I want to highlight food security but am not sure how to do. So we should think about her to help.

Yes [redacted] is on our list. She's entirely flexible so can be put in wherever someone totally capable, trustworthy, loyal and highly productive would strengthen the team -- [redacted]
[redacted] something in food security comes to mind.

A great treat to see you tonight -- tho we sure left with homework! jan

Don't worry about opening resume, but thought you'd be struck by [redacted]'s 3rd para below.

Nancy and I are focused on sourcing for USAID head and G Bureau out of our conversation yesterday. We had an immensely valuable meeting with Melanne today and have begun sourcing calls and drafting a couple of trusted people to assist in outreach -- very low-key, below the radar.

Sure hope confirmation happened today so you can fully step into this challenge.

Cheryl, by the way, is extraordinary -- focused, strategic, smart, frank. How CAN she do this with twin 4 year olds?!

Hi Jan --

It was good to talk with you just now, and I look forward to talking more tomorrow and thinking things through. I just know that you would be of tremendous value there, even in the short term. But you do have your life to worry about!

Per our conversation Monday, here is my resume. Working at State under Hillary would be an extraordinary opportunity.

Yesterday, when I listened to the Inaugural Address, I was struck by the language, "To the people of poor nations, we pledge to work alongside you to make your farms flourish and let clean waters flow; to nourish starved bodies and feed hungry minds." I would love to commit myself to fulfilling such a pledge. As you know, making a difference and public service are my life's passion.

Jan, you probably know me as well as anyone. I think I could bring to a job organizational smarts and a strategic sense. I have wide-ranging policy, management and media experience. I'm a fast learner. And I'm comfortable and experienced in developing countries. I could hit the ground running,

If anything else would be helpful, please just let me know. And thank you so much for thinking for me!

Warmly,

Inauguration '09: Get complete coverage from the nation's capital.
