

Early in the afternoon, the committee's chairman Sam Nunn, D-Georgia, and ranking Republican Sen. John Warner, R-Virginia, publicly differed over the outcome of the investigation. Warner said preliminary FBI reports put Tower in the clear, while Nunn contended the bureau's investigation was still unfinished.

By late in the evening, Warner was backing off his earlier assessment, telling reporters at an impromptu press conference that the FBI was investigating a new charge against Tower — a charge that

Carolyn Farb in defense of Tower

FROM STAFF REPORTS

When the FBI embarked on its latest investigation of John Tower's alleged drinking and womanizing, it went to a woman many consider one of the best sources in Houston.

Social arbiter Carolyn Farb acknowledged Tuesday that she had been questioned by the bureau on what she knew about Tower's habits.

She said she provided the agents with a sterling character recommendation for the former Texas senator — and then some.

"I talked to them and gave them a good piece of my mind," Farb said. "I immediately rose to the defense of Senator Tower. I've known him for a number of years. I've never seen him act improperly. He has served his country well."

Farb dismissed one allegation that the bureau was checking — that Tower had a relationship with a Russian ballerina in Houston. "I don't think she exists," Farb said.

Tuesday.

Exon said he did not expect the latest FBI report on Tower to produce any smoking gun, but said he nonetheless was wrestling with concerns over Tower's alleged problems with alcohol.

Exon said Tower told the committee that he has had some problems with alcohol in the past. Tower made no such statements during his public testimony. However, the members of the Armed Services Committee did hold closed-door sessions with him as well.

Last week, Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., said of the latest investigation on Tower: "I think it's almost sim-plistically a question of whether the man is an alcoholic or not."

Both Nunn and Warner met with President Bush Tuesday to discuss the nomination. The meeting came at the senators' request. Afterward, neither they nor White House officials would discuss what was said.

Meanwhile, the heretofore cordial and cooperative relations between Republican and Democratic members of the Armed Services Committee appeared to be breaking down.

The Associated Press reported that Nunn expressed irritation over the briefing that White House officials gave Republican members of the committee, and indicated he was not about to rush Tower's confirmation along.

"As much pressure as there is, we ought to do something that is unusual in Washington," Nunn said. "We ought to let the facts support the conclusions."

Republicans argued that the committee ought to vote on Tower and put an end to the spate of potentially crippling rumors about him. Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he hoped the Tower nomination could come up for a confirmation vote in the full Senate this week, before the lawmakers leave for a 10-day recess.

[redacted] THE RED LION RESTAURANT AND PUB, 7315 South Main, Houston, Texas 77030, telephone (713) 795-5000 advised that Senator JOHN TOWER has frequented her establishment in the past. She stated that during the seventies and early eighties TOWER patronized THE RED LION more frequently. He has been in her establishment twice in the past four years. [redacted] stated that she only had the opportunity to observe Senator TOWER one time, approximately two years ago. TOWER comported himself as a gentleman, did not drink heavily and was not intoxicated. He was in a group of men and women. During the seventies and early eighties, TOWER was somewhat of a regular customer and he would exchange pleasantries with [redacted] has never observed nor has he had any reason to believe that TOWER was intoxicated while in THE RED LION. TOWER never engaged in any inappropriate behavior, and [redacted] has never had any bartender, waiter, or other employee comment that TOWER was drinking heavily or appeared to be intoxicated. TOWER would typically arrive in a group of between four to eight men and women. [redacted] stated that he is aware of the "womanizing" allegations that have been made against TOWER, and that perhaps they are true, but he has never observed anything that would lead him to believe it to be true. The women in TOWER's group appeared to be business associates, and TOWER behaved as a gentleman. TOWER never came in to THE RED LION accompanied by just one woman.

It should be noted that [redacted] appeared to be under the influence of alcohol upon interview. He was in fact drinking a beer during the interview, and became loudly argumentative with [redacted] regarding the last time Senator TOWER had been in THE RED LION. HANK GROVER was telephonically contacted at telephone number (713) 721-1106. He advised as follows.

GROVER stated that he was not sure how recently Senator JOHN TOWER had patronized the FORTY ACRES CLUB on the campus of the UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS in Austin, Texas. GROVER is not sure if the FORTY ACRES CLUB is still in business. While GROVER served in the Texas State Legislature in the 1970's, the talk in Austin was that the FORTY ACRES CLUB was TOWER's favorite hangout, and that he would take his girlfriends there. Typically, these were very young women (college age). GROVER advised that he was not in Austin during most of the 1980's, but indicated that if the FORTY ACRES CLUB is in fact still operational, TOWER has probably continued to patronize it.

GROVER stated that he thought that the primary for the U.S. Senate was held in May of 1972. Texas law would have required TOWER's campaign to file two expense statements; one approximately four weeks prior to the primary, and one two weeks before the primary. TOWER should have filed in late March 1972, and in the early to mid part of April 1972. The Texas Secretary of State's Office should have these statements on file.

[redacted] a person who has known JOHN GOODWIN TOWER for approximately 25 years and is well acquainted with him, provided the following information.

[redacted] advised he has known JOHN TOWER since the mid-1960's and during this time, has had occasion to know him on both a personal, professional, and social basis. [redacted] stated that he is not certain that JOHN TOWER is the man for the job of Secretary of Defense of the United States. [redacted] commented that he certainly hopes there is another person having the same qualifications that could be considered for the job. [redacted] stated that TOWER has a drinking problem, and that in addition to his drinking problem, he has a reputation as a womanizer. [redacted] stated the drinking problem may be less severe now than it was in the past, but that he, [redacted] would not feel comfortable having TOWER as the Secretary of Defense knowing of his difficulties with alcohol. [redacted] commented that in a position such as Secretary of Defense, one's character and integrity are extremely important and he feels TOWER is lacking in both areas. [redacted] stated he would prefer to have someone who is clear headed and clear of conscience in that position so that they would not be subject to compromise or distractions.

[redacted] advised he has seen TOWER intoxicated on numerous occasions. [redacted] stated that he could not recall specific meetings or gatherings when he observed TOWER to be intoxicated, but that it was not uncommon at all to see TOWER intoxicated. [redacted] stated he has not had occasion to socialize or meet with TOWER to any great extent since TOWER's retirement from the Senate. However, [redacted] still knows of TOWER's reputation and [redacted] overall impression is that TOWER still has a problem with alcohol and with women. [redacted] stated that from his, personal observations, TOWER drank too much and became quite indiscreet when he was under the influence of alcohol.

[redacted] was asked if he had ever known of TOWER to talk about sensitive matters that would be harmful to the country. [redacted] immediately stated he had never heard TOWER divulge any information of a sensitive or secret nature, and has never heard anyone else say that they have heard of TOWER do so. [redacted] stated that TOWER's talking about matters he should not has never been an issue. The primary issues of concern to [redacted] are TOWER's use of alcohol and his weakness for women.

[redacted] was asked if he could be specific as to the names of ladies that TOWER has been indiscreet with, and [redacted] stated that he could, but immediately replied that he would not do so. [redacted] stated that he has personally observed TOWER engage in conduct which is inconsistent with that of a good family man, husband, and father, and he feels that a person in a position of trust should not open himself to criticism and/or compromise.

[redacted] was asked if he would recommend TOWER for the position of Secretary of Defense, and [redacted] immediately replied, "No." [redacted] was then asked if he would recommend TOWER for some other position in the cabinet, [redacted] stated he might, but that he would have to think about it for a while. [redacted] then stated that in another position in the cabinet, TOWER might do a fine job, but [redacted] re-emphasized that he felt in the position of Secretary of Defense, TOWER had too many things in his personal life that could cause problems.

[redacted] was asked if he felt TOWER was qualified for the position of Secretary of Defense, and [redacted] replied, "Probably." [redacted] characterized TOWER as being a bright, knowledgeable individual and stated he is quite competent to handle most any job that would be given him.

[redacted] commented that it was his belief that there should be someone else available with the same qualifications who could handle the job of Secretary of Defense without having the stigma of personal indiscretions being attached to him.

NATASHA SYNNERBERG RAWSON also known as NATHALIE RAWSON, white female, DOB 10/26/16, 807 South Post Oak Lane #272, Houston, Texas furnished the following information to SSA [redacted] on February 4, 1989:

She has known JOHN TOWER for over twenty years having been best friends with his first wife LU. In the late sixties she was commissioned to do his portrait which was unveiled in Washington, D.C. in approximately 1968. She had an exhibit of her paintings in 1970 and asked the TOWER's if she could include the portrait during the showing. They forwarded the portrait to her for showing during the exhibition in Houston.

The last time she met with JOHN TOWER was during his last campaign for Senator. There was a tribute or fund raising dinner for him in Houston which she attended and spoke with him during the evening. It was at this function that she met TOWER's second wife. Subsequently he decided not to seek re-election. Her only other connection with TOWER has been the exchange of Christmas cards which also ceased approximately three years ago.

She formerly lived on Willowick Road in the River Oaks section of Houston until 1969. During the 1970's she attended many parties in River Oaks at which TOWER was also an attendee. She never observed him to drink to excess and he was always very much a gentleman with her.

RAWSON was born in Shanghai, China of Russian parents. She is an artist and has sung in opera but has never been a ballerina or dancer of any kind. However, she is on the Board of Directors of the Houston Ballet. There are many present and former Russian ballet dancers in Houston but none reside in the River Oaks section. She would know if any Russians resided in that area through her social and business contacts there as she speaks fluent Russian and the presence of such an individual would be made known to her.

There is a Russian ballerina who resides in Dallas but socializes with many of the people from the River Oaks area. NATASHA KRASSOVSKA, white female, in her seventies, was last in Houston a few months ago accompanying a Russian male defector. KRASSOVSKA is not acquainted with JOHN TOWER.

HOUSTON CASE AGENT AND PROVIDED THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION.

IN THE EARLY 1970'S PRESIDENT NIXON NAMED HILLARY SANDOVAL (MALE) TO HEAD THE SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION (SBA). SANDOVAL WAS A FRIEND OF SENATOR TOWER'S. SOON AFTER SANDOVAL WAS APPOINTED, (LATE 1971 OR EARLY 1972) A CLOSE FRIEND OF TOWER'S, A [redacted] (MALE) OF EL PASO, TEXAS, APPLIED FOR AND WAS GRANTED A $350,000 LOAN BY THE SBA, WHICH WAS THE MAXIMUM AMOUNT ALLOWED AT THE TIME. TWO WEEKS LATER, [redacted] ALLEGEDLY MADE A $250,000. LOAN TO TOWER'S RE-ELECTION CAMPAIGN. SOON AFTER THAT, TOWER'S RE-ELECTION HEADQUARTERS, LOCATED AT 58TH AND LA VACA, AUSTIN, TEXAS "MYSTERIOUSLY" BURNED DOWN.

GROVER RECALLED THAT THE STORY WAS WIDELY REPORTED IN THE MEDIA AT THE TIME. GROVER ADVISED THAT HE HAS PERSONALLY SEARCHED NEWSPAPER MORGUES IN EL PASO, TEXAS, AND FOR SOME REASON, THE STORIES ARE NOT ON RECORD.

GROVER STATED THAT RECORD OF [redacted] $250,000. LOAN SHOULD BE ON RECORD WITH THE CHIEF CLERK OF THE U.S. SENATE, AND WITH THE SECRETARY OF STATE'S OFFICE IN AUSTIN, TEXAS. TEXAS STATE LAW REQUIRES THAT ALL CANDIDATES FOR FEDERAL OFFICE FILE CAMPAIGN

Tower on display in show of support

By Kathy Kiely
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — A number of senators have raised questions about whether he'll ever be confirmed, but John Tower was seated front and center with the rest of President Bush's Cabinet Thursday night.

In what amounted to a symbolic show of administration confidence in the embattled defense secretary-designate, Tower was seated between Secretary of the Treasury Nicholas Brady and Attorney General Dick Thornburgh in the front row of the House of Representatives to listen to the address.

Another controversial Bush nominee, Health and Human Services Secretary-designate Louis Sullivan, also sat with the Cabinet.

The former Texas senator, who served more than two decades on Capitol Hill, received lots of handshakes and pats on the back as he proceeded into the chamber.

Among those seeking him out: Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Me., and Senate Minority Whip Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

Simpson and Tower appeared to have a friendly exchange despite the fact that in recent days Simpson has worried aloud over whether Tower may be "damaged goods."

But for Tower, the most heartening moment of all came at the end of the evening.

As he left the room, Bush reached across several Cabinet officials to grab his would-be Pentagon chief's hand. They spoke and when Bush pressed on, Tower was smiling.

Tower becomes talk of the town

By Michael Posner
REUTER NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — In this power-hungry town of politics and gossip, tiny John Tower has become a giant of folklore stirring tales of hard drinking and sexual exploits.

The Senate Armed Services Committee is trying to sift through this thicket of fact and fiction to decide whether to approve the good friend of President Bush as defense secretary.

At the moment, bettors say approval is still likely despite allegations of impropriety from various sources — the public, an ex-wife, journalists and senators.

Tower is true-blue Texan but belies the stereotypes of a lanky cowboy or a rich oil or cattle baron.

Now 63, he stands about 5 feet 5 inches, a round man with a pixie face and squinting eyes, deadly serious and stern in public — an arms expert and veteran politician.

A dandy with slicked-down hair, his clothes are expensive and his manner is formal — a throwback to his early days as a student at London School of Economics and as a Texas college professor.

After hours, so the tales go, Tower is a big man about Washington — one network news report used the phrase "hard-drinking tomcat."

A photograph in wide circulation showed him at a costume party several years ago, leaping around in a Superman suit.

Even before Bush announced the nomination in December, Tower tales made the rounds.

Lilla Burt Cummings, second wife of the twice-divorced Tower, said he was quite a ladies' man — with other women — during their 10-year marriage.

Reports have also been published about after-hours fun in Geneva, where Tower was a strategic arms negotiator in 1985 and 1986.

One had him chasing a secretary around a table and indulging in all-night, hard-drinking poker games.

Earlier this month, Tower was lunching at a hotel with friend Dorothy Heiser — unaware Washington Post reporters were dining within earshot.

The next day, the Post's gossip column said Tower "suddenly, playfully lunged at Heiser, his arms reaching toward her under the table, and said, 'I'm going to fondle you.' She gave a little shriek and jumped slightly and said, 'Don't you do that!' He stopped and they resumed eating."

Hardline conservative activist Paul Weyrich claims to have seen Tower drunk several times. But allegation of drinking and womanizing are not his only problems.

After leaving the Senate in 1985, where he had served since 1961 as the first Republican senator elected from Texas since the Civil War, he made a fortune in three years as a defense consultant.

The Senate has been investigating the $760,000 Tower earned from arms manufacturers, questioning whether he can be free of conflicts of interest in dealing with former employees once he is in charge of the Pentagon's $300 billion budget.

TOWER: Nominee

Also being probed is whether any campaign finance laws were violated when he was a senator.

Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said he wants answers to all charges before the panel votes on the nomination. That means at least another two weeks with no one at the helm of the Pentagon.

Tower himself, supported by many acquaintances, denies stories of wild behavior. During questioning about his drinking habits, he described himself to senators as a man of some discipline.

He was also an extremely powerful man in the Senate, a man of often short temper. Such men make enemies.

The phones to the FBI have been buzzing with Tower stories, most of them cleared by investigators as unfounded.

Rejection by the Senate would be a rare event. It has not turned down a presidential Cabinet nominee since 1959.

While Washington awaits the results of the Tower affair — and savors all the stories with unconcealed glee — comedians are having a field day.

TV comic Jay Leno quips that his biggest fear about the proposed Pentagon chief is that World War III will start over a barroom brawl.

Bush slams 'rumors,' stands behind Tower

By Kathy Kiely
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — With the latest FBI investigation of John Tower apparently still incomplete, President Bush on Monday continued to stand steadfastly behind his secretary of defense-designate, suggesting he is the victim of "rumors," "innuendo" and "spurious allegation."

"I'm not going to jump to conclusions based on stories that may or may not have any validity at all," said the president.

At a briefing where reporters switched from the announced subject of savings and loan bailouts to pepper the president with questions about Tower, Bush insisted his faith in the man he has nominated to head the Pentagon has not been shaken.

"I'm not about to change my view," said Bush. "Now if somebody comes up with facts, I hope I'm not narrow-minded enough that I wouldn't take a look, but I am not going to deal in the kinds of rumors that I've seen reported and then knocked down and then reported and then knocked down."

Bush indicated news accounts detailing alleged personal and professional improprieties by Tower have not impressed him.

"It's very hard to filter out fact from fiction, spurious allegation from facts," he said. "And I'm not about to make a judgment based on a sensationalized newspaper story. I'm simply not going to do that. That wouldn't be fair."

Bush dismissed suggestions that Tower's ability to lead the Pentagon may have been damaged already by the controversy.

"I think people would not want a person to step aside, given rumor, particularly if the rumor is baseless," he said.

Bush acknowledged some concern over the delays in Tower's confirmation, saying "the process is taking a little longer than I would like," but he added: "I think the Senate has got to do what they're doing."

Meanwhile, on Capitol Hill, Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., told reporters he has not scheduled a date for a confirmation vote on Tower because he has not yet received a report from the FBI on its investigation into the latest round of allegations about Tower's personal life.

Nunn and the committee's ranking Republican, John Warner of Virginia, indicated they have had some communication with administration officials about the Tower nomination but were tight-lipped when asked if they had received any information that exonerated Tower.

"There's no way I can respond to that," said Warner.

Nunn said he had no idea when he might receive the FBI's report.

The Armed Services Committee, which held several days of hearings on Tower's confirmation, requested the FBI investigation last week after new allegations were reported that Nunn termed "serious."

Those allegations, according to sources close to the committee and to Tower, involved Tower's drinking and dating habits, including a rumor he had been involved with a Russian ballerina living in Houston.

While the speculation and controversy continued to swirl, Tower — and the administration — apparently continued to proceed on the assumption he will be confirmed.

Bush's press secretary, Marlin Fitzwater, said Tower attended White House budget planning sessions on Saturday and Monday. The Monday session included the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Bush, Fitzwater said. He called Tower's inclusion "entirely appropriate."

"The president is free to ask anyone he wants for advice on the budget," Fitzwater said.

Tower has remained mum throughout the confirmation process, but one of his closest friends said he is unfazed by the flap he has provoked. "He feels very confident," said Dallas lawyer Paul Eggers, a longtime confidant of Tower.

Eggers said Tower, in a weekend conversation, characterized the latest allegations as "more of the same." According to Eggers, Tower said he had been questioned about whether he'd had a relationship with a Russian ballerina.

"The whole thing is just a complete fiction," said Eggers. He said Tower has calendars indicating he seldom traveled to Houston and that when he did "he never spent overnight."

Added Eggers: "John doesn't like ballet anyway."

Backers fear Tower's bid in jeopardy

By Kathy Kiely
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — President Bush and his secretary of defense-designee, John Tower, were hanging tough Wednesday in the face of a drumbeat of doubts that even Tower's allies said could jeopardize his nomination.

For the second time this week, Bush went out of his way to show support for Tower, saying he has "seen nothing ... that makes me change my mind about John Tower's ability to be secretary of defense" and expressing concern that his nominee has been for too long the subject of "rumor and frenzied speculation."

But some supporters were expressing concern.

Said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas: "It's almost become a game. There's sort of this blood-in-the-water syndrome."

Gramm, who said he spoke with Tower several times during the day, described him as "upbeat and positive" but somewhat concerned about his prospects for confirmation. "I think he believes it's a contested matter now," Gramm said.

Bush's words were one bright spot for Tower in a day that began with Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn announcing that he is, at the moment, leaning against the former Texas senator.

Breaking a longstanding policy of public neutrality, the powerful and well-respected Georgia Democrat, who presides over Tower's confirmation hearings, said he would vote no on the nomination if he had to vote now.

He said he has "serious concerns," one having to do with "whether there has been an alcohol abuse problem." Tower has publicly denied any drinking problems.

Nunn gave no indication that his mind was changed by either a status report on the FBI's investigation or a meeting he had with Tower later in the day.

Following a briefing he and Sen. John Warner, R-Va., the ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee, received later in the day on the latest FBI investigation of Tower, Nunn told reporters: "My position is exactly as it was this morning."

The senators then met for 90 minutes with Tower, a meeting they said Tower had requested.

Nunn and Warner, who remained closeted for another 40 minutes after Tower left, were almost equally tight-lipped. "We had a good meeting. That's all we want to say," Nunn said.

Though Bush's press secretary, Marlin Fitzwater, told reporters that the FBI report contained nothing damaging about Tower, the nearly two-hour closed door briefing with White House Counsel Boyden Gray did produce one piece of bad news for the nominee.

Nunn said Gray told the two senators it would take "a week to 10 days" for the FBI to finish its investigation of the latest allegations about Tower. Gray believes the probe "must be completed" before the Senate votes on confirmation, Nunn added.

Dallas attorney Paul Eggers, a friend and sometime business partner of Tower's, said Tower believes the latest allegations against him have something to do with political contributions he received while in the Senate. Eggers said Tower told him the contributions — which came from military contractors to several senators — were the subject of an earlier investigation that cleared all the lawmakers.

One administration source expressed similar confidence in the outcome of the latest FBI probe, predicting it would prove "a dry hole."

Yet several Tower supporters said they and Tower himself fear time could be against him. Backers argued that delaying his confirmation vote will allow more time for opposition to build, and for new — and, they say, unfounded — allegations to trickle in.

"They're just going to dump and dump and dump as long as the chairman (Nunn) lets them," said Eggers.

Tower spent much of the day acting like a man who expects he will be heading the defense department. He met for what Fitzwater described as a breakfast "policy meeting" with Secretary of State James Baker and National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft and spent part of his day working at the Pentagon.

Fitzwater, who said Tower has security clearances from his work as a member of former President Reagan's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, insisted there is nothing inappropriate in Tower's role.

"We expect him to be secretary of defense," said Fitzwater, who emphatically denied that any list of new candidates for the post is being compiled.

Bush expressed dismay over the increasingly embarrassing and personal confirmation process Tower has undergone, but also indicated he feels helpless to do much about it.

"The problem you get is that some allegations are laid to rest and then, in another form, they come back again but without any foundation in fact that I know of," he said. "That has happened to this man over and over again."

But Bush insisted he is not trying to rush the Senate. "The process has to be thorough," he said.

The president, who, Fitzwater said, is briefed regularly on the FBI's findings on Tower, said he has seen no information that would cause him to share Nunn's concerns about "insobriety or about failure to be ready for duty 24 hours a day."

Several Democrats on the Armed Services Committee have said they are wrestling with doubts over possible alcohol abuse by Tower. Sen. James Exon, D-Neb., said Tuesday he is "convinced that John Tower at one time — months or years ago — had a serious problem with alcohol" and said a number of committee members have not yet satisfied themselves that "he has corrected that problem."

Nunn, at his morning press conference, said the same question is on his mind, calling it "a matter of serious concern to me" and adding, "I do not have an answer to that yet."

"It's not a matter of one or two episodes, it's a question of whether there's a continuing pattern," Nunn said. "The secretary of defense has to, in my view, have clarity of thought at all times. There's no such thing as an eight-hour day in that job."

Eggers said the former senator drinks only in moderation, but he acknowledged that may not always have been the case.

"Back early in the '70s, before he married Lilla, he did have too much to drink at times. Lilla put a stop to that," said Eggers, referring to Tower's divorced second wife.

Eggers said that Tower feels the delay in the Senate vote "lowers the odds for confirmation," but that he intends to weather the process. "He isn't about to give up," Eggers said.

Gramm expressed hope that Nunn would be willing to take a committee vote on Tower's confirmation as soon as the ongoing FBI investigation is completed. Noting that at weddings, ministers traditionally admonish the congregation to "Speak now or forever hold your peace," Gramm said, "I think we're about at that point in the ceremony."

Post reporters Juan R. Palomo and Kathy Lewis also contributed to this story.

GOP rallies to Tower's aid, decries 'feeding frenzy' of charges

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

WASHINGTON — Democrats said Thursday that Defense Secretary-designate John Tower's nomination will rise or fall on the answers to outstanding questions, but Republicans rallied to his side, one complaining of a "feeding frenzy" of allegations.

Sen. Sam Nunn, the Armed Services Committee chairman who has said he would formally oppose the nomination if a vote were held now, said he'd be ready to work with Tower if the confirmation goes through, no matter how he had voted.

Behind the scenes, things also appeared to be looking up for Tower.

Just prior to President Bush's budget speech Thursday night, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, and Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., met to discuss the status of the Tower nomination with Nunn, D-Ga., and the committee's ranking Republican, John Warner.

Warner said the group agreed to try to expedite action on Tower's confirmation if the White House and FBI have completed their investigations by the time the Senate returns from its recess the week after next.

Dole said the Armed Services Committee could try to act on the Tower nomination as early as a week from Tuesday.

"Sam Nunn doesn't want to hold this up," Dole said.

However, there apparently was no agreement to prevent possible new allegations against Tower from creating further delays in his confirmation process.

"There is no way the committee can or should impose a lid," said Warner.

Nunn has delayed a committee vote on the nomination at least until Feb. 21 — the Senate will be in recess until then — so the FBI can review allegations of a financial nature against the former Texas senator.

Other questions involve Tower's use of alcohol, Nunn said.

His position was echoed by several other Democrats on the 20-member Armed Services Committee which Tower once headed.

Tower absent as Bush meets on Soviet plan

By Kathy Lewis
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine — President Bush — who has been criticized by some for dragging his feet on U.S.-Soviet relations — Sunday interrupted his weekend here to confer with experts on the Kremlin.

Bush met for several hours with five scholars on U.S.-Soviet relations at his waterfront vacation home.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the group was put together on short notice — drawing on nearby East Coast universities.

Former Texas Sen. John Tower, Bush's embroiled secretary of defense-designate, was not present for the session, which included National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft and Deputy Secretary of State-designate Lawrence Eagleburger.

Eagleburger represented Secretary of State James Baker who is on a 15-stop tour of NATO nations in Europe.

Bush has been criticized by some for saying he wants to carefully review U.S.-Soviet relations and various national security policies before proceeding. The critics have suggested that the delay — which they say is surprising given the fact Bush was vice president for eight years — actually means a lack of agenda.

However, Bush strongly defends his approach. He said he told Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney during their summit Friday:

"It is not a foot-dragging operation. It is not trying to send a signal to Secretary Gorbachev that we want to move backward. It is simply prudent."

He also has said he's convinced Mulroney, Gorbachev and other leaders understand that.

The review has been delayed in part by the fact that Tower's confirmation has been delayed and remains in question. The other factor slowing the process is that key deputy posts at both the Departments of State and Defense are not yet filled.

Bush is spending the weekend here after a frenetic week in which he announced his plan for dealing with the savings and loan crisis, wrestled with the ongoing problems involving Tower's nomination, addressed Congress and met with Mulroney in Ottawa.

Today Bush flies to Manchester, New Hampshire for the first of several on-the-road appearances to build support for his budget proposals.

Bush faces long weeks ahead as the good will expressed Thursday night by Democrats shifted into charges that Bush ducked the tough budget questions and left Congress with the role of fall guy.

On Sunday network interview shows, administration officials defended that budget and said the Democratic reaction was to be expected.

"I don't think we're at an impasse at all," budget director Richard Darman said on CBS's Face the Nation.

He acknowledged Bush emphasized the positive in his speech, and he suggested the Democrats now "would like to regain a little bit of ground."

In his speech, Bush laid out programs he wants to emphasize or spend more money on but did not, for example, mention he would cut the rate of growth in Medicare by $5 billion or that he would freeze $136 billion in programs without increases for inflation.

In the budget, Bush said, those programs could be frozen across the board, or decisions could be made to raise some and cut others.

Democrats have charged that the freeze actually represents cuts because there is no allowance for inflation.

Darman predicted "this phase" would last a week and a half. "That's very understandable. The key is to get past it and on to negotiations."

On ABC's This Week with David Brinkley, White House chief of staff John Sununu insisted he still thinks the reception was "fairly good" and that the Democratic leadership recognizes the opportunity to get something done and "to share the credit" for having accomplished it.

Speaking for the Democrats, House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski said he likes the fact that Bush called for a debate, but he said the administration's economic assumptions are based on fallacies.

On the TV show Sununu also defended Tower and expressed confidence he will be confirmed.

"The Senate has to work its course. We understand that. That's the right thing to do. But the President is convinced that the same thing will happen as they go through this, that those allegations will be proven not to have any basis and that when they do vote, John Tower will be confirmed," said Sununu.

Bush has spent a relaxing weekend in snowy, but sunny Maine at his vacation home with its spectacular view of the Atlantic.

This was his first visit as president and his new status requires extra precautions. There are checkpoints at each end of the road that runs behind his house, but visits are permitted to drive it as long as they do not stop their cars.

Over the weekend Bush watched the movie, Three Men and a Baby, worked in his nearby office and walked 2½ miles into town Saturday to buy "a couple of razor blades" and other items at the Colonial Pharmacy.

Bush had told reporters he wanted to get some exercise after having been somewhat cabin-bound for two weeks with his cold.

Bush and his wife, Barbara, attended church at the First Congregational Church.

During the service, the Rev. Robert Howes in welcoming the Bushes called them "Mister President and our first lady Barbara."

He drew laughter when he said that would be the only time he would address them so formally.

"You are George and Barbara and our dear friends, and we're happy you are home with us."

When the congregation was asked for announcements, one woman noted an upcoming church dinner and Barbara Bush volunteered, "We had a new baby."

She was referring to the child born to Neil and Sharon Bush last week.

After joining the worshipers for coffee in the parish house, Bush emerged to hear one woman call to him, "George, we'll see you Easter."

4 tell FBI Tower seen drunk in '88

By Juan R. Palomo
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — FBI agents Thursday interviewed four people who said they saw an allegedly inebriated John Tower cavorting with several young women at a Dallas nightclub last July.

Three of those interviewed by the FBI are Texans.

One of those interviewed said they told the FBI that Tower, the secretary of defense nominee, remained at the club after his companion left and continued to dance with other women.

"He was doing his stupor-drunk act," said one of those interviewed. "He was slouching and stumbling when he walked from the dance floor — he obviously was not embarrassed."

Another, who spoke on the condition that no names would be used, said the four informants contacted the FBI because they got "fed up" with defenders of Tower in the Senate and the administration claiming that he has not had a drinking problem since the 1970s.

"What really solidified it this morning was the constant replay of one senator on all the morning newcasts saying that all the information about Tower is all anonymous innuendo and that no one is willing to come forward," that person said. "That's wrong. It's not innuendo. It's fact — I've seen it."

The New York Times quoted a White House official Thursday as saying the administration acknowledges evidence of immoderate or excessive drinking in the 1970s "which appears to have been curbed and brought under control in the '80s" and that allegations corroborated by other witnesses.

Tower himself told the Senate Armed Services Committee during his confirmation hearing that he is "a man of some discipline."

There was no such discipline evident at the Dallas club that night, one of the sources said.

"This man is purporting to have become a saint and he's not," said that person. "I just don't happen to think that he's changed."

The sources said they had no political motives for volunteering their information and one of them said the political affiliation of the four was "about half Republican and half Democrat."

According to two of those interviewed, FBI agents said the information would be forwarded to the Senate Armed Services Committee, which Thursday night voted to recommend rejection of Tower's nomination by the Senate.

The agents also told them others who had volunteered information before had been unwilling to agree to repeat their allegations be willing to tell their story before the panel or President Bush.

They said they would if their identity is protected.

The four described to the FBI a scene at The Club, the disco portion of the San Simeon Restaurant in Dallas on July 8.

They had gone there for dinner and, at about 11 p.m., decided to go to the disco for a drink to celebrate a birthday.

They said Tower and a female companion repeatedly danced. During one of their dances Tower's partner stumbled and almost fell, they said, causing her dress straps to come loose and expose both her breasts.

They told the FBI that after the woman left, Tower, 63, remained behind and "continued to pick up other young women" to dance with.

"He continued to dance and he would put his hands on their behinds," one said.

The four said they left after about 90 minutes and Tower was still dancing.

[redacted] stated that after watching news reports stating that the FBI report had "cleared" Senator JOHN TOWER on allegations of drinking and womanizing, she felt compelled to provide the following information. On July 8, 1988, [redacted] and several friends were celebrating a birthday at SAN SIMEON, a French restaurant in Dallas, Texas. After dining, [redacted] group adjourned to THE CLUB, a dance club which is part of SAN SIMEON. Senator TOWER was seated against the wall in a booth, with [redacted] party seated approximately eight feet away. [redacted] observed TOWER for approximately thirty to forty-five minutes.

In [redacted] estimation, both TOWER and his date were "obviously drunk." [redacted] thought that TOWER ordered one or two rounds of drinks during the time she was able to observe him, but could not tell what he was drinking. [redacted] was not close enough to hear TOWER, or to see if his eyes were bloodshot. TOWER did not act "wildly", and did not stumble, but rather seemed to be a quiet drunk. He looked "out of it, lethargic, and comatose," and sat slumped down in the booth.

TOWER's date was wearing a black strapless cocktail dress. [redacted] stated that one time when TOWER and his companion left the dance floor, his date tripped over [redacted] chair, and fell to her knees. Her dress fell to her waist. She struggled to her feet, "shoving her breasts into her dress." TOWER did not act embarrassed or appalled, but simply helped his date to her feet, and returned to the booth. [redacted] stated that this was of course quite a spectacle, and everyone in the club turned around to look.

[redacted] has not been close to Senator JOHN TOWER for several years. [redacted] is wary of condemning anyone on a faulty memory, and stated that he could not provide specific details regarding TOWER's drinking habits. At one point in time, TOWER was certainly a problem drinker, but [redacted] has no knowledge that TOWER has continued to drink heavily in the last few years. [redacted] has seen TOWER at social gatherings obviously drunk, but has seen him sober as well. There was no question that at times, TOWER acted inappropriately while intoxicated. He would become an "arrogant little ass," say inappropriate things, and become too familiar with women. During TOWER's first marriage, [redacted] did observe him in the company of women other than his wife. [redacted] did not recall ever seeing TOWER in the company of another woman during his second marriage.

[redacted] and has had a great deal of personal experience with alcoholics. [redacted] has paid close attention to TOWER's testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee, and stated that what is really disturbing is the fact that TOWER has not admitted, at least to the committee, that he did in fact have a drinking problem. Denial is a classic sign of an alcoholic, and [redacted] would have liked to have heard TOWER say that he did have a problem, and had sought treatment for it. TOWER's statement that he now "only drinks wine" is the type of statement that a problem drinker laughs at, or cries about.

[redacted] could not condemn TOWER without personal, current verifiable knowledge that he continues to have a problem with alcohol. TOWER is a security risk, but perhaps he is measurably less of a danger in view of the recent news reports about his drinking and womanizing. TOWER is a very intelligent and capable individual; his suitability for the position of Secretary of Defense all boils down to the question of whether of not he still has a drinking problem.

Senate panel: No on Tower

By Kathy Kiely
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense-designate John Tower's nomination is headed to the Senate floor heavily freighted with charges that he drinks too much.

In a dramatic late-night meeting Thursday that followed two days of closed-door sessions, the Senate Armed Services Committee voted 11-9 along straight party lines, to advise their colleagues not to consent to President Bush's choice of the former Texas senator to head the Pentagon.

In Tokyo, where he was attending the funeral of the late Emperor Hirohito, Bush said he was sticking by Tower and expected him to be confirmed by the full Senate.

If Tower is rejected, it would be only the ninth time in history that a Cabinet nominee was turned down.

Tower, in a statement, said he was "obviously disappointed with the outcome of the Senate Armed Services Committee vote."

But the statement said Tower will continue to work at the Pentagon "and await the vote of full Senate on his confirmation."

The atmosphere was solemn and sometimes bitter as the committee — which Tower himself once headed — conducted an extraordinary public examination of the private life of a man many of them know.

Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., cited "a clear pattern of excessive drinking and alcohol abuse" as the chief reason he would vote against Tower. A long line of Democrats followed suit.

Republican committee members delivered a series of glowing testimonials to Tower's character, saying that none of them had ever seen him incapacitated by alcohol. They charged that Tower is being "ruined" on the basis of unsubstantiated rumors.

"It is not fair. It is wrong. It is dangerous," protested Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif.

Initially, at least, it appeared that both Tower and the Bush administration were prepared to take their fight to the Senate floor.

White House lobbyist Frederick McClure said he spoke to Bush in Tokyo, and the president indicated he was ready to go to the mat for Tower.

"He said, 'Hang in there, I'll be home Monday,' " McClure reported. McClure said he also spoke to Tower just before the Armed Services Committee convened and that the nominee's mood was good.

When asked if he thought Tower would withdraw his name, McClure, who used to work for the former senator, said: "I doubt it."

But Tower's strongest Capitol Hill supporters are far from sanguine about his chances for winning approval in the full Senate, where Democrats hold a 55-45 majority.

"It's going to be a tough, uphill battle," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. The committee's negative vote on Tower capped a lengthy — and, for many of the senators — agonizing investigation into the life of a man who belonged for 24 years to the same exclusive club they do.

Nunn called it "painful" for Tower and his family and added: "Certainly it's been difficult for members, many of whom have known him as a colleague and as a friend."

The committee's ranking Republican, John Warner, of Virginia, said more than 400 people were interviewed in the FBI's investigation of Tower. According to Wilson, those interviews included several with waiters at two Washington restaurants that Tower has been known to frequent.

Though Democrats acknowledged the FBI report contains, in the words of Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., "no smoking gun," all — with the exception of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who cited concerns about Tower's relationship with defense contractors — indicated they believe there is considerable evidence of a drinking problem.

Committee members said White House officials and Tower himself have acknowledged there were episodes of excessive drinking on the senator's part during the 1970s. Tower, whose friends say he limits his alcohol intake to one or two glasses of wine a day, contends he has no drinking problem now.

"I am a man of some discipline," he told the committee during confirmation hearings.

But the Democratic members found that response inadequate.

"I have searched in vain for a point in time when the nominee acknowledged this problem and dealt with it decisively," Nunn said.

Several senators also questioned the twice-divorced former senator's dating habits. While the committee found no evidence to corroborate reports Tower had liaisons with Soviet bloc women, Nunn said, "There are, however, some examples of conduct which I find indiscreet."

Republicans insisted the Democrats were misinterpreting the FBI data, contending the bureau found no clear evidence of misconduct on Tower's part.

A number of Tower's supporters called for the FBI report, which is scheduled to become available to the full Senate Monday, to be made public. They said the data would help clear Tower's reputation.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said through a spokesman that he wants to read the report before making a decision.

"Are we going to turn this man down on hearsay, innuendo, charges that are unfounded?" asked Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

Warner said he interviewed a large number of senators who served with Tower and all had given him a clean bill of health.

"Not one single U.S. senator — not one — can ever recall a single instance where any one of his personal habits ever interfered with his personal duty."

Several Tower supporters complained he was being asked to meet an almost inhuman standard of conduct.

"This is not a canonization," said Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss. "We're only charged with the responsibility of determining whether this man is capable or incapable of performing as secretary of defense."

But Democrats countered that the defense post is so sensitive it demands a higher standard of conduct.

Several suggested that, given his drinking history, Tower would not qualify to hold a post in the military's Strategic Air Command.

To make his point about the need for an ever vigilant Pentagon chief, Nunn read off a litany of recent national security crises that have occurred in the wee hours of the morning. And Byrd declared: "A person in the position of secretary of defense must possess unfailingly sound judgment, and precise, careful, cogent reasoning powers at all times."

Some Republicans questioned whether the Democrats didn't have an ulterior motive: To eliminate a strong, knowledgeable secretary of defense.

Tower: I have never been an alcoholic

Swears he won't drink 'spirits of any kind' if confirmed as defense chief

REUTER NEWS SERVICE

WASHINGTON — John Tower, in a last-gasp bid to salvage his nomination as defense secretary, Sunday denied he had a drinking problem and pledged to give up all forms of alcohol if confirmed as chief of the Pentagon.

"Let me state that I have never been an alcoholic nor dependent on alcohol," Tower said on ABC News' This Week With David Brinkley.

"However, to allay any fears or doubts on this matter, I hereby swear and undertake that if confirmed, during the course of my tenure as secretary of defense, I will not consume beverage alcohol of any type or form, including wine, beer or spirits of any kind."

Asked about charges that he was a womanizer, Tower replied: "I'm a single man. I do date women. I've been a single man for 3½ years. . . . But womanizing is a broad term. What is your definition of the term?"

Tower's appearance on the ABC show was part of a media blitz by the White House aimed at saving Tower's nomination when the full Senate debates it Wednesday.

Tower up until now has kept a low profile as the Senate Armed Services Committee studied charges of excessive drinking, womanizing and his association with defense contractors.

The committee, led by Georgia Democrat Sam Nunn, voted 11-9 Thursday to reject Tower for the post and recommended the full Senate turn him down.

Tower said his objective "is to try to remove the obstacles to my confirmation" and added he believed the alcohol abuse question appeared to be the principal problem.

Tower read a letter from a Texas doctor who removed a polyp from his colon. The letter said Tower "shows no evidence at all of alcohol impairment or alcoholism."

Tower admitted he had a drinking problem in the 1970s but said the only time he drinks now is wine with dinner and that he has not had hard liquor for 12 years. He said he would resign as defense secretary if he broke his pledge.

He said he had not considered withdrawing his nomination to save Bush the embarrassment of a major political defeat in his young presidency.

"No, I think I'm eminently qualified to be secretary of defense. The president thinks so. And the president is usually entitled to his judgment on these matters," he said.

"I think it'd be more damaging to the president to back away from a controversy like this."

Nunn, whose efforts against Tower until now have focused on charges of excessive drinking, expanded his case against the former Texas senator Sunday. He had no comment on Tower's pledge.

He accused Tower of using insider knowledge gained as an arms control negotiator to his profit as a consultant to major defense contractors.

Nunn said Tower was an ultimate example of the "revolving door" of officials who profit in the private sector from knowledge gained in government.

Tower was the chief arms negotiator for the Reagan administration in 1985 START talks in Geneva. He was paid $750,000 by defense contractors in the years that followed.

"Right after he got through (in Geneva), he immediately went to work for defense contractors. . . . In his words, he provided them information on the implications of our arms controls negotiations on future product development," Nunn told NBC News' Meet The Press.

"If someone knows for instance that the president might be willing to give up the MX (missile), should he go out and engage in a consultant relationship right after receiving that information with the company making the MX and the Midgetman?

"I think that is very questionable. It's a tough line to draw, but I do believe John Tower crossed that line on the revolving door."

NUNN: "Tough line"

Nunn said that even if Tower was not faced with excessive-drinking charges, he would "have to weigh carefully" Tower's nomination because of the appearance of a conflict of interest.

"I reject the charge totally," Tower said in response.

"I used my experience and my knowledge, but I always did it ethically, legally and I never told anybody anything that wasn't already in the public domain except my own evaluation of the information that was already available," he said.

Tower said he had severed all ties with defense contractors and proclaimed: "I am not in the pocket of the defense industry."

White House Chief of Staff John Sununu, traveling with President Bush in Asia, told reporters in Beijing that the administration hoped defecting Democrats would help the White House win the battle for Tower's confirmation.

The Senate is controlled 55-45 by the Democrats over the Republicans. Bush will try to coax a number of the Democrats, including conservative southerners like Howell Heflin of Alabama and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, to his side when he returns today from his Asian trip.

"A lot of Democrats are leaning nicely," Sununu said.

Whether all 45 Republican senators would side with the administration was unclear. Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, a Kansas Republican, was quoted by The Washington Post Sunday as saying if she were in Tower's position she would ask the nomination be withdrawn.

Secretary of State James Baker, on CBS News' Face The Nation program, said there were no plans to withdraw the Tower nomination.

Nunn accused the White House of "selective leaking" of portions of the FBI investigation report of Tower to cast him in a favorable light.

He threatened to reopen committee hearings on the case and subpoena witnesses to get the full story out.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole called Tower's pledge "very, very significant," and urged Democrats and Republicans to meet and reassess the nomination.

"My view is it ought to be a new ball game. We ought to sit down and try to work it out and spare any hard feelings," said Dole, predicting that Tower will be confirmed.

Bush says Tower victim of 'rumor'

By Kathy Kiely
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — With a vote on his nomination tentatively set for this week, Secretary of Defense-designate John Tower won an emphatic vote of confidence Tuesday from President Bush, but the man whose vote really counts remained politely non-committal.

As senators digested what is apparently the last chapter in a long and embarrassing FBI investigation of Tower, Bush — who read portions of the report before it was sent to Capitol Hill late Monday — forcefully defended the former Texas senator as a victim of "innuendo" and "vicious rumor."

"I've seen the report on Sen. Tower and I see nothing in there that would make me, if I were a senator, vote against Sen. Tower," said the president.

Bush also flatly denied that Tower has a drinking problem.

"There is no evidence of any kind of the disease 'alcoholism' — none, none whatsoever," he said.

Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam Nunn seemed less sure.

The influential Georgia Democrat, who has been presiding over Tower's confirmation hearings and who is believed capable of swaying a number of other senators' votes on the nomination, scheduled a closed-door committee meeting for today to discuss the FBI's findings.

Nunn said he expects members to be ready to vote on Tower's nomination Thursday. He would not indicate which way he's decided to go.

"I'll announce my individual position at the appropriate time but I'm not going to try to give any more interim reports on my feelings," he said.

Nunn, who has expressed concern over reports of excessive drinking by Tower, ducked when asked whether the latest FBI investigation alleviated his doubts about the nomination.

"I think you have to look at the whole record and make a determination—and there will be people with differing opinions," he said.

A top White House official rated the chances of winning Nunn's vote at 50-50 — "maybe better."

Concerns about Tower's drinking and potential conflicts of interest arising from his lucrative consulting work for defense contractors appear to be the major questions committee members are wrestling with.

Sen. John Warner, the top-ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee, indicated he had no new concerns about Tower after talking with Kenneth Adelman, the Reagan administration's arms control chief, about Adelman's contention in a newspaper column last week that Tower's "lack of discretion" in Geneva "proved troublesome."

Warner press aide Christa Nass said Warner felt Adelman's concerns were "opinion statements, based on facts the committee already is aware of."

Alleged indiscretions in the Geneva arms control delegation will be the subject of a closed hearing a House Energy and Commerce subcommittee is holding today to receive testimony from State Department security investigator Berne Indahl. But a committee source said allegations under investigation do not directly involve Tower.

The key to the success or failure of the Tower nomination may well lie in the hands of Nunn, at age 50 one of the Senate's most well-respected members.

Though some of Tower's more ardent backers have privately grumbled that Nunn is stringing out the confirmation hearings artificially — possibly because of ulterior political motives, that view does not appear to be shared by the White House. Bush himself praised Nunn's conduct of the hearings at a press conference Tuesday.

"I think he's been fair," the president said.

Added former Democratic National Committee Chairman John White: "He's almost painfully squeaky clean."

Far from believing Nunn is trying to make some political hay with Tower's confirmation hearings, White believes he probably finds the process of trying to judge a former colleague an ordeal. "This has to be a terrible struggle for him," he said.

Georgia Democratic operative Bert Lance, who has known Nunn for years, agreed: "Sam Nunn is not a hidden agenda-type person," he said.

Like Tower, who chaired the Armed Services Committee before him, Nunn is the product of a small town, southern Methodist upbringing. Like Tower, he is a serious student of military matters and tends to be hawkish on defense.

In other ways, however Nunn is very different from the dapper Texas bon vivant.

The former Eagle Scout, who combs his hair over a bald spot and stubbornly clings to his horn-rimmed glasses against the advice of political image-makers, has been known to enjoy an interlude on the golf course (he's a scratch player) or the tennis courts, but eschews the small talk and the social circuit that makes up so big a part of life in the nation's capital.

"He's a very serious person — in the good sense of the word," said Lance.

Tower conduct 'troublesome,' ex-official says

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — New allegations of "troublesome" indiscretions by Defense Secretary-designate John Tower arose Thursday, and the Senate Armed Services Committee chairman raised the possibility that the Senate may hold a rare closed session to grapple with questions about Tower's personal life.

ADELMAN: Questions

Former arms control chief Kenneth Adelman said Tower's personal conduct when he served as a U.S. negotiator in Geneva created problems for the State Department. He said Tower's actions, which he declined to specify, raised questions about his judgment and integrity.

From January 1985 to April 1986, Tower headed the department's delegation that discussed mutual cuts in long-range nuclear missiles with the Soviets.

Tower's private behavior didn't directly affect his conduct of official business at the Geneva talks, Adelman said. Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the armed services panel, has said an investigation of Tower's actions in Geneva found no security breaches.

But Adelman said Tower's conduct should be a factor in the Senate confirmation deliberations because "a defense secretary has no private life." Adelman spoke in an Los Angeles Times interview published Thursday and in a Washington Times column.

Adelman said he was impressed with Tower's performance as a strategic arms negotiator, "Yet his lack of discretion proved troublesome then, as before and since."

Tower has been dogged by allegations of drinking and womanizing, and many senators also have voiced concern whether Tower could avoid conflicts of interest after receiving more than $1 million as a consultant for major defense contractors since he left the Senate four years ago.

Nunn said he hopes his committee can vote on Tower's nomination next week. He said the "delay now is waiting on the FBI to check out an allegation that came from the Justice Department."

Nunn said that if the committee were to vote today, "I think most people on the committee haven't decided because we have not got all the information."

Nunn said that if questions arise from members of the Senate regarding Tower's personal life, the Senate may be forced to meet behind closed doors. Nunn spoke to reporters Wednesday during a visit to Rome, Ga.

Meanwhile, a prominent Republican senator said he doubted that the Senate will confirm Bush's nominee. Sen. David Durenberger, R-Minn., said Tower's past associations with defense contractors would cast a shadow over his decision-making at the Pentagon.

"I think he'd be haunted by that every decision he'd try to make, which doesn't make him a bad defense secretary, because he probably is the kind of tough guy we need," Durenberger said in Minneapolis.

But Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., said he expects Tower to win Senate approval and added: "He's a tough little dog, I tell you, and he's going to get into that Defense Department and he's going to think that his reputation needs a lot of repair, and it does, and I think he's going to do some pretty good work. He's going to shake those folks up and they need to be shaken up in the department.,"

Senator torn between loyalty to Tower, party

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Republicans and Democrats alike lined up in near unison on the Senate floor on June 23, 1967, to take the extraordinary step of censuring one of their own.

On a day that would spell the eventual end of his political career and leave deep scars on his family, Thomas Dodd, the veteran Connecticut Democrat accused of misusing campaign funds, could count his advocates on a single hand. One of the few: a young Republican senator from Texas named John Tower.

Now Dodd's son, who followed in his late father's political footsteps, is faced with a personally agonizing decision: whether to vote with his Democratic colleagues against Tower's nomination or support a man who backed his father even when longtime friends and political allies wouldn't.

The two Senate dramas, separated by 22 years, have become inseparably linked for Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, a potential swing vote on the Tower nomination.

Dodd, who according to aides remains undecided, has said Tower's support of his father will not be the deciding factor in his decision on the nomination. But Tower's actions, which included several last-minute attempts to water down the elder Dodd's punishment, weigh on the mind of the son.

"Of course I haven't forgotten how John Tower voted. What kind of son would I be if I did?" Dodd said.

Dodd spokesman Jason Isaacson called the past Tower connection a "minor consideration." More important to Dodd, according to Isaacson, is deciding for himself about the propriety of Tower's activities as a defense consultant after leaving the Senate.

"He will cast a vote as a United States senator and not simply as Tom Dodd's son," the aide said.

But others familiar with the senator's thinking believe the painful memory of his father's political demise could be a powerful factor.

"He definitely feels his dad got railroaded and feels a loyalty to those" who defended his father, said one Democrat.

It is easy to remember those who were in Tom Dodd's corner in June of 1967 because there were so few.

Voting against censure were Dodd, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La.; fellow Connecticut Democrat Abraham Ribicoff; Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Tower.

Senate votes 53-47 to reject Tower bid

By WILLIAM E. CLAYTON JR. and CRAGG HINES
Houston Chronicle
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Senate Thursday rejected the nomination of John Tower to be defense secretary, ending a bitter fight and handing President Bush a historic defeat.

The 53-47 vote against the former senator from Texas, almost entirely along party lines, was the first rejection of an initial Cabinet choice by a new president in U.S. history.

Only eight previous Cabinet nominees have been turned down, the last being Lewis B. Strauss, nominated as secretary of commerce by President Eisenhower in 1959.

Bush advisers, sifting lists of possible replacement nominees that have circulated for more than a week, said a new candidate would be found quickly.

"We'll come up with a candidate very rapidly," said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, but added it would be "unrealistic" to expect a decision before next week.

Bush, seeking to downplay the importance of his first major loss to the Democratic-controlled Congress, responded to the defeat with studied even-handedness.

"The Senate has made its determination," Bush said. "I respect its role in doing so but disagree with the outcome."

Tower's opponents, citing allegations that he drank excessively, questioned whether he should rank high in the chain of command that could take the nation into nuclear war. Other critics questioned the hundreds of thousands of dollars he earned recently as a consultant to defense contractors shortly after serving as a U.S. arms negotiator.

Tower defended himself vigorously, and one supporter called the Democrats' assault "a political execution."

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas called the rejection of Tower "a partisan hotbed of character assassination ... After we have done what we have done to this good man, maybe we ought to hang our heads," Dole said.

Bush said Tower's "lot in past weeks has been a cruel ordeal. For this I am truly sorry for both him and his family." Bush called Tower to express his regret, Fitzwater said.

Tower had jockeyed for eight years to head the Defense Department and believed Bush's nomination would crown a career of political service that began in 1961 when he was elected to the Senate.

Tower was conciliatory in defeat.

"I depart from this place at peace with myself, knowing that I have given a full measure of devotion to my country," he said at the Pentagon. "No public figure in my memory has been subjected to such a far-reaching and thorough investigation nor had his human foibles bared to such intensive and demeaning public scrutiny.

"It's time for the bitterness, rancor and anger to fade and for those elements of government who have been involved in the confirmation process to unite and be about the people's business."

Fitzwater defended the choice of Tower and the handling of the nomination by the fledgling White House staff and Senate Republican leaders.

"I don't know that we'd change a thing," he said.

Fitzwater said the White House was "not in the list business," but conceded top Bush aides and key members of Congress "have candidates on the tip of their tongue."

New prospects for the job make a long list. Some White House insiders suggested Bush's national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, would figure prominently in the consideration, but others said he did not want to give up the daily access to the president afforded by his current post. Scowcroft said he was not in line for the job.

Others said to be among the major contenders are Norman Augustine, chief executive of Martin Marietta Corp.; former Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala.; and two of Tower's staunchest defenders in the Senate, John Warner, R-Va., and William Cohen, R-Maine.

The vote against Tower, 63, was filled with ironies.

Many of the Democrats who opposed their former colleague had lavished praise on him at his retirement from the Senate in 1985.

Some Republicans who insisted in six days' acerbic debate that a president deserves his Cabinet choices had argued the other side against Democratic President Carter's Cabinet choices in 1977. One of the anti-Carter Republican debaters in the Senate at the time was John Tower.

Only one Republican, Sen. Nancy Kassebaum of Kansas, joined the majority against Tower. Only three Democrats — Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Howell Heflin of Alabama and Christopher Dodd of Connecticut — voted for him.

Vice President Dan Quayle presided over the Senate during the vote, ready to add his vote for Tower if the Senate tied.

Although Thursday's debate was more civil than the bitter exchanges of earlier in the week, several Republicans took last-minute shots at the charges against Tower and the partisan nature of the opposition.

"The Senate, in my judgment, has hit a new low," said Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn.

"What this tells the world is that George Bush, who was elected president of the United States, still has to kowtow to a (Democratic-controlled) Congress," said Sen. Steven Symms, R-Idaho.

"A new standard of morality for public officials seems to be emerging. The public has been barraged with accusations about all aspects of Sen. Tower's private life," said Sen. James M. Jeffords, R-Vt.

Dole's last-ditch effort to change some Democratic minds failed early Thursday. He had proposed the Senate give Tower the job on six months' probation. That would show if he could hold to his pledge, given on national television two weeks ago, not to drink if confirmed as defense secretary, Dole said.

Democrats, however, dismissed the proposal as a desperation move that would create a powerless interim secretary of defense and an undesirable precedent.

After Dole called Tower early Thursday to tell him the idea "is not going to change any votes," the GOP leader withdrew the proposal.

Tower debate takes on more personal tone

By WILLIAM E. CLAYTON JR.
Houston Chronicle Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Debate on John Tower's nomination to be defense secretary took on an intense personal tone Tuesday, with one senator saying he had seen Tower intoxicated and another citing a deeply personal reason to give the nominee the benefit of the doubt.

Senators also quarreled among themselves so personally that a Senate elder had to interrupt and remind them of rules of courtesy.

Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said he had heard pro-Tower senators say too often that nobody in the Senate could claim ever to have seen him drunk.

"I have seen Senator Tower under the influence of alcohol" in the Senate, DeConcini said. "But inebriated to the point he could not operate? The answer is no."

DeConcini could not give details, but his assertion about Tower was the first such charge by a senator in the debate.

> 'I have seen Senator Tower under the influence of alcohol. But inebriated to the point he could not operate? The answer is no.'
> Sen. Dennis DeConcini

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said DeConcini's contention means little because "the critical factor" is whether Tower was impaired in performing his duties.

But Tower took a tougher stance, issuing a statement saying, "I have never been inebriated on the Senate floor."

The flap over Tower's drinking came after President Bush told

White House reporters, "I haven't had one single senator . . . say, 'I have seen him' " drunk.

Bush dismissed the argument of some who say Tower is ineligible to be in the military chain of command because of a history of excessive drinking.

"He (Tower) has said he'd never touch another drop of liquor, and you'll have 25,000 people in the Pentagon making sure that's true," Bush said, calling such checks "a fail-safe guarantee."

The nominee gained an important ally Tuesday when Sen. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut became the second Democrat to rally to his side. Alabama Sen. Howell Heflin announced his support of Tower Monday.

Dodd said he would not have chosen Tower as defense secretary, if the choice had been his.

But he has a big reason to take care to afford Tower fairness, Dodd said: Twenty-two years ago, Tower was one of five senators who voted against censuring Dodd's father, Tom, then a senator, for improperly using campaign funds.

"I owe John Tower the same fairness and careful judgment he used 22 years ago," Dodd said. "I don't owe Senator Tower my vote."

His vote, he said, is based on one main reason. "The proof is simply not there to deny John Tower the nomination."

Earlier in the day, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, drew the anger of Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas by sending investigators to Texas to check out allegations concerning Tower's behavior.

Without giving details, Capitol sources said the allegations related to Tower's drinking and other "personal behavior" during a visit to a club at the Dallas-Fort Worth airport.

"We're aware that there were some government representatives who asked some questions of our Admiral's Club personnel," said American Airlines spokesman Jim Brown in Fort Worth. "They cooperated to the fullest extent. Beyond that, we don't have anything to say at this point."

Nunn said that as chairman of an investigations subcommittee of the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, he has power to send investigators on a broad range of topics, including nominations to the Cabinet.

Dole said Nunn did not consult with Republicans and was trying "to stick the last nail in the coffin" of Tower's reputation.

"When does it stop?" Dole asked. "It's not fair."

Nunn said the FBI had told him the agency had ended its investigation, so he had no choice but to put subcommittee investigators on some new allegations that arose last weekend.

The Senate took a recess from the angry debate to turn to a couple of other matters, but when it got back on the Tower nomination, the level of anger rose markedly.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., stood to chide Dole for having said Hollings had made "vicious personal attacks" on Tower.

"You are attacking me," Hollings said, his face reddening.

Dole said Hollings had called Tower "Mr. Alcohol Abuser."

"That's the record, and you know it," Hollings said.

"That is not the record," Dole replied.

After a series of similar exchanges, Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., a senator since 1959, stood to admonish the senators not to refer to each other as "you." Senate custom and decorum call for senators to refer to one another as "the senator from (the state)."

Byrd's reminder did no good. Before long, senators were using "you" and pointing fingers at each other.

For a while, it was Hollings and Dole. Then it was Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine and Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H.

Sen. Bob Graham, D-Fla., had gained the floor to make a brief statement but had yielded the right to speak to several senators caught up in the quarrel. Finally, bringing some laughter to the tense situation, Graham declined to yield further and said people were yearning to hear his statement.

An Associated Press survey showed 47 Democrats and Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., against or leaning against Tower and 40 Republicans and two Democrats for or leaning for him.

Democrats hold a 55-45 edge in the Senate.

Bush said the fight for Tower was not dictated by some "iron-willed stubbornness" on his part.

"There are a lot of historical precedents behind my desire to have him and, you might say, right to have him, barring any clear reason not to," Bush said. "And, therefore, I will stay with it."

Houston Chronicle Washington Bureau Chief Cragg Hines and Dallas Bureau Chief Steven R. Reed contributed to this report.

Embattled Tower admits breaking marriage vows

By Kathy Kiely
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense-designate John Tower admitted he'd broken his marriage vows, but demonstrated that nothing has broken his spirit as he continued an extraordinary public campaign Wednesday to save his nomination in the face of eroding Senate support.

On the eve of what promises to be a grueling, soul-searching Senate debate on his confirmation, the former Texas senator, under fire for alleged drinking and dating indiscretions, had a packed house applauding and laughing during a speech to the National Press Club that was witty, game and trademark tough.

Among other things, Tower suggested there might be some hypocrisy in his behavior being judged by a body accustomed to counting votes from "senators late in the evening who've had a few drinks."

Obviously prepared to face the music, the embattled nominee ended his talk in time to allow for a full half-hour of questions, some of which were breathtakingly tough.

"You said Sunday you've never broken a pledge in your life. Does this include wedding vows?" came one, drawing audible gasps from the audience. But not from Tower.

"As a matter of fact, I have broken wedding vows," the twice-divorced Tower answered coolly. "I think I am probably not alone in that connection."

Tower's second wife, Lilla Burt Cummings, alleged "marital misconduct" in court papers in the couple's divorce case.

But later Wednesday, Tower aides released a statement clarifying his admission of marital infidelity, and administration sources indicated Tower was referring to his first marriage, not his second.

The statement noted that Tower, in his opening testimony before the Senate Armed Services Committee, repeatedly stated that he had never been unfaithful to his second wife.

Administration sources, who insisted on anonymity, elaborated by disclosing the Senate Armed Services Committee had been told that Tower was divorced from his first wife, Lou, because of an adulterous affair with the woman who became his second wife.

The appearance before the Press Club was billed as a defense policy address, but

TOWER:
Marriage vows admittedly broken

From A-1

Tower included a number of rueful references to his own predicament — including one that involved the Alamo — and a number of jokes at his own expense.

There wasn't much for Tower to smile about in the news from Capitol Hill, however.

Two of the Democratic senators whom President Bush had lobbied the day before, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell of Maine and David Boren of Oklahoma, announced they intend to vote against Tower.

According to a poll taken by The Associated Press, there are now 42 senators either for or leaning in favor of Tower and 39 against or leaning against him. The rest say they're uncommitted.

Republican Senate leaders announced that, while debate on Tower will begin today, they will hold off a vote on his confirmation until next week. One administration official acknowledged the plan is "a gamble" on the possibility that public support might begin to build for the president's nominee over the weekend.

The strategy seemed to be to paint Tower as a victim of gossipmongers.

"This is a tough town. A lot of rumors out there," Bush told an audience of businessmen at the White House. "Public service is not made any easier by claims that cannot be substantiated, it's made tougher." Arguing that the Senate's "advice and consent" role on Cabinet nominations gives greater weight to the president's decision in cases of "reasonable doubt," Bush appealed to senators to trust his judgment of his Pentagon nominee.

"I've known this man since 1959 and my support is unequivocal and John Tower is, in my view, the best man for this job," Bush said. "And so my pitch, my appeal to the senators has been, 'Look, do what you've got to do but remember fair play, remember decency and honor . . . "

Tower, meanwhile, told his audience he has no intention of backing down in the face of the Senate floor fight.

Noting that "tomorrow is Texas Independence Day," he quoted from the famous letter of William Barret Travis, commander of the Alamo: "I shall never surrender or retreat."

After a moment's pause, Tower stepped back to the podium. "Wait a minute," he said, beginning to grin. "I'm a little sorry I brought up the Alamo analogy because it just occurred to me what happened at the Alamo 10 days after Travis wrote that letter."

Tower appeared at the Press Club to deliver a speech on matters of defense policy, or, as he put it, "questions that normally occupy the mind of a nominee for secretary of defense." But he was well aware that wasn't what most of his listeners were there for.

"It's a great inspiration to me to see so many people, particularly people in the mass media, with such a profound and deep-seated interest in defense management," Tower joked, as giggles rippled through the room.

Tower, who at the outset of the week took a public pledge to abstain from alcohol while in office in an effort to allay concerns caused by his admitted episodes of heavy drinking during the 1970s, also showed he is prepared to use knowledge gathered from 24 years in the Senate to give as good as he's getting.

"I accept that the secretary of defense must adhere to a higher standard that members of the United States Senate, but my question is, how much lower an acceptable standard is there for members of the Senate," Tower asked, adding:

"Is it an acceptable standard for senators late in the evening who've had a few drinks in the hideaways and offices of the Capitol, a few steps away from the Senate chamber, to come onto the floor late in the evening and vote on vital issues of nuclear deterrence?"

There were indications that Tower's gutsy performance at the Press Club — and the favorable publicity his supporters hoped it would generate — may have been one of the reasons Republican Senate leaders decided to put off the debate on his nomination until today.

"Today is the day to let John Tower go to the American people," Sen. John Warner, R-Va., said.

Republican strategists insisted they were still hopeful of picking up votes for Tower among the Democrats — who hold a 55-45 edge in the Senate. They said they were not dismayed by the announcements of Boren and Mitchell. Vice President Dan Quayle said Mitchell's decision to vote against Tower was "not a surprise."

Conservatives fail to rally for Tower

By CRAGG HINES
Houston Chronicle Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Although President Bush appealed for conservative help in the fight to win Senate confirmation for John Tower as defense secretary, only one activist launched a formal campaign of support for the beleaguered nomination.

Brent Bozell, head of the Conservative Victory Committee, committed $100,000 for a last-minute series of full-page newspaper advertisements and television hookups that beamed interviews with one of Tower's daughters to several states.

Bozell said Wednesday that the lack of united conservative action is "certainly not a function of lukewarm support for Tower," but other activists suggested some conservative leaders still had reservations about the former senator from Texas.

The doubts were said to stem from Tower's longstanding opposition to the anti-abortion movement, what some see as his unenthusiastic support for the space-based missile defense system, or "Star Wars," and questions about his lifestyle raised in the confirmation battle.

One key conservative, Paul Weyrich, testified against Tower before the Senate Armed Services Committee, saying he had seen Tower drunk in public and criticizing his lifestyle.

Bozell said that most conservatives now see Bush rather than Tower as the focus of the fight. He said most of the contributions his group has raised for the advertisements came from strong supporters of the president, some of whom "don't give a hoot one way or the other about John Tower."

Bush sought conservatives' help in the Tower fight during a meeting last week at the White House. One conservative described Bush's appeal as the president's "first assignment" to the movement since taking office in January.

By the time of the meeting, Bozell said, "the obituary was written . . . on John Tower and maybe some (conservative leaders) thought the battle couldn't be won. Maybe it still can't be."

The time was so short that some of the advertisements sponsored by the Committee for Fairness and Decency, an offshoot of the Conservative Victory Committee, are running too late.

An ad in today's Chronicle was designed to get Texans to seek the support of Democratic Sen. Lloyd Bentsen for his former colleague Tower. Bentsen announced Wednesday he would vote to confirm Tower.

Similarly, the committee placed ads in Louisiana newspapers today in hopes of winning the backing of Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, but the Democrat said Wednesday he would vote against Tower.

Bush moving fast to find 2nd choice

By Kathy Lewis
POST WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — President Bush — who Thursday night faced the chore of finding a new nominee to become secretary of defense — is expected to move quickly in coming up with a second choice.

Bush will review possible nominees with his staff and others today, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

There was considerable speculation by defense and political experts about who Bush will turn to after having suffered a defeat over his first choice — former Texas Sen. John Tower.

While several said the Senate would probably be ready for a quick approval of the next nominee in order to distance itself from the Tower bloodbath, others said it really depends on whom the president picks.

Though many have said the natural alternative would be Bush's National Security Adviser, Brent Scowcroft, there seemed to be a growing consensus among experts outside the White House that Scowcroft is in the right job now.

The Associated Press also reported Scowcroft has said he is not in line to be defense secretary.

Among the other names that have surfaced:

☐ Jack Edwards, former Republican representative from Alabama who served in Congress with Bush. Edwards, once ranking Republican on the appropriations defense subcommittee, is viewed as an expert on defense budgets. He also served on the commission that recommended military base closings to President Reagan last year.

In filling top spots in his administration Bush often has turned to those he's worked closely with or knows well and Edwards qualifies on that count.

☐ Norman Augustine, chief executive officer of Martin-Marietta Corp. and a former underecretary of the Army. He is credited with both management skills and defense expertise. He reportedly turned down a Bush offer to take the No. 2 job at the Pentagon. Some, however, believe this is not the right time to submit a candidate who comes from the defense industry.

NOMINEE: Bush expected to move quickly on 2nd choice

☐ Drew Lewis, president of Union Pacific Corp. and fomer secretary of transportation. He's viewed as a good manager and often has been given government and corporate trouble-shooting assignments. He's best known for having broken the air traffic controllers' union during the strike in the early days of the Reagan administration.

☐ Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H. Both are respected senators who could be an asset in the confirmation proceedings.

But some of the names mentioned most often do not make political sense, according to several political experts.

One is Donald Rumsfeld, a corporate executive and former Illinois congressman who was President Ford's White House chief of staff and defense secretary, but he is anything but close to Bush.

Rumsfeld attempted to run against Bush in the 1988 presidential contest and subsequently supported Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, and many Bush loyalists believe he was instrumental in making Bush CIA director in 1975 so he would be sidelined from politics and not considered as President Ford's running mate in 1976.

Some also have suggested James Schlesinger, but the objections of former President Ford, Texas Gov. Bill Clements and other Texans torpedoed a plan to make him Bush's secretary of energy.

Those who opposed him solely for his energy record likely would stand aside, but Clements and Ford presumably would not. Many believe Bush — who responded to their objections once — would not turn around and tap Schlesinger for the defense post.

Schlesinger, a veteran of the Ford, Nixon and Carter administrations, is a former defense secretary, CIA director and energy secretary.

Sen. John Warner's name occasionally has come up, but if Warner — a Republican — were to resign his Virginia senate seat it would undoubtedly go to a Democrat. Warner is a former secretary of the Navy.

Also on various lists are Bobby Inman, of Westmark Systems and formerly a deputy director of the CIA; Paul O' Neill, chairman and chief executive officer of Alcoa and the Ford administration's budget director; Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's National Security Adviser who backed Bush in the 1988 presidential campaign; and Donald Rice, who runs the RAND Corp.

Bush is not exactly having to start over as substantial consideration was given to filling out a Pentagon team during the transition and because Bush has had some time to ponder the possibility of a Tower defeat.

Helmut Sonnenfeldt, a veteran of State Department and the National Security Council, said Scowcroft's name was the one "exciting people," but he thinks it's not a good idea.

"I personally am not all that enthusiastic about moving Scowcroft to defense, not because I don't think he is qualified or would do a good job," he said.

Sonnenfeldt, who is with the Brookings Instititution, said he doesn't want to see the NSC disrupted.

Stuart Eizenstat, a former Carter advisor, said Scowcroft is more beneficial where he is because the subject matter is broader than defense.

Everyone here agrees the important thing is for Bush to name someone who can be confirmed quickly by the Senate.

However, there are conflicting views on who would be a sure thing and on whether the Senate will now bend over backwards to confirm a nominee with dispatch.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, predicted the Democratic majority will be "so anxious to cover its tracks" that it "would confirm Jack the Ripper if that's who the president sent up next."

But Sonnenfeldt suggested even Scowcroft might not be confirmed swiftly as many have suggested.

"I don't know how much of a complication he would face because he, too, has had a business life," Sonnenfeldt said of Scowcroft's former business ties to Kissinger and Assoc.

Lawrence Eagleburger, the nominee to be deputy secretary of state and another Kissinger and Assoc. man, is the next candidate expected to get a grilling over the revolving door practice of leaving government to do lucrative consulting work.

"It's already causing him some heartburn," Sonnenfeldt said.

Frank Carlucci, who was Reagan's second secretary of defense, said it's now impossible to predict who might pose a confirmation problem or how the Senate will react to a new nominee.

"Who knows in this day and age who's going to become controversial? I feel guilty now every time I take a glass of wine," he joked. "This debate has changed the nature of the ballgame."

Carlucci, however, had no trouble defining what a defense secretary ought to be.

"You've got to be a budgeteer. You've got to have some operational knowledge though you can depend a lot on the military, but when an airplane gets shot down in the Persian Gulf you had better damn well know what's going on."

He said the secretary also has to be a procurement expert of sorts and these days has to be a player in foreign policy as well.

"And finally, you have to hopefully be a strategic thinker," he said.

Democrats all but kill Tower nomination

Dole's last-ditch proposal: Put nominee on probation

By WILLIAM E. CLAYTON JR.
Houston Chronicle Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Senate Democrats all but killed John Tower's nomination to be defense secretary Wednesday. But Republican leader Bob Dole made one last desperate proposal: Put the nominee on six months probation to prove he will not drink.

Senators are expected to vote on Dole's suggestion and settle the nomination today.

A quiet speech by freshman Sen. Charles Robb, D-Va., delivered to a nearly empty Senate before debate ended for the night, made it virtually impossible for the nomination to survive. Concerns over Tower's drinking and possible conflicts of interest forced him to go against Tower, Robb said.

With that declaration it appeared there were 52 Democrats against Tower and possibly one or two Republicans. Forty-three Republicans were expected to vote for Tower, with three Democrats joining them: Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who declared his support for the nominee Wednesday, Howell Heflin of Alabama, and Chris Dodd of Connecticut.

Democrats hold a 55-45 majority.

"It takes a miracle at this point for John Tower to be confirmed," said Dole, R-Kan. "The (Democratic) majority has the votes."

Democratic leaders promised to give overnight thought to Dole's probation proposal, but their initial reaction was negative.

As Dole outlined it — and he said Tower had approved the idea — the Senate would confirm the nomination and Tower would immediately hand President Bush a resignation letter dated Oct. 1 that the president would tear up at that time if Tower had refrained from drinking.

"I make that suggestion in the spirit of decency and fairness," Dole said. "It addresses the primary concern (of senators opposed to Tower). Primarily, it gets back to drinking."

Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine said Dole underestimated the concerns of senators about possible conflict of interest from Tower's defense consulting experience.

Dole said if Tower did not work out in six months, the Senate could approve another nominee then.

While saying he would consider the idea, Mitchell said the debate has been so rancorous that "the only thing worse than having to go through this once would be to go through it twice."

"This is a desperation move," Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., said of Dole's suggestion. "I think we ought to vote (on the nomination) and get on with other business. We ought not to have some hazy, never-never land out there and leave this thing hanging for six months."

Dole's unusual proposal came near the end of a day in which the Democrats maneuvered to force an end to the nearly weeklong debate.

At noon, the remaining few undecided Democrats began to fall into place.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., announced against Tower, calling him "unquestionably competent and highly experienced" but saying Tower's ties to the defense industry from his consulting work "clearly compromise his position."

Three hours later, Bentsen rose to say that "the question of alcoholism is particularly troublesome" but "I believe him when he says he will not touch a drop."

Tower deserves to be defense secretary, his former Senate colleague said, because of "his knowledge of defense issues, his experience, his unquestioned patriotism."

Bentsen recalled that he and Tower served together in the Senate for 14 years and that he had introduced Tower with warm praise at the Senate Armed Services Committee hearings on his nomination.

"The president deserves the benefit of a doubt on close calls when choosing his Cabinet," Bentsen said. "I found most of the allegations about John Tower's personal life without enough basis to deny a president his choice.

"I found myself constantly comparing the John Tower of the FBI report with the John Tower I had known in our years working on Texas projects together in the Senate. They weren't the same man.

"I also found myself reassured by Sen. Tower's pledge of abstinence. I believe he means it," Bentsen said.

Tower promised in a television appearance nearly two weeks ago that he would abstain from drinking if confirmed.

Tower will be so closely watched, he could hardly break the pledge, Bentsen said: "I doubt that John Tower could put an olive in a glass of milk and be unobserved."

He added, "In the passion of debate, pundits writing in the isolation of their own offices can forget that public figures have feelings. We have seen every imperfection in an essentially good man dragged into the pitiless glare of television lights while his daughters sat listening."

Two of Tower's daughters, Jeanne and Marian, hurried out from the Senate's public gallery, to give the Texas senator a hug.

Their joy was short-lived, because the remaining Democrats who had been considered undecided announced their stands against Tower.

"There seems to be a personality change that occurs in Sen. Tower when he abuses alcohol — a recklessness, in a social sense," said Sen. J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana. "Some in the use of alcohol do suffer from a change in conduct, a loss of judgment, a recklessness, and it is unmistakably there from this evidence. I would like to say it is not, but it is there . . . social abuse of people, abusive language — that sort of thing."

The evidence showed "an alcohol abuse problem which alters, in his case, judgment, key judgment in critical times. Now, there is no doubt there exists a problem now. It has been admitted by Sen. Tower himself," Johnston said.

With only two senators on the floor to hear it, Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., gave his first major speech to the Senate, another "no" on the Tower nomination.

"Sen. Tower's passage through the revolving door from Senate and arms control negotiator to consultant to the defense industries leaves me with too much doubt about his judgment," Lieberman said.

FBI memorandum reveals massive probe of Tower

Report details global search for skeletons in closet

By Bob Drummond
DALLAS TIMES HERALD

WASHINGTON — Trying in vain earlier this month to fight off damaging charges of womanizing and alcohol abuse, a besieged John Tower likened his almost hopeless plight to become defense secretary to the battle for the Alamo.

But the odds facing the Alamo heroes, who were outnumbered more than 20-1, seem almost small in comparison to hundreds of witnesses and dozens of federal agents arrayed against the former Texas senator, according to an FBI summary outlining the controversial investigation that sunk Tower's hopes of leading the Pentagon.

The internal FBI memorandum, released by one of Tower's most vocal critics, South Carolina's Democratic Sen. Ernest "Fritz" Hollings, shows the bureau's massive probe of Tower touched all 58 field offices in the FBI organization, lasted more than four times as long as the normal background check of a Cabinet nominee and involved interviews with almost 15 times as many witnesses as usual.

After examining charges citing excessive drinking and other improprieties by Tower, the FBI "did confirm a prior pattern of alcohol abuse, as well as the senator's continuing sporadic use of alcohol," according to the document.

During the unprecedented public debate about his drinking practices, Tower acknowledged he drank heavily during the 1970s but vigorously rejected characterizations of his habits as alcohol abuse. The bureau memorandum does appear to confirm Tower's insistence that he stopped heavy drinking recently, saying agents found "indications that he had greatly reduced his consumption levels during 1983-1989."

After looking through the dozens of charges, the memo concludes that "the FBI investigation did not disclose any illegal activity on the part of Senator Tower."

The six-page summary, prepared for FBI Director William Sessions by the head of the Special Inquiry Unit charged with carrying out government background checks, does not contain further details regarding the bureau's findings about charges of drinking, inappropriate behavior toward women and ties with defense contractors.

But it offers a detailed look at the unprecedented extent of the FBI's efforts to search for skeletons in the closet of Tower, whose nomination as defense secretary was rejected by the Senate last week.

Then-Vice President Bush's transition office set the process in motion Dec. 2, 1988, when it forwarded information about the Tower case to the FBI, along with a request that the bureau check now-discounted rumors about an alleged affair between Tower and a possible foreign agent while the Texan was an arms control negotiator in Geneva.

From that time, agents spent 89 days digging into Tower's past before sending the White House their ninth and final report about the probe on Feb. 28. The average background check for a Bush Cabinet nominee, according to the memo, has taken between 20 and 22 days.

TOWER: Investigated

In contrast, after Bush named Wyoming's Republican Rep. Dick Cheney to be Tower's successor as Pentagon nominee, the FBI finished its investigation quickly enough for Cheney to be confirmed Friday by the full Senate, only a week after his nomination.

The ever-expanding scope of the Tower probe, the memo said, was forced by new charges against Tower that began pouring in to the FBI almost immediately.

"Almost immediately upon initiation, the FBI began to receive allegations concerning (1) alcohol abuse, (2) sexual misconduct, (3) conflict of interest with defense contractors, (4) improper campaign funding activities and (5) Tower's involvement in the 'Ill Wind' investigation" of Pentagon purchasing fraud, according to the memo. "Tower's nomination became a front-page media event resulting in numerous allegations being received by both the FBI and the Senate Armed Services Committee ... on almost a daily basis."

Although the average investigation of a Cabinet nominee involves interviews with [illegible] people, the sheer volume of charges involved in the Tower probe to talk to nearly 500 individuals. The [illegible] low-up interviews.

During the probe, all 58 FBI field offices were asked to search their files for information, and agents from 38 field offices were detailed to join in the questioning of witnesses. Besides the large-scale domestic probe, centered on the Dallas and Houston field offices, investigations also were conducted in seven foreign countries by bureau agents and State Department employees. Altogether, the memo said, the FBI sorted through 69 charges of impropriety, involving 21 different issues cited by sources alleging misconduct.

Boiled down into a series of summaries submitted to the White House, the results of the probe still filled 508 pages, the memo said.

There have been only two or three instances where there was an opportunity to meet Senator John Tower. The first occasion was in Jan-Feb '82. At this event, the Senator was made honorary Chief Petty Officer of the Navy in Corpus Christi. This was an event inspired by the Senator's past service in the Navy as an enlisted man.

The Senator was generally known [redacted] on a social acquaintance basis and professional basis and at no time was the senator observed to be handling himself in a manner less than fitting of his position for an individual of his stature.

The officers club had a second floor which contained a VIP Suite. The suite was described as discreet and available to visiting dignitaries. telephonically contacted the Jacksonville Office of the FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION and provided the following information:

is a retired naval officer having served over 20 years. From he was stationed at the Naval Base at Corpus Christi, Texas. He resided in base housing at the installation. While there, he frequented the OFFICER'S CLUB on an almost nightly basis for dinner. He could not recall the specific address of the club, but described it as being a corner lot close to the ocean. He described the OFFICER'S CLUB as physically being a two-story building with the club on the first floor and an area referred to as "The Penthouse" on the second floor. "The Penthouse" was an area used to house visiting dignitaries and VIP visitors to the base. While he was a patron at the OFFICER'S CLUB, it came to his attention that "high class prostitutes" were available to the visiting dignitaries and VIPs on the second floor of the OFFICER'S CLUB. The doorway leading to this upstairs area is usually padlocked and the OFFICER'S CLUB manager has the key. Only the knew about the prostitutes, as well as the club assistant manager/bookkeeper (name unrecalled), which described as an older white/female with blonde hair who has been employed there for at least 20 years. To knowledge, she was still working there as of six months ago.

During his frequent visits to the OFFICER'S CLUB, met JOHN TOWER who was then a Senator for the State of Texas. TOWER was a frequent visitor of the base from 1980 through 1986, being there approximately one weekend a month. TOWER always stayed in the upstairs area referred to as "The Penthouse" while he visited there. has no firsthand knowledge of any activity TOWER might have had while staying there with any prostitutes. described TOWER as a very personable individual whom shared drinks with. bears no animosity towards TOWER, but is very concerned with the capacity which TOWER is being considered, specifically, the Secretary of Defense.

was recontacted. After being readvised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the nature of the interview, he provided the following information:

is a retired stationed in Corpus Christi, Texas from He retired at that time and moved off base staying in Corpus Christi until From 1980-1983, was at the OFFICER'S CLUB quite frequently in the evenings during the week and almost every weekend night. After 1983, he was there only one weekend evening a month on average.

He reaffirmed the fact that Senator JOHN TOWER would visit the base on the average of one weekend a month and stay in the second floor area of the OFFICER'S CLUB referred to as "The Penthouse". "High class prostitutes" were available there, but has no personal knowledge of TOWER'S activities regarding this. Also, could not recall any manager's or assistant manager's name, specifically the assistant manager described as an older white/female with blonde hair who had been employed there for perhaps 20 years.

In regards to TOWER'S use of alcohol, made the following observations. He observed TOWER get "drunk a lot" in the company of unknown individuals whom assumed to be staff members of TOWER. described TOWER as a "friendly drunk" who was not a "lone drinker". TOWER would drink to the point of staggering when he walked, but never became loud, belligerent or violent. He never became argumentive and was also congenial "just like a politician". never observed TOWER drink until he passed out, nor does he have any knowledge of TOWER drinking in his room on the second floor.

is a retired USNAVY [redacted] of the US ARMY now residing at [redacted]. After being advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and the nature of the interview, he provided the following information:

As [redacted] of NAS Corpus Christi from [redacted] there were only two or three occasions that can be recalled where Senator John Tower was met. One was when the "Nave Sahe" "Corpus Christi" submarine was visiting the base and [redacted] was on honorary ceremony where the Senator was promoted to Master Chief in the Naval Reserves. He may have given a talk at the [redacted] club at one time. On these occasions, the contact was of a professional nature and there is no knowledge of the senator on a social level.

There is no recollection of the Senator ever having visited the Officers club. Had he ever been there, it would have been known. On these few occasions that he came to the base, it was not without a great deal of planning and preparation.

The Senator was always highly thought of and had good reputation at the base. At no time did knowledge of alcohol consumption by the senator become an issue, nor is there any personal knowledge that he ever consumed alcoholic beverages while there.

Based on this limited knowledge of the Senator, there were no reasons to question his use of alcohol or personal integrity. Considering these few contacts, there are no basis for questioning the Senator use of alcohol or personal integrity

JOHN GOODWIN TOWER, SPIN (A);
BUDED: 12/9/88 (without fail).

Bureau has been requested to conduct expedite investigation of Tower for an unspecified Presidential appointment, which requires Senate confirmation.

Because of potential controversy, and the prominence of the position for which he is being considered, we are disregarding the BI previously conducted by the Department of State in 1985. We are conducting an all encompassing full field investigation. We will not reinvestigate those areas fully explored during the 1987 FBI investigation, which covered the period 2/85 - 9/87.

Appointee is described as born on 9/29/25, in Houston, Texas, and has SSAN 451-46-9866; and resides at 3525 Turtle Creek Blvd, #21-B, Dallas, Texas, 75219 and at the Jefferson Hotel in Washington, D. C.

Appointee will be required to make decisions concerning policy and personnel matters; therefore, during interviews, determine if appointee has expressed or manifested any bias or prejudice against any individual or group based upon sex, race, color, religion, national origin, handicap or age. Determine if appointee lives within his financial means. Also determine if appointee uses illegal drugs or abuses alcohol. All offices should be cognizant of allegations appearing in public source documents of Senator Towers alleged sexual indiscretions, excessive alcohol consumption, potential conflicts of interest, and questionable spending of campaign contributions or knowledge of illegal contributions.

Receiving offices note that all periods of appointee's life including periods of unemployment, must be accounted for and if during the course of investigation unexplained or unaccounted for gaps are identified, then leads should be directed to the field office covering appointee's current employment to have appointee contacted and to have his activities during specific periods identified.

As this is a Presidential appointment, field offices are expected to meet deadline (WITHOUT FAIL).

LEADS:

Cincinnati at Cincinnati: Check DISCO

Dallas: Check major newspaper morgues regarding appointee. Verify Tower's first divorce, to include plaintiff, defendant, grounds, and review for any notoriety. [redacted] furnished the following information:

During the period of 1983 through the end of 1987 certain funds were dispersed from the TOWER SENATE CLUB (TSC) account to the JOHN G. TOWER SPECIAL, which was a revolving account to cover the various expenses.

She advised that when the Senator or other members of his staff incurred expenses which were either paid for at the time or were billed to the office, and these expenses appeared to be within the realm of expenses from which the funds from the TSC could be used to pay, a request was noted on that particular expense by the Senator or whoever incurred it.

[redacted] with thereafter issue a check from the TSC to the JOHN G. TOWER SPECIAL.

She stated that if the Senator [redacted] felt that the expense was not legitimate, any of them could veto the expenditure. If this happened, the TSC was reimbursed by the JOHN G. TOWER SPECIAL account. She noted that Senator TOWER had the authority to sign checks on the JOHN G. TOWER SPECIAL account, however he did not have any of the checks. She stated that, due to the above, she is unable to recall any occasion when Senator TOWER wrote a check on the account.

She also noted [redacted] a file, [redacted] in which the receipts for the expenses incurred during that year through the JOHN G. TOWER SPECIAL are contained. She stated that bills or receipts for the years 1983 - 1984 are still in the possession of [redacted]

She noted that examples of the expenses would be airplane tickets used on official business and such.

She stated JOHN TOWER does not have an interest in the "Wichita Pot," and she does not know anything about TOWER receiving ownership of CUMMINGS share in the "Wichita Pot" as all paperwork still has CUMMINGS' name as a percentage owner. TOWER's involvement was being a friend with whom CUMMINGS invested her money and without TOWER's friendship CUMMINGS would not have had the opportunity to invest. She does not believe [redacted] induced anyone to invest in an oil deal. She does not know if TOWER encouraged CUMMINGS to invest or not. She added the "Wichita Pot" oil deal no longer exists and the other investor's names would have to be obtained through the division order maintained by the operator.

She would recommend TOWER for Secretary of Defense and described TOWER as an individual of excellent character, reputation, and integrity, indicated TOWER to associate only with reputable individuals, and indicate she has no reason to question TOWER's loyalty to his country. She feels TOWER has the ability to successfully perform the duties of Secretary of Defense because of his experience obtained from serving in the U. S. Senate. She has no knowledge of drug use or alcohol abuse on the part of TOWER or any knowledge that TOWER has any difficulty living within his financial means.

Reagan aides, in 1980, held hostage talks

Advisers met figure claiming to represent Iran, but deny making deals

By ALFONSO CHARDY
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — A month before Ronald Reagan trounced Jimmy Carter in the 1980 presidential election, two high-ranking Reagan campaign aides conferred secretly with a man who said he represented the Iranian government and offered to release to Reagan the 52 American hostages held in Tehran.

The two aides, Richard Allen and Laurence Silberman, said Robert McFarlane, then a Senate aide and Reagan supporter, arranged and attended the meeting at a Washington hotel. Allen and Silberman, then top foreign policy advisers to Reagan, said the objective of the offer from the purported Iranian envoy was to ensure Carter's defeat.

Allen and Silberman said in separate telephone interviews last week that they considered the offer absurd and rejected it, telling the emissary that he had to deal with Carter as the sitting president.

McFarlane declined to be interviewed, but in a written response to questions he said: "An individual claiming to be Iranian approached me and was referred to the Reagan campaign staff. He was judged to be a fraud and dismissed."

But Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, Iranian president at the time, said he learned after the hostage release that two of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's closest advisers had been involved in negotiations with the Reagan camp. The negotiations were to delay release of the hostages until after Reagan became president, he said in a series of telephone interviews from exile in France.

The former president identified the two as Hashemi Rafsanjani and Mohammed Beheshti.

He said neither man denied the information when he asked them about it. "They laughed," he said. "They didn't say no."

Rafsanjani, then Iran's interior minister and now speaker of the Iranian Parliament, has been linked to the Iran-contra scandal as one of the "moderate elements" the Reagan administration sought to contact.

Rafsanjani was the first Iranian official to confirm publicly last November that the Reagan administration had sold weapons to Iran in 1986.

Beheshti was killed in a bomb explosion in Tehran in 1981.

Bani-Sadr said that ultimately Rafsanjani and Beheshti coordinated the release of the hostages with Reagan aides in Washington to coincide precisely with Reagan's inauguration Jan. 20, 1981.

In addition, Bani-Sadr said that several months after the hostages were freed he received a military report saying that after taking office, the Reagan administration had given assurances to Tehran that Iran would receive U.S. military equipment. Bani-Sadr said the assurances were not linked to the release of the hostages.

It has been widely reported since the November disclosure of the Iran arms affair that Israel began shipping American-made weapons to Iran within a month of Reagan's January 1981 inauguration.

Played major role

McFarlane, who was President Reagan's national security adviser

THE KEY PLAYERS

Robert McFarlane

In 1980, assistant to Sen. John Tower, chairman of Armed Services Committee. In 1981, became aide to Secretary of State George Shultz. In 1983, became Reagan's national security adviser, remaining until early 1986. Last May, headed a secret mission to Tehran, accompanying some of the weapons United States had sold to Iran.

Richard Allen

Chief foreign policy adviser to Ronald Reagan's 1980 election campaign. Reagan's first national security adviser until he resigned from National Security Council over a minor scandal involving influence-peddling.

Laurence Silberman

Former ambassador to Yugoslavia. Served Reagan 1980 election campaign as co-chairman, with Richard Allen, of the candidate's foreign policy group. After Reagan's election, became assistant to special Middle East envoy Donald Rumsfeld. Currently is judge on U.S. Court of Appeals.

Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani

Widely regarded as second most powerful man in Iran after Khomeini. Interior minister early in the Khomeini regime. Later, speaker of Iranian parliament. First Iranian official to publicly confirm, in November, that Reagan administration had sold weapons to Iran.

Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti

Was member of ruling revolutionary council early in the Khomeini regime. Also secretary general of the Islamic Republican Party and, later, chief justice of Iranian supreme court. Killed in 1981 in explosion at Tehran offices of his party.

an, Egyptian, Tunisian or Moroccan.

"He might have been North African instead of Iranian," Silberman said. Neither he nor Allen could recall the man's name.

In his written responses, McFarlane said he had "no idea" who the man was.

Said Silberman: "All I can remember was that there was discussion about somehow releasing the hostages to the Reagan campaign or under the auspices of the Reagan campaign . . . to humiliate Carter and influence our [Reagan's] election.

"I said to him, 'We have one president at a time,' thus indicating that he should deal with Carter, not us."

Allen said the meeting "was ridiculous and went directly against the grain of what the Reagan campaign stood for or the best interests of the hostages. It an Parliament approved the four points, thus raising the possibility of a hostage release before the polls opened.

"However," Carter wrote, "as the hours passed, no other news came out of Iran."

The hostages were not released and Reagan won the election by a landslide.

Bani-Sadr said last week from France that as negotiations with the lame-duck Carter administration to release the hostages resumed following the election, he anticipated their freedom before Reagan took office.

However, he said that he was not in full control of the negotiations and that they were supervised directly by Khomeini through Rafsanjani and Beheshti.

Hostage freedom

On Jan. 20, 1981, as Reagan finished his inaugural address, the hostages were freed as part of a complex agreement that was not completed until the early hours of Jan. 19. A last-minute snag in the transfer of frozen Iranian financial assets was given as the reason for the delay.

However, Mansur Rafizadeh, a former top official of the late shah of Iran's Savak security police, said in his recently published book Witness that after the Nov. 4, 1980, election, the CIA persuaded the Khomeini government through its foreign minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh not to release the hostages until Reagan was actually sworn in.

Ghotbzadeh stood trial in 1982 for his role in a coup plot against Khomeini. He was later executed.

CIA spokeswoman Sharon Foster called Rafizadeh's allegation of CIA involvement in the affair as "ridiculous and contemptuous."

Bani-Sadr said that while he does not know if the CIA was involved in the hostage release, he learned later that Rafsanjani and Beheshti had closely coordinated with Reagan aides in Washington the release of the hostages.

"I was quite astonished," Bani-Sadr said.

"I don't know precisely why the timing of the release was so important to the Reagan apparatus," Bani-Sadr said, "but it seems to me that his aides were trying to prepare the American public psychologically and symbolically for the era of Reaganism."

"Hogwash," said Allen, who recalled being the one who first advised Reagan of the hostage release by handing him the information on a piece of paper while Reagan was on the inaugural platform after his speech.

Bruce Laingen, one of the hostages and ex-charge d'affaires in Iran, said he recalled that airport guards in Tehran talked into their walkie-talkies frequently before allowing the aircraft to take off.

However, Laingen said he does not believe there was any coordination between Reagan and Iran on the release.

"Khomeini kept us there until Reagan was sworn in to show his contempt for Carter," said Laingen. "It was deliberate on his part. I cannot conceive, for one minute, that Reagan played a role in this."

President Reagan announced the release of the hostages at the end of a toast at a luncheon with congressional leaders after the inauguration ceremony. Reading from Allen's notes, Reagan said:

"And now to conclude the toast with thanks to almighty God, I have been given a tag line, the get-off line that everyone wants for the end of a toast, or a speech or anything else: Some 30 minutes ago the planes bearing our prisoners left Iranian airspace, and they're now free of Iran."

Herald Staff Writer Sandra Dibble contributed to this article.

PROGRAM MAY

...he assurances were not linked to the release of the hostages.

It has been widely reported since the November disclosure of the Iran arms affair that Israel began shipping American-made weapons to Iran within a month of Reagan's January 1981 inauguration.

Played major role

McFarlane, who was President Reagan's national security adviser from 1983 to 1985, played a major role in the Iran arms deal, traveling to Tehran in May 1986 with National Security Council aide Oliver North, where they unsuccessfully sought a meeting with Rafsanjani. North was fired Nov. 25 for allegedly diverting profits of the Iranian arms sales to the Nicaraguan contras.

The arms sales to Iran last year provoked a major scandal in the United States. The Khomeini government held the hostages for 444 days, creating strong anti-Iranian sentiment among Americans. Carter aborted in progress an April 1980 rescue mission.

While there appears to be no connection between the 1986 arms sales and the 1980-1981 events surrounding the American hostages in Tehran, the involvement of McFarlane and Rafsanjani in both affairs could help explain the Reagan administration's intense interest last year in pursuing a strategic opening to Iran.

The White House and former President Carter declined comment.

Allen, who became Reagan's first national security adviser, said Khomeini retained the hostages of his own accord until Reagan became president as a symbolic last-minute insult to Carter and not because of a deal with the Reagan campaign.

"Absolute baloney," Allen said, referring to the possibility a deal was struck between the Reagan campaign and Iran on a coordinated release of the hostages. He also denied that the Reagan campaign people ever discussed any arms deals with Iran.

"There was no authorized contact, at any time, with any Iranians on such deals," Allen said. However, he said he could not speak for any "free-lancers" who might have invoked Reagan's name in discussions with the Iranians.

Hostility cited

"All we felt was a sense of unremitting hostility toward the Khomeini regime," said Allen, now a Washington consultant.

Nevertheless, he and Silberman, now a judge at the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, said that at McFarlane's behest they met for 20 to 30 minutes at L'Enfant Plaza Hotel sometime during the first two weeks of October 1980 with a man who allegedly represented the Khomeini regime.

Allen and Silberman said McFarlane, then an aide to the Senate Armed Services Committee under Chairman John Tower, R-Texas, also attended the meeting.

Allen, who then headed Reagan's foreign policy advisory group, and Silberman, who was its co-chairman, said they could not recall if the individual was Iranian.

...ing the hostages to the Reagan campaign or under the auspices of the Reagan campaign ... to humiliate Carter and influence our [Reagan's] election.

"I said to him, 'We have one president at a time,' thus indicating that he should deal with Carter, not us."

Allen said the meeting "was ridiculous and went directly against the grain of what the Reagan campaign stood for or the best interests of the hostages. It was something I simply dismissed."

Silberman and Allen said they ended the meeting and walked out without accepting the offer.

"It came to nothing," Silberman said.

Silberman said that while riding in a car immediately after the meeting, he advised Allen to write a memorandum about it "in the event that, someday, this might come out."

Memo misplaced

Allen said he wrote such a memo which he later misplaced and has been trying unsuccessfully to locate since the Iran scandal surfaced last fall.

Allen said he does not remember if he showed or provided a copy of the memo to Reagan or William Casey. At the time Casey was Reagan's campaign manager. He served as CIA director under Reagan until he resigned Feb. 2 after brain surgery for a tumor.

Allen said that neither Casey nor Reagan were aware of, or approved in advance, the meeting with McFarlane and the purported Iranian representative.

The CIA said it could not comment on actions by Casey as a private citizen.

No one in the Carter administration was advised of the meeting, Allen said.

A source familiar with the meeting said no one else was advised of the session because it was not clear what the implications might be or even who the alleged Iranian representative really was.

"I had authority to hold meetings like that without clearing them in advance with Reagan or Casey," Allen said. "I was in charge of the foreign policy advisory group."

Special panel

In his capacity as Reagan campaign foreign policy adviser, Allen had assembled a special 10-member panel that came to be known as the October Surprise Group. The name came from a belief by Reagan that Carter would try to win the election with an "October surprise" — a last-minute deal for release of the hostages before the Nov. 4 election.

Allen's group began holding daily meetings in early October 1980 on how to counter just such a possibility and preserve Reagan's lead in the polls.

In his book, Keeping Faith, Carter said that at the time his administration had been holding secret talks with an Iranian government representative, Sadegh Tabatabai, over a four-point plan to release the hostages.

1980 Deal Alleged

Leads, Leaps of Faith in Hostage Tale

By DOYLE McMANUS,
Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON—If this story turns out to be true, it would be the most diabolical intrigue of the century: a secret deal in 1980 between Ronald Reagan, George Bush and Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to keep 52 American hostages imprisoned in Tehran until that year's election day, thus sealing Reagan's march to the White House.

And that isn't all. Since the unproven allegations of a secret Reagan-Khomeini deal surfaced, a strange parade of gun-runners and global schemers has come forward to offer new and astonishing versions of the saga—including a charge that Bush, at a secret meeting with Iranian agents in Paris, agreed to pay Tehran $40 million as part of the deal.

The story has even Jimmy Carter, the man who lost the presidency to Reagan in 1980, intrigued. "He'd like to know whether it's true," a spokesman said. Other devotees of the saga have formed grass-roots committees and staged small demonstrations in cities from Boston to Eureka, Calif., in attempts to get attention from mainstream media.

Sometimes-Wild Rumors

There are some serious problems with these charges. First, there isn't a shred of independently confirmed evidence to support them; the allegations rest on a morass of tantalizing leads, leaps of faith and sometimes-wild rumors. Second, some of the purported witnesses contradict each other over details, and several have made statements that are simply not credible. Third, of course, spokesmen for President Reagan and Vice President Bush hotly deny that any of the stories are true.

"It's absolutely false—a pure fabrication," Bush spokesman Steve Hart said.

But the denials have done little to stop the spread of rumors and tall tales about purported secret operations during the 1980 campaign. And beneath the tangle of allegations remains a set of intriguing circumstances—and a few knots of genuine mystery:

—Three men from the 1980 Reagan campaign, including later National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane, did meet with a self-described Iranian agent during the campaign to discuss the fate of the U.S. hostages in Tehran; none of the three can recall the man's name or find their notes of the meeting.

Negotiations Cooled Off

—According to former Carter Administration officials, the Iranian government's interest in a negotiated settlement to the hostage crisis did seem to cool off at about the same time; the hostages were not released, in fact, until Reagan's inauguration day.

—And senior officials in the new Reagan Administration did quietly authorize Israel to sell military equipment to Iran soon after, in the spring of 1981.

None of that, however, quite adds up to a convincing case that Reagan actually made a secret deal with Khomeini. And the Reagan Republican George Bush is running 11 points ahead of Democrat Michael S. Dukakis in California, largely because voters are satisfied with the economy and agree with Bush's approach to controlling the budget deficit and fighting crime, the Los Angeles Times Poll has found.

With only two weeks remaining before the election, Dukakis clearly has failed to excite voters in a state virtually everybody agrees he must carry to win the presidency, the survey showed. Two in five of Dukakis' supporters say they are voting less "for" him than they are "against" Bush.

Link to Reagan Helps

Vice President Bush's ties to Ronald Reagan are a big help to the Republican ticket in the President's home state. California voters, by roughly 3 to 2, approve of the way Reagan is "handling his job as President." And people who approve of Reagan support Bush by nearly 6 to 1.

The Times survey found Bush/Quayle leading Dukakis/Bentsen among likely voters by 53% to 42%, with only 4% undecided and 1% supporting other candidates.

The Times poll, directed by I. A. Lewis, interviewed 1,376 Californians considered likely to vote on Nov. 8. The four-day telephone survey ended Sunday. The margin of error is 4 percentage points in either direction.

WATERBURY, Conn.—After months of forcing his opponent on the defensive, George Bush was pushed into that role Monday, compelled to say he is not spreading lies or stirring up racial friction.

With just 15 days left in the long presidential campaign, Republican Bush finally seemed to feel the sting of Michael S. Dukakis' complaints and a new round of Democratic TV ads.

"Signs are showing in the opposition camp of desperation—using ads that accuse us of lying," Bush began his uncharacteristic and unexpected statement here before launching into his speech to the Waterbury Chamber of Commerce.

He insisted that two longstanding themes of the GOP campaign—that Dukakis is weak on crime and national defense—are true, and are

SAN FRANCISCO—Michael S. Dukakis on Monday charged that his Republican opponent, Vice President George Bush, would personally have gained $22,000 over the last three years from a capital gains tax break that Bush advocates.

"Look in the mirror and ask yourself, is George Bush on your side?" Dukakis demanded in speeches to supporters in Los Angeles, at a large noontime rally in downtown San Diego and before a dragon parade in Chinatown here.

Bush, he said, "wants to give people like himself a tax break that's more than the average worker in California makes in a year.

"He's on their side; we're on your side."

aides who were purportedly involved angrily dismiss the allegations as absurd.

"It's goofball stuff," said Richard V. Allen, who was Reagan's chief foreign policy adviser during the 1980 campaign. "It comes from Mars. . . It's nothing but a fascinating hodgepodge of lies."

Nevertheless, some otherwise sober people say they, too, are beginning to wonder whether something strange was going on in that other election campaign, eight years ago.

"There obviously is no smoking gun here," said Gary Sick, a former National Security Council official who worked on the 1980 hostage negotiations for Carter. "But there's an accumulating body of circumstantial evidence. . . . I used to pooh-pooh these charges," Sick said. "I don't do that any more."

The story is called the "October Surprise." The name is taken from the fear that gripped the 1980 Reagan campaign that Carter would make a sudden deal with Iran to free the 52 Americans then held hostage in Tehran—and thus reverse Reagan's surge toward victory at the polls. Reagan's men organized an intelligence network to seek information about the Carter Administration's plans, and an "October Surprise Group," chaired by Allen, met to work out possible responses to a hostage release.

In September of 1980, Khomeini sent an envoy to West Germany to open hostage negotiations with U.S. officials. The chief of the American delegation was then-Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher, now a prominent Los Angeles lawyer.

"The first meetings were very promising," Christopher recalled in an interview. Christopher met with Khomeini's son-in-law, Sadegh Tabatabai, who presented a set of relatively moderate demands: a U.S. commitment to refrain from military intervention in Iran, unfreeze Iranian assets in the United States and aid in returning the wealth of the late shah to Tehran.

Christopher said Tabatabai also asked for the delivery of some $350 million in weapons and other military equipment that the shah had bought but that remained in U.S. warehouses. "I discouraged it, and it never came back onto the table," Christopher said.

Invasion by Iraq

One week later, Iran was invaded by the army of neighboring Iraq. The war interrupted Tabatabai's negotiations with Christopher; not until Nov. 2 did Iran come back with a precise proposal for freeing the hostages—too late to prevent Carter from going down to defeat on Nov 4.

"It is an interesting question why the promising meetings we had in September ended so abruptly," Christopher said. "The conversations were really quite encouraging, and it was a letdown when they did not continue. But I've always felt that the outbreak of the war seemed a sufficient explanation."

In the interim, Khomeini's government formally dropped its demand for weapons as part of the deal. That seemed strange to Gary Sick, the NSC's Iran expert at the time. "I thought it was amazing," he said last week. "They were at war, after all. One of the things they would definitely want, we thought, was the military equipment they already owned."

Christopher is less impressed by the apparent oddity. "The issue of the weapons stayed on the table only briefly," he said. "I think they were just testing us."

In any case, serious negotiations over the hostages' release did not get started until after Reagan won the election, and the 52 Americans were not actually freed until a few minutes after the new President took office on Jan. 20, 1981.

Jimmy Carter had negotiated the hostages' release, but it was Ronald Reagan who welcomed them home.

Barbara Honegger and Abolhassan Bani-Sadr offer another answer to Christopher's question about the interruption of the hostage negotiations. Honegger, a former Reagan White House aide, and Bani-Sadr, who was president of Iran in 1980, charge that Reagan's aides deliberately sabotaged the talks—by offering Khomeini weapons if he would delay the Americans' release until after Election Day.

It is a monstrous accusation, as both Honegger and Bani-Sadr cheerfully admit.

"This may be the crime of the century," Honegger said in an interview earlier this month. "It may mean that Ronald Reagan stole the 1980 election."

Honegger served as a minor official in the White House and the Justice Department from 1981 until 1983, when she publicly accused Reagan of breaking his promise to promote women's rights and resigned. (She told a reporter at the time that she had been guided by insights which she described as "channeled information . . . as if it were from the future.")

Quest for Secret History

Honegger now lives in Pacific Grove, Calif., in a pink stucco house with a panoramic view of the ocean—and rooms jammed with books, papers and tape recordings to aid her quest for the secret history of the 1980 campaign.

During October, 1980, Honegger was working at Reagan-Bush campaign headquarters, and fear of a sudden move by Carter to free the hostages was running high. On the evening of Oct. 22, she recalled, a woman—she cannot remember whom—walked into the room she was in and announced: "We don't have to worry about an October Surprise—Dick cut a deal."

"To be fair, I don't know that she was talking about Dick Allen," Honegger added. "It could have been some other Dick. But Dick Allen was the only one who had anything to do with the October Surprise Group."

Honegger's conclusion: "I think Dick Allen made some kind of arrangement to delay the return of the hostages, probably in exchange for weapons after Reagan was elected."

Allen's response: "Ridiculous."

'No Messing With . . . Problem'

"This girl was nowhere in the policy loop," he said. "She couldn't possibly have known what was going on. In fact, exactly the opposite was our behavior. . . . We had a rule: there was to be no messing with the hostage problem whatever."

But Honegger has turned into an indefatigable promoter of her story, appearing on radio and television shows and in a widely distributed documentary film about the affair called "Coverup," and living largely off lecture fees. She has also turned from a Reaganite Republican into a Jesse Jackson Democrat, "because of civil rights."

Honegger's chief ally in her crusade has been Bani-Sadr, the one-time president of Iran who lost power and fled his country in 1981.

Now living in exile near Paris, Bani-Sadr said he believes the release of the hostages was sabotaged by both the Reagan campaign and his own arch-rival in Tehran, Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani.

"It was an operation against Bani-Sadr," he said in a sitting room at his home in Versailles, a gloomy, unheated house overgrown with vines.

He claimed that he almost reached an agreement to release the hostages in October, 1980, but Rafsanjani "blockaded" his effort—"because if Bani-Sadr solves the problem of the hostages then it is Bani-Sadr who wins the arms. . . . I would be the one who came out ahead."

Asked for more details, he referred to a thick typed report in English. It had been sent to him, he said, "by Madame Honegger, a political analyst."

Christopher and Sick, on the other hand, said Bani-Sadr was not involved in hostage talks at all in October, 1980. "Bani-Sadr had nothing to do with the negotiations," Sick said. "He was completely cut out of it."

Reagan's men have acknowledged that they did have one meeting with a purported Iranian emissary in the fall of 1980, but they insist that the contact was insignificant and led nowhere.

Some time in September, 1980, Robert C. McFarlane, then a member of the staff of the Senate Armed Services Committee, was visited by a mysterious Middle Easterner.

"An individual whose name I don't even recall came to me saying that he represented people in the Iranian government, and saying he wanted to talk about U.S.-Iranian relations, to include the issue of the delivery of arms," McFarlane said in an interview.

McFarlane set up a meeting with Allen, the Reagan campaign's top foreign policy adviser. Allen brought Laurence H. Silberman, a former deputy U.S. attorney general who is now a federal appeals court judge.

"We met for no more than 15 minutes in the lobby of the L'Enfant Plaza Hotel [in Washington]," McFarlane recalled. "All of us concluded that he was a man of no substance. . . . He was rather ambiguous both as to whom he represented and what kind of proposition he wanted to make."

Proposed an Arrangement

Allen dimly remembered the mysterious intermediary as an Iranian monarchist who lived in Egypt. Unlike McFarlane, Allen said he does not believe the issue of weapons came up. "He was proposing an arrangement whereby the hostages could be released to the Reagan side [during the campaign] at a date indeterminate," Allen said. "Under no circumstances did we ever discuss a delay of the hostages' release."

Allen recalled telling the go-between: "This is preposterous."

Silberman recalled admonishing him: "We have only one President at a time."

All three Americans say they cannot remember the man's name. All three say they have no written record of what went on at the meeting; Allen said he wrote a memorandum for his files describing the conversation, but now cannot find it.

Nor did the three Republicans inform the Carter Administration of their contact with a purported go-between. "It didn't warrant referring to the Carter Administration," McFarlane said.

Warren Christopher disagrees. Notifying the State Department, he said, "certainly would have been the correct thing to do—especially since we were briefing them [the Reagan campaign] during this period."

The strangest new wrinkle in the saga of the October Surprise has been added by Richard Brenneke, a self-described international arms broker from Portland, Ore.

Brenneke told a federal judge in sworn testimony last month that Bush, William J. Casey and Richard Allen flew secretly to Paris in October, 1980—in the final weeks of the presidential campaign—to meet with agents of Khomeini's regime.

Brenneke said he attended a meeting on Oct. 20, 1980, at which Casey and Donald P. Gregg, now Bush's national security adviser, arranged to give the Iranians $40 million in exchange for their agreement to delay the release of the hostages until after Election Day.

"The logistics of transferring $40 million for the purchase of weapons was worked out," Brenneke said in his testimony. "That was the figure that William Casey and Mr. Gregg discussed at the meeting as being available for the purchase of weapons."

Brenneke said he did not see Bush in Paris, but testified that he had learned that Bush had met there with Iranian officials on Oct. 19, 1980.

Testified at Hearing

Brenneke offered his testimony at a sentencing hearing in Denver in the case of Heinrich Rupp, a longtime friend who was convicted earlier this year of bank fraud. Brenneke told the judge that he believed Rupp had been acting on behalf of the CIA when he defrauded Colorado's Aurora Bank.

Rupp later told Denver's Rocky Mountain News that he was the pilot who flew Casey to Paris in October, 1980, and said he believes he saw Bush on the tarmac at Paris' Le Bourget Airport.

Neither Brenneke nor Rupp has offered any evidence to support their charges, however, and most of their allegations have been roundly denied.

Bush's office says he made no secret trip to Paris in October, 1980; the Secret Service, whose agents were guarding the then-vice presidential candidate, says he was in Washington during the period in question.

Allen says he did not visit Paris in October and showed a reporter his detailed, handwritten logbooks for the days in question. (They show, among many other entries, that Allen appeared on the television program "Meet the Press" on Oct. 19, which NBC confirmed, and spoke on the telephone with Casey, apparently in Washington, on Oct. 20.)

Reports Discounted

Casey died in May, 1987, but Allen said: "There isn't any way this could have been done by Casey without me . . . as stealthy as he was to become."

Moreover, the credibility of Brenneke and Rupp has been questioned by some who have interviewed them at length.

Rupp's own lawyer, Daniel Burerah, said he doesn't know whether to believe his client or not. "I've never come across anything as crazy as this," he said. "As far as the truthfulness of the guy, I really don't know."

Most of Brenneke's statements have proven difficult or impossible to confirm. He claimed in his testimony to have worked for the CIA for 18 years, much of that in Air America, the now-defunct airline the agency once owned. But the CIA, in a virtually unprecedented action, has told reporters that Brenneke never worked for the agency; and William Leary, a University of Georgia professor who has written the history of Air America, says neither Brenneke nor Rupp appears in the company's personnel records.

Brenneke has been talking to reporters for more than two years, offering detailed but unconfirmable stories about his life as a secret agent, gun-runner and occasional drug pilot. He has claimed that he supplied explosives to a Palestine Liberation Organization training camp located in western Oregon; Oregon law enforcement officials say they know of no such camp. He has talked of flying weapons to the CIA-supported Nicaraguan rebels, or Contras, and of working on secret shipments of U.S. weapons to Iran, but congressional investigators say they have been unable to confirm those claims.

Chain of Sources

Not until last month, however, did Brenneke mention any meetings with Bush and Casey in Paris. His new testimony on that score came only after Honegger told him, in August, of reports that such a meeting had occurred. Honegger, in turn, apparently received her first reports of the alleged Paris meetings from Bani-Sadr; and Bani-Sadr learned of them from a friend in Iran whom he refused to identify.

Bani-Sadr himself says he isn't sure he believes that Bush ever flew to any secret meetings in Paris.

"It is very difficult for me to believe that a candidate for vice president would participate in such a rendezvous," he said. "That would be very dangerous, very risky, because if it were discovered it would be his political death. I can imagine such a thing but whether it is true or not I do not have the slightest idea."

But Honegger is undeterred.

"Some people have doubts about Dick Brenneke's credibility, I know," she said firmly, "I don't."

The controversy, however shaky its roots, is unlikely to go away.

On Monday, a Los Angeles lawyer who sued the federal government and the Khomeini regime on behalf of 13 of the Tehran hostages announced that he is now preparing a suit against the estate of Casey, against the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign—and possibly against Bush as well.

The lawyer, James H. Davis, said he believes the Reagan campaign may have violated the law in seeking a private deal with Iran and probably also undercut the position of the Carter Administration's negotiators—and that may have prolonged his clients' ordeal.

"The result to my clients was Brenneke has been talking to reporters for more than two years, offering detailed but unconfirmable stories about his life as a secret agent, gun-runner and occasional drug pilot. He has claimed that he supplied explosives to a Palestine Liberation Organization training camp located in western Oregon; Oregon law enforcement officials say they know of no such camp. He has talked of flying weapons to the CIA-supported Nicaraguan rebels, or Contras, and of working on secret shipments of U.S. weapons to Iran, but congressional investigators say they have been unable to confirm those claims.

Chain of Sources

Not until last month, however, did Brenneke mention any meetings with Bush and Casey in Paris. His new testimony on that score came only after Honegger told him, in August, of reports that such a meeting had occurred. Honegger, in turn, apparently received her first reports of the alleged Paris meetings from Bani-Sadr; and Bani-Sadr learned of them from a friend in Iran whom he refused to identify.

Bani-Sadr himself says he isn't sure he believes that Bush ever flew to any secret meetings in Paris.

"It is very difficult for me to believe that a candidate for vice president would participate in such a rendezvous," he said. "That would be very dangerous, very risky, because if it were discovered it would be his political death. I can imagine such a thing but whether it is true or not I do not have the slightest idea."

But Honegger is undeterred.

"Some people have doubts about Dick Brenneke's credibility. I know," she said firmly, "I don't."

The controversy, however shaky its roots, is unlikely to go away.

On Monday, a Los Angeles lawyer who sued the federal government and the Khomeini regime on behalf of 13 of the Tehran hostages announced that he is now preparing a suit against the estate of Casey, against the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign—and possibly against Bush as well.

The lawyer, James H. Davis, said he believes the Reagan campaign may have violated the law by seeking a private deal with Iran, and probably also undercut the position of the Carter Administration's negotiators—and that may have prolonged his clients' ordeal.

"The result to my clients was they were not only kept longer, 2½ months longer . . . but it also hobbled our negotiators in dealing with Iran," Davis said.

"Once we file, we will at least have the power to subpoena these people to get their sworn testimony on what happened," Davis said. "Won't that be interesting?"

Staff writers William C. Rempel in Los Angeles, Michael Ross in Cairo and Rone Tempest in Paris also contributed to this story.

release of the hostages.

It has been widely reported since the November disclosure of the Iran arms affair that Israel began shipping American-made weapons to Iran within a month of Reagan's January 1985 inauguration.

Played major role

McFarlane, who was President Reagan's national security adviser from 1983 to 1985, played a major role in the Iran arms deal, traveling to Tehran in May 1986 with National Security Council aide Oliver North, where they unsuccessfully sought a meeting with Rafsanjani. North was fired Nov. 25 for allegedly diverting profits of the Iranian arms sales to the Nicaraguan contras.

The arms sales to Iran last year provoked a major scandal in the United States. The Khomeini government held the hostages for 444 days, creating strong anti-Iranian sentiment among Americans. Carter aborted in progress an April 1980 rescue mission.

While there appears to be no connection between the 1986 arms sales and the 1980-1981 events surrounding the American hostages in Tehran, the involvement of McFarlane and Rafsanjani in both affairs could help explain the Reagan administration's intense interest last year in pursuing a strategic opening to Iran.

The White House and former President Carter declined comment.

Allen, who became Reagan's first national security adviser, said Khomeini retained the hostages of his own accord until Reagan became president as a symbolic last-minute insult to Carter and not because of a deal with the Reagan campaign.

"Absolute baloney," Allen said, referring to the possibility a deal was struck between the Reagan campaign and Iran on a coordinated release of the hostages. He also denied that the Reagan campaign people ever discussed any arms deals with Iran.

"There was no authorized contact, at any time, with any Iranians on such deals," Allen said. However, he said he could not speak for any "free-lancers" who might have invoked Reagan's name in discussions with the Iranians.

Hostility cited

"All we felt was a sense of unremitting hostility toward the Khomeini regime," said Allen, now a Washington consultant.

Nevertheless, he and Silberman, now a judge at the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington, said that at McFarlane's behest they met for 20 to 30 minutes at L'Enfant Plaza Hotel sometime during the first two weeks of October 1980 with a man who allegedly represented the Khomeini regime.

Allen and Silberman said McFarlane, then an aide to the Senate Armed Services Committee under Chairman John Tower, R-Texas, also attended the meeting.

Allen, whose then headed Reagan's foreign policy advisory group, and Silberman, who was its co-chairman, said they could not recall if the individual was Iranian representative. Sadegh Tabatabai, over a four-point plan to release the hostages.

Carter said in his book that two days before the election the Iranian representative, Sadegh Tabatabai, over a four-point plan to release the hostages.

Carter said in his book that two days before the election the Iranian representative, Sadegh Tabatabai, over a four-point plan to release the hostages resumed following the election, he anticipated their freedom before Reagan took office.

However, he said that he was not in full control of the negotiation to release the hostages resumed following the election, he anticipated their freedom before Reagan took office.

However, Mansur Rafiz, former top official of the la of Iran's Savak security said in his recently publishe of the Reagan campaign . . . to humiliate Carter and influence our [Reagan's] election.

"I said to him, 'We have one president at a time,' thus indicating that he should deal with Carter, not us."

Allen said the meeting "was ridiculous and went directly against the grain of what the Reagan campaign stood for or the best interests of the hostages. It was something I simply dismissed."

Silberman and Allen said they ended the meeting and walked out without accepting the offer.

"It came to nothing," Silberman said.

Silberman said that while riding in a car immediately after the meeting, he advised Allen to write a memorandum about it "in the event that, someday, this might come out."

Memo misplaced

Allen said he wrote such a memo which he later misplaced and has been trying unsuccessfully to locate since the Iran scandal surfaced last fall.

Allen said he does not remember if he showed or provided a copy of the memo to Reagan or William Casey. At the time Casey was Reagan's campaign manager. He served as CIA director under Reagan until he resigned Feb. 2 after brain surgery for a tumor.

Allen said that neither Casey nor Reagan were aware of, or approved in advance, the meeting with McFarlane and the purported Iranian representative.

The CIA said it could not comment on actions by Casey as a private citizen.

No one in the Carter administration was advised of the meeting, Allen said.

A source familiar with the meeting said no one else was advised of the session because it was not clear what the implications might be or even who the alleged Iranian representative really was.

"I had authority to hold meetings like that without clearing them in advance with Reagan or Casey," Allen said. "I was in charge of the foreign policy advisory group."

Special panel

In his capacity as Reagan campaign foreign policy adviser, Allen had assembled a special 10-member panel that came to be known as the October Surprise Group. The name came from a belief by Reagan that Carter would try to win the election with an "October surprise" — a last-minute deal for release of the hostages before the Nov. 4 election.

Allen's group began holding daily meetings in early October 1980 on how to counter just such a possibility and preserve Reagan's lead in the polls.

In his book, Keeping Faith, Carter said that at the time his administration had been holding secret talks with an Iranian gov-

Information has been received from Maxwell Communications Corporation, London, England, indicating that since August, 1987, Senator Tower has served as a consultant for their company.

Interviews

An individual, who requested confidentiality, stated he/she has known Senator Tower on a professional basis for approximately ten years. He/she believed Senator Tower was "not very accommodating with opponents of his position", but that he was competent, intelligent and knowledgeable on defense issues. He/she knew of no alcohol abuse or drug use by Senator Tower, and had no personal knowledge of any alleged sexual indiscretions by Senator Tower.

He/she had no personal knowledge of any illegal campaign contributions or illegal expenditures of campaign funds on the part of Senator Tower. He/she stated he/she was aware that various newspaper articles raised the issue of Senator Tower's expenditure of campaign funds, which could raise ethical problems if not fully explained by Senator Tower.

He/she related an incident wherein language was inserted into the "FY85 Defense Authorization Bill" which was not previously included in either the original House or Senate bill The Senate Armed Services Committee (SASC) [redacted] at that time, [redacted] over [redacted] b6 b7C b7D this issue when the additional language was discovered. He/she further advised that [redacted] allegedly told Senator John Warner that Senator Tower had directed him to insert this language into the bill. He/she stated that he/she was not sure if Senator Tower was responsible for the insertion, and that even if he was, "it may not be an improper motive."

[redacted]

(At the time, Mr. Paisley had been nominated as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and the SASC was presiding over the confirmation hearing.) He/she questioned Senator Tower's credibility and ethics if Senator Tower, allegedly in possession of derogatory information concerning Mr. Paisley, either on his own, and/or possibly in conjunction with the White House, failed to convey this derogatory information to the SASC. He/she added that he/she had no personal knowledge of Senator Tower's involvement in this matter.

He/she could not personally recommend Senator Tower for the appointment, although he/she opined that Senator Tower is qualified in that he is knowledgeable enough to be Secretary of Defense.

**

A second individual, who requested confidentiality, advised he/she has known Senator Tower on a professional basis since 1975. He/she described Senator Tower as a very effective Chairman of the SASC who was articulate in presenting his views. He/she has no personal knowledge of excessive alcohol consumption by Senator Tower, or receipt or expenditure of illegal campaign contributions by him.

b6
b7D

He/she has made some personal observations that might be construed as sexual indiscretions by Senator Tower. He/she recounted an incident that occurred at [redacted] party for Senator Tower in either [redacted] or [redacted] at [redacted] during which Senator Tower was observed holding hands with [redacted] a SASC employee. Senator Tower and [redacted] were observed leaving the party and going into Senator Tower's known bedroom area. A "number of hours" passed and he/she saw Senator Tower and [redacted] at the party once again. He/she did not see when they came out of the room, and stated it could have been a brief, innocent meeting. He/she was not implying that any type of indiscretion occurred, but only that one could construe this incident as a possible indiscretion. b6 b7C

He/she related an instance in which Senator Tower lobbied on behalf of a particular contractor but he/she did not want to characterize this activity as a conflict of interest. He/she stated that approximately one year ago, Senator Tower called a member of the SASC staff regarding the "C-FIN Reprogramming Project". He/she said Senator Tower told a staff member that three companies (LTV, British Aerospace, and Lockheed Georgia) had an interest in the project, and that, if it was approved, "one or two or three" of the companies would sustain a direct benefit. He/she stated he/she believed Senator Tower was advocating that the SASC approve the project, and, in effect, advocating the position of the Department of Defense. He/she noted that the project was not approved by the Senate.

He/she stated that he/she received information that during the 1981 nomination hearings of Melvyn Paisley, [redacted] and [redacted] called Senator Tower [redacted] the SASC [redacted] and requested that Senator Tower [redacted] not convey to the committee an FBI report concerning Mr. Paisley which contained derogatory information. He/she also stated that he/she had knowledge that Senator Tower [redacted] added a provision to a defense authorization bill, and that [redacted] related that Senator Tower had asked him to do it. He/she had no firsthand knowledge of either of these matters. b6 b7C

He/she recommended Senator Tower for a position of trust with the United States government.

A third individual, who requested confidentiality, was familiar with Senator Tower on a professional basis. She believes that Senator Tower abused alcohol in that he used it to escape. She related that frequently after long or hard days of debate on the Senate floor, Senator Tower would invite staff and other Committee members to his office, where she saw him "enjoy several martinis or white wines." She believes he drank "more than the average social drinker in a similar situation."

She had knowledge of two instances which she believes might have a bearing on Senator Tower's suitability. She advised that the first situation occurred at a dinner in New York City in either March or April of 1983. She stated that after the dinner, Senator Tower and most of his staff members went to the hospitality suite in the hotel where Senator Tower was staying. She said that at approximately 12:30 or 1:00 am, Senator Tower asked her to come and sit down next to him on the couch, and then asked her where she was staying. She replied that she was staying at a different hotel. [redacted] b6 b7C [redacted] She commented that she was appalled, and told Senator Tower she was not interested and walked away from him. She added that Senator Tower appeared to be "sloshed", extremely intoxicated, and she believes he probably had no recollection of the incident as he made no further mention of it.

She also related an incident that occurred at [redacted] held at [redacted] after Senator Tower announced his retirement from the Senate. Following dinner and having had the opportunity to drink a lot, she noticed Senator Tower take the hand of [redacted] and then walk her into his quarters. She said it was quite obvious to everyone what Senator Tower was doing. She asked the [redacted] After this brief conversation, she returned to her room for the night, and does not know what actually took place or how long they were in Senator Tower's quarters. She advised that there was a general understanding of those who observed this incident that Senator Tower and the staff member were together for a lengthy period of time. She noticed Senator Tower to be quite drunk when this incident occurred, as she had observed the "quantity of alcohol consumed and the visible results of his drinking." She added that the next morning, when [redacted] was asked about the events of the night before, she replied, "Oh, it was nothing; he was cute; we just chatted."

She stated that she felt Senator Tower has serious flaws in his character, which is reflected by his use of alcohol and his resulting behavior. She could not recommend him for a position of trust and confidence with the Government or for access to classified materials if his problems with alcohol persist.

[redacted] stated she has known Senator Tower since February, 1984, when she was hired as a [redacted] advised that the first time she spoke with Senator Tower outside of work occurred in [redacted] at a [redacted] One night, while Senator Tower and other men played poker, a military aide passed a message to her that Senator Tower wanted to see her. Senator Tower asked her to sit next to him while he was playing poker in order to be his good luck charm. At no time that evening were she and Senator Tower alone together, and [redacted] returned to her cabin at approximately 11:30 pm. She denied ever having any type of sexual contact with Senator Tower. She recommended him for a position of trust and confidence with the United States government.

[redacted] advised he was the [redacted] He emphatically stated that he has no personal knowledge of Senator Tower's use or misuse of alcohol or his involvement with women. He has heard rumors and allegations regarding these issues, and feels there is validity to these rumors based on the frequency of the reports, reports in the news media, and the stature/reputation of the persons advising him. He would recommend Senator Tower for a position of trust and responsibility within the government, but has serious reservations about him serving as Secretary of Defense. He personally feels Senator Tower's rumored abuse of alcohol could interfere in the performance of his duties, cloud his judgment, and adversely influence his advice to the President.

[redacted] advised that she has been acquainted with Senator Tower since [redacted] She opined that by virtue of his experience and competence, Senator Tower should be an outstanding Secretary of Defense. She stated that in her opinion, Senator Tower does not abuse alcohol. [redacted] said that when she first knew Senator Tower, he did consume a great deal of alcohol, but she cannot recall any instances where she believed that he had become intoxicated when acting as a Senator or as a member of the SASC. She advised that in private settings, he, along with others, may have had one drink too many, but she characterized his consumption of alcohol as stopping short of intoxication to the point of unconsciousness or being an embarrassment to himself. She believes that Senator Tower's recent drinking habits have been much more moderate. She strongly recommended him for the position of Secretary of Defense.

Ten additional individuals, consisting of professional associates and social acquaintances, were interviewed. They advised Senator Tower is a loyal American whose character, reputation, and associates are above reproach. They stated they are unaware of any illegal drug use or alcohol abuse by Senator Tower, nor have they ever known him to exhibit any type of bias or prejudice against any class of citizen or any type of religious, racial or ethnic group. They also commented that they believe Senator Tower lives within his financial means. They described him as industrious, competent, diplomatic, discreet, personable, articulate, and trustworthy. A professional associate commented that Senator Tower was an able and capable administrator who possessed an extensive knowledge of both the details and the overall strategic implications of various weapons systems and programs. They recommended him for a position of trust and responsibility.

Among those interviewed are the following:

Issues

As reported in the Interviews section of this summary memorandum, the following additional issues were developed concerning Senator Tower.

Issue 5: Allegation that Senator Tower was contacted by the Ayatollah Khomeini or a representative of the Khomeini government regarding the United States providing arms to Iran in exchange for the hostages.

As stated in the December 16, 1988 interview of [redacted] the results of which are contained in the summary memorandum dated December 23, 1988, [redacted] related a story wherein the Ayatollah Khomeini contacted Senator Tower regarding his desire to have the United States provide Iran with airplane parts. [redacted] advised that [redacted] would be in a position to provide additional information concerning this matter.

[redacted] were interviewed concerning this matter, the results of which are incorporated in this summary memorandum.

At approximately 12:00 noon on December 21, 1988, [redacted] a white female adult born [redacted] at [redacted] voluntarily appeared at the Monterey Resident Agency, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, following attempts by the interviewing agents to contact her at her residence, [redacted] home telephone number [redacted] was advised of the identity of the interviewing agents by a display of credentials and also was advised that the interview was in connection with the background investigation being conducted by the FBI of former Senator JOHN TOWER, who is currently a presidential appointee for the position of Secretary of Defense pending his appointment and confirmation by the United States Senate. As previously arranged with [redacted] by telephone, arrangements were made for the interview to be tape-recorded by [redacted] and the interviewing agents. [redacted] was also advised of the confidentiality provisions of the Privacy Act; however, she stated that she requested no confidentiality for any of her statements which she would provide. Thereafter, [redacted] provided the following information:

[redacted] stated that she had been contacted by [redacted] following [redacted] interview by the FBI in Washington, D.C. [redacted] described her employment as [redacted] and said that she is currently [redacted] was read, verbatim, [redacted] statement as given to FBI representatives in Washington, D.C. on December 16, 1988. [redacted] noted that she is the source of the information provided by [redacted] and she provided certain corrections and clarifications to this statement.

First, [redacted] stated that, by way of background, prior to the 1980 elections she had been employed as [redacted] the REAGAN - BUSH campaign. During the campaign, [redacted] accompanied [redacted] to work with him in the [redacted] the REAGAN - BUSH campaign [redacted] Following the election, she continued to work for [redacted] Later, she obtained the title of [redacted] She advised that she was among those who moved into the [redacted] prior to his actual departure from that location. Later, [redacted] stated she was promoted to the position of [redacted] and remained there until [redacted] At that time, she stated that she transferred to the [redacted] where she worked in the [redacted] until [redacted] At that time, she stated that she returned to [redacted] for "family problems."

Third, [redacted] makes the correction that although [redacted] statement indicates that former Iranian President BANI-SADR originally made public the story of these early attempts by Iranians to obtain arms, the actual source of the more recently learned facts regarding the early meetings came from [redacted]

And forth, contrary to [redacted] statement, [redacted] clarified that it was not the Ayattollah Khomeini himself who had contacted JOHN TOWER, rather an emissary of the Ayattollah and that TOWER had not sent [redacted] with this information to the White House, rather to the REAGAN - BUSH campaign office.

At this time, [redacted] provided a copy of a thirteen page document entitled "PRE-1980-ELECTION NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN THE 1980 REAGAN-BUSH CAMPAIGN AND IRAN TO DELAY RELEASE OF THE 52 U.S. HOSTAGES IN EXCHANGE FOR A PROMISE OF FUTURE U.S. ARMS." In addition, HONEGGER also provided a copy of a four page document entitled "Timeline of Events - October Surprise Story." A copy of each of these documents is attached to and made part of this communication.

[redacted] stated that following the [redacted] she was in the office of [redacted] She stated that [redacted] told her that he was attempting to confirm the story just released by [redacted] at [redacted] and had just spoken with [redacted] on the telephone. He advised her that [redacted] had told him for the first time that it was JOHN TOWER who was first contacted by the emissaries of the Ayatollah Khomeini and that TOWER had directed [redacted] to place these emissaries in contact with [redacted] and [redacted] It is this information which [redacted] feels to be most critical with regard to the suitability of former Senator TOWER for a cabinet position. [redacted] stated that [redacted] also told her that he had been in contact with [redacted] by telephone as well and that [redacted] had volunteered to him that it was [redacted] who had contacted him and insisted that [redacted] meet with these Iranian representatives. [redacted] expressed her opinion that these statements by [redacted] represent their reaction to [redacted] and their attempts to shift responsibility for this meeting thinking that "this is going to come unravelled." [redacted] added, however, that a troubling fact for her is that on [redacted]

In addition [redacted] said that the events surrounding these meetings between REAGAN - BUSH campaign officials and Iranians, have been very completely described in a series of articles which were written for the Miami Herold by one of their reporters, [redacted] during the time frame August 1987 through April 1988. [redacted] strongly urged the FBI to review these articles for background information regarding this issue in general. She stated that it was her understanding that [redacted] had contacted [redacted] regarding their meeting with the Iranian (although [redacted] herself believes that there may be more than one Iranian involved.) [redacted] stated that "these three men all claim that nothing came from this meeting, [redacted] everything came from this meeting and they are not telling the truth. There were follow-up meetings, some in Paris, where even more top level officers of the REAGAN - BUSH campaign met with even more top level Iranians and cut and arms for hostages deal."

Thus, [redacted] states that she believes that JOHN TOWER is closely associated with this entire series of events and that "he was brought into the TOWER commission to cover up his own capability. She stated that "I believe JOHN TOWER was at the center in general, because [redacted] and has been close to him always. JOHN TOWER is an old personal friend of President (SIC) BUSH. He supported BUSH in 1980 against REAGAN. He was a close advisor to the REAGAN - BUSH campaign. Two to three weeks after this meeting, which TOWER was instrumental in setting up, BUSH traveled to Paris and met with top Iranian officials there."

[redacted] acknowledged that the only persons who could provide definite answers to these questions raised by her were the people who were actually involved in these meetings, or arranging these meetings, that is, TOWER, [redacted] and whoever the Iranian(s) is or were. [redacted] acknowledged also that the only one of these persons to date she has attempted to contact regarding this story is [redacted] himself, however, she is awaiting further contact with an aide of [redacted] to schedule an interview.

In addition to the above, [redacted] provided a copy of an article which appeared on the front page of the Washington Post on November 29, 1986, entitled "Israeli Sale Said Allowed by Haig in '81" written by BOB WOODWARD and WALTER PINCUS. [redacted] also provided a copy of an article entitled "Deal of the Decade" which appeared in the publication "In These Times," October 12 through 18, 1988, and was written by JOEL BLEIFUSS, which [redacted] says is the best current summary of this story extant to date.

A copy of these two documents are attached to and made part of this communication.

The author will make all research materials, including interview transcripts, interview tapes, and in-depth written analyses available to all serious media and historians for reasonable consideration.

1) Former President Carter has confirmed that he had reports before the 1980 election that the Reagan-Bush campaign was trying to delay release of the hostages held in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran so that "they would not be released (before the election) and that weapon sales would be restored to Iran either directly or through the Israelis" (Larry King Radio, June 15, 1988). In that same interview he stated that, if asked by Dukakis, he will provide more details to the media about controversial issues regarding which he has personal knowledge. The October 1988 issue of PLAYBOY reproduces a February 1988 letter from President Carter on the same subject ("An Election Held Hostage," PLAYBOY, October 1988).

2) According to [redacted] a graduate student of future Reagan-Bush pollster Richard Beal at Bringham Young University in Utah, in the Spring of 1980, before President Carter's Desert One hostage rescue attempt, Beal completed a computerized "October Surprise" polling analysis which revealed that if President Carter brought the 52 U.S. hostages home any time within a critical "window of vlnerabilty" between October 18 and October 25, 1980, he would receive a 10-point boost in the polls projected for election day (November 4, 1980) for a CERTAIN victory and a CERTAIN Republican defeat (HIDDEN POWER, Roland Perry). According to [redacted] Beal reported his results to Reagan's chief pollster and top campaign adviser Richard Wirthlin, who reported them to the 1980 Reagan campaign. Beal told [redacted] that this computerlized "October Surprise" analysis was funded by the CIA. There are now reports (see below) from claimed evewitnesses [redacted] and [redacted] that George Bush, Reagan's vice-presidential running mate, left the east coast for a secret meeting in Paris, France to meet with senior Khomeini officials on precisely the date of the beginning of this "window of vulnerability" -- October 18, 1980.

3) [redacted] (Reagan's 1980 campaign [redacted] Texas Senator John Tower on the Senate Armed Services Committee) (Tower was then Vice Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and frequently in communication with top officials in the Reagan-Bush campaign), and [redacted] have all acknowledged that they met with a self-proclaimed Khomeini emissary who offered to release the hostages to the Reagan-Bush camp (and not to President Carter), at a meeting at the L'Enfant Plaza Hotel in Washington, D.C. in early October 1980 [redacted] recalls the date slightly differently as late September 1980) (Miami Herald, August 9, 1987, p. 1). According to [redacted]

(in a telephone interview with [redacted] of the Washington, D.C. office of the West German news weekly DER SPIEGEL, August 25, 1988), this Khomeini emissary who met with [redacted] had first approached Senator John Tower. Tower, who later was part of the three-man Tower Commission, then put [redacted] on the task of getting the Khomeini emissary together with [redacted] This was the first of at least four such meetings between senior 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign officials and and senior representatives of the Khomeini regime before the 1980 election to discuss interfering with President Carter's negotiations to bring the 52 hostages safely home at the earliest possible time.

3) THE AUTHOR HAS RECEIVED THE FOLLOWING REPORTS. FURTHER INFORMATION ON SOURCES FOLLOWS THIS SUMMARY OF THE REPORTS: On October 19, 1980 in Paris, France two follow-up meetings to the Washington, D.C./L'Enfant Plaze Hotel meeting took place amongst George Bush and senior representative(s) of the Reagan-Bush campaign and senior representatives of the Khomeini regime to finalize an agreement to delay release of the 52 hostages in exchange for a $40 million payoff and a promise of $5 billion in future U.S. arms shipments. According to [redacted] an eyewitness to these meetings (Rocky Mountain News, "Ex-CIA Man Ties Bush to 1980 Hostage Talks," Sunday, October 2, 1988), the participants at the first of these two meetings, which took place at approximately noon Paris time, were: Vice-presidential candidate George Bush, William Casey (manager of the Reagan-Bush campaign), [redacted] According to [redacted], the October 19, 1980 meetings took place at the Crillon Hotel in Paris. According to a 20-year CIA veteran (contact the author for his contact information), one of the two October 19, 1980 meetings may have taken place at the Rafael Hotel in Paris, and Bush was accompanied by one secret service agent, both on the trip to Paris and at the Paris meeting, and asked the secret service agent to "sweep" the meeting room for bugs.

According to [redacted] the Iranian officials at the meeting were a senior aide to [redacted] arms dealer Cyrus Hashemi, [redacted] (also the middleman in the later 1985-86 U.S. arms deals with Iran)), an Iranian citizen with ties to the prime minister's office, and [redacted] presence with Casey at this critical meeting may explain why Casey, as CIA director, later insisted on using him in the 1985-86 operations despite his repeated failure of CIA lie detector tests. According to the above-mentioned CIA veteran (KFI radio, Los Angeles, September 17, 1988, "The Bill Moran Show," tapes available from the author), also at one of the October 19, 1980 meetings was Jalal Al-Din Farsi, who represented the Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti (both Farsi and Beheshti were founders of both the Iranian Republic Party (IRP) which controlled Iran's parliament, and of Hezbollah, the Iran-loyal terrorist umbrella organization which has since taken further U.S. hostages in southern Lebanon).

According to both [redacted] and the CIA veteran (whose source was a French intelligence report on the meetings filed with CIA headquarters and hand-delivered to Ronald Reagan in November 1980), George Bush brought to the meeting proof of transfer of $40 million just wired to Iran's account at Bank Leu -- money Iran had demanded as a "good faith" payment and which it also needed to purchase arms and spare parts between the election and the Reagan-Bush inauguration for the Iran-Iraq war which had just begun on September 22, 1980. The $40 million was reportedly part of a $60 million illegal "campaign contribution" that the Shah of Iran had given to the Committee to Re-Elect the President (Nixon), also known as CRP, in 1972 which had been deposited in Mexico (see also Mansur Rafizadeh's WITNESS, p. 192). (Recall that Watergate started to unravel with the discovery by Washington Post reporters Woodward and Bernstein of large sums of money sent to CRP headquarters from Mexico). The entire Watergate scandal, in fact, involved the use of only about $1 million out of this $60 million for the political espionage and sabotage operations of CRP and the Nixon White House. During Watergate, George Bush was Chairman of the Republican National Committee in a position to know about the illegal $60 million "contribution." According to the CIA veteran, the "gatekeeper" for the Mexico funds at that time was [redacted] the same [redacted] whom Bush recently appointed to a [redacted] in the Republican National Committee and who was forced to resign that post because of revelations that he had undertaken a survey to identify Jews in a government agency agency for Nixon.). According to the CIA veteran, the $40 million was wired through the auspices of Merrill Lynch, where [redacted] was then [redacted] to Merrill Lynch's Zurich office, and from there into Iran's account in Bank Leu in Zurich.

The agreement made at this first Paris meeting of October 19, 1980 was that Iran agreed to delay release of the 52 U.S. hostages until Reagan and Bush's inauguration (they were released some 20 minutes into Reagan's inaugural address on January 20, 1981) in exchange for the $40 million and a promise of $5 billion in U.S. arms which would begin delivery in 1981. These arms were in fact shipped beginning in 1981 (see below)

1) from the U.S., 2) from a draw-down of secret U.S. NATO stores, especially in West Germany and Italy, and 3) through Israel, Taiwan and South Korea. [redacted] was reportedly taped referring to the $5 billion in arms during his late May 1986 trip to Iran with [redacted] and [redacted] on behalf of President Reagan and Vice President Bush (see below).

4) According to the pilot who flew William Casey to the Paris meeting, [redacted] (interview with [redacted] of the Boston Globe, September 30, 1988), Casey's plane, a BAC-111 jet with tail markings MFA (for Saudi royal family member [redacted] left Washington National Airport late the night of October 18, 1980 and met a Grumman Gulfstream executive jet carrying Bush over New York, from where the two jets continued on to Paris, landing at Le Bourget airport outside of Paris between 10:00 and 11:00 a.m. Paris time, arriving in time for the first meeting beginning around noon Paris time. [redacted] report is consistent with that of the 20-year CIA veteran that Bush's plane had taken off from Stewart Air Force Base. [redacted] has testified that [redacted] flew BOTH Casey and Bush on his flight out of Washington National Airport for Paris. The apparent discrepancy is due to the fact that [redacted] saw his passengers only when he deplaned at LeBourget airport to refuel and check the tires when he saw Casey leave his plane; however, Bush was already on the tarmac when [redacted] deplaned and there were other planes present [redacted] interview with the Boston Globe, September 30, 1988)). While fueling the BAC-111 at Le Bourget airport, pilot [redacted] saw both Casey and Bush on the tarmac at the airport before they boarded waiting limousines. A second BAC-111 was on the ground at Le Bourget when [redacted] landed. [redacted] also told the Boston Globe that he had worked for [redacted] in the Middle East. It is therefore a possibility that the tape made of [redacted] by his kidnappers may have referred to the pre-1980-election Paris trip and explain why William Casey, who was at the Paris meeting, was so obcessed with getting [redacted] away from his kidnappers before he could talk).

Bush left immediately after the first meeting and returned to the east coast in time for an address to the Zionist Organization of America in Washington, D.C. the night of the 19th. (Bush's last scheduled campaign appearance on October 18, the day before the Paris meeting, was at 8:40 p.m. EST in Delaware County, Pennsylvania after which he was scheduled to go to Washington, D.C., from which [redacted] plane flew late that night, the 18th, out of Washington National Airport). After the October 19th meeting in Paris, William Casey then went on to Frankfurt in [redacted] BAC-111, after which [redacted] flew on to Basil, Switzerland, Cypress and Saudi Arabia. According to the CIA veteran, at least one of the planes used in the mission may have been serviced by Butler Aviation and left Van Nuys, California before stopping on the east coast to pick up its passengers. (The flight each way, to and from Paris, takes approximately 6 hours from the east coast).

5) SOURCES: The source for much of the information in 3) and 4) above is a French intelligence report filed with the CIA and hand-delivered to Ronald Reagan in California in November 1980, and a 20-year CIA operations directorate veteran who read the report while at CIA headquarters at Langley in December 1980. Now retired, this 20-year CIA veteran called KFI radio (a 50,000-watt station out of Los Angeles, reaching 32 states) on September 17, 1988 during an interview on the air with the author. (A copy of that program is available). According to this ex-agent, who uses the name [redacted] a then member of French intelligence, [redacted] was in Paris for the meetings with Reagan-Bush campaign and Khomeini officials. The French intelligence report was initialled by [redacted] of the French equivalent of the CIA, the Service of External Documentation and Counterespionage (SDECE), who hand-delivered a copy to the CIA (where [redacted] read it in the Agency's files a month later) and hand-delivered another copy to then president-elect Ronald Reagan, in California. This meeting between Reagan and [redacted] is reported in Bob Woodward's recent book, VEIL, pp. 39-41). b6 b7C

There is much additional confirmation about the Paris meetings (there were three; details concerning the other two follow shortly).

[redacted] who [redacted] testified was at the Paris meeting of October 19, 1980 and who [redacted] has acknowledged having met with a self-proclaimed Khomeini emissary at the earlier Washington, D.C. meeting, was reported by the New York Daily News on August 27, 1988 (p. 20) as no longer denying that a Paris meeting may have taken place: [redacted] said he could not deny that some 'self-starters' in the Reagan-Bush campaign 'might have met some Iranians in Paris,' as Honegger (the author) alleged, but insisted that no such meeting was authorized."

West coast arms dealer and businessman [redacted] an eyewitness to the Paris meetings first identified as such by the author in an interview in Washington, D.C. on August 23, 1988, is a CIA-trained pilot who served 13 years as a contract agent for the CIA, and is a long-time colleague of [redacted] CIA-front air service company, Air America, hired [redacted] the pilot who flew William Casey to the Paris meeting (the author's interviews with [redacted] and above-cited Rocky Mountin News article of 10/2/88). On September 23, 1988, [redacted] testified in court in Denver, Colorado that [redacted] was working for the CIA when he was on that mission.

[redacted] former SAVAK officer under cover with Iran's United Nations mission in New York for 18 years and [redacted] to [redacted] for much of that time, has confirmed that [redacted] was at the Paris meeting, based on discussions with [redacted] (interviews with the author of 8/31/87 and 9/27/88).

In the Spring of 1987, an individual claiming to be an eyewitness to the first Paris meeting called KGO radio stating that he was then a secret service officer and that he was with George Bush and Reagan's then campaign [redacted] in Europe in the late fall of 1980 when they paid an Iranian to hold up release of the 52 hostages until Carter was out of office (this tape is on record at KGO radio in San Francisco, whose policy is to release tapes under supoena). This information checks with reports of the above-mentioned 20-year CIA veteran based on the French intelligence report filed on the Paris meeting that one secret service agent accompanied Bush to the meeting.

The then president of Iran, Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, has told numerous journalists (the author; Flora Lewis of the New York Times; Jonathan Silvers of PLAYBOY for the October 1988 issue, "An Election Held Hostage," p. 157) that "my first information was that George Bush met with a representative of Beheshti (whom we now know to have been IRP and Hezbollah founder Jalal Al-Din Farsi) (taped PLAYBOY interview of 4/10/88). Put together with Bani-Sadr's statement to Flora Lewis as reported in her column in the New York Times (8/3/87, "The Wiles of Teheran") that in October 1980 "There was a meeting in Paris between a representative of Beheshti and a representative of the Reagan campaign," it can be deduced that the "top representative of the Reagan campaign" he was referring in Playboy was George Bush. In a telephone interview of September 12, 1988 with journalist [redacted] of KPFK radio out of Los Angeles, Bani-Sadr revealed that his source for this information about the Paris meeting, a former Iranian air force general, may have escaped Iran and might available for interviews.

[redacted] to PLO Chairman Yasir Arafat, told journalist [redacted] that a close friend of Ronald Reagan's and an adviser and top contributor to his 1980 presidential campaign who kept referring to Reagan as "Ronnie," met with [redacted] in Beirut before the 1980 election and asked that the PLO persuade Khomeini to delay the release of the 52 hostages (in PLAYBOY interview with Yassir Arafat, September 1988 issue). (Arafat had earlier negotiated terms for the release of the first 13 hostages set free on Thanksgiving Day 1979, and so was a logical choice). No member of the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign referred to Reagan as "Ronnie" (the author's own experience inside the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign). This familiar name was reserved for old friends of Reagan's "California Cabinet." Significantly, according to Bob Woodward in his book VEIL (p. 39), some of Reagan's old California friends arranged for Reagan's meeting with [redacted] the French SDECE; [redacted] who, according to the aforementioned 20-year CIA veteran, hand-carried a copy of the French intelligence report on the Paris meeting to Reagan in California in November 1980. b6 b7C

A second eyewitness to the Paris meetings, [redacted] then of French intelligence (and therefore probably the author of the aforementioned French intelligence report) has been located in France (contact the author for his contact information).

[redacted] who according to first eyewitness [redacted] was the pilot who flew William Casey to Paris on October 18-19, 1980, told Denver federal circuit judge James R. Carrrigan at a bench conference on Friday, September 23, 1988, that he "was involved in a CIA mission (beginning) October 18, 1980 (the date the planes left the east coast for Paris) at which Bush was present" (Rocky Mountain News, September 24, 1988). During the bench conference the Rocky Mountain News also reported that "the words CIA, NSC, George Bush, Saudi Tycoon and arms dealer [redacted] (the 52) hostages, [redacted] (the Iran-Contra [redacted]), and William Casey could be heard" ("Gold Dealer Gets 41 Years In Bank Scam: [redacted] Claims He Was Agent for the CIA in Iran-Contra Deal," by Sue Lindsey, 9/24/88). [redacted] appeared before the judge at [redacted] sentencing to argue that [redacted] was being made a fall guy by the Agency to keep him from talking about the Paris flight with Casey and [redacted] witnessing of Bush at France's Le Bourget airport. According to [redacted] the CIA veteran, [redacted] was "Casey's pet pilot," who, according the Rocky Mountain News article, had been trained at the Adolf Hitler School of flight at the end of World War II. [redacted] Denver attorney is [redacted]

5) The second of the three Paris meetings also took place on October 19, 1980 at either the Rafael Hotel or Crillon Hotel in Paris, France, a few hours after the first meeting, at approximately 5:00 p.m. Paris time. Bush had already left Paris for the east coast after the earlier noon meeting. The participants at the second 5:00 p.m. meeting were the same as those who had attended the first meeting, but minus Bush and with the probable addition of Cyrus Hashemi, an Iranian arms dealer close to Khomeini who shipped U.S. arms to Iran beginning in 1981 in fulfillment of the agreement made at the Paris meetings. Before his untimely death in London in July 1986, Hashemi had told journalists that his own 1981-82 arms shipments were part of the effort to open channels necessary to help get the (52) hostages released" (San Jose Mercury News, 6/13/87, p. 21A; from the Los Angeles Times). [redacted] was told by a U.S. Customs official that Hashemi, who died in July 1986 in London, was "killed by government agents" (interview with [redacted] of 6/14/88; and San Jose Mercury News, above cite).

6) The third of the three European meetings took place on October 20, 1980 at the Hotel Florida in Paris, France. According to [redacted] and Bani-Sadr, the participants were: [redacted] Cyrus Hashemi (the "H" or "Mr. H" in the Tower Commission report refers to him), [redacted] (a confidant of Ayatollah Beheshti's and a long-time procurer of arms for Iran), [redacted] (sometimes spelled [redacted] who was close to the top of Iran's military arms procurement hierarchy at the time, [redacted] of French intelligence, "a representative of Alexander Haig" (Haig had initiated the secret NATO military supply stores program when he was Supreme Allied Commander of NATO from 1974-79; and it was these same stores which were drawn down, in most cases without letting NATO allies know, and diverted to Iran throughout the 1980's pursuant to the agreement made at the Paris meetings. According to the Washington Post, it was Haig who, as Reagan's new Secretary of State, authorized the first deliveries of U.S. arms to Iran in 1981 (Washington Post, "Haig Said to Allow 1981 Israeli Sale to Iran," 11/29/86, p. 1).

7) [redacted] has told the author that, were [redacted] to say that it was he who was the "Iranian emissary" they met with in Washington, D.C. 2-3 weeks before the Paris meetings, "they wouldn't be lying." [redacted] also told the author that what [redacted] said at the Washington, D.C. meeting -- "We have only one president at a time" -- he took to mean that, unlike Carter, a new Reagan-Bush Administration would be willing to approve renewed arms deliveries to Iran upon gaining power [redacted] already knew [redacted] from when they had worked together on a secret CIA mission to remove sensitive Phoenix missiles and F-14 Aug-9 radar equipment from Iran in late 1978). In pre-1980-election meetings with Carter, [redacted] campaign, and Reagan-Bush campaign officials, [redacted] was usually accompanied by one or two Iranian emissaries headquartered in New York to ensure that he was representing Iran's interests and not just his personal financial interests -- one representing [redacted] and the other, when present, representing [redacted] To test the authenticity of their assurance that a Reagan-Bush Administration would in fact authorize the shipment of U.S. arms to Iran once Reagan-Bush gained office, Reagan-Bush were asked to ask Israel to ship a small amount of U.S. arms BEFORE the 1980 election, which [redacted] did in October 1980 (KEEPING FAITH, POWER AND PRINCIPLE). After the fact of the first pre-election shipment, [redacted] wrote Carter asking for his retroactive "permission," which Carter refused. Infuriated, Carter ordered the pre-election Israeli shipments immediately stopped. But the reliability of Reagan-Bush's promise of future U.S. arms shipments through Israel had already been affirmatively tested and the Iranians were satisfied.

8) [redacted] a Lebanon expert who served on the Reagan-Bush NSC and who was a member of [redacted] anti-"October Surprise" group during the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign, told a group of University of California at Berkeley professors in late 1987 that, at a meeting of the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign's anti-"October Surprise" group in October 1980, [redacted] personally proposed offering U.S. arms to Iran in exchange for a release of the hostages to the Reagan-Bush camp. According to [redacted] account to the Berkeley professors (contact the author for further identifications and contact information), the idea for the hostage-delay-for-arms deal seemed to have originated with [redacted] However, according to [redacted] himself (in a telephone interview with DER SPIEGEL, 8/25/88), it was Senator Tower who had first been approached by the Khomeini emissary and who had put [redacted] on the task of arranging a meeting between the emissary and [redacted] of the Reagan-Bush campaign. Both Tower and Brent Scowcroft of the Tower Commission had been [redacted] And the third member of the Tower Commission, former Carter Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, [redacted] information about President Carter's hostage plans to Hearst reporter [redacted] who in turn gave the information to [redacted] of the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign.

9) The former president of Iran at the time, Abolhassan Bani-Sadr has reported that he received military intelligence reports that senior representatives of the Reagan-Bush campaign, a representative of Khomeini's [redacted] a representative [redacted] and Iranian arms dealers [redacted] and Cyrus Hashemi met in Paris, France in mid October 1980 to formalize the hostage-delay-for-arms agreement (Bani-Sadr interview with PLAYBOY, 4/10/88; interview with Flora Lewis of the New York Times' Paris bureau, reported in the New York Times, 8/3/87). Bani-Sadr also claims to have documents which he will release to appropriate U.S. Congressional authorities (and to the author). Bani-Sadr has also reported in NEW PERSPECTIVES QUARTERLY that tape recordings were made of a meeting of the Iranian Revolutionary Council in which Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti stated that the 52 American hostages "should be used against Bani Sadr." As the Paris meetings which included Beheshti's representative Jalal Al-Din Farsi constituted a betrayal of Bani-Sadr, who was working to free the hostages, as well as of President Carter, this audio tape may include references to the Paris meeting, its purpose or its plans.

Bani-Sadr has also reported that on about October 10, 1980, not long after the early-October-1980 Washington, D.C. meeting between a Khomeini emissary and [redacted] and [redacted] of the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign, Khomeini suddenly changed his previous position that the hostages be released BEFORE the election (OUT OF CONTROL, Leslie Cockburn, pp. 192-193). (At a mid-September 1980 meeting in Bonn, West Germany, Khomeini's negotiator [redacted] had told Carter's negotiator Warren Christopher that Iran wanted to release the hostages BEFORE the election (ALL FALL DOWN by Sick)). Former ambassador [redacted] has confirmed this sudden change in Khomeini's position.

Bani-Sadr has also reported that he received written reports that Secretary of State Alexander Haig had authorized Israeli deliveries of U.S. arms to Iran in late February/early March 1981, arms which were not delivered until July 1981, shortly after Bani-Sadr was forced to leave Iran. These shipments included U.S. Hawk missiles, Lance missiles and Sidewinder missiles and involved Israeli arms dealer [redacted] Iranian arms dealers Cyrus Hashemi (who had been at the Paris meeting) and arms dealer [redacted]

10) Iranian-American arms dealer [redacted] has told the author that he believes that Iranian arms dealer Cyrus Hashemi, who reportedly attended the pre-election Paris meeting, was assassinated by "government agents" shortly after he started saying publicly in mid-1986 that his 1981-82 shipments of U.S. arms to Iran were necessary to obtain the release of the original 52 U.S. embassy hostages.

11) President Carter's CIA Director Stansfield Turner stated in a recent taped interview, that "I do not deny" that the Reagan-Bush campaign negotiated a deal with Iran before the 1980 election; and that "There's something there...You'll be the new Woodward and Bernstein if you can get at it." (Interview with journalist Patrick Edlin of London). b6 b7C

12) [redacted] former SAVAK officer [redacted] at Iran's U.N. mission and [redacted] to [redacted] reports in his book WITNESS (Wm Morrow, 1987, p. 347) that: 1) the Bush-loyal CIA faction persuaded Iranian [redacted] to persuade Khomeini to delay release of the hostages until the moment of Reagan's inauguration; and 2) that the Watergate and Irangate scandals are linked at their very core by the fact that Republican president Richard Nixon accepted an illegal $60 million "campaign contribution" from the Shah of Iran in 1971, which funds were in part laundered through bank accounts in Mexico (WITNESS, p. 192). It was this precise figure, $60 million, which Nixon's then [redacted] told Washington Post reporter [redacted] that CRP had "raised," part of it laundered through Mexico (See "All the President's Men"). Only approximately $1 million of this $60 million was used for the now-infamous political intelligence and sabotage operations perpetrated against the Democrats in the 1972 campaign by CRP and the Nixon White House which formed the basis of the Watergate scandal. The remainder of the Shah-CRP money was used for a massive campaign of covert operations which "Deep Throat" told Woodward involved the entire U.S. intelligence community and which the Watergate revelations were designed as a cover for. [redacted] in Mexico, the country through which much of the $60 million of Iranian money was laundered at the time of Watergate when Bush was Chairman of the Republican National Committee and had to be knowledgeable about the source of the money was made head of research for Bush's 1980 presidential campaign. Watergate was therefore the "first Irangate," whose political espionage, political sabotage, and still-unrevealed covert operations were, according to Bob Woodward's source "Deep Throat," "all a Haldeman operation." Press reports ("Richard Nixon Still Has Something to Hide," L.A. Herald Exam., 7/25/88, p. A11) are once again focusing on the fact that Nixon still is blocking release of more than 40 boxes of Haldeman's files from the Watergate period, probably covering the illegal Iranian "contribution." Coverage of the Iran link between Watergate and Irangate may well speed their release.

13) [redacted] of the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign's Operations Center, [redacted] has reported in a taped interview to the author and journalist Patrick Edlin of London (July 1988) that the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign's anti-"October Surprise" operation was talking not only with [redacted] the Iranian-American arms dealer mentioned above, but also with [redacted] whom [redacted] claims persuaded Khomeini to delay release of the hostages until Reagan's inauguration.

14) Top Irangate reporter for TIME magazine, [redacted] has told the author and other journalists that 4-5 former and active CIA officers have provided TIME with information on the Reagan-Bush campaign's pre-election negotiations with Iran.

15) On November 7, 1986, on the MacNeil-Lehrer Report, [redacted] revealed that President Reagan ordered him on January 21, 1981 to tell the Iranians "the deal's off" unless an additional hostage, Mrs. Cynthia Dwyer, [redacted] was also released. She had been held in Tehran since shortly after the Desert One rescue attempt. (The transcript of this interview is available). [redacted] no longer denies that the Paris meeting(s) may have taken place. The New York Daily News reported on August 27, 1988 that [redacted] stated in an interview that "he could not deny that some 'self-starters' in the Reagan-Bush campaign 'might have met some Iranians in Paris' as [redacted] alleged..."]).

16) [redacted] the [redacted] among the 52 hostages, has told the author that "a deal was done." According to [redacted] his statement was based on knowledgeable contacts inside the CIA.

17) Senate Majority leader Robert Byrd called on the floor of the U.S. Senate on August 7, 1987 for an investigation into the origins of the Iran arms sales in negotiations by the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign (the relevant pages from the Congressional Record are available from the author).

18) U.S. Congressman John Conyers and [redacted] have undertaken a preliminary Congressional investigation -- under the Criminal Subcommittee of the U.S. House of Representatives Committee on the Judiciary -- in response to Senator Byrd's call of August 7, 1987. Conyers' office has copies of memos from President Carter's CIA and State Department during the period October 2-29, 1980 which show that that the Carter Administration rejected Iranian arms dealer [redacted] arms-for-hostages offer and that, unlike the 1980 [redacted] campaign which honorably reported [redacted] approach to it to the Carter State Department, the Reagan-Bush campaign kept the approach of its "Iranian emissary" secret from the Carter Administration.

19) Iran kept its end of the secret pre-election agreement with the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign: The hostages were released just after Reagan took his oath of office, some 20 minutes into his inaugural address -- a piece of timing according to the Miami herald, overseen by [redacted] who had sent a representative to the Paris meetings. b6 b7C

20) The new Reagan-Bush administration also kept its end of the pre-1980-election agreement to deliver $5 billion in U.S. and western arms to Iran. Secretary of State Alexander Haig met with top Israeli officials on February 20, 1981 (Washington Post) and, according to written minutes of that meeting, authorized the first Iran arms and spare parts shipments through Israel, beginning to fulfill the agreement. A total of $100 million ($.1 billion) in U.S. arms flowed in 1981 in some 12 planeloads, one of which went down just inside the Turkey-USSR border on July 18, 1981, as reported in the mainstream press; and an additional $1.2 billion, which added to the $.1 billion totals $1.3 billion, flowed from secret NATO stores through various European countries, especially Italy and West Germany, shortly thereafter. According to the Greek newspaper DIMIKRATIKOS LOGOS (November 29, 1986, as reported by A.P. on November 30, 1986), [redacted] was tape-recorded during his late May 1986 trip to Tehran with [redacted] and Israel's representative [redacted] reminding Iranian officials that by then they had received this precise amount -- $1.3 billion -- in U.S. arms out of the total commitment of $5 billion (a transcript of this tape is available from the LOGOS). (Significantly, $1.2 billion was the amount of Iran's monetary assets which were to have been unfrozen under the provisions of the Algiers Accord AFTER Reagan and Bush gained office; see p. 398 of Gary Sick's book ALL FALL DOWN, paperback edition). The figure of $5 billion for the amount of U.S. arms shipped to Iran (the amount of the Reagan-Bush commitment at the pre-1980-election Paris meetings) has been confirmed by [redacted] World Association of Jews from Islamic Countries (as reported in INTELLIGENCE/PARAPOLITICS, VII:86, 12-13). This may account for reliable reports of a second secret [redacted] trip to Tehran with 23 more tons of U.S. arms in September of 1986 (A.P., November 30, 1986; and REVOLUTION, by former Assistant to the President Martin Anderson, p. 389).

The $.1 billion ($100 million) in 1981-82 U.S. arms deliveries to Iran are not in dispute. They have been directly or indirecty confirmed by President Reagan (to Chris Wallace, November 1986), by Vice Presiden Bush (S.F. Chronicle, 1/27/88, pp. A8 & A10), by William Casey (VEIL), and by the Department of State.

TIME LINE OF EVENTS
OCTOBER SURPRISE STORY

"OCTOBER SURPRISE" was the 1980 Reagan-Bush Campaign's code name for the expectation that President Carter would successfully bring the 52 hostages home in October 1980 to win the election.

Spring 1980 - Bringham Young University professor Richard Beal performs computerized "October Surprise" polling analysis funded by the CIA with surprise results: If Carter brings the 52 hostages home between October 18 and 25, 1980 he will receive a massive 10-percentage-point boost in the polls for a certain victory (HIDDEN POWER, by Roland Perry; interview with Beal's Bringham Young graduate student, [redacted] Beal later works with top Reagan pollster/adviser Richard Wirthlin. b6 b7C

March 1980 - Beal's boss and Reagan Campaign pollster Richard Wirthlin notifies the Reagan Campaign that an "October Surprise" means that Carter will win the election (HIDDEN POWER, by Roland Perry, pp. 123-124, p. 144).

April 18, 1980 - President Carter makes top-secret decision to proceed with the Desert One hostage rescue attempt. Success requires absolute secrecy. (ALL FALL DOWN, by Captain Gary Sick).

April 1980 - Reagan Campaign Manager William Casey is informed in advance of President Carter's top-secret plans for a hostage rescue attempt (THE REBEL, Professor Donald Freed, November 22, 1983).

April 20, 1980 - Just days before the Desert One rescue attempt, long-time friend and colleague of George Bush and a colleague of Reagan-Bush Campaign Manager William Casey, [redacted] publishes details of President Carter's Desert One hostage rescue attempt in the WASHINGTON STAR, which is continuously broadcast into Iran by Radio Iraq and Radio Iran, destroying the secrecy of the mission. [redacted] a shadow campaign of CIA operatives for George Bush's 1988 presidential campaign (S.F. Examiner, February 29, 1988).

April 24-25, 1980 - Desert One hostage rescue attempt fails. Five of the eight helicopters used in the mission are sabotaged aboard the Nimitz aircraft carrier the day before the mission (SECRET WARRIORS, by Steven Emerson, p. 15). [redacted] and [redacted] the Iran/Contra scandal, are also at the center of planning and execution of the mission (San Jose Mercury News, December 12, 1986, p. 23A; The Nation, June 20, 1987, by Christopher Hitchens). Immediately after the failure of the mission, [redacted] of Reagan campaign [redacted] tells [redacted] in Tehran that "the CIA made it fail" (interview with [redacted].

May 1980 - Mrs. Cynthia Dwyer is taken hostage in Iran, becoming the "53rd hostage."

August 1980 - The Reagan Campaign asks Richard Beal to work on counter strategies to an "October Surprise" (HIDDEN POWER, p. 124). Reagan Campaign [redacted] one of two campaign "October Surprise" groups (Albosta Committee Report, Vol. 1, pp. 47-48; New York Times, October 7, 1980; San Jose Mercury News, April 12, 1987, p. 21A).

September 16-18, 1980 - Carter hostage negotiator Warren Christopher and Khomeini negotiator, Iranian [redacted] meet in Bonn, West Germany. [redacted] reveals that Khomeini wants the hostages released BEFORE the election and asks for a list of the U.S. arms and spare parts Carter will release as part of a hostage deal (ALL FALL DOWN, by Gary Sick). Shortly, the Reagan-Bush Campaign learns of the meeting (THE REAGANS: A POLITICAL PORTRAIT, by Peter Hannaford), and panics. The dreaded "October Surprise" appears about to happen.

Late September 1980 - An arms dealer representing the Khomeini regime approaches Senator John Tower with an arms-for-hostages deal [redacted] interview with Martin Kilian of DER SPIEGEL August 25, 1988). Tower asks [redacted] to put the Khomeini emissary together with the Reagan Campaign. Reagan-Bush campaign officials [redacted] and [redacted] then meet secretly in Washington, D.C. with [redacted] and the Khomeini emissary who offers to release the hostages to the Reagan-Bush campaign in exchange for $40 million in U.S.-made arms and spare parts (Washington Post, 11/29/86; San Jose Mercury News, 4/11-12/87). (Within three weeks, George Bush delivers the $40 million to Iran in Paris - see below).

October 10, 1980 - Iran demands a list of arms and spare parts Carter is willing to unfreeze upon release of the 52 hostages (ALL FALL DOWN, by Gary Sick).

October 11, 1980 - President Carter sends Iran a presidential message offering $150 million in U.S. arms and spare parts as part of a hostage release deal (ALL FALL DOWN, by Gary Sick, pp. 368-370). Iran never acknowledges its receipt (same cite).

October 18, 1980 - The opening of the critical "window of vulnerability" for the Reagan-Bush Campaign during which it MUST prevent a hostage release or Carter will win the election. Late that night, Reagan-Bush Campaign Manager William Casey, and Vice-presidential candidate George Bush reportedly leave the east coast for a secret Paris meeting with top Khomeini officials (Rocky Mountain News, October 2, 1988).

October 19, 1980 - George Bush and William Casey meet secretly in Paris, at the Rafael Hotel, with top officials of the Khomeini regime. paying the Iranians $40 million and making a promise of billions in future U.S. arms shipments if the hostages are held until after the election and until Reagan and Bush are in office, ensuring Carter's defeat. Bush leaves for Washington, D.C. after an hour at the meeting. b6 b7C

October 20, 1980 - Second Paris meeting with William Casey, [redacted] and Iranian arms procurement officials, to determine what arms Iran will purchase with the $40 million reverse-ransom payment and how they will be delivered.

October 22, 1980 - Iran suddenly drops all demands to President Carter for arms as part of a hostage deal (New York Times, p. 1).

October 24, 1980 - Reagan-Bush Campaign [redacted] puts [redacted] full-time on the campaign's "October Surprise" intelligence operation (Albosta Subcommittee Repot, Vol. I, p. 50). In the late p.m., a Reagan campaign staffer boasts, "We don't have to worry about an 'October Surprise.' [redacted] cut a deal" (Larry King Live radio, December 4, 1986).

October 28, 1980 - Carter-Reagan presidential debate. In response to a question about the hostages by journalist Barbara Walters, Reagan responds: "I have been accused lately of having a secret plan with regard to the hostages...My ideas require quiet diplomacy, where you don't say what it is you're thinking of doing" (ALL FALL DOWN, by Gary Sick, p. 377).

October 29/30, 1980 - Iranian officials Mohammad Beheshti and [redacted] who had each sent representatives to the Paris meeting of October 19th with George Bush and William Casey, conspire to delay the Iranian parliament's vote on Carter's offer for a hostage release (Miami Herald, August 9, 1987; New York Times, August 3, 1987).

October 30, 1980 - At the early-morning "October Surprise" group meeting, Reagan-Bush campaign manager William Casey boasts that the campaign doesn't have to worry about Carter's winning the election because of a hostage release (HIDDEN POWER, by Roland Perry, p. 153).

Shortly before the November 4, 1980 election - Bush-loyalists at the CIA work with Iranian [redacted] to persuade Khomeini to further delay the release of the 52 hostages until Reagan's inauguration day, January 20, 1981 (WITNESS, by Mansur Rafizadeh, "When the Hostages Didn't Come Home").

November 4, 1980 - [redacted] and [redacted] try to force Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr to sign the arms purchase agreement made by their representatives at the Paris meeting. He refuses, and the decision is made to move

Bani-Sadr out of power before the arms are received (he is forced out of Iran in late June 1981, just before the "big ticket" arms begin to arrive in Iran). b6 b7C

January 20, 1981 - The 52 hostages are released 15 minutes into Ronald Reagan's inaugural address - timing overseen by Iranian official [redacted] who had sent a representative to the October Paris meeting with George Bush and William Casey (Miami Herald).

January 21, 1981 - [redacted] then Reagan's [redacted] tells the President that Mrs. Cynthia Dwyer, [redacted] and the "53rd hostage," is still held captive in Tehran. Reagan responds angrily, "Tell the Iranians that the deal is off" until she is also released (McNeil-Lehrer television news hour, November 7, 1986).

Late January 1981 - Secretary of State Alexander Haig meets with Ariel Sharon of Israel to discuss U.S. arms shipments to Iran (NEWSWEEK, December 8, 1986), and announces that U.S. policy towards Iran depends on the outcome of Mrs. Dwyer's case (IN THESE TIMES, June 24-July 7, 1987, p. 12).

February 9, 1981 - Mrs. Dwyer is released in Iran and returns home.

February 20, 1981 - Secretary of State Alexander Haig approves the first shipments of U.S. arms to Iran through Israel, with the advice and encouragement of his [redacted] and of [redacted] (Wall Street Journal, December 12, 1986, p. 54).

Late February/Early March 1981 - Israel begins shipments of U.S. arms to Iran (L.A. TIMES, January 25, 1987). Cyrus Hashemi, who was reportedly at the Paris meeting with Bush and Casey, also begins shipments of U.S. arms to Iran, shipments which he later states were necessary to obtain the release of the 52 hostages (San Jose Mercury News, June 13, 1987, p. 21A).

March 9, 1981 - Date of the earliest documented invoices for U.S. arms shipments to Iran by Israeli-owned companies. This same day CIA Director William Casey asks President Reagan for a secret presidential directive ("finding") on Iran.

Of the participants in the October 19, 1980 Paris meeting with George Bush, three are now dead: William Casey, Cyrus Hashemi and Jalal al-Din Farsi. Hashemi's [redacted] and Iranian arms dealer [redacted] say that Hashemi was murdered by U.S. government agents. Farsi died in a bomb blast. The knowledgeable Iranian official whom Farsi represented at the meeting, Ayatollah Mohammad Beheshti, is also dead from a bomb attack. Richard Beal, the man who did the CIA-funded "October Surprise" computer study, died in his early forties in 1984.

The only survivors amongst the participants at the October 19, 1980 Paris meeting are: George Bush, [redacted], and [redacted] a long-time officer of Mossad, Israel's secret service.

Israeli Sale Said Allowed By Haig in '81

By Bob Woodward and Walter Pincus
Washington Post Staff Writers

In 1981, then-Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. gave permission for Israel to ship U.S.-made military spare parts and fighter plane tires to Iran, nearly four years before similar shipments set in motion the controversy now besetting the Reagan administration, sources said yesterday.

The arms shipment was intended to help Israel cultivate Iranian military officials who could be valuable in any government succeeding that of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the sources said.

One source characterized Haig's role as granting "approval" for the Israeli shipments worth $10 million to $15 million, but other sources said the secretary's permission was more indirect and only indicated by his failure to object to the plan. As the senior U.S. official responsible for the transfer of U.S.-made arms to third countries, Haig's approval was critical to the Israeli proposal.

Haig's assent followed discussions between his counselor at the State Department, Robert C. McFarlane, and David Kimche, who was director general of Israel's foreign ministry, sources said.

Kimche's 1981 proposal to allow Israel to ship U.S. arms to "moderate" Iranians foreshadowed similar discussions he held nearly four years later with McFarlane, who was then President Reagan's national security adviser, sources said.

A spokesman for Haig last night denied that the former secretary had approved any 1981 shipment by Israel. McFarlane yesterday categorically denied discussing arms shipments to Iran with Kimche in 1981 "or anything even remotely like this."

See IRAN, A8, Col. 1

Haig Said to Allow 1981 Israeli Sale to Iran

IRAN, From A1

"The original notion of renewing talks with Iran occurred in July of last year," McFarlane said. "We never discussed arms to Iran of any sort until last year."

The 1985 discussions led to Israeli shipments of U.S. arms to Iran in September 1985, partly in an attempt to secure Iran's help in freeing American hostages held in Lebanon.

McFarlane's role in 1985 was similar to that of Haig four years earlier in that he gave tacit approval without overtly condoning the shipment, sources said. A source familiar with the 1985 McFarlane-Kimche meeting said that McFarlane had the strong impression when Kimche left his office that the Israelis would proceed with the arms transfer.

"The Iranian fascination cropped up and Bud McFarlane supported it five years ago," said one source who has firsthand knowledge of both Haig's and McFarlane's 1981 roles. "It grew out of the hocus-pocus hopes and strategic planning .... It was one of those 'good ideas,' the hold-close stuff done in secret trips by the new administration to show, 'we're different,' than the Carter administration."

Even before 1981, sources said, McFarlane proposed dramatic covert initiatives involving Iran. In 1980, while he was on the staff of the Senate Armed Services Committee, McFarlane approached the Reagan campaign's foreign policy adviser, Richard V. Allen, with an Iranian exile who proposed to deliver the American hostages then held in Tehran to the Reagan camp prior to the November election. The initiative went nowhere, sources added.

The first hint of the Israeli proposal in 1981 came in late 1980 when Allen was approached by Morris Amitay, an official with the American Israel Political Action Committee, who asked how the incoming administration would view Israel's shipment to Iran of wheel and brake assemblies for F4 fighter planes. Allen was noncommital, sources said.

A senior Reagan administration official said that in 1981 the Israelis attempted to persuade the United States through intelligence channels to work with the Iranians in an effort to get closer to the Iranian military. At the same time, this official said, the Israelis made it clear that Iran would pay more than the world market price for U.S. arms.

In November 1981, then-Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon came to Washington and proposed the Iranian arms shipments to Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, sources said. "Weinberger put up a red light," said one source.

Sharon then proposed it to Haig, who then had McFarlane handle the matter. The shipments were subsequently made, sources said. The sources said McFarlane had a number of discussions with Kimche and Sharon.

When other State Department officials learned that Haig had assented to Israel's shipment of U.S. arms to Iran, they explained to Haig that U.S. export laws barring arms to Iran could not be properly circumvented by making the shipment through third countries such as Israel. Haig also became convinced after further discussion with his aides that any American role in t Israel shipments would be a b policy.

Haig then withdrew approval f other Israeli shipments, accordi to sources with firsthand knov edge. Haig's permission for the i tial shipment was handled very s cretly within the State Departme and no formal decision memos we signed, the sources said.

In May 1982, Haig said in speech that the United States w neutral in the Iran-Iraq war a would continue to refuse to supp military equipment under U.S. co trol to either nation.

Despite Haig's change of hea sources said Israel continued to sh other arms to Iran, as reported The Wall Street Journal yesterday

In interviews published in 198 two senior Israeli officials talk publicly about the role of the Unit States in the Israeli arms shipmen to Iran.

Sharon said in a May 1982 inte view with The Washington Po that the United States was i formed in detail in advance of t arms shipment and offered no o jection.

"We discussed this months a with our American colleagues Sharon said. "We said that notwit standing the tyranny of Khome which we all hate, we have to lea a small window open to this cou try, a tiny small bridge to this cou try."

Sharon said that Iranian militar officers and commanders might b the channel and that the Israe arms sales were "a symbolic supply known to the United States. "W gave them the lists; they knew ex actly," he said.

In a later 1982 interview with The Boston Globe, then-Israeli am bassador to the United States Moshe Arens, said the Israeli arms shipments had been worked out with U.S. consent "at almost the highest levels."

Earlier this month in a television interview, Arens confirmed his 1982 statement that attempts were made to contact moderate elements in Iran. "To the best of my knowledge, they were not successful," he said.

DEAL OF THE DECADE

The story of the Iranian "hostage crisis" is hardly new. It is, in fact, one of the most documented and analyzed events in recent U.S. history. From Nov. 4, 1979, when Iranian students took 65 Americans captive at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, until Jan. 20, 1981, when the remaining 52 Americans were finally released just minutes after Ronald Reagan was sworn in as president, the U.S. public and media were consumed with the hostages' plight. The affair has left an indelible mark on the American consciousness.

But a mounting body of evidence—first reported comprehensively by In These Times on June 24, 1987—indicates that there may have been a dark final chapter to the hostage crisis, a shadowy side of the story that was kept from the American public. This evidence suggests that officials from Reagan's 1980 election campaign cut a deal with Iran before the 1980 election—not to get the U.S. hostages back, but to keep them there to ensure President Carter's defeat.

Such an assertion has extremely serious ramifications—and the editors of In These Times were, to say the least, skeptical when it was brought to our attention. But we were surprised to learn that most of the facts surrounding the alleged deal came directly from reports in the mainstream media. These reports lacked a big-picture context individually, but taken together they had disturbing and compelling implications. After careful consideration throughout the first half of 1987, we decided In These Times readers had a right to at least weigh the following facts for themselves.

- Reagan's top pollster predicted a Carter victory if the White House could pull off an "October Surprise" and gain the hostages' release before the election. Journalists Jack Germond and Jules Witcover wrote that the Reagan campaign anticipated such a surprise with a "trepidation bordering on paranoia."
- According to the New York Times and a congressional report, the Reagan-Bush campaign established an "October Surprise Group"—an "intelligence operation" headed by Reagan-Bush campaign aide Richard Allen—to monitor the Carter administration's hostage negotiations and formulate countermoves.
- Washington Post and Miami Herald reports say Allen attended an extraordinary meeting at a Washington hotel with what the Herald described as "a man who said he represented the Iranian government" in "early October" 1980. According to the Herald, the man proposed to Reagan-Bush campaign aides Allen, Robert McFarlane and Laurence Silberman that Iran release the hostages to Reagan, not Carter, to "ensure President Carter's defeat in the November election."
- According to the Herald, all three future Reagan appointees said they turned down the offer. Allen claimed he wrote up minutes of the meeting but later lost them. None of the three could remember the name of the man they had met with.
- Carter aides negotiating in October 1980 with the Iranian government noted a shift in the Iranian bargaining position. According to former Carter National Security Council staff member Gary Sick, by October 22 the Iranians had changed their demands from spare parts for military equipment to cash assets frozen in the U.S. Such a shift would make sense if Iran knew it would have access to U.S.-made arms during the next administration.
- After the Nov. 4, 1980, election, Carter finalized his hostage agreement. No military goods were shipped, and the U.S. returned $4 billion of the $12 billion of frozen Iranian assets.
- The hostages were released moments after Reagan was sworn into office.
- In early 1981 Iran began receiving U.S.-made weapons from Israel. According to the Washington Post, these shipments violated stated U.S. policy, but had at least the tacit approval of Reagan administration officials.

Admittedly, the above evidence is circumstantial—it provides no "smoking gun." But it does raise important questions about the Reagan campaign and administration—questions In These Times hoped that the mainstream media would investigate more fully.

We were not alone in that hope. Carter, in a letter to writers Abbie Hoffman and Jonathan Silvers, noted, "We have had reports since late summer 1980 about Reagan campaign officials dealing with Iranians concerning delayed release of the American hostages.... [I] have trusted that investigations and historical records would someday let the truth be known." Carter's Iranian counterpart during the hostage crisis, Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, told In These Times he had also heard of the alleged deal. Even released hostage Col. Charles Jack Scott told In These Times that "I've seen compelling circumstantial evidence."

Nonetheless, in the 15 months following the first In These Times report, the U.S. media has, for the most part, demonstrated a distinct lack of interest in the story. Hoffman and Silvers provided the notable exception with a detailed report in the October 1988 Playboy magazine. The respected West German newsmagazine Der Spiegel provided another investigation of the 1980 arms-for-hostages allegations in its September 5 issue.

Both stories added important new details about the purported deal. They showed how CIA and former CIA operatives aided the 1980 Reagan campaign in its efforts to keep on top of the hostage situation. More importantly, they brought to light the possibility that representatives of the Reagan campaign and Iran may have held a series of meetings in Paris, following the Washington meeting, to work out terms of the alleged deal.

Now someone who claims to have been at one of those Paris meetings has given In These Times a first-hand account. Clearly, arms trader Richard Brenneke's assertions about the alleged deal are not the final words on this very important subject. Accompanying In These Times' main story, in fact, is an examination of Brenneke's credibility as a source. In the shadowy world of international intelligence and arms trading, motivations for public statements are not always clear—as demonstrated by the Iran-contra scandal. But as with our story months ago, the editors of In These Times believe our readers deserve to know about Brenneke's charges.

By Joel Bleifuss

IT WAS MID-OCTOBER 1980. THE PRESIDENTIAL election between President Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan was about two weeks away. An all-important final debate between the two candidates loomed little more than a week off. With so much to occupy them in Washington, Paris seemed like the last place on Earth to find top Reagan-Bush campaign aides.

But according to an American arms dealer and a U.S. intelligence source, Paris is exactly where several leading Reagan-Bush campaign representatives gathered on Oct. 19 and 20, 1980. Their alleged mission: to make final arrangements with representatives of the Ayatollah Khomeini on a deal that would delay the release of the 52 American hostages in Iran until after the U.S. election—thereby ensuring a Reagan victory. For their part, the campaign's representatives would give Iran $40 million and arrange for the country to immediately purchase badly needed weapons and spare parts, in defiance of a U.S. arms embargo.

"Satisfy everybody involved": Richard Brenneke, an arms dealer with CIA connections, said he was at the final of three meetings among Reagan-Bush officials, Iranian representatives and international arms dealers. "The purpose of the meetings was to negotiate, not only for the release of the hostages, but also to discuss...how we would go about satisfying everybody involved," Brenneke said last last month in a sworn deposition to a federal judge in Denver. At Brenneke's request U.S. District Judge Jim R. Carrigan agreed to take his September 23 deposition at a closed hearing. On October 1 Denver's Rocky Mountain News obtained a court order to have the hearing's records unsealed.

A senior U.S. intelligence source, who was not at the meetings but claimed access to sensitive files about them, corroborated Brenneke's assertions about the existence and purpose of the three Paris meetings. The source requested anonymity.

Brenneke, in the deposition and in telephone interviews with In These Times, contended that the meeting was held to work out a final agreement on the manner in which the $40 million would be used to furnish Iran with military equipment. The alleged arms transactions apparently violated the arms embargo against the Mideast nation that President Carter had imposed in 1979. That embargo, although officially continued under Reagan, was violated by Reagan's own officials, who approved Israeli arms sales to Iran soon after Reagan took office, in opposition to stated U.S. policy (see accompanying story by Jonathan Silvers).

In his deposition, Brenneke said he attended an Oct. 20, 1980, meeting at the Florida Hotel in Paris at the request of Robert Kerritt, his contact at the CIA. Brenneke claimed to have worked for the CIA on a contract basis from the late '60s until 1985—an assertion the agency denies (see accompanying story on Brenneke's credibility as a source).

Brenneke told In These Times that those attending the meeting, which lasted from about 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., discussed "the nitty-gritty of what [the Iranians] were going to get, what they wanted to get, financing methods and payment programs."

The Iranians had a long shopping list. They desperately needed weaponry. Not only had Iran just entered a bloody war with Iraq, but Khomeini's military—largely equipped with, and dependent on, American-made armaments—had been suffering withdrawal symptoms triggered by Carter's 1979 arms embargo.

Brenneke told In These Times that his role at the meeting was to arrange weapons sales to Iran. He said, to the best of his recollection, he was involved in transactions involving various types of ammunition; Czech-made AK-47 assault rifles, shoulder-fired anti-aircraft missiles and rocket-propelled grenades, both manufactured in the East bloc, and sophisticated American-made aircraft parts. Brenneke told the judge that he would provide, in confidence, "copies of inand later reshipment of those weapons."

Naming names: The Americans present at the meeting, according to Brenneke, included William Casey, the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign chief who later named CIA director, and Donald Gregg, who went on to become Vice President George Bush's national security adviser. Also in attendance,

Arms dealer Richard Brenneke told In These Times that he attended a Paris meeting on Oct. 20, 1980, during which Reagan-Bush campaign representatives "discussed...what [the Iranians] were going to get...financing methods and payment programs."

Brenneke said, were Iranian representatives and international weapons dealers, including Manuchier Ghorbanifar, Cyrus Hashemi, Ahmad Heydari and Robert Benes. Benes had ties to SDECE, France's intelligence agency. Brenneke said that French "foreign ministry types" helped expedite the alleged deal.

The U.S. intelligence source corroborated much of Brenneke's account of who attended the meeting.

At the time of the meeting, Gregg was serving as President Carter's National Security Council (NSC) liaison. But according to Brenneke, Gregg "indicated" to him that the NSC—which advises the president on matters of national security—was not aware of the Paris negotiations. Brenneke told In These Times he suspected that Gregg, who served in the CIA under Bush in 1976, was "looking around the corner" toward the next administration.

But Stephen Hart, a spokesman for the vice president's office, denied that Gregg was at any such meeting. "Don has denied to me that he was ever involved in anything of this ilk, saying it is all 'false' and 'absurd.'"

Casey died in 1987. The only public documents of his 1980 campaign activities—records housed in the Hoover Institution at Stanford University—make no mention of Casey's activities on Oct. 18, 19 and 20, 1980.

Further allegations about Casey's visit to Paris came from Michael Scott, a lawyer for an airplane pilot who was recently convicted of bank fraud. Scott, an attorney for pilot Heinrich Rupp, told In These Times that his client flew four passengers, including Casey, from Washington's National Airport to Le Bourget Airport north of Paris on the night of Oct. 18, 1980. The private jet, according to Scott, was registered to then-Prince Fahd bin Abdulaziz, who is now the king of Saudi Arabia.

Rupp was described by the U.S. intelligence source as "William Casey's favorite pilot." Brenneke, who gave his deposition about the Paris meeting on behalf of his "close friend" Rupp, said he believes Rupp was arrested for "doing something the agency [CIA] asked him to do." Brenneke testified that the pilot had been employed by the CIA since 1957. He said Rupp flew planes for Air America, a CIA front, and was still Going to the source: the debate over Richard Brenneke's credibility

Last May White House correspondents confronted presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater about allegations Richard Brenneke had made linking the vice president's office to drug trafficking by the Nicaraguan contras. Fitzwater—like many others in Washington, D.C.—questioned the arms dealer's credibility. "Wasn't he on trial? I challenge you to look up his court case in New York...[His testimony] was considered by the jury, and considered by the courts, and rejected."

But instead of being the victim of disinformation, the White House was the perpetrator: Brenneke was not on trial, in New York or anywhere else. Even Vice President George Bush later conceded that Brenneke was not under indictment.

Brenneke is a controversial man around Washington. Unlike many in the intelligence and arms-trade community, he has cooperated over the past year with reporters in their investigations of such delicate stories as contragate and the alleged 1980 deal between the Reagan-Bush campaign and the Iranians (see accompanying story).

The arms dealer's defenders say he is a reliable source—someone with precious first-hand insights into the complex world of covert activity. But his critics, the most vocal of whom can be found in the Reagan administration, charge that he is a self-serving teller of tall tales—someone who should never be used as a news source.

Brenneke's critics in the Reagan administration and the CIA are so unrelenting in their denunciations of him, in fact, that one might wonder whether there is a coordinated effort to discredit Brenneke.

The White House [illegible] to dismiss Brenneke's sworn deposition about the alleged 1980 deal between the Reagan-Bush campaign and Iranian officials. "That's a hoot," said White House spokesman Stephen Hart. "I have dealt with allegations from Mr. Brenneke for the last two years. They have never proven true...He has no credibility."

In These Times asked Hart to provide examples of Brenneke's lies. He came up with what he called "two very powerful examples."

The first: "Brenneke has alleged that he had the vice president's sanction to contact Iranians to discuss arms deals, and that is absolutely false."

But Brenneke told In These Times his statements had been misrepresented by Hart. "What I did say was that I had supplied Mr. Bush with information relating to arms sales to Iran in mid-1985 when he was in Portland in January 1986. I never discussed it with Mr. Bush. I never claimed that Mr. Bush authorized me to do anything. I make a very clear distinction between his office and the vice president. I did deal with his office—Don Gregg and Douglas Menarchik." Donald Gregg is the vice president's national security adviser and Lt. Col. E. Douglas Menarchik is one of Gregg's deputies.

The second: "Brenneke has suggested that he had worked for the CIA. And earlier this year the CIA took the extraordinary step of commenting [on his claim]," said Hart. In most instances the CIA neither confirms nor denies the identity of its employees, but "in this case [it] denied that he had ever had anything to do with the agency." Hart added:

Yet Richard Ryan—an investigator for the International Center for Development Policy, a public-policy organization where Brenneke is also employed—called the CIA's denial "ridiculous." Ryan explained that the CIA claimed in a public statement that a letter Brenneke had presented to Congress as evidence of his CIA employment was, in fact, a forgery.

"There is a problem with the CIA claim," said Ryan. "One needs to question where the CIA got the letter of recommendation." He asserted that the only member of the media who ever had access to the letter was a New York Times reporter.

Explained Ryan, "The CIA claimed they received the letter from the Portland Oregonian. But the Oregonian has stated that they never received a copy of the letter of recommendation and therefore could never have supplied it to the CIA. The only logical conclusion that one can draw is that this 'forgery' was drawn from the CIA's own files, which makes it legitimate. The only thing the CIA's denial proves is that they were willing to lie about where they got [the letter] from."

Peter Dale Scott, co-author of the book The Iran Contra Connection and a professor at the University of California at Berkeley, interviewed Brenneke at length about the Iran-contra affair. He believes the arms dealer is credible.

"Brenneke certainly had something to do with the movement of arms to Iran," Scott told In These Times. "With his background, if there was such a [October 20] meeting, he would have been the guy...He would be the logical person to handle the working for the agency in 1990.

Gregg and Casey's role at the meeting, Brenneke said, included "making sure the Iranians didn't freak on the wrong things...like buying a space shuttle. There was great concern by the Americans that what was sent [to Iran] was appropriate for the occasion."

The Americans also managed the finances. None of the $40 million the Reagan-Bush campaign provided to the Iranians changed hands during the meeting he attended, he said. "The money was to be dealt with through Mr. Casey." Brenneke asserted that the $40 million passed through several European banks, including the Banque Lambert in Brussels.

None of the other arms dealers purportedly at the meeting could be reached for comment; Hashemi died under mysterious circumstances in 1986. Reporters' attempts to reach Heydari and Ghorbanifar—a key Iran-gate figure—have been unsuccessful. Bones has refused to talk to reporters.

Brenneke said he did not travel to Paris with the intention of helping Ronald Reagan get elected. "The reason I, along with Hashemi and Bones, went to Paris was because we were told that the hostages' release was imminent. Kerrill [his CIA contact] told me that it was absolutely imperative that someone pay attention to details and be part of the negotiating team. At that time I didn't know who the team was. But I went. After all, people's lives were at stake."

After the meeting, Brenneke "compared notes" with [redacted] and Bones. They "came to the inescapable conclusion" that a deal had been made, and it involved the release of the 52 hostages in January provided that certain conditions were met, specifically the release of arms."

"A month or two later I talked to some folks in the States at Langley [CIA headquarters in Virginia] and they confirmed my suspicions," he concluded.

Mr. X goes to Washington: The alleged Paris meetings were not without precedent. According to reports in the Washington Post, the Miami Herald, Playboy and Der Spiegel, Reagan-Bush campaign representatives and a man who claimed to represent the Iranian government met in Washington, D.C., prior to the alleged Paris meeting.

The reports said Richard Allen, Robert McFarlane and Laurence Silberman met an unknown Iranian representative in the lobby of L'Enfant Plaza Hotel in Washington, D.C.

At the time, Allen was the foreign policy adviser to the Reagan-Bush campaign. He later became Reagan's national security adviser. McFarlane also later served as the president's national security adviser. It was McFarlane who, as Reagan's national security adviser, negotiated the 1985-86 arms-for-hostages deal with Iran. Silberman, an aide to Allen during the campaign, was later appointed to the federal judiciary by Reagan.

Allen said in recent press interviews that in September 1980 an "excitant" McFarlane approached him with the "ridiculous" idea of meeting with an Iranian representative. "McFarlane wanted us to meet [redacted]; he was emphatic and, against my better judgment, I agreed."

In turn, McFarlane described Allen as a "fool," saying his statement was "completely" wrong. Explained McFarlane, "An individual claiming to be Iranian approached me and [he] was referred [by me] to the Reagan campaign staff."

During their meeting at the L'Enfant Plaza Hotel, the Iranian told the three Americans that his country was willing to delay the release of the hostages until after the November 4 presidential election, according to the Miami Herald. All three men insisted that they dismissed this offer. And yet none could remember the name of the Iranian representative with whom they met. Allen said he lost his minutes of the meeting.

Arms business as usual: guns to Iran since 1980

By Jonathan Silvers

RONALD REAGAN'S PROMISE TO WIN CAPTIVE activity—a hallmark of both the 1980 presidential campaign and his subsequent administrations—could not have reached the proportions it did without the assistance of the international defense and intelligence communities. It appears that the most obliging of these accomplices was the Israeli government. According to Israeli intelligence sources, the Mossad, Israel's intelligence agency, has for the past eight years been the White House's favorite vehicle for distributing American aid to causes that are unpopular with the U.S. Congress.

In the circles where such matters are discussed, Israel is known as an aggressive marketer of sophisticated weapons systems. Armed with little more than catalogues and invoices, merchants are routinely dispatched to the world's hot spots, where they pedal everything from Uzis to TOW missiles. Prospective buyers sample wares at Israeli arms franchises around the globe. Israel is an "equal opportunity" trader; it rarely discriminates among nations, even when a transaction may conflict with diplomatic objectives.

When pressed, the Mossad has conceded it has exported arms to Iraq, Jordan and Syria—all sworn enemies of the Jewish state. Experts have placed Israel's annual revenue from these sales in the tens of billions of dollars.

That Israel has managed to conceal such commerce is a tribute to its agents' ingenuity. "The Israelis are understandably reluctant to have their arms trade scrutinized, and the U.S. has generally honored their privacy," said Gary Sick, former National Security Council (NSC) staff member in the Carter administration.

Even when caught red-handed selling U.S. weapons to the Iranians in 1985, Israel managed to avoid international censure. Preoccupied with the notion of criminality in the White House, the congressional Iran-contra investigations diminished or neglected to explore Israel's participation in the arms-for-hostages initiative.

"Our mandate forced us to focus on arms deals in 1985 and 1986," said Arthur Liman, counsel for the Senate Select Committee. "There was evidence of Israeli involvement in other years, but we didn't have the time to pursue it, or the ability to expand the mandate."

So while it was generally accepted that Israel had been Reagan's most serviceable ally, the enormity of its arms trade has yet to be recognized by the U.S. Congress.

Breaking the embargo: Israeli arms merchants were among the first beneficiaries of the Islamic revolution. Shortly after the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was attacked and 65 Americans were taken hostage in November 1979, then-President Jimmy Carter declared a formal embargo against Iran. All shipments were halted and all Iranian assets under American management were frozen, American allies were asked to suspend trade and exert economic pressures of their own against Iran.

Iran's impassioned civilians were able to endure the privation. But without a steady flow of American-made military supplies, the Ayatollah's army—which under the shah had been trained and supplied exclusively by the U.S.—was rapidly approaching paralysis. In desperation, Khomeini's lieutenants contacted Israel in spring 1980 and offered to purchase—at inflated prices—American-made ammunition and spare parts. The Israelis accepted the offer, and secretly arranged to deliver 20 tons of non-lethal material (aircraft tires, brake assemblies, fuses, etc.) to Tehran.

Carter first learned of these negotiations in late June 1980, when he received an urgent communique from then-Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. Begin informed Carter that Israel had delivered one planeload of proscribed parts to Iran. Unless Carter objected, Begin wanted to continue trading; the relationship was immensely profitable.

"Carter was astonished," recalled Sick. "The Israelis were putting at risk their whole military supply relationship with the U.S. We sent a strong message back to Begin that any sales to Iran would be dangerously counterproductive to U.S. interests."

Business is business: Chastised, the Israelis promised to honor the U.S. embargo. Three months later, however, they quietly resumed arms sales after the start of the Iran-Iraq war. "On September 24 [1980], two days after the Iraq invasion, Israel came knocking on my door," said Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, former president of Iran. "We accepted their conditions; we had no choice."

Arms dealer Houshang Lavi also witnessed the Israeli hard-sell. "On two occasions—the minute the shah was overthrown and the minute the Iraq war began—Israel was ferrying supplies to Tehran," he said. "The agents had many channels, sometimes mailing deliveries via Portugal, Italy, China. But always the Israelis were involved."

According to Ephraim Poran, former military adviser to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, Israel rationalized its covert efforts as means of self-preservation. "Because if the Iraqis win, we will find the Soviets on the border with Iran." By strengthening the Iranian military, Israel could repel Iraq—a long-standing adversary—without sacrificing its own troops.

As the Iran-Iraq war intensified in late 1980, Iran depended upon Israel and the black market to supplement its dwindling military inventory. The Israelis, meanwhile, were becoming increasingly hesitant about violating the U.S. embargo. Israel later

Let's make a better deal: Former Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr told Playboy he received intelligence reports that the Iranian at that Washington meeting was an envoy for Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani, the speaker of the Iranian parliament who would later negotiate the 1985-86 arms-for-hostages deal with McFarlane.

Bani-Sadr said that Rafsanjani sent the envoy to propose a deal that was better for Iran than the one being offered by the Carter administration. Bani-Sadr added that he believed Reagan-Bush campaign officials embraced the envoy's proposal. Before returning to Iran, the envoy met with senior campaign advisers, according to Bani-Sadr.

The former Iranian leader said he received reports that one of those subsequent meetings was held in Paris in the two weeks before the election—a claim that supports Hersh's allegations.

Many circumstantial evidence giving credence to allegations of the Paris meetings comes from All Fall Down by Gary Sick, Carter's NSC expert on Iran. In the book, Sick claimed that on Oct. 22, 1980—two days after the last of the purported Paris meetings—Iran changed its negotiating position with Carter officials. Sick maintained that earlier in October the Iranians had demanded American weapons and spare parts, but on Oct. 22 Iran specifically limited its demand to cash assets. "This occurred because Iran had been guaranteed another source of U.S. arms," an Iranian journalist told Playboy.

Allen, who had previously vehemently denied that there ever was a Paris meeting, recently conceded to Lars-Erik Nelson of the New York Daily News that some "self-starters [in the Reagan-Bush campaign] might have met some Iranian wackos in Paris." But Allen insisted that no such meeting was authorized by the campaign.

Broken laws? Whether it involved "self-starters" or top campaign officials, any 1980 deal between Reagan-Bush representatives and Iranian officials raises questions about violations of U.S. law.

"Clearly, the Logan Act is applicable in this situation," said Richard Falk, an expert in international law at Princeton University. The act forbids private citizens from engaging in diplomatic negotiations with foreign governments. Other legal experts supported Falk's opinion.

Falk also said that an arrangement to keep the hostages in Iran would raise questions of legal accountability. "One could make the case that if a delay in the release of the hostages did take place, the persons arranging the delay would have been accomplices to the crime," he said.

But there are questions beyond whether the law was broken. A deal between a U.S. political campaign and a hostile foreign government aimed at changing the course of a presidential election would undermine the democratic systems of the West.

Ronald Reagan praised that system during his inaugural address on Jan. 20, 1981. Referring to the "orderly transfer of authority as called for in the Constitution," the new president noted that "in the eyes of many in the world, this every-four-years ceremony we accept as normal is nothing less than a miracle."

Even for Americans, the transfer of power in 1981 had a miraculous feel. Minutes after Reagan took the oath of office, 52 American hostages were suddenly on their way home from Iran after 444 days in captivity.

But in the cynical and calculated world of international diplomacy, real miracles are rare. As a growing body of evidence suggests, Reagan's eventful inauguration day—and the circumstances leading to it—had little to do with Providence. □

Kevin Sanders, a former Cable News Network reporter, served as a special investigator for In These Times on this report. Miles Harvey, Jim Naureckas, Reese Pendleton and Jonathan Silvers also contributed to the story.

versed its policy. "We eventually decided not to sell any American things to Iran," said Poran.

But Israel was not about to abandon its best customer entirely. The decision to stop exporting American arms did not preclude the covert sale of Israeli-made supplies, the majority of which are indistinguishable from—and interchangeable with—their patented American counterparts. Or, as arms dealer Lavi put it, "A radar tracking device is a radar tracking device, no matter who makes it."

Like any nation involved in clandestine operations, Israel values its deniability, and goes to great lengths to protect it. "Israel has a rather ingenious setup as far as arms sales are concerned," said Sick. "When its salesmen do something that furthers ideological or political objectives, they are officially certified Israeli agents—government emissaries. And when Israel wants to dissociate itself from them, these same dealers are suddenly independents, all official ties severed. The fact is, they all work for Israel."

From May 1980 until Reagan's inauguration in 1981, Israeli arms dealers, official or otherwise, delivered a large amount of U.S. supplies to Tehran through Portugal, Italy and other accommodating ports without attracting the attention of the Carter administration. Bani-Sadr said that by playing fast and loose with export rules, Israel did roughly $50 million to $100 million worth of business with Bani-Sadr's administration, which ended in June 1981.

Changing of the guard: The dramatic change in the American political climate following Reagan's inauguration—chiefly a by-product of the hostages' release in Tehran—emboldened Israel. Within months, then-Defense Minister Ariel Sharon formally proposed U.S. arms sales to Iran—via the Israeli conduit—to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. Weinberger dismissed the idea, noting that such sales directly opposed stated administration policy.

Apparently undaunted, Sharon offered a similar initiative to Secretary of State Alexander Haig, pitching it as a means of befriending alleged Iranian "moderates."

Sharon evidently found some support within the White House. By July 1981 Reagan's Senior Interdepartmental Group (SIG) had reevaluated its hard-line position and found it wanting. SIG eventually recommended that the U.S. quietly encourage shipments of military supplies to Iran by willing third parties. "It was an experimental program," said one senior NSC staff member. "We anxiously awaited the result."

According to the Wall Street Journal, Haig reluctantly approved Sharon's plan in November 1981 at the urging of then-policy analysts Robert McFarlane and Michael Leeden. CIA Director William Casey later explained to journalist Bob Woodward, "The initiative seemed credible to us, based on the future, post-Khomeini era."

With the State Department's acquiescence, Israeli dealers began working overtime, placing orders and making deliveries. No one is certain just how much aid the "moderates" received, but it has been widely reported that billions of dollars worth of sophisticated American military supplies—artillery, TOWs, Hawk missiles, F-4 and F-5 parts—reached Tehran by the time the Iran-contra scandal broke in November 1986.

Sharon had an ulterior motive in soliciting White House support. If Israel could become the sole conduit for U.S. weapons in the Mideast, diplomatic ties between Arab nations and the U.S. would likely suffer. Israel would effectively assure its primacy as America's only strategic ally in the region.

Throughout its first term, the Reagan administration regularly denied that it had anything to do with the resurrection of Iran's military. But in a May 1982 interview with the Washington Post, Sharon said that the White House had been informed in scrupulous detail of Israel's impending sales to Iran and had raised no objections. Israeli Ambassador Moshe Arens confirmed this to the Boston Globe, noting that "the sales had been worked out with the U.S. government consent at almost the highest levels."

In fact, Reagan's Senior Interdepartmental Group agreed in July 1981 that the U.S. should subtly encourage third-party arms sales to Iran as a way of advancing American interests in the Persian Gulf. Deputy Director of Central Intelligence Bobby Ray Inman has said that the CIA monitored Israeli arms shipments to Iran in 1981 and 1982 for the National Security Council. And the U.S. Customs Service reportedly looked the other way when restricted supplies were bound for Iran.

Out of the loop: Nonetheless, it was easy for the White House to feign ignorance. Although eager for Iranian business, the Israelis were discreet. Covert arms sales rarely attracted public attention, and when they did, the U.S. and Israel dismissed them as trivial. On July 20, 1981, a cargo plane returning to Tel Aviv from Tehran via the northern route strayed into Soviet airspace and was shot down by a squadron of MIG-25s. In the aftermath, it was discovered that the plane had been ferrying $30 million worth of American-made M-48 tank parts and ammunition to Iran. The Israeli government denied any involvement in the incident, but several Israeli officials quietly conceded that their agents had commissioned similar flights. The U.S. publicly expressed shock, but privately continued to encourage Israeli shipments.

In 1984, however, Iranian-sponsored terrorist attacks led the Reagan administration to reconsider its clandestine Mideast policy. Rather than mollify the Ayatollah, four years of covert arms sales had invigorated his wrath. In a quixotic effort to shut the floodgates from the U.S. and Israel, the White House launched Operation Staunch. Arms dealers who for years had shipped restricted weapons to Iran with impunity were suddenly arrested. Branded traitors, they were charged with conspiring to violate both the embargo against arms sales to Iran and the U.S. national interest.

Which is ironic, because one year later Ronald Reagan would call such activity patriotism. □

[redacted] was the subject of a background investigation conducted by the FBI in September, 1986, in connection with his appointment to his current position. During the course of that investigation, it was alleged that [redacted] may have changed the language in a defense authorization bill after it had already been approved by the SASC. The proposed legislation concerned the procurement of 120mm mortars. Enclosed are copies of summary memorandum dated September 10, 1986 which contains the results of interviews relative to that allegation, as well as the interviews of Senators Tower, [redacted] and Goldwater as well as the interview of [redacted] Also enclosed is a letter dated October 2, 1986 to The Honorable Barry Goldwater, Chairman, SASC, from John R. Bolton, Assistant Attorney General, Department of Justice, which states that the United States Attorney, District of Columbia, "determined that criminal prosecution of [redacted] was not warranted."

[redacted] was reinterviewed during the course of this investigation concerning this issue, the results of which are incorporated in this summary memorandum.

Barry Goldwater, former United States Senator from Arizona, advised that he had no knowledge of Senator Tower being involved in the addition of language to the defense authorization bill regarding the procurement of mortars for the Army, but added "I'm not saying he didn't." He also commented that a considerable amount of time had passed since the incident had occurred.

On January 5, 1989, contact with Senator John Warner's office assistant disclosed that Senator Warner is unavailable for interview regarding this issue.

[redacted] after being advised of the identities of the interviewing agents and that he was being reinterviewed regarding additional matters arising in the Federal Bureau of Investigation's background investigation of JOHN GOODWIN TOWER, provided the following information:

Regarding the Defense Authorization Act of 1985, and in particular a change in the language of the section regarding the United States Army's purchase of 120mm mortars, he advised that it is not unusual for changes in language to be inserted by either of the two Armed Services Committees or their staffs, the requirement being that all the members initial off on the changes finding their way into the eventual final draft.

The interviewee advised that certain factions of the Army felt that the ground troops were being "short shrifted" with respect to the Reagan build up, in that F-16 Aircraft and Apache Helicopters were being ordered at a time that the ground troops were still utilizing a mortar that had been used in the Korean War. It was felt that there was a need to modernize the mortar inventory, and at least from the staff of the Senate side, it was recognized that an entirely new system would require years of development, where as several countries, for example France, Israel, Spain, and Switzerland, had "off the shelf" mortar systems that would suffice, simultaneously alleviating the need to budget the development cost and the design development time which would be required by a new United States system. As the discussion over the method to modernize the mortar inventory had gone on for some time, the thrust of the new language was to say "look, Secretary of the Army, make a decision on this issue," the choices being constrained to currently available systems. The interviewee related that subsequently at the request of the Army for additional time, Senator Goldwater drafted a letter to the Army advising that they could take whatever time required to make the decision. He related that normally a senator cannot write such a letter, overriding what is in the law, but that since the issue was at that time not controversial, the Senator's decision was not challenged.

This document contains neither recommendations nor conclusions of the FBI. It is the property of the FBI and is loaned to your agency; it and its contents are not to be distributed outside your agency.

The Interviewee related that it was [redacted] constraining the Army to select a contractor no later than February 1, 1985, and that this decision did not overly constrain the competitive process among the contractors as a "very robust competition" ensued. Regarding the selection of February 1, for the constraint, he advised that the budgeting process for the subsequent year, begins in February or March, the budget being presented to the President in January. Thus the date placed into the law was not really arbitrary, but designed to coincide with the time the various committees begin their meetings and mark up. Additionally, the two Armed Services Committees did not have to fund the project if the Army didn't submit it's proposal, thus the responsibility for the selection for the mortar contractor was in the Army's hands, and the time frame constrained only by their own decision-making process.

He stipulated that the appointee's only involvement in this process was agreeing to the position promulgated by his staff, and that the appointee had no original input regarding the decision. He opined that, as this was one of about three thousand issues in the Defense Authorization Act of 1985, the appointee would probably not even recall the incident. The interviewee advised that neither the appointee nor anyone else involved in the decision-making process regarding constraining the Army to select it's mortar contractor by February 1, 1985, stood to benefit from the constraint. He related that there were no alleged or asserted gratuities involved, nor were any future consulting opportunities realized or lost. The interviewee at no time recalls advising Senator WARNER [redacted] to add the language concerning the 120mm mortar date constraint to the Act.

Regarding the MELVYN PAISLEY nomination to become Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Research, Engineering and Systems, he describes as "preposterous" the assertion that [redacted] directed anyone on the Armed Services Committee, to include [redacted] the appointee, to withhold derogatory information regarding PAISLEY, developed during the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Special Inquiry, from the members of the Senate Armed Service Committee, or from the Senate during their confirmation hearings. He advised that there was "absolutely" no adverse information transmitted to the appointee, [redacted] or any other member of the committee, regarding PAISLEY. The committee had asked for, but was refused, the raw Federal Bureau of Investigation data because there was no need for it.

Regarding PAISLEY, he commented "TOWER didn't know PAISLEY; none of us knew who he was." He iterated that neither he nor the appointee or [redacted], to his knowledge, were ever approached by either [redacted] regarding PAISLEY.

He recalls reading in the newspaper some time ago that [redacted] His comment regarding that letter was "that's just nonsense; the letter would have come to [redacted] there was no such letter.". He continued that there is no such letter in his files nor record of any such letter in Committee files. The interviewee related that as a matter of routine, a derogatory letter concerning an appointee would be routed to the chairman and then subsequently to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He advised that a copy would be placed in an appointee's nomination file, a file which contains financial disclosure forms and other information required by the Senate Armed Services Committee. When queried as to what would happen to a derogatory letter received by the Senate Armed Services Committee regarding an individual whose name was not at that point placed in nomination, he related that such a letter would be placed in a "subject" file under the individual's name coming to light during any subsequent nomination.

He advised that as a practical matter, if derogatory information was received regarding a Presidential appointee, this information would have been passed through the Chairman to the White House Counsel's Office, and subsequently to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Regarding derogatory information concerning PAISLEY, he related that he heard none until about 1986 when he heard "some crazy thing about his killing his first wife or being involved in something like that," an assertion which he thought to be "preposterous." He does not recall, from where he heard this information.

The interviewee stipulated that neither he, nor the appointee or [redacted] to his knowledge, ever received any direction to hold back any information regarding PAISLEY and that neither he, nor the appointee or [redacted] to his knowledge, received any letters from any of [redacted] or from a [redacted]

[redacted] was advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and that he was being interviewed regarding the background investigation of JOHN GOODWIN TOWER. [redacted] provided the following information:

[redacted] was asked whether he was familiar with a letter directed to Senator TOWER, who was then Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, [redacted] dated [redacted] containing derogatory information regarding MELVIN R. PAISLEY, who was being considered for a position as the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, for Research, Engineering and Systems. [redacted] replied that he first heard of the letter, through press accounts, where he saw a reference made to it. He personally did not recall the letter. The interviewing agents then allowed [redacted] to review the said letter as well as [redacted] to the letter. After reviewing both the letter from [redacted] and [redacted] to her letter, [redacted] was still unable to recollect the letter.

[redacted] advised that it was not unusual for [redacted] Chairman, JOHN TOWER. [redacted] many such letters, and advised that the letter in question, appeared to be directed to TOWER, before PAISLEY'S name was submitted for nomination.

When asked what the normal procedure for such incoming correspondence was at that time, [redacted] advised that the letter normally would have been filed both chronologically and by subject. These were known commonly as "the correspondence files." [redacted] would then subsequently be copied and a carbon would also be filed. If a derogatory correspondence was received regarding a pending nominee, it would be brought to the attention of the Committee and the Committee Chairman. If the information contains derogatory information concerning someone who is not presently up for nomination, it would not be submitted to the Committee or forwarded to the Committee Chairman. [redacted] further advised that shortly after [redacted] correspondence directed to [redacted] dated [redacted] he left his post as [redacted] To the best of [redacted] knowledge, this information was never forwarded to Senator TOWER or to the Committee.

When asked whether derogatory information contained in a subject's file would be retrieved and sent to the Committee, when the subject's name was submitted for nomination, [redacted] advised that it should have been retrieved, but since [redacted] he could not recall whether the letter in question was ever retrieved. He further stated that it is not unusual for the Committee to get letters of all types, both critical and favorable, regarding appointees or potential appointees. When asked whether [redacted] any other letters specifically one from [redacted] responded in the negative. He further advised that to the best of his knowledge, TOWER was not familiar with any negative or derogatory information regarding PAISLEY, during that time period.

In retrospect, after seeing PAISLEY'S name appear in the media, [redacted] recalled that PAISLEY had received a favorable recommendation from Senator JACKSON, who was a member of the Committee, at the time. This recommendation would have been a major factor in the minds of both Senator TOWER, and the other Committee members, while reviewing the recommendation. [redacted] could provide no other further pertinent information.

He advised that at no time did he personally request JOHN TOWER [redacted] or [redacted] not to pass on any derogatory information concerning MELVEN PAISLEY, who was under consideration and eventually received the position of Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Research and Development/Engineering. He stated he was acquainted with PAISLEY in that PAISLEY was a BOEING official who had worked in Seattle at the same time as himself. He did not socialize and personally considered PAISLEY to be "rowdy", in that PAISLEY was a heavy drinker and heavy smoker.

[redacted] pointed out that due to his [redacted] affiliation, he totally isolated himself from knowledge or involvement with any individuals case taken under consideration for governmental appointment to include PAISLEY'S situation. He had no knowledge of the results of the FBI background investigation of PAISLEY and neither he nor any member of his staff ever saw the FBI results or was informed of the results of the investigation. He was of the opinion that due to the positions held by TOWER [redacted] i.e. Chairman and [redacted] respectively of the Armed Services Committee that they received copies of all FBI background investigations which would include PAISLEY'S. His only knowledge of allegations concerning PAISLEY were those printed in the newspaper and the extent of which he could no longer recall.

JOHN G. TOWER, 2101 L Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. was advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and was further advised that additional questions were necessary in connection with the background investigation being conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation concerning TOWER.

TOWER was advised that an allegation had been made that he [redacted] had added a provision to the 1985 Defense Authorization Act which directed the United States Army to make a decision to purchase a 120mm Mortar within a certain time period. The allegation further states that the only company which was able to fulfill this request was an Israeli Company. [redacted] when asked why he had made these changes, related that TOWER had asked him to do so, according to this allegation. TOWER stated that he did not specifically recall the 120mm Mortar Project. In addition, he does not recall any change in the language of the Defense Authorization Act of 1985 concerning this mortar. In any case, however, a change of that sort could not have been made by one individual on the committee without the approval or "sign-off" of the entire committee. TOWER stated that he did not remember Israeli participation in this particular project, but advised that purchasing such items from the Israelis was not unusual and was something which the Defense Department has done many times over the years. b6 b7C

TOWER was advised that an allegation had been made concerning the Senate Armed Services Committee's approval of the nomination of MELVIN PAISLEY for the position of Assistant Secretary of the Navy during 1981. TOWER was asked whether or not he recalled ever learning any derogatory information concerning PAISLEY prior to PAISLEY's confirmation by the United States Senate for this position. TOWER advised that he did not recall ever learning any derogatory or detrimental information concerning PAISLEY prior to his confirmation by the United States Senate. TOWER was asked to describe the circumstances under which he, as Chairman of the committee, would have been given access to reports prepared at the request of the White House by the Federal Bureau of Investigation concerning an appointee in general, and was asked whether he specifically recalled reviewing any Federal Bureau of Investigation reports concerning PAISLEY'S nomination. TOWER stated that he does not recall ever reviewing any reports by the Federal Bureau of Investigation concerning PAISLEY or ever being briefed concerning the content of these reports at that time. TOWER advised that the usual procedure concerning a nomination such as PAISLEY's would have been for the White House to send a "trust me" letter to the United States Senate, a letter which states that a background investigation had been conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the investigation contained nothing derogatory. Although TOWER does not specifically recall receiving such a letter in PAISLEY's case, TOWER has recently spoken to [redacted] who then served as [redacted] and [redacted] advised that he did recall receiving a "trust me" letter in the case of MELVIN PAISLEY. In the case of a nomination where no derogatory information has been brought to the attention of the Senators, and where the Senate receives a "trust me" letter from the White House, the usual procedure was for the Senate not to review any Federal Bureau of Investigation reports concerning a nominee. However, if there was a reason for the Senate to request the reports, such as the Senate becoming aware of derogatory information, it could request to be allowed to review reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Initially, the Senator would usually be given a summary of the investigation, but could ask additional questions and could be given additional, more specific reports, if necessary. TOWER repeated that he did not recall any review of FBI reports concerning PAISLEY.

In summary, TOWER stated that because no derogatory information had ever been brought to his attention concerning PAISLEY, and since PAISLEY enjoyed very strong support on the committee from Senator JACKSON of Washington State, the nomination of MELVIN PAISLEY was approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee without ever reviewing reports by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. TOWER stated that the PAISLEY nomination did not get either more or less attention than any other nominee who came before the committee.

TOWER was asked specifically whether he recalls ever receiving any letters containing derogatory information concerning PAISLEY. He responded that he did not ever recall he or the committee receiving any letters containing derogatory information concerning PAISLEY. TOWER was advised that an allegation had been made by an individual that [redacted] and [redacted] had contacted TOWER during the 1981 nomination hearings of MELVIN PAISLEY, asking TOWER not to reveal to the committee the derogatory information which was contained in Federal Bureau of Investigation reports on PAISLEY, thus eliminating any problem with his confirmation. TOWER stated that he does not ever recall meeting [redacted] and thus does not ever recall being contacted by him. He does know who [redacted] is, but was never asked by [redacted] not to reveal derogatory information contained in Federal Bureau of Investigation reports, since TOWER never did learn any derogatory information about PAISLEY and never did review FBI reports in that matter. TOWER was asked whether he ever directed anyone such as [redacted] not to divulge derogatory information to the Senate Armed Services Committee. TOWER replied in the negative, stating that he had never advised anyone not to divulge such information to the committee.

TOWER was advised that an allegation had been made that he gave an expensive gift to [redacted] a gift which was paid for out of campaign funds. TOWER responded that he had never given [redacted] any gifts which were not paid for out of his own personal funds. Similarly, he never gave or presented to [redacted] any gifts which came from committees or other organizations, gifts which might have been considered to be from TOWER but which were paid by campaign or other committee funds. TOWER was asked to name the specific gifts which he has given to [redacted] and to state their approximate value. He advised that he gave her a crystal dish for Christmas 1985, a dish which was valued at less than $75. For Christmas 1986, he made a gift to her of the care and feeding of one particular baboon which remained house at the Dallas Zoo. This gift was valued at approximately $800 and is considered a donation to the zoo. For Christmas 1987, TOWER have [redacted] a mink coat which was valued at approximately $7,000. For Christmas 1988, he gave her a gold ring which was valued at approximately $4,000. In addition, for Christmases 1987 and 1988, he gave her the gift of the care and feeding of one zoo animal each year. As was the case during Christmas 1986, the animal remained in the Dallas Zoo, and the gift was considered a donation to the Dallas Zoo.

TOWER was advised that an allegation had been made that he was lobbying during the time period December 1987 - January 1988, in connection with the C-FIN Reprogramming Project. TOWER was asked whether he recalls having made any telephone calls to staff members of the Senate Armed Services Committee and to describe the circumstances and purpose of each call. TOWER stated that he is certain that he "didn't make any lobbying calls" during that time but he might have called someone on the committee staff inquiring about the status of legislation on that C-FIN Project asking "what's going on down there". He stated, however, that he did not recall the identity of this person who he might have called. When asked if he had mentioned specific contractors in connection with calls made to the Senate Armed Services Committee, TOWER advised that it would be difficult for one to discuss any project such as C-FIN without mentioning the names of specific contractors. In particular, he feels that he might well have mentioned the name Lockheed in connection with this project because Lockheed was not originally part of this contract and had only become part of it later. He does not specifically recall mentioning Lockheed and cannot say why he might have done so except as just stated. TOWER advised that he has never been retained by Lockheed in any paid capacity. TOWER stated that he always made a conscious effort not to lobby before he registered as a lobbyist, and often sought the advice of counsel before making such calls. He cautioned that merely mentioning the name of a contractor, even one with whom he had a prior relationship, did not constitute lobbying, in his opinion.

The following information was provided by a person here referred to as WFT-4, who requested that his identity remain confidential and not be disclosed outside the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). For convenience, the source may be referred to as "he" when appropriate. No inference regarding the sex of the source may be made from this usage.

WFT-4 was contacted concerning his knowledge of the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER and a background clearance investigation conducted by the FBI in regards to TOWER's suitability for a high level position in the Federal Government and access to classified or sensitive information. WFT-4 stated he has known TOWER on a professional basis for approximately ten years. WFT-4 was familiar with TOWER's work on Capitol Hill along with his work on the Committee on Armed Services.

WFT-4 characterized TOWER as being "prickly". He explained that TOWER was hard-driving to an extreme and was known to "step on colleagues toes". WFT-4 stated that TOWER was Chairman of the Committee on Armed Services and was overly strong and unaccommodating at times. WFT-4 stated TOWER did not compromise with his colleagues as past Chairmen on the Committee had or as other Committee Chairmen did. When asked to describe TOWER's personality, he said "cool". WFT-4 could not comment further on this statement or provide further details. WFT-4 believed TOWER was "not very accommodating with opponents of his position" but was competent, intelligent and knowledgeable on defense issues. WFT-4 added TOWER was known to get things accomplished although he was difficult to deal with at times.

WFT-4 knew of no derogatory information regarding TOWER's character, associates, reputation or loyalty to the United States Government. WFT-4 knew of no alcohol or prescription drug abuse by TOWER. He saw no indication of illicit drug use, including marijuana by TOWER nor of TOWER ever buying or selling illegal drugs. WFT-4 could not comment on TOWER's financial stability but knew of no unfavorable rumors or information regarding TOWER's personal finances. WFT-4 believed TOWER to be unbiased against any one class of citizen or racial, ethnic or religious group. WFT-4 knew TOWER to have past clearances with the Federal government and believed he should continue to have access to classified or sensitive information.

Regarding allegations of alleged sexual indiscretions by TOWER both in the United States (U.S.) and abroad with U.S. or foreign nationals, WFT-4 had no personal knowledge. He stated he knew various newspapers carried articles regarding these allegations. WFT-4 was not in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1985-1986 with TOWER.

WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of excessive alcohol consumption by TOWER and was unfamiliar with this allegation.

WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of any mental instabilities by TOWER which would include suicidal tendencies.

Regarding a potential conflict of interest allegation concerning TOWER's past work for various defense contractors, WFT-4 stated he has read articles pertaining to this allegation. He advised the articles give an "appearance of a conflict" but no concrete evidence to support the allegation. WFT-4 stated he knew of no one that TOWER would have lobbied on Capitol Hill on the behalf of defense contractors he represented.

WFT-4 was familiar that a large amount of money was raised at a dinner when TOWER was running for re-election. WFT-4 did not know what TOWER did with the money raised as campaign contributions to his re-election. He knew this point to be raised in various newspaper articles which could cause an ethics problem to TOWER if not fully explained. Overall, WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of any illegal contributions to TOWER's campaign or illegal expenditures from campaign funds.

WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of any type of illegal banking activities engaged in by TOWER and relating to the Republic Bank Corporation, Dallas, Texas.

WFT-4 provided additional information to the investigating agents in regard to specific ethical questions relating to TOWER's political career and to TOWER's overall credibility. WFT-4 stated in 1985, a 120 millimeter mortar purchase was placed in the "FY85 Defense Authorization Bill". The language of the purchase got into the bill directing the Army to make a decision on the mortar within sixty to ninety days. WFT-4 said this provision was not in either the original House or Senate Bill. During the Spring of 1985, the addition was discovered and [redacted] "got into some difficulty" over it. WFT-4 said that [redacted] allegedly told Senator WARNER that TOWER [redacted] insert the language into the bill. WFT-4 stated he was not sure if TOWER did anything wrong with this insertion but believed it was important to mention since only one company could fulfill the Army's specification on the mortar in question and within the time period specified. WFT-4 could not state the name of the company able to supply the mortar to the Army within the time constraints listed. WFT-4 again reiterated that even if TOWER was responsible for the insertion, "it may not be an improper motive". WFT-4 could provide no personal knowledge of TOWER's involvement regarding this event. b6 b7C

WFT-4 related that in 1981, MELVYN R. PAISLEY was nominated to be the Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Research, Engineering and Systems). A background investigation was conducted by the FBI where serious allegations (bribery and wiretapping) were made against PAISLEY which did not contain any substantiation. This file was given to the White House in 1981. According to the records of the Committee on Armed Services, the FBI report was not given to them for review. At that time, the Chairman of the Committee was TOWER. WFT-4 stated that in October, 1988, Senators SAM NUNN and JOHN WARNER reviewed the FBI report and issued a joint statement herein attached and incorporated into this FD-302 stating their findings. Also, on November 30, 1988, TOWER was quoted in a newspaper article as having no knowledge of any derogatory information regarding PAISLEY and as receiving no such information from the White House itself. In a June 26, 1988, article from the Los Angeles Times, entitled, "Earlier Allegations About Paisley Told", WFT-4 stated TOWER received a letter from [redacted] The letter was sent to then Senator JOHN TOWER, Chairman of the Armed Services Committee in November, 1981, stating that PAISLEY was known to take bribes. WFT-4 raised the question of credibility and ethics in TOWER. WFT-4 stated if serious allegations were made and either the White House or TOWER (possibly both) knew, whose decision was it not to inform the Committee on Armed Services in 1981 as to these allegations? WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of TOWER's involvement regarding this event.

When asked if TOWER was suitable for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government, WFT-4 stated he could not personally recommend TOWER to the appointment although he is qualified in the usual sense. By this, WFT-4 meant TOWER had complete knowledge of the issues pertinent to the position. He added "provided all background investigations work out", WFT-4 believed TOWER could be trusted and that the President could have trust and confidence in him. WFT-4 believed TOWER was questionable regarding his open-mindedness on different positions on defense issues, his position on procurement issues, and the possibility of "bringing excess baggage" to the position such as the appearance of a conflict of interest in regards to past work for various defense contractors and his cool relationship with former colleagues on Capitol Hill.

STATEMENT OF SENATOR SAM NUNN, CHAIRMAN AND SENATOR JOHN WARNER, RANKING MINORITY MEMBER
SENATE ARMED SERVICES COMMITTEE TO THE MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE REGARDING COMMITTEE CONFIRMATION PROCEDURES
NOVEMBER 29, 1988

As we prepare to handle the large number of nominations that will be submitted by the new Administration, we would like to remind you of the procedures we have instituted in handling the nomination confirmation process before the Committee. You will recall that there were a number of press reports this past summer concerning alleged wrongdoing by Mr. Melvyn Paisley and concerning whether certain matters were brought to the attention of this Committee during Mr. Paisley's confirmation as Assistant Secretary of the Navy in 1981. As part of a review of these issues, I wrote, in my capacity as Committee Chairman, to the Counsel to the President on July 28, 1988, asking that the Committee be provided with such information as was contained in the FBI background investigation of Mr. Paisley prior to his confirmation in November 1981. We undertook this review for the purpose of assessing the adequacy of our procedures for reviewing the background and qualifications of nominees.

The Counsel to the President agreed to provide Senator Warner and myself with access to the FBI's 1981 report of its background investigation. Senator Warner and I both reviewed that file in October.

There are serious allegations in the FBI file, which, if true, would have raised questions about Mr. Paisley's suitability for the position for which he was nominated. We want to emphasize that these were only allegations and that the file did not contain substantiation. However, it is clear that the White House in 1981 should have requested further investigation to help clear up these allegations. As best as we can tell, that was not done. With respect to this Committee, there is no information in the records of the Armed Services Committee to indicate whether this FBI report was either reviewed by the then leadership of the Committee or, if reviewed, whether it prompted any further investigation of the allegations.

We must emphasize that the material in the file to which we are referring consists only of allegations, not proven facts. We cannot speculate as to whether any further investigation might have revealed information that would have changed the Committee's action on Mr. Paisely's nomination. However, suffice it to say that if the information in the file had been brought to the attention of Senator Warner or me, we would not have been prepared to act on the nomination without further investigation and additional information.

But more importantly, our review of this file reconfirms the importance of the revisions we have made in our Committee's nomination process during the last two years. These include: (1) developing and implementing written procedures for handling nominations to ensure a thorough and consistent review; (2) requiring each nominee to fill out a detailed questionnaire designed to ensure thoroughness as well as consistency in obtaining information related to the nominee's qualifications and potential conflicts of interests; (3) requiring the General Counsel of the agency concerned to submit a letter certifying that the nominee does not have a conflict of interest, or an appearance of a conflict of interest, with respect to the position for which he or she has been nominated; (4) obtaining a letter from the Counsel to the President describing the nature and scope of the FBI's investigation of the nominee; and (5) ensuring that the Chairman and Ranking Member, or a Member of the Committee designated by them, review the summary of the FBI file on each nominee.

These procedures ensure that, with respect to every civilian nomination before this Committee, the FBI files are reviewed and we receive a complete report from the White House on the scope of the background investigation. These procedures have enabled us to follow up and resolve a number of problems that have arisen during the confirmation process.

We have directed the staff to review our past experiences and our current procedures and to recommend such changes as may be necessary to fulfill our role in the confirmation process. We welcome the suggestions of the Members of the Committee as we proceed to further strengthen these procedures.

Earlier Allegations About Paisley Told

Fellow Boeing Workers Accused Him in 1978 of Bribing Military Officials

By BOB DROGIN and GLENN F. BUNTING, Times Staff Writers

SEATTLE—Melvyn R. Paisley, a former assistant Navy secretary who is a central figure in the sweeping Pentagon fraud scandal, was accused a decade ago by his own fellow executives of bribing military officials and bugging the offices of competitors when he worked for the Boeing Co., according to retired Boeing officials and documents obtained by The Times.

Two executives became so alarmed that in 1978, shortly after leaving the company, they went to Boeing management to express concern about Paisley's conduct, officials said in lengthy interviews. At the special management briefing they also complained that Paisley charged fees for prostitutes to his expense account, according to an agenda of the session made available to The Times.

"Usually every major company has one guy who does the dirty business," former Boeing executive James Durst said in an interview at his home. "He was the guy."

Ex-Fighter Pilot

The disclosures about Paisley are the latest in an emerging picture of a high-flying ex-fighter pilot with a penchant for testing the boundaries of the rules. His reputation for driving hard and living fast contributed to a career marked by allegations of questionable conduct.

The revelations also raise questions about how Paisley was able to be confirmed to one of the most powerful positions in the Defense Department, particularly after the FBI was told during a 1981 background check that he had taken gratuities including cash and a sewing machine.

During his employment at Boeing, where Paisley spent most of his defense industry career, he is believed to have built a network of individuals whom he used to further his personal business. It was these associations, not necessarily linked to the company itself, that Paisley later allegedly relied on to improperly obtain information in schemes outlined by government sources familiar with the current investigation.

Deputy Was Suspected

One association was with James E. Gaines, whom Paisley hired at Boeing and who later joined him at the Pentagon as his deputy. After Paisley left the Defense Department, Gaines stayed with the Navy and is now suspected of being a major supplier of classified and proprietary material to Paisley, according to sources and documents.

Another former Boeing official, who also worked at the Pentagon during Paisley's tenure said, "Boeing didn't pay bribes, but Paisley did.

"He's dishonest. Everything he did, there was something devious about it," said this official, who spoke on the condition that he not be identified. He added that he believed Paisley acted on his own in his questionable practices.

Paisley's wife, Vicki A. Paisley, would not accept calls. She said her husband "would have no comment" and referred inquiries to the couple's lawyer, Lawrence E. Barcella, who was not available.

One longtime Seattle friend of Paisley who requested anonymity characterized him as a dashing and adventuresome personality, saying. "There isn't anything Mel hasn't done." But, the friend added, "he's a real survivor. I'm sure he'll survive this—in his own way."

In his 27 years at Boeing, which included a high-level position as a manager of international marketing, Paisley openly bragged about his exploits, former company officials said.

Paisley was known as a "hard-drinking, two-fisted man's man" who would stop at nothing to get his way, Durst said. "He loved to talk, he loved to brag. Mel had certain priorities: women, money and business—particularly women," he said.

"In a drab company, he was a colorful figure."

Durst also said that Paisley told colleagues about bugging a competitor for a military contract in 1970, about bribing U.S. military officers overseas and about hiding payoffs and wild parties with prostitutes on his military-contract expense reports.

Doubted He'd Last

Indeed, when Paisley went to Washington to work for Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr., former colleagues made a bet on how long he would last.

"People used to laugh and say he won't last six months," Durst said. "As soon as they do a security check, he'll be out. I guess they never did. We never thought he'd last."

In Spokane, Mildred R. McGetrick, one of Paisley's three ex-wives, said she told the FBI that Paisley was "dishonest with money." She said she also told federal agents that Paisley took gratuities including cash and gifts.

Her sister, Mickey Pierson, said she sent a letter to then-Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, which was considering Paisley's appointment in November, 1981, saying that "Mr. Paisley has been known to take bribes" that included a Singer sewing machine from a company doing business with Boeing.

"Nobody listened. To this day it puzzles me how Paisley won confirmation for such a sensitive job," McGetrick said.

Sue Schnitzer, an FBI spokeswoman, said the bureau's background report was turned over to the White House "without comment or recommendation" on Sept. 29, 1981. She would not discuss details of the report. Attempts to reach Tower were not successful.

Paisley, who joined Boeing in 1954, developed a keen interest in Washington after the 1980 elections when it became apparent that Lehman would be the new Reagan Administration's choice to head the Navy Department. Earlier, Paisley had hired Lehman to work as a consultant for Boeing and the two had become good friends. In 1981, Lehman asked Paisley to be one of his top assistants. He ultimately assumed considerable control over Navy procurement.

As assistant secretary in charge of research and development, Paisley would preside over work on such ultra-sensitive technologies as submarine listening and quieting devices, stealth aircraft and missiles, satellite reconnaissance projects and electronic jammers. Not only did the job require Senate confirmation, but Paisley would have to pass a detailed FBI background check for security clearances.

Durst, who has not seen Paisley since he left the company in 1977, spent five years trying to get Boeing to fire Paisley, and then trying to warn the Defense Department, President Reagan's aides and the FBI that Paisley was a security risk.

He told executives that he had bribed MAGs," Durst said, a reference to U.S. military advisory groups abroad. He said Paisley used a New York-based shipping company to "launder the cash." Paisley was never charged.

Another former Boeing executive said he too tried to undermine Paisley's move into the Navy Department.

"We tried to tell people—we went to people in the Pentagon to tell them that Paisley was no good," said the retired executive, adding that he did not know Durst very well and had pursued his efforts against Paisley independently.

He said he and his closest colleagues believed they had to try to prevent Paisley from getting the Pentagon appointment "for the good of our government."

Australian Complaint

At one point, Durst said, a prominent Boeing consultant in Australia, Sir Edwin Hicks, complained that Paisley was so blatant in his offers of payoffs there that Paisley was made persona non grata in Australia.

"He was red-faced," Durst recalled about his meeting with a furious Hicks, who, he said, died two years ago. "He said Paisley had tried to buy people, pay under the table."

In May, 1978, Durst and a colleague decided that corruption was so rampant at Boeing that they asked for a meeting with Benjamin T. Plymale, then vice president at Boeing Aerospace and Paisley's direct boss.

Over lunch at the Hyatt House at the Sea-Tac Airport, Durst used a 16-page typewritten "white paper" he had prepared to make the case for a thorough house-cleaning. Durst said he and his colleague had already left Boeing and were hoping to win a consulting contract.

Page by page, the paper outlined poor morale, loose organization, incompetent management, poor professionalism and other management problems. But the list on Page 7 was explosive—it was titled "Deeply embedded corruption."

Durst's original dog-eared copy of the memo shows that Paisley's name, as well as those of several other Boeing employees, was penciled in beside allegations of "prostitution on expense account" and "using expense accounts to cover illegal activities."

Paisley's name also is penciled in beside the heading "industrial espionage," specifically "wire-tapping and snooping illegally on competitor's facilities."

"I went through all this," Durst said Saturday, showing the memo to a reporter. "The bugging, the bribery, the hookers. And Ben looked at me and said: 'Every goddamn word of it is true.' And he said he'd get back to us. He never did. That's when we found out that he and Paisley were best friends."

Reported to FBI

Durst said he repeatedly requested a meeting with Boeing Co. President Mel Stamper, but was refused. He said he reported the information to the FBI in 1983.

Boeing officials could not be reached Saturday. A switchboard operator said the firm's spokesmen would not accept calls "on matters of this nature" on the weekend.

Plymale, a former deputy assistant secretary of defense for strategic and space systems, and five other Boeing employees lost their top-secret security clearance when the Defense Department found they had mishandled classified information on the proposed MX strategic missile in March, 1979.

Investigators said an aide in Washington, D.C., had transmitted a summary of a top-secret memo intended for President Jimmy Carter to Plymale's office in Seattle over open telephone lines. Pentagon officials said Soviet agents routinely monitor telephone lines to and from U.S. defense contractors.

Plymale and another Boeing vice president also were investigated for destroying evidence. No formal charges were brought, however, and Plymale later served on Ronald Reagan's 1981 transition team along with Lehman.

In August, 1981, Plymale died, reportedly of a heart attack, during a fishing trip with Paisley and Lehman.

Durst, now 54, said he and Paisley worked in close proximity for six years, sharing the same secretary, after Durst moved to Boeing's Kent, Wash., headquarters in 1971. Paisley was then director of planning for Boeing Aerospace. Durst was assistant to the vice president of requirements and marketing.

Early Assignment

One of Durst's first assignments, he said, was to go to New Hampshire to campaign for then-presidential hopeful Henry M. (Scoop) Jackson and later put the costs of the trip on his expense account. Jackson, a Democratic senator from Washington state, was known for his advocacy of a strong defense program.

"Two or three weeks later, Jack Anderson writes a scoop about how Boeing was paying for political support for Scoop Jackson," Durst said. "Hell, I didn't know it was illegal.

"I was sullied, I had the stamp on me. So Paisley came over because he had heard of it. He was laughing. He said: 'Hey, I'll tell you a good marketing story.'"

According to Durst, Paisley told him he had found a new way to get the low bid on an Air Force contract for housekeeping at Patrick Air Force Base at Cape Canaveral in Florida.

'Mr. Squeaky Clean'

Paisley said he had sent an aide to put a bug in a Pan Am office to get their bidding figures.

"Here I am, honest all my life, Mr. Squeaky Clean," Durst said. "And here is a senior man in the company bragging about bugging on a military project. He was very flippant about it.

"When he told me about bugging Pan Am, I was an accessory," Durst recalled. "I was scared to death. But he was very open about it."

Later, Durst said, he needed an aide who spoke Portuguese and Spanish to help on a trade mission to Brazil, and one was provided. "Three days later, I ran into Mel in the men's room, and he was laughing. He said: 'That's the guy who did the bugging,'" referring to the aide.

Durst said he fired the man from his department after the trip for cheating on his expense account.

"Information is the essence of the business," Durst said. "There are good ways to do it and bad ways. Mel, unfortunately, always used the bad ways."

Staff writers Dan Morain in Seattle and William C. Rempel, Robert Gillette, Melissa Healy, Doug Jehl and Jim Schachter in Washington contributed to this story.

WFT-5 was contacted concerning his knowledge of the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER, and a background clearance investigation conducted by the FBI in regards to TOWER'S suitability for a high level position in the Federal Government and access to classified or sensitive information. WFT-5 voluntarily provided the following information:

WFT-5 has known TOWER on a professional basis since 1975. Prior to their personal meeting of that year, WFT-5 worked in a Senator's Office on Capitol Hill and knew of TOWER and his efforts in the area of the Senate Armed Services Committee as early as 1973. Beginning in 1983, WFT-5 [redacted] b7D

WFT-5 said he was effective at forming support behind issues that he favored. WFT-5 added that TOWER often made many decisions strong-handedly, which may have caused resentment in the minds of other Committee members whose input was not directly requested. TOWER. WFT-5 knew TOWER received high marks from everyone as a Negotiator, including skeptics, because of his exceptional skill as a diplomat and negotiating force.

WFT-5 continued by saying that TOWER handled stress very well; that he was not a tempermental leader. This was noteworthy considering the quantity of issues and topics that a Chairman of a major Committee must face on a regular basis. WFT-5 stated TOWER was quite knowledgeable regarding the issues in the defense area. No one ever questioned his competence and ability to lead the Committee, but rather had confidence in that leadership. WFT-5 added that TOWER had an interesting personality and that he was intriguing company. WFT-5 stated that TOWER had a professional demeanor and attitude.

WFT-5 stated TOWER was a loyal American. He knew Tower to socially drink but never saw TOWER intoxicated. He knew of no prescription drug abuse or illicit drug usage, including marijuana, by TOWER, and he never witnessed TOWER either buying or selling any type of drugs. WFT-5 had no direct knowledge of TOWER'S financial situation and knew of no derogatory information regarding his finances. WFT-5 believed TOWER to be a fair and unbiased individual who would treat minorities very well. WFT-5 stated that TOWER was suitable for continued access to classified material and recommended him for a position of trust with the United States Government.

Regarding allegations of sexual indescretions by TOWER both in this country and abroad, WFT-5 stated he made some personal observations that might be construed as indiscretions by TOWER in this country but he had no knowledge of anything occurring abroad. WFT-5 did not have any personal knowledge of the allegation regarding receipt or expenditure of illegal campaign contributions, neither had he heard of this allegaiton from any source.

WFT-5 did not have any personal knowledge of the allegation regarding illegal banking activities nor did he ever hear of this allegation.

In response to a question regarding any potential conflicts of interest in which TOWER may have been involved, WFT-5 stated that he could not answer the question without first clarifying the meaning of "conflict of interest." He stated in particular that he made a personal differentiation between "innocent lobbying" and an actual conflict of interest. WFT-5 stated that the instance he was about to relate involved lobbying by TOWER on behalf of a particular contractor but that he did not want to characterize this activity as a conflict of interest as such. WFT-5 began by saying that a member of the Committee's staff received a telephone call from TOWER regarding the "C-FIN Reprogramming Project" when it was pending before the Senate Armed Services Committee. He stated that this occurred about "11 months before 3 weeks ago," or about one year ago. WFT-5 said TOWER told a staff member over the phone that three companies (LTV, British Aerospace and Lockheed Georgia) had an interest in the project pending before the Committee, and if it was approved, "one or two or three" (companies) would sustain a direct benefit. WFT-5 stated that he believed TOWER was advocating that the Committee approve the project and that he was in effect advocating the position of the Department of Defense. As it turned out, WFT-5 said, the project did not pass the Senate.

WFT-5 related that [redacted], called SENATOR NUNN'S Office and indicated that [redacted] and [redacted] during the 1981 nomination hearings of MELVIN PAISLEY, called TOWER [redacted] regarding an FBI report that contained derogatory information against PAISLEY. The following information was provided by a person here referred to as WFT-7 who requested that his identity remain confidential and not be disclosed outside the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). For convenience, the source may be referred to as "he" when appropriate. No inference regarding the sex of the source may be made from this usage.

WFT-7 was contacted concerning his knowledge of JOHN GOODWIN TOWER, and a background clearance investigation conducted by the FBI in regards to TOWER'S suitability for a high level position in the Federal Government and access to classified or sensitive information. WFT-7 voluntarily provided the following information:

WFT-7 could assess TOWER on a professional basis. He described TOWER as an affable Chairman who was always accessible to Staff Members. WFT-7 believed TOWER was very professional, serious-minded and dedicated to his job. WFT-7 stated that TOWER was tremendously committed to issues of national defense.

WFT-7, however, described TOWER as a man who gave the impression that he was unhappy. He stated that TOWER suffered from what WFT-7 called "the little man's complex." WFT-7 related an incident where TOWER told him that he(TOWER) was self conscious about his height. WFT-7 further commented on this occasion that TOWER "did not know why he was so attracted to domineering women," probably because his mother had been so tremendously dominating and his present wife was the same way. WFT-7 commented that the way TOWER talked about his mother and wives so openly was rather "pathetic." WFT-7 continued by saying that TOWER always liked to stay seated both at Senatorial functions and at cocktail parties and the like. This was part of that problem he had in being so short. WFT-7 continued that this is why he thought TOWER liked to drink so much.

WFT-7 stated he thought TOWER abused alcohol in the sense that TOWER used it to escape. He loved to drink both at the office and especially at functions away from work. WFT-7 stated that he never noticed any use of illegal drugs and had no personal knowledge of TOWER ever to buy or sell any type of drugs. He had no knowledge of TOWER ever having abused prescription drugs either. WFT-7 had no personal knowledge of TOWER'S financial situation and commented that he was not qualified to comment on that area. WFT-7 stated that TOWER tended to treat minorities with respect and included them equally for positions on his Staff. By every indication, TOWER seemed to be a fair and unbiased person. WFT-7 added that TOWER appeared to be both physically and mentally well, excepting his preoccupation with his height.

WFT-7 stated at this point in the interview that he had knowledge of past circumstances that might have a bearing on TOWER'S suitability for the position for which he has been nominated. WFT-7 stated that he had two instances to report. The first occurred at a dinner in New York City sponsored by the Air Force Association, Iron Gate Chapter, in March or April of 1983. This dinner was given to award an individual for meritorious effort towards the causes of the United States Air Force, and TOWER was the recipient. A hotel suite was given to TOWER for his stay in New York along with a hospitality suite. Most of his staff members and others came up to the hospitality suite (hosted by Hughes Aircraft) that evening around 10:00pm. There was food and a lot of drinking, and everyone was "having a good time," including TOWER. WFT-7 said that around [redacted] b7D

[redacted] WFT-7 said that TOWER appeared to be "sloshed," extremely intoxicated and probably had no recollection of the incident. WFT-7 stated that there has been no further mention of the incident by TOWER, leading WFT-7 to believe that TOWER was in fact intoxicated.

The second incident that WFT-7 related took place right after TOWER had announced his retirement from the Senate. The Majority Staff hosted a retreat at [redacted] near [redacted] It was held at the lodge facility there which accommodates approximately thirty people. Briefings were held all day, then a happy hour, dinner, and finally free time. This turned into a roast for TOWER. There was a lot to drink; everyone was generally having a very good time. At this point, WFT-7 noticed TOWER take the hand of a staff assistant and then walk her into his quarters. This was a large suite that was on the other side of the french doors, adjacent to the screened in area where the party was taking place. The entrance to TOWER'S quarters was very visible to everyone and it was quite obvious to all what TOWER was doing. WFT-7 said to [redacted] b6 b7C b7D After this brief confrontation, WFT-7 decided to go to his room for the night. WFT-7 does not know what actually took place or how long in duration the two were in TOWER'S quarters. There was a general understanding amongst those who observed, however, that TOWER was in there with the Staff Assistant for a lengthy time period; in other words, they did not come right back out. WFT-7 stated that he thought it was "tasteless to do that with one of your employees." WFT-7 stated that the name of the staff assistant was [redacted] The next morning, [redacted] came to breakfast with everyone and was "extremely chatty." WFT-7 interpreted this as an attempt to explain her actions of the previous night and to salvage the good reputation she had. When asked about the events of the night before, she responded, "Oh, it was nothing; he was cute; we just chatted." WFT-7 reported that [redacted] voluntarily resigned from her job with the Committee in [redacted]

WFT-7 also stated that he noticed TOWER to be quite drunk during the second incident mentioned above. WFT-7 was able to determine this, he said, by observing the "quantity of alcohol consumed and the visible results of his drinking."

These two events have bothered WFT-7 since their occurrence and he has felt compelled to report them. WFT-7 said he is happy to see that such a thorough investigation is being done regarding TOWER.

WFT-7 related that frequently after long or hard days of debate on the Senate floor, TOWER would invite staff members and others from the Committee up to his Capitol Hill office. WFT-7 saw him "enjoy several martinis or white wines" from his fully supplied office bar. WFT-7 believed TOWER drank "more than the average social drinker in a similar situation." During these parties in his office, TOWER "played a lot of mental games." WFT-7 related that everyone knew he had a private telephone line installed in his office for calls from his wife, LILLA. If that line rang, everyone at the party was to be quiet and he would "lie" to LILLA and say he was not coming home until late because he had a lot of paperwork. This occurred on several occasions during WFT-7's professional relationship with TOWER and is not an isolated case.

WFT-7 stated that he felt TOWER has serious flaws in his character, which is reflected by his use of alcohol and his behavior as a result of it. WFT-7 could not speak about TOWER'S reputation and associates. WFT-7 further said that TOWER'S character problems involving excessive use of alcohol could be potentially injurious regarding TOWER'S loyalty to the nation.

WFT-7 stated that he could not recommend TOWER for a position of trust and confidence with the Government if his problems with alcohol persist. WFT-7 felt the same regarding TOWER'S access to classified materials.

Senator TOWER was queried as to whether or not he had any first hand knowledge of a situation that occurred in January and February, 1985, wherein the language drafted into a final Senate bill was different than language drafted by and coordinated by the Senate Armed Services Committee. This particular bill was said to have to do with contract agreements regarding the manufacturer of 120 millimeter mortars of Israeli design. Senator TOWER responded by saying that he left the Senate on January 3, 1985. Senator TOWER stated that he has remained "plugged in" to the Armed Services Committee and if anything such as this would have happened, "of any significance," and it were inappropriate, certainly it would have come to his attention.

At the present time, so far as he knows, there is no opposition from any of the Armed Services Committee membership. Additionally, he, Senator TOWER, had something to do with "putting in a good word" for the appointee.

was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent. was further advised that an allegation had been made which stated that JOHN TOWER had added a provision to the 1985 Defense Authorization Act which directed the United States Army to make a decision to purchase a 120 millimeter mortar within a certain time period. The only company which was able to fulfill this request was an Israeli company. According to this allegation, when was asked why this change had been made, he advised that JOHN TOWER had was asked to provide any information he might have concerning this incident and comment on this allegation.

advised that he is familiar with the 1985 Defense Authorization Act and with the change in language of the act which would have forced the United States Army to make a decision concerning the purchase of a 120 millimeter mortar. stated that the above mentioned change to the Defense Authorization Act of 1985 which forced the United States Army to chose a 120 millimeter mortar within a designated period of time. believes, based upon his knowledge of Capitol Hill, of Senator TOWER, and of operating procedures, that and he does not believe former Senator TOWER had anything to do with deciding to change the language in this bill and to specify that particular period of time for the decision. He repeated that this is his personal belief and he has no first hand knowledge to specifically prove this point.

At the time of the above incident, Senator BARRY GOLDWATER, who was to take over as Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee upon Senator TOWER's leaving the United States Senate. Several days before the date specified for the United States Army decision on a mortar to be purchased, Senator GOLDWATER that Senator NUNN was quite upset at the date having been specified and the change having been made in this Defense Authorization Act. Senator NUNN to the date having been specified in the Defense Authorization Act. As a result, [redacted] Senator GOLDWATER and soon Senator GOLDWATER and Senator NUNN met and disussed the subject. As a result of this discussion, Senators NUNN and GOLDWATER wrote a letter to either the Secretary of the Army or to the Army Chief of Staff instructing him to ignore the deadline specified in the language which accompanied the statute and to continue with the ongoing long term study of heavy weapons for the United States Army.

[redacted] advised that the United States Army had conducted a long term study of the heavy weapons needed by the United States Army. The purpose of this study was to evaluate various systems. [redacted] recalled that the Army was specifically looking at three or four different mortar systems; he recalls one each having been manufactured by the British, the Spanish, and the Isrealis. [redacted] recalled that, if the change in language had remained in a fact, only one company would have been able to present a complete weapons package and thus qualify for this U.S. purchase. [redacted] identified this company as the Israeli manufacturer of a mortar system. [redacted] stated that, while he is not an expert on this subject, he has kept himself knowledgeable concerning this matter and he believes that the United States Army is still studying this heavy weapons evaluation and has not yet made a decision. When asked to speculate why an individual would specify a definite date for the decision to have been made concerning the mortar, [redacted] stated that it is his belief that the only conclusion one can draw from demanding that a decision be made on that specific date was "to drive the decision toward the Israeli company". [redacted] explained that there was a very active competition at that particular time among the three or four separate companies which had competing mortar systems. Although the Israeli system was ready at that moment, it is [redacted] understanding that the other systems were only a month or two away from being complete and ready. As a result, he believes that delaying this decision for a month or two would have opened the field of eligible companies to all three or four competent companies. Following this line of reasoning, [redacted] can only conclude that setting an arbitrary date for the purchase decision could only have as its reason the limitation of competition and thus giving the contract to the Israeli firm.

[redacted] stated that it is his understanding and personal belief that [redacted] told Senator NUNN that JOHN TOWER had authorized [redacted] to make the change in language in the Defense Authorization Act 1985. [redacted] repeated his belief that he does not believe this statement is true. However, with Senator TOWER having left the United States Senate, Senator GOLDWATER taking over as Chairman of the Committee, the issue was not actively pursued after GOLDWATER and NUNN wrote to the United States Army telling them to ignore this particular language. To [redacted] knowledge, no one else ever looked into this until recently.

The following information was provided by a person here referred to as WFT-7 who requested that his identity remain confidential and not be disclosed outside the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). For convenience, the source may be referred to as "he" when appropriate. No inference regarding the sex of the source may be made from this usage.

WFT-7 was contacted concerning his knowledge of JOHN GOODWIN TOWER, and a background clearance investigation conducted by the FBI in regards to TOWER'S suitability for a high level position in the Federal Government and access to classified or sensitive information. WFT-7 voluntarily provided the following information:

WFT-7 advised during a previous interview on December 21, 1988, he stated he had professional contact with TOWER beginning in 1981. WFT-7 could not comment on TOWER'S use of alcohol prior to 1981 except on one occasion.

WFT-7 advised [redacted] November, 1980 election when the Republicans took control of the Senate, he was invited to a luncheon held at the [redacted] Washington, D.C. This luncheon was to celebrate the Republican win and lasted three and one half to four years. During that time period, WFT-7 stated alcohol was liberally served and everyone, including TOWER, participated in drinking some. In his opinion, TOWER seemed "elated" during this period and consumed three to four martinis. At no time did WFT-7 see TOWER act inappropriately. WFT-7 stated he had a "laid-back and relaxed attitude" and was able to walk out of the restaurant on his own accord. WFT-7 said he (TOWER) did not look or act intoxicated.

WFT-7 advised he [redacted] TOWER for approximately [redacted] and attended [redacted] gatherings which TOWER sponsored. These gatherings usually occurred after long periods of Debate on the Senate floor, and after normal business hours. All gatherings were held in "TOWER'S Hideaway Office" in the Capitol building and not in his personal office on the Senate side of Capitol Hill. At all parties, liberal drinking occurred with TOWER drinking either martinis or a specific white wine,

Fulonari, WFT-7 stated the gatherings, attended by [redacted] usually lasted one to two and one half hours in length with TOWER averaging four to five drinks during the time period. b7D

Over the [redacted] and [redacted] gatherings that WFT-7 attended, he believed TOWER was intoxicated only twice. WFT-7 believed his opinion was based on seeing TOWER'S usual behavior away from the gatherings which he characterized as "straight-laced". WFT-7 related on both occasions, when TOWER wanted another alcoholic drink, he would place the empty glass he had been drinking from, on his head. This was a signal to [redacted] that he wanted another drink. The glass would be taken, refilled with the appropriate alcoholic beverage for the evening, and returned to TOWER. Also, when TOWER began drinking his voice level was within his normal everyday level but as he consumed more alcohol, his speech grew louder. He would sometimes start to sing songs, usually "a few bars", not the complete song, to "entertain [redacted] These songs consisted of "old Texas school songs".

At no time did TOWER ever ask anyone to drive him home or did anyone ask TOWER if they could drive him home. He never was "rolling down drunk". WFT-7 added he never saw him (TOWER) "running into things or walls" nor did he hear any speech difficulties. After drinking at the gatherings the night before, he appeared [redacted] the next day with what appeared to WFT-7 as a "flushed face and blood-shot eyes". He added he (TOWER) looked a little "rumpled" but never smelled of alcohol. WFT-7 believed these visual signs were related to his alcohol consumption the night before but thought they could be related to another medical reason he did not know about.

When specifically asked if he would be willing to have his identity revealed and if he would be willing to be interviewed by Senator SAM NUNN'S staff, Senate Armed Services Committee concerning the information he provided, WFT-7 declined, indicating that a release of his confidentiality could have a damaging effect on his career.

The Honorable

I am enclosing a copy of a letter written to Senator Tower, Chairman of the Armed Service Committee in 1981. This letter states opposition to the nomination of Melvyn Robert Paisley for under-secretary of the Navy. Please read carefully the response from Senator Tower's office. Need I remind you, Melvyn Paisley was approved for the position of Assistant Secretary of the Navy in 9 minutes by the Congress. And look what he has done to the people of the United States. b6 b7C

We need to get corruption out of our government. I appreciate the fact the President Bush "owes Senator Tower this position" -- but that should not have any affect on him getting this appointment. Reports of Senator Tower's involvement as a consultant to Companies and Corporations doing business with the Pentagon and his associations with consultants and Pentagon personnel like Melvyn Paisley and [redacted] makes me very nervous as to what kind of a Secretary of Defense he can be.

Senator Tower's association with Melvyn Paisley and [redacted] makes me wonder if they are going to be brought to justice. We don't need a Secretary of Defense who has possible links to people like this and will cover-up any investigations and prevent justice for the people of the United States who lost 99.1 million dollars in fiscal year 1986-1987 because of the corruption in the Pentagon alone.

Senator Tower is a controversial figure and I am urging you to vote against his nomination and I urge you to encourage your colleagues to do the same. I also encourage, you to listen to the ex-Mrs. Tower -- who knows best a what kind of a character a person has, then someone who [redacted]

THAT TOWER'S EX-WIFE WAS MAKING ALLEGATIONS ABOUT HIS PERSONAL LIFE. SHE STATED THAT SHE KNOWS TOWER'S FIRST WIFE, IRMA (PHONETIC) TOWER, AND THAT SHE COULD PROVIDE INFORMATION WHICH MIGHT BE OF IMPORTANCE TO THE BUREAU.

ON DECEMBER 13, 1988, [redacted] (WHITE FEMALE, DATE OF BIRTH [redacted] WAS INTERVIEWED AT HER RESIDENCE AT [redacted] HOME TELEPHONE NUMBER [redacted]

[redacted] ADVISED THAT SOMETIME IN THE LATE 1970'S [redacted] WERE HELPING IN THE SEARCH FOR A LIVE-IN NURSE FOR [redacted] WHO RESIDED IN NORTH LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS. [redacted] WAS AN INVALID AND REQUIRED CONSTANT CARE. A PERSON BY THE NAME OF IRMA TOWER APPLIED FOR THE JOB, CLAIMING TO BE A REGISTERED NURSE. SHE SAID THAT THIS WAS LATER DETERMINED TO BE UNTRUE. IRMA TOWER WAS HIRED TO NURSE HER MOTHER-IN-LAW AND MOVED IN WITH HER [redacted]

SHE DESCRIBED IRMA TOWER AS A VERY ATTRACTIVE WHITE FEMALE, ABOUT 5'5", AND AT THAT TIME IN HER MID-FORTIES. SHE WAS VERY NEAT AND A VERY GOOD DRESSER.

EARLY IN THEIR ASSOCIATION, IRMA TOWER TOLD THEM MANY STORIES OF HER LIFE AS SENATOR JOHN TOWER'S WIFE. [redacted] STATED THAT AT FIRST SHE DOUBTED THESE STORIES BUT IRMA TOWER HAD A NUMBER OF PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWING HER AND SENATOR TOWER TOGETHER. [redacted] ADVISED THAT SHE RECOGNIZED SENATOR TOWER'S PHOTOGRAPH.

[redacted] doesn't think she was any photos around

SEVERAL MONTHS LATER, [redacted] BEGAN TO NOTICE THAT HER [redacted] APPEARED TO BE BEING ABUSED AND AT THE SAME TIME [redacted] JAMES CLIFTON, WHO WAS THEN IN HIS LATE SIXTIES, BECAME EXTREMELY INFATUATED WITH IRMA TOWER. HE BEGAN TO BUY HER CLOTHES, PERFUME, AND OTHER GIFTS AND STARTED TALKING ABOUT CHANGING HIS WILL TO INCLUDE IRMA.

[redacted] THOUGHT THEY SHOULD GET RID OF IRMA AS THEY WERE EXTREMELY CONCERNED FOR [redacted] SAFETY.

[redacted] ADVISED THAT SHE CALLED ONE OF THEN-SENATOR TOWER'S TEXAS OFFICES (EXACT ONE UNRECALLED) AND ASKED THE PERSON WHO ANSWERED THE TELEPHONE IF SHE COULD SPEAK TO SOMEONE ABOUT IRMA TOWER. [redacted] STATED THAT THIS PERSON SAID, "SOMEONE WILL HAVE TO GET BACK TO YOU" AND HUNG UP. [redacted] SAID THAT THE [redacted] TOLD HER THAT IRMA REALLY UPSETS JOHN AND THAT, AS FAR AS SHE WAS CONCERNED, IRMA WAS CRAZY. THE [redacted] RELATED THAT IRMA HAD AT ONE TIME HAD AN ABORTION AND THAT SHE HAD HAD TO BE PUT IN A MENTAL HOSPITAL. THE [redacted] STATED THAT JOHN HAD CAUGHT HER IN THEIR HOME WITH OTHER MEN AND ON ONE OCCASION HAD CAUGHT HER IN BED WITH ANOTHER MAN. THE [redacted] TOLD [redacted] THAT JOHN HAD EITHER HAD A MENTAL BREAKDOWN OR ALMOST HAD A MENTAL BREAKDOWN. [redacted] IS NOT SURE AT THIS LATE DATE EXACTLY WHICH. THE [redacted] TOLD HER THAT THE FAMILY HAS SPENT A LOT TRYING TO KEEP IRMA QUIET. THE [redacted] ADVISED THAT THERE WAS AN ARREST WARRANT OUTSTANDING IN TEXAS FOR IRMA.

SA to check

[redacted] ADVISED THAT [redacted] JAMES CLIFTON, TOLD HER THAT AT ONE TIME (SHE BELIEVES ABOUT 1980) HE HAD TALKED TO SENATOR TOWER ON THE TELEPHONE IN WASHINGTON ABOUT IRMA. JAMES CLIFTON TOLD HER THAT THE SENATOR BECAME EXTREMELY UPSET BECAUSE HIS PRESENT WIFE [redacted] DID NOT KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT IRMA.

Interview

[redacted] STATED THAT IT TOOK THEM OVER A YEAR TO GET RID OF IRMA AND THAT WHEN SHE LEFT NORTH LITTLE ROCK SHE WENT TO RESIDE WITH HER PARENTS IN EITHER ENGLAND OR LONOKE, ARKANSAS. [redacted] SAID THAT SHE HAS SINCE LEARNED THAT IRMA'S PARENTS HAVE DIED. SHE STATED THAT SHORTLY AFTER RETURNING TO HER PARENTS' HOME, IRMA WAS COMMITTED TO THE LITTLE ROCK STATE MENTAL HOSPITAL, AND SHE SUBSEQUENTLY MAY HAVE BEEN A PATIENT AT THE BENTON SERVICES CENTER (MENTAL HOSPITAL) UNDER THE NAME OF IRMA ELMORE.

b6

[redacted] ADVISED THAT ALL OF THE ABOVE-GIVEN INFORMATION IS AT LEAST EIGHT YEARS OLD AND SHE HAS RELATED WHAT SHE KNOWS TO THE BEST OF HER RECOLLECTION.

ON DECEMBER 13, 1988, A TELEPHONE CALL TO THE BENTON SERVICES CENTER REVEALED THAT AT ONE TIME THE HOSPITAL HAD A PATIENT BY THE NAME OF IRMA ELMORE. SHE IS NOT PRESENTLY A PATIENT AND HER WHEREABOUTS ARE UNKNOWN TO THE BENTON SERVICES CENTER.

LITTLE ROCK GENERAL AND AUTOMATED INDICES ARE NEGATIVE REGARDING IRMA TOWER OR IRMA ELMORE. A CHECK OF ARKANSAS DRIVER'S LICENSE RECORDS FAILED TO DETERMINE ANY DRIVER'S LICENSE INFORMATION UNDER THE NAMES OF IRMA TOWER OR IRMA ELMORE.

1 Date of transcription 12/12/88

The following information was provided by a person herein after referred to as WF T-1 or "he" who requested that his identity remain confidential and not be disclosed outside the FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (FBI). For convenience, the source may be referred to as "he", where appropriate; no inference regarding the sex of the source may be made from this usage.

When asked to characterize the appointee, WF T-1 responded, "He's an alcoholic - that's the long and short of it." He related, "He's manipulative; he watches all the time and says little - looks for chinks in your armor." Regarding his ambition, WF T-1 stated, "He has his agenda; he will achieve it; he's always wanted to be Secretary of Defense, (it's) an obsessive thing, a fixation." WF T-1 mentioned that the appointee had even "courted" President REAGAN shortly after his election regarding the Secretary of Defense appointment, and never really openly supported GEORGE BUSH until recently. Regarding the appointee's personal habits, WF T-1 stated, "He's addicted to coffee; he's addicted to alcohol; he's addicted to cigarettes...he's driven by the needs of the body."

Regarding the appointee's reputation, WF T-1 believes that early in the appointee's career, he was "revered" by those on Capitol Hill. Much later, when he was advised by the appointee that he would not be seeking re-election to his senate seat in 1984, WF T-1 queried the appointee as to why? It was the appointee's impression that he would not be re-elected into the leadership of the Senate because "they don't like me." WF T-1 believes the appointee based this suspicion on his perception that his reputation for drinking and womanizing was well known and he believed this would prevent him from being re-elected into the Senate leadership. WF T-1 noted that, during this decision-making process, the appointee's consumption of alcohol had picked up "enormously" [redacted] WF T-1 further noted that the appointee experienced considerable financial security from his TOWER SENATE CLUB (Campaign) Fund, which WF T-1 believes [redacted] thus, WF T-1 believes the appointee was no longer dependent on his income from the Senate. b7D

Regarding the appointee's loyalty to this country, WF T-1 has no reason to question the appointee's loyalty, only his agenda. The interviewee recommends the appointee with respect to his associates who are members of the Senate, however, regarding the appointee's social acquaintances, WF T-1 has little current knowledge in this area, noting only that the he is aware that the appointee and his wife were invited to breakfast by ROBERT and ELIZABETH DOLE on one occasion, returning the favor shortly after the appointee's announcement that he would not seek re-election.

b7D

WF T-1's initial comment in this area was, "He's entirely cloistered, this man." The interviewee has additionally noted mood swings on the appointee's part, the appointee occasionally,

When asked to expand upon the WF T-1 responded that he had been present on more than one occasion when the appointee, in his Capitol Hill office, had WF T-1 WF T-1 is not in a position to comment upon the appointee's current emotional stability.

WF T-1 is also in a position to note that

FINANCIAL STABILITY

Although WF T-1 is not familiar with the appointee's current financial situation, [redacted]

[redacted]

SUBSTANCE ABUSE

WF T-1's initial comment in this area was, "he is in fact an alcoholic." The interviewee is aware that the appointee's [redacted]

[redacted] the appointee [redacted] and commented, "he'll tell you about how much he (the appointee) drank."

WF T-1 is not in a position to comment knowledgeably upon the appointee's current frequency and volume of alcohol consumption, and has never known the appointee to consume alcohol before noon, except occasionally at a brunch, and then only champagne.

WF T-1 [redacted]

WF T-1 has noted that the appointee would occasionally drink enough to slur his words, and given his understanding of the appointee's tolerance for alcohol, this "...must have taken a tremendous amount of alcohol."

WF T-1 is further aware that the appointee used to have his own private table at the MONOCLE, a popular Washington, D.C., area establishment, commenting, "that's where he drank and womanized."

WF T-1 additionally recalls that at least one individual spoke to to [redacted] regarding the appointee's alcohol consumption. b6 b7C b7D

He recalls that aides to the appointee, in particular [redacted] who now lives in [redacted] and another aide whose name he does not recall, remembering only that the aide's [redacted] spoke to the appointee about his drinking before meetings.

b6
b7D

He recalls being informed by [redacted] in his role as an Ambassador at the START Talks in Geneva, Switzerland, about how easily she perceived the appointee could be "set up" by the Russians because of his reputation regarding woman and drinking.

Regarding prescription drug abuse or use of illegal drugs by the appointee, WF T-1 has "no knowledge of that, and ...would be terribly surprised at that."

CONTACTS WITH FOREIGNERS OR FOREIGN NATIONALS

When asked as to whether he was aware of any contacts with foreigners or foreign nationals by the appointee that he considered unusual in any kind of a national security sense, WF T-1 responded, although, "not in an enduring sense," he wondered, "what moved" several times. For example, why certain people were or were not at particular meetings and why the wives of these individuals weren't really wanted at the meetings.

A case in point was [redacted] Although he knows of no impropriety by the appointee, believing that the appointee and [redacted] were good friends, he believes Munich to be "one of the crossroads of spying in the world and a flesh pot." WF T-1 clarified this last reference by mentioning that he had been told of establishments that men would frequent, conversing telephonically with women, making arrangements for encounters.

THE HANDLING OF SENSITIVE INFORMATION

Regarding national security, as mentioned above, WF T-1 is aware that the appointee's second wife, LILLA, approached [redacted] about her fears that the appointee could easily be set up and coerced by the Russians because of his lifestyle.

Regarding the appointee's ability to handle sensitive information, in light of his reputation as a drinker, WF T-1 is aware of no unauthorized disclosures of information on the appointee's part and "I would doubt there are any." He knows of no radical or adverse political associations on the appointee's part.

MANIFESTATION OF PREJUDICE OR BIAS

Because the appointee will be required to make decisions concerning policy and personnel matters, the question as to whether he has ever known the appointee to manifest any evidence or bias was put to WF T-1. He essentially refused to address this issue and became noticeably upset at its being brought up, going on to discuss former President LYNDON JOHNSON, alleging racial bias on his part, and mentioning that this did not interfere with the impartial discharge of JOHNSON's constitutional responsibilities. Regarding the appointee in particular, his "discharge of obligation" cannot be predicted by WF T-1.

EVIDENCE OF CRIMINAL ACTIVITY

WF T-1 is aware of no criminal activity in the appointee's past. He is aware, however, that the appointee has been known to drive an automobile with "willful disregard." He recalls one incident in particular in which the appointee arrived with his car "bashed in" on one side, the appointee's explanation being that his peripheral vision was bad.

FAMILIAL INTERACTION

WF T-1 has no interaction with the appointee at this point, their last conversation being in in 1987. He has no knowledge of the appointee's interaction with his own family, although he is aware that the appointee stayed with [redacted] before moving into his residence at 3525 Turtle Creek Boulevard, in Dallas, Texas, upon his resignation from the START Talks in Geneva, Switzerland, in March of 1986. b6 b7C

INTERACTION WITH THE BANKING INDUSTRY

WF T-1 is aware that the appointee was associated with the REPUBLIC BANK CORPORATION of Dallas, Texas, for a short period of time. To the interviewee's knowledge, the appointee has no expertise in banking and he knows of nothing which would be considered unusual regarding the appointee's association with this particular bank.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS

WF T-1 is aware of no illegal campaign contributions to the appointee, nor any contributions from foreign nationals. The interviewee commented, "I don't know the law as it relates to contributions."

USE OF CAMPAIGN FUNDS

WF T-1 believes the appointee's Washington, D.C. office at 1019 19th Street to have been paid for illegally by campaign contributions, and that the appointee paid [redacted] as well as equipment costs, from campaign funds [redacted] b6 b7C b7D

Regarding the appointee's accounts and taxes, WF T-1 believes [redacted] who lives on [redacted] in [redacted] and who works for [redacted] to be knowledgeable in these matters. b6 b7C

ALLEGATIONS OF SEXUAL MISCONDUCT

WF T-1 is advised that in January of 1985, the appointee was in London on ASTROTECH's (2 Chatham Center, Number 240, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania) behalf and staying at CLARIDGES, a well known hotel. [redacted] was a guest of the hotel at the time of the appointee's visit.

In March of 1986, when the appointee returned to Dallas from Geneva, at a party at the DALLAS COUNTRY CLUB for the VIRGINIA SLIMS TENNIS TOURNAMENT, [redacted] and the appointee were seen together. A column in the March 21, 1986, DALLAS MORNING NEWS, by JANE WOLFE, entitled, "Virginia Slims," contained the passage, "the couple who was most whispered about: Former Senator JOHN TOWER and Dallas doyenne DOTTI HEISER."

During a telephone conversation with [redacted] on February 2, 1986, WF T-1 was advised that the appointee had been seen at several socials with the same woman, escorting her to at least one of them, these events taking place in Texas. [redacted] described the woman, [redacted] to him as "very blond (having a) doll-like face, (and as an) expert tennis player," additionally characterizing her as a member of the "jet set." WF T-1 is aware that the appointee escorted [redacted] to a number of Christmas festivities in December of 1985.

Upon his resignation from the Arms Talks in Geneva, the appointee listed his address, effective April 1, 1986, as 3525 Turtle Creek Boulevard, Dallas, Texas, the same complex in which [redacted] resides.

WF T-1 was advised in September of 1985, [redacted] of the appointee, that the appointee was having a "hot" or "roaring affair" (he does not recall which adjective) with a [redacted] did not divulge the woman's name, but said that the affair had been going on for some time. [redacted] further advised that he had been told of this affair by [redacted]

The interviewee recalls being told either by [redacted] of the WHITE HOUSE PRESS CORPS, that the appointee was seen exchanging lighted cigarettes and "smooching" with [redacted] a [redacted] from [redacted] at a social gathering at the JEFFERSON HOTEL in Washington, D.C.-, this event taking place about the time of the release of the TOWER Commission Report on the Iran-Contra matter.

WF T-1 is advised that the appointee was twice interviewed in Dallas, Texas, by a local female television personality in the ALPHA AVIATION (a charter aircraft company the appointee frequently employs) Building. He believes both of these interviews took place in 1984 and with [redacted] but has no proof of this.

WF T-1 was told by [redacted] who in turn had been told by someone either in the CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY (CIA) or an associate of someone in the CIA, that while the appointee was in Geneva, Switzerland, he was seeing [redacted] WF T-1 has no personal knowledge of any impropriety on the appointee's part regarding [redacted]

[redacted] was the appointee's [redacted] in Geneva, Switzerland, during his tenure with the START Talks. WF T-1 has been advised that the appointee spent a lot of time in the kitchen while [redacted] was cleaning or preparing dinner. The interviewee has knowledge that the appointee was not even polite to the occasional people at the appointee's Washington, D.C. home. The interviewee described [redacted] as "small, pert, and shapely,". b6 b7C

[redacted] had mentioned to WF T-1 that [redacted] b6 b7C b7D

WF T-1 concluded this aspect of the interview by saying, [redacted] knows about his (the appointee's) affairs; they used to go out and drink and laugh about them." b6 b7C

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

When queried in this regard, he related that he knows the appointee did some lobbying-like activity before he actually registered as a Lobbyist, but "there is nothing that he can be pinned down on; he does not operate like that and he would not allow it to be tacked down."

RECOMMENDATION

The interview does not recommend the appointee for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government.

In referenced telcal, WMFO advised SPIN Unit of the results of interview of F.E.C. officials in effort to clarify information previously provided by that agency to WMFO.

In sum and for information of the Bureau, the grandfather clause in the F.E.C. Act which allows personal use of campaign contributions by a senator in office in 1980 applies only if the senator participates in the election for which funds were designated. The Tower Senate Club falls within the grandfather clause depending on 1.whether the campaign contributions received were designated as primary election contributions or general election contributions, and 2.whether JOHN GOODWIN TOWER participated in the primary and general elections.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

[redacted] Washington, D.C., telephone number [redacted] was advised of the identity of the interviewing Agent and that the purpose of the investigation was to determine if the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER, had been involved in the misuse of campaign contributions. [redacted] was asked to give his legal opinion regarding the financial arrangements of the TOWER SENATE CLUB in view of the applicable FEDERAL ELECTION COMMISSION (FEC) Regulations. During the discussion, [redacted] was shown a copy of a document entitled "TOWER SENATE CLUB". This document was provided to the FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION (FBI) by a representative of JOHN TOWER. [redacted] voluntarily furnished the following information:

The FEC requires that all organizations which receive campaign contributions file a report listing all contribution receipts and disbursements. The FEC administers all monies used for campaign purposes through this system of registration and reporting. The FEC further investigates specific complaints and inquiries made to it by individuals and furnishes advisory opinions in response to those complaints and inquiries. The TOWER SENATE CLUB has never been specifically investigated by the FEC as it has never been the subject of a specific formal complaint.

Consequently, [redacted] asserted that a statement in the document from the TOWER SENATE CLUB (which reads: "the FEC, the IRS, and the Senate Ethics Committee have all reviewed necessary documents in the normal performance of their duties, and have found them satisfactory") is correct on its face but misleading in its message. The FEC has not reviewed any documents other than to ensure that the TOWER SENATE CLUB filed a listing of receipts and disbursements on a regular basis.

[redacted] stated that the important issue regarding the campaign contributions in this case is twofold. First, a Senator who was in office in 1980 has been provided an exemption from pertinent provisions on the FEDERAL ELECTIONS CAMPAIGN Act which prohibited personal use of campaign funds. The exemption is found in 2 USC Section 439a and provides that no individual may convert campaign funds to his personal use unless he was a Member of Congress on January 8, 1980. [redacted] said the clause allows TOWER to use his campaign funds for personal use, as long as he provides a list of disbursements. The other important consideration in this case revolves around the specific designation of campaign contributions. Contributions are collected for primary election use and general election use and must be so designated in the specific filing to the FEC. [redacted] stated that the grandfather clause mentioned above applies only if the Senator participates in the election for which the funds were designated. [redacted] commented that it is not clear whether contributions received by the TOWER SENATE CLUB were designated as primary election contributions or general election contributions, based on the document he viewed. If some contributions were designated for the general election, the TOWER SENATE CLUB could not use these funds because TOWER never participated in that election. The FEC requires that if a candidate is not a general election candidate, all contributions made for the general election shall be returned or refunded to the contributors or redesignated in accordance with certain FEC rules. Funds can be redesignated from one election to another if and only if those funds have been given by someone who hasn't exhausted the $1,000 limit. Under the Act, individuals may make a contribution to a candidate for federal office in an account not in excess of $1,000.00 with respect to any electon.

[redacted] could not provide specific information regarding the nature of TOWERS' campaign contributions. The only way to verify the nature and use of the campaign contributions is to check the microfilm records of the FEC public records office.

[redacted] further indicated that the TOWER SENATE CLUB must still comply with all other rules of campaign contribution use, including but not limited to the necessary IRS provisions and the Senate Ethics Committee rulings. [redacted] could not speak on behalf of those regulations.

[redacted] stated that the routine FEC litigation records check that the FEC does for the FBI came up with negative results. These results will be forwarded to the Washington Metropolitan Field Office as soon as they can be made available.

UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The following investigation was conducted by Special Agents (SA) [redacted] and [redacted] on December 13, 1988, regarding the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER: b6 b7C

CONGRESSMAN MARVIN LEATH, 336 Cannon House Office Building, Washington, D.C., telephone number 225-6105, advised he orinally met the appointee in 1960 when he (appointee) first ran for the United States Senate. CONGRESSMAN LEATH performed various local campaign work in Odessa, Texas for the appointee. Eleven years ago, CONGRESSMAN LEATH was elected to the United States House of Representatives and became a "junior member of Congress". Senator TED STEVENS, 552 Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, D. C., telephone 224-3004, was advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and that he was being interviewed regarding a background clearance investigation of the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER; specifically, to obtain his knowledge of current or past circumstances that might have a bearing on the suitability of the appointee for Federal Employment and access to classified information. The Senator voluntarily provided the following information:

The Senator advised that he has known the appointee since 1961. This was the year that the appointee was elected to the Senate. Senator STEVENS knew the appointee on a limited, non-personal basis until 1968 when the Senator was elected to the Senate himself and came to work closely with the appointee on various committees. In more recent years, the Senator has known the appointee on a social basis also.

On a professional level, the appointee, Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, and the Senator, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, went head-to-head on various funding issues in the area of military expenditures. The appointee in his capacity as chairman, had to negotiate with the Senator regarding expenditures for everything from battleships to the Strategic Defense Initiative, and many times the two Senate Chairmen disagreed. The Senator considered these disagreements, however, as purely "turf battles" not disagreements on substantive issues. The Senator described the appointee as a "capable, tough Senator" who was tenacious and always did his homework. He never backed down from his position without a fight. He was not known as a compromiser, but knew when to make a deal. The Senator stated that he has a great deal of respect for the appointee and his demonstrated knowledge and competence.

Socially, the Senator has known the appointee as a personal friend. The two have occasionally dined together in the D. C. area. This occurred while the two were senators and then also after the appointee retired from the Senate and conducted certain business functions in Washington, D. C. Also, the appointee invited the Senator to several air shows associated with the British Aerospace Enterprise. The Senator attended a few of these functions. Finally, the Senator lived with the appointee at his residence in Geneva, Switzerland for approximately three weeks. Senator STEVENS was in Geneva as the chairman of the Senate Arms Control Group and the appointee was living in Geneva as a START negotiator in the capacity of an Ambassador. The appointee invited the Senator to stay with he and his wife while attending to his responsibilities because of their close friendship.

The Senator had no reason to question the appointee's character, associates, reputation and loyalty to the country. Senator STEVENS knew of no bias or prejudice towards any group or individual. The Senator did comment that the appointee was very partial towards Texas and military issues, that he was "married to his job" in terms of furthering these causes. However, the appointee was not partial in the negative sense. The Senator could not speak as to the appointee's financial stability. And, the Senator had no knowledge of any physical or mental problems.

Senator STEVENS had no knowledge of any alcohol abuse by the appointee. He stated that he considered that term to be rather subjective because some people can drink more than others. However, he had never seen the appointee in an intoxicated state, and he felt he had seen the appointee in various types of social settings. The Senator said the appointee was a social drinker. The Senator had no knowledge of any illegal drug use by the appointee, including marijuana and cocaine. He had no knowledge of the appointee ever having had bought or sold any type of illegal drugs. The Senator has not known the appointee to have ever abused any type of prescription drugs either.

Senator STEVENS considered the appointee suitable for access to classified information and fully recommended him for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government.

In addition to the usual questions involving the Senator's knowledge of the appointee, several additional areas were pursued regarding specific allegations involving the appointee.

Senator STEVENS stated that he had no personal knowledge of any sexual indescretions by the appointee both here and abroad. The Senator reiterated that he had spent some time with the appointee in Geneva, Switzerland and that he had heard and observed nothing regarding any questionable sexual involvements or indescretions. He noted that the appointee's behavior while he was in Geneva was totally in accordance with his lifestyle and nothing unusual occurred of which he had knowledge. He observed the appointee's relationship with LILA TOWER there in Geneva, while the Senator was living in their residence, and saw nothing to indicate any sexual indescretions. The Senator noted that rumors may have surfaced while the appointee was divorcing his first wife. During separations from his first wife but before legal divorce, the appointee was dating a few individuals and was seen in public while doing so. The Senator speculated that this may have given rise to the talk that the appointee was womanizing.

Senator STEVENS had no personal knowledge of excessive alcohol consumption by the appointee. He served with the appointee for some 18 years and never observed him to be intoxicated. The Senator had never heard of any such allegations.

The Senator had no personal knowledge, neither had he ever heard of any mental incapacities displayed or evidence by the appointee. He did indicate that the appointee's wife, LILA, was enough to drive one crazy. He described the appointee's wife by saying, "LILA is a bitch". He said he could say that because of his having lived in their residence for three weeks.

Senator STEVENS was aware of several potential conflicts of interest but he did not personally believe that they were actual conflicts. He mentioned the appointee's relationship with British Aerospace and stated that the appointee had introduced him several times to people connected with that company. Also, the few air shows that he attended allowed the Senator to mingle with some of the appointee's business associates. The Senator said the appointee never lobbied him directly for British Aerospace nor has he ever lobbied him for any other entities. Also, the Senator was aware of the appointee's relationship with LTV in Texas. He indicated again that he did not consider this a conflict of interest. The Senator had not heard of any other potential conflicts of interest regarding the appointee.

The Senator had no personal knowledge of illegal use of campaign contributions by the appointee. He had heard about such allegations in the newspaper, but based on the information he read, it seemed to him that the alleged use was ethically conducted.

Finally, the Senator had not heard nor had he any personal knowledge of any type of illegal banking activities by the appointee.

When asked if he had anything additional to say, Senator STEVENS suggested that a major problem for the appointee during this appointment has been his wife LILA [redacted] (whose name he couldn't recall), who [redacted]

Senator STEVENS advised that he considered the appointee suitable for continued access to classified information and personally recommended him for a position of trust with the United States Government.

The following investigation was conducted by SA [redacted] at Austin, Texas:

On December 13, 1988, [redacted] telephone number [redacted] advised that he was [redacted] stated that the Tower Senate Club is the name given to the JOHN TOWER Election Campaign Contribution Fund. According to [redacted] TOWER last ran for the United States Senate in 1978 and shortly thereafter the Tower Senate Club began accepting contributions for his next anticipated Senate re-election campaign. A total of $1,600,000 was collected prior to the time when appointee made the decision not to seek re-election. This failure to seek re-election raised the question of what to do with the money already collected. [redacted] stated that it was decided that a letter would be written to the campaign contributors asking what they wanted done with their contribution. These letters stated that the money could be returned to them or that it could be spent as appointee saw fit. [redacted] stated that very few contributors asked for their money back. Appointee decided to disburse the money to other candidates seeking election. The money was distributed to Texas Legislature candidates and Republicans seeking election to the United States House of Representatives and the United States Senate. The amounts of these contributions were limited inasmuch as the Tower Senate Club was to be treated as an individual and not a political action committee. Thus, there were legal limitations on how much money could be distributed per each race. [redacted] stated that he is not aware of any criticism on the part of appointee for distributing money to any of these political candidates.

[redacted] stated that a total of $100,000 was given to Southwestern University, Georgetown, Texas which was appointee's alma mater. [redacted] stated that there was criticism of this contribution as some newspaper stated the gift was to "enhance his library" at the university. [redacted] stated that appointee does not have a library at the university and that to his mind, the contribution is perfectly legitimate.

SSH:cdm

[redacted] stated that "memorabilia" was given to campaign workers and was paid for from the Tower Senate Club. He stated that these trinkets such as ash trays, etc. are normal and that these gifts amounted to .0025% of the funds. He stated that such gifts are common among election campaigns and are token rewards for those who worked in the campaign. b6 b7C

[redacted] continued that after appointee's retirement from the United States Senate, he accepted a position with United States State Department as a negotiator for arms control with the Soviet Union. [redacted] stated that some newspapers criticized appointee's expenditure of approximately $2,600 from the Tower Senate Club funds to fund two lunches. One was with the British Delegation and the other was with the United States staff members. [redacted] maintains that this small expenditure was legitimate under the Senate Ethics Rule Number 38.

[redacted] stated that approximately one month ago, the Washington Post and various Cox Newspapers again criticized the expenditures of "$500,000" for personal use of appointee. [redacted] stated that in fact, the expenditure was $466,000 and was not a conversion of funds to appointee's personal use. [redacted] stated that these funds were to pay expenses in "Victory '84". [redacted] stated that Victory '84 was the Texas Organization for the Re-Election of Republican Candidates including President RONALD REAGAN and Vice-President GEORGE BUSH. [redacted] advised that appointee was very active in this campaign and that much of the expenditures were to pay for his expenses. [redacted] gave as an example, TOWER had a $60 a day room at the Driskill Hotel in Austin, Texas for a six-month period while he worked on the campaign. [redacted] stated that none of the proceeds personally benefitted appointee, but stated that all of the expenditures were to pay for expenses for the campaign.

[redacted] stated that several of the expenditures including the expenditure at Driskill Hotel and others have been criticized by the Washington Post and Cox Newspapers in general, but he stated that he personally reviewed all of the expenditures recently and is firm in his belief that all of the expenditures were legal and correct. He stated that there were no

expenditures which he would even characterize as being questionable and concluded that [redacted]

[redacted] also advised that he is not aware of any questionable or illegal campaign contributions coming to the Tower Senate Club. He stated that he and other campaign workers were very cognizant of the rules and laws as far as campaign contributions were concerned and made a very precise effort to make sure that all of the campaign contributions met these high standards.

[redacted] advised that to his knowledge, appointee has never used narcotics and is not one to abuse alcohol or use it to excess. He stated that appointee will frequently join him in a glass of wine or a beer and in the past they have had whiskey together. [redacted] stated that he does not recall ever seeing appointee drunk and is not aware that appointee "a drinking problem." [redacted] stated that he knows appointee well enough to state with certainty that appointee is not an alcoholic nor is he one to abuse alcohol. He stated that he is not aware that any use of alcohol has ever hindered appointee in the execution of any of his duties.

As to the criticism in the newspapers regarding "womanizing" on the part of appointee, [redacted] stated that there are always young women around campaign headquarters, etc., but stated that it his belief that any criticism on the part of appointee in this area is unfounded. He cited an example which occurred in the lobby of an Odessa, Texas Hotel where someone observed TOWER in the company of a beautiful young lady just prior to going up to his room. The person commented that look at appointee preparing to take that young woman up to his room. [redacted] stated that he approached the person making the comment and advised him that the beautiful young lady in appointee's presence was appointee's daughter. He stated that he believes that this may be an example of how people get the mistaken impression of appointee's "womanizing." [redacted] also notes that during appointee's recent "no-fault divorce" there were interrogatories which were presented to appointee. These interrogatories asked certain questions which might lead one to believe that there were "other women" involved in appointee's life. To [redacted] knowledge, these were just questions and were raised with no factual basis. These questions were brought to the public's notice by newspaper articles and hence the reputation of a womanizer may have been born. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated that appointee, to his knowledge, is a good and honest man with a high degree of integrity. He stated that some people might find appointee sometimes rather stuffy, but stated that this label is probably due to the fact that appointee is rather shy and may appear unfriendly. His honesty is above questioning and stated that he always wanted his campaigns run on the "up-and-up." According to [redacted] all of appointees' associates are of good character and stated that these associates and others around the Washington, D.C. area and the State of Texas hold appointee in high regard. He stated that appointee was well thought of among his peers at the United States Senate and stated that he had a loyal staff who "thought the world of him." [redacted] stated there is absolutely no questioning appointee's loyalty to the United States and stated that he is an extremely loyal individual. [redacted] stated that he was not aware of any financial indiscretions on the part of appointee but stated that he has no personal knowledge as to appointee's personal finances.

As to appointee's work habits [redacted] stated that his attendance at the United States Senate was quite good and he commented that he was always there on important votes. [redacted] continued that appointee would work throughout the night when the workload demanded it, but stated that he would relax some when the workload eased and no immediate attention was necessary.

[redacted] stated that he would without any equivocation highly recommend appointee for any position of trust within the United States Government and stated that he would perform quite well and make a "great Cabinet level appointee."

He further stated that he had read allegations concerning the appointee. He stated that he had no knowledge of the appointee ever abusing the use of alcohol. He went on to say that, to his recollection, he had never seen the appointee drinking any alcohol. The appointee has never appeared to be hung over, incoherent or incapacitated in any way.

[redacted] noted that the appointee may be accused of having the appearance of conflicts of interest. He noted that the appointee has served as a consultant for several defense contractors. He speculated that if the appointee is nominated for the position of Secretary of Defense, allegations will be raised that his prior consulting work presents an apparent conflict of interest. However, [redacted] feels that the appointee is honest enough to publicly list all prior companies that he has worked for and would withdraw himself from the decision making process whenever dealing with those companies. He stated there was no serious basis for these allegations, as former Senators and Congressmen are not precluded from working for defense contractors after they leave office as is the case with White House employees. [redacted] added that if everyone who worked for any contractor was precluded from Government employment, no one with any expertise would ever be hired or appointed to any position of importance. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated that, to his knowledge, the appointee has never been involved in any sexual indiscretions. He further stated that the appointee does not have a reputation as a "womanizer".

[redacted] advised that he is not personally familiar with the appointee's campaign financing and is not aware of any illegal campaign contributions or questionable spending on the part of the appointee's campaign staff. [redacted] described the appointee as courageous, intelligent, and honest. He stated that the appointee will stand up for his positions and not "roll over" every time the newspapers raise any objections. He stated that the appointee has a good sense of humor, is a team player, and gets along well with others.

[redacted] has no doubt that the appointee can keep secrets, noting that he has had access to the most important military and political secrets in Washington and has never been accused of betraying a confidence. He has never known the appointee to take any extremist position on any issue. The appointee has never expressed any prejudices or biases against any race, religion, sex, ethnic group or people with handicaps. He is certain that the appointee has never experimented with any illegal drugs. He stated that the appointee does not appear to have any emotional problems and also appears to be in good health.

[redacted] advised that he did not personally know any derogatory information regarding the appointee. He admitted that he has heard derogatory information concerning the appointee, but refused to reveal the source of this information or the nature of the allegations. He advised that he has heard similar innuendoes concerning nearly every person in public life and would not repeat them. [redacted] was repeatedly questioned on this matter, but adamantly refused to discuss the identity of the source of these allegations or the nature thereof. He advised that he would only discuss matters that he had first hand, personal knowledge of.

[redacted] went on to state that he did not personally know of any derogatory information regarding the appointee and would recommend him for a position of trust and confidence with the U.S. Government. *

[redacted] ADVISED HE CONSIDERS THE "WOMANIZING" RUMORS TO BE COMPLETELY UNFOUNDED.

b6
b7C

[redacted] HIGHLY RECOMMENDS SENATOR TOWER FOR ANY POSITION OF TRUST WITHIN THE U. S. GOVERNMENT AND CONSIDERS SENATOR TOWER TO BE A LOYAL AMERICAN WITH STRONG CONVICTIONS AND BELIEFS. HE ALSO STATED, "I WOULD STAKE MY LIFE ON HIM."

[redacted] ADVISED THAT HE KNOWS OF NOTHING DEROGATORY ABOUT SENATOR TOWER THAT WOULD PREVENT HIM FROM BEING A VALUABLE ASSET TO ANY PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

The following investigation was conducted by Special Agents (SA) [redacted] and [redacted] on December 13, 1988, regarding the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER: b6 b7C

Congressman LES ASPIN, 2336 Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, D. C., telephone number 225-3031, advised he has known the appointee on a professional basis for approximately ten years. Originally, Congressman ASPIN met the appointee through mutual Congressional work regarding the Armed Services Committee. Congressman ASPIN advised that he was the Chairman for the House Armed Services Committee and that the appointee was the Chairman for the Senate Armed Services Committee. From approximately 1980 through 1984, the appointee and the Congressman worked closely together on Armed Services issues. Congressman ASPIN described the appointee as businesslike and a hard negotiator. Congressman ASPIN further added that although the appointee was a hard negotiator, he was cooperative and had a high degree of integrity. Congressman ASPIN stated the appointee was known to play "hard ball" and to "always to be in control". He added that the appointee was known as a "honorable guy". By this, the Congressman meant that the appointee always kept his word and was upright and aggressive. Congressman ASPIN further added the appointee was competent, articulate, honest, and knowledgeable on defense issues. Congressman ASPIN stated the appointee had a friendly but distant personality and was even-tempered. Congressman ASPIN knew of no derogatory information regarding the appointee and believed that he was highly qualified for the position under consideration.

Congressman ASPIN had no reason to question the appointee's character, associates, reputation, or loyalty to the United States Government. Congressman ASPIN stated he knew the appointee to socially drink through hearing stories and in the press but he never knew the appointee to abuse alcohol. Congressman ASPIN saw no indication of prescription drug abuse or illegal drug use including marijuana. In this regard, Congressman ASPIN did not know the appointee to buy or sell illegal drugs . Financially, Congressman ASPIN said the appointee lived within his means and was a stable individual. Congressman ASPIN stated the appointee appeared to be unbiased against any class of citizen or racial, ethnic, or religious group.

Regarding alleged sexual indiscretion committed by the appointee both in the United States and abroad, Congressman ASPIN had no personal knowledge. Congressman Aspin stated that it was known that the appointee was a "lady's man" but this was only rumored and never seen. He commented that he was not in Geneva, Switzerland with the appointee and knew of no indiscretions with either United States or foreign nationals.

Congressman ASPIN had no personal knowledge of excessive alcohol consumption by the appointee. He added that at social events, he knew the appointee to have a drink in hand sometimes but he never saw the appointee intoxicated.

He added that the appointee was a combative individual who would never give up and that any suicidal tendencies were quite unlikely. He further characterized the appointee as being a "pugnacious fellow".

Congressman ASPIN was aware through various newspaper articles that the appointee has previously worked for various defense contractors. The Congressman had no personal knowledge of the appointee ever lobbying him, his staff, or anyone on Capitol Hill.

Congressman ASPIN had no personal knowledge of any illegal contributions to the appointee's campaign or illegal expenditure from his campaign funds. The Congressman stated that he has heard of this allegation through the media but could not comment further.

Congressman ASPIN had no personal knowledge of any illegal activities concerning banking which the appointee may have committed in regards to the Republic Bank Corporation, Dallas, Texas. He added that he had never heard of this allegation prior to being asked during the course of the investigation on the appointee.

Based upon their professional association, Congressman ASPIN believed the appointee would be suitable for access to classified or sensitive information. As stated earlier, Congressman ASPIN believed the appointee to be highly qualified for the position under consideration and would highly recommend the appointee for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government.

Ambassador PAUL NITZE, Ambassador at Large, U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE, Washington, D.C., telephone number 647-7723, was interviewed to provide background information regarding the investigation of former Senator JOHN GOODWIN TOWER. Ambassador NITZE provided the following information:

NITZE advised that he was formerly the Chief Negotiator for the Strategic Nuclear Arms Reduction Talks (START) and assigned to the U.S. Mission in Geneva, Switzerland. NITZE advised that he was there prior to JOHN TOWER's tenure at the U.S. Mission. NITZE advised that he was replaced by Ambassador MAX KAMPELMAN, and NITZE added that he suggested that KAMPELMAN become the Chief Negotiator, and that Senator TOWER become one of the U.S. negotiators for the START talks. NITZE advised that he had known Senator TOWER for approximately 20 years, and that he recommended him for the position as the Chief Negotiator for the START talks. b6 b7C

NITZE advised that he was aware of some of the allegations against Senator TOWER regarding possible sexual liaisons. NITZE advised that he was aware that TOWER was frequently seen in public with [redacted] an American woman of Russian descent. NITZE advised that [redacted] was an expert on cooperative measures, and that she was assigned to the START talks, and worked directly for Senator TOWER. NITZE advised that [redacted] is a very attractive young lady, and that it was apparent to him that TOWER and [redacted] enjoyed each other's company. NITZE advised that others may have thought that there was more than a professional friendship developing between [redacted] and TOWER, but he said that he was unaware of any rumors to that nature. NITZE said that he often saw [redacted] and TOWER together, and that she always had her arms on Senator TOWER. NITZE emphasized, however, that in his opinion, TOWER and [redacted] were professional acquaintances only. NITZE further advised that he had no firsthand knowledge or any hearsay information regarding Senator TOWER and any other woman, to include Americans, foreign nationals, or Soviets.

Investigation on 12/8/88 at Washington, D.C. File # WMFO 161A-19411

by SA [redacted] SA RSB:jrw Date dictated 12/9/88 b6 b7C

This document contains neither recommendations nor conclusions of the FBI. It is the property of the FBI and is loaned to your agency; it and its contents are not to be distributed outside your agency.

Ambassador NITZE advised that Senator TOWER's wife was an attorney, and he further described her as a "menace." NITZE advised that Senator TOWER's wife was a complainer and that she frequently asked for his help and influence to enhance her position there. NITZE added that he found it very difficult to believe that Senator TOWER could have married such a woman.

Ambassador NITZE advised that he never saw Senator TOWER using alcohol to excess. Ambassador NITZE said that he knew that Senator TOWER drank, and that he witnessed him drinking on occasion, but never beyond his capacity.

Ambassador NITZE said that he was unaware of any mental incapacities, to include suicidal tendencies. NITZE continued by saying that he would certainly trust Senator TOWER with any sensitive issues or information.

Ambassador NITZE said that he was unaware of any conflict of interest matters involving Senator TOWER. NITZE advised that TOWER was the type of man who was always concerned about improprieties, and that he had no firsthand or hearsay information regarding any conflict of interest matters.

Ambassador NITZE advised that he was unaware of any firsthand or hearsay information regarding any illegal campaign contributions or expenditures.

Ambassador NITZE went on to describe JOHN TOWER as a very politically oriented and witty man. NITZE advised that TOWER is extremely skillful as a politician and can get jobs done. NITZE said that TOWER may have not always been as knowledgeable of arms and defense issues as he could have been, but that TOWER was able to act politically on those issues with great skill. NITZE advised that TOWER was very capable at choosing excellent advisors and staff members to assist him in his work. NITZE further described the appointee, JOHN TOWER, as very honest and trustworthy.

NITZE advised that Senator TOWER's only weakness would be that he is very sensitive in matters of prestige, and as such, occasionally would become temperamental. NITZE described this by saying that TOWER was not always the primary focal point during his tenure at the U.S. Mission in Geneva during the START talks. NITZE advised that TOWER believed that he should have received more recognition, and that he should have had a bigger part to play in those negotiations. NITZE advised however, that TOWER's temperamental personality was normal for him, and that it was not brought about as the result of drinking, or mental or incapacity. NITZE went on to say that even though TOWER may have displayed a temperamental personality, he was certainly of unquestionable character. NITZE went on to say that he knew Senator TOWER had a number of high level connections and that TOWER was very good at exercising good sound political judgment. NITZE said that he would never believe TOWER to ever misuse his power, nor would he substitute personal gain for national security.

Ambassador NITZE said that he would never question JOHN TOWER's character, associates, reputation or loyalty as a good American. NITZE further added that he had no knowledge or suspicion of illegal drug usage. NITZE added that he was unaware of any evidence, nor would he be suspicious of any financial improprieties, and he said that he never knew of any bias or prejudice harbored or displayed by JOHN TOWER.

Ambassador NITZE advised that he believed that there may be others within the defense community who may have a better knowledge of defense and arms issues than TOWER. NITZE said that he was aware of TOWER's possible appointment by the President to be the next Secretary of Defense, and said that he believed others more knowledgeable should perhaps be considered. NITZE emphasized however, that he would recommend Senator JOHN TOWER for any position of trust and confidence with the U.S. Government.

[redacted] STATED THAT HE HELD JOHN GOODWIN TOWER IN THE HIGHEST REGARD, HAVING WORKED FOR HIM AS HIS [redacted] FROM [redacted] WHILE TOWER WAS THE CHIEF UNITED STATES NEGOTIATOR IN THE START NEGOTIATIONS. AS [redacted] HE WAS TOWER'S [redacted] AND SAW HIM DAY IN AND DAY OUT THROUGHOUT TOWER'S TENURE.

[redacted] STRONGLY BELIEVES THAT TOWER IS A LOYAL AND PATRIOTIC AMERICAN WHO NOT ONLY SERVED HIS COUNTRY IN AN EXEMPLARY FASHION DURING WORLD WAR II AND IN THE SENATE BUT ALSO IN THE START NEGOTIATIONS AND THE IRAN CONTRA AFFAIR.

[redacted] DESCRIBED TOWER AS VERY INTELLIGENT, WELL-STEEPED IN ARMED FORCES, DEFENSE, AND NATIONAL SECURITY STRATEGY AND POLICY. HE IS VERY KNOWLEDGEABLE OF NATO AND EUROPEAN MILITARY STRUCTURES.

[redacted] ADVISED THAT THE START NEGOTIATIONS WERE VERY STRESSFUL AND INTENSE AND THAT TOWER HANDLED HIMSELF INCREDIBLY WELL. HE MANAGED THE WORK OF THE INTER-AGENCY START GROUP, WORKED LONG AND ARDUOUS HOURS, HEARD ISSUES OF VARIOUS AGENCIES FAIRLY, HIS DECISIONS SATISFIED ALL MEMBERS, AND HE WAS SORELY MISSED WHEN HE LEFT.

[redacted] WAS SPECIFICALLY ASKED IF HE HAD ANY INFORMATION THAT TOWER WAS INVOLVED IN A RELATIONSHIP WITH [redacted] AT THE U.S. MISSION IN GENEVA.

[redacted] STATED THAT HE HAD NO KNOWLEDGE OF SUCH A RELATIONSHIP NOR DID HE THINK THERE WAS ANY VALIDITY IN THE ACCUSATION WHATSOEVER AND THAT HE WOULD BE ASTOUNDED IF ANY SUCH RELATIONSHIP EXISTED. HE REPEATED THAT HE SPENT A SUBSTANTIAL AMOUNT OF TIME WITH TOWER DURING THE START NEGOTIATIONS.

[redacted] WAS ASKED IF HE HAD ANY KNOWLEDGE OF TOWER'S ALLEGED RELATIONSHIP WITH A FEMALE SOVIET NATIONAL.

[redacted] RESPONDED THAT HE HAD NO KNOWLEDGE AND COULD NOT POSSIBLY BELIEVE THAT ANY RELATIONSHIP OF THIS SORT COULD HAVE OCCURRED.

[redacted] WAS ASKED IF HE POSSESSED ANY INFORMATION WHICH WOULD INDICATE THAT TOWER HAD PROCURED SEXUAL PARTNERS FOR HIS SOVIET COUNTERPARTS.

[redacted] RESPONDED "ABSOLUTELY NOT."

[redacted] ADVISED THAT TOWER DOES NOT DRINK TO EXCESS; HOWEVER, TOWER WOULD NEVER DENY HE LIKED A DRINK. HE DESCRIBED HIS DRINKING AS NORMAL FOR A SENATOR WHO IS NOT AN ALCOHOLIC.

[redacted] ADVISED FOR EXAMPLE THAT DURING RECEPTIONS FOR THE SOVIET START DELEGATION SENATOR TOWER WOULD DRINK TWO OR THREE WINES WHILE SOVIET START [redacted] WOULD FINISH OFF A BOTTLE OF VODKA. b6 b7C

TOWER USUALLY DRANK WINE OR MARTINIS AND NOT TO EXCESS.

[redacted] [illegible] TOWER ALCOHOL-IMPAIRED AND NEVER OBSERVED ANY IMPAIRMENT TO WORK CAUSED BY ALCOHOL.

[redacted] STATED THAT [illegible] CAREFUL ABOUT CLASSIFIED INFORMATION AND, IN FACT, THERE WAS INFORMATION DURING THE START NEGOTIATIONS THAT ONLY TOWER WAS PRIVY TO WHICH WAS NEVER REVEALED TO OTHER DELEGATION MEMBERS.

[redacted] STATED THAT HE HAD NO KNOWLEDGE OF TOWER'S PREVIOUS POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS.

[redacted] WOULD HIGHLY RECOMMEND TOWER FOR A POSITION WITH THE U.S. GOVERNMENT.

[redacted] FEELS SO STRONGLY ABOUT TOWER'S ABILITY AND PAST PERFORMANCE TO THE U.S. THAT HE IS WILLING TO PROVIDE THE SAME INFORMATION UNDER OATH IF NECESSARY.

ADMINISTRATIVE:

[redacted] STATED THAT HE OPINES THAT THESE ALLEGATIONS WERE

FABRICATED BY TOWER'S EX-WIFE, WHO IS A VERY VINDICTIVE PERSON,

IN AN EFFORT TO DISCREDIT TOWER'S REPUTATION.

NUMBER (501) 945-1908.

MR. CLIFTON IS SEVENTY-SEVEN YEARS OLD AND HIS MEMORY IS NOT AS SHARP AS IT ONCE WAS; THEREFORE, THE TIME FRAMES OF THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION WERE RELATED TO THE DATES INVOLVED IN THE PURCHASE OF HIS PRESENT RESIDENCE IN LATE 1979.

MR. CLIFTON ADVISED THAT HIS WIFE, CAROLYN CLIFTON, IS AN INVALID WHO REQUIRES CONSTANT IN-HOME CARE AND HAS FOR MANY YEARS. HE STATED THAT IN 1978 OR 1979 HE PLACED AN ADVERTISEMENT IN A NEWSPAPER FOR A LIVE-IN NURSE FOR HIS WIFE. HE STATED THAT ERMA ELMORE APPLIED FOR THE JOB AND WAS HIRED. HE COULD NOT RECALL IF SHE USED THE NAME ERMA TOWER OR ERMA ELMORE WHEN SHE WAS HIRED.

MR. CLIFTON STATED THAT ERMA WAS A VERY ATTRACTIVE WOMAN WHOM HE BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN IN HER EARLY TO MID-FORTIES. SHE WAS ALWAYS NEAT AND WELL GROOMED AND A VERY GOOD WORKER. SHE TOOK EXCELLENT CARE OF CAROLYN AND THE ONLY THING HE CONSIDERED A PROBLEM WAS THAT ERMA "DRANK A LOT." HE SAID HE BELIEVES SHE MAY HAVE HAD A DRINKING PROBLEM.

MR. CLIFTON SAID THAT WHEN SHE HAD BEEN THERE ABOUT SIX MONTHS ERMA HAD A SEIZURE IN HIS LIVING ROOM. HE THINKS IT WAS

SOMETHING LIKE AN EPILEPTIC SEIZURE. HE CALLED THE NORTH LITTLE ROCK POLICE DEPARTMENT; BUT BY THE TIME THE POLICE OFFICER ARRIVED, SHE WAS PRETTY WELL RECOVERED AND THE POLICE OFFICER LEFT.

SOMETIME LATER, ERMA ASKED HIM (CLIFTON) IF SHE COULD CALL HER EX-HUSBAND, JOHN TOWER, ON MR. CLIFTON'S TELEPHONE. HE SAID THAT HE GAVE HER PERMISSION AS LONG AS SHE PAID FOR THE CALL. HE SAID THAT ERMA PLACED A CALL TO A NUMBER WHICH HE ASSUMED WAS IN TEXAS AND TALKED A FEW MINUTES. THEN ERMA HANDED MR. CLIFTON THE TELEPHONE SAYING, "HE WANTS TO TALK TO YOU."

get phone records

MR. CLIFTON CANNOT RECALL IF ERMA TOLD HIM THAT HE WAS TALKING TO JOHN TOWER OR IF THE MALE VOICE ON THE OTHER END IDENTIFIED HIMSELF AS JOHN TOWER. IN ANY EVENT, HE BELIEVES HE WAS SPEAKING TO SOMEONE NAMED JOHN TOWER WHOM HE NOW ASSUMES WAS FORMER TEXAS SENATOR JOHN TOWER.

"JOHN TOWER" TOLD HIM THAT HE HAD NOT HEARD OF OR FROM ERMA IN OVER EIGHTEEN YEARS AND WAS NOT EVEN SURE IF SHE WAS STILL ALIVE. "JOHN TOWER" TOLD HIM THAT HE AND ERMA HAD MARRIED IN LONOKE, ARKANSAS, WHEN THEY WERE VERY YOUNG AND HAD LIVED THERE TOGETHER FOR SEVERAL YEARS. "JOHN TOWER" TOLD HIM THAT THEY HAD

DIFFERENCES WHICH THEY COULD NOT OVERCOME AND DECIDED THEY COULD NOT LIVE TOGETHER AND HE LEFT. "JOHN TOWER" TOLD HIM THAT HE HAD SINCE REMARRIED [redacted] MR. CLIFTON ADVISED THAT "JOHN TOWER" WAS VERY CORDIAL, WAS NOT IN THE LEAST BIT UPSET, AND WAS "REAL NICE" AND "PROUD TO MEET MR. CLIFTON." HE STATED THAT "JOHN TOWER" TOLD HIM THAT HE OCCASIONALLY TRAVELED TO LITTLE ROCK AND THE NEXT TIME HE WAS IN TOWN THEY COULD GET TOGETHER FOR DINNER. MR. CLIFTON SAID THAT HE NEVER GOT A DINNER INVITATION AFTER THAT.

MR. CLIFTON ADVISED THAT DURING THE TIME ERMA LIVED IN HIS HOME HE NEVER SAW ANY PHOTOGRAPHS OF SENATOR JOHN TOWER AND ERMA. ERMA NEVER TOLD HIM ABOUT AN ABORTION. SHE NEVER SAID ANYTHING TO INDICATE THAT EITHER SHE OR JOHN TOWER HAD EVER BEEN IN A MENTAL HOSPITAL. IN FACT, HE STATED ERMA ALWAYS SPOKE WELL OF JOHN TOWER.

MR. CLIFTON ADVISED THAT HE BELIEVES ERMA WORKED FOR HIM JUST OVER A YEAR. WHEN SHE LEFT, HE TOOK HER BACK TO LIVE WITH HER FATHER AND [redacted] HE STATED THAT ERMA'S REAL MOTHER IS DECEASED AND NOW HER FATHER IS DECEASED. HOWEVER, HE BELIEVES HER [redacted] AND POSSIBLY [redacted] (NAME UNKNOWN)

STILL LIVE IN [redacted] b6 b7C

NOT LONG AFTER RETURNING TO [redacted] ERMA WAS COMMITTED TO THE STATE MENTAL HOSPITAL IN BENTON, ARKANSAS, BY HER FATHER, AND HE (CLIFTON) SAW HER ONE TIME, WHICH HE BELIEVES WAS IN LATE 1979. HE SAID THAT SHE SUBSEQUENTLY TRANSFERRED TO THE LITTLE ROCK STATE HOSPITAL IN THE EARLY 1980'S AND HE VISITED HER ONCE THERE. HE SAID THAT FOUR OR FIVE YEARS AGO HE HEARD SHE WAS BACK IN BENTON, ARKANSAS, BUT HER [redacted] ASKED HIM NOT TO GO FOR A VISIT AND HE HONORED THAT REQUEST.

HE SAID THAT HE HAS NOT SEEN ERMA OR HAD ANY CONTACT WITH HER IN WHAT MUST BE AT LEAST SEVEN OR EIGHT YEARS. MR. CLIFTON ADVISED THAT HE DOES NOT KNOW ERMA'S PRESENT WHEREABOUTS AND IS NOT EVEN SURE IF ERMA IS STILL LIVING.

ON DECEMBER 15, 1988, [redacted] BUREAU OF VITAL STATISTICS, ARKANSAS DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, LITTLE ROCK, ADVISED THAT A REVIEW OF HER RECORDS FAILED TO REFLECT A MARRIAGE LICENSE FOR JOHN TOWER AND ERMA ELMORE BETWEEN 1950 AND 1969.

Date of transcription 12/9/88

T-1 was contacted at Corpus Christi, Texas and provided the following information:

T-1 advised that T-1 is aware that Senator JOHN GOODWIN TOWER abuses alcohol. T-1 advised that the Senator sometimes drinks more than he should. When asked if alcohol could ever be a problem, T-1 responded, "yes". T-1 advised that if the Senator ever had to make an important decision and was under the influence, the Senator could make the wrong decision and that could be a problem. However, T-1 advised that Senator TOWER has never devulged any classified information while under the influence. T-1 advised that Senator TOWER talks about politics but never about any secrets.

T-1 advised that [redacted] was a good friend of Senator TOWER; that they were good friends when [redacted] was still alive and that there was no reason why they should not be now; that they are just good family friends, but T-1 is aware that Senator TOWER has many women. T-1 described the Senator as a womanizer and advised that "if the Senator was to be charged with morality, the Senator would fail, but that if he was going to be charged with competence, he would pass", because he was the most competent and intelligent person in Washington, D.C. for the job.

T-1 advised that the Senator is a very loyal, unbiased person that loves this country, but that he has those two weaknesses (alcohol/women).

T-1 was recontacted at Corpus Christi, Texas and provided the following information:

T-1 advised that T-1 could not give any specifics regarding situations where Senator TOWER had abused alcohol, and furthermore, could not name any of the women T-1 referred to in the first interview (FD-302 of 12/8/88 interview dated 12/9/88).

T-1 went on to advise that T-1 had seen Senator TOWER drinking during "more private settings" and never during work, but that the information T-1 had about women was completely heresay. However, T-1 provided the name of [redacted] as a possible witness to Senator TOWER's drinking habits and affairs with women. b6 b7C

Before the termination of the above interview, T-1 was again asked if T-1 could substantiate any of the allegations made in the first interview, and T-1 advised T-1 could not. At this point, the interview was terminated.

The following investigation was conducted by Special Agent (SA) [redacted] at Houston, Texas on December 14, 1988:

[redacted] Harris County Commissioner, Precinct 3, 1001 Preston Avenue, Suite 900, Houston, Texas, telephone number [redacted] advised she has known JOHN TOWER since 1966, having worked in his Senatorial campaign at that time. She then worked for the Republican Party in Houston from 1968 through 1974 and had frequent contact with TOWER during that time. When TOWER ran for the Senate in 1978, [redacted] for all of South Texas. In 1979, she joined TOWER's Senate staff as [redacted] In 1981, she became [redacted] for all of TOWER's offices in Texas. In conjunction with her duties as [redacted] she was required to spend a considerable amount of time in Washington, D.C. She left TOWER's staff when he retired in 1984.

[redacted] characterizes TOWER as a very intelligent, quick-witted individual. He is introverted, and as a result, some people consider him to be snobbish. She reports him to have an incredible sense of humor when he is with people that he knows and is comfortable with. She characterizes him as being a good family man who is devoted to his children and grandchildren. [redacted] considers TOWER to be a loyal citizen of the United States and is convinced he would do nothing to jeopardize his country. She considers him to be a man of strong convictions who would not compromise his position if it were to be detrimental to those he serves. She has observed him on numerous occasions when he exhibited great skill and sensitivity in dealing with difficult situations. His skill as a negotiator is remarkable, and she has seen him bring harmony to opposing views through these skills.

[redacted] did not accompany TOWER to Geneva, Switzerland, but from talking with others, she has formulated the opinion that he did an outstanding job on the part of the United States, and in doing so, gained the respect of many foreign officials and dignitaries.

[redacted] is aware of the rumors that TOWER has a drinking problem and that he is a womanizer. She acknowledged his drinking problem, but stated he had brought the problem under control in 1978 and to the best of her knowledge, he has no problem at this time. She stated she has never seen him intoxicated. She went on to say she has never observed him to be guilty of chasing women, even though he does enjoy the company of women. According to [redacted] TOWER enjoys conversing with women and enjoys their company. [redacted] stated that TOWER was married to his first wife, LOU, when she, [redacted] stated she had never seen TOWER be unfaithful to LOU. After TOWER's divorce from LOU, he did date several women prior to his marriage to LILLIA. [redacted] then made the statement, "Did he run around on LILLIA?..No way!". [redacted] went on to say that rumors abounded about TOWER's affair with a [redacted] in [redacted] [redacted] inquired of her staff in the Dallas Office and there was never any evidence established that would substantiate such a rumor. [redacted] is also aware that [redacted] has been linked to TOWER romantically. [redacted] stated that this relationship did not begin until after TOWER's divorce from his second wife.

[redacted] highly recommends TOWER for a position in the Government and feels he would be best suited as Secretary of Defense or Secretary of State. She is of the opinion that he is well respected by foreign officials as a result of his work in Geneva, Switzerland. His knowledge of the workings of Congress, in conjunction with his knowledge of Washington in general, further adds to his ability to handle either of those positions. She characterizes him as a great judge of people and his ability to surround himself with competent advisors. She is of the opinion that his knowledge in the area of national defense is second to none.

[redacted] when asked what she would consider TOWER's weaknesses to be, and after careful consideration, stated that he was not a good administrator. She went on to say that he is a good delegator of responsibilities and therefore relys on his staff quite heavily. She stated he does not like to deal with controversial and unpleasant issues if they can be avoided. Specifically, she recalled that on several occasions, personnel problems within the staff would arise, and he was reluctant to terminate the problem. She finds him to be very sensitive and sympathetic to other's needs, and therefore, matters that would impact negatively on another individual were very distasteful to him. However, if need be, he could, and would take action. She reported that one of TOWER's staff members, [redacted] who is now the [redacted] for the [redacted] in [redacted] is an [redacted] and while on TOWER's staff, was given an ultimatum to either [redacted] stated TOWER did so out of a sincere concern for [redacted] [redacted] knows of no illegal drug usage by TOWER and is aware he lives within his means financially. She knows of nothing in his background that would be an embarrassment to the President, other than those issues that have been widely reported in the media.

In addition to [redacted] stated that [redacted] was also on TOWER's staff and would have firsthand information concerning TOWER's use of alcohol.

[redacted] reported that two of TOWER's opponents in separate Senatorial races would also know quite a bit about him. [redacted] Texas and [redacted] Texas opposed TOWER as Democratic nominees.

[redacted] stated that TOWER certainly is no saint, but is most competent and qualified to be given an appointment of importance in the new cabinet. She is of the opinion that any problems in his personal life would not affect his professional life. She recommends TOWER without reservation.

The following information was provided by a person hereinafter referred to as "HE," who requested that his identity remain confidential and not be disclosed outside the Federal Bureau of Investigation. No inference regarding the sex of WF T-2 should be made from usage of the word "he" when referring to WF T-2.

WF T-2 was contacted concerning his knowledge of the appointee, JOHN TOWER, and after being advised of the identity of the interviewing agents by a show of credentials and orally, he freely provided the following information:

He knows the appointee on a strictly professional level. WF T-2 indicated that for a number of years he has had conversations and "conflicts" with the appointee regarding defense issues. WF T-2 emphasized that his way of doing business is different than the way the appointee conducted business.

WF T-2 advised that he had no substantiated evidence to indicate that the appointee committed any illegal act while in his position as the Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. WF T-2 recalled that in his opinion the appointee and his advisors regularly appeased defense contractors or "cronies". An example of this alleged assistance was the release of confidential information obtained at committee conferences to defense contractors. WF T-2 was unable to corroborate this accusation, and did not know if the appointee or a member of his staff leaked the information.

WF T-2 believed that this assistance from the appointee or his advisors was not for personal or political gain but rather for a desire of "not wanting to buck the system". He also felt the appointee was a vindictive type person and that he did a "rotten" job in picking his staff. WF T-2 felt the appointee's staff were simply puppets of the "services".

WF T-2 advised that the appointee always conducted himself in a polite and professional manner. He was not aware of any use of illegal drugs or abuse of alcohol or prescription drugs. To the best of his knowledge, the appointee never sold or purchased any illegal drugs. He considered the appointee to be in good mental and physical health.

WF T-2 stated that while the appointee was not one of the wealthier men in the Senate, he did appear to be living within his financial means. He did not believe the appointee to be biased or prejudiced toward any individual or other racial, ethnic or religious group. He had no reason to question the appointee's loyalty to the United States Government or any of his personal associates.

WF T-2 stated he would not recommend the appointee for the position of Secretary of Defense for several reasons. He believed that under the appointee's reign, the Defense Department would continue to operate in the same manner it did when the appointee was the Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. He indicated that the "Services" would repeatedly receive everything they wanted.

WF T-2 also claimed that the next Secretary of Defense must get along well with all members and segments of Congress. This especially included liberal Democrats who must trust the new Secretary. WF T-2 believes there are other Republicans that can more effectively do this job under the present conditions and that the liberal Democrats simply do not trust the appointee.

WF T-2 indicated that if the appointee was to become Secretary of Defense, he should be able to name his staff. He stated it was common knowledge that the President-elect was not going to allow TOWER to appoint his own staff. WF T-2 claimed this was not fair to the appointee if he was going to be held responsible for executing the duties of the Secretary of Defense.

WF T-2 knew of no sexual indiscretions by the appointee nor any problems with alcohol or mental instability. He stated that in the half dozen or so social occasions he saw the appointee at he never saw him drunk or out of line. As far as any conflict of interest problems WF T-2 stated everyone that would be considered for Secretary of Defense would have some type of past connection with defense contractors and he did not think it would be a factor in the appointee's case.

WF T-2 knew of nothing illegal with regard to the appointee's campaign contributions or any spending of same. He was unaware of any banking activities regarding the appointee, legal or otherwise.

[redacted] Dickstein, Shapiro and Morin, 2101 L Street, Northwest, Washington, D.C., advised that, sometime after former Senator TOWER left the U.S. Senate, "he was invited to hang his hat here." [redacted] explained that the law firm became aware of the fact that TOWER had not established any office of his own and was in need of office space. At that time, this law firm had a conference room on the 10th floor of the above listed building which conference room was not being used. As a result, TOWER was invited to use this conference room as his own. TOWER moved his furniture in and used this conference room as a base of operations.

[redacted] is aware of the fact that TOWER was named Ambassador and went to Geneva, Switzerland, for the Arms Talks. He does not know the date when this occurred. During this time, while TOWER was in Geneva, he did not regularly use the above conference room. However, his furniture and "career memorabilia" remained in this room for storage. [redacted] recalls that the office door was open during these months and his firm did use this room when necessary for their own purposes. It is also possible that the appointee could also have used this office or could have come to the office to retrieve personal items during his tenure as Ambassador. No precise records were kept on the appointee's use of this office.

Upon his return from Geneva, Switzerland, TOWER once again began using this office on a daily or regular basis until he was named as Chairman of the Special Review Board (the TOWER Commission). [redacted] recalled that the TOWER Commission had office space of its own several blocks away, and the appointee did not regularly use the above conference room during this time.

Concerning the value of this office space and any rent paid by the appointee, [redacted] advised that TOWER did not pay anything for the above mentioned conference room. However, a month or two before August 1, 1987, the appointee indicated to the law firm that his consulting work had increased and "TOWER felt it was appropriate to pay rent." At this same time, the firm was undergoing massive renovation on the ninth floor of that building. As a result, TOWER began to occupy several offices on the ninth floor of that building and began paying rent effective August 1, 1987. [redacted] stated that he does not recall the exact amount of this rent, but recalls that it was between $1,300.00 and $1,400.00 per month. He stated that this figure was arrived at as a prorated portion of the rent paid by the firm for the entire office space. [redacted] advised that he would seek the exact dollar amount of this rent which is paid and would later advise the interviewing agent.

[redacted] recalled that, when the appointee first began using the conference mentioned above several years ago, there was discussion among the individuals at the law firm concerning the eventual possibility of developing a formal relationship between this law firm and Senator TOWER and the law firm thus being able to offer the Senator's consulting services to its own clients. Nothing was done concerning this possibility until approximately six months ago when [redacted] recalls some discussion in a meeting about the possibility of formalizing this relationship. He recalls seeing a draft of a document which would have formalized this relationship. However, he has not heard anything about this possibility since then and he does not recall any indication that there exists a formal relationship between the law firm and Senator TOWER or his company. In addition, [redacted] advised that there has been no notification to law firm clients concerning any formalization of this relationship. It was never the intention of the law firm to notify current clients of this fact, but rather was their intention to be able to offer the Senator's consulting services to potential or new clients of the law firm. He again repeated that he does not believe the relationship has yet been formalized and believes this is still in the discussion stage.

[redacted] advised that he does not feel he knows Senator TOWER well enough to speak concerning his character, associates, reputation, loyalty, or any allegations made concerning him.

[redacted] Dickstein, Shapiro and Morin, 2101 L Street, Northwest, Washington, D.C., advised that he has searched the files of his corporation and has determined that the appointee has been paying a monthly rental to the above firm of $1335.00 per month since he first began paying rent August 1, 1987. b6 b7C

[redacted] has made further inquiries at the law firm and has determined that the formalization of a relationship between the above law firm and TOWER's firm never did take place. [redacted] advised that "politics overtook commerce", by which he means that the Senator became quite active in the recent presidential election campaign just about the time that the law firm was seeking to formalize the relationship between the two companies. As a result, no contract was ever signed between these two firms and no notification was ever made to clients of the law firm concerning TOWER.

[redacted] advised that all of his comments and observations of TOWER are favorable. He found him very cordial and intelligent during their many conversations. As he got to know Senator TOWER and got to deal with him more often, he realized that the appointee is much more a politician, one who enjoys being with people, than he is a writer, which requires extended periods of time before a typewriter or a dictating machine. He never saw the appointee drink any alcohol, use any illegal drugs, or show any signs that he lacked financial responsibility. [redacted] advised that the appointee seemed to be doing quite well financially, judging by his houses, suits, and other possessions. He never questioned the appointee's loyalty to this country or his handling of sensitive or classified information. [redacted] stated that he has never seen the appointee drinking to excess, knows nothing about any sexual indiscretions, has never seen him mentally incapable, and is totally unable to comment on potential conflicts of interest, illegal or improper campaign contributions or spending, or the appointee's activities in the field of banking and finance. ASSOCIATE

[redacted] advised on December 15, 1988, that his introduction to the appointee was in [redacted] when the interviewee as a [redacted] was assigned to the [redacted] becoming the [redacted] in [redacted] In [redacted] became [redacted] becoming [redacted] in [redacted]

[redacted] characterized the appointee as "a person of impeccible integrity, who has served most of his professional life in positions of national service and has always subordinated his personal life, both financial and family, to the service of his country." The interviewee additionally characterized the appointee as "probably one of the most respected experts on national security and foreign policy in the world." He characterized the appointee's reputation among his professional peers as "both a thinker and a doer." When asked as to whether he was aware of any work-related problems experienced by the appointee, [redacted] responded in the negative, commenting, "he's very, very decisive." The interviewee related that the appointee "delegates authority to his chief of staff very well (and) holds his people accountable."

The interviewee recommends the appointee with respect to his character, loyalty, and associates. He believes the appointee to be "absolutely" emotionally stable, and has never known the appointee to experience periods of depression, nor contemplations of suicide. He believes the appointee to be "absolutely" financially stable.

When asked as to whether he was aware of any substance abuse on the appointee's part, [redacted] responded, "no, but I've sure read about it." [redacted] related that he has been with the appointee on many social occasions since [redacted] and has never known him to abuse alcohol. He advised that he has never known the appointee to consume more than two to three drinks at a social occasion, typically drinking white wine. He has never seen the appointee drunk, nor heard him to slur his speech after consuming alcohol. The interviewee has never known the appointee to abuse prescription drugs, nor abuse or sell illegal drugs.

When asked as to whether he was aware of any foreign contacts of the appointee which would be considered unusual in a national security sense, [redacted] responded in the negative, commenting, "he's very careful about that." The interviewee knows of no radical or adverse political associations on the appointee's part and believes the appointee would have no problems in continuing to deal effectively with sensitive information. He has never known the appointee to manifest any evidence of prejudice or bias. b6 b7C

When asked as to whether he was aware of any substantive derogatory information regarding the appointee, [redacted] responded in the negative. When queried as to whether he was aware of any sexual indiscretions on the appointee's part, [redacted] responded that he has seen no evidence of anything in this vein. [redacted] commented that rather than "go out on the town", the appointee "for fun in the evening" would typically talk about defense and foreign policy with staff members, not uncommonly until 2 o'clock in the morning. [redacted] commented, "if he's got any serious love affairs, its with those (referring to defense and foreign policy).

Regarding the source of derogatory information concerning the appointee, [redacted] related, "what you're seeing is a power struggle in this town," going on to mention that the appointee is a very powerful public figure and that some of his political opponents would be reluctant to see him as Secretary of Defense. Regarding other sources of derogatory information, he believes that much of it comes from the appointee's second wife, LILLA TOWER, about whom he commented, "she was the meanest, most vicious woman I've ever met in my life," continuing, "why did a guy as bright as he marry her; that has confounded those who know him?"

The interviewee knows of no criminal activity in the appointee's past and when asked as to whether he was aware of any aspect of the appointee's past that would render him susceptible to any kind of a coersive effort, responded, "every possible allegation is out in the press."

When asked as to whether he was in a position to comment upon the appointee's interaction with his own family, [redacted] responded that he knows the appointee's [redacted] very well, characterizing them as "very, very close" to [redacted] He mentioned that the appointee's former second wife, LILIA, "dispised his (the appointee's) [redacted] and they dispised her", mentioning that he is unaware of the reason for the acrimony. b6 b7C

When asked as to whether he was aware of any potential conflicts of interest experienced by the appointee, and in particular issues, arising from the February 1, 1988, LEGAL TIMES article, [redacted] related that he had been contacted by the appointee with respect to the C-FIN Project. He advised that the appointee was representing either LTV or BRITISH AEROSPACE, INC., and had asked about the status of the program. [redacted] related that Senator ROBERT DOLE of Kansas had the CESSNA CORPORATION as a constituent, and that GARRETT AEROSPACE of Arizona also had a following as it was a supplier to at least two of the firms bidding on the C-FIN. [redacted] advised that there were those in the Senate who wanted to delay the awarding of the contract in hopes that their constituents could, with a little more time, regroup for a more viable bid. TOWERS query of [redacted] was as to whether there was going to be a fair competition, or whether, as some in the defense industry suspected, that [redacted] had "things sewed up." The interviewee is aware of no potential conflicts of interest on the appointee's part that would not be resolved by the sale of stock, should the appointee receive the nomination for Secretary of Defense.

When asked as to whether he was aware of any favoritism regarding certain defense contractors by the appointee, and in particular TEXAS INSTRUMENTS and the Harm Missile Program or TRACOR OF PATUXENT RIVER, MARYLAND, [redacted] responded that he and [redacted] who served as [redacted] at different times, are uniquely qualified to respond in this area. He advised that he had never been asked by TOWER to push a particular contractor, and in fact, that TOWER had been criticized by some in Texas, who expected him to push his constituent interest, because as Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, he felt he should not show that kind of favoritism.

When asked that some considered TOWER "totally dedicated to the services regardless of the cost," and who brought up the B-1 bomber and Divad Gun Program, which some considered excessively funded, [redacted] responded that this allegation is "absolute nonsense." He mentioned that TOWER believes in a very strong defense but that the appointee had, in 1982 and 1983, actually reduced the defense budget and that he had voted against an eight hundred million dollar up-front, multi-year budget allocation for the B-1 bomber, and had cancelled entirely the A-10 aircraft project. The interviewee advised that TOWER had wanted to re-organize the DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE, completely overhauling the decision-making process regarding defense contracts as he felt it was insufficient.

When asked as to whether he was in a position to comment on campaign contributions to the appointee, and their subsequent allocations, [redacted] related that he handled only [redacted] and that [redacted] would be the one knowledgeable regarding funds. The interviewee has no knowledge of the appointee's activities as they relate to the banking industry. b6 b7C

The interviewee "unequivocally" recommends the appointee for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government, concluding the interview by saying, "he's the only guy I'd recommend for Sec Def."

It is the interviewee's belief that the rumors surrounding the appointee, with respect to drinking and womanizing, have their origins during the appointee's first term in the Senate, and although he has no personal knowledge of these events, he is in a position to stipulate that since his association with the appointee, which began in [redacted] he is aware of no impropriety on the appointee's part.

was advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and was advised that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is currently conducting a background investigation on JOHN G. TOWER for possible appointment to a position with the United States Government.

was advised that, during the course of this investigation, someone had suggested that she had seen improper behavior on the part of the appointee during a social gathering which occurred on the evening of, or on the evening following the release of the final report by the Special Review Board (Tower Commission). She was further advised that this social gathering was said to have occurred at the Jefferson Hotel in Washington, D. C. advised she could not possibly have been the source of this information since she did not attend any such function at the Jefferson Hotel, or anywhere else. She advised that she has not been on former Senator TOWER's list of people normally invited to social functions in several years. She speculated that the incident in question was one originally reported by CBS reporter . She advised that received this information from another individual whose name she does not recall. As reported by the individual to and by to the American public, the appointee was seen holding hands and kissing a prominent television personality from This occurred on the evening prior to the release of the final report by the Tower Commission. When asked to comment on the appointee's professional ability or professional reputation, stated that she has found TOWER to be very interested in the field of Defense, which was natural because defense is very big business in his home state of Texas. However, she does not consider him "brainy or intellectual". In addition, she considers him to be mentally lazy as well. She makes these comments because it has been her experience that he does not ask for any additional details concerning matters which he is not at all interested in, although he is knowledgeable about defense and does seek additional information on that and related subjects. She further commented that he is inattentive to constituent needs and services. She has found this to be the case when she has gone to Senator TOWER over the years and has tried to bring to his attention the needs of a particular family or individual within the state of Texas. At such time, he has often seemed totally disinterested in helping this individual which leads her to the above conclusion. She cautioned, however, that this is a fairly common trait among senators, who consider themselves to be "above all that".

[redacted] does not consider herself a personal friend of Senator TOWER's, but has seen him socially on many occasions. [redacted] noted that she is a native of [redacted] and for many years has [redacted] is currently the proprietor of the [redacted] located at [redacted] During these many social functions during the years, she has found TOWER to be very nice to people, and particularly nice to people from Texas. She recalled that when the appointee was a United States Senator from Texas, he gave an annual party here in Washington on March 2, Texas Independence Day. [redacted] observed the appointee is well-known and well-liked throughout the United States Government, at least partly because there are so many former employees from his office for whom he has gotten federal employment throughout the Government. It has been [redacted] experience that in almost every department one could find former employees of Senator TOWER who speak highly of him. When asked to comment on any signs of alcohol abuse by the appointee, [redacted] stated that she has never seen any such indication. During the many social gatherings where she and he have both attended, she has never stayed around him long enough to observe him drink more than one or two drinks on a social basis. She noted that she, herself, would normally drink one or two drinks at such a social function. When asked to comment on any signs of illegal drug use by the appointee or any signs of prescription drug abuse by him, [redacted] quickly and strongly stated that this was a "dumb question" by the interviewing Agent and further stated that she is aware of the Federal Bureau of Investigation asking other people this same dumb question. She said that she has never seen any indication of illegal drug use by the appointee, and would have absolutely no way of knowing what medicine he takes, let alone what medicines he abuses. Additionally, she responded in a similar fashion when asked concerning his financial responsibility.

[redacted] stated that she has never questioned the appointee's loyalty to this country or his patriotism. When asked to comment on his ability to properly handle sensitive or classified information, [redacted] stated that she has no knowledge upon which to base a conclusion except to say that she is certain that he has done so properly in the past.

[redacted] was advised that there had been many allegations made concerning the appointee in the media and she would be asked to comment and to provide the information she might have concerning these allegations. Concerning the appointee's possible excessive use of alcohol, [redacted] stated that she heard a story which was told by the former Mrs. TOWER to friends, which friends told [redacted] In speaking of Mrs. TOWER and the friends to whom she had told this story, [redacted] mentioned that she [redacted] is a very close friend of [redacted] The story which [redacted] was told indicates that then Secretary of Defense CASPER WEINBERGER called then Senator TOWER at home at 3:00 a.m. in the morning. The story indicates that TOWER was "dead drunk asleep" and could not have responded intelligently to any questions asked by WEINBERGER at that time. Mrs. TOWER was said to have covered for Senator TOWER and to have suggested to Secretary WEINBERGER that TOWER was quite tired, had been up late, and should not be awakened. She suggested that the matter wait until morning. The story indicates that Mrs. TOWER was afraid that any decision made by TOWER at that time of the night would have been clouded by his use of alcohol. [redacted] stated that she has no first hand information concerning the above story, but believes it to be true.

[redacted] stated that she does believe that the appointee is an alcoholic. She advised that she has heard stories from others that there were " a lot of signs of his drinking" while TOWER was Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. She advised that this drinking took place behind the scenes at the Senate Armed Services Committee. [redacted] heard these stories from people "who had something to do with the Committee". [redacted] advised that she did not wish to state from whom she heard these stories. In addition, she stated that she did not know the circumstances surrounding this drinking, the time of day it took place, the amount of drinking which took place, or any other details concerning this matter. She further stated that she had not heard any of these stories while TOWER was Chairman of the Committee, but rather heard them much more recently. When asked who she thought could verify the circumstances of this drinking, she stated that [redacted] and [redacted] all should have known about this drinking and might say so when asked concerning it. She also speculated that these individuals might not say anything about this drinking at the Senate Armed Service Committee.

[redacted] advised that she is told that the appointee drinks alcohol heavily, both in years past and continuing today. She did not wish to say who told her about this drinking by TOWER. In addition, she could not or did not wish to provide additional information concerning this daily drinking by TOWER. When pressed on this matter, and asked how the Federal Bureau of Investigation could possibly verify this allegation, [redacted] stated that she believes the former Mrs. TOWER would be the best source of information on TOWER's alcohol consumption. She stated that a person who has been drinking for so many years "can't just give this up" and should therefore not be nominated to the position of Secretary of Defense.

When asked to comment on allegations of sexual indiscretions on the part of the appointee, [redacted] again noted the story as reported by [redacted] previously discussed. In addition, [redacted] recalls having been told by [redacted] to Senator TOWER of many instances of improper behavior by TOWER. This individual who furnished the information, HERSCHEL SCHOOLEY, died approximately three years ago. [redacted] stated that SCHOOLEY enjoyed a good reputation and she trusted him completely and believes these stories which he told her. She further advised that many of these stories are well known among the Senator's staff and among individuals who worked with him on Capitol Hill. When asked for specific examples of improper behavior by the appointee, [redacted] stated that TOWER was said to chase young secretaries around the desk. In addition, he was known to have attempted at times to make love to them. One specific story which [redacted] was told by an individual whose identity she does not recall, involves a prominent foreign female who sat next to TOWER at a dinner function. TOWER is said to have placed his hand on this woman's leg and eventually put his hand up her skirt. [redacted] again repeated that she does not know who told her this story. She alleged that many men and women have quit the Senator's Staff over the years because of "internal happenings" including sexual indiscretion by the appointee toward these women. [redacted] did not wish to be more specific concerning the reason why these individuals left his staff; or, the identity of these individuals. When pressed for ways the Federal Bureau of Investigation could verify these allegations, [redacted] stated all of these incidents should have been known to [redacted] who is now working for President-elect BUSH; by [redacted] and by [redacted]

[redacted] stated that she did not go to Geneva, Switzerland while the appointee was working on the Arms Talks, there. However, she is aware of stories about the appointee having about five affairs with various women including a woman translator, a maid, and a secretary. In addition, she understands that TOWER occasionally left Geneva and traveled to [redacted] It is her belief that he did this traveling in order to see [redacted] and [redacted]

Whether or not stories of sexual indiscretions by the appointee are true, these stories, in [redacted] opinion are known and believed to be true by foreign nations. As a result of these beliefs, she thinks he would make a poor Secretary of Defense because these foreign nations would have no respect for him personally and for the United States Government for naming him to such a position. In addition, [redacted] noted that she has been very active for many years in attempting to secure rights for women in the military service. She stated that there has been a great deal of progress in recent years toward stopping sexual harassment and other matters of concern to women in the service. It is her strong belief that it would be very difficult to bring complaints of sexual harassment to Senator TOWER in his position as Secretary of Defense. She believes TOWER would not take these complaints seriously and would not investigate allegations. As a result she believes that naming TOWER as Secretary of Defense would set back the progress made by women in the military service. Other than the above, she knows of no prejudice on the part of the appointee toward any racial, religious or ethnic or other group.

When asked to comment on any signs of mental incapacities by the appointee, [redacted] stated that she had never seen the appointee drinking to excess, and has thus never seen any indication of incapacity on his part.

[redacted] stated that she has no personal knowledge of any illegal campaign contributions or illegal spending of campaign funds by the appointee. However, she has heard stories from others that the appointee used this money for travel and lavish living. In addition, she heard a specific story about his having bought an expensive gift for [redacted] paid for by these campaign funds. She did not wish to state who told her this story but did advise that this individual saw the actual expense listed on documents concerning this matter. She did not recall the exact amount of this expensive gift and does not have any other information concerning this matter.

[redacted] stated that she has absolutely no knowledge of any financial or banking activities by the appointee whether legal or illegal.

[redacted] stated that she would not recommend the appointee for appointment to a position of confidence and trust, or to the appointment as Secretary of Defense in particular. She takes this position because of the matters stated above, including what she believes to be the appointee's excessive use of alcohol and his many instances of sexual impropriety. [redacted] states that she does not object to her name being associated with these comments in the report and does not believe anything she has said is libelous. At the termination of the interview, in order to assure a proper understanding of [redacted] comments and feelings toward the appointee, the interviewing Agent read his notes in a verbatim fashion to [redacted] She made several minor clarifications and additions. This document is a direct result of that interview process.

During the course of this interview, [redacted] volunteered information concerning a story she had heard which, if true, she believes reflects adversely on the appointee's honesty. [redacted] advised that, approximately 1980, then Senator TOWER was contacted by the AYATTOLLAH KHOMEINI of Iran and was asked to attempt to secure spare parts for American aircraft which the Iranians were using in their war against Iraq. The story continues that [redacted] who was later to become [redacted] to President REAGAN, was then a member of TOWER's office staff. TOWER is said to have sent [redacted] to the White House to find out if there was any interest on the part of the United States Government in providing these aircraft parts to KHOMEINI. [redacted] noted that, during the investigation by the Special Review Board (Tower Commission) it was learned that [redacted] did eventually make a trip to Iran and had dealings with the Iranians in connection with the Iran/Contra matter. However, this trip and the Iran/Contra matter in general took place years later than the 1980 story stated above. [redacted] believes that, if the above 1980 story is true, then the appointee was not honest and complete since none of this story was made public during the work of the Tower Commission.

[redacted] was asked concerning the source of this story. She advised that this story was made public at a news conference held by a group of United States citizens, a group composed of former employee of the Central Intelligence Agency and of various business people. She does not recall the name of this group and does not recall the date of this press conference. She does recall that the press conference took place at the National Press Building in Washington, D. C. At this press conference, the individuals in this organization stated that the matter was originally made public by [redacted]

[redacted] who was then living in [redacted] was b6 b7C said to have all of the details concerning this matter in various diaries and documents. [redacted] stated that she does not have any further information concerning this matter. When asked where the Federal Bureau of Investigation could obtain additional information, she stated that there is one individual who was formally employed by the REAGAN/BUSH transition during 1980. [redacted] has been in touch with this individual and she stated that she would be please to provide further information and documentation concerning this story. The individual is identified as [redacted] who resides at [redacted] can be reached at telephone number [redacted]

[redacted] is not personally aware of any negative or derogatory information in connection with Tower or his associates, but indicated that he had read an article by either JACK ANDERSON or EVANS and NOVAK and heard in three different conversations with [redacted] of The Goldwater Education Foundation, that TOWER and [redacted] had arranged an arms contract with the Israeli's that might not have been in the best interests of the United States. [redacted] could not provide any information regarding the nature of the contract. [redacted] advised that he knew of nothing negative about TOWER'S reputation and commented that TOWER had a reputation as a hard worker and one who could separate himself from his work and socialize.

[redacted] stated that he has seen TOWER drink socially but has never seen him intoxicated and indicated that he is unaware of any sexual indiscretions. [redacted] indicated that TOWER did have "several opportunities to become intoxicated or have a sexual encounter but he never took the chance." [redacted] advised that

TOWER did enjoy attending social functions. He knew of no prescription drug abuse nor any use, sale, or distribution of illegal drugs. [redacted] considered TOWER to be financially stable and was unaware of any bias or prejudice that TOWER might have toward any group or individual. He believed TOWER to be mentally and physically healthy nor to be aware of any suicidal tendencies by the appointee. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated that he was unaware about matters related to TOWER'S campaign contributions or spending, or about any activities concerning banking. He advised that TOWER never did any work for McDONNELL DOUGLAS but believed that TOWER would try to avoid any conflict of interest especially since TOWER would know that he would be in the "limelight." [redacted] advised that TOWER was suited for access to classified or sensitive material.

[redacted] indicated that he believes TOWER to be loyal to the United States Government, and recommended him, based only on what he knows about TOWER, for a position of trust and confidence with the government.

He is particularly knowledgeable when it comes to defense program issues. She often set up briefings for Senators concerning both new and old programs which were of continuing interest to the United States Air Force. Not all Senators bothered to become involved and knowledgeable concerning these programs. However, she found TOWER to be quite articulate, bright, and knowledgeable concerning defense matters in general and programs in particular. In addition, she has heard him speak on a number of occasions concerning foreign policy matters in general and has been impressed with his knowledge of that subject as well. Finally, Senator TOWER had a very strong and outstanding staff, which she believes is a credit to the Senator's ability to choose his staff.

Concerning the appointee's character and personality, [redacted] stated that she found him to be a likeable, jovial individual. She was impressed by the fact that TOWER always had a pleasant word and some time to spend with the staff and the non-commissioned officers who went on trips as well. She always found him to be even tempered in his dealings and never saw any signs of him losing his temper. He dealt very well with the foreign officials and dignitaries with whom he was to meet, and he always seemed well prepared for substantive meetings with these individuals. In most cases, TOWER was the actual leader of these delegations, since he was Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee. As leader of this group, TOWER did a good job and seemed to command the respect and admiration of his fellow Senators. In summary, [redacted] advised that TOWER "conducted himself very well on trips". b6 b7C

One of the obligations, which were part of [redacted] for those who were traveling. As a result, she became aware quite soon of what particular liquors various people wanted for the trip and how much they were drinking. This alcohol was generally kept available in the Command Center, a room which was set up at each stop and which served as the Administrative Center for that particular stop. In this were also the itineraries, schedules, and other administrative matters. It was a gathering place for the various participants and a place they could relax. [redacted] observed that TOWER restricted his drinking to one particular brand of white wine, the exact name of which she cannot remember. She recalls this fact because she considered it [redacted] She observed TOWER on many occasions having one or two glasses of wine, very rarely more than two. She never saw alcohol influence TOWER's judgment, personality, or his interactions with people. Those instances where she did see TOWER drinking his one or two glasses of wine, he laughed, joked, and socialized with the staff in the control room, this was all perfectly appropriate and in a social setting. None of this laughing, joking was caused by the alcohol, but rather by Senator TOWER's personality and his ability and his dealings with people. [redacted] recalled that when she became a [redacted] she was advised of the various habits and personalities of Senators. At that time, she learned that Senator TOWER only drinks white wine, but she did hear that he had a drinking problem some years earlier. She repeated that she never saw any instances of alcohol abuse on the appointee's part. She does not have any additional knowledge concerning this former drinking by the appointee, and does not know anyone with first hand information concerning this. On those instances when TOWER visited the Senate Liaison Room operated by the United States Air Force, he only drank white wine, again drinking only one or two glasses.

[redacted] stated that she has never known the appointee to use, purchase or sell illegal drugs. In addition, she has never known him to abuse prescription drugs and does not ever recall the appointee regularly taking any prescription drugs on these trips. [redacted] explained that one of her duties in connecting with these trips was to assure that there was a sufficient quantity of any medicine which the Senator's might regularly take or might have to take. She has no question of the appointee's loyalty to this country and has never known him to improperly handle sensitive or classified information. [redacted] stated that she would recommend TOWER for a position of confidence and trust. She stated that she has never seen any indication on his part of prejudice toward any racial, religious or ethnic groups.

[redacted] was advised that there had been many allegations made concerning the appointee. She advised that she has never known the appointee to show any indication of mental incapacities whatsoever. She stated that she is well aware of allegations concerning the Senator's drinking, and stated that her previous comments should have sufficiently addressed that issue. In summary concerning the appointee's use of alcohol, she stated that former Senator TOWER does drink white wine, and most often is found "nursing a glass or two".

Concerning any indication of sexual indiscretions on the appointee's part, [redacted] stated that she understands, based upon her dealings with Senator TOWER during the 1981-1983 period, that the former Mrs. TOWER was a very possessive and strong willed lady, a person who had TOWER "on a short chain". She noted that Mrs. TOWER quite often called to speak to Senator TOWER when they were traveling overseas and when she was unable to locate him by telephone herself, [redacted] in an effort to speak to TOWER. In addition, [redacted] to be able to reach Senator TOWER should any emergency arise. As a result, she felt that she was constantly aware of his dinner and evening plans. These consisted mostly of meetings with foreign industry or government officials. [redacted] stated that she never saw any evidence that the appointee conducted any sexual indiscretions of any kind. In addition, he never made any advances toward her or acted improperly toward her in any way. [redacted] did note that the appointee had a number of very attractive women on his staff in the United States Senate, but this is not at all unusual for the Senate. In addition, the appointee is a very sociable, likeable and friendly individual, but she has never known him to act in any demeaning way toward people.

[redacted] stated that she knows absolutely nothing from personal knowledge concerning potential conflicts of interest by the appointee, any illegal campaign contributions or spending, or anything about his banking or finances. She knows only what she has read in the paper. Thus, she is unable to make any comments on these areas of interest. *

The following information was provided by a person here referred to as WFT-4, who requested that his identity remain confidential and not be disclosed outside the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI). For convenience, the source may be referred to as "he" when appropriate. No inference regarding the sex of the source may be made from this usage.

WFT-4 was contacted concerning his knowledge of the appointee, JOHN GOODWIN TOWER and a background clearance investigation conducted by the FBI in regards to TOWER's suitability for a high level position in the Federal Government and access to classified or sensitive information. WFT-4 stated he has known TOWER on a professional basis for approximately [redacted] b7D years. WFT-4 was familiar with TOWER's work on Capitol Hill along with his work on the Committee on Armed Services.

WFT-4 characterized TOWER as being "prickly". He explained that TOWER was hard-driving to an extreme and was known to "step on colleagues toes". WFT-4 stated that TOWER was Chairman of the Committee on Armed Services and was overly strong and unaccommodating at times. WFT-4 stated TOWER did not compromise with his colleagues as past Chairmen on the Committee had or as other Committee Chairmen did. When asked to describe TOWER's personality, he said "cool". WFT-4 could not comment further on this statement or provide further details. WFT-4 believed TOWER was "not very accommodating with opponents of his position" but was competent, intelligent and knowledgeable on defense issues. WFT-4 added TOWER was known to get things accomplished although he was difficult to deal with at times.

WFT-4 knew of no derogatory information regarding TOWER's character, associates, reputation or loyalty to the United States Government. WFT-4 knew of no alcohol or prescription drug abuse by TOWER. He saw no indication of illicit drug use, including marijuana by TOWER nor of TOWER ever buying or selling illegal drugs. WFT-4 could not comment on TOWER's financial stability but knew of no unfavorable rumors or information regarding TOWER's personal finances. WFT-4 believed TOWER to be unbiased against any one class of citizen or racial, ethnic or religious group. WFT-4 knew TOWER to have past clearances with the Federal government and believed he should continue to have access to classified or sensitive information.

Regarding allegations of alleged sexual indiscretions by TOWER both in the United States (U.S.) and abroad with U.S. or foreign nationals, WFT-4 had no personal knowledge. He stated he knew various newspapers carried articles regarding these allegations. WFT-4 was not in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1985-1986 with TOWER.

WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of excessive alcohol consumption by TOWER and was unfamiliar with this allegation.

WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of any mental instabilities by TOWER which would include suicidal tendencies.

Regarding a potential conflict of interest allegation concerning TOWER's past work for various defense contractors, WFT-4 stated he has read articles pertaining to this allegation. He advised the articles give an "appearance of a conflict" but no concrete evidence to support the allegation. WFT-4 stated he knew of no one that TOWER would have lobbied on Capitol Hill on the behalf of defense contractors he represented.

WFT-4 was familiar that a large amount of money was raised at a dinner when TOWER was running for re-election. WFT-4 did not know what TOWER did with the money raised as campaign contributions to his re-election. He knew this point to be raised in various newspaper articles which could cause an ethics problem to TOWER if not fully explained. Overall, WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of any illegal contributions to TOWER's campaign or illegal expenditures from campaign funds.

WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of any type of illegal banking activities engaged in by TOWER and relating to the Republic Bank Corporation, Dallas, Texas.

WFT-4 provided additional information to the investigating agents in regard to specific ethical questions relating to TOWER's political career and to TOWER's overall credibility. WFT-4 stated in 1985, a 120 millimeter mortar purchase was placed in the "FY85 Defense Authorization Bill". The language of the purchase got into the bill directing the Army to make a decision on the mortar within sixty to ninety days. WFT-4 said this provision was not in either the original House or Senate Bill. During the Spring of 1985, the addition was discovered and [redacted] "got into some difficulty" over it. WFT-4 said that [redacted] allegedly told [redacted] that TOWER directed him to insert the language into the bill. WFT-4 stated he was not sure if TOWER did anything wrong with this insertion but believed it was important to mention since only one company could fulfill the Army's specification on the mortar in question and within the time period specified. WFT-4 could not state the name of the company able to supply the mortar to the Army within the time constraints listed. WFT-4 again reiterated that even if TOWER was responsible for the insertion, "it may not be an improper motive". WFT-4 could provide no personal knowledge of TOWER's involvement regarding this event. b6 b7C

WFT-4 related that in 1981, MELVYN R. PAISLEY was nominated to be the Assistant Secretary of the Navy (Research, Engineering and Systems). A background investigation was conducted by the FBI where serious allegations (bribery and wiretapping) were made against PAISLEY which did not contain any substantiation. This file was given to the White House in 1981. According to the records of the Committee on Armed Services, the FBI report was not given to them for review. At that time, the Chairman of the Committee was TOWER. WFT-4 stated that in October, 1988, Senators SAM NUNN and JOHN WARNER reviewed the FBI report and issued a joint statement herein attached and incorporated into this FD-302 stating their findings. Also, on November 30, 1988, TOWER was quoted in a newspaper article as having no knowledge of any derogatory information regarding PAISLEY and as receiving no such information from the White House itself. In a June 26, 1988, article from the Los Angeles Times, entitled, "Earlier Allegations About Paisley Told". WFT-4 stated TOWER [redacted] was sent to then Senator JOHN TOWER, Chairman of the Armed Services Committee in November, 1981, stating that PAISLEY was known to take bribes. WFT-4 raised the question of credibility and ethics in TOWER. WFT-4 stated if serious allegations were made and either the White House or TOWER (possibly both) knew, whose decision was it not to inform the Committee on Armed Services in 1981 as to these allegations? WFT-4 had no personal knowledge of TOWER's involvement regarding this event. b6 b7C

When asked if TOWER was suitable for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government, WFT-4 stated he could not personally recommend TOWER to the appointment although he is qualified in the usual sense. By this, WFT-4 meant TOWER had complete knowledge of the issues pertinent to the position. He added "provided all background investigations work out", WFT-4 believed TOWER could be trusted and that the President could have trust and confidence in him. WFT-4 believed TOWER was questionable regarding his open-mindedness on different positions on defense issues, his position on procurement issues, and the possibility of "bringing excess baggage" to the position such as the appearance of a conflict of interest in regards to past work for various defense contractors and his cool relationship with former colleagues on Capitol Hill.

Earlier Allegations About Paisley Told

Fellow Boeing Workers Accused Him in 1978 of Bribing Military Officials

By BOB DROGIN and GLENN F. BUNTING, Times Staff Writers 6-2

SEATTLE—Melvyn R. Paisley, a former assistant Navy secretary who is a central figure in the sweeping Pentagon fraud scandal, was accused a decade ago by his own fellow executives of bribing military officials and bugging the offices of competitors when he worked for the Boeing Co., according to retired Boeing officials and documents obtained by The Times.

Two executives became so alarmed that in 1978, shortly after leaving the company, they went to Boeing management to express concern about Paisley's conduct, officials said in lengthy interviews. At the special management briefing they also complained that Paisley charged fees for prostitutes to his expense account, according to an agenda of the session made available to The Times.

"Usually every major company has one guy who does the dirty business," former Boeing executive James Durst said in an interview at his home. "He was the guy."

Associated Press

Melvyn R. Paisley

Ex-Fighter Pilot

The disclosures about Paisley are the latest in an emerging picture of a high-flying ex-fighter pilot with a penchant for testing the boundaries of the rules. His reputation for driving hard and living fast contributed to a career marked by rumors of questionable conduct.

The revelations also raise questions about how Paisley was able to be confirmed to one of the most powerful positions in the Defense Department, particularly after the FBI was told during a 1981 background check that he had taken bribes varying from cash to a sewing machine.

During his employment at Boeing, where Paisley spent most of his defense industry career, he is believed to have built a network of individuals whom he used to further his personal business. It was these associations, not necessarily linked to the company itself, that Paisley later allegedly relied on to improperly obtain information in schemes outlined by government sources familiar with the current investigation.

Deputy Now Suspected

One association was with James E. Gaines, whom Paisley hired at Boeing and who later joined him at the Pentagon as his deputy. After Paisley left the Defense Department, Gaines stayed with the Navy and is now suspected of being a major supplier of classified and proprietary material to Paisley, according to sources and documents in the investigation.

Another former Boeing official who also worked at the Pentagon during Paisley's tenure said, "Boeing didn't pay bribes, but Paisley did.

"He's dishonest. Everything he did, there was something devious about it," said this official, who spoke on the condition that he not be identified. He added that he believed Paisley acted on his own in his questionable practices.

Lawrence E. Barcella, Paisley's attorney, could not be reached for comment.

One longtime Seattle friend of Paisley who requested anonymity said: "There isn't anything Mel hasn't done." But the friend added, "he's a real survivor. I'm sure he'll survive this—[illegible]."

1984 Incident a Chilling Omen of Fraud Probe

By JOHN M. BRODER, Times Staff Writer

WASHINGTON—In February, 1984, an agent of the Defense Criminal Investigative Service paid a call on Walter R. Edgington, a marketing executive at GTE Government Systems just down the road from the Pentagon. The agent said he was looking into the theft of secret military documents by defense contractors and free-lance consultants.

"You don't have to explain. I know why you're here," Edgington reportedly responded, volunteering that he first saw classified Pentagon documents at GTE shortly after joining the firm in 1966 and had received a steady flow of secret data ever since.

"Every major corporation gets the same material," the investigator said he was blandly told.

Massive Bribery Inquiry

The GTE case, it now appears, was a chilling portent of the massive Pentagon bribery investigation now unfolding across the country. As the GTE affair demonstrated, the $150-billion-a-year defense acquisition business is so vast, so complicated and so little understood that it offers opportunities for corruption and questionable business practices on a staggering scale.

To understand [illegible] the Pentagon's system for acquiring the weapons, trucks, ships, helicopters and [illegible] thousands of manager of international marketing, Paisley openly bragged about his exploits, former company officials said.

PAISLEY: Fellow Executives at Boeing Accused Him of Bribing Military Officials

Paisley was known as a "hard-drinking, two-fisted man's man" who would stop at nothing to get his way, Durst said. "He loved to talk, he loved to brag. Mel had certain priorities: women, money and business—particularly women," he said

Durst also said that Paisley told colleagues about bugging a competitor for a military contract in 1970, about bribing U.S. military officers overseas and about hiding payoffs and wild parties with prostitutes on his military-contract expense reports.

Flamboyant Hustler

Indeed, when Paisley went to Washington to work for his friend and former consultant, Navy Secretary John F. Lehman Jr., former colleagues made a bet how long the flamboyant hustler would last.

"People used to laugh and say he won't last six months," Durst said. "As soon as they do a security check, he'll be out. I guess they never did. We never thought he'd last."

In Spokane, Mildred R. McGetrick, one of Paisley's three ex-wives, said she told the FBI that Paisley was "dishonest with money." She said she also told federal agents that Paisley took gratuities including cash and gifts.

Her sister, Mickey Pierson, said she sent a letter to then-Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.), chairman of the Armed Services Committee, which was considering Paisley's appointment in November, 1981, saying that "Mr. Paisley has been known to take bribes" that included a Singer sewing machine from a company doing business with Boeing.

"Nobody listened. To this day it puzzles me how Paisley won confirmation for such a sensitive job," McGetrick said.

Sue Schnitzer, an FBI spokeswoman, said the background report was turned over to the White House "without comment or recommendation" on Sept. 29, 1981. She would not discuss details of the report. Attempts to reach Tower were not successful.

Paisley, who joined Boeing in 1954, developed a keen interest in Washington after the 1980 elections when it became apparent that Lehman would be the new Reagan Administration's choice to head the Navy Department. Earlier, Paisley had hired Lehman to work as a consultant for Boeing and the two had become good friends. In 1981, Lehman asked Paisley to be one of his top assistants.

Ultra-Sensitive Technologies

As assistant secretary in charge of research and development, Paisley would preside over work on such ultra-sensitive technologies as submarine listening and quieting devices, stealth aircraft and missiles, satellite reconnaissance projects and electronic jammers. Not only did the job require Senate confirmation, but Paisley would have to pass a detailed FBI background check for security clearances.

Durst, who has not seen Paisley since he left the company in 1977, spent five years trying to get Boeing to fire Paisley, and then trying to warn the Defense Department, President Reagan's aides and the FBI that Paisley was a security risk.

"He told executives that he had bribed MAGs," Durst said, a reference to U.S. military advisory groups abroad. He said Paisley used a New York-based shipping company to "launder the cash." Paisley was never charged.

At one point, Durst said, a prominent Boeing consultant in Australia, Sir Edwin Hicks, complained that Paisley was so blatant in his offers of payoffs there that Paisley was made persona non grata in Australia.

"He was red-faced," Durst recalled about his meeting with a furious Hicks, who, he said, died two years ago "He said Paisley had tried to buy people, pay under the table."

In May, 1978, Durst and a colleague decided that corruption was so rampant at Boeing that they asked for a meeting with Benjamin T. Plymale, then vice president at Boeing Aerospace and Paisley's direct boss

Over lunch at the Hyatt House at the Sea-Tac Airport, Durst used a 16-page typewritten "white paper" he had prepared to make the case for a thorough house-cleaning. Durst said he and his colleague had already left Boeing and were hoping to win a consulting contract.

'Corruption' Charged

Page by page, the paper outlined poor morale, loose organization, incompetent management, poor professionalism and other management problems. But the list on Page 7 was explosive—it was titled: "Deeply Imbedded corruption."

Durst's original dog-eared copy of the memo shows that Paisley's name, as well as those of several other Boeing employees, was penciled in beside allegations of "prostitution on expense account" and "using expense accounts to cover illegal activities."

Please see PAISLEY, Page 22

PAISLEY: Allegations by Former Colleagues Told

Paisley's name also is penciled in beside the heading "industrial espionage," specifically, "wire-tapping and snooping illegally on competitor's facilities."

"I went through all this," Durst said Saturday, showing the memo to a reporter. "The bugging, the bribery, the hookers. And Ben looked at me and said: 'Every goddamn word of it is true.' And he said he'd get back to us. He never did. That's when we found out that he and Paisley were best friends."

Reported to FBI

Durst said he repeatedly requested a meeting with Boeing Co. President Mel Stamper but was refused. He said he reported the information to the FBI in 1983.

Boeing officials could not be reached Saturday. A switchboard operator said the firm's spokesmen would not accept calls "on matters of this nature" on the weekend.

Plymale, a former deputy assistant secretary of defense for strategic and space systems, and five other Boeing employees lost their top-secret security clearance when the Defense Department found they had mishandled classified information on the proposed MX strategic missile in March, 1979.

Investigators said an aide in Washington, D.C., had transmitted a summary of a top-secret memo intended for President Jimmy Carter to Plymale's office in Seattle over open telephone lines. Pentagon officials said Soviet agents routinely monitor telephone lines to and from U.S. defense contractors.

Plymale and another Boeing vice president also were investigated for destroying evidence. No formal charges were brought, however, and Plymale later served on Ronald Reagan's 1981 transition team.

One of Durst's first assignments, he said, was to go to New Hampshire at Boeing's expense to campaign for then-presidential hopeful Henry (Scoop) Jackson, a Democratic senator from Washington state who was known for his advocacy of a strong defense program.

"Two or three weeks later, Jack Anderson writes a scoop about how Boeing was paying for political support for Scoop Jackson," Durst said. "Hell, I didn't know it was illegal.

"I was sullied, I had the stamp on me. So Paisley came over because he had heard of it. He was laughing. He said: 'Hey, I'll tell you a good marketing story.'"

According to Durst, Paisley told him he had found a new way to get the low bid on an Air Force contract for housekeeping at Patrick Air Force Base at Cape Canaveral in Florida.

Paisley said he had sent an aide [illegible] bugging in a [illegible] office to [illegible] bidding [illegible]ces "Here I am, honest all my life, Mr. Squeaky [illegible]. And here is a senior man in the company bragging about committing felony bugging on a military project. He was very flippant about it."

"When he told me about bugging Pan Am, I was an accessory," Durst recalled. "I was scared to death. But he was very open about it."

Later, Durst said, he needed an aide who spoke Portuguese and Spanish to help on a trade mission to Brazil, and one was provided. "Three days later, I ran into Mel in the men's room, and he was laughing. He said: 'That's the guy who did the bugging,'" referring to the aide.

Durst said he fired the man from his department after the trip for cheating on his expense account.

"Information is the essence of the business," Durst said. "There are good ways to do it and bad ways. Mel, unfortunately, always used the bad ways."

Staff writers Dan Morain in Seattle and William C. Rempel, Robert Gillette, Melissa Healy, Doug Jehl and Jim Schachter in Washington contributed to this story.

Dear

This letter is to confirm a conversation between of your office and Supervisory Special Agent (SSA) of the Washington Metropolitan Field Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) on December 15, 1988, regarding former Senator John Goodwin Tower.

b6
b7D
was advised that the FBI has been conducting a background investigation of former Senator Tower for a Presidential appointment in the Bush administration. During this investigation, Senator Tower's ex-wife, Lila Burt Cummings Tower, provided comments to the FBI alleging that was provided a copy of an FD-302 pertaining to an interview of who is the Federal Election Commission (FEC), in which commented regarding 2 U.S.C. Section 439a. In part, this FD-302 indicates that view of Section 439a involves contributions received by the Tower Senate Club which were designated for the general election. view is that those funds received by the Tower Senate Club designated as primary election contributions could be utilized by the Senator under the exclusionary

b6

161-20443-90

rule of 439a and those contributed under the general election portion could not be used by Senator Tower because he withdrew from the general election. [redacted] comments indicate that all contributions made for the general election should be returned or refunded to the contributors or redesignated in accordance with certain FEC rules. b6 b7C

In addition to the above, SSA [redacted] discussed with [redacted] documentation received from the Federal Election Commission purporting to disclose the receipts and disbursements for Senator Tower's various campaigns from 1977 through 1988. SSA [redacted] analysis of these receipts and disbursements were discussed with [redacted] and it was pointed out that from the years 1977 through 1988, that those funds received for primary and general election campaigns appeared to remain relatively consistent with those funds indicated for disbursements under the primary and general campaigns. The information obtained from the FEC for the years 1983 and 1984 disclose receipts for the primary campaign for $257,000 and for the general election campaign of $1.4 million. In contrast, the disbursements showed $1.3 million under the primary campaign and $510,000 under the general election.

[redacted] was informed that Senator Tower had been interviewed on at least two occasions, and on December 3, 1988, when interviewed with regard to monies raised in his campaign he provided a four page memorandum accounting for the use of the campaign funds for the 1984 Senatorial race. [redacted] was advised that Senator Tower announced August 23, 1983, that he would not be running for re-election for the Senate from Texas, at which time he claimed that his political campaign committee, the Tower Senate Club, showed a balance of $1.58 million. Senator Tower indicated that he immediately sent a letter to his contributors offering to refund their contributions and a total of $120,000 was refunded over the next two years. According to Senator Tower, at the beginning of 1984, a balance of $1.17 million was maintained by the Tower Senate Club and the club began distributing funds to Republican Party organizations and candidates. Senator Tower indicated that approximately $280,000 was spent on his Austin, Texas, and Washington Offices, staff travel, and the Senator's travels.

According to [redacted] 2 U.S.C. 439a allows any individual who was a member of Congress on January 8, 1980, to use "surplus campaign funds" for "any lawful purpose", a concept that includes converting such funds to personal use of the member involved. Since Senator Tower was a member of Congress on January 8, 1980, Section 439a would therefore allow him to convert to personal use any monies that could reasonably be considered to be "surplus campaign funds".

[redacted] advised that an argument might be made that contributions to the Tower Senate Club which exceeded $1,000 per contributor during 1983 did not technically represent "campaign funds",

since under Federal Election Commission accounting regulations the Tower Senate Club was technically under an obligation to return such donations to contributors who made them once Senator Tower decided not to seek re-election. However, in order to be criminally actionable as either a general federal "fraud", or as a Federal Election Campaign Act crime under the Act's narrow penal sanction (2 U.S. C. 437g (d)), the prosecutor would have to prove that the Senator personally converted funds to his personal use that he knew at the time were not covered by Section 439a. [redacted] informed that, in his opinion, this would be impossible to do on the facts presented here, since the monies in question in fact came from a legitimate campaign committee, and since the requirement that some of them might theoretically have been refundable to contributors derived from a relatively obscure accounting regulation that under normal circumstances would have been the responsibility of the fund's bookkeeper and not the Senator.

In addition, [redacted] advised that if in fact any violation of the Election Laws took place, the statute of limitations which is three (3) years has long since tolled. The pertinent point would have been the August 23, 1983, withdrawal by Senator Tower, which would place the Statute of Limitations at August, 1986. In addition, [redacted] noted that if any "common law" fraud existed on the part of Senator Tower wherein perhaps he never intended to run for office in 1984, and allowed his campaign personnel to campaign and obtain contributions for him, that statue which is a five year Statute of Limitations, is likewise tolled. [redacted] commented that in order to make a viable case in this type of fraud matter, one would have to be able to show beyond a reasonable doubt the "mens rea", and the following intent to defraud on the part of the subject, which was not likely on the facts.

In conclusion, [redacted] indicated that he saw no apparent violations of any Election Law in the matter presented to him and noted that even if there were, the Statute of Limitations has long since tolled.

Sincerely yours,

W. Douglas Gow

Honorable Lawrence E. Walsh
Office of Independent Counsel

Washington, D. C.

Dear Judge Walsh:

This is in reference to telephone conversations on 12/21/88 between [redacted] FBI, who is assigned to your office, and Supervisory Special Agent [redacted] FBI.

The FBI has been requested to conduct a background investigation of Senator John Tower for Secretary of Defense, which will require Senate confirmation.

An allegation has been made by [redacted] that Senator Tower was asked by the Ayatollah Khomeni during 1980 to procure spare parts for American-made planes which were already in the Iranian Air Force. These planes were then to be used against Iraq.

Further, [redacted] was alleged to have assisted in this matter. Senator Tower is alleged to have directed [redacted] to go to the White House to find out if there was any United States Government interest in providing these airplane parts to Iran. [redacted] further opined that, if this allegation is true, Senator Tower was not honest or complete in his work for the Tower Commission as this matter was not made public by the Tower Commission.

This letter confirms [redacted] approval interview [redacted] in order to resolve this issue.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely yours,

The appointee, JOHN G. TOWER, was telephonically contacted and advised that further information was desired from him. It was pointed out to Mr. TOWER that the interviewing Agent would be glad to come by his residence or that this matter could be handled telephonically. Mr. TOWER noted that it would be more convenient for him to handle the matter telephonically at this time.

Mr. TOWER was thereafter asked if he would provide information with regard to his military service. He thereafter furnished the following information:

He stated that in about June, 1943, he enlisted in the U. S. Navy Aviation Cadet Program V 5. He was called up to active duty in September, 1943 and reported to Naval Air Station Corpus Christi, Texas on approximately October 1, 1943. After a service in boot camp, he was assigned to a naval air station in Beeville, Texas where he worked on the flight line. At about February, 1944, he was called to cadet training at DePaw University, Greencastle, Indiana. The program he was in was officially known as preparatory flight training. He stated he failed out of this course in May, 1944. He was returned for further training at Great Lakes Naval Training Station in Illinois and was thereafter assigned to a naval air station in Memphis, Tennessee as an air crewman. He subsequently volunteered for sea duty and was sent to Algiers, Louisiana and thereafter to Maryland for amphibious training.

He was subsequently, at about November, 1944, assigned to a ship, the USSLCSL112. He thereafter served on this ship in the Western Pacific, including the Okinawa campaign and the occupation of Japan. He was returned to the United States and received a honorable discharge from the Navy at Hitchock, Texas Naval Station on March 25, 1946. His rank at the time of discharge was Seaman First Class.

Since that time he has been enlisted in the U. S. Navy Reserve. He is currently a Master Chief Bosun's Mate (E9) in the U. S. Navy Reserve (inactive).

EMPLOYMENT

On December 9, 1988 contact with the Dallas, Texas, office of ROCKWELL INTERNATIONAL, Electronics Operations Division, determined that [redacted] of that division, was out of town. b6 b7C

On the same date, [redacted] telephonically contacted the Dallas office from his retreat on [redacted] He advised that he has personally met the appointee on only three occasions. One time was many years ago and he is unable to recall the exact details of that meeting.

Within the last year he has met the appointee on two occasions. One occasion was a dinner in Los Angeles, California during the initiation of the appointees being retained as a consultant for ROCKWELL INTERNATIONAL. This event was mainly of a social nature.

Shortly thereafter, exact date unrecalled, the appointee came to the Dallas, Texas office of ROCKWELL. At that time the appointee talked about his opinions of the possible future relations with the Soviet Union and his insights as to the Soviet attitude in these matters.

This was an attempt to help ROCKWELL INTERNATIONAL develop a business strategy in the defense industry.

[redacted] advised that he is not well-acquainted with the appointee personally. He has no knowledge of any derogatory information with regard to the appointees moral character, associates, reputation or loyalty.

He has no knowledge of any drug use, alcohol abuse, or personal financial problems on the part of the appointee.

He noted that he has only been with the appointee on one social occasion as noted above, but during that time the appointee certainly did not consume any excessive amounts of alcohol. Nor did the appointee discuss any classified information which was outside the scope of the clearances at ROCKWELL INTERNATIONAL.

He advised that his opinion of the appointee is based as noted above on three personal meetings as well as his knowledge of the appointee from the news media. He said that due to that, he feels the appointee would make an excellent choice as an appointee in the Department of Defense. He noted that he has read news media articles that the appointee is being considered for such a position.

DL 161A-2025

The following investigation was conducted on December 20, 1988 at Dallas, Texas by Special Agents (SAs) [redacted] b6 b7C and [redacted]

[redacted] furnished the following information:

She has been acquainted with the appointee, [redacted] for many years, noting that her now deceased husband was a supporter of the appointee during the appointee's tenure in the United States Senate.

She stated that she has been [redacted] She stated as she recalls, her first [redacted] At that time, the appointee advised her that he was separated from his then wife, LILLA C. TOWER. [redacted] she is aware that the appointee is not a wealthy person, [redacted]

She stated that prior to the time that [redacted] the appointee, she recalled that she and another male individual, name unrecalled, had dinner with the appointee and [redacted] in London, England. She stated that this was several years ago and she could not recall the exact date.

She further advised that she has no knowledge of the appointee ever having been unfaithful to either of his wives. She noted that the appointee is an individual who is attracted to and is attractive to women. She noted that he likes to talk to women and be around women, but she is not aware of any indiscretions on his part.

She further advised that she is aware of the fact, due to published media reports, that the appointee has been nominated to be Secretary of Defense by President-Elect BUSH. She advised that she considers him to be well-qualified for such a position.

She further advised that she has no knowledge of any excess consumption of alcohol on the part of the appointee. She further advised that she is not aware of any drug use on the part of the appointee.

She advised that as previously stated, the appointee is not a wealthy person. She has no knowledge of any personal financial problems on his part. She noted that she considers the country to be extremely lucky that he would be willing to serve in a position of Secretary of Defense. She noted that he is making a financial sacrifice to do so because he could probably make much more money in the private sector. She further advised that he is extremely closed-mouthed about his business and particularly the U. S. Government's business. She has never heard him discuss any classified information, whether he was drinking or not. She noted that even though [redacted] b6 b7C he did not even tell her that the President had appointed him to the Iran-Contra Hearing Board several years ago.

She considers the appointee to be a person of good moral character, associates, and an extremely loyal American citizen. He is very conscious of his image.

She further advised that she does not feel that his past employments as a consultant for the defense industry would have any adverse bearing on his performance of duties as Secretary of Defense. She stated that if anything, he would be harder on those persons whom he previously represented, noting that he is a very fair and honest individual in her opinion. She stated that if a company could not produce on its merits, he would not have anything to do with it.

She stated that he is almost "too honest" for his own good.

She considers the appointee to be a man of his country who thinks about his country. She stated that this needs to be the main thing he really is concerned about. She stated that he is a gentlemen, who is a sweet and thoughtful individual.

She stated he does not have any expensive habits that she is aware of, other than the fact that he does enjoy going to good restaurants to eat.

She stated she recommends him highly for any position of trust and confidence with the U. S. Government.

FD-302 (REV. 3-10-82)

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

1 Date of transcription

JOHN G. TOWER was advised of the identity of the interviewing agents and was advised that it was necessary to ask him additional questions in connection with the background investigation currently being conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation concerning Mr. TOWER. Prior to the beginning of these questions, former Senator TOWER advised that he wished to be sure that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had fully explored the matter of an alleged sexual relationship between TOWER and [redacted] while TOWER was stationed in Geneva, Switzerland. The interviewing agent advised TOWER that he was unable to comment on this matter except to say that he did not have any specific questions for TOWER concerning that allegation. TOWER again stated that he wished to be sure that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had fully explored this matter since he was totally innocent of this allegation. Finally, TOWER advised that he intended to speak to the [redacted] concerning this matter. b6 b7C

TOWER was asked to comment on the office space which he has used at the law firm of Dickstein, Shapiro, and Morin. TOWER advised that he had the use of a spare room at this law firm for approximately one year on a rent free basis. He stated that this room had not been in use at the law firm until he began occupying it. This room was located on the 10th floor of the law firm building and was described as containing files, packing boxes, and unused furniture. Approximately 18 months ago, TOWER began paying rent on office space consisting of a secretarial station, an office for Senator TOWER, and two offices for his assistants. TOWER advised that this rent was established based upon the square foot rent paid by the law firm. Although the rent paid by TOWER is quite reasonable, this is based upon the fact that the law firm established its rent many years ago, with an option to renew the rent. As a result, both the law firm and thus Senator TOWER are paying reasonable rents for the space.

TOWER was asked if he could provide an exact date when he began using the above mentioned room on a rent free basis. He advised that, to the best of his knowledge, he began using this conference room during April, 1986. After checking with [redacted] TOWER stated that he began using this conference room on April 24, 1986, after he had returned from Geneva, Switzerland. TOWER advised that this was several weeks after he left United States Government service, since his resignation from that position was effective April 1, 1986. He stated that there never was any formal or even informal relationship between TOWER and this law firm. Occasionally over the years, TOWER would be asked on an informal basis for some information of a business nature concerning the state of Texas by various attorneys of this law firm. In each case when he was able to do so, TOWER provided a verbal response to the attorney making the inquiry and made no further record of each instance. He continues to informally advise this law firm to the present time and in most cases makes no charge to them and no billing. In only one instance did he ever bill anyone, and in that case he billed the client for whom TOWER did some services through the law firm. When seeking legal advice from the law firm, however, TOWER does request a bill from them and pays them for their advice.

When asked to describe the "Witchita Pot" and his relationship to it, TOWER advised that this is the name of the money which was gathered together by a group of investors in an oil deal. He explained that LILLA TOWER, completely without his knowledge, invested with several of Senator TOWER's friends in this oil deal. Although the investment could possibly have made a great deal of money, it did not do so. When Mrs. TOWER complained to Senator TOWER concerning this investment and her losses, he compensated her for those losses, paying approximately $25,000.00. When asked why he compensated his wife for this investment loss, TOWER felt he should do so because it was his friends who convinced Mrs. TOWER to make this investment. TOWER stated that he was originally to get ownership of this investment after paying Mrs. TOWER the above sum. However, even after the divorce between them, he never did obtain ownership of this investment. He stated that he does not know of any other formal name under which this investment is known. It is called the Witchita Pot because one of [redacted] lived in Witchita Falls, Texas. TOWER stated that he believes [redacted] is currently hospitalized for alcohol abuse, and does not believe he would be a reasonable source of information for the Federal Bureau of Investigation concerning this matter. b6 b7C

When asked if he had ever suffered from depression or had ever contemplated suicide, TOWER stated that he has never suffered from depression and has never considered suicide. TOWER stated that he probably drank too much "in younger days", which he described as time prior to approximately 15 years ago. Even in those days, however, his drinking of alcohol was not at all constant, but rather was a matter of his occasionally drinking alcohol to excess. In recent years and at the present time, he drinks only white wine, rarely drinks before 7 p.m. in the evening, and gave up drinking liquor when he married LILLA TOWER. TOWER stated that he has never had a dependence on alcohol and believes that his job has never been adversely affected by his alcohol use.

When asked to comment on any activities he might have undertaken in order to help his former wife LILLA obtain a federal job, TOWER stated that "she found that job and talked to others before talking to me". In addition, LILLA TOWER eventually spoke to several members of Congress concerning this job. TOWER identified the job as a member of the Board of Directors of the Institute of Museum Services, an agency which gives money to various museums. He advised that he may well have spoken to people in an effort to get her this job, and speculated that he would have spoken to someone in the Presidential Personnel Office at the White House, someone on a staff or working level and certainly not someone as important as [redacted] at that time. In addition, TOWER stated that he never placed any requirements on anyone in connection with his wife obtaining this job and in fact advised that he did much less for her in this case than he has done many, many times over the years for various constituents who were seeking a similar job. He stated that he placed "no inordinate pressure" on anyone in this regard. TOWER stated that his former wife also obtained a second federal job, one which she obtained after they were divorced. This job had to do with what he recalls as the International Broadcasting Commission. In the case of that commission, TOWER had nothing to do with her obtaining this job, and nothing to do with her losing it.

TOWER was advised by the interviewing agent that there had been allegations made in the media concerning lobbying by TOWER, especially in the time prior to his having registered as a lobbyist. TOWER was asked to describe his definition of lobbying and to discuss various examples of instances where he was lobbying and instances where he was not lobbying. At this time, TOWER was joined by [redacted] who remained during the rest of the interview and occasionally helped TOWER formulate a response. TOWER stated that the legal and technical definition of lobbying is "sufficiently vague that you don't know" when you are lobbying and when you are not. However, he stated that he and his company have used the practical definition of lobbying which states that doing anything to attempt to influence the course of legislation is considered lobbying.

However, this definition in his opinion, certainly does allow one to question knowledgeable individuals in order to gather information concerning a project, the budget proposed for the project, the chances of its passage, and the various other matters of interest. This gathering of information does not constitute lobbying, in TOWER's opinion.

TOWER recalled that he registered with the Congress as a lobbyist on February 1st or 2nd, 1988. Before that time, he did absolutely no lobbying on behalf of a commercial client. After registering, however, he did lobby on one occasion for one client. In addition to this lobbying for commercial clients, TOWER was called upon by the Administration to lobby on behalf of the Administration in two instances. The first instance was what he described as the Arab Arms Sales (AAS) which occurred during 1986 or 1987. The second instance of lobbying for the Administration was lobbying on behalf of the treaty with the Soviet Union identified as the Intermediate Nuclear Forces (INF) Treaty. In both cases, he was specifically asked to lobby on behalf of the administration and does not feel he was required to register as a lobbyist in order to lobby for the administration. The one instance where he clearly recalls doing some lobbying occurred during the middle of March, 1988 when he lobbied on behalf of the LTV Corporation, which was the prime contractor on the C-FIN program. He did directly bill LTV Corporation for his work in this case. When asked if he recalled making any telephone calls to [redacted] TOWER recalled only one conversation with [redacted] but did advise that he might possibly have made another call or two. He does not exactly recall the number of telephone calls to [redacted] The one call he is certain he made was one which did take place prior to his registering as a lobbyist, and was a call in which he was inquiring only concerning the status of the C-FIN Program. He explained that there had been a personnel change, a new General, in the program and he was inquiring concerning this new General's feelings and attitudes and whether any changes would result in the program from this personnel change. He repeated that he does not consider those calls to have been lobbying since he was merely gathering information and determining the status.

When asked specifically why he registered on February 1, 1988, or February 2, 1988, TOWER stated he did so because he had been asked by the Administration several weeks earlier to lobby in Congress for the INF Treaty mentioned above. Although this specific lobbying would not have required TOWER to register, he did so anyway. [redacted]

TOWER's, also present at this time, advised that another circumstance which entered into the decision for TOWER to register at that time was a newspaper article dated approximately February 1, 1988 in the Legal Times. [redacted] characterized the allegations in this newspaper article as totally incorrect since they accused TOWER of lobbying prior to his having registered. However, in an effort to avoid bringing any unfavorable publicity on himself, and therefore on the INF Treaty for which he was lobbying, TOWER decided to register himself as a lobbyist for all of his present clients, even though he had no immediate intention to lobby for most of them. [redacted] repeated, however, that it was TOWER's concern for the INF Treaty and the lobbying he was doing for that treaty which lead him to register and to avoid any future allegations, even improper and incorrect allegations. b6 b7C

When asked to comment concerning "Coastal Enterprises", TOWER stated that he is not at all familiar with that term and inquired as to the nature of the term. TOWER was advised that no information could be provided concerning Coastal Enterprises. TOWER repeated that he is not familiar with that name. He suggested that he may well have dealt with a private individual, and never had heard the name Coastal Enterprises. TOWER asked [redacted] for any knowledge he might have concerning Coastal Enterprises and [redacted] responded in the negative. TOWER requested [redacted] to check with the law firm with which TOWER has a relationship in Texas. Having checked with that law firm, [redacted] returned and advised TOWER that the law firm is equally unfamiliar with Coastal Enterprises. TOWER stated that without some additional information he cannot possibly identify any dealings he may have had with that company or establishment.

When asked to comment on any business association or other relationship he may have had with [redacted] or Interarms Company, TOWER stated that he has not had any business dealings whatsoever with [redacted] He advised that [redacted] was [redacted] and his only contact with him has been social. He repeated that he had absolutely no business dealings whatsoever with [redacted] or with his company. TOWER stated that he has never had any business dealings in [redacted] TOWER stated, however, that everything he has heard, read, or seen indicated to him that [redacted] runs a legitimate [redacted] business and sells only to governments with the approval of the United States: or the British Government itself.

TOWER stated that he has not had any business dealings whatsoever with the countries of Iran or Iraq. He has not had any relationship whatsoever except in his official capacity as head of the TOWER Commission investigating the Iran/Contra matter. As stated above, he has certainly not had any dealing in Arms Sales to either of these countries.

In speaking of allegations concerning "womanizing", TOWER stated that he had been faithful to his second wife, and did not date anyone until after he was separated from Mrs. TOWER. He stated that he never had any sexual relationship or "anything to do with" [redacted] whose last name he does not recall at the present time. TOWER advised he is alleged to have had a relationship with a [redacted] who was never identified publicly. He stated he is not certain who this individual is, but he does have one friend who works in [redacted] in [redacted] He explained that he has occasionally had lunch and dinner with her and has done so only after his separation from Mrs. TOWER. Finally, he has often dated [redacted] but only after his separation from Mrs. TOWER. TOWER stated that he has already spoken in detail of his use of alcohol above. b6 b7C

When asked to comment on approximately $12,000.00 of expense from the Tower Senate Club which was listed under the name "J. Tower Special", TOWER advised that each of the expenditures which made up the $12,000.00 which were eventually paid by this fund were expenditures which TOWER paid out of his own pocket or with is own credit card, which expenditure were totally legal and proper deductible business or political expenses. Before an expenditure was repaid to TOWER from this fund, the circumstances of the expenditure were made known to the staff of the Tower Senate Club and it was their job to make a decision as to whether this particular expenditure was a personal expense to be paid by TOWER himself or a proper, legitimate business expenditures to be repaid to him from the "J. Tower Special". Tower stated that those who did this deciding were always well aware of the need for separating personal from business expenses. It is his belief that no personal expenses were paid to him from the "J. Tower Special" fund within the Tower Senate Club.

TOWER was advised that an individual interviewed in this investigation stated a belief that he would not properly investigate complaints of sexual harassment which were brought to him if he were to become the Secretary of Defense. He was asked to comment on this belief. TOWER advised that he considered this charge to be "outrageous". TOWER stated that he has "never engaged in any sexual harassment" and has never tolerated it among members of his staff. TOWER noted that he has had many females on his staff in high professional positions. He has never been insensitive to women or to women's issues, and TOWER noted that he even has three daughters.

TOWER was asked to comment on an allegation during this investigation that his office had received a communication from the AYATTOLLAH KHOMEINI of Iran during approximately 1980 in which KHOMEINI was asking for TOWER's assistance to obtain aircraft parts. TOWER was further advised that it was alleged he sent a staff member from his office to the White House concerning this matter. TOWER emphatically denied this allegation. He stated there is absolutely no truth to this charge.

TOWER was asked again to comment on any telephone calls or other activities he may have undertaken on behalf of his clients concerning the C-FIN program. As previously stated, TOWER does recall making at least one telephone call to [redacted] concerning this C-FIN program. However, the circumstances of that telephone call were answered previously. TOWER stated that he does not specifically recall what other calls he may have made in connection with this program. However, he stated that all of the rules concerning lobbying before his registration as a lobbyist and lobbying after his registration as a lobbyist were explicitly followed. In no case did TOWER ever lobby or speak on behalf of any program which he did not truly believe was in the best interest of this country. In addition, he was never seeking any greater advantage over other points of view, but was only seeking to keep "a level playing field", by which he meant he was asking only that all parties be given fair consideration. In any case, TOWER never made any calls concerning the C-FIN project for anyone other than the LTV Corporation, which was the prime contractor.

TOWER provided copies of two newspaper articles, one dated January 22, 1988 from the Washington Post which speaks of TOWER having been asked to lobby on behalf of the administration for passage of the INF Treaty and the other from the Dallas Times Herald dated December 14, 1988 which contains an article which quotes several former female members of TOWER's staff in defending him. Both articles are attached to this document and should be considered a part thereof.

Reagan Enlists Tower's Help To Win INF Treaty Approval

By Bill McAllister
Washington Post Staff Writer

President Reagan yesterday began his last year in office by pressing for support for his arms control policies on both domestic and international fronts.

The president, who will leave office next Jan. 20, enlisted the help of former senator John G. Tower (R-Tex.) to help him guide through the Senate ratification process the recently signed treaty to eliminate U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range nuclear missiles. Arms control will be one of the major themes of the president's State of the Union speech Monday night.

The president raised the arms control issue yesterday with West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, who was visiting in his role as president of the European Economic Community, and an international group of labor leaders. Reagan also announced the dates for his trip to Europe to confer with NATO leaders.

Both the West German government and the labor leaders have endorsed the INF Treaty and Tower told reporters after a 15-minute meeting in the Oval Office that he believed it would be ratified by the Senate. The president's major concern is "to prevent any crippling amendments or reservations" that would force the United States to reopen negotiations with the Soviets, Tower said.

White House officials said that they want the treaty, which Reagan signed at last month's summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, to clear the Senate by a large margin, signaling to the Soviets that the administration worked to back its commitment to reduce nuclear arms.

Tower, who once chaired the Senate Armed Services Committee, led opposition to President Carter's SALT II treaty, which provided limits on long-range nuclear weapons. The treaty never was ratified by the Senate. Administration officials said Tower's role will be to ease the fears of conservatives that the United States cannot verify Soviet compliance with the INF Treaty.

Overwhelming ratification would help propel the Soviets to move quickly toward an agreement on strategic arms that Reagan hopes to sign at a summit this spring in Moscow, administration officials said. A large margin also would lessen the chances that Senate opponents would attach major reservations to the long-range arms treaty, the officials said.

Genscher was told that propects are good that agreement on the second treaty could be reached during the arms control talks underway in Geneva, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said. "Both sides have a spirit of cooperation and intention to try to get an agreement by the May-June time frame," Fitzwater said.

Arms negotiations will be one of the major topics that Reagan and other NATO heads of state will discuss in Brussels March 2 and 3.

Fitzwater also announced that final laboratory results from the president's cancer checkup last week showed no recurrence of his prostate problem.

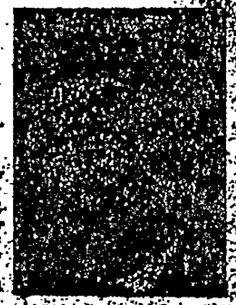
Ex-boss Tower getting 'bum deal,' women say



Tower

By Richard S. Dunham
TIMES-HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — When Cynthia Root began hearing unflattering news reports about former Texas Sen. John Tower's private life, she thought the media was not describing the former boss she knew.

Root, who worked her way from receptionist to legislative assistant during her seven years on Tower's staff, rejects the portrayal of Tower in some media reports as a man with an insatiable appetite for alcohol, women and the Washington fast life. Instead, she said, Tower was a man who provided unequaled opportunities for women to advance in their careers.

"Tower is getting a bum deal," said Root, a former official in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services who currently is director of government relations for the American Academy of Ophthalmology. "He was absolutely one of the best members of the Senate — if not the best in how he dealt with women. He deserves tremendous credit, which he is not getting."

The spate of reports critical of Tower's private life, which has complicated his selection as President-elect George Bush's Defense secretary, has prompted former Tower staff workers to unite behind their former boss, but none more so than a loyal cadre of professional women who got their start as aides to the Texas senator.

"He is a man who recognizes talent in everyone and works to help those people develop those talents in a productive way," said Carolyn Bacon, who was one of the first women to serve as an administrative assistant in the Senate.

when Tower hired her for his top staff job. "It was a very satisfying working environment."

Many of Tower's friends and associates said his former wife, Washington attorney Lilla Burt Cummings, is the cause of the rumors about his private life that have been repeated in the media.

"It's outrageous that she should be using his public nomination for personal revenge," said Merrie Spaeth, a Dallas communications consultant and former Reagan administration official. "It gives all women a bad name."

Cummings, never popular with Tower staff workers, has been accused of forcing the resignation of several Tower advisers.

"I'm sure that the former Mrs. Tower never won a Miss Congeniality Award while she was in school," said longtime Tower friend Paul Eggers, a Dallas attorney who represented Tower in divorce proceedings.

Tower's former aides said many of the media reports are based on unverified rumors based on allegations made during the Towers' messy 1987 divorce.

"I think it's atrocious journalism," Root said. "Whenever you open that big black box of divorce settlements and estranged wives, you have a situation where nobody looks good."

Kathleen Troia McFarland, who worked for Tower's Senate Armed Services Committee staff and later served as an aide to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, said people "must take with a grain of salt allegations of a disgruntled former spouse."

"Myself and the professional women who worked for him never found him to be anything but a perfect boss," she said. "He certainly treated me with just the highest professional regard. I never had a hint of anything like" Cummings' allegations of sexual infidelity.

Despite the controversy swirling around Tower, McFarland said she believes he will be nominated as Defense secretary within the next week.

"I think it would be a great Christmas present to the nation," she said.

RE: WMFO TELETYPE TO BUREAU AND SAN FRANCISCO DECEMBER 21, 1988, AND SAN FRANCISCO TELEPHONE CALL AND FACSIMILE TO FBIHQ DECEMBER 21, 1988.

ON DECEMBER 21, 1988, [redacted] A WHITE FEMALE ADULT BORN [redacted] AT [redacted]

161-2040-102

CC DESTROYED

7 APR 26 1989

APPEARED AT THE MONTEREY RESIDENT AGENCY OF THE FBI FOLLOWING ATTEMPTS BY SAN FRANCISCO SPECIAL AGENTS TO INTERVIEW HER AT HER RESIDENCE, [redacted] b6 b7C

TELEPHONE NUMBER [redacted]

AS DIRECTED BY THE BUREAU, THIS INTERVIEW WAS TAPE RECORDED BY [redacted] AND ALSO BY THE TWO INTERVIEWING AGENTS.

AT THE OUTSET, [redacted] WAS ADVISED OF THE NATURE OF THE INQUIRY AND STATED THAT SHE REQUESTED NO CONFIDENTIALITY CONCERNING HER STATEMENTS.

[redacted] THEN STATED THAT SHE HAD BEEN CONTACTED BY [redacted] FOLLOWING [redacted] INTERVIEW BY WMFO SPECIAL AGENTS. [redacted] DESCRIBED HER EMPLOYMENT AS [redacted] AND SAID THAT SHE IS CURRENTLY [redacted] THE REAGAN-BUSH CAMPAIGN INVOLVEMENT IN THE NEGOTATIONS WITH IRANIAN REPRESENTATIVES PRIOR TO THE 1980 ELECTION AND THE SUBSEQUENT ARMS SALES TO IRAN WHICH RESULTED FROM THOSE, AND OTHER MEETINGS.

[redacted] WAS READ VERBATIM [redacted] STATEMENT AS PREPARED BY WMFO. SHE NOTED THAT SHE IS [redacted] INFORMATION AND PROVIDED CORRECTIONS AND CLARIFICATIONS

TO [redacted] STATEMENT.

FIRST, [redacted] STATED THAT BY WAY OF BACKGROUND PRIOR TO THE 1980 ELECTION SHE HAD WORKED AS [redacted] SHE STATED THAT SHE ACCOMPANIED [redacted] AND WORKED WITH HIM AT THE [redacted] AFTER THE ELECTION, SHE CONTINUED TO WORK WITH [redacted] ON THE [redacted] WORKING ON THE [redacted] IN DOWNTOWN WASHINGTON. SHE WAS LATER EMPLOYED AS THE [redacted] AND ACTUALLY MOVED INTO [redacted] SHE STATED THAT SHE WAS LATER PROMOTED TO THE POSITION OF [redacted] WHICH SHE HELD UNTIL MID 1982 AND THEREAFTER WAS TRANSFERRED TO A POSITION IN THE [redacted] IN THE [redacted] DIVISION. IN LATE 1983 SHE LEFT GOVERNMENT EMPLOYMENT AND RETURNED TO [redacted] DUE TO "FAMILY PROBLEMS."

SECOND, [redacted] STATED THAT THE PRESS CONFERENCE IN QUESTION OCCURRED ON AUGUST 25, 1988, AT THE NATIONAL PRESS BUILDING IN WASHINGTON, D.C. INCLUDED WITH HERSELF WERE THREE OTHER INDIVIDUALS PROVIDING INFORMATION AT THIS PRESS CONFERENCE. THE OTHER THREE WERE [redacted] WHO CLAIMS TO BE A FORMER CIA AGENT, [redacted] WHO IS A FRIEND OF [redacted] AND CLAIMS TO BE A MERCENARY WHO FOUGHT WITH THE CONTRAS, AND A PROFESSOR [redacted] OF [redacted] STATED THAT [redacted] WAS AT THIS PRESS CONFERENCE AND SAT IN THE FRONT ROW. SHE STATED THAT IT WAS A LARGE PRESS CONFERENCE ATTENDED BY MOST OF THE INTERNATIONAL PRESS CORP AND WAS COVERED BY THE MAJOR NEWS NETWORKS.

THIRDLY, [redacted] STATED THAT WHILE [redacted] STATEMENT SAYS THAT FORMER PRESIDENT BANI-SADR ORIGINALLY MADE PUBLIC THE STORY OF THESE EARLY ATTEMPTS BY IRANIANS TO OBTAIN ARMS AND AIRCRAFT PARTS, [redacted] WAS THE ACTUAL SOURCE OF THE MORE RECENTLY LEARNED FACTS REGARDING THESE EARLY MEETINGS.

AND FOURTH, CONTRARY TO [redacted] STATEMENT, [redacted] STATED THAT JOHN TOWER WAS CONTACTED BY EMISSARIES OF THE AYATTOLLAH KHOMEINI, NOT KHOMEINI HIMSELF, AND THAT TOWER SENT

[redacted] BECAUSE HE WAS CHECKING THE STORY JUST RELEASED BY [redacted] AT THE PRESS CONFERENCE. [redacted] STATED THAT IT WAS HER OPINION THAT THE [redacted] GAVE THIS INFORMATION TO [redacted] WAS THAT HE WAS REACTING TO THE "BIG PRESS CONFERENCE" AND THOUGHT THAT "THINGS WERE GOING TO COME UNRAVELED" AND THAT'S WHY HE TOLD THE TRUTH. [redacted] STATED THAT [redacted] HAD TOLD HER THAT HE HAD ALSO CALLED [redacted] AND THAT [redacted] HAD VOLUNTEERED TO HIM THAT IT WAS [redacted] WHO HAD INSISTED THAT [redacted] MEET WITH THE IRANIAN REPRESENTATIVES. [redacted] INTERPRETS THIS STATEMENT BY [redacted] AS BEING AN ATTEMPT BY [redacted] TO SHIFT RESPONSIBILITY TO [redacted] FOR THIS MEETING. ONE OF THE THINGS THAT [redacted] STATED THAT SHE FINDS MOST TROUBLING, HOWEVER, IS THAT ON SEPTEMBER 5, 1988, [redacted] WROTE A STORY ON THIS ISSUE FOR DERSPIEGEL, HOWEVER, HE LEFT OUT ALL OF THIS "CRITICAL INFORMATION" THAT HE HAD RECEIVED IN THESE TELEPHONE CALLS AND HAD PERSONALLY TOLD HER.

IN ADDITION TO HER OWN WORK, [redacted] STATED THAT INFORMATION REGARDING THESE MEETINGS HAS ALSO BEEN DESCRIBED IN GREAT DETAIL IN A SERIES OF ARTICLES WRITTEN FROM AUGUST, 1987, THROUGH APRIL, 1988, BY A REPORTER FOR THE MIAMI HERALD, ALFONSE

CHARDY. SHE STATED THAT CHARDY SIGHTS THE INDIVIDUALS INVOLVED

IN THESE FIRST MEETINGS AS BEING [redacted]

[redacted] WHO WAS [redacted]

AT THE TIME AND ONE OR POSSIBLY MORE IRANIAN REPRESENTATIVES.

[redacted] STATED THAT THESE THREE INDIVIDUALS ALL CLAIM THAT

NOTHING CAME FROM THIS MEETING, HOWEVER, IT IS THE POINT OF HER WORK FOR THE PAST TWO YEARS TO DEMONSTRATE THAT "EVERYTHING" CAME FROM THESE MEETINGS AND THAT THEY ARE NOT TELLING THE TRUTH.

THUS, [redacted] STATES THAT SHE BELIEVES THAT TOWER WAS INSTRUMENTAL IN SETTING UP AND ARRANGING THESE INITIAL MEETINGS AND THAT THE REASON HE WAS BROUGHT INTO THE TOWER COMMISSION WAS TO COVER UP HIS OWN CULPABILITY. [redacted] STATED THAT THE CONNECTION BETWEEN TOWER AND THESE EVENTS IS STRONG BECAUSE [redacted] AND HAS BEEN CLOSE TO HIM ALWAYS. FURTHER, TOWER IS AN OLD PERSONAL FRIEND OF [redacted] AND SUPPORTED [redacted] IN 1980 AGAINST RONALD REAGAN. HE WAS LATER A CLOSE ADVISOR TO THE REAGAN-BUSH CAMPAIGN.

[redacted] ACKNOWLEDGES THAT THE ONLY PERSONS WHO COULD PROVIDE DEFINITE ANSWERS TO THESE QUESTIONS RAISED BY HER WERE THE PEOPLE WHO WERE ACTUALLY INVOLVED IN THESE MEETINGS THEMSELVES, OR ARRANGING THESE MEETINGS, THAT IS TOWER, [redacted] AND WHOEVER THE IRANIAN, OR IRANIANS WERE. [redacted] ACKNOWLEDGED THAT THE ONLY ONE OF THESE PERSONS TO DATE WHICH SHE HAS ATTEMPTED TO CONTACT REGARDING THIS STORY IS [redacted] HOWEVER, SHE STATED THAT AN INTERVIEW WITH HIM HAS

NOT YET BEEN SCHEDULED.

IN ADDITION TO THE INFORMATION PROVIDED ABOVE, [redacted] b6 b7C PROVIDED A COPY OF AN ARTICLE WHICH APPEARED ON THE FRONT PAGE OF THE WASHINGTON POST ON NOVEMBER 29, 1986, ENTITLED "ISRAELI SALE SAID ALLOWED BY HAIG IN 1981," WRITTEN BY BOB WOODWARD AND WALTER PINCUS. [redacted] ALSO PROVIDED A COPY OF AN ARTICLE ENTITLED, "DEAL OF THE DECADE," WHICH APPEARED IN THE PUBLICATION "IN THESE TIMES," OCTOBER 12 THROUGH 18, 1988, AND WAS WRITTEN BY JOEL BLEIFUSS. [redacted] DESCRIBES THIS ARTICLE AS THE BEST CURRENT SUMMARY OF THIS ARMS FOR HOSTAGES STORY EXTANT TO DATE.

PENDING REVIEW OF THESE DOCUMENTS AND STATEMENTS BY [redacted] BY FBIHQ, NO FURTHER QUESTIONS WERE DIRECTED TO [redacted] AND SHE WAS THANKED FOR HER TIME.

AS DIRECTED BY SSA [redacted] SAN FRANCISCO WILL PREPARE AN FD-302 OF THE INTERVIEW OF [redacted] AND FORWARD IT, WITH COPIES OF ALL DOCUMENTS ATTACHED, BY ROUTING SLIP IN EXPRESS MAIL UPON COMPLETION.

SAN FRANCISCO WILL MAKE NO FURTHER ATTEMPT TO CONTACT [redacted] UNLESS SO REQUESTED BY THE BUREAU.

HO T-1, a person who has known JOHN GOODWIN TOWER for approximately 25 years and is well acquainted with him, provided the following information. HO T-1 will be referred to hereinafter as he.

T-1 advised he has known JOHN TOWER since the mid-1960's and during this time, has had occasion to know him on both a personal, professional, and social basis. T-1 stated that he is not certain that JOHN TOWER is the man for the job of Secretary of Defense of the United States. T-1 commented that he certainly hopes there is another person having the same qualifications that could be considered for the job. T-1 stated that TOWER has a drinking problem, and that in addition to his drinking problem, he has a reputation as a womanizer. T-1 stated the drinking problem may be less severe now than it was in the past, but that he, T-1, would not feel comfortable having TOWER as the Secretary of Defense knowing of his difficulties with alcohol. T-1 commented that in a position such as Secretary of Defense, one's character and integrity are extremely important and he feels TOWER is lacking in both areas. T-1 stated he would prefer to have someone who is clear headed and clear of conscience in that position so that they would not be subject to compromise or distractions.

T-1 advised he has seen TOWER intoxicated on numerous occasions. T-1 stated that he could not recall specific meetings or gatherings when he observed TOWER to be intoxicated, but that it was not uncommon at all to see TOWER intoxicated. T-1 stated he has not had occasion to socialize or meet with TOWER to any great extent since TOWER's retirement from the Senate. However, T-1 still knows of TOWER's reputation and T-1's overall impression is that TOWER still has a problem with alcohol and with women. T-1 stated that from his, personal observations, TOWER drank too much and became quite indiscreet when he was under the influence of alcohol.

T-1 was asked if he had ever known of TOWER to talk about sensitive matters that would be harmful to the country. T-1 immediately stated he had never heard TOWER divulge any information of a sensitive or secret nature, and has never heard anyone else say that they have heard of TOWER do so. T-1 stated that TOWER's talking about matters he should not has never been an issue. The primary issues of concern to T-1 are TOWER's use of alcohol and his weakness for women.

T-1 was asked if he could be specific as to the names of ladies that TOWER has been indiscreet with, and T-1 stated that he could, but immediately replied that he would not do so. T-1 stated that he has personally observed TOWER engage in conduct which is inconsistent with that of a good family man, husband, and father, and he feels that a person in a position of trust should not open himself to criticism and/or compromise.

T-1 was asked if he would recommend TOWER for the position of Secretary of Defense, and T-1 immediately replied, "No." T-1 was then asked if he would recommend TOWER for some other position in the cabinet, T-1 stated he might, but that he would have to think about it for a while. T-1 then stated that in another position in the cabinet, TOWER might do a fine job, but T-1 re-emphasized that he felt in the position of Secretary of Defense, TOWER had too many things in his personal life that could cause problems.

T-1 was asked if he felt TOWER was qualified for the position of Secretary of Defense, and T-1 replied, "Probably." T-1 characterized TOWER as being a bright, knowledgeable individual and stated he is quite competent to handle most any job that would be given him.

T-1 commented that it was his belief that there should be someone else available with the same qualifications who could handle the job of Secretary of Defense without having the stigma of personal indiscretions being attached to him.

b7C

[redacted] advised he had no knowledge of Senator TOWER, other than the fact that in late 1983, or early 1984, when he was employed at TRACOR, he was aware of a letter which originated from the Senator's office, the SENATE ARMED SERVICES COMMITTEE, and was directed to the SECRETARY OF THE NAVY. He pointed out that the letter was an inquiry to the SECRETARY OF THE NAVY, instructing that office to go to all of their government contract offices, and inquire about all of their contract work. This inquiry was instigated by ROCKWELL CORP., in Texas, and was due in part to their having been defaulted in one of the contracts. TRACOR, in turn, went to their Congressman, to get the inquiry rescinded. [redacted] advised that this had nothing to do with [redacted] TRACOR, sometime in [redacted]

[redacted] further related that he knew of no improprieties regarding Senator TOWER, nor did he know of any type of unethical relationship betwen TOWER and TRACOR.

[redacted] Dickstein, Shapiro and Morin, 2121 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C., was away from his office and staying in Florida. Through a telephone call placed by his Secretary, [redacted] was advised of the identity of the interviewing agent and was advised that the Federal Bureau of Investigation is conducting a background investigation on JOHN G. TOWER. [redacted] was advised that the interviewing agent had previously spoken to [redacted] in this firm. [redacted] was further advised that the date provided by [redacted] for the appointee's beginning to use a conference room at this law firm and the date provided by the appointee seemed somewhat different. [redacted] was asked whether he could recall when the appointee began utilizing a conference room within this law firm.

[redacted] stated that he could not exactly recall when JOHN TOWER was given use of a conference room for which the firm had little other use. He stated that no paperwork was ever generated which would show this exact date, and he did not know of any way the exact date could be determined from documentation. He recalled that the appointee had been overseas and began using the conference room after he returned to the United States. He stated that he could not be more exact, but that the exact date could no doubt be obtained from the appointee's personal assistant, [redacted] In addition, [redacted] suggested that the exact date or at least an approximate date could also be obtained from his own personal assistant, [redacted] who had placed this call originally.

[redacted] speculated that TOWER must have begun using this conference room after his return from overseas, since [redacted] does not recall the appointee being away from this room for any extended period of time. However, he is unable to be any more exact than this. Other than the two individuals mentioned above, [redacted] was unable to suggest anyway that this exact date could be determined.

[redacted] stated TOWER was very diplomatic and could relate to a variety of personalities in a variety of settings. [redacted] believed TOWER was highly respected in and amongst the military community. He added everyone knew TOWER began his military career as an enlistee, and obtained the position of Chief Petty Officer in the Naval Reserves. [redacted] said TOWER was proud of this accomplishment and frequently joked with military officers (generals and admirals) regarding this fact.

[redacted] had no reason to question TOWER's character, associates or reputation. [redacted] said TOWER was a patriotic loyal American. [redacted] never knew TOWER to harbor any bias or prejudice against any one class or citizen or group. [redacted] believed TOWER demonstrated great attention to minority interests evidenced by his hiring of several minorities for various staff positions. [redacted] specifically noted [redacted] who was employed by TOWER and has advanced well. [redacted] stated TOWER has had past clearances on sensitive information and saw no reason why TOWER should not continue.

[redacted] was aware of TOWER's former wife, LILLA, and believed if any allegations of misconduct by TOWER were circulating in public, they emanated from her and should be "taken as a grain of salt". [redacted] stated that in his opinion, she had a mental disorder and was "obsessively jealous of JOHN TOWER. She couldn't stand to have another woman around him." The obsessive behavior by LILLA "almost caused TOWER's female staff to leave."

[redacted] related an incident that occurred in Geneva, Switzerland during TOWER's position as START Negotiator. [redacted] stated TOWER and LILLA separated and she refused to move from the quarters set aside for TOWER in his official capacity. TOWER went to live in a hotel, in downtown Geneva. LILLA kept calling [redacted] and stated that she knew that TOWER was During all of [redacted] trips with TOWER, he never saw TOWER intoxicated or acting in an intoxicated manner.

[redacted] had no personal knowledge of any mental incapacities, including suicidal tendencies on the part of TOWER.

[redacted] knew TOWER to work for various defense contractors such as LTV, and MARTIN MARIETTA. He believed TOWER was not an active lobbyist for any firm but was used for his expertise in military matters and strategy. He knew of no one lobbied by TOWER on behalf of any company he represented.

[redacted] believed TOWER was too "bright and intelligent" to either accept illegal contributions to his campaign or spend them illegally. He had no personal knowledge of the allegation but had read of it in various newspapers.

[redacted] had neither heard or had personal knowledge of TOWER's banking activities which would include his work with Republic Bank Corporation, Dallas, Texas.

[redacted] advised he would recommend TOWER for a position of trust and confidence with the United States Government.

Interviews

An individual, who requested confidentiality*, advised that he/she has known Senator Tower strictly on a professional basis for several years. He/she advised that he/she had no substantiated evidence to indicate that Senator Tower committed any illegal act while he was chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee (SASC), but, in his/her opinion, Senator Tower and his advisors regularly appeased defense contractors or "cronies". He/she cited the release of confidential information obtained at committee conferences as an uncorroborated example of this alleged appeasement or assistance. He/she was unable to provide any specific information concerning this allegation. He/she added that this assistance was not given for Senator Tower's personal or political gain but in a desire to avoid "bucking the system."

He/she also claimed that liberal Democrats do not trust Senator Tower, which will hinder his ability to get along with Congress.

He/she would not recommend Senator Tower for the position of Secretary of Defense as he/she believes, that under Senator Tower's direction, the Department of Defense would continue to operate as it did when Senator Tower was the Chairman of the SASC. He/she said that the "Services" would repeatedly receive everything they wanted.

A second individual, who requested confidentiality advised he/she has known Senator Tower since the 1960's on a personal, professional and social basis He/she stated that in his/her opinion, Senator Tower has a drinking problem, and has a reputation as a womanizer. He/she has seen Senator Tower intoxicated on numerous occasions, but could not recall specific meetings or gatherings at which this occurred. He/she added, however, that Senator Tower's drinking prjoblem may be less severe now that it was in the past. He/she would not recommend Senator Tower for the position of Secretary of Defense.

Washington, D. C., advised she believes that Senator Tower is an alcoholic, as she has heard stories from others that he drinks heavily. Yet, [redacted] also advised that she personally has never seen any indication that Senator Tower has abused alcohol. She would not disclose the identities of the individuals from whom she had heard these stories. [redacted] also related that she personally has heard stories, which she believes are true and are well known on Capitol Hill, of Senator Tower's womanizing. She stated that several of Tower's staff members have quit because of "internal happenings", including sexual indiscretions by Senator Tower. She has also heard stories of his womanizing while in Geneva, Switzerland. [redacted] further related that she has heard from an individual, whom she would not identify, that Senator Tower spent campaign funds on an expensive gift for a female friend. b6 b7C

[redacted] opined that the stories of Senator Tower's sexual indiscretions are believed to be true by foreign nations, and, as a result, he would be a poor Secretary of Defense. [redacted] also believes that Senator Tower would not take seriously allegations or complaints of sexual harassment within the military.

[redacted] further recounted a story which she advised was made public at a news conference (date and place unrecalled), which, if true, she believes reflects adversely on Senator Tower's honesty. She advised that in approximately 1980, Senator Tower was contacted by the Ayatollah Khomeini of Iran and was asked to attempt to secure spare parts for American aircraft which the Iranians were using in their war against Iraq. Allegedly, [redacted] was sent by Senator Tower to the White House to find out if there was any interest on the part of the United States Government in providing these aircraft parts to Khomeini. [redacted] noted that none of this story was made public during the work of the Tower Commission, which was investigating the Iran/Contra matter.

The following investigation was conducted by SA [redacted] at Austin, Texas:

b7C

On December 13, 1988, [redacted] Austin, Texas, telephone number [redacted] advised that he was [redacted] stated that the Tower Senate Club is the name given to the JOHN TOWER Election Campaign Contribution Fund. According to [redacted] TOWER last ran for the United States Senate in 1978 and shortly thereafter the Tower Senate Club began accepting contributions for his next anticipated Senate re-election campaign. A total of $1,600,000 was collected prior to the time when appointee made the decision not to seek re-election. This failure to seek re-election raised the question of what to do with the money already collected. [redacted] stated that it was decided that a letter would be written to the campaign contributors asking what they wanted done with their contribution. These letters stated that the money could be returned to them or that it could be spent as appointee saw fit. [redacted] stated that very few contributors asked for their money back. Appointee decided to disburse the money to other candidates seeking election. The money was distributed to Texas Legislature candidates and Republicans seeking election to the United States House of Representatives and the United States Senate. The amounts of these contributions were limited inasmuch as the Tower Senate Club was to be treated as an individual and not a political action committee. Thus, there were legal limitations on how much money could be distributed per each race. [redacted] stated that he is not aware of any criticism on the part of appointee for distributing money to any of these political candidates.

[redacted] stated that a total of $100,000 was given to Southwestern University, Georgetown, Texas which was appointee's alma mater. [redacted] stated that there was criticism of this contribution as some newspaper stated the gift was to "enhance his library" at the university. [redacted] stated that appointee does not have a library at the university and that to his mind, the contribution is perfectly legitimate.

CONFIDENTIAL

b7C

[redacted] stated that "memorabilia" was given to campaign workers and was paid for from the Tower Senate Club. He stated that these trinkets such as ash trays, etc. are normal and that these gifts amounted to .0025% of the funds. He stated that such gifts are common among election campaigns and are token rewards for those who worked in the campaign.

[redacted] continued that after appointee's retirement from the United States Senate, he accepted a position with United States State Department as a negotiator for arms control with the Soviet Union. [redacted] stated that some newspapers criticized appointee's expenditure of approximately $2,600 from the Tower Senate Club funds to fund two lunches. One was with the British Delegation and the other was with the United States staff members. [redacted] maintains that this small expenditure was legitimate under the Senate Ethics Rule Number 38.

[redacted] stated that approximately one month ago, the Washington Post and various Cox Newspapers again criticized the expenditures of "$500,000" for personal use of appointee. [redacted] stated that in fact, the expenditure was $466,000 and was not a conversion of funds to appointee's personal use. [redacted] stated that these funds were to pay expenses in "Victory '84". [redacted] stated that Victory '84 was the Texas Organization for the Re-Election of Republican Candidates including President RONALD REAGAN and Vice-President GEORGE BUSH. [redacted] advised that appointee was very active in this campaign and that much of the expenditures were to pay for his expenses. [redacted] gave as an example, TOWER had a $60 a day room at the Driskill Hotel in Austin, Texas for a six-month period while he worked on the campaign. [redacted] stated that none of the proceeds personally benefitted appointee, but stated that all of the expenditures were to pay for expenses for the campaign.

[redacted] stated that several of the expenditures including the expenditure at Driskill Hotel and others have been criticized by the Washington Post and Cox Newspapers in general, but he stated that he personally reviewed all of the expenditures recently and is firm in his belief that all of the expenditures were legal and correct. He stated that there were no expenditures which he would even characterize as being questionable and concluded that he has all of the records to substantiate his expenditures and is willing to stand by each one of them.

[redacted] also advised that he is not aware of any questionable or illegal campaign contributions coming to the Tower Senate Club. He stated that he and other campaign workers were very cognizant of the rules and laws as far as campaign contributions were concerned and made a very precise effort to make sure that all of the campaign contributions met these high standards.

[redacted] advised that to his knowledge, appointee has never used narcotics and is not one to abuse alcohol or use it to excess. He stated that appointee will frequently join him in a glass of wine or a beer and in the past they have had whiskey together. [redacted] stated that he does not recall ever seeing appointee drunk and is not aware that appointee "a drinking problem." [redacted] stated that he knows appointee well enough to state with certainty that appointee is not an alcoholic nor is he one to abuse alcohol. He stated that he is not aware that any use of alcohol has ever hindered appointee in the execution of any of his duties.

As to the criticism in the newspapers regarding "womanizing" on the part of appointee, [redacted] stated that there are always young women around campaign headquarters, etc., but stated that it his belief that any criticism on the part of appointee in this area is unfounded. He cited an example which occurred in the lobby of an Odessa, Texas Hotel where someone observed TOWER in the company of a beautiful young lady just prior to going up to his room. The person commented that look at appointee preparing to take that young woman up to his room. [redacted] stated that he approached the person making the comment and advised him that the beautiful young lady in appointee's presence was appointee's daughter. He stated that he believes that this may be an example of how people get the mistaken impression of appointee's "womanizing." [redacted] also notes that during appointee's recent "no-fault divorce" there were interrogatories which were presented to appointee. These

interrogatories asked certain questions which might lead one to believe that there were "other women" involved in appointee's life. To [redacted] knowledge, these were just questions and were raised with no factual basis. These questions were brought to the public's notice by newspaper articles and hence the reputation of a womanizer may have been born. b6 b7C

[redacted] stated that appointee, to his knowledge, is a good and honest man with a high degree of integrity. He stated that some people might find appointee sometimes rather stuffy, but stated that this label is probably due to the fact that appointee is rather shy and may appear unfriendly. His honesty is above questioning and stated that he always wanted his campaigns run on the "up-and-up." According to [redacted] all of appointees' associates are of good character and stated that these associates and others around the Washington, D.C. area and the State of Texas hold appointee in high regard. He stated that appointee was well thought of among his peers at the United States Senate and stated that he had a loyal staff who "thought the world of him." [redacted] stated there is absolutely no questioning appointee's loyalty to the United States and stated that he is an extremely loyal individual. [redacted] stated that he was not aware of any financial indiscretions on the part of appointee but stated that he has no personal knowledge as to appointee's personal finances.

As to appointee's work habits, [redacted] stated that his attendance at the United States Senate was quite good and he commented that he was always there on important votes. [redacted] continued that appointee would work throughout the night when the workload demanded it, but stated that he would relax some when the workload eased and no immediate attention was necessary.

[redacted] stated that he would without any equivocation highly recommend appointee for any position of trust within the United States Government and stated that he would perform quite well and make a "great Cabinet level appointee."

Dear [redacted]

This letter is to confirm a conversation between [redacted] of your office and Supervisory Special Agent (SSA) [redacted] of the Washington Metropolitan Field Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) on December 15, 1988, regarding former Senator John Goodwin Tower.

[redacted] was advised that the FBI has been conducting a background investigation of former Senator Tower for a Presidential appointment in the Bush administration. During this investigation, [redacted] provided comments to the FBI alleging that [redacted] had converted campaign funds from his 1984 campaign for Senator from Texas to his own use. [redacted] alleged that he had used funds to open an office in Washington, D. C., and to pay his office staff. [redacted] commented that [redacted] believed that the Tower Senate Club, his campaign organization, showed a balance in July of 1983 of approximately $1.7 million.

[redacted] was provided a copy of an FD-302 pertaining to an interview of [redacted] who is the [redacted] Federal Election Commission (FEC), in which [redacted] commented regarding 2 U.S.C. Section 439a. In part, this FD-302 indicates that [redacted] view of Section 439a involves contributions received by the Tower Senate Club which were designated for the general election. [redacted] view is that those funds received by the Tower Senate Club designated as primary election contributions could be utilized by the Senator under the exclusionary rule of 439a and those contributed under the general election portion could not be used by Senator Tower because he withdrew from the general election. [redacted] comments indicate that all contributions made for the general election should be returned or refunded to the contributors or redesignated in accordance with certain FEC rules. b6 b7C

In addition to the above, SSA [redacted] discussed with [redacted] documentation received from the Federal Election Commission purporting to disclose the receipts and disbursements for Senator Tower's various campaigns from 1977 through 1988. SSA [redacted] analysis of these receipts and disbursements were discussed with [redacted] and it was pointed out that from the years 1977 through 1988, that those funds received for primary and general election campaigns appeared to remain relatively consistent with those funds indicated for disbursements under the primary and general campaigns. The information obtained from the FEC for the years 1983 and 1984 disclose receipts for the primary campaign for $257,000 and for the general election campaign of $1.4 million. In contrast, the disbursements showed $1.3 million under the primary campaign and $510,000 under the general election.

[redacted] was informed that Senator Tower had been interviewed on at least two occasions, and on December 3, 1988, when interviewed with regard to monies raised in his campaign he provided a four page memorandum accounting for the use of the campaign funds for the 1984 Senatorial race. [redacted] was advised that Senator Tower announced August 23, 1983, that he would not be running for re-election for the Senate from Texas, at which time he claimed that his political campaign committee, the Tower Senate Club, showed a balance of $1.58 million. Senator Tower indicated that he immediately sent a letter to his contributors offering to refund their contributions and a total of $120,000 was refunded over the next two years. According to Senator Tower, at the beginning of 1984, a balance of $1.17 million was maintained by the Tower Senate Club and the club began distributing funds to Republican Party organizations and candidates. Senator Tower indicated that approximately $280,000 was spent on his Austin, Texas, and Washington Offices, staff travel, and the Senator's travels.

According to [redacted] 2 U.S.C. 439a allows any individual who was a member of Congress on January 8, 1980, to use "surplus campaign funds" for "any lawful purpose", a concept that includes converting such funds to personal use of the member involved. Since Senator Tower was a member of Congress on January 8, 1980, Section 439a would therefore allow him to convert to personal use any monies that could reasonably be considered to be "surplus campaign funds".

[redacted] advised that an argument might be made that contributions to the Tower Senate Club which exceeded $1,000 per contributor during 1983 did not technically represent "campaign funds",

since under Federal Election Commission accounting regulations the Tower Senate Club was technically under an obligation to return such donations to contributors who made them once Senator Tower decided not to seek re-election. However, in order to be criminally actionable as either a general federal "fraud", or as a Federal Election Campaign Act crime under the Act's narrow penal sanction (2 U.S. C. 437g (d)), the prosecutor would have to prove that the Senator personally converted funds to his personal use that he knew at the time were not covered by Section 439a. [redacted] informed that, in his opinion, this would be impossible to do on the facts presented here, since the monies in question in fact came from a legitimate campaign committee, and since the requirement that some of them might theoretically have been refundable to contributors derived from a relatively obscure accounting regulation that under normal circumstances would have been the responsibility of the fund's bookkeeper and not the Senator.

In addition, [redacted] advised that if in fact any violation of the Election Laws took place, the statute of limitations which is three (3) years has long since tolled. The pertinent point would have been the August 23, 1983, withdrawal by Senator Tower, which would place the Statute of Limitations at August, 1986. In addition, [redacted] noted that if any "common law" fraud existed on the part of Senator Tower wherein perhaps he never intended to run for office in 1984, and allowed his campaign personnel to campaign and obtain contributions for him, that statue which is a five year Statute of Limitations, is likewise tolled. [redacted] commented that in order to make a viable case in this type of fraud matter, one would have to be able to show beyond a reasonable doubt the "mens rea", and the following intent to defraud on the part of the subject, which was not likely on the facts.

In conclusion, [redacted] indicated that he saw no apparent violations of any Election Law in the matter presented to him and noted that even if there were, the Statute of Limitations has long since tolled.

Sincerely yours,

W. Douglas Gow

Reagan Enlists Tower's Help To Win INF Treaty Approval

By Bill McAllister
Washington Post Staff Writer

President Reagan yesterday began his last year in office by pressing for support for his arms control policies on both domestic and international fronts.

The president, who will leave office next Jan. 20, enlisted the help of former senator John G. Tower (R-Tex.) to help him guide through the Senate ratification process the recently signed treaty to eliminate U.S. and Soviet intermediate-range nuclear missiles. Arms control will be one of the major themes of the president's State of the Union speech Monday night.

The president raised the arms control issue yesterday with West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, who was visiting in his role as president of the European Economic Community, and an international group of labor leaders. Reagan also announced the dates for his trip to Europe to confer with NATO leaders.

Both the West German government and the labor leaders have endorsed the INF Treaty and Tower told reporters after a 15-minute meeting in the Oval Office that he believed it would be ratified by the Senate. The president's major concern is "to prevent any crippling amendments of reservations" that would force the United States to reopen negotiations with the Soviets, Tower said.

White House officials said that they want the treaty, which Reagan signed at last month's summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, to clear the Senate by a large margin, signaling to the Soviets that the administration worked to back its commitment to reduce nuclear arms.

Tower, who once chaired the Senate Armed Services Committee, led opposition to President Carter's SALT II treaty, which provided limits on long-range nuclear weapons. The treaty never was ratified by the Senate. Administration officials said Tower's role will be to ease the fears of conservatives that the United States cannot verify Soviet compliance with the INF Treaty.

Overwhelming ratification would help propel the Soviets to move quickly toward an agreement on strategic arms that Reagan hopes to sign at a summit this spring in Moscow, administration officials said. A large margin also would lessen the chances that Senate opponents would attach major reservations to the long-range arms treaty, the officials said.

Genscher was told that prospects are good that agreement on the second treaty could be reached during the arms control talks underway in Geneva, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said. "Both sides have a spirit of cooperation and intention to try to get an agreement by the May-June time frame," Fitzwater said.

Arms negotiations will be one of the major topics that Reagan and other NATO heads of state will discuss in Brussels March 2 and 3.

Fitzwater also announced that final laboratory results from the president's cancer checkup last week showed no recurrence of his prostate problem.

Ex-boss Tower getting 'bum deal,' women say

Tower

By Richard S. Dunham
TIMES HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

WASHINGTON — When Cynthia Root began hearing unflattering news reports about former Texas Sen. John Tower's private life, she thought the media was not describing the former boss she knew.

Root, who worked her way from receptionist to legislative assistant during her seven years on Tower's staff, rejects the portrayal of Tower in some media reports as a man with an insatiable appetite for alcohol, women and the Washington fast life. Instead, she said, Tower was a man who provided unequaled opportunities for women to advance in their careers.

"Tower is getting a bum deal," said Root, a former official in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services who currently is director of government relations for the American Academy of Ophthalmology. "He was absolutely one of the best members of the Senate — if not the best in how he dealt with women. He deserves tremendous credit, which he is not getting."

The spate of reports critical of Tower's private life, which has complicated his selection as President-elect George Bush's Defense secretary, has prompted former Tower staff workers to unite behind their former boss, but none more so than a loyal cadre of professional women who got their start as aides to the Texas senator.

"He is a man who recognizes talent in everyone and works to help those people develop those talents in a productive way," said Carolyn Bacon, who was one of the first women to serve as an administrative assistant in the Senate.

when Tower hired her for his top staff job. "It was a very satisfying working environment."

Many of Tower's friends and associates said his former wife, Washington attorney Lilla Burt Cummings, is the cause of the rumors about his private life that have been repeated in the media.

"It's outrageous that she should be using his public nomination for personal revenge," said Merrie Spaeth, a Dallas communications consultant and former Reagan administration official. "It gives all women a bad name."

Cummings, never popular with Tower staff workers, has been accused of forcing the resignation of several Tower advisers.

"I'm sure that the former Mrs. Tower never won a Miss Congeniality Award while she was in school," said longtime Tower friend Paul Eggers, a Dallas attorney who represented Tower in divorce proceedings.

Tower's former aides said many of the media reports are based on unverified rumors based on allegations made during the Towers' messy 1987 divorce.

"I think it's atrocious journalism," Root said. "Whenever you open that big black box of divorce settlements and estranged wives, you have a situation where nobody looks good."

Kathleen Troia McFarland, who worked for Tower's Senate Armed Services Committee staff and later served as an aide to Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, said people "must take a grain of salt allegations of a disgruntled former spouse."

"Myself and the professional women who worked for him never found him to be anything but a perfect boss," she said. "He certainly treated me with just the highest professional regard. I never had a hint of anything like" Cummings' allegations of sexual infidelity.

Despite the controversy swirling around Tower, McFarland said she believes he will be nominated as Defense secretary within the next week.

"I think it would be a great Christmas present to the nation," she said.

Honorable Richard L. Thornburg
Attorney General
Department of Justice
Washington D.C. 20530

Dear Mr. Attorney General:

We are conducting a review of the background and qualifications of the Honorable John Tower in anticipation of his nomination to be Secretary of Defense.

In light of the ongoing investigation of various defense contractors and consultants, known as Ill Wind, and Senator Tower's previous employment as a consultant to several defense contractors, we feel we must specifically determine whether there has been any information developed as part of the Ill Wind investigation, or contained in other files within the purview of your department, that might raise any question about Senator Tower serving as Secretary of Defense.

Therefore, we ask that you review the information developed in the Ill Wind investigation, as well as any other information concerning Senator Tower that is available to your department, and advise us in writing of your opinion as to whether any of that information raises any question about Senator Tower's suitability or qualifications to serve as Secretary of Defense, and any other matters which should be addressed by the Senate Armed Services Committee, and eventually the Senate as a whole in discharging our responsibilities under the Constitution.

Thank you for your assistance.

Sincerely,

LEGAT CONTACTED [redacted] BY SECURE PHONE NOVEMBER 29, 1988, RE THIS MATTER. [redacted] ADVISED HE WAS FAMILIAR WITH THE FACT THAT 161-20403-128 INVESTIGATION WAS CONDUCTED CONCERNING TOWER IN GENEVA, BUT THAT [redacted] INVESTIGATION WAS A JOINT INVESTIGATION CONDUCTED BY [redacted]

CC DESTROYED

By [redacted] Time 9:45pm

COUNTERINTELLIGENCE OFFICE OF STATE DEPARTMENT'S OFFICE OF DIPLOMATIC SECURITY AND NAVAL INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE. [redacted] b6 b7C ADVISED THAT TO HIS KNOWLEDGE THE MOST RECENT DEVELOPMENT TOOK PLACE ABOUT A YEAR AGO WHEN [redacted] WAS IN GENEVA TO FOLLOW UP ON SOME ALLEGATIONS MADE BY TOWER'S EX-WIFE.

TOWER'S EX-WIFE HAD VISITED GENEVA IN MID-1987 AND MADE ALLEGATIONS THAT TOWER HAD HAD ONE OR MORE EXTRAMARITAL AFFAIRS WHILE ASSIGNED TO GENEVA AND WAS WORKING FOR THE SOVIETS THE WHOLE TIME. [redacted] HAD RECENTLY REVIEWED THE WHOLE FILE ON TOWER PRIOR TO HIS TRIP TO GENEVA.

[redacted] ADVISED THE INVESTIGATION OF TOWER INVOLVED A VERY CLOSE ASSOCIATE OF TOWER, A U.S. ARMY [redacted] NAMED [redacted] WHO WAS SUBSEQUENTLY [redacted] DISCHARGED FROM THE ARMY.

[redacted] ADVISED HE HAS NO WRITTEN RECORDS OF THIS WHOLE AFFAIR AND DOES NOT BELIEVE THAT ANY RECORDS OF THE INVESTIGATION EXIST IN GENEVA, BUT WOULD CHECK TO CONFIRM.

[redacted] ADVISED THAT THE COUNTERINTELLIGENCE OFFICE AT THE OFFICE OF DIPLOMATIC SECURITY, THE NAVAL INTELLIGENCE SERVICE AND

THE SECURITY OFFICE AT ARMS CONTROL AND DISARMAMENT AGENCY SHOULD HAVE RECORDS AND FILES ON THE INVESTIGATION.

THE ABOVE INFORMATION WAS TELEPHONICALLY FURNISHED TO UNIT CHIEF [redacted] BY SECURE TELCALL ON NOVEMBER 29, 1988. b6 b7C

SUBSEQUENTLY, BASED ON TELCALL FROM SSA [redacted] SPIN UNIT, FBIHQ, LEGAT RECONTACTED [redacted] FOR CLARIFICATION. [redacted] ADVISED THAT THERE WAS A MISUNDERSTANDING IN THAT THE INVESTIGATION REFERRED TO ABOVE WAS NOT IN ACTUALITY AN INVESTIGATION OF AMBASSADOR TOWER, BUT WAS TARGETED AT THE FORMER ARMY [redacted] NAMED [redacted] POSSIBLY [redacted] AND TOWER WERE VERY CLOSE ASSOCIATES WHILE IN GENEVA AND IT WAS DURING THE INVESTIGATION OF [redacted] THAT THE ALLEGATIONS ABOUT TOWER CAME TO LIGHT AND WERE DOCUMENTED IN THAT INVESTIGATION. [redacted] FURTHER ADVISED REGARDING TOWER'S EX-WIFE THAT SHE IS CONSIDERED AS SOMEWHAT UNSTABLE, IS REPUTED TO HAVE BEEN A HEAVY DRINKER AND ALSO ENGAGED IN EXTRA-MARITAL AFFAIRS WHILE ASSIGNED TO GENEVA.

THE CONFUSION INDICATED ABOVE WAS IN LARGE PART DUE TO A POOR QUALITY TELEPHONE CONNECTION ON THE SECURE TELEPHONE LINK BETWEEN BERN AND GENEVA.
