A,

Well, you were right as usual. Royal Navy and Royal Marine blokes & their ladies do like the 'Hatter'. Chris has pics to prove it and will send. Tux & hat J Pics include Simon et al - who knew pics were for you, so send their best wishes and regards. UK Navy and Marines big HRC fans. Magnificent, though too short, visit to London Town. Formal military event at Lincoln's Inn Hall one night. Toasted Queen and you - our Queen. An evening nicely done by Commandant General of Royal Marines, a few active duty Admirals and retired Admiral Scott Ledbetter (Simon's buddy). Dinner at Institute of Directors on Pall Mall the next. Then great neighborhood Indian food the 3rd night. And pub grub (fish & chips) on the fourth. Yum. Toured the old turf from my Navy days, after too many years since last visit. Naturally included Harrods, Selfridges, and other Oxford St and Knightsbridge costly establishments. Even had ok weather. Walked and walked and walked. Little sleep. Some play. Some interesting work. Surprisingly, no airport body scans or pat downs at either Logan or Heathrow - which certainly made Chris happy. She shares your interview opinion J A bit jet lagged, so not sure how the heck you do it on such a consistent basis. Best,

MH
